I look forward to working closely with both of them."

Dance team crowned national champions

By Brittany Mulligan

bmulligan@hometownnewsol.com

BREVARD COUNTY — From regional tournaments to national competitions, Ultimate Dance Florida has produced outstanding dancers who shine wherever they go.

Owner and Artistic Director Annette Alvarez-Gutches moved UDF to Melbourne in 2003 after 10 successful years in Fort Lauderdale. She has led the dance company and its myriad of students through 25 years of excellence in Florida.

“I am so proud that many of my dancers have gone on to professional careers, from New York to Orlando to Los Angeles,” Ms. Alvarez-Gutches said. “I also love that my students are dancing in some amazing college programs [and] that my alumni come back to the studio and guest teach to our younger generation to keep the UDF traditions alive.”

UDF offers a variety of classes at its two Brevard locations in Melbourne and Palm Bay. Students can sign up as young as 3 years old and well into adulthood.

Classes include Ballet, Pointe, Pre-Pointe (Foot Focus), Tap, Jazz, Lyrical, Contemporary, Hip Hop, Acrobatics and Leaps & Turns technique classes. Top Gun Technique is UDF’s newest class, and it offers a “strong technical focus on placement, conditioning, strength and flexibility,” according to Ms. Alvarez-Gutches.

For children enrolled in UDF’s Preschool Children’s Program, students can learn Ballet and Tap, or can join Tumble Tots acrobatics.

“Our UDF teachers are top notch,” Ms. Alvarez-Gutches said. “My all-adult staff have all had extensive training in the subjects they teach, have had professional careers and continue to take opportunities to dance when they can. They also have studied with prestigious ballet schools throughout their training years, and continue to take convention classes, and are constantly honing their craft.”

Ms. Alvarez-Gutches has an extensive background in dance. She is an American Ballet Theater certified teacher, and she recently completed Progressing Ballet Technique training over the summer. Her college education includes earning a bachelor’s degree in Elementary Education and a master’s degree in Educational Leadership.

“I am certified by test to teach all genres of dance through Dance Masters of America and Florida Dance Masters,” Ms. Alvarez-Gutches added.

UDF also offers an internship program for advanced senior students, which pairs seniors with an experienced UDF teacher so they can learn how to teach their own classes.

The UDF Powerhouse Dance Team typically attends four-to-five regional competitions a year and one national competition, which recently took place in New Orleans this past July.

“We are so proud of our team!” Ms. Alvarez-Gutches said. “They most recently won multiple age divisions and levels at our national championship in New Orleans, and are National Champions again! We are ranked as one of the top studios in the southeastern United States with our competitive program.”

Registration is currently open for fall classes, which begin on Aug. 20. Registration is open as long as the class has room, although classes are capped to a certain size.

Cost to register and attend classes are available at UDF’s website, www.ultimatedance-andmusic.com.

UDF North is located at 3270 Suntree Blvd., Suite No. 1113, Melbourne. Its studio hours are open from 4-9 p.m. on Mondays, 3:45-9:15 p.m. on Tuesdays, 3:30-9:45 p.m.

on Wednesdays, 4:30-9:15 p.m. on Thursdays, closed for private lessons on Fridays, and closed for UDF Powerhouse Team rehearsals on Saturdays.

UDF South is located at 1320 Culver Dr. N.E., Suite No. 1, Palm Bay. Its hours are open from 4:30-9:30 p.m. on Mondays, 4-9:30 p.m. on Tuesdays, 4:30-9:30 p.m. on Wednesdays, 4:45-9:30 p.m. on Thursdays, closed for private lessons on Fridays, and closed for UDF Powerhouse Team rehearsals on Saturdays.

Ensure a senior's well-being

Heat exhaustion can sneak up, causing increased body temperature, rapid pulse, headache and fatigue. If you don't get cool, you'll dehydrate, possibly suffer a stroke, or worse, die.

Of 8,000-plus heat-related fatalities reported annually in the United States, 36 percent are among those ages 65 and older, according to a Centers for Disease Control Heat-Related Illness Survey. Hospitalizations for heat-related symptoms increase for those older than 85.

Those with elderly friends, relatives or neighbors are encouraged to take five minutes to check in on them, particularly in very hot weather.

Studies show there are far too few professional caregivers for aging adults, a trend expected to continue for the next 10 years or more, so non-professionals play a vital role in keeping seniors safe. Giving just a few minutes of your time to ensure a senior's well-being can be highly rewarding. You might even save a life.

Most drivers need to slow down

In reference to last week's "Slower traffic move right," . . . you did not state the speed of the "slow" vehicle or the speed limit where this happened.

The traffic law is not about allowing speeders to speed. Lower vehicles (those traveling 10 or miles per hour BELOW the posted speed limit should pull over.

It has nothing to do with the flow of traffic. Almost 70 percent of the drivers are speeding and they NEED TO SLOW DOWN AND OBEY THE SPEED LIMIT LAW.

Ask party affiliation and why

I commend any candidate running for public office this election season, especially in light of the recent public verbal confrontations of political figures by people who disagree with their political views.

And thank you for interviewing and publishing information on our local public candidates. Hometown News is the only source of information on these candidates for many voters.

Two helpful questions Hometown News should ask candidates is their political party affiliation and why. Knowing these answers can simplify the decision of whom to vote for greatly. Republican candidates will lean toward President Trump's views, while Democrat candidates will lean toward Hillary Clinton, Bernie Sanders or Maxine Waters views.

Help to reduce media panic

The person who wrote the "Help to reduce panic" rant was right on.

Yes, if you live in a coastal region in the direct path of a major hurricane, you should probably evacuate.

The media and governor had the entire state worked up into a panic for last year's "unprecedented" Irma.

Sadly we did not learn from "unprecedented" Matthew in 2016.

A hurricane slows down after it hits land, If you live in Orlando and inland communities you probably don't need to evacuate.

The Chicken Little local news and the governor with their whole "get out now!" and "you will die" was way over the top.

There were so many people evacuating

Mommy's little princess

Cassidy Strader, 3, and Erica Strader, both of Merritt Island, dance to their favorite Disney tunes during 'Punzie's Wedding and Princess Ball' on Saturday, July 28, at AZAN Shriners Center in Melbourne.

the highways were clogged for days and gas stations ran out of gas.

The people who needed to evacuate, who kept cool and waited to see where the storm was going to hit, now had hours and hours of traffic jams and the possibility of going through the storm out of gas on the side of the road.

Let's be a little smarter for the next one, and by all means evacuate if you want to play it safe, but please, don't let the media sensationalism get us all worked up.

Addresses should be easy to see

To the person who is so upset over the fence, a simple solution would be all hedges.

Overall, it is sad how many communities just wall themselves up, keeping everyone out.

I also find them dangerous since there is only one way in and one way out of their community.

If an emergency were to occur, this could prove hazardous.

I don't understand why Brevard County doesn't enforce a second exit rule, especially for large communities.

Speaking of danger, I work in the delivery industry and have found there is no continuity of numbering complexes. One complex can have numbers on the building, others letters.

At night, it often is difficult to see the addresses.

I am surprised that the fire chief hasn't enforced better signs.

I know it is frustrating for me, I can't imagine how difficult it can be for emergency personnel.

An idea I have is to number the driveway before each house, and with complexes, have solar lighting on signage (also clearing away plants so one can see the signs). I really do not understand why there isn't more concern over the lack of numbering buildings or houses.

I cannot tell you how many homes I deliver to that do not even have their house number.

There should be fines for people who do not number their homes properly. Numbers on the drive would be still there in case of a major catastrophe. Am I the only one concerned?

GATEWAY TO NATURE AND SPACE

Preserving the Past...Preparing for the Future An update on the difficult process of renovating a downtown landmark.

Dust fills the air and the sound of hammers echoes throughout Downtown Titusville as workers for Loyd Contracting continue the process of renovating the old Walker Hotel and the adjacent historic Titusville Bank building. For months, Micah Loyd and his team have been painstakingly going through the both buildings, removing and preserving original lighting fixtures, taking down old and dilapidated walls, and repairing and restoring the original flooring from the 1920s.

The work is being done as part of a large project spearheaded by Red Canyon Software, Inc., a Denver-based aerospace engineering and software company, who plans to open its first regional office inside the building under the name Launch Now Titusville. Along with offices, they plan to convert the top two floors into boutique-style apartments, which will provide housing for the company's employees and other individuals who wish to live in the downtown area.

Inside the old bank, the plan calls for the stairs and chandelier to remain in place while the teller desks will be removed, opening up the floor as a large workspace. The old bank vaults will be left alone, preserving its original look and feel, and the original terrazzo floor will receive much-needed care.

"Both sites are a historic renovation," said Micah Loyd, President of Loyd Contracting. "They're [Red Canyon] getting a grant [from the federal government], for historic building preservation. So...you're going to see this terrazzo the exact way as it was in the mid-20s."

Upstairs in the bank, the removal of old wall covering revealed the original period wallpaper and terracotta siding. It also unearthed some interesting finds: namely, alcohol bottles left behind from past guests and workers from nearly a century ago.

Next door in the hotel, non-load-bearing walls are being removed opening up rooms to be more accessible. However, the workers are taking great care to restore original doors and windows, and the crown molding which ran along the ceiling; all in an attempt to maintain the historic nature of these buildings and adhere to the mandates of the grants the project has been awarded. Even the original plumbing fixtures and shower heads are being handled with care so as not to damage or detract from the building.

"All the third floor apartments — when got here — were in the original condition." Loyd said, "A deteriorated condition. Even the bathrooms had the original toilets, the original tubs."

One of the major hardships encountered by the contractor were the old, 500-pound cast iron bathtubs, which workers had to break apart in order to remove. When it comes time to replace them, Loyd says they will be using modern equipment that matches the period of the originals.

Inside one of the many rooms on the upper floors of the old hotel that will be renovated into boutique-style apartments.

Removing the tubs was just the start, because when they were originally installed during construction, the floor was built to include a large concrete slab upon which the tub was anchored. This tremendous weight, compounded with many years of use, also had other detrimental effects on the building, exacerbating problems created by the original construction.

At the time of construction, not all of the load bearing walls on the second floor were lined up on top of the main support beams below. Over time, this misalignment and the heavy weight of fixtures and furnishings has caused the ceiling downstairs to sag, requiring new supports to be installed. To do this safely, the storefronts on the first floor have to be vacated, which means The Kite Stop and Expressions Hair Salon will need to relocate. According to the construction timetable, the stores have to be out by September of this year.

The front of the building, which features a large balcony overlooking S. Washington Avenue will receive a facelift during construction. Loyd says that new street-side landscaping will be installed in order to open up the balcony for a better view of downtown. The main doorway will be replaced, and the stairs refurbished to bring the original entry back to its classic look.

Other major renovations on the exterior include the demolition and removal of the large concrete stairs on the back of the building, which connect to the Hopkins Avenue parking lot. The stairs will be replaced with a three-story elevator.

Demolition and cleanup is expected to take a few more months, and Loyd expects the entire project will take a year to complete. However, when it is finished, the downtown area will have a beautiful historic building with all the modern amenities; ready for restaurants and shops on the first floor, and apartments above. All of which will bring new life and energy to the area.

Temple Israel welcomes all to social gathering

By Brittany Mulligan
bmulligan@hometownnewsol.com

BREVARD COUNTY — There's a saying that "Home is where the heart is" but home for many can also mean a place of worship where all are welcomed and members feel like they belong.

For those looking to join a new congregation or for those new to the area, Temple Israel of Brevard is hosting "Let's Get Together," a social event at 1 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 5 at 7350 Lake Andrew Dr., Viera.

Temple Israel of Brevard is affiliated with the Union of Reform Judaism, and is Brevard's only Reform Jewish congregation served by a full-time Rabbi, Rabbi Patricia (Pat) Hickman.

"As the Rabbi of the congregation, I look forward to meeting new people and finding out what brings them joy and how they feel about God," Rabbi Hickman said. "Then, I try to create an atmosphere and opportunities to expand on their dreams and goals, always looking for ways to bring them closer to God."

Rabbi Hickman has been serving Temple Israel of Brevard for the past 16 years. Her husband, Ray Hickman, serves as the "Hazzan Sheini" or second Cantor.

The social gathering is aimed at welcoming new members, as well as those interested in joining or learning more about Reform Judaism.

"My son with Down syndrome has been fully included and has participated in our Purim plays, services and Mitzvah Corps, which he really loved," said Sue Cannon, office manager and member of Temple Israel of Brevard. "I like how comfortable members are with each other - there is a real family feel to the congregation [and] I like the opportunities to grow spiritually; I read from the Torah for the first time during my Adult B'nai Mitzvah ceremony."

Temple Israel offers Beginning Hebrew classes periodically throughout the year. The most recent class, called "The Hebrew Marathon," covered the Aleph-bet, which is the Semitic writing system. A follow up class is scheduled for some time in August.

Members and non-members alike are invited to join the temple's choir, and according to Rabbi Hickman, "You just have to be able to carry a tune [and] have a love of Jewish music."

Temple Israel also offers "Joyous Shabbat Services," Family Shabbat, Religious School, Men's Club, Women of Temple Israel, Adult Education, Congregational Seder, Jewish

Sloan

What makes you the best candidate for this seat?: "I am a candidate for Supervisor Group 2 Brevard Soil & Water Conservation District because of my teenage farming experience in northern Illinois. My father and the USDA Soil Conservation Service turned 160 acres of tired and eroded land into a highly productive farm, a visible conservation model for that farming community. As a Brevard landowner from 1983 until this day, I have seen the difficulties faced by our agricultural enterprises, groves and ranches. As a Supervisor I will promote and implement a 'helping hand' relationship between the USDA Natural Resource Conservation Service and our private landowners across Brevard."

Bistro serves up fresh seafood to Satellite

By Austin Rushnell

ARushnell@hometownnewsol.com

BREVARD COUNTY — Finding a good seafood place can be a challenge, but for residents living near Satellite Beach, it's no problem at all.

North by South Bistro is a new seafood place that is making waves down by the beach, with fresh New England and southern seafood cuisine.

The bistro opened on Feb. 1 by owner and chef, Jonathan Fort.

"I actually had four different ideas for the restaurant," Mr. Fort said. "And I did a little research around the town, and asked people what they'd be most excited to see; and, overwhelmingly, a New England-style bistro was what everyone wanted."

The bistro has an excellent selection of options, such as New England-style clam chowder, crab cakes, po'boys, and cod sandwiches, among others.

One standout dish is the shrimp and grits, with bits of bacon and cheese in a generously-portioned bowl.

Student finds new learning in Taekwondo

By Austin Rushnell

arushnell@hometownnewsol.com

BREVARD COUNTY – Parents who work with a child struggling in school often find themselves in a difficult and stressful situation.

One local parent, John Sivoletta, was faced with his son's own struggle in school, but he found a unique way to provide support for his son: through martial arts.

"There is a lot of pressure on teachers to perform; performance is measured by how their students fair on standardized tests," wrote Mr. Sivoletta in an essay about his son Nicholas, titled, "The Art of Learning: What Great Teachers Inherently Know".

"My second grade son was a drag on his school's evaluation when his test scores were below their grid. An assembly line process culls the weak performers and is quick to label them as having a disability, and many a doctor is willing to prescribe their drug of choice in the hopes of altering the outcome. Teachers with the best intentions encouraged my son to 'try harder.'"

Although Nicholas tried his best, he was still falling behind. After some time, the Sivoletta family decided to take their son to a doctor that tested his eyes with computerized goggles, and discovered that his left eye consistently jumped above and below the line that he was trying to read.

"He had to reread each sentence several times before he could get its meaning," Mr. Sivoletta wrote. "Each new sentence repeated the process, and comprehension became nearly impossible. When fitted with the goggles to mimic his eye function, I could not comprehend anything."

After a couple years of specialized vision therapy, Mr. Sivoletta's son's reading ability were, and remain, well on their way to a full recovery.

The eye doctor also made an additional recommendation: that Mr. Sivoletta take Nicholas to John Leep Taekwondo in Satellite Beach. Having practiced martial arts in his own past, Mr. Sivoletta agreed.

"Mr. Leep's classes reflect his philosophy and the reality that everyone learns differently," Mr. Sivoletta explained. "Everyone has abilities," he likes to say, "not everyone has the same, and that's a good thing. Let's be the best you can be."

Mr. Leep works personally with his students to teach them the art of Taekwondo, which is a defensive martial art from Korea.

"[Mr. Leep] watches his students, he understands how they learn and how each individual interprets his instructions," Mr. Sivoletta wrote. "His approach to every student becomes personalized as to how they respond [to the instructions]; it is quite a remarkable thing to observe.

"He is able to target his students' strengths instead of focusing on their weaknesses," Mr. Sivoletta continued. "[This has been] the opposite approach to what our school experience has been."

After watching Mr. Leep helping to boost Nicholas' self-esteem through Taekwondo, Mr. Sivoletta has decided to join the class himself.

"I was in martial arts 40 years ago," Mr. Sivoletta added. "After two years sitting on the bench watching my son, Mr. Leep encouraged me to join the class. Who says you can't teach an old dog new tricks?"

else does, and the chopped salad is probably the most solid salad I've ever had in my life," Mr. Fort said. "The fact that we make everything from scratch, right when you order it, [makes us stand out in Brevard County]. We put everything we've got into every [dish]. We don't have any pre-made or frozen...anything. We try to give really good food at a decent price."

The crowd favorite is the crab cake, according to Mr. Fort.

"They are actual Maryland crab cakes, and no one does that," Mr. Fort explained. "The seafood lasagna, the seafood mac and cheese, and the shrimp and grits are the three favorites that everybody just goes crazy about."

"[Guests can expect] perfect service, every time," Mr. Fort added. "A perfect dining experience is the standard."

My own dining experience was nothing short of a perfect selection of seafood dishes: my date and I tried the clam chowder which was excellent, then had as many bites as we could into a variety of dishes, including a fried cod sandwich, crab cake, a mixed and delicious salad with dressing made in-house, and a shrimp po' boy, which was on a perfectly soft bread that really sent the flavors home.

One of the most unique, and definitely most tasty, dishes was the shrimp and grits. It was made in such a way that I've never seen before, with an array of flavors

Harris Corporation grants $95,000 to Brevard schools

By Brittany Mulligan

bmulligan@hometownnewsol.com

BREVARD COUNTY — There's no doubt that education is important, and with the latest technology and advanced programs available for Brevard Public Schools, students have had a great advantage from a grant provided by Harris Corporation.

The Brevard Schools Foundation recently received a $95,000 grant by Harris Corporation, which will help fund two new hands-on Science, Technology, Engineering and Math (STEM) programs for students and teachers.

"We have enjoyed a long and fruitful partnership with Brevard Public Schools and the Foundation, and this donation extends that mutually beneficial relationship," said Harris Chairman, President and CEO William M. Brown in a press release. "Harris is deeply committed to education – particularly in the STEM field – and encouraging the next generation of scientists and engineers will help build a better future for all of us."

The generous grant ensures that students can receive the best tools possible to further their learning. To date, Harris Corporation has donated more than $1 million to the Brevard Schools Foundation, which has been used to support Brevard's public schools in STEM-related programs.

Part of the funds from the recent grant will be used toward two new initiatives.

The first initiative is the Harris STEM Challenge, which includes lessons created by Brevard Public School teachers and Harris engineers. The challenge is a year-long program beginning this fall and ending with a competition for middle school students in April.

According to officials, "The year-long program will encourage participation in STEM problem-based learning experiences in traditional math and science classrooms which will improve the quality of grades 7-8 science and math education."

The second initiative is a Harris STEM Engagement Series, which is a professional development opportunity designed for Physical Science teachers in grades 8-10.

Physical Science will be a new course offered in schools aiming to engage students with hands-on activities, and will be STEM-driven.

The grant will additionally be used to support Destination Space, Take Stock in Children, science fairs, Harris Super Sci-

Help students get organized for a strong start

For Hometown News

newsml@hometownnewsol.com

BREVARD COUNTY — School-related stress is common among multi-tasking students. But smart organization can make it easier to dash from class to study hall to after-school activities. It all starts with the right supplies. Gear up for a successful, low-stress school year with these handy tips.

Consult the List

Give your students the tools they'll need to hit the ground running, and alleviate their stress of being unprepared, by referencing the supply list the school sends home. Then spend some time before the first day of school doing something fun together that's also educational, like visiting a museum or reading books. This will get brains active and alert before the first bell rings, ensuring a smooth transition to classroom learning.

Work Smarter

A lot of information is thrown at students during a lesson, but even the quickest notetaker can run into trouble sorting it all out when it comes time to study. The right school supplies will allow students to learn in a meaningful way.

New alternatives to traditional note-taking can make finding relevant information a cinch during study sessions.

For example, the Five Star College Ruled Interactive Notebook includes a table of contents with a spot for the date, topic descriptions and page numbers to help students quickly find specific information. Side margins and page number blocks allow for page customization and organization, while the grid ruled quick reference guide is a handy tool for periodic tables, multiplication tables and a glossary of terms. Students can stress less with organizational tools such as these.

Likewise, the Five Star Flex Hybrid NoteBinder, which acts like a notebook and works like a binder, is adaptable to meet the needs of all types of learners. On the inside, pocket dividers provide built-in organization and paper storage to which students can add paper and dividers as needed.

Reduce Your Haul

It's practical to maintain two sets of certain school supplies -- one for a student's home workstation and the other in his or her locker. Pens, pencils, erasers, highlighters, extra paper, sticky notes and rulers are great examples of supplies to store in both places. Doing so will save students the stress of remembering everything before leaving for school or home and can also reduce some weight in heavy backpacks.

Seek Durability

Stuffed into backpacks, stored at the bottom of lockers, and shuttled between school and home, school supplies take a beating. This can mean ripping and even losing important papers. Seek out items durable enough to store materials for multiple classrooms and functional enough to withstand multiple locker visits, such as the Five Star 3-Inch Binder with Removable Padded Case. It comes with an expanding file for quick access to papers and a padded pouch for storing tech gear. Double the strength of competition, Five Star College Ruled Reinforced Filler Paper is a must-have for schoolwork and pairs well with binders.

Five Star aims to be an ally and champion for students looking for creative and expressive ways to manage the stress of their daily routines. More tips to reduce school-related stress can be found at strengthenotstress.com or join the conversation using #Strength-NotStress.

"Stress is a common challenge for students," says Jessica Hodges, vice president of marketing at ACCO Brands, which builds school supplies based on evolving student needs. "Knowing you can channel stress into something more positive is empowering."

How new technologies will support STEAM learning

For Hometown News
newsml@hometownnewsol.com

BREVARD COUNTY — With each new school year comes a brand-new set of subjects, books and teachers. It also means new technologies being introduced into the classroom.

As students head back to school, here is a look at the technologies that will support STEAM (science, technology, engineering, arts and math) learning this year.

- Digital Art: Enter some art classes today and you may find a dearth of paints, brushes and charcoal. Today, art students can learn the same painting, drawing and sculpting techniques they previously would have learned using traditional supplies, only with digital tools instead. While the traditional mediums aren't completely going away any time soon, today's students can benefit from the versatility that cutting-edge tools supply, from the time a project idea is conceived through when the finished product is shared with the world.

- Visual Science: Whether it's an anatomical diagram of the human heart or a map of the Milky Way, every science teacher knows that a picture's worth a thousand words, particularly when it's a sharp, clear picture. Teachers and students are benefitting from top of the line projection technology in classrooms. The LampFree Projectors from Casio's Core Series, for example, have the ability to project images and video wirelessly from smart phones, laptop computers and tablets, expanding teachers' ability to create engaging lesson plans. Additionally, the mercury-free Laser and LED hybrid light source is energy-efficient, reducing power consumption by up to 40 percent, a bonus lesson in environmental stewardship.

- Accessible Computer Science: Certain innovations are helping students go beyond just consuming technology. Apps abound for independent learners, as well as educators, to use in their classrooms to help computer science students of all ages and abilities to hone their coding skills. From straight-forward instructional apps to those that gamify the learning process, young coders-in-training have a wealth of resources at their fingertips.

- Intuitive Music: New technology is rocking the music education boat in an effort to make learning an instrument more intuitive. For example, Casio's LK-265 is outfitted with such tools as a Key Lighting System, Voice Fingering Guide and Step-up Lesson System, enabling beginners to learn built-in songs at their own pace. Additionally, an LCD display makes mastering music notation and correct hand positioning easy. Students don't even have to wait for teacher feedback -- the keyboards have a Scoring System that evaluates performance.

- In-Depth Math: Today's students are getting a closer look at the inner workings of mathematics than their predecessors, thanks to new graphing calculators, such as the fx-CG50 PRIZM and fx-CG500, which offer expanded features, including the ability to easily draw three dimensional graphs such as planes, cylinders and spheres, and view them from various angles to better analyze their shapes. A cross-section option and special zoom function allow students to closely examine graphs for in-depth analysis and an improved catalog function means students can use commands more easily and quickly.

As rapidly emerging technologies innovate education, it's an exciting time to be a student or teacher.

Families with asthma have a back-to-school checklist

For Hometown News
newsml@hometownnewsol.com

BREVARD COUNTY — For the more than 6 million children in the U.S. living with asthma, gearing up for another school year involves much more than picking out a new pencil case and backpack. Accounting for nearly 14 million lost school days each year, asthma is one of the main illness-related reasons that students miss school.

With better asthma management, children are able to feel healthy, safe and ready to learn! For a full toolkit and free resources from the American Lung Association, visit Lung.org/asthma-in-schools.

To get ready for a successful school year, the American Lung Association recommends this back-to-school checklist for families with asthma:

1. Schedule a check-up with your child's physician. Use your yearly check-up to create or revise your Asthma Action Plan, check the effectiveness of asthma medication and dosage, get prescriptions for back-up medications for your school nurse and coaches, as well as ensure your child knows how to use his or her asthma medicines.

2. Assess your child's readiness to self-carry medication. All 50 states have laws that allow children to self-carry and use their asthma inhalers at school. Use the American Lung Association's Self-Carry Assessment Tool to see if your child is ready to carry and self-administer asthma medication. The assessment tool will help parents create a plan for children not yet ready to self-administer medication, as well as help children learn the necessary skills throughout the school year.

3. Set up an appointment with your school nurse. Remember to bring in your updated Asthma Action Plan and back-up medications. Take this time to sign all required medical forms, discuss whether your child can self-carry their own quick-relief inhaler, as well as deliver any special instructions when it comes to physical activities and asthma emergencies that may happen during the school year.

4. How's the air in there? Take a moment to talk to your child's teacher about asthma, what triggers might bring on an attack and what to do in an emergency -- whether that be to head directly to the school nurse or use his or her quick-relief inhaler. This may also be a great time to talk about the air quality in the classroom. Mold, fragrances and idling buses can all be asthma triggers for your child.

5. Introduce yourself to the PE teacher and any coaches. Kids with asthma shouldn't have to miss out on playing outside or participating in gym class. You can quickly put teachers' and coaches' minds at ease by talking about exercise-induced asthma, ways to manage symptoms and what to do in an emergency.

6. Have fun! While it may take some proactive organizing at the start of the school year, you are helping to ensure that your child is safe and active throughout the school day. Take a deep breath and enjoy a healthy 2018-2019 school year!

Removing stones may discourage garden snakes

Hi everybody and welcome! I think one of the most feared and least known about creature in our gardens and yards is a slinky critter known as the snake. Most common garden snakes are not poisonous and are actually beneficial to your yard or garden. Some people actually find them as welcome visitors as they help control bugs and rodents. However, most people have a natural fear of snakes and would prefer they set up house elsewhere. There is no actual repellent that I know of that really works however there are steps you can take to make your garden less inviting to them. One thing snakes love to do is to sun themselves. Since they are cold-blooded reptiles, you will often see them curled up on stones in your garden trying to catch a few rays. Removing the stones, especially if they are in a sunny place, may help to discourage them from hanging around. Snakes also love to hide in cool damp places like cinder blocks and stonewalls. This type of scenario may help be an attractant to your garden. They also will be attracted by saucers or pots that are not being used especially if they have water in them. I have also heard of snakes hiding in gopher tunnels so removing them from your yard may help deter them. Remember, most snakes are your friends and they usually will try to stay as far away from you as possible. Sometimes, however, an unexpected encounter can be inevitable. In the unlikely event you happen to encounter a poisonous snake, simply keep your distance and stay away. Eventually he will leave and in most cases, you may never see him again.

GARDEN NOOK

With the tropics nearing the peak season, please remember to check your yard for hidden dangers and to be sure to review your plans on how to best hurricane proof your yard. One point to consider when checking your property is to look for areas that are known flood plains in your yard. If you have such an area and a large tree happens to reside in the middle of the flood plain, it has a risk of toppling. When the ground around a tree becomes saturated with moisture, the area around the tree will become very unstable. This instability coupled with the high winds of a tropical system can cause even a normally stable tree to topple. This inspection is especially important if the tree resides next to a structure. In this case, properly pruning your tree may not only save your tree, but it might also save your home from the damage of a downed tree. Also be aware of any diseased or decaying trees as these can also cause a hazard.

The next step you should take is to take a tour of your yard and make a list of items that would be dangerous to leave lying around. This list should include patio furniture, loose garden ornaments, small potted plants, yard torches, arbors and even your gas grill. If you have a shed or gazebo, you might want to add extra tie downs to be sure they stay put and don't wind up in Kansas. You can start early by limiting what you keep out in your yard during the peak months of August and September. If you own a swimming pool, you can throw all your patio furniture into the pool to help keep it from traveling across the state.

If you are a nature lover, most likely you have a bird feeder hanging in your yard. Now is the time to do some housekeeping so your feathered friends have a safe and clean place to eat. Clean your bird feeder with a mixture of one part bleach to nine parts water. Be sure to remove all droppings from the perches and throw away any old food that might be moldy and refill it with fresh treats. Be sure to rinse the feeder well after treating it with the bleach solution. This will ensure your birds will have a disease free environment in which to dine.

Police treat children to first Disney World visit

By Jamie Desena-McFarland
For Hometown Heroes

COCOA — Walt Disney World employees often greet park guests with the salutation “have a magical day.”

For 25 local children who made their first trip to Disney with members of the Cocoa Police Department July 17, the day most likely did seem magical.

The park of choice: Magic Kingdom.

Eyes were wide as six law enforcement officers and two civilian staff members accompanied the children into the park, where they would experience well-known rides such as the Haunted Mansion, Big Thunder Mountain Railroad, Splash Mountain and Space Mountain.

The trip was a part of the department’s ongoing community outreach efforts.

A Disney grant provided the tickets to help make it happen, while Cocoa Community First – a nonprofit that supports the department’s youth and community outreach programs – provided funding for the children’s meals.

“The goal of any outing with the children in our community is to build a safe relationship between the cops and kids so they know we are here to help them, we are here for their safety, and in an emergency that they can call on us,” said Officer Chris Hattaway, who coordinated the trip.

“The Ferry boat ride from the ticketing and transportation center is the first challenge that the kids face,” Mr. Hattaway added. “Many of the children have never been on a boat and this is where they really learn to trust that the officers are going to keep them safe.”

This trip was the sixth of its kind for the department.

While the visits are intended to be trust-building activities, they are also meant to inspire the participating children, who must be between 7 and 12 years old to attend.

This year’s attendees were selected through local school district contacts, as noted in a July 17 Facebook post.

“We look for the child that is not recognized as the best or worst but a child that could use a positive day to choose the right path,” Mr. Hattaway said.

One of the children was particularly excited that the outing fell on the same day as his birthday, but all of the children were visibly moved by the experience, Mr. Hattaway pointed out.

“Once in the park immediately they are overwhelmed by excitement of their surroundings with the smells, colors, noise of the theme park,” Mr. Hattaway said. “Immediately they are innocent and sweet. The look of imagination in their eyes is priceless.”

Fundraiser for Autism surpasses awareness goal

By Josh Whitener
For Hometown News

BREVARD COUNTY — Parents and supporters of students at The Sonder Academy brought a large show of support for autism awareness as they hosted “Fundraiser for Autism” on Sat. July 28. The fundraiser, sponsored by BMW Power Bikes of Palm Bay, was initiated to raise money for student field trips.

Due to recent renovations and building construction much of the budget has been absorbed and funds allocated to field trips is slimmer than previous years.

“We planned to have the Kindergarten through fourth grade go to the Brevard Zoo, and the school goes up to 12th grade so the fifth through 12th will go to Kennedy Space Center,” Mrs. Palmer said. If we exceed our goal, the rest will go into a fund so they can do local things like rock-climbing or bowling.”

The Sonder Academy, located on John Rodes Boulevard in Melbourne, opened its doors in August of 2017. The event was organized by parents of students of the academy in an effort to spread awareness of the school and the tools it uses to help facilitate autistic students. Melissa Palmer, whose eight-year old daughter attends the school, helped to organize the event, which had been in the works since May.

The event set a goal of $2,000, however they raised $3,332 by the end of the day.

Attendees could enter to win raffle prizes donated by various sponsors and vendors. Mrs. Palmer had utilized a friend to help create a Facebook announcement. Mrs. Palmer also didn't charge a table fee for vendors which allowed tables ranging from custom motorcycle coating, aerial aerobics, to creative acrylic paintings and organic beard products.

“The school couldn't afford a field trip with no cost to the parents, so my husband and I decided to do a fundraiser,” said Mrs. Palmer.

Mrs. Palmer's husband, Danny Palmer, works in sales for BMW Power Bikes of Palm Bay.

“When we originally set the goal, the school had 62 students. Now, it has 82. So, we're hoping to blow through that goal so we can help set up more Registered Behavior Technicians,” Mrs. Palmer said.

At Sonder Academy, for every three students there must be one RBT. The fundraiser kicked off with $1,500 of donations before the event even started. Mrs. Palmer hopes to surpass that goal and have extra donated money to help improve the lives of the children.

According to data from the Talk About Curing Autism organization “an estimated 1 out of 42 boys and 1 in 189 girls are diagnosed with autism in the United States.” Although the root cause of autism remains undecided, studies currently show that both a genetic predisposition and environment play roles in the autism prevalence rise.

“There's never really anything out there [in the media] about autism, which doesn't really bring a lot of light to it,” Mrs. Palmer said. “Autism is huge, if we don't get out there and let people know about it they'll still be in the dark.”

Melbourne police to host double-header

By Austin Rushnell
arushnell@hometownnewsol.com

BREVARD COUNTY — Police forces are naturally close-knit with the community as a whole, and that relationship is an important factor towards building better communities.

In order to help build closer community relationships and improve the ones already in place, the Melbourne Police Department will be hosting a 'National Night Out', along with a 'Grand Re-Opening' of its newly renovated Community Relations Office, on Aug. 7.

At the event, there will be numerous interactive displays available, including ones presented by SWAT, CSI, Marine Patrol, Dive, Bicycle Safety, and others. There will also be displays from child-safety programs, including a bicycle rodeo and child fingerprinting service.

"It's going to be a great event," said MPD Community Relations Coordinator Christina Brainard. "National Night Out is an annual community-building campaign that promotes police-community partnerships and neighborhood camaraderie to make our neighborhoods safer, more caring places to live."

National Night Out events take place across the U.S., where local police forces come together with their communities to build relationships.

"National Night Out enhances the relationship between neighbors and law enforcement while bringing back a true sense of community," National Night Out officials state on the NNO website. "Furthermore, it provides a great opportunity to bring police and neighbors together under positive circumstances."

Organizations such as Promise of Brevard, Project Lifesaver, Space Coast Transportation Organization, Sea Turtle Preservation Society, and others will also be in attendance at the event.

The National Night Out and Grand Re-Opening of the MPD Community Relations Office will be held on Aug. 7, from 5 - 8 p. m., at the Community Relations Office, Melbourne Square Mall,

For fantastic fairways and greens, play at Viera East

There is a saying in business that it's all about the location. Location, location, location. For golf courses, that saying holds quite true. Some courses are right against the ocean or the river. Others find a great spot with wetlands and rolling hills.

Not every course is privileged to have a perfect setting on which to be built. It then becomes the job of the architect to make those hills, and beautiful lakes and more to give the course a natural feel. What some of these courses miss out on by not being all the way over, tucked on the ocean, they instead have a different benefit. They are right off the interstate and an easy trip for golfers from all around the area.

Viera East Golf Club is one of these. Here, world renowned architect Joe Lee, designed a fantastic layout. While the course is just off I-95, north of Melbourne, it is close enough to the Atlantic Ocean, Indian River and Banana River to enjoy a refreshing tropical breeze.

When you toss in the wildlife that calls the area home, you are just as likely to see bobcat, deer, fox, or even a bald eagle, as you are a birdie on your scorecard.

The course has a first-class practice facility. Perfect for honing your game between rounds or properly warming up for your round. Additionally, the course is an authorized fitting center for Titleist, Taylor Made and Ping. If you want to see the difference a properly fit set of clubs can make to your game, this is the place to start.

Featuring six sets of tees, there is no reason for any golfer to not find a length that suits his or her game or mood for the day. Measuring just under 6,700- yards from the very back tees, Viera East is not long. A course that doesn't have length as a defense, usually finds it elsewhere. They pinch in the fairways, put lakes and ponds in front of everything, make the bunkers diabolical, and the greens nearly impossible. Not so here.

Viera East was designed not to beat you up, but still challenge your game. Joe Lee does a tremendous job of designing a course for the recreational or resort golfer. Pick the proper set of tees, and you will have a great time. The fairways are generous. While there is a lot of water to assist with drainage, it truly only comes into play on about six holes.

The greens and fairways are in fantastic shape. They had recently been punched and are coming in nicely. A couple more weeks and this course will be perfect. I found the course to offer a nice variety of holes. Too often we see the cookie-cutter design of one hole after another looking much like the previous with just a small tweak here and there.

The course's signature hole is probably the 14th. This somewhat short par-5, is reachable in two with a good drive. The problem is, the green sits on its own little island. You may not see it from the fairway, but there is room right of the green and between the water and the bunker guarding the right side. It's a fun hole that temps you at just the right time in your round. It could make or break you.

My favorite hole on the course is the par-4 17th. Measuring just 345 yards from the very tips, this hole may be played in several ways. Beware, short does not mean easy. The hole is littered with bunkers that will grab a poor tee shot, or almost any approach missing the green.

I have heard great things about Divot's Grille and it did not disappoint. The staff was very pleasant and friendly, the drinks cold, and the food delicious, all at prices that won't break your wallet. It was the cherry atop the sundae after a fun day of golf.

To find out more about Viera East Golf Club, make a tee time, or check on specials, visit www.VieraGolf.com or call 321-639-6500

Local company specializes in CBD products

By Josh Whitener
For Hometown News

BREVARD COUNTY — Nichole Skinner, owner of Moonchild Metier, specializes in cannabidiol infused products, a relatively unknown, organic remedy that can be fashioned into a variety of items. The benefits of CBD use have enhanced the scope of holistic and natural medications and Ms. Skinner uses her altruistic personality to transcend the relationship between retailer and customer.

Ms. Skinner's business started from her own personal use of CBD oil. She began with making bath balms to help with eczema, a dermatological condition in which patches of skin become rough and inflamed.

"I deal with anxiety and have dealt with eczema all my life," Ms. Skinner said. "I had been using CBS oil for them and it's one of those things that I don't like to take prescription medicine for. [Drugs like] Valium are addictive so I didn't want to be on it. I know it's effective, but it's highly addictive and that's not my bag."

Ms. Skinner also tried to journal, used melatonin, and drank tea as natural remedies to combat her anxiety.

"I spent two years before starting this business and taking CBD and trying every holistic thing in the book. I joke about this now, but at one point where I was standing in my kitchen, at 2 o'clock in the morning, crying," Mrs. Skinner said.

Similarly, Ms. Skinner's customers experience a variety of symptoms. One customer in particular had had difficulty with irritable bowel syndrome.

"They basically couldn't leave their house, they were cramping. They bought the product, they went home, and within an hour they texted me saying that it was the first hour in two days that they didn't have stomach pains," Mrs. Skinner said.

Ms. Skinner was introduced to CBD through a friend.

"They were taking it for her more serious health issues they have and they recommended it because they knew it helped with anxiety, too. So, I did a lot of research and started taking it and it turns out there are so many uses for the plant, the cannabis plant, itself," Ms. Skinner said.

CBD is one of the two main cannabinoids found in marijuana and hemp plants. Unlike tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), CBD does not produce any psychological effect or euphoria. This has to do with how CBD interacts with the body.

Both CBD and THC work with an extensive regulatory system in the body called the endocannabinoid system, or ECS for short. The ECS is made up of a multitude of receptors located all throughout the body. These receptors can be activated either by the body's naturally occurring cannabinoids, or by cannabinoids such as CBD and THC.

CBD and THC primarily interact with two receptors: CB1 and CB2. These receptors are primarily located in the brain, nervous system and immune system. However, unlike THC, CBD does not directly bind to these receptors. Instead, CBD stimulates the body's naturally occurring cannabinoids to activate the receptors, causing them to do more; in essence stimulating the body to naturally activate its own preservation system.

Numerous studies, including from the National Center for Biotechnology Information, reflect CBD offers a multitude of medical benefits, including: reduces nausea and vomiting, acts as an anti-inflammatory, combats anxiety (anxiolytic), an antioxidant, anti-psychotic, as well as anti-convulsant (suppresses seizure activity, anti-tumoral/anti-cancer properties).

The shop's website features an array of products and a blog that Ms. Skinner developed "to bridge the gap between nature and our every day lives. To highlight like-minded businesses that create healthy and beneficial products." CBD infused items such as bath balms, candies, and oils are available.

Customers like Michele Vannoy of Viera are grateful for the shops variety of products and services.

Ms. Vannoy has problems sleeping and explained to Ms. Skinner that she experienced a great deal of pain in her elbow from a fall she had taken that required multiple surgeries. After discontinuing her opioid use for the pain, she subscribed to CBD oil after she met Ms.

Skinner at this years Earth Day event in Rockledge.

"I'm sleeping like I'm in my 20s again. I highly recommend talking with Nichole about any issues," Ms. Vannoy said.

Ms. Skinner has an emphatic passion towards helping others. She not only understands her customers' needs but believes in the benefits and uses of CBD.

"To me, it's not like I put my hands on them and heal them, but I'm genuinely glad that they're gaining their life back," Ms. Skinner said.

New Orleans' Muffuletta sandwich not hard to make

The Muffuletta is one of the great sandwiches of the world, and it's criminal it is rarely found anywhere outside the city of New Orleans.

My wife and I just returned from a trip to New Orleans where we attended the "Dinner of the Century" that was a duplication of the Bastille dinner celebration of Louis the 14th, but the Muffuletta was not on the menu.

The meal was, however, prepared by noted top chefs in the United States and truly a gastronomic delight. My wife and I were fortunate to attend. I truly love my profession. But that's a story for a different time.

Now let's talk about what a great food town New Orleans is. It's also a bit of a lesson to those who think the only cultural and culinary heritage of New Orleans is French, Spanish, African and Creole. You ask folks about the quintessential sandwiches of New Orleans and many people will immediately reply "po'boy," but the Muffuletta is as New Orleans as any po'boy you'll ever eat, and there's nothing Creole about it.

This sandwich is purely Italian, Sicilian to be exact. New Orleans, in its population and its cuisine, owes much to Italy and especially Sicily. Italians have been coming to the Crescent City since the 1880s. It wasn't always easy for them, but the Italians soon settled in comfortably into New Orleans culture, and we are the richer for it.

CHEF COSTA'S COOKING CORNER

Their contribution to local culture and cuisine has been immeasurable. In fact, you frequently see "Creole-Italian" referred to as one of the local sub-cuisines. This kind of cooking is epitomized at places like Mandina's, Liuzza's, and the many places in the city that serve Muffuletta sandwiches.

According to the tale I've heard, the Muffuletta sandwich was invented by Signor Lupe Salvador, who opened the now-famous little Italian market called Central Grocery on Decatur Street in the French Quarter in 1906. He is credited with creating the Muffuletta sandwich, named for a favored customer (although I had also heard that the sandwich was named for the baker of the round Italian bread on which the sandwich is served).

You'll hear lots of New Orleansians pronounce the sandwich "muff-uh-LOT-uh," but I understand that the proprietors of Central Grocery pronounce it "moo-foo-LET-ta." The common abbreviation is "muff," so you could say, "I'll take me a half a muff."

It's a great sandwich and not hard to make. Occasionally you can find the Italian olive mix in a jar at local Italian delis. That is the ingredient used to make the sandwich that can be served hot or cold. In New Orleans, hot versus cold is a hotly contested opinion. I like them hot. Try this recipe—it's really good.

MUFFULETTA SANDWICH

- 1 10-inch round loaf Italian bread with sesame (or a soft round Italian bread)
- 1 cup Olive Salad
- 1/4 lb. Genoa Salami
- 1/4 lb. Capicola or deli ham
- 1/4 lb. Mortadella
- 1/8 lb. Sliced Mozzarella (3-4 thin slices)
- 1/8 lb. Provolone (3-4 thin slices)

Directions

1. Cut the bread in half-length wise.
2. Brush both sides with the oil from your olive salad or really good extra virgin olive oil, go a little heavier on the bottom.
3. Begin layering the ham, mortadella and salami on the bottom half of the bread.

4. Next, add the olive salad, pat out gently without smashing the bread.

5. Top with cheeses.

6. Optional: toast/warm up in your oven for a few minutes.

OLIVE SALAD MIX

- 1 six-ounce can black olives, drained
 - 1 five-ounce jar pitted green olives, rinsed and drained
 - 1 (6.5-ounce) jar marinated artichoke hearts, undrained
 - 1 small red onion, chopped
 - 1/4 cup red wine vinegar
 - 1/2 cup olive oil
 - 1 teaspoon fresh garlic clove minced
 - 1 teaspoon dried minced garlic
 - 1/2 teaspoon celery seed
 - 1 teaspoon dried oregano
 - 1 teaspoon dried basil
 - 3/4 teaspoon black pepper
- Chop all ingredients small and mix together. Store in the refrigerator.
