

P: You were _____, everything was gone, you know, used everything.

F: Didn't throw away nothing. (laughter)

P: (laughter) Was that the rule in your house -- don't throw away nothing?

_____ So for meat, did ya'll usually hunt in Lafayette county? Is that the way how you got most of your meat?

F: Well, we didn't do much hunting. We did some, though. Turkeys was coming out of field there during the fall of the year and I'd kill turkey when, all them right there in the field.

P: Uh huh.

?: Wasn't there a picture of you in the Branford paper about a year ago with a turkey?

F: Yeah, yeah.

? Yeah, I thought so. _____ showed that too me, you know. My grandfather.

P: He said you had a bunch of newspaper clippings. He said I should ask to look at them. You were in the newspaper a lot.

F: I don't, I think my wife has done away with all them old papers, most of them.

P: Well, he says he's got them _____

?: Do you still like to hunt?

F: Oh, yeah.

P: You go hunting a lot?

F: Oh, yeah.

P: Where do you go hunting now?

F: I've, I've killed a lot of deer. I've killed a lot of squirrels and birds. Usually I go on all these here dove hunts around here whenever they open up dove season. I enjoy it.

P: What's your favorite kind of meat to eat that you hunt?

F: Well, I don't think I have any special choice. I, I always did enjoy good venison and wild turkeys. This day and time is not what they used to be.

P: How have they changed?

F: They used to, when we killed a wild turkey, we had a lot of mass at that time that we don't have today. I don't know why. Don't have the answer for that, but they might have had a
