

R: Water comes up around a lot of them.

E: Some, some, riverfront's full of them.

P: Uh huh. I've seen a few myself out near Fort White, once...

E: They're plenty of them.

P: ...a month ago.

E: Boy, I reached over to put my fish in that basket and that moccasin. I give him a story.

K: _____

E: I didn't know what that was around my legs until I got him pulled up and his head was in the basket at my fish, see. He stuck his head through the little wire.

?: _____

E: You would've been gone, too, wouldn't you, ladies?

K: I would have been gone real fast -- as fast as I could run.

E: I said that, but they'd come up.

?: _____

E: They got to coming up, moreso, right out in front of us, about every ten foot from you, you'd see one stick his head up. Well, the first thing you know, he'd do like that, but he was coming to basket and then he'd get the fish.

P: The basket floating down in the water?

E: Yeah, you have it, you know, like a wire basket, you had to put your fish in.

P: Yeah.

E: Good. And you just tie it on your shoulder or either a string and tie it around your belt, put your fish on it good and them moccasins comes up to get them fish.

?: _____

E: You can hit him with your pole and he can go down, but the next thing you knew, he'd be wrapped around your leg. He wouldn't wrap around your leg until he got ahold of that fish and he was trying to pull the fish out.

?: I don't know what they _____

P: What do they say you're supposed to do about rattlesnake bites here?

?: _____

E: What?

?: _____
