

land, and the men who live in it are not like us, and do not know our ways. They do not eat or wear what we do. Now what you give me I will take with