BY DAN HILDEBRAN
Monitor Editor

A Starke couple was killed when their motorcycle collided with a car in Putnam Hall on March 12.

According to a Florida Highway Patrol report, Elbert "Dave" Peace, 64, was driving a 2004 Harley Davidson westbound on S.R. 100 at 6:05 p.m.

Lon Seibert, 57, of Grandin was driving a 1984 Mercedes Benz eastbound.

As the two vehicles approached one another, Seibert attempted a left turn onto Putnam Loop Road, driving into the path of the motorcycle, which struck the left side of the Mercedes.

Both the driver of the Harley, as well as a passenger, 55-year-old Christine Ann Peace, were thrown from the bike. The driver was pronounced dead at the scene. The passenger was transported to UF Health with critical injuries and later died.

According to the FHP report, Siebert was not injured in the collision, the motorcycle riders were not wearing helmets and charges are pending.

Dave Peace was born in Waycross, Ga., and served as a supply officer in the United States Navy. He settled in Starke after starting a second career in law enforcement. He was an active member of both the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1016 and American Legion Post 56 in Starke.

He was a past commander and the current quarter master of the VFW post. He also served as a VFW state officer.

Christina Peace was born in Milwaukee, Wis., and was a retired chief petty officer with the U.S. Navy. She was a member of both VFW Post 1016 and American Legion Post 56. At the time of her death she was the chaplain of the VFW post.

Starke Elementary School reopens its doors

BY MARK J. CRAWFORD
Telegraph Editor

It was a damp day to go back to school, but after months of maintenance and more than $2 million spent, Starke Elementary should be sealed tight.

The campus has been closed since the second week of school because of concerns about air quality. Starke Elementary students were scattered around the district—with one class even taking over the school board's boardroom—but the classes mostly remained in tact.

And the district met its March 18 goal. Tuesday, following a spring break extended by an additional teacher planning day, students and teachers were back to their cleaned-up campus, with a few weeks to settle in before FCAT testing begins.

Superintendent of Schools Chad Farnsworth joked that if he wanted a humidity test, he got one with all of the rainfall, and he was grateful when he said the reopening of the school went remarkably well.

Principal Lynn Melvin agreed. "It was a wonderful day," she said. "Everyone was excited about being back."

Students met with their teachers in the cafeteria at the start of the day. Some younger kids were apprehensive about being on the big campus. Kindergarteners, after all, had only been there a day or two when they had to relocate. For those students, tours were in order, Melvin said.

Farnsworth said he couldn't help but get chill bumps and a knot in his throat while peeking into the classrooms.

"Kids were right back in their seats, teachers were right back to teaching. It was amazing. It's like they didn't even miss a beat, and I attribute that to my teachers being really consistent in providing a learning environment for those kids throughout the entire process," he said.

Melvin said it was like they never left, thanking their host schools for treating them so well. She also praised parents for working so well with the school in spite of the upheaval.

"The support we've seen from the parents has just been tremendous. That has meant a lot," she said. "They've entrusted their children with us and know that we're going to take care of them and make sure that they continue to get the best education we can provide."

A lingering question was whether or not students would have to delay summer vacation to make up for missing the second week of school, but Farnsworth said even with the day school closed because of inclement weather, Starke Elementary was still within the number of required hours. No makeup days will be necessary.

Most of the Starke Elementary students remained in their classes when moved to other campuses, but some families opted to transfer their students to an out-of-zone school. Farnsworth said parents could transfer their children back to Starke or not. It was their choice.

"I could not be more thrilled," Farnsworth said of meeting the March 18 goal. "There were a lot of moving parts in this project and a lot of work that had to follow a specific schedule. There was no room for any hiccups."

The school has a history of mold problems, but this was the first time students and faculty were prevented from using the campus. The district had to work fast last August to figure out what to do with seven grade levels, from prekindergarten to fifth grade. Fortunately, space was found on other campuses, including the district office. Students lost a week's worth of class while preparations were made, but the district was even able to work out a transportation schedule to get them to and from their new locations.

A combination of factors like outside air infiltration and temperature and humidity levels are to blame for air quality problems. Several classrooms were tested at first, and then the entire school. According to the first report, there were "humidity control problems and the presence of abnormally elevated levels of

County dipping at landfill bad for business

BY MARK J. CRAWFORD
Telegraph Editor

The New River Solid Waste Association received no criticisms in its audit for Fiscal Year 2013, but the county commissioners who make up the board still got their hands smacked for dipping too often into the cookie jar.

Bradford, Baker and Union counties each receive scheduled dividends annually from the landfill's profits, and Union County also receives an annual host fee. This alone adds up to hundreds of thousands of dollars that the landfill contributes to county budgets.

But commissioners have also been known to divvy up "unanticipated revenue" and most recently split $300,000 withdrawn from an escrow account—money that had been set aside to meet long-term maintenance requirements—because Commissioner Wayne Smith said Union County was in need. (He and Morris Dobbs have since been replaced on the association board by Karen Cossey and Jimmy Tallman.)

While not illegal, CPA Lora Douglas of DDF CPA Group said it wasn't good for business either.

While it might seem strange to see this government association as a business, that's what it is. Other governments have enterprises as a part of their operations as well, such as the city of Starke's electric and water utilities, and the point is to stay in business. The landfill cannot do that without properly planning for the future, Douglas said.

"It should be treated just like a business, which means you need to consider future obligations and not treat it like you would a county budget and spend everything you bring in during the year," she said. "A business can't continue to operate if it spends everything it makes every year and lives paycheck to paycheck."

In 2013, the landfill board sent $1.7 million back to the member counties.

Commissioners were schooled on the difference between their closure and long-term planning funding responsibilities. Once deposited, closure funds cannot be withdrawn. Closure money—based on the estimated cost of construction and other duties associated with closing the landfill—are being adequately funded along the way, and that's good, because the money must be there when the landfill has exhausted its life.

The board has been setting aside long-term planning money as well. There are estimates about how much the monitoring and maintenance of the landfill—which must go on at least 30 years after closure—will cost, but that money does not necessarily have to be there

Shands CEO leaving Starke for St. Cloud

Brent Burish, chief executive officer of Shands Starke Regional Medical Center, has announced plans to leave his post after this month to accept the CEO position at St. Cloud Regional Medical Center, an 84-bed hospital in St. Cloud, Fla. His new role will be effective April 1.

"Working with Shands Starke Regional has been a rewarding experience and I have learned so much from this team," said Burish. "I will miss the outstanding board members, employees, physicians and volunteers who provide compassionate, personalized care for our patients every day."

Burish joined the hospital as CEO in June 2012. During his tenure, the hospital received national recognition from the Joint Commission as a Top Performer on Key Quality Measures. He oversaw renovations to the medical-surgical floor and pharmacy, expanded surgical services, and successfully recruited specialty physicians to the community, including establishing full-time cardiology in collaboration with UF Health.

"Our hospital has a solid leadership team and a firm foundation for providing quality patient care that will continue," said, Scott Roberts, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Shands Starke Regional Medical Center. "We wish Brent much success in the future and thank him for his many contributions to our hospital and community."

Community Health Systems recently acquired Health Management Associates, the company that owned a 60-percent stake in Shands Starke. Both companies have operated hospitals in primarily rural areas, and the acquisition made CHS the largest hospital chain in the country in terms of bed number.

Hampton progress reviewed at town hall

BY JAMES WILLIAMS
Special to the Telegraph

While some expressed concern that the crowd was not as large as at prior meetings, issues were discussed and information was passed on to residents gathered at a March 13 town hall in Hampton.

"Where are the rest of them?" asked resident Buford Parker, concerned that only one council member was present. Acting mayor Myrtice McCullough explained that other members were absent on advice of interim legal counsel, John Cooper.

It is a violation of Florida's Sunshine Law for council members to discuss public business with each other outside of official city meetings. This was not a meeting called by the city council, but a town hall held for residents to discuss city matters.

Bradford Sheriff Gordon Smith spoke at length about the former town government's various offenses and why he finally felt obliged to take action. Smith acknowledged that no charges have yet been filed against any former city employee, but he pointed out that doesn't mean there weren't improprieties or that charges won't eventually be filed.

Speaking of thousands of dollars in traffic fine and other revenue, Smith said, "Most of us don't mind paying our taxes if you're getting something in return. It didn't look like the taxpayers in Hampton were getting anything. It all went to a few people at the top."

McCullough went over points that had to be included in the town's plan for redemption, outlined by Rep. Charles Van Zant and Sen. Rob Bradley, including resignation of the council, plans for a special election, and removal of U.S. 301 from the city limits.

McCullough said she had been assured that Bradford County Commissioners wanted to help during Hampton's restructuring. Commissioner Danny Riddick has stated that he has been following Hampton's progress.

Some audience members wanted to know whether current and former council members could run again in the special election. Sheriff Smith said authorities could not stop anyone from running, as long as they meet qualifying standards. When votes are tallied, the top two candidates will have two-year terms; the next top three candidates will have one-year terms.

Several people asked if the town would still have a marshal, and others asked if Bradford deputies were already patrolling Hampton. Smith said officers were in place and even writing speeding tickets, especially in the school zone. Smith said he was not worried that, given Hampton's worldwide bad publicity, the tiny town would be flooded with opportunistic miscreants.

Smith added that the notion of a law officer appointed or elected by the town had not been forbidden. Smith added that a new force does need to be a right-sized force the town could afford that isn't writing speeding tickets on U.S. 301. Law enforcement provided by the town must cover Hampton at all hours, with no more than two for three persons for day time and night time coverage, Smith said. On the other hand, the town could as easily, and affordably, be patrolled by county deputies, Smith said.

McCullough told the crowd she and other council members have met with Van Zant several times in the last two weeks. She said he agreed that progress was being made.

Hampton resident Lori Hardee volunteered that Hampton citizens could help by cleaning up their yards and taking more pride in their homes. Jerry Kahn put in a plug for the town, saying he came to Bradford from Los Angeles. Between the environment and the friendly people, he said, he wouldn't go back.

The other component for the town's plan will be to put its finances, bookkeeping and water system in order. Work has also been done on that part of the plan, McCullough said, and Amy Davis has been hired to serve as city clerk.

Appointed Councilman Dan Williams will report on the water system at the next town hall meeting, tonight, Thursday, March 20, at 7 p.m. at city hall.

The next Hampton City Council meeting will be held at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, March 25, at city hall.

The legislative delegation meeting to evaluate Hampton's progress will be held on Friday, March 28, at 6 p.m. at Victory Baptist Church. Van Zant and Bradley are scheduled to attend.

fungi and other aerosols settled in the environment and within the air-conditioning units and ductwork."

Failing or compromised mechanical equipment, problems with the automated controls, insufficient outside air ventilation and building pressure, and multiple breaches in the perimeter envelope of the buildings were all cited.

To fund the work necessary to correct the problems, the school board had to divert nearly $1 million in capital outlay money from other projects to Starke Elementary. Because the school repairs were a priority, the school became eligible for other accumulated capital funds, but even that wasn't enough.

The district had to borrow the rest. Initially, it was thought an $850,000 loan would be more than enough, but the school board had a special meeting two weeks ago to up that amount to $1 million.

Farnsworth said the school board didn't want to wipe out everything set aside for the project and leave nothing to handle other issues that might arise in the district.

The school board declared an emergency last September and hired Kenyon and Partners Inc., a construction and engineering firm based in Tampa, based on their contract with the Hillsborough County School District. The project was reportedly completed in record time, with design taking a little more than a month and everything since focused on switching out equipment, sealing buildings, removing carpet and cleaning classes.

Now that everyone is back where they belong, they still face the hurdle of standardized testing. Once that is over, however, Starke Elementary is planning to celebrate its return with a Spring Fling.

"We're looking forward to that," Melvin said.

Update your disaster plan with flood info

BY WENDY RUSSELL
BC Emergency Management

The National Weather Service and state emergency management officials encourage residents to update their preparedness plans during National Flood Safety, National Flood Safety Awareness Week is intended to highlight some of the many ways floods can occur, the hazards associated with floods, and what you can do to save life and property.

Floods can occur anywhere in the world at any time and are one of the most common weather hazards in the United States. Floods can affect any part of Florida and some can occur within a matter of minutes.

Recent severe weather events causing flooding across the state remind Floridians that they should be prepared for the possibility of floods. We are all vulnerable to the dangers of flooding; it is important to learn about the different types of floods, where you can get flood information and what you can do to protect yourself, your family and your business in case flood conditions threaten your area.

Be a force of nature

Know your risks, take action and be an example where you live. Following these simple steps year round can help keep you and your loved ones safe when hazardous weather strikes:

- Keep tabs on the local forecast.
- Create a disaster supplies kit.
- Alert others via texts and social media when a flood threat or other hazardous weather threat exists.

'Turn around, don't drown!'

Always practice road safety. If you ever encounter a road that is flooded, turn around and immediately move to higher ground. There is no way to know how deep the water is, how fast it's moving, or what lies beneath it.

Did you know that:

- six inches of water will reach the bottom of most passenger cars causing loss of control and stalling.

- one foot of water will float many vehicles.
- two feet of rushing water can carry away most vehicles including sport utility vehicles (SUVs) and pickup trucks.
- one-third of flooded roads

Getting ready for the big day ...

Volunteers helped spruce up the Edwards Road Sports Complex in preparation for the Babe Ruth/Cal Ripken baseball and softball opening day this Saturday, March 22.

On March 1 coaches, parents, grandparents and community members gathered to perform the much-needed spring-cleaning and prep work on the six baseball/softball fields.

If you didn't know any better, you might have thought a tractor pull was underway that day. A lot of folks showed up with their tractors and equipment to help work the fields and get them ready. The maintenance included painting dugouts, cleaning sheds, reorganizing the concession stands, working on the field nets, mowing and prepping the infields.

Opening day ceremony will begin promptly at 8:30 a.m. on March 22. Games will run on all six fields until all 20-plus BPAA teams have played. Come out and support your local spring ball season.

Crusaw resentenced for fatal hit and run

BY VINCENT ALEX BROWN
Times Editor

On Friday, March 14, Julius Crusaw Jr., 29, was resentenced after his motion was granted on Feb. 27, 2013, to vacate, set aside or correct sentence, reducing his longest sentence by two years. He filed the motion on Sept. 11, 2012.

At around 9 p.m. on July 2, 2010, Crusaw fled a hit-and-run scene in which he killed 23-year-old Jodie S. Norris of Starke and injured her then 10-month-old daughter, Hydee Norris.

Bobby Hill of Lake Butler, then 19, was a passenger in Crusaw's pickup, but received only minor injuries.

Union County Sheriff's Deputy Charles Townsend tried to stop Crusaw that Friday night after his 1989 Chevrolet pickup truck sped by Townsend while traveling in the opposite direction, forcing Townsend off the road to avoid the crash.

Crusaw then ran a stop sign at C.R. 241 and C.R. 18 west of Worthington Springs, heading south on C.R. 241, and hit the driver's side of Norris' Jeep SUV while she traveled east on C.R. 18. She was pronounced dead on the scene. The baby recovered well and was brought home shortly after the accident.

Townsend had already terminated the pursuit as instructed by his supervisor, and after turning south onto C.R. 241, came upon the accident scene after seeing the truck's brake lights as it approached the intersection and then a cloud of smoke as the two vehicles collided.

Crusaw fled the scene south into the woods and could not be located after investigators searched for him. Later, however, Crusaw wanted medical attention and to turn himself in, which he did to a Florida Highway Patrol sergeant at an prearranged meeting at a Gainesville hospital. He was taken into custody at 1 a.m. July 4.

Crusaw later said he was afraid to stop because his license was suspended.

He also said he was aware that Norris, whom he went to school with, had died, and he "demonstrated deep remorse," according to the arrest report.

On March 25, 2011, Crusaw was sentenced to 20 years for vehicular homicide, followed by five years of probation. He was also sentenced to five years for leaving the scene of an accident involving death and five years for leaving the scene of an accident involving injury. He received 263 days of credit for each of those charges.

This past Friday, Crusaw's new sentences were 18 years for leaving the scene of an accident involving death, and the same amount for felony fleeing and attempting to allude a high-speed chase resulting in death or injury. Additionally, he was sentenced to over 14-and-a-half years for vehicular homicide and the same amount for careless operation of a motor vehicle with a suspended license, resulting in death or injury. He received 1,257 days of credit for each of those charges.

The resentencing was due to errors in the first sentencing, according to Union County Deputy Clerk of Court Stephanie Anderson. The motion that Crusaw filed prompted the resentencing.

During the original sentencing there was reportedly some disturbance afterward. This time around, UCSO deputies were on hand to make sure everything went smoothly as the family of Norris and others left the Union County Courthouse.

"As a precautionary measure, sheriff's deputies secured the courthouse for Friday's hearing in the Crusaw case," Capt. Doug York replied in an email. "Sheriff (Brad) Whitehead stated that cases like these remain emotional for families and our job is to protect the integrity and safety of all involved."

Woman's club saluted by Florida affiliate

The Woman's Club of Starke was honored with a visit from Florida General Federation of Woman's Clubs President Pat Zazzarino of Atlantic Beach at its meeting on March 12. Club President Mary Bridgman noted that Zazzarino's visit was especially fitting as 2014 marks the Starke Club's 100th year of affiliation with the GFWC.

Zazzarino's remarks highlighted many notable contributions of woman's clubs to American life, including establishment of public libraries and development of laws relating to child labor, juvenile court, and food and drug safety.

She said that GFWC's roots can be traced back to 1868 when Jean Cunningham Croly, a New York City journalist, attempted to attend a dinner honoring British novelist Charles Dickens at an all-male press club. When Croly was denied admittance to the event based on her gender, she decided to form a club for women.

Mary Powell of Fernandina Beach, first vice president of Florida GFWC, accompanied Zazzarino to the event. Powell congratulated the Starke club on its recent participation in the General Federation of Woman's Clubs, noting that its community steering group and community calendar projects have caught the attention of the Florida

Community Improvement chair, resulting in an invitation to present information about them at the Florida GFWC convention.

Four new members of the Starke club were voted in at the March meeting: Donna Burkhart, Cleo Elder, Valeri Moore and Chrissie Owens. New member Betty Williams was also recognized at the meeting. Samara Deary, Bradford County's newest extension agent, also attended the meeting and was warmly welcomed by all present.

The March lunch menu featured New Orleans fare: gumbo, red beans and rice, devilled eggs, tossed salad, and strawberry shortcake for dessert. The historic clubhouse was still festooned with Mardi Gras decorations enjoyed by guests at the club's gala on Feb. 28.

The club's February meeting featured guest speaker Dawn Strickland, who shared information about her pet boarding business, Home Sweet Bone. The February menu included oven-fried chicken with mashed potatoes and green beans, spinach and strawberry salad, and peanut butter chocolate cake for dessert. The hall was decorated with red and pink Valentine's decorations and a lovely assortment of fresh camellias provided by Sandra Reddish.

Upcoming events planned by the club include a strawberry shortcake booth at the Bradford County Strawberry Festival on April 12-13, and a fashion show and luncheon on May 10.

The Woman's Club of Starke meets the second Wednesday of each month, September through April, concluding each year with its "May breakfast" the first Saturday in May. The club is actively seeking new members and encourages anyone interested in visiting or joining to contact any member of the club.

Gloria Gillenwaters, Chrissie Owens, Mary Bridgman and Linda Lee socialize at the February meeting.

Clay Electric members getting refund

Clay Electric members will see tangible evidence of their membership in a cooperative on their electric bills this month.

Clay Electric Cooperative's board of trustees approved a $5 million capital credits refund to entitled members of the co-op who received service between 1987 and 2012.

General Manager/CEO Ricky Davis said the trustees considered a variety of financial and economic conditions before deciding to make this refund. This will be the cooperative's 40th consecutive refund of capital credits.

What are capital credits? Clay Electric is a not-for-profit cooperative, so any profits (margins) left over at the end of the year after expenses are paid are assigned to members on a pro-rata basis, to be refunded at a later date as capital credits. These refunds also help lower the cost of power for members of the cooperative.

Current members of the cooperative who are entitled to a refund will receive a credit on their March bills. The refund is determined by the amount of electricity a member paid for during the applicable period (1987-2012). The average credit amount is $18.35. Former members of the co-op who are entitled to a refund will be mailed a refund check in late March. The average check amount for these former customers is $35.24.

"The refund of capital credits is a tangible and unique benefit of receiving service from a not-for-profit electric cooperative,"

Davis said. "Other utilities that have margins left over after expenses are paid return these funds to stockholders as dividends. Municipal utilities return their margins to the city government coffers."

Capital credits are a source of equity for cooperatives. Capital credits enable cooperatives to reduce the amount of money they must borrow for a variety of projects and purchases. This means less borrowed money and fewer interest payments.

Lloyd Wilkerson in 1945 as a young mason.

John Bellivich escorted Lloyd Wilkerson to receive his awards from Bobby Rehberg.

Lawtey lodge honors WWII vet's 70 years as a Mason

Thirty Masons, wives and mothers came together on Feb. 20 in Lawtey to honor and celebrate Lloyd Wilkerson.

Wilkerson was born on Aug. 22, 1919, served in World War II, and he has been a Mason for over 70 years. Little is known of his Masonic history as well as his life, because he is not the person who brags about his accomplishments.

He was born in Sapp on S.R. 121 between Raiford and Macclenny. He moved to Lawtey while a small child, went into the military, and subsequently moved to Clay Hill in Clay County. He retired after serving 22 years with the CCC, Army Air Corp and the Air Force. He went on to join the Air Force Reserve.

He obtained his pilot license while in the military, served in many capacities and went to many countries. He even survived an airplane crash while in the military. Subsequent to the military, he retired after working with the state of Florida as a forest ranger, clerk with the Surplus Property Division and as a correctional officer for the Florida Department of Corrections.

Wilkerson has traveled a very long and rewarding road in Masonry. He was initiated, passed and raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason on Nov. 30, 1943, while overseas in the military. While at Lawtey Lodge No. 189, he served as senior deacon and junior warden in 1969; senior warden in 1970; worshipful master in 1971, secretary in 1972, 1973, 1974, 1986 and 1988; senior deacon in 2006 and 2008; chaplain in 2008; senior steward in 2009; historian in 2011; marshal in 2013; and senior steward in 2014. In addition, he served as district deputy grand master in 1975.

He joined Scottish Rite in 1955. Since that time he was in the Scottish Rite Guard in 1974 and 1976, and worked in the Scottish Rite kitchen in 1983, 1984, 1985 and 1986. Wilkerson joined the Lawtey York Rite in 1975. He was high priest in the James Yeager Chapter during 1986, 1987 and 1988. He received the Order of High Priesthood in 1981 and was district deputy grand high priest of the 8th District for 1987.

Wilkerson was illustrious master of Lawtey Council No. 39 Royal and Select Masters for 1979. He received the Order of the Silver Trowel in 1980, and the Order of Anointed Kings in 1980. He was the recorder for Lawtey Council during 1986, 1987 and 1988.

Wilkerson continued to serve the Masonic order by being the illustrious district deputy grand master in the 8th Cryptic District for 1991. He received the "Ish Sodiah" award in 1992. He was the commander of Bradford Commandery No. 43 in 1981, made Knight Crusader of the Cross in 1982, and district deputy grand commander of the 8th District in 1982. He went on to make life member of the Knights Templar Eye Foundation during 1982, and received the Knight of the York Cross of Honor in 1982. Wilkerson was the recorder for Bradford Commandery No. 43 in 1986, 1987, and 1988.

Wilkerson joined the Morocco Shrine Temple in 1971; Starke Chapter No. 224 Order of the Eastern Star in 1971, was worthy patron of Chapter No. 224 OES in 1977 and chaplain of No. 224 OES in 1983. He was the chairman of the Masonic Home Committee for the OES in District 14. He also joined John B. Phelps York Rite College No. 31 in 1983, and affiliated with North East York Rite College No. 114 in 1986. Wilkerson received the Grand Cross of Colors International Order of the Rainbows in 1985, and was appointed grand representative of the Grand Council of Florida near the Grand chapter of Virginia.

The crowd enjoyed a fine dinner and great socialization with fellow brothers, sisters and families. Wilkerson has set an example of what a good Mason is—integrity, courage and dedication, and he's always smiling.

How do I get rid of a weed that has tubers shaped like rattlesnake rattles?

You are asking about a particularly troublesome, cool-season weed named Florida betony. It is also referred to as rattlesnake weed because it has fleshy, white, segmented tubers that resemble a rattlesnake's rattle. This weedy pest has simple, shovel shaped, toothed leaves that are oriented across from each other (opposite) on the stem. It has small, pinkish-purple flowers that produce fruit that have four nutlets but the main source of reproduction is by tubers.

The worst thing about rattlesnake weed is that it is difficult, if not impossible, to weed out of your lawn or garden! When you try to pull it up, the underground stems snap off, leaving the tuber behind to resprout. Florida betony is a cold weather plant that leafs out as the temperatures cool in the fall and produces new tubers that are typically 1/2-inch wide and 4 inches long in late spring. It will go dormant in the warmest months.

One of the best strategies to keep weeds under control is to prevent them from becoming established in the first place. So it makes sense to water and fertilize your lawn appropriately and to use mowing techniques that encourage plant growth and development. You can get information on how much fertilizer you should use on your lawn and when to apply it from your extension office. It is also important not to mow lawns too close to the soil line, called scalping, because grasses cannot grow in thick if the green leaves are being cut too short.

Chemical weed killers, called herbicides, are often used to control rattlesnake weed but they have to be used wisely or they will not be effective. It is always best to use herbicides when a plant is growing in its juvenile stage because they are not as strong as mature weeds. This is especially true for tubers. It is critical to select an herbicide that will move down into the tuber after it is absorbed into the plant. Herbicides also need to be matched to the grass the weed is on because some herbicides will kill the grass, too.

Check with your local extension office or refer to document ENH1127 at the University of Florida EDIS website to find out the effective herbicide that is appropriate for your lawn. It is also important to follow all of the instructions that are on the herbicide label. Take the time to read the entire pesticide label for every pesticide you purchase. There is a lot of good information on the label that explains how to get the best results, in addition to safety information like whether or not you should use gloves, have on a long-sleeve shirt, need eye protection or need a respirator when applying the material. There is a lot of good information on mixing and storing the product. Remember: Following the label use instructions is the law!

Obamacare sign-up deadline March 31

BY VINCENT ALEX BROWN
Times Editor

At the end of this month looms the deadline to sign up for health insurance as required by the Affordable Care Act, most popularly known as Obamacare. Most people are required to obtain health insurance this year or face a penalty of $95 or 1 percent of their income, whichever is greater.

Consumers are allowed to be uninsured for a 90-day period without facing this penalty. The penalty will then be divided by one-twelfth for every month they are not insured. If consumers apply before March 31, they could potentially have coverage by May 1.

The open enrollment period ends March 31. Some health care advocates are pushing for an extension, but the Obama administration has not budged from the deadline. Open enrollment will not open again until November. If a consumer has a life-changing event, they could qualify for a special enrollment period.

Apply for a plan at Healthcare.gov.

After a slow start, Floridians are enrolling in Obamacare insurance plans in droves, reaching 442,087 as of March 1, federal officials disclosed last week. Florida had the second largest number, following California's 868,936.

More than 5 million people have signed up nationwide, the Obama administration announced Monday. Six million or more would meet a projection made by the Congressional Budget Office.

The number has nearly tripled since the end of last year but still amounts to less than half of the 990,455 state residents considered eligible for the new marketplace created by ACA.

The large numbers also reflect the fact that Florida is a high-need state. More than 20 percent of Floridians were uninsured at the start of the enrollment period, one of the highest rates in the nation; 83 percent of Floridians will qualify for some type of tax credit or cost-sharing reduction.

Computer glitches, security blockages and error messages at the Healthcare.gov website marred the opening of the enrollment period in October, casting doubt on the new law's attempts to cover the uninsured. By Dec. 28, only about 158,000 Floridians had signed up for plans.

Federal officials pleaded for patience, noting that many people were bound to compare insurance plans and prices in the first weeks before signing up for one.

Healthcare.gov now has a feature on the home page where consumers may see plans before they apply. With minimal information (county and state of residence, number of uninsured in the household, household size, ages and income) a consumer is able to see if they qualify for any of the tax credits and cost-sharing reductions.

Since Medicaid did not expand in Florida, anyone whose income level is below the 133 percent FPL (federal poverty level) would be exempt from paying the penalty.

There are 14 categories of exemptions, including one covering low-income people who have been denied Medicaid coverage in the 25 states that have declined to expand that program under the health care law. That population alone may number about 5 million, according to the Kaiser Family Foundation.

There are 50 available for Bradford County residents and 26 plans available for Union County residents. Plan levels are Bronze, Silver, Gold and Platinum. The majority of residents in the two counties are qualifying for tax credits and cost-sharing reductions.

Certified application counselors are available at both county health departments for New River Community Health Care to help residents shopping the Health Insurance Marketplace established by the ACA. Staci Griffis is working out of the Bradford County Health Department and Debbie Allen out of the Union County Health Department.

The counselors can help residents apply and even file for available exemptions.

Griffis says she can meet with individuals face-to-face and assist them in their use of the marketplace, and help them file for one of the many exemptions available. Her services are free, and in addition, consumers without access to a computer will have one made available to them.

To schedule an appointment, call 904-967-7732, ext. 1603, in Bradford County and 386-496-3211 in Union County. If you have any questions, you may also call 904-796-7014. Or to go ahead and apply for a health care plan yourself, simply visit Healthcare.gov.

at closing, hence the attitude that it would be OK to borrow some from time to time and pay it back later.

But there's a problem with not doing enough to save that money now, Douglas said. The landfill will no longer be making money once it closes. Any unfunded maintenance costs will then become the counties' obligation.

The association's bookkeeping has been getting better and better, but Douglas addressed the board's fiscal accountability, saying that as a taxpayer in Bradford County, she doesn't want to see these long-term costs become a county responsibility—especially since New River could be saving that money now.

Baker County's Mark Hartley said the proposed landfill gas-to-energy project would help recoup the money the counties have spent, and Executive Director Darrell O'Neal said the practice of carrying out their own construction projects should continue to save money. But Bradford County's Eddie Lewis said the board has to remember the cost of doing business will continue to go up, and Cossey said they don't have any money from an energy project coming in yet.

And speaking of revenue, Douglas said 76 percent of the landfill's revenue comes from its contract with Alachua County, which right now only runs through 2018. She said the concentration of revenue from a single source was a huge risk, and she questioned whether the landfill would be able to pursue financing under these circumstances if it came up short on funding for a future project.

"I don't think a lender is going to lend you money if you can't show an ability to repay," she said.

Another area where the landfill's business practices are hurting the bottom line is the poor interest it's getting for the money on it has managed to save. In the absence of an investment policy, NRSWA's money has been split between state qualified banking institutions to comply with state law. The returns have been poor, and in some cases the investments have lost money, so the move to better protect the public funds hasn't worked well.

Douglas recommended the board hire an expert to manage investments, but the adoption of an investment policy has been delayed. O'Neal provided a timeline of his work with board attorney Russell Wade toward selecting an investment policy for adoption, but Wade was on vacation and unavailable to answer the board's questions.

Discussion about getting outside counsel to handle the matter led to talk of Wade's contract with the board, and it was revealed the attorney—hired last October—had yet to even get his own contract in place.

"I'm not real happy with him right now. There's other attorneys out there is my point," Hartley said.

Commissioners are expecting to be able to take some kind of action on the investments at their next meeting.

and bridges are so damaged by water that any vehicle trying to cross only has a 50 percent chance of making it to the other side.

No matter how harmless the floodwaters may appear, it is not worth risking your life to reach your destination.

If you do find yourself caught in a flood and rising water causes your vehicle to stall, get out of it immediately and seek higher ground.

Know your property risk profile

It is very easy to determine your flood risk, all you need to do is enter your address at FloodSmart.gov. This site will also help you with what can be covered and how to obtain insurance.

On average, flooding causes more property damage in the United States than any other weather related event. Since flooding is one of the most dangerous and life-threatening weather events, it is very important that you keep yourself and your home safe from this type of disaster. Just a few inches of water from a flood can cause thousands of dollars in damage.

Flood insurance is the best way to protect yourself and your family from devastating financial loss. Since flooding is not covered by a standard homeowner's insurance policy, it's important to have an additional form of protection from these natural disasters.

The National Flood Insurance Program is administered by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, and this program works to offer flood insurance to property owners and renters.

If any citizen of Bradford County has any questions or looking for more information on flooding do not hesitate to contact the emergency management office at 904-966-6336.

Many enjoy Lawtey festival Kingsley crowns chili cook

Visitors to the Lawtey Trail Ridge Festival enjoyed another successful event on March 8. What started out as a slow, cool morning turned into a sunny fun-filled day. Hundreds came out to enjoy the good food, entertainment, arts and crafts, games, car and truck shows, and contests.

The 2014 Little Miss and Little Mr. Trail Ridge Festival were crowned during the opening ceremony and reigned over the festival for the entire day. Aliyah Lamoree was crowned Little Miss Trail Ridge Festival, and Dalton Cox was crowned Little

Mr. Trail Ridge Festival.

The Joyful Voices of Lawtey started the day singing gospel music, and Ben Carter got toes tapping, heads bobbing and people swaying with his one-man show. Returning home from Orlando for the second year, Darrell Moody and his smooth jazz band, Ocean Breeze, brought another stellar performance. Of course Ricky Thompson was on hand for the entire day to help out. During the day, several local performers (children) took the stage and entertained the crowd with their songs.

Visitors to the festival enjoyed delicious food, and the cake auction brought smiles and drooling mouths to many faces. New for the children this year was the potato sack race, which was a big hit, along with the slides and bounce house.

Each year, the Trail Ridge Organization tries to bring a festival that the citizens can enjoy and be proud of—a day that is in keeping with the theme, “It’s all about fun with family and friends at the Lawtey Trail Ridge Festival.”

The next festival is scheduled for Saturday, March 14, 2015.

The third annual Greater Kingsley Lake Chili Cook-Off took place on Feb. 22 at the Kingsley Lake Civic Center. Thirty-four attendees enjoyed sampling the entries and voting for their favorites.

Ronnie Hipps’ entry emerged as the clear winner, after gaining the most votes and lots of positive comments. “This is an easy, simple recipe. Teenagers love it on rice,” she said. Hipps took second place in last year’s contest and was proud to move up to first, claiming the $50 prize. The special ingredient that set her recipe apart was finely chopped pepperoni.

The $20 second prize went to Stephen Denmark, and the $10 third prize went to Ellen Flynn.

Enjoy the taste of eating right

“Enjoy the taste of eating right” is the theme for this March’s National Nutrition Month observance.

Since taste is the most influential factor driving what consumers eat, it is important to find balance between choosing foods we like with foods that provide the nutrients we need.

Here are some taste-enhancing tips from Joy Dubost, the Academy of Nutrition and Diabetics spokesperson.

- Cooking with high heat (pan searing, grilling or broiling) intensifies the flavors of meat, poultry and fish.

- Red, green and yellow peppers (sweet, hot and dried) pep up flavors. A dash of hot pepper sauce works as well.

- Grilling or roasting veggies in a very hot oven (450 degrees) or grill will generate a sweet, smoky flavor. Brush or spray on olive oil to keep them from drying out. Sprinkle with your favorite herbs to create more flavor combinations.

- Cook sliced onions over low heat to caramelize them and then use to make rich, dark sauces for meat or poultry.

- Enhance sauces, soups and salads with a splash of flavored balsamic or rice vinegar.

- Good-quality condiments such as horseradish, flavored mustard, chutney, wasabi, bean purees, tapenade and salsas add a flavor burst to foods.

- If you like a tangy taste, add citrus juice or grated citrus peel (lemon, lime or orange) to meats, vegetables or salads.

- Instead of plain white rice, increase the flavor by using brown rice, quinoa or wild rice.

UF/IFAS part of national child obesity study

University of Florida students will create obesity prevention programs for their peers and later, for high school students, as part of a $4.9 million federal research and extension grant awarded last week.

University of Tennessee Assistant Professor Sarah Colby will lead the national study, called “Get Fruved,” a phrase that alludes to fruits and vegetables.

“Get Fruved” is a campaign that uses peer interaction to try to get high school and college students to eat more fruits and vegetables, exercise more and manage stress more effectively.

Anne Mathews, an assistant professor in food science and human nutrition at UF’s Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences, will be the primary investigator for UF’s part of the study, while Karla Shelnut, a UF assistant professor in family, youth and community sciences, will act as a project consultant.

“Preventing obesity and its health consequences is achieved through long-term adoption of health behaviors such as being physically active, eating a healthful diet, rich in fruits and vegetables,” Mathews said.

The project uses a research method in which college students help develop strategies to teach younger students to live healthier lifestyles, she said. UF researchers hope that using students for the project will encourage others their age to heed the message.

National statistics show an alarming increase in adolescent obesity, the target of this study.

The percentage of people aged 12 to 19 who were obese increased from 5 percent to nearly 21 percent from 1980 to 2012, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

“Young adults are at an increased risk for unhealthy weight gain because of the many changes happening in their lives that can negatively affect their food and physical activity behaviors,” Shelnut said.

UF will receive $557,000 for the project. The money, from the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s National Institute of Food and Agriculture, comes in one-year increments, and UF will start receiving its share in August, Mathews said.

Starting in August, students at eight college campuses, including UF, will develop ways to get younger students to adopt healthier lifestyles. Students will dress as fruits and vegetables, use social media and utilize information from a website, www.fruved.com. They also may expand gardens, work to improve access to healthy foods at campus eateries, hold dance events and challenge each other to exercise more.

Eventually, pending future federal funding and the study’s results, college students could work with middle and elementary students to help them develop their own healthy lifestyle campaigns.

In addition to UF and UT, the other universities working on the project are South Dakota State University, West Virginia University, Kansas State University, Auburn University, Syracuse University, New Mexico State University, the University of Maine, Rutgers University, the University of Nebraska, the University of Rhode Island, the University of New Hampshire and Tuskegee University.

Guardian ad Litem class begins April 7

432 Florida children died in 2012 due to abuse and neglect. Forty percent of these children were already involved in the child welfare system.

Having enough Guardian ad Litem volunteers assigned by the court system to be another set of eyes on these children can make all the difference in whether a child lives or dies.

A Guardian ad Litem volunteer sees the children, collects information for the court about the children and parents, and looks for red flags. They are proactive in assuring the children’s best interest is always at the forefront and crucial information is provided to the court so that children are kept safe from harm.

April is National Child Prevention Abuse Month. During Children’s Week, April 6-11 in Tallahassee, thousands of students, teachers, families and people passionate about children’s issues gather to advocate for children’s health, education and the opportunity to reach their full potential.

The Guardian ad Litem Program is a partner in raising awareness and encouraging action. You can learn more about how you can be a voice to the State Capitol and about current legislative initiatives to help children by going to www.childrensweek.org.

To get information about becoming a Guardian ad Litem volunteer, call Lynn at 352-548-3823, or go to www.gal.alachua.fl.us. The next class for Alachua, Bradford, Baker, Gilchrist and Levy counties starts April 7.

Disappointed with Bradford Riding Club in the midst of discrimination

Dear Editor:

The opening ceremony at the Bradford Riding Club is a true tribute to the United States. It starts with all the riders (that want to participate) circling the arena once on horseback to an upbeat western song. The two riders with the Club's Flag and the American Flag (usually the King and Queen of the club) remain in the arena after. The Club's Flag moves to the center of the ring while the music changes to the National Anthem performed by LeAnn Rimes. After the National Anthem has finished, a prayer is said to ask for God to watch over all the horses and riders and to pray for healing and safety for those that have been injured or are going through hard times. It really is a site to behold, especially in today's times. Once the opening ceremonies are completed, the real fun begins and the barrel racing horses are ready to run!

Recently, however, there have been numerous occasions where people have been discriminated against by one person in the club, casting a dark cloud over everything the club does. A board member at the riding club has taken it upon himself to hand judgment down on individuals that don't suit his beliefs or his variation of who should be allowed to attend the club's events. I, being a homosexual man in a long term relationship, found myself and my partner to be the targets of such an instance on March 1st, 2014.

My name is Keith Warren, and many people in the community know me. I was raised in Bradford County and attended Bradford County schools. I have also been attending events at the Bradford Riding Club for over 25 years now. I always try to help people when they need it and try to keep a smile on my face with something good to say to everyone I come across. For me, this was a completely appalling and demeaning event. My partner's name is Michael Young. He is originally from Iowa and has taken an interest in horses and learning as much as he can about them and the sport of barrel racing. He is an outstanding man that is always there for our friends and his family. He gives everyone a fair chance and even if they mess up, he still offers another shot at a friendship. All in all, we aren't hateful or spiteful people. We just wanted to take part in a club that has meant a lot to me in my life and try to make a difference in the lives of those around us.

The night started off well. My partner and I had been voted in at the January member's meeting and had volunteered to work the kitchen as part of our membership. So, we were working the kitchen and one of the board members (the Arena Director) had approached the counter and requested a beverage. That was the job we were asked to do, so we greeted him and proceeded to have his beverage made. In the meantime, he proceeded to ask us if we were gay, which would have been fine, but he used some very derogatory terms and then told us that we were not to touch anything that was to be given to him as he didn't want a gay person touching his food or beverages. I was speechless. All I could do was remain silent and smile. This is 2014 and although I know people are all raised differently and have their own beliefs, I thought that respecting another person was considered the right thing a long time ago!

After he received his beverage, I presented the issue with the President of the club who did all she could to correct the situation. She initially came back to me and informed me that without witnesses, the board could not do anything. I understood this and had started to tuck the issue away in my mind. Shortly afterward, however, the board members that were present that night had approached him and he admitted to what was said. As the board began to discuss the issue with him, he offered to leave and give up his key. This offer was, to my shock and dismay, refused by the board.

The President of the club came back to the kitchen to inform my partner and me of what the final verdict in the situation had been, and both of us were livid. Here we were, standing in the kitchen selling food and beverages for the Bradford County Riding Club in order to keep our membership with the club in good standing, and we are being discriminated against by one of the club's own board members! Not only were we being discriminated against, but the rest of the board had decided that no punishment was necessary in a situation like this!

Since that night, my partner and I have not been contacted by the board members that were at the Riding Club that night and we have not been issued an apology from the board member that had so much to say about our personal life. Our belief on this matter is that the club has no interest in the well-being and overall safety and security of its members. If there was any concern within the board, it was brushed under the rug in the hopes of the issue going away. Unfortunately for them, we are not willing to go away. We want this issue placed in the public eye. If you have ever been affected by discrimination, you know how serious this is and how damaging an event like this can be. We aren't asking for this man to be placed in jail or the club to be shut down. We just want the right thing to be done and nobody else to ever feel as if they are not welcome. Our country has come too far for society to slip back into the ways of segregation (for any race, religion, sexuality, or gender). My partner and I just want it known that we were not treated fairly as a fellow human being should be.

The Bradford Riding Club's motto is 'Just for the Fun of It' and I am still asking myself, "What is the fun in discrimination?" We were very respectful to all members at the club and worked our shifts. We just don't know what more we could have done.

Michael and I would like to say a special "Thank You," to all the people that have supported us and kept our spirits high during this time. It is in your darkest hours that you find out who is standing in your corner. From our hearts to yours, thank you for all the kind words and outpouring of support.

We really do appreciate it!

Thanks to fire, rescue departments

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Lake Butler Volunteer Fire Dept. & Union County Fire & Rescue for the effort they put forth trying to save the belongings in my barn that caught fire in the early morning hours Friday. Even though I lost all my tools they somehow saved all my mother in laws pictures of her family and childhood.

How Hampton became the next big (bad) thing

Dear Editor:

Now I know how stories take on a life of their own. You start out with a short article about corruption in a small town and a comment that blows up into a cause. That comment, from an elected official, said Hampton will cease to exist if they do not behave. Of course Hampton will continue to exist and the state or county taking their city charter would be rare but now the stage is set. The state and then national media have something to run with. Imagine a town so criminal and bad that big brother has to step in and end it all. Bad news sells and this is bad news with a whole town indicted for sleaziness. Next month it will be another person or place that excites us and makes us go "how could it be so bad, we would never allow that"?

Having worked in this small town for almost the last thirty years I can tell you most of this story is just that, a story. This is really about a small town steeped in poverty just hangin' on like most little towns in America the last few years. Early on Hampton boomed awhile with banks and hotels, a train stopping and strong rural economy. Then one day a major road bypassed it and you have what happened to thousands of little towns like it. Left behind when the cars went elsewhere.

Hampton also drew attention because it is between two of the most famous "speed traps" in America. I put quotes around it because speed traps are places that used to lock you up if you didn't have the cash. Neither is a speed trap. The highway going through them is basically an interstate highway and the locals are trying to slow them down. There are enough signs to warn you and having driven through them most of my adult life I can say all you do is slow down for the speed limit.

Hampton tried doing the ticket thing on 301 and that angered some people. The intersection they covered was dangerous. A new stoplight was put in and large trucks routinely ran it because they could not slow down from 65+ in time to stop. I go through that intersection 6-10 times a week and NEVER pull out on the green until I see them stopping.

What I believed happened in Hampton is someone with power received a ticket and not enough "respect" from the local marshal of Hampton and the hammer came down. All of a sudden many Hamptonites were complaining about the corruption and the guys in the white hats swooped in to save them. Yes, and I have a bridge to sell you in the Santa Fe Swamp.

The big thing is "where did the money go"? My comment is "what money." Hampton had revenue from those tickets. Most of that went to the state or county. The rest paid those extra officers and gas. The other is the money from the water system. Not much there. The fingers point to a city manager and son. Everyone knows that 95% or more of that went for gas, and a deal it was as Hampton had much cheaper gas than Alachua County.

I know these people in Hampton. I have taught many of them and now their children. No elected official is getting rich or even comfortable stealing from the bulging coffers of The City of Hampton. Most of those city people from the manager to the council people did those jobs because most people did not want to mess with it. They always say follow the money trail. You first have to have money to find a trail. I think this trail leads a different way. Someone was treated "unfairly" and Hampton became the target.

Yes, records were poorly kept and Hampton probably should not have followed the leads of Waldo in police work but this great sport of holding Hampton up as some sort of southern cess pool of crime is just the media running with a comment after finding an easy target. The people I know in Hampton are good folks from the ex manager marshal and council people to all the children in that school.

They say a school reflects the community it represents. If that is the case you can feel better because Hampton has earned more "A" grades since the state started that abomination than the rest of the county schools combined. You can look it up. And that is unusual because Hampton Elem. has been a Title One School as long as I can remember. That means the population of the school has a majority living in poverty and eligible for free or reduced lunch. Those schools rarely attain As and you can look that up, too.

I saw where the Orlando Sentinel picked up the story and the comments from it explain how big city people feel about the backwaters like Hampton and Archer. To quote: "They practice 'cash register justice'" "Hampton is just a map smudge, two bit redneck towns that are an embarrassment to Florida", and it goes on. Of course bad news sells and those that read it form opinions. If they think that Mickey Mouse parking lot in Orange County is great with its traffic and crime is wonderful they can have it. I imagine they waste or steal more money in a few hours down in Orlando than Hampton could pilfer in its entire history.

When such a small place becomes a target for investigation I have to wonder whose ox was gored. It sounds like someone was angered and dropped the hammer with their power. It made good sport for the Gainesville Sun. Don't be fooled by all the pomp and circumstance around Hampton. It is still a nice little town with a great school and quite a bit of poverty. Nobody is getting rich in Hampton from that money pit called the City of Hampton.

Changing clocks twice a year is 'nonsense'

Dear Editor:

When Florida adopted Daylight Saving Time, it was not without a fight! Yes, there was a time when we did not change our clocks twice a year. The contention was that DST would save energy. For me, no one has been able to satisfactorily explain how "Springing" forward and "Falling" back twice a year could ever conserve energy since we did not save any daylight time—it's just rearranged. But then "Rearranged" time doesn't sound nearly as effective as Daylight Saving Time.

On March 4, 2014, SB 74: Daylight Saving Time was introduced by Senator Darren Soto and HB 701: Daylight Saving Time had a first reading by Representative Mark Danish requiring that the State of Florida and its political subdivisions observe Daylight Saving Time year round.

In March 2008, State Senator Bill Posey introduced a bill to abolish DST and keep Florida on year-round standard time. There is opposition on both sides of the issue!

My solution: At a specified date in the future either "Spring" forward or "Fall" back one-half hour (30 minutes) and keep it that way year round. Hopefully this would be a compromise all could live with! I have contacted my representative, my state senator and the governor with my suggestion because I would like to see an amiable end to the nonsense of changing clocks twice a year.

He was stationed in many places, most notably in Greenland, Iceland, Guam and Malta flying the Douglas R5D and the P2V Neptune for squadrons VP-3 and V6. Jim flew sorties as part of the great aviation history made during the Berlin Airlift, where he was counted among the "Raisin Bombers," an endearment for American pilots delivering food, fuel and supplies to our German allies during World War II. His squadron the V6, along with the V8 flew thousands of sorties in what they fondly called "Ten Tons to Templehof," with planes averaging 13 hours flight time daily and consistently operating over 125% efficiency. He was particularly proud of the V6 and V8 squadron's instrument flying ability, competing with other branches of the military to be superior at landing in German's tough, wintery fog conditions. He met and married Bettye Ruth Luck in 1955 at the Naval Air Station in Jacksonville. After serving in the Navy for 24 years, Lieutenant Commander Zowarka retired at the Naval Station Norfolk in Virginia in 1966 and moved to Keystone Heights. He worked at the University of Florida in Gainesville for 37 years and was an avid Florida Gator football fan, cheering on the Gators and enjoying season tickets for over 48 years. Jim was involved in his community serving in the Keystone Heights Volunteer Fire Department from 1969 to 1975 and was Fire Chief from 1975 to 1983, working to bring the first ambulances and trained EMT volunteers to the area. He was a lifetime member of the Lions Club of America, a member of Keystone Golf and Country Club for over 40 years, a member of the vestry at St. Anne's Episcopal Church in Keystone Heights and later transitioned with the congregation to Trinity Episcopal Church in
