Science grows gardens and minds

Lawtey fifth-graders Cody Ellison, Clayton Ceballos, Jay Padgett and Ben Norsworthy with the planting bed where their garden will grow.

Thanks to a Florida Agriculture in the Classroom Grant, teachers at Lawtey Elementary School and elsewhere in the district have been creating gardens and motivating students with hands-on science lessons.

Science test scores are improving in all grades, according to Principal Lynn Bryan, but particularly in Stephanie Scott's fifth-grade class.

With wood from Tatum Lumber of Lawtey, four raised beds were installed by volunteer Jim Devalerio, the county agriculture extension agent, and Master Gardener George Schaefer. After laying down the weed control fabric and local soil from Starke Landscape Supply, volunteer Bear Bryan and several diligent students shoveled the beds full.

Students enjoyed lessons on vegetable and flower gardening and delighted in eating food prepared from their bountiful harvest. Third-grade teacher Charlotte Durrance wowed her students with Stone Soup made with produce from the class garden. Her students have learned to enjoy vegetables they thought they didn't like such as collard greens and radishes.

Student council members and fifth-graders created a beautiful garden surrounding a crape myrtle tree that they had planted on Arbor Day with Forester Andy Lamborn. Kindergartners kept journals and made diagrams of plant parts. Even teachers have learned a thing or two because of this grant. Nancy Payne, another third-grade teacher, can no longer claim to be missing a "green thumb."

Bryan said she knew the grant was having an impact when Payne's students recently bragged, "Our class decided to help out and weed the flower bed near the music room today."

"When given a choice to learn indoors or outdoors, Lawtey students always seem to choose science in the garden—even if it means pulling weeds!" Bryan said.

Crashes prove fatal

A Fort Myers man lost his life in Bradford County late Monday night in a collision with a semi.

Joshua D. Odom, 24, of Fort Myers was in the wrong lane of U.S. 301 and traveling in the wrong direction. Jerry R. Foust Sr. of Knox, Ind., was in a southbound semi and tried to swerve to the right to avoid a collision.

Odom's Nissan Altima nevertheless struck the semitrailer near the left rear axle and came to a rest on 301, while Foust pulled into a turn lane. Odom was pronounced dead at the scene.

The crash took place north of Starke near Northeast 185th Street.

The Florida Highway Patrol is investigating whether alcohol played a role in the accident.

Delayed fatality in S.R. 100 crash

Jesse Wheeler, 67, of Starke succumbed to injuries sustained in a May 2 crash on S.R. 100 in Theressa.

Another driver, Stephen Eugene Babcock, was eastbound in a commercial truck but crossed the centerline into Wheeler's path, striking Wheeler's truck and a third vehicle.

Wheeler was hospitalized in Gainesville with critical injuries, but died on May 7. Funeral services are scheduled for Saturday, May 17, at 4 p.m. in the chapel and Jones-Gallagher funeral home. His survivors include his sons, Richie and Devin Wheeler; his brothers, Paul, Jimmy and Donald Wheeler; their mother, Glenda Wheeler; and his granddaughter.

Denise Babcock, 39, of Live Oak was also seriously injured in the accident.

FHP said rain was a contributing factor.

2014 ballot filling up

BY MARK J. CRAWFORD
Telegraph Editor

Time is short for candidates for county office to file by petition to run for office this year. The deadline is noon Monday, May 19.

After that, candidates will only be able to file by paying a fee. Qualifying week is June 16-20.

So far a number of candidates have filed to run. The only incumbent not to announce a run for re-election yet is School Board Member Roman Alvarez from District 5. The only incumbent not facing a challenge so far is School Board Member Stacey Creighton from District 2.

Archie Kittles, currently serving as chairman of the school board, is being challenged by Sheila Cummings. Cummings and Kittles both ran for the vacant seat in 2011, and Kittles won the seat by a single vote.

In District 5, three candidates have emerged for the school board seat so far, including former administrator of the career-technical center Randy Starling, Erica Reddish and Billy Rehberg. These races are nonpartisan, so the candidate with more than 50 percent of the vote wins, even if a runoff is necessary.

There are also three declared candidates in the race for the District 2 county commission seat. Incumbent Doyle Thomas is seeking re-election, running as a Democrat. The Aug. 26 primary will decide his Republican opponent—either Andy Norman or Kenny Thompson.

Danny Riddick, currently serving as chairman of the county commission, also has a Republican challenger in District 4. Helen Hersey has thrown her hat in the ring.

The primary is in August, and the general election will coincide with the election for state and federal offices, Nov. 4. Contests for Congress, state representative, governor, chief financial officer, and commissioner of agriculture are scheduled to appear on the ballot along with circuit judges in the 8th Circuit whose terms expire in January 2015.

Municipal elections

Most of the county's municipalities are holding elections this year as well, including the special election to replace the entire city council in Hampton.

Hampton's election will be on Tuesday, Sept. 9. Qualifying has been set for noon July 21 to noon July 25. During that time, candidates seeking office will pay a fee equivalent to 5 percent of the annual salary for a city council person—$75.

All five seats are open, and the terms of office will

Three principals, others leaving district

BY MARK J. CRAWFORD
Telegraph Editor

The search is on for three new principals in Bradford County.

The principals at Starke, Southside and Lawtey elementary schools have all told the superintendent that they are either retiring or resigning at the end of the school year.

For Lynn Melvin, who has been principal at Starke Elementary for the past five years following six years as principal at Brooker Elementary, this is actually the second retirement in her 34-year career. She's talked about going back to the classroom for year 35 doing something she really loves—teaching.

"I have enjoyed my time as an administrator and want to complete my career by helping students be successful in the classroom," Melvin said.

Lynn Bryan considered herself retired before she came back to work for Lawtey Elementary, first as a reading coach and then as principal. She had planned to stay one more year, but is leaving early to spend more time with her parents and grandchildren.

"My heart will always be with the children, staff members and families at LES. There's no place quite like this. To be part of such a close-knit faculty and staff has been a privilege," Bryan said.

After her welcome return to Bradford County schools, Lisa Graham has also decided to retire.

"I have had a fabulous year at Southside Elementary and have been able to work with a very student-oriented staff. The superintendent and administration have all been very supportive throughout this year," Graham said. "As I retire, I wish all my colleagues the best in life. Being able to work with students is my passion and I am sure I will volunteer in the years to come."

Superintendent Chad Farnsworth has already begun advertising for applicants, but the difficult job of replacing these administrators is still to come.

"Mrs. Bryan, Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Melvin have given so much to our school system, and we hate to see them go," Farnsworth said. Nodding to the roles each played in their schools and in getting the district through the temporary closure of the Starke Elementary campus this year, the superintendent said, "I feel like Bradford County will always be in debt to them for their service."

Another administrative change is the retirement of Food Services Director Dotty Rondelli. Her replacement has already been selected and was introduced to the school board May 12. Linda Milliken hails from Columbia County, where she worked her way up the ladder in food service for 20 years, going from the kitchen to the school board office where she managed the department's technology. She then worked right under the department director as food service specialist.

With no higher to go in food service in Columbia County, she moved to the MIS department and has worked there for the

Thomas seeking re-election

The following is an announcement of intention to seek public office submitted by the candidate. The final deadline for submissions by county and school board candidates is 5 p.m. on Monday, June 23.

To the citizens of Bradford County, I would like to take this opportunity to announce my intent to seek re-election for the office of county commissioner for District 2. I am Doyle Thomas your current District 2 commissioner.

I am a lifelong resident of Bradford County. I was born, educated and have lived in Bradford County my entire life. My wife, Brenda, and I have been married for 48 years, and have a daughter, Vicki. I have been a business owner in Bradford County for over 38 years. I have been blessed with the support of the people in this county, which has allowed me to have a successful business for so many years. My wife and I are members of Grace United Methodist Church where I worship with a loving church family.

In 2012, I implemented the dedication of county roads in honor of pioneer families who have played a vital role in the growth of our county. Since being elected, I have never voted to support or raise any type of tax that would be passed on to the citizens, and if re-elected I will continue to stand firm on this issue.

When I was first elected, the volunteer fire department's had minimal equipment to work with. I searched state surplus yards and acquired five brush trucks at no cost to the county. Due to the dedication of the fire chiefs, fire department volunteers and the county emergency manager who acquired grants, held fundraisers and obtained used equipment at minimal cost to the taxpayers, we now have some of the most modern equipment of any county our size in the state of Florida. My wife and I have both been in an emergency situation when this equipment and the people operating it made the difference in a life or death situation.

Through the efforts of myself and my fellow commissioners, I feel that we have accomplished many goals to better serve the citizens of Bradford County: numerous road milling projects, the courthouse annex, a rescue station in Lawtey, a new fire station in Sampson City, a new animal shelter and senior center, and in the near future, a rescue station in Brooker. Through grant funding we received new rescue units and a park in Pleasant Grove.

With the current state of the economy, the next four years will be very challenging due to drastic cuts from the state of Florida. Due to my experience with the county budget, I feel that I am capable of keeping a watchful eye on how our tax dollars are spent. Our sheriff and all other constitutional officers have committed to keep their budgets conservative. As your county commissioner it is my responsibility to monitor county spending, and I am proud to say I have done this.

It has been an honor and a privilege to represent Bradford County and its citizens. The office of county commissioner is a very rewarding job as well as a very demanding one. There is much more to the job than just attending meetings. My love for this county and the people who reside in it has made my job a pleasure. I have always stressed to you the citizens, regardless of what district you reside in, that I would always be accessible and available to take your calls and listen to your concerns regarding county issues. I hope I have fulfilled this promise and will strive to continue this practice if re-elected.

Due to redistricting in the county, my district has changed somewhat. To those voters now in other districts I appreciate your support in the past. To the new voters in District 2, I look forward to serving you if re-elected. I would like to thank the voters in District 2 who have allowed me to serve them. I hope they feel I have represented and served them to the best of my ability and will once again re-elect me as their District 2 county commissioner.

If re-elected I will continue to be the "People's" commissioner to represent and serve every citizen in Bradford County.

I would like to thank the Bradford County Telegraph for allowing each candidate to print their letter of intent.

Pantry doubles donations from postal customers

Volunteers from the Bradford Ecumenical Ministries Food Pantry got to gather Monday morning and gathered, sorted and stored the food collected by U.S. postal workers.

According to John Faulkner, vice president of the food pantry board, approximately 3,500 pounds of was food donated—twice the amount donated last year!

“Our records show that the visits to the food pantry increase sharply during the summer and this food helps us meet that need,” Faulkner said. If you wanted to donate but forgot, simply bring your donation to the food pantry, which is located at 321 W. Andrews St. in Starke.

“We would like to thank all the postal employees who put their time and effort into this project as this year they had removed the food from plastic bags and semi-sorted it, which made our job a lot easier,” Faulkner said.

The food pantry is always looking for volunteers to help distribute, sort or collect food. If you are interested in helping or have any questions regarding the food pantry, you can call Betty Warren at 904-964-7770.

Mary Bridgman, Linda Lee, Brenda Farnsworth, Jackie Morrow (hidden), Patricia Evans, Judy Dukes, Stacey Creighton and Denise Durban were installed as officers of the club.

Woman's Club installs officers

The Woman's Club of Starke concluded its year on Saturday, May 3, with a ceremony installing new officers for the 2014-15 year. Starke Mayor Carolyn Spooner, a member of the club, presided over the event.

Spooner reminded those assembled of the club's rich history of service, dating back to its founding in 1906 as a support organization for the local school. She asked each new officer to promise to discharge the duties related to her position, and then installed the group as the club's executive board.

The 2014-2015 executive board includes Evelyn Womack, past president; Mary Bridgman, president; Linda Lee, first vice president; Brenda Farnsworth, second vice president; Judy Dukes, third vice president; Jackie Morrow, fourth vice president; Stacey Creighton, corresponding secretary; Denise Durban, recording secretary; and Patricia Evans, treasurer.

played a selection of piano music before the meeting, then accompanied the group during the singing of the club song, “America the Beautiful.” The historic clubhouse was festooned with bright yellow tablecloths and fresh daisies provided by Jackie Morrow and Brenda Fertig.

Following a delicious brunch of asparagus quiche, apple-cinnamon French toast, fruit salad, chicken salad croissant sandwiches and tiny muffins, club president Mary Bridgman addressed the group. She recognized the outstanding work of David Elder, who catered all club meetings as well as the Mardi Gras event, with a special gift from the membership.

Bridgman noted that the theme for the past year was “updating the club for the 21st century woman while preserving the traditions it holds dear.” She reviewed all that had been accomplished by the club during the past year, including an 11 percent increase in membership, adopting a new mission statement, establishing the Community Steering Group and community calendar, providing refreshments for over 60 meetings of the Bradford County Girls Clubs, collecting food for Bradford Ecumenical Ministries Food Pantry, collecting books for Florida Youth Challenge, providing refreshments for Lawley Elementary School's Scholastic Fair, making financial contributions to Girls Clubs and Florida Youth Challenge, participating in the Strawberry Festival with a sell-out “Strawberry Café,” and hosting an outstanding Mardi Gras bash that raised funds that will pay for needed maintenance on the clubhouse and support the work of the club.

Bridgman expressed particular appreciation for the contributions of Lisa Tatum, Gloria Gillenwaters and Brenda Fertig who are rotating off the board.

Patricia Evans, president of Bradford/Clay Capital City Bank, was named Clubwoman of the Year in recognition of her many contributions to the success of the Woman's Club during the past year, particularly for her leadership of the Mardi Gras event.

The Woman's Club of Starke meets the second Wednesday of each month, September through April, concluding each year with its “May breakfast” the first Saturday in May. The club is actively seeking new members and encourages anyone interested in visiting or joining to contact any member of the club.

Perennials for your garden

Recently, I talked about how to divide perennials and bulbs in your garden, now I'd like to discuss what other perennials you may want to plant! Our Master Gardener group had a Spring Fling Plant Sale recently featuring perennials that attract butterflies and hummingbirds. The plant sale was a big success, and for those of you who asked, we are planning to do it again next year! You may want to consider trying some of the plants we sold at the Spring Fling plant sale.

Ajuga (carpet weed or bugle weed). This is a low growing, shade loving ground cover. Six-inch tall spikes of small flowers are produced in spring to early summer and are especially attractive when plants are massed. Different varieties produce attractive blue, pink or even white flowers. This plant is in the mint family and has leaves that range from dark green to deep, bronze-like purples. It does not tolerate heavy foot traffic, making it ideal for shady, moist areas under trees where turf will not grow.

Hamelia patens (fire bush or scarlet bush). This Florida native has beautiful orange-red flowers throughout most of the year, and orange/red foliage and fruit in fall. Fire bush likes the sun, but will thank you for some shade in the hot afternoon. Gardeners love fire bush because it flowers from late spring until first frost, and the bright red flowers attract hummingbirds and butterflies, including the zebra longwing and gulf fritillary butterflies. Songbirds also like to feed on the berries. In north Florida, it will grow about 3 to 4 feet tall and 3 to 4 feet wide. It works well in hedges, mixed borders or as a stand-alone shrub. It will die back after the first freeze but will regrow in the spring, making it what some people call a "root-hardy perennial."

Gaura lindheimeri (whirling butterfly bush). Gaura is a fine-textured, vase-shaped, 18-to 36-inch-tall perennial with wand-like flowering stalks that grow up to 5 feet tall. Gaura requires full sun but will tolerate some shade in the afternoon. It likes a well-drained soil and works well in an informal garden. Once it is planted do not move it. Gaura has a taproot that does not transplant well. Blooms spring, summer and fall and once established, takes very little care.

Lantana (Lantana montevidensis). Drought and salt tolerant lantana is a low-maintenance perennial with brightly colored flowers that attract butterflies. Lantana appreciates a place in full sun. Although tolerant of poor soils and drought, better performance can be expected if it is watered weekly. Soil should be well drained or root rot may be a problem.

Most folks know by now that the old butter and eggs lantana (Lantana camara) that we see in the woods and in landscapes around the South is an exotic invasive plant and should be avoided. The lantana sold at the Spring Fling has been found to be safe to use in the landscape.

It should be noted that all varieties of lantana are poisonous. Ingestion of a large quantity of green seeds has caused death in children, and pets have reportedly become ill after ingesting lantana. It is poisonous to sheep and cattle. Handling plants may cause skin irritation or allergic reactions. Lantana should be considered carefully before it is planted.

Asclepias curassavica (milkweed, butterfly weed). These plants grow 2 to 4 feet tall and flower from spring until fall. The red and orange or yellow flowers are borne in clusters at the top of the plant. The best sites have exposure to sun or part shade. A deep taproot can make transplanting difficult. Once established, do not disturb butterfly weed unnecessarily. Butterfly weed is slow to start growth in the spring. Occasional fertilization can help keep flowers coming nearly all year long. As plants age and become somewhat woody near the base of the plant, cut them back to stimulate new growth near the bottom. This will help them look good for many years. Mark its location before the plant disappears in the winter to prevent damage to easily injured dormant crowns.

Pentas lanceolata (pentas). This is one of my favorite plants- especially the red ones! This upright perennial grows 3 to 4 feet tall and is decorated throughout the year in with many 3-inch-wide, dense clusters of long-tubed, star-shaped flowers. In colors of white, pink, red and lavender, these blossoms are popular with butterflies and are long lasting as cut flowers. Hummingbirds enjoy the red flowered pentas. They often visit this flower sooner than any other in the garden. Plants fertilized regularly during the growing season will continue to grow and bloom all during the warm months.

Salvia elegans (pineapple sage). Pineapple Sage is in the mint family and is named for the uncanny pineapple scent of its foliage, particularly when leaves are crushed. The leaves can even be used in summer beverages such as herbal teas, or chopped on fruit salad. Pineapple sage likes full sun to part shade. It will grow 3 to 5 feet tall. Red flowers bloom late in the growing season and attract butterflies and hummingbirds in the fall when other plants have finished blooming. In our area, plants will die back to the ground during winter, but should return for another season provided that the crown stays protected during extreme freezes.

Remember that these are all perennials, meaning they will die back in the winter. Most are very dependable and grow again when the weather warms in the spring. Occasionally, we get such a hard freeze that the crowns will be killed and they will not come back. If that happens, think about the fun you will have choosing a replacement! To see a color brochure with pictures of the perennials mentioned here, visit the Bradford County Extension website at <http://bit.ly/1nA3B5B>.

be decided by the number of votes received by each candidate. The top five candidates will get seats on the council.

Supervisor of Election Terry Vaughan is assisting with the election, and questions can be directed to his office at 904-966-6266.

Three seats have expiring terms on the Starke City Commission. Districts 1, 3 and 5, currently held by Danny Nugent, Travis Woods and Wilbur Waters are all up for election this year.

Starke's election will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 2. Qualifying is from noon on July 14 to noon on July 18. The qualifying fee is equal to 6 percent of the base salary—$753.

As a nonpartisan race, the winner must receive more than 50 percent of the vote. If necessary, a runoff will be held.

For more information, contact city hall at 904-964-5027.

In Lawtey, seats 2 and 4 are opening up, this year, but additional information was not available as of press time.

Brooker has an election coming up next year, qualifying for which will take place in December.

Referendums

The county commission has already voted to place tax abatement on the ballot for 2014, and the city of Starke may do the same for its election. If voters support the idea, it would give each commission the authority to offer tax break incentives to new or expanding businesses as a way of encouraging commercial development.

While not in final form, Hampton has a number of potential charter amendments that will be showing up on its September ballot. Those amendments would move the time of the city election, alter terms of office and how council members are elected, eliminate the mayor and marshal as elected positions, and give the supervisor of elections permanent oversight of city elections.

Announcements

Each candidate who runs for office has an opportunity to place a one-time, free announcement in the paper discussing their run for office. Announcements may be turned in through the end of qualifying for the election and will not be accepted after that time.

The deadline for county commission and school board is Monday, June 23, at 5 p.m.

High school teams gearing up for 2014 season

BY CLIFF SMELLEY

There is a conception that today's youth spend too much time indoors in front of televisions or glued to their phones, tablets and other technological devices, but a group of teenagers are spending their afternoons in the Florida heat, running gassers and hitting each other.

And you know what? They like it.

Spring football practice for high schools in Florida began May 1, and returning players at Bradford, Keystone Heights and Union County were glad of it.

"It's great. I missed it," said Bradford quarterback Jacob Luke, who just recently finished playing baseball. "This is, for real, probably my favorite sport. Nothing beats football."

Keystone running back/defensive back Brighton Gibbs, who has played football since the age of 7, said, "This is the best thing ever. This is what I live for."

Like Bradford and Keystone, Union saw its season come to an end in the regional playoffs. Union linebacker Casey Driggers has been ready to work on improving and getting stronger since his team's season came to an end against District 7-1A rival Dixie County.

"It's good to get ready and just get back into that motion," Driggers said. "Everybody's just getting ready, getting fit and getting used to how we run things."

Coaches, of course, are glad to get back onto the field as well.

"I hate the off-season," Bradford head coach Steve Reynolds said. "I love to finally get back out here (and see) young kids who maybe didn't get as much playing time last year excited about coming out and trying to show their hand and show off how much stronger and bigger they've gotten."

Union head coach Ronny Pruitt said he enjoys reuniting with players he sometimes doesn't come in close contact with for three to four months because of the fact they play other sports.

"I'm glad to be back out here," Pruitt said. "It gets boring after a while, not being able to be around the kids."

Following is a brief look at each team:

Bradford

During a break on May 8, Luke talked about practices, saying his favorite activity is seven-on-seven drills and "trying to beat the defense."

Luke said the worst part of practice is conditioning, but his drive to continually get better gets him through it.

"That always keeps me going,"

The quarterback position is certainly experienced, with Luke Hankerson played a lot last season as well as safety. There are six players in the mix for the four secondary positions.

Reynolds said Bradford was blessed the last two years to have a veteran secondary, but graduation will leave only Rodderick Broomfield as a returning corner, though Carlton Hankerson played a lot last season as well as safety.

"It's good," Reynolds said.

Rowe Enterprises: making a mark after humble beginnings

BY CLIFF SMELLEY
Staff Writer

It is the true definition of a success story—a business that began in a spare bedroom, but has since expanded and earned recognition, such as being named a Best Company to Work For by “Florida Trend” in 2012 and Contractor of the Year by Lender Processing Services that same year.

Chances are you’ve heard of Bradford County’s Rowe Enterprises.

Chances are you’re not fully sure what Rowe Enterprises is.

What is this business that was founded by Jerry and Donna Rowe—chief executive officer and chief financial officer, respectively—and includes their children, Jonathan Rowe and Justis Smith, as part of its management team? Good question.

Smith, who is the vice president of client relations, said it’s hard to give people who ask what Rowe Enterprises is a simple answer. She said she can use terms such as “property preservation” or “taking care of foreclosed properties,” but they don’t seem to fully explain what the company does. She can say, “Prepare properties for conveyance,” but added, “No one knows what that means.”

Property Preservation Director Shannon Rowe, who is married to Jonathan Rowe, listened to Smith try to define the business and laughed, saying, “We don’t even know what we do.”

Basically, Rowe Enterprises coordinates with independent contractors it trains—and who work only for Rowe Enterprises—to provide a variety of services in regard to foreclosed, rental and real-estate-owned properties. Those services can include changing locks, lawn maintenance and various repairs and clean-up tasks.

“It’s a big conglomeration of items,” said Jonathan Rowe, who is the vice president of field operations.

Jonathan said the company will be contacted by a bank, for example, that has decided it needs to take action in regard to a particular property. At first, Rowe Enterprises contractors will do things such as lawn maintenance, changing locks and assessing the property. They may do some emergency repairs and take care of code violations.

“Basically, at that point you’re just doing a protection of the property so that the value maintains,” Jonathan said.

When a property goes into the foreclosure stage, contractors will go inside the house, cleaning up debris and bringing it up to the guarantor’s standards, Jonathan said.

Another level of work comes into play for real-estate-owned properties and properties that banks hold onto to sell. Jonathan said that entails heavy cleaning and possibly minor repairs and carpet replacement—things that go into making the property more marketable.

“Every client has a different idea of how marketable they want it to be,” Jonathan said. “There are banks out there that’ll take a property and spend $20,000 on it—to paint it, put carpet in it and plumbing fixtures and everything to make it move-in ready in order to sell it.”

“Then, there are some that’ll just say, ‘Look, just get it cleaned up enough. Instead of spending $20,000, we’re going to ask $20,000 less.’”

Technological advances have made the working relationship between office staff and contractors in the field much easier. Jonathan said if the company was using the same technology it was 12 years ago, it would need three times the office staff to handle the current workload.

It was once a time of relying on Polaroid photos, UPS and FedEx, and physical visits to the office by contractors. Tons of paperwork was coming in via the fax machine, which Shannon said had three members of the office staff going into work 30 minutes early to start sorting papers into stacks corresponding to clients.

“It took about an hour to sort the work just so everybody else could go to work on the fax machine, and then (we had) to hope all the pages were there,” Shannon said.

Now, contractors are entering all their information on iPads and sending it instantly to office staff.

“Technology has been a huge lifesaver for us,” Smith said.

The home of Rowe Enterprises on U.S. 301 in Hampton. It’s a lot larger than the spare bedroom in which the business began.

Though things are easier, that doesn’t make each day predictable.

‘Never the same day twice’

Those are Shannon’s words. Her husband said he never says he’s seen it all because as soon as he does, something will come along that he’s never seen before.

“I worked in the Panhandle,” Jonathan said of his and Shannon’s time as contractors, “so I worked in $1 million houses out on the water to shacks way up a back road and 4 miles of dirt road to get there. They’d have barns and sheds falling in and everything else.”

“You never knew what you were going to see. That’s probably the best part about it. It’s an interesting mix.”

With Jonathan, Shannon and Smith all having done work in the field, they can relate to what contractors are experiencing, and sometimes it isn’t pleasant.

“Some days, it’s the nastiest thing you’ve ever done,” Jonathan said.

Smith said contractors have witnessed some of the worst examples of hoarding one can imagine. She once worked in the field and remembered one house she went into.

“We had one where the entire kitchen was so full that they put in a new refrigerator in the dining room,” Smith said. “On their end table were pizza boxes stacked up. You could turn sideways to get down the hallway, and when you got to like the kids’ bedroom, you just literally had to jump over stuff to the bed.”

Shannon said, “We’ve had meth houses in Atlanta where the (law enforcement) officers wouldn’t even go inside. You had to call HAZMAT and the fire department.”

There was the house in St. Petersburg where contractors, in the midst of cleaning, discovered the body of a dead woman wrapped in plastic underneath a blanket on a bed.

“They’re on the evening news—‘Cleaning crew destroys crime scene.’ It turned out the woman’s sister had killed her, stolen her identity and moved to Georgia,” Smith said. “I guess she was the only living relative because no one was even looking for her.”

Jonathan said one of the most interesting jobs he was a part of involved a compound in Georgia that was utilized by the United Nuwaubian Naion of Moors religious sect. The 476-acre compound, which consisted of pyramids, was seized by the federal government after the sect’s leader, Dwight “Malachi” York, was arrested for child molestation and racketeering.

“That was probably the biggest, weirdest thing we’ve done,” Jonathan said.

Occupied evictions are never fun, Smith said. She cited one example of a daycare in Jacksonville where those involved had to wait while the owner called parents to come pick up their children. The owner knew she was being evicted, but had done nothing in response until that day officers showed up.

Jonathan agreed that evictions are not enjoyable.

“They may be willing to move out,” Jonathan said, “but you always feel bad. I’ve never been homeless, but what do you do when all of a sudden it’s, ‘OK, they’re going to put me out of my house?’”

Jonathan has witnessed several types of instances where people either had enough assets they could’ve sold to earn money for mortgage payments,

Spanish language immersion: jumping in with both feet

BY MARY W. BRIDGMAN
Special to the Telegraph-Times-Monitor

Life after 50 can be an age of exploration, offering both time and opportunity to explore tantalizing roads not taken during one's youth.

Learning a foreign language is a road that beckoned during my high school and college days. I took three years of Spanish in high school, followed by another two in college, all purely elective, simply because I enjoyed the language. The ingredient missing from those early experiences was contemporaneous conversation. I found it difficult to formulate a Spanish sentence that made any sense on those few occasions when it might have been useful.

Fast forward to retirement, a welcome phase of life that has allowed me to reacquire myself with activities I haven't enjoyed for years, writing being chief among them. I began to play organ and piano again, volunteered in a variety of capacities and became a Master Gardener and a certified group-fitness instructor. My husband and I moved to a smaller community and launched a few home-improvement projects. Studying Spanish wasn't on my radar screen.

One day out of the blue, my friend Susan invited me to accompany her to Mexico for a Spanish-immersion study program arranged by Amerispan, a company that offers language programs all over the world. Amerispan suggested that Susan and I study in Oaxaca, a city of 500,000 people. Oaxaca is the capital and largest city of the Mexican state of the same name. It is located in the foothills of the Sierra Madre in southwestern Mexico. The area features a large number of colonial-era structures as well as native Zapotec and Mixtec cultures and archeological sites that attract many tourists.

The weather in Oaxaca is mild year round, varying from 50 degrees in the evening to the mid 80s in the afternoons during the month of February, when our trip was scheduled. The rainy season lasts from April through October. Due to its altitude of over 5,000 feet, Oaxaca is much cooler than lowland areas. The mild climate, more than historic and archaeological sites, is doubtless responsible for Oaxaca's booming tourist trade—77 percent of its jobs are related to tourism. Many Americans and Canadians winter there, escaping the harsh conditions of their homelands.

Susan planned to stay for three weeks, but I decided to go for one. Her intention was to arrange "home stays" for the weeks prior to and following the week I would be there, and move to the school's "residence" during our time together. However, her home-stay experience wasn't satisfactory. The home was isolated, and her hosts limited their interactions with her—the language barrier contributed to the problem. Susan checked out the school's residence prior to my arrival and was disappointed with it as well. It offered very little in the way of aesthetics and amenities. So, with the help of the school, Susan located a bed and breakfast, where we could share a room.

The cost of the week's study was reasonable—$700 covered both instruction and lodging. However, I experienced sticker shock when I started searching for flights—over $1,100 for a roundtrip ticket. I flew United from Gainesville to Tampa and then from there to Houston before catching a direct flight to Oaxaca, thus avoiding a long layover in Mexico City, about 300 miles to the north. Oaxaca's airport has nine gates, but is comfortable and modern.

I never asked what exactly is meant by the term "immersion" when applied to language studies. I assumed it meant students would be required to speak only Spanish, but that is not strictly true. Classes are taught in Spanish, but students are permitted to ask questions in English.

In Oaxaca, Amerispan contracts with a school called Solexico. Classes are small—no more than three or four students per class—with private instruction also available. My week at Solexico began with a four-page exam, which I didn't find terribly difficult. I was quickly placed in a class with one other student, a woman my age named Tami, also retired, from California. Her vocabulary was more comprehensive than mine, but she, like me, needed more practice with conjugation of verbs and, of course, conversation. Our teacher, Adrian, was gentle and patient with our fumbling attempts to become better speakers.

We received four hours of instruction daily—three of grammar and one devoted to conversation. The school uses a four-level grammar series, written completely in Spanish, which I found easy to use. We worked through exercises during the first 80 minutes of class, took a 10-minute break and then continued for another 70 minutes, followed by a 30-minute lunch. After lunch, we met with another teacher, Javier, for conversation. We were joined in conversation class by a third student, a young man named Grant, who hoped to be hired by the United States Border Patrol. He believed fluency in Spanish would make him a more attractive candidate.

I enjoyed all aspects of the coursework, especially the low student/teacher ratio, which permitted more impromptu learning. Most interesting were the conversations, which often provided insight into the culture of Mexico—its religion (predominantly Roman Catholic), family life, health-care system and government.

Although the focus of our stay was studying Spanish, afternoons and evenings were free for exploring. One of the teachers at our school, Miguel, was available to drive us to local destinations and also provided transportation to and from the airport. Ever the diligent teacher, he turned each expedition into a lesson. He never seemed to tire of our endless questions and grammar snafus.

Miguel took us to Monte Alban, an ancient Zapotecan capital and one of the most important Mesoamerica cities. It was founded around 500 BC and flourished for over 200 years. The site, uninhabited since colonial times, featured a great plaza, ball court, tombs and fabulous views of the surrounding mountains.

Another interesting afternoon was spent at Santo Domingo Cultural Center, which is housed in a former convent that was constructed in the late 16th century. Opened in 1998, the center is composed of the magnificent Church of Santo Domingo, the Museum of Oaxacan Cultures, the Ethnobotanical Garden of Oaxaca, two libraries and conference facilities.

Susan was particularly impressed by the celebratory feel of the Zocalo, a traffic-free square in the center of town. There were government-sponsored fiestas, dancing and music on the square nearly every evening despite the fact that Oaxaca is the poorest state in Mexico.

Dining out in Oaxaca offered unexpected pleasures. We learned that the area is famous for its culinary offerings, particularly mole, a sauce that includes chocolate flavoring. I sampled the concoction—finding it smooth, creamy and not too sweet—over turkey at Casa Oaxaca, a lovely dining establishment featuring rooftop views of the towers of the church

Click It or Ticket campaign underway in Starke

The Starke Police Department has joined with hundreds of other law enforcement agencies across Florida in renewing a pledge to save lives by intensifying efforts to enforce seat belt laws during the Click It or Ticket mobilization.

This enforcement, which began May 12, runs through Memorial Day (May 26).

"Memorial Day weekend is upon us, and that means excitement in the air and summer fun," Starke Police Chief Jeff Johnson said. "We hope everyone has a safe and fun holiday weekend. Most importantly, we hope everyone returns home from their fun activities alive and well."

"Help ensure your chances by wearing your seatbelts. It's not only the law, but it's the smart thing to do."

Starke Police Capt. Barry Warren said, "Worn correctly, seat belts have proven to reduce the risk of fatal injury in a crash by 45 percent for front-seat passenger vehicle occupants and by 60 percent in pickup trucks, SUVs and minivans. In fact, data shows that more than three-quarters (77 percent) of passenger vehicle occupants who were in a serious crash in 2006 and were buckled up survived the crash."

Does illegal annexation mean city of Starke owes business?

Dear Editor:

It was with great interest that I read the April 24th front page article "Not So Fast", wherein Sheriff Gordon Smith and Sergeant Ray Shuford enlightened the public to the City of Starke illegally annexing properties south of the city limits including US 301 and more important to me, Southwest 143rd Street. Since 143rd Street was apparently annexed illegally, then any demands made by the City of Starke regarding that roadway must therefore have been done without legal ground.

During construction of Knuckle Draggers Motorcycles and Accessories, Inc. at its current location in the county, the Florida Department of Transportation withdrew permission for access from US 301 and informed us we had to have our access made from 143rd Street. We then discovered we had to contact the City of Starke to get permission to access our county property from their city street.

While the City Manager gave us the approval for access to the property, the permission was based on our compliance with new specifications dictated by him for entrance to and exit from the property resulting in greater costs to us for engineering and pavement. Those specifications resulted in loss of additional paved parking, very important for our motorcycle riding customers. Additionally, access was granted only if we paid for paving 143rd Street from US 301 for 185 feet to the west and 20 feet wide. The pavement on 143rd alone cost us $13,460.00.

A little history is important now for those who do not know. Southwest 143rd Street provides access from US 301 to the city sewage spray field and to a sod farm which leases the spray field from Starke. That business existed before we did. The nature of its business results in many vehicles weighing tens of thousands of pounds with their loads of sod using 143rd Street. The City of Starke has not paved the street. The sod business was not required to pave it for its customers to gain access. Why were we required to do so? 143rd Street beyond our required pavement is riddled with potholes and only once in four years have I seen it graded.

Now I wonder why our business was required to pave what another was not in order to gain access to its business. If Starke illegally annexed 143rd Street, did the City Manager illegally burden us with additional construction specifications and costs? I think the city owes Knuckle Draggers $13,460.00. Since the decision was made by the City Manager, I think it would be appropriate for him and his supervisor(s) to reimburse us, not the taxpayers. The taxpayers have paid enough by paying the salary of managers who made bad decisions. The city managers will of course use the excuse that they were misguided by counsel. If that is the case, hire new counsel and pay up.

Boy Scouts thankful for support

Dear Editor:

Thank you friends and family of the Boy Scouts of America. Our Timucua District (made up of Putnam County, Bradford County and Keystone Heights) of the North Florida Council thanks all the members of our communities. We are grateful for the parents and grandparents who bring their sons to the meetings and support them in so many ways...many of whom are also serving as scouting leaders.

We are grateful for our volunteer leaders. They do so much and with very little thanks except for the smiles on the faces of the boys they serve.

We are grateful for those who contribute financially. Individuals have contributed so generously in our "Friends of Scouting" campaign. Recently we held an "American Values Dinner" in both Starke and in Palatka. Both were an overwhelming success. The energy and enthusiasm were wonderful. Many, many folks of our communities stepped up to invite others and the response was terrific.

Once again, I thank every one of you for the effort and generosity each one has demonstrated as we move ahead in support of our boys and young men through the Boy Scouts of America.

Sincerely,
Richard Brinker,
2014 Chairman of the
Timucua District

The deputy got behind McNeal with his flashing lights, but he didn't pull over, so the deputy activated his siren. McNeal still didn't pull over, and eventually turned off C.R. 18 and made several other turns before pulling into his residence. They both went outside and called law enforcement, but could hear Tedder breaking things inside the home. When deputies arrived, Tedder claimed the victim had actually started the argument by demanding she make him some food, grabbing her by the arm, head-butting her, and throwing her against a fireplace before she went outside to get the axe in self-defense. In the report, the deputy stated he didn't observe any injuries or markings on Tedder that were consistent with her story and arrested her for assault. Bond was set at $25,000 for the charge.

SPRING

stake. They're trying to learn. Their noses are in the playbook."

Reynolds is excited about the fact he has seven rising seniors battling for spots along the offensive line, saying, "We're getting as much production from the offensive line as we have the last three or four springs."

In looking at all of the players attending practices, Reynolds said they are eager to learn from coaches and fellow players and diligent in attending meetings and fulfilling other requirements.

Luke said it's a good, close-knit group.

"We've all got each other's backs no matter what," Luke said. "We're going to be there for each other."

Bradford will play an intra-squad Scarlet and Gray scrimmage on Thursday, May 15, at 6 p.m. (Admission is free.) The Tornadoes will cap the spring with a three-team classic at Newberry High School on Friday, May 23. Play begins at 7 p.m. with Bradford taking on Dunnellon. Dunnellon will then play Newberry before Newberry plays Bradford.

"It's going to just be great to be out there in another game-day situation," Luke said. "Nothing beats game days."

Keystone

The Indians are coming off of a district championship season, which provides a good spark for spring practices, Gibbs said. However, he also noted that the team will lose quite a few seniors, so the 2014 team can't get caught up in what happened last season. Gibbs' mindset is, "Let's just get it started, boys, (and) not think about last year, not think about the past. Just start off fresh and make things happen for us and make our own name."

Keystone loses 14 players from last season and could count on a lot of newcomers.

"We've got a big freshman class," head coach Chuck Dickinson said. "I'm looking at a lot of them this spring to see if they can play or not."

There are several areas of concern for Keystone. The Indians will have to replace quarterback Blake Valenzuela and tight end Micah Brown, as well as find several new starters on the offensive line to play alongside Joe Pace and Roy Williams.

On defense, the Indians currently have no returning linebackers, with Sam Anderson sitting out this spring as he trying to keep stuff simple this year. Right now, we've got kids who don't understand the routes and things like that, but it'll come."

Gibbs said his fellow players are like brothers, and he can't wait to start the season with them. However, he knows the team is not where it needs to be just yet.

"We've just got to keep working hard every practice and not give anything less than 110 percent," Gibbs said.

Keystone will travel to St. Augustine to play a classic against Menendez on Friday, May 23, at 7 p.m.

"I'm ready to hit somebody else and get our season started," Gibbs said.

Union

The Tigers lose 17 players from last season, but Pruitt doesn't see a lot of difference between the players out this spring and the ones who come out in springs past. They are coachable and do whatever is asked of them, Pruitt said.

This year, though, the Tigers seem to be benefiting from new strength and conditioning coach Mark Williams.

"He's got these kids pumped up about getting strong and getting in shape," Pruitt said.

Driggers is just pumped up to be out on the field again, saying, "I like being able to spend time with the guys I'm going to be playing with over the fall and just growing with them and getting better."

Battling it out through tough, hot practices is not always easy, Driggers said, but he added it just takes a certain mindset to be successful.

"You can always push harder than you think," he said, adding, "If you push through it, it just makes you stronger."

The right mindset is key also in that some players find themselves learning positions they're not familiar with. For example, players who have most of their experience on the defensive side of the ball are getting a look at offensive line, Pruitt said.

"We're putting them in different roles and trying to teach them," Pruitt said. "They're picking it up. They've got great attitudes."

There are key roles to be filled on the offensive side of the ball as just two starters return on the offensive line and one returns to the offensive backfield.

Defensively, the Tigers have issues, too. Driggers is the only returner at linebacker, while the secondary's most experienced player returning is probably Kel Galloway, who played a limited role last year. Isaiah Johnson also brings experience to the secondary, but he has been and will be such an important part of the offense.

Bradford's Trevor Shannahan prepares to hit the tackling dummy as head coach Steve Reynolds looks on.

"We've got to find a way to get more guys involved and more guys on the field, and be able to have a little more gas in the fourth quarter," Pruitt said.

Younger players will have to step up, but Driggers is confident in how things will play out.

"Some of them still have a lot of learning and growing to do,"

Driggers said, "but I think we'll do very well."

Union caps the spring by hosting a classic against Duval Charter on Friday, May 23, at 7 p.m.

"You're glad to get on the field and actually hit somebody who's not wearing the same colors as you," Driggers said.

MEXICO

of Santo Domingo.

Although our lodgings in Oaxaca were inexpensive—$150 per person per week for a shared double room—premium lodgings are available. Tami stayed at a nice hotel for $150 per night. Another student, who was sent for Spanish studies by his employer, stayed at an even more impressive luxury hotel, Quinta Real. The Quinta had the look of a former convent or monastery and reminded me of paradors that I'd stayed at in Europe.

During our stay in Oaxaca, Susan and I felt completely safe. Before we left, we checked for U.S. Department of State travel advisories and found none related to Oaxaca. We often saw police patrolling the city on foot, accompanied by leashed dogs. One evening, when we couldn't find a restaurant we wanted to try, we asked one of the policemen to help us. He promptly radioed someone to get the information, and together with several of his colleagues, escorted us to the place.

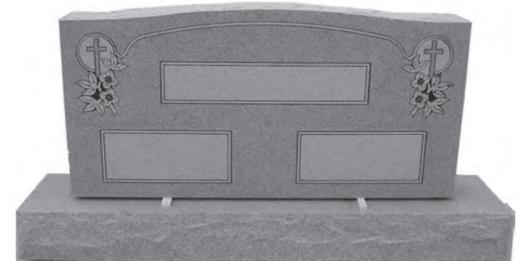

On my last evening in Oaxaca, Susan and I joined four other students from the school for a buffet dinner and a colorful folk dance exhibition at Quinta Real. During one of the numbers, a male performer grabbed my hand and led me to the stage to dance. Several others in the audience accepted similar invitations, not quite understanding exactly what we were doing, but getting the hang of it in a spirit of international goodwill.

I can't say that I had a breakthrough learning experience with Spanish during my week in Oaxaca. By far, the most frustrating moments came during conversation, when the vast expanse of my ignorance hit full force. I'd sit in silence, white noise filling my brain as I struggled to formulate the words needed to express my thoughts. However, I can say that my Spanish, limited though it may be, proved more than adequate for shopping, ordering meals, taking taxis and asking directions.

I had an enjoyable time in Oaxaca, an intense and lively learning experience. After a week of study, I understood that fluency in Spanish would take me years to attain. With pocket translators readily accessible on my Smartphone, I'll probably never have sufficient motivation to learn, but there's more to learning another language than wrestling with grammatical rules. I'll always treasure memories of simple human interactions with people of another culture, from a different country, who spoke—and taught—a mellifluous language not my own.

FINS, FUR & TAILS

Making quick work of cleaning bream

Since it is bream fishing season, it is also bream cleaning season. For those who ardently look for the beds, catch them in large numbers and eat them, the cleaning chore can be much more daunting than the catching part. These are the finned creatures that can keep the attention of the youngest members of the family who want to go fishing, but quickly become bored when it comes to waiting.

Shellcrackers, redbellies and bluegills are all excellent eating. Just do not try to fillet them, because they are just a little too small for the boning procedure. Learn where the pin bones are and separate them after cooking, and the backbone presents no problems. Without filleting them, you will necessarily scale them, which, along with the bones, actually enhances the taste. Unfortunately, it also makes the process a little more tedious and adds to the daunting nature of cleaning large numbers of small fish.

Some fishermen who love catching and eating bream have become rather efficient at the cleaning process, and Dennis Burkhalter is one of these fishermen. Burkhalter can clean a large bunch of panfish without making a big mess, and he can do it quite efficiently as well.

Burkhalter uses a tumbler scaler, which advertises that it can scale 50 fish at a time. However, Burkhalter prefers to use groups of 20.

"It takes less time and does a better job," he said.

After the scaling process, Burkhalter removes the fish one at a time and places them on a modified paper cutter, as shown in the accompanying photo. He raises the lever, places the fish into position and with one cut, he cleanly removes the fish's head. This could not be done with the original paper-cutting blade because it typically has a square or chamfer edge. In order to cut fish flesh, the blade needs a beveled edge like a knife. Burkhalter removed the paper-cutting blade and put a sharp, knife-like edge on it. The process is smooth, clean and completed in microseconds.

Another tool that Burkhalter uses is a citrus spoon. The spoon is shaped like any other spoon, but it has serrated edges. The spoon is perfectly sized to clean the body chamber of panfish, and with one scoop into the fish's body, it needs only to be washed off to complete the cleaning process in record time.

Outdoors outlook

The big female bass are less common at local tournaments, and the bass bite has tapered off locally in late spring.

The cool water-loving crappie are gradually seeking the colder temperatures in deeper water, which is also slowing their bite. However, May starts the beginning of bream season. The warmer weather triggers these panfish's spawning instinct, and they will readily pop a cork under the water. These are great targets for those youngsters that are too impatient for bass.

The shellcrackers, which are the largest of the three types, will probably bed around full moon in many of the local lakes. The bluegills, which are just as broad, but not as thick in body size, will peak their bedding habits for the month around the same moon, but they are so prolific that they are already spreading their pungent mating smell around the shorelines. The redbellies, which are the smallest, but also the prettiest of the three, will follow bluegill habits, but in the creeks and rivers in our local areas.

K.J. Stormant and Jim Thornton launched their boat at Sampson Lake on May 13 in the afternoon and bream fished the docks and lake cover of Sampson with little luck. However, the wind made it difficult for them to stay in place, so they sought refuge in the canal between Sampson and Rowell. Finally, they found a few places where it was difficult to keep crickets on their hooks, and they ended up with a cooler half full of keepers. More telling was the fact that some of the fish appeared to be full of roe.

Tournament results

At the April 29 Bald Eagle Bass Tournament, Andy Spartman and Darren Cowart placed first and also landed the "big bass," while Evan Hurst and Joe Yarborough placed second.

Cody Black and Robert Black took first in the May 7 Bald Eagle event, with Hurst and Yarborough placing second. Ed Prader placed third, while Erick Dougherty and Emily Canto landed the "big bass."

At the April 30 Sampson Lake Bass Tournament, Zack Smith and Richard Kingsberry placed first, while Bradon Gray and Cason Noles placed second. Sam Sibley and Donnie Brooks made up the third-place team, while Jonathon Nash and Randal Alvarez were fourth. Mike Christie landed the "big bass."

Trevor Corbitt and Drew Rogers landed the "big bass" at the May 8 Sampson Lake Bass tournament and placed first. Alvarez and Mike Rhoden placed second, while James Robinson and Tyler Carr were third. Braden Esimer and Tommy Wallace placed fourth.

Local fishermen continue to make good showings in major charity tournaments in the Palatka area. The April 26 NEFAR tournament, which gives its proceeds to Haven Hospice, featured a good number of locals that finished with recognition, including Timmy Givens, Coy Givens, Wally Johns, Mark Roberts, Glen Barnes, C.K. Ryan, Chuck Foster, Richard Barnes, Robert Black, Cody Black, Treg Johns and John Mobley.

The Save Rodman Tournament, organized to support the preservation of Rodman Lake, gave up the winning position to Wally Johns of Starke and Mark Roberts of Middleburg.

Tight lines until next week.

ROWE

but he said the worst cases are where somebody is not making payments and receives eviction notices, but says nothing to their spouse.

"Thankfully, most of the time they go ahead and move out before we get there," Shannon said. "Rarely do we do an occupied eviction."

Rowe Enterprises may have to evict itself from its current home on U.S. 301 in Hampton. Due to the amount of growth it has experienced, it really needs a larger building.

"That's a good problem to have," Jonathan said.

Growing a business, a family and a community

It began in 1995 with Jerry Rowe doing inspections of properties that went into delinquency. His wife, Donna, helped him at nights with paperwork and photos. Smith said within two years, the business, which became incorporated in 1999, moved into the Rowes' barn.

From there, the business "grew in leaps and bounds," Shannon Rowe said. Other people may have been able to ride by properties and take pictures, but not everyone could prepare invoices, make sure they got paid and handle other aspects of the business side of things, she said.

"Jerry's a very good businessman," Shannon said. "He just is."

The office moved from the barn into a doublewide trailer. Approximately two years later, another move was made into the building the business currently occupies—a building that offers 3,000 square feet. Smith said that prompted a few family arguments about whether or not it was too much space.

Well, it didn't take long to realize it wasn't enough space once 26 desks were installed.

"We have people in every corner possible," Smith said. "We have one working from home and two more offices next door."

Expansion included bringing family together. At the time of the business' start, Smith was attending college, while Jonathan and Shannon, were living in Georgia, where Jonathan worked for Applebees.

Jerry and Donna, though, saw an opportunity to bring their children and grandchildren closer to home, Smith said.

In a way, though, all of the employees have become family. If an employee has a problem, the Rowe family will do what it can to help, whether it's during times of need, such as deaths in the family or divorces, or just giving somebody a bit of a hand-up to get a little bit ahead in life.

The company recognizes Employees of the Month, and each employee receives a gift card on his or her birthday.

Every employee is involved in what Rowe Enterprises accomplishes, Smith said. Some of the best ideas to come out of brainstorming sessions have come from employees who aren't in management, she said.

Jonathan said taking care of employees and participating in employee-appreciation efforts goes a long way in making the business successful in terms of employee retention.

"Will I tell you we're the highest-paying place in Bradford County? Absolutely not," Jonathan said, "but I will say we do what we can. We try to be fair."

Smith said, "We've just always treated everybody like family and tried to take good care of them."

That "family" not only contributes to a successful business, but to the needs of the community as well. Smith said staff has always come together to donate to the Bradford County Food Pantry. Office events, such as Silly String Day, Holey Jean Day and Pajama Day helped raise approximately $3,000 for last year's Starke Police Department Shop with a Cop program.

Smith and Shannon Rowe are active in the Kiwanis Club of Starke, and that has opened their eyes to even more needs in the community.

The willingness to come together for a cause is impressive, Smith said.

"Duval County has way more need, but being such a huge community, nobody's getting involved, or there's a million different little projects," Smith said. "They don't come together near the way we can."

Perhaps it's easy to give, though, when the heads of the family—Jerry and Donna Rowe—set an example.

"I think that's part of their success," Smith said. "They've

"A property preservation company." That's a succinct way of describing all that Rowe Enterprises does.

always given back. They've always appreciated and always helped somebody who had less and needed an opportunity."

What's next?

It would appear that part of Rowe Enterprises' future is finding a larger working space for its office staff, whether it's utilizing its existing property for expansion or moving to a new location.

Shannon Rowe said Jerry Rowe probably didn't envision such growth from that simple start in a bedroom.

"I don't think he saw this coming," she said. "I don't think any of us saw this coming."

Outside of accommodations, Jonathan Rowe said eyes are on industry changes and how Rowe Enterprises can remain successful.

A big change in the industry is that large investment groups are buying foreclosed properties for the purpose of making them rentals, Jonathan said. The hope is that Rowe Enterprises can offer its services by preparing the properties for rental and to continue doing so between tenants.

There are other areas the business may look into.

"There are plenty of other avenues we've discussed as far as having this sized network as people begin to be homeowners again," Jonathan said. "We may look at occupied-property opportunities—what can we do to help people and whether it's our same type of services."

Jonathan said the key is adaptability, and he believes Rowe Enterprises has already shown it has that ability.

"Are we the best in the industry at this? I couldn't tell you," Jonathan said, "but I am happy with the direction we've taken. I have seen companies come and go. I've seen several go in the last year with some industry changes and the way things have developed."

"I think we're sustainable. I think that's a lot of our benefit."
