

'Lost' bikers found in training drill at Torreya State Park

by Teresa Eubanks, Journal Editor

Emergency workers were put to the test last week when they were sent out on a mock call at Torreya State Park to find a missing hiker.

The location of the training drill was chosen because of the challenges it offers, according to Liberty County Emergency Management Director Rhonda Lewis. The combination of hills and ravines provide many places for a park visitor to get lost. Radio and cell phone communication is spotty because of the park's distance from the nearest cell phone tower.

Despite the obstacles, searchers completed their task in approximately one hour, according to Torreya Park Manager Steve Cutshaw.

"It was a perfect scenario and worked exactly as it should," said Cutshaw.

Volunteers responded to a radio pageout at 6:45 p.m. Thursday. When they gathered at the park they were told they were responding to a report from a frantic mother who had not heard from her 16-year-old son who was camping there.

Searchers divided up into teams and began the hunt for the missing teen, played by Cutshaw's son, Heath. Planners threw in some surprises for participants, telling them the "camper" had not registered and could be anywhere within a 2,000-acre block of the park, except for the primitive campsites, which had already been searched.

Teams hit the trails and worked around communication problems to keep in touch. One team located a teenage hiker - although not the one they were sent to find. He was posing as the first hiker's friend who had gotten lost while trying to get help for the other teen, who had

by Teresa Eubanks, Journal Editor

An engineer from Brooksville was hired as the new Blountstown City Manager following a round of candidate interviews on Friday.

Emory Pierce, 64, spoke with the council that afternoon. Two other candidates were interviewed after him. Two others who were scheduled to meet with the board that day dropped out of the running; one that very morning, the other, just a couple of days earlier after learning he had gotten another job.

Once the interviews were completed, the council tallied up their score sheets. Pierce received 430 points of a possible 450, while local applicant Nathan Goodman had 347 points and Don Hart of Tallahassee received 270 points.

A native of Gainesville who got his engineering degree from the University of Florida, Pierce joined the Army as a young man, went on to get a degree in business and worked in construction before returning to school to become an engineer. He has done consulting work in Jacksonville and worked for the Aqueduct Authority in the Florida Keys.

Emory Pierce to begin duties soon.

He has worked as an engineer for the past 20 years, spending 12 years as the Brooksville Public Works Director.

"We liked the fact that he is a civil engineer and has done a lot of in-house engineering in Brooksville," said Blountstown City Council member Tony Shoemaker. "He will be able to give the council some guidance on engineering matters even when we are dealing with an outside engineer." He added that having an engineer in the city manager's job will also save money, noting that it costs between $1,000 and $2,500 to have architect sign off on plans.

During Friday's interview Pierce explained he lost that job in Sept. 2009 after Brooksville City Manager Jennene

Bristol man charged with making meth

by Teresa Eubanks, Journal Editor

A man who had moved into a Bristol home just four days earlier was arrested for possession of methamphetamine and manufacturing methamphetamine within 1,000 feet of a church Thursday.

Charged was Joseph Folsom, 44.

A tip from a citizen led deputies to the 12449 NW Pea Ridge Road residence Folsom shared with Norma Dishong.

Sgt. Jamie Shiver of the Liberty County Sheriff's Office located Folsom and found several items relating to methamphetamine use in his vehicle, including a package of coffee filters, a small container of acid and another of lye, two small containers with an unspecified amount of methamphetamine, five lithium batteries and a black zip-up container that held a hypodermic needle and a spoon with burnt residue.

Inside the home, deputies recovered

a clear 20 ounce bottle of lighter fluid in the bathroom trash can.

Deputies then looked through the couple's outside trash can and found a shopping bag from the Dollar Store that held two empty packs of lithium batteries, stripped lithium batteries, an empty box of pseudoephedrine pills with blister packs and a bottle of lighter fluid. A receipt for the cold medicine was also found.

Dishong admitted to deputies that she had purchased the cold medicine in Blountstown at Folsom's request and then gave them to him.

During a recorded interview with deputies at the sheriff's office, Folsom stated that he was in the process of manufacturing methamphetamine when Sgt. Shiver arrived at the home. He admitted that all the evidence that was recovered belonged to him and said no one else was involved.

He is being held on $35,000 bond.

Blountstown man injured in early a.m. wreck

A Blountstown man was hospitalized with serious injuries after his car crossed the center line of the road and hit an oncoming semi in a 5:25 a.m. accident last Thursday.

Injured was Donnie Grantham, 30.

According to the Florida Highway Patrol report, Grantham was eastbound on S.R. 20, east of Tallahassee Blvd., when his 2000 Ford Taurus went into the oncoming lane. The front left of his car collided with the front left of a westbound 2006 International truck, driven by Carlos Byrd, 28, of Tallahassee.

The impact sent Grantham's car spinning before it came to a final rest in the eastbound lane. The truck rotated in a counter-clockwise direction before overturning, blocking both lanes.

Donnie Grantham's car is shown after it hit a semi truck Thursday morning on S.R. 20.

Both men were transported to Bay Medical Center.

The crash was investigated by FHP

Trooper C. Condo-Varner. Grantham was cited for failure to maintain a single lane.

ARREST REPORTS

compiled by Journal Editor Teresa Eubanks

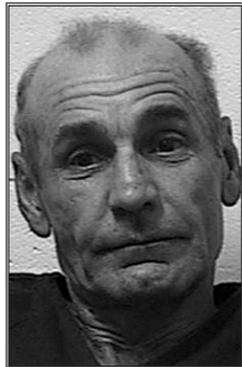

Two arrested on meth charges in traffic stop

A 51-year-old Blountstown man known to have made over 20 purchases this year of cold medicines containing pseudoephedrine – commonly used in the production of methamphetamine – was arrested after returning from Bristol, where he had just bought more cold medicine.

The arrest report noted that deputies had received information that the driver, Kenneth Layfield was cooking methamphetamine at his home.

Layfield and his passenger, Eric Shane Tolley, 32, also of Blountstown, were traveling west on S.R. 20 on Friday when they were stopped by Cpl. Eddie Dalton and Deputy Scotty Norris of the Calhoun County Sheriff's Office.

According to the arrest report, neither man was wearing a seatbelt and Layfield was going over the posted 35 mph speed limit.

When Tolley was searched, a clear plastic container that held a white substance was found. The contents later tested positive for methamphetamine.

The sheriff's office drug dog, Gina, was walked around the truck and indicated that an illegal substance was in the area of the driver's door.

Deputies found a pack of Allergy Relief & Nasal Decongestant pills containing pseudoephedrine in the truck, along with a blue bank bag that held two plastic straws, a glass pipe with methamphetamine residue and a clear plastic container with a white powder substance later confirmed to be methamphetamine.

The items were found in the center area of the front bench seat.

Tolley was charged with possession of methamphetamine.

Layfield was charged with possession of methamphetamine, possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of listed chemicals for the cold medication. A receipt for that day's purchase of cold medicine was found in his wallet, along with several receipts from similar previous purchases.

Tolley was released from custody on $5,000 bond. Layfield is being held on $22,500 bond.

Bascom man arrested on drug charges

A 19-year-old Bascom man was arrested on drug charges after a visitor to a trailer where he was staying in Altha walked into a room filled with smoke and recognized the odor of burning marijuana.

Two women went to the NE Fuqua Circle residence July 13 to retrieve a purse that had been left behind on an earlier visit and became upset when they realized that Dylan Johnson was smoking marijuana.

After one of the women told her brother what was going on next door, he contacted Altha Police Chief James Baggett.

DYLAN JOHNSON

During a search of the mobile home, Baggett searched Johnson's bedroom and found two bongos

hidden behind a television set. When he looked through the living room, he found a metal box in the entertainment center. Inside were two Ziplock bags - one with more than 20 grams of marijuana and the other with marijuana seeds. Also in the box were three pipes, a grinder, two pipe cleaners and digital scales.

Johnson admitted ownership of the marijuana and the paraphernalia.

He was arrested for possession of more than 20 grams of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia.

He was given a conditional release.

Teens charged in scrap metal theft at Hosford home

A family enjoying a hot afternoon in the pool was surprised to discover that a couple of teenagers were in their back yard rummaging through their trash in search of scrap metal.

A deputy was dispatched to the NE Bo Street residence in Hosford on July 12 after Abbie Fletcher, who was outside with her family, heard voices coming from the back yard behind a fence.

She followed the sound and saw Cody Tucker, 19, and 18-year-old James Harold Blocker digging through a trash pile. Fletcher reported seeing both take a dryer ring and a piece of flat scrap iron from her property to a truck parked next door.

The two were arrested for petty theft and trespassing.

injured his leg. The script for the drill called for the second hiker to be a diabetic who was found in a disoriented state.

Their target was discovered around 9:15 p.m. at the highest point in the park - Logan's Hill, which is about four miles southeast of the Gregory Home in the park.

"It was a little more of a challenge than being in the national forest or at the river," said Lewis. "I was impressed with our guys," she said, noting that most brought their own equipment - including cell phones, flashlights and snake boots. "We may not have all the bells and whistles but we were able to utilize what we have in a very efficient manner," she said. She hopes to find funding to buy supplies to keep on hand for future searches and would like to equip each team with a handheld GPS as well as good quality flashlights and mosquito repellent.

"These exercises help us get better at what we do and recognize our shortfalls," Lewis said. What did they learn? "Communication is always an issue," she said. Searchers going through the park had to use a "talkaround" channel on their radios and had to climb up to the tops of ravines to be heard. The drill also raised questions about locating a basket to move out an injured person. While the park has an ATV, it's important to know who has four-wheelers that can be borrowed for longer searches.

And, she added with a laugh, "We all learned we need to get in better shape to make it up all those hills."

Above all, she said, Liberty County has dedicated volunteers who show up to help and give it all they have. "They're doing this for no pay and no glory," Lewis said. "It makes me really proud."

About 30 emergency workers took part in the drill, which was coordinated by The Management Experts, who set up the School Shooter Drill at Tolar School in May of 2010 and a couple of months later at Blountstown Elementary School.

The training programs are paid for with Homeland Security funds.

About twice a year, the park gets a report of a missing hiker. Sometimes rangers have to call on additional help from Liberty County Search and Rescue.

Last week's event was the first drill on the grounds of the state park and gave volunteers a chance to familiarize themselves with how to work in the area. "You can never have too much good training," said Cutshaw, who helped coordinate the event along with the Liberty County Sheriff's Office and Emergency Management Office.

Norman-Vacha said he allowed unauthorized work on a trail project. "The city's part of the project was routing the trail through an abandoned railroad switching yard," he said. Pierce, who said he was working under a "use it or lose it" funding deadline, got an exemption for the work and believed that the shortcuts he had proposed were allowable under that exemption. He consulted with an agency inspector before installing an 18-inch culvert to solve a drainage issue but didn't learn until later that it violated the permit exemption, according to a news story on tampabay.com. He was placed on leave and then fired by Norman-Vacha.

Less than a year later, Pierce qualified to run for Brooksville City Council. While his sole opponent decided to seek another seat on the board, Pierce went into office unopposed and became one of the people overseeing his former boss. Pierce told tampabay.com that he didn't pursue the job to retaliate against her. He said he wanted to help build up local businesses, build up tourism, streamline government services and be a part of "good, responsible government."

Pierce sees his new position with Blountstown as mutually beneficial, explaining, "They have some construction projects coming up I'm very familiar with. As a former public works director, I've dealt with many of the things that will be going on in Blountstown." He adds, "I think I've got the skill set and the experience to help them out. I'm looking forward to it."

Pierce, his wife, Alison and their five-year-old daughter, Alexis, will be making the move to Blountstown soon.

Pierce was still on the road, making the five-hour drive home, when he got the news that he was hired. Interim City Manager Traci Hall dialed his cell number and held up the phone, putting it on speaker, so that Mayor Winston Deason could congratulate him and urge him to begin his duties "at your earliest opportunity."

Hall will continue as interim manager for 30 days before returning to her primary duties as the city's finance director.

The search for a new city manager began after a 3-2 vote not to rehire James Woods in early January. The City received over 70 applications.

Guest instructors provide summer workshop for ballerinas in Bristol

Guest instructors Bernadette Sims and Lauren Hamilton, both of The Northwest Florida Ballet, were in residence in Bristol for a Summer Intensive Workshop the week of July 11.

Sims founded the Northwest Florida Ballet approximately 40 years ago and Hamilton is a professional ballerina under contract to the Connecticut Ballet.

The workshop was sponsored by the Bristol Ballet School under the direction of Bonita Deck. Eighteen young ladies, ranging in ages 8 to 16 years and from four counties, who are enrolled in the school's "gifted" program attended. Not only was classical ballet and character dance taught during the workshop but the students also enjoyed classes in shapes and sketching and watercolors, presented by Sims. The students also enjoyed a class on beginner photography taught by Blountstown photographer Ben Hall.

At the end of the week the students participated in a performance for their families which included choreography by both Sims and Deck. Artwork created by the young ladies and a slide show of the week's activities was on display. The performance was held at Veterans Memorial Civic Center in Bristol. Our community should be very proud of the talent displayed by the local young ladies.

Dean Mitchell: Rich in Spirit exhibition opens July 29 at Gadsden Arts Center

Quincy native and award-winning artist Dean Mitchell returns to the Gadsden Arts Center this month to share the largest collection of Mitchell paintings ever shown at one time in the region. The Dean Mitchell: Rich in Spirit exhibition, opening July 29 at 6 p.m., celebrates the extraordinary qualities in ordinary things and people who are poor in material wealth, but rich in intangible ways. Rich in Spirit includes paintings of Gadsden County's architecture and people, a testament to those who quietly, and with dignity, struggle to support each other and their community, demonstrating the beauty in scenes overlooked by most people. Artist Dean Mitchell will offer a Gallery Talk on opening night at 6:30 p.m.

Celebrate a Taste of Gadsden County from 7–9 p.m. immediately following the Gallery Talk, as ten local restaurants showcase a variety of specialties for guests to sample.

The Dean Mitchell: Rich in Spirit exhibition is a "must see" cultural event for our region. Characterized as a "modern-day Vermeer" by New York Times art critic Michael Kimmelman, Mitchell's work has been lauded by collectors, museums, and galleries nationwide. He is said to capture the soul of his subject matter, the spirit behind the people and places he paints, commenting on society through symbolism and a rich, textural, and luminescent painting style. "One doesn't merely look at a Dean Mitchell painting; one feels it and is drawn into it, and the impression lingers in the memory long afterward.... That is the greatness of his art," said Canton Museum of Art Executive Director, M.J. Albacete. The exhibition will continue through October 29, 2011 with guided tours available by calling 627-5020, and the Mainstreet Café open daily.

The Gadsden Arts Center is located on Quincy's historic Courthouse Square at 13 N. Madison St., just 10 miles from Tallahassee City Limits. Gallery, gift shop, and café hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Admission is $1 (members and children admitted free).

New York's Christian Lopez is the new pride of the Yankees

AMERICAN COLOR

by Mark Shields

Pundit Mark Shields has been on the political playing field since Robert F. Kennedy ran for president in 1968. After years of managing campaigns from the courthouse to the White House, he is now one of the most widely recognized commentators in the U.S.

There still is, we learned last week, genuine hope for the human race.

It was not to be found here in Washington, where noisy public squabbling over whether to take the United States into Chapter 11 or to raise the nation's legal debt limit has continued to dominate. No, hope came to us in the unlikely and hefty 6-foot, 5-inch form of a young cell-phone salesman named Christian Lopez of Highland Mills, N.Y.

The reason Lopez's name may sound at least vaguely familiar is that he, a lifelong Yankees fan, was in the bleachers where he snagged Yankee captain Derek Jeter's 3,000th career hit, a home run. The red-blooded, free-market thing for Lopez to do next was to auction the historic baseball on eBay, where even in this dismal economy, he could have expected to get well over the $220,100 Andrew Morbitzer was paid in 2006 for the baseball Barry Bonds hit for his 715th home run.

But Lopez, a 2010 graduate of St. Lawrence University and carrying more than $100,000 in student loan debt, announced immediately that he would forego any six-figure financial windfall. "I'm going to give it to Derek," Lopez announced during the game. And as he later explained to reporters: "It wasn't about the money -- it's about a milestone. I mean, Mr. Jeter deserved it.

... Money's cool and all, but I'm only 23 years old, and I have a lot of time to make that. It's his accomplishment."

These, I submit, are the refreshing words of an exceptionally classy young man. Oscar Wilde once defined a cynic as someone who knows the price of everything and knows the value of nothing. By that standard, Christian Lopez -- who simply did the right thing as he saw it -- may qualify as the most uncynical human being in the Western Hemisphere.

He was immediately criticized in print and on talk shows for being a sucker and not cashing in on his big chance. For me, an unreconstructed Boston fan, the New York Yankees have always inspired an unadulterated hate. The gifted Bill Mead put it well: "Most all good Americans hate the Yankees. It's a value we cherish and pass on to our children like decency, democracy and the importance of a good breakfast. "Asked why, Mead explained:

"They're spoiled rotten. They think they're such Hot Stuff. Their owner is obnoxious. Their fans are gross and rude."

Of course, neither Mead nor I ever met Yankee fan Christian Lopez, to whom the open-handed Yankees organization did give four luxury seats to every game for the rest of this season -- including the playoffs -- and a bunch of Yankee attire and memorabilia.

Here is where the decency of Lopez becomes infectious. Because he could face a tax bill of up to $13,000 on the expensive seats he was given and because "Miller High Life believes you should be rewarded for doing the right thing, not penalized," that brewer publicly offered to pay whatever Christian owes to IRS. Then Brandon Steiner of Steiner Sports and Mitchell Modell of Modell Sporting Goods each pledged a minimum of $25,000 toward paying off Christian's student loans. Just maybe, as St. Thomas Aquinas taught us, goodness really is diffusive of itself.

At this dreary time when runaway greed and organized selfishness are epidemic -- in both public and private life -- the spontaneous, natural generosity and class of Christian Lopez, a new Pride of the Yankees, lift my spirits and rekindle my hope.

The remarkable story of Medal of Honor recipient Leroy Petry

WASHINGTON — Few of us ever will meet a Medal of Honor recipient. Fewer still ever will have the opportunity to be of assistance to one. In part, that's because "The Medal" -- our nation's highest military decoration, awarded for "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of life above and beyond the call of duty" -- is worn by just 85 living Americans.

Since we were attacked on 9/11, the Medal of Honor has been awarded only nine times to the more than 2 million Americans who have served in Afghanistan and Iraq. Army Sgt. 1st Class Paul Smith, Marine Cpl. Jason Dunham, Navy SEALs Lt. Michael Murphy and Petty Officer 2nd Class Michael Monsoor, Army Spc. Ross McGinnis, Army Sgt. 1st Class Jared Monti and Army Staff Sgt. Robert Miller all received the recognition posthumously.

Until last week, U.S. Army Staff Sgt. Salvatore Giunta was the only living MOH recipient of the nearly decade-long global war on terror. On July 12, in the East Room of the White House, President Barack Obama presented the Medal of Honor to U.S. Army Ranger Sgt. 1st Class Leroy Petry for his extraordinary heroism during a bloody engagement May 26, 2008, in Afghanistan's Paktia province.

Excerpts from the citation for then-Staff Sgt. Petry describe how he "and another Ranger were engaged and wounded by automatic weapons fire from enemy fighters" and how "under enemy fire, and wounded in both legs, Staff Sergeant Petry led the other Ranger to cover," where they were joined by a third Ranger. An enemy grenade wounded his fellow soldiers, and a second grenade landed in their midst. "Instantly realizing the danger, Staff Sergeant Petry, unhesitatingly and with complete disregard for his safety, deliberately and selflessly moved forward, picked up the grenade, and in an effort to clear the immediate threat, threw the grenade away from his fellow Rangers." As he released the grenade, it detonated, "amputating his right hand at the wrist and further injuring him with multiple shrapnel wounds."

BY OLIVER NORTH
Oliver North is the host of "War Stories" on Fox News Channel, the founder and honorary chairman of Freedom Alliance, and the author of "American Heroes in Special Operations."

But that's only part of the remarkable story of a modest American hero and his exceptional family. He is also the recipient of two Bronze Stars and a Purple Heart from two combat tours in Iraq and six deployments to Afghanistan. He, his wife and their four children know all too well the challenges military families face as they cope with multiple deployments and life-changing injuries. They also know that the American people care.

Because of the severity of Petry's wounds, he had to endure multiple surgeries and more than two years of recuperation at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio. While he was recovering there, the Petry family received support and encouragement from Freedom Alliance, an organization devoted to those who serve our nation in uniform. On two occasions while he was at BAMC, Freedom Alliance provided financial assistance to help his family with travel expenses that were not covered by the government.

That support wasn't provided just because Petry is a Medal of Honor recipient. When the calls come into the Freedom Alliance Heroes Support Center from a military hospital, all that matters is that a wounded service member's family needs help. The Petrys are just one example of the hundreds of wounded military personnel and their families whom Freedom Alliance has provided with more than $1 million in financial grants in the past four years.

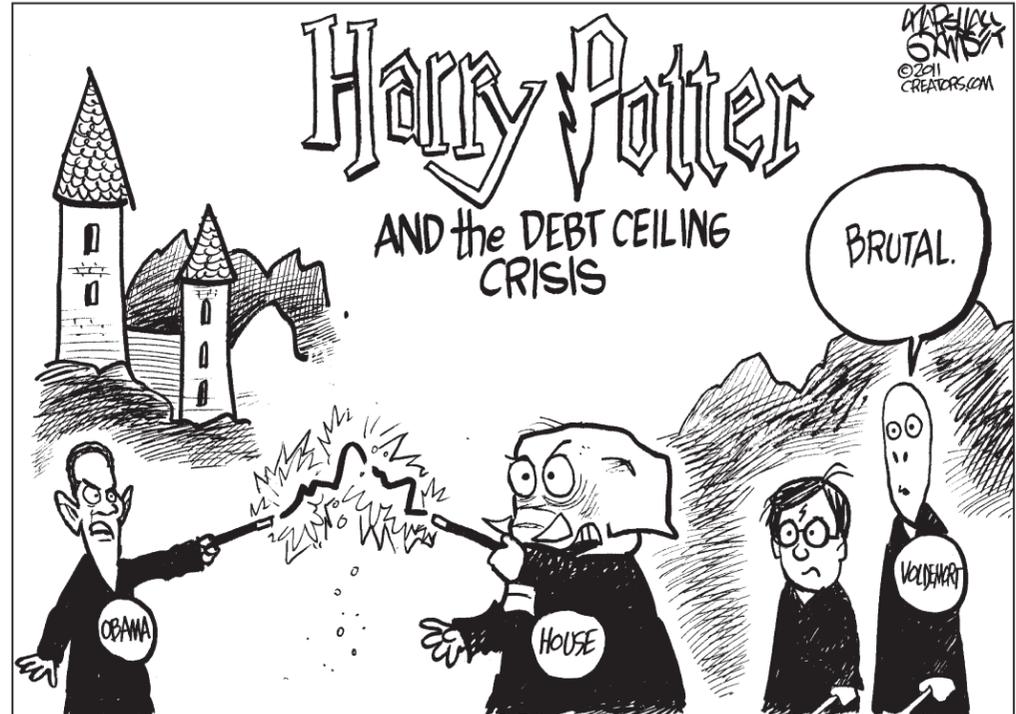

That's not all Freedom Alliance does for those serving our country. Thus far this year, the organization has sent thousands of Gifts from Home care packages to troops deployed overseas. Freedom Alliance also hosts and sponsors hundreds of dinners, picnics and "family days" every year to honor the troops and their families. Thanks to Sean Hannity and Fox News, the Freedom Alliance Scholarship Fund has provided more than $4 million in college scholarships to the children of service members who have been killed or permanently disabled in combat or other operational missions. And it doesn't end there.

Sgt. 1st Class Leroy Petry receives the Medal of Honor from President Obama on July 12 in Washington, D.C. Petry lost his right hand when he threw back a grenade to save the lives of fellow troops in May 2008 in Afghanistan.

Generous Americans who care about the sacrifices being made on faraway battlefields and by military families here at home have made it possible for the Freedom Alliance Heroes Support Center to provide a broad array of programs for the troops, their spouses and their children. Taking hurting heroes to Major League Baseball parks, National Football League games, fishing trips, hunting/sporting weekends and "dream vacations" all across America isn't intended to make headlines. But one wounded Marine put it this way during a recent outing: "It's the best time I've had since I got hit in Afghanistan."

As we watched the White House ceremony in which Sgt. 1st Class Leroy Petry was being awarded the Medal of Honor, I turned to Tom Kilgannon, president of Freedom Alliance, to congratulate him on the quiet help the organization provided during the heroic Ranger's recovery. Kilgannon shrugged and responded, "It's what we do."

Turning back to the Constitution is the only answer to solvency

To the editor,

Cox's Corner, "A $100 billion misunderstanding" is misleading and full of misinformation. Mr. Cox invokes the 14th Amendment in order to try to legitimize the plunder of this and future generations, while using the threat of the Supreme Court as an incantation for totalitarianism.

The fact is that the Constitution gives only the House of Representatives the authority to raise taxes, fund bills or raise the debt ceiling. Anything else is the subordination of the individual to the state.

George W. Bush was a big government president and did allow Congress to spend too much. That doesn't allow any other president to spend us into oblivion. Mr. Cox stated that Barack Obama only increased our debt by $1.573 trillion. The truth is when he took over the White House the national debt was $9 trillion. Now it is $14 trillion,

SPEAK UP!

thanks to Nancy Pelosi, Harry Reid and Barack Obama.

We all hear the words millions, billions and trillions, but do we really understand the difference? Here is an analogy that I like to use to explain the difference: If you had a stack of $1,000 bills, it would be 6 1/2 inches high to equal one million dollars; it would be 68 feet high to equal one billion dollars; it would be 6 1/2 miles high to equal one trillion dollars.

The fact is that unless we stop the unbridled spending, we will spend ourselves into hyper-inflation and bankrupt this nation into third world poverty. Turning back to the Constitution is the answer to solvency. We have to re-establish constitutional restraints on federal power.

We must vote in Constitutional conservatives and hold them accountable. I encourage everyone to find and join the local Tea Party and link arms to save this great republic and our liberty.

We no longer have the luxury of sitting back and doing nothing. It will take all of us working together.

WEDDING

Eldridge and Desrosier to exchange vows Sept. 17

Carl Desrosier and Alvin and Wretha Webb of Altha are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Kristy Dawn Desrosier, to Kurt Michael Eldridge, the son of Michael and Donna Eldridge of Blountstown.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Blountstown High School and earned her Associate's Degree in Nursing from Chipola College. She is currently a registered nurse at Blountstown Health and Rehab Center.

The groom is a graduate of Blountstown High School and earned a degree in Physical Education at Florida A&M University. He is currently self-employed.

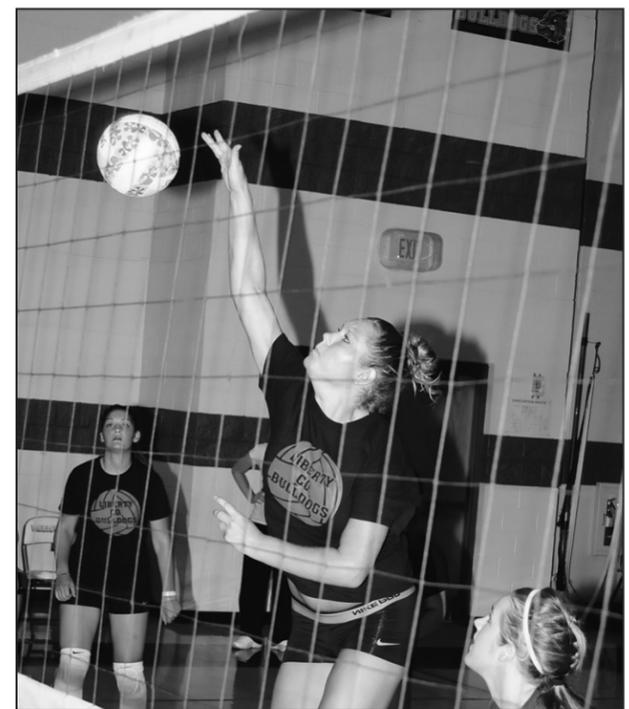

The couple will be married on Sept. 17 at Circle S Plantation at 5:30 p.m. (CT). All friends and family are invited.

V SUMMER VOLLEYBALL

NOTES OF THANKS

The children of Mary Etta Rollins would like to express our heartfelt appreciation for the tremendous outpouring of love and support through visits, food and flowers during our time of bereavement.

We can not begin to list everyone who offered prayers and visited our mother in her last year. She enjoyed life so very much and was always grateful for her visitors. All of you helped to make her last years very happy.

We would like to make special mention of doctors Iqbal Faruqui and Misbah Farooqi for their years of care and devotion. Also, Calhoun County Senior Citizens, Calhoun Liberty Hospital, N.H.C and Covenant Hospice for their loving vigils.

We are very grateful for our church families, especially mother's church, Magnolia Baptist, who helped carry us through this trying time. We have been truly blessed.

May you find the peace and faith that our mother had instilled in us. May God bless and keep you all.

Love and appreciation from the family of Mary E. Rollins

Kimberly "Beth" (Morgan) McCoy passed away unexpectedly on June 17. Through this hardship, the family of Beth McCoy has been so blessed with the support and encouragement from our community. As such, we want to express our gratitude to those who prayed for healing, comforted us in our time of sorrow, provided meals or supplies to the family, sent flowers, or made a donation on Beth's behalf. Through times like these it becomes even more evident how special it is to live here in our small community. People have really pulled together to help us through this. While a tragedy like this is unbearable at times, your generosity and good-nature comforts our hearts. Thank you for your expression of love for Beth McCoy.

The family of Beth McCoy

The Liberty County Pony League baseball team would like to thank the many people and businesses that donated their time and/or money to help us make it to Sebring to play in the Dixie Youth State Championship. We did not bring home the title but had a good standing and great experience for the boys. Grant Conyers was the winner of the week at Panama City Beach. A special thanks to Deanne White for donating the week at Panama City Beach and to Sammy Singletary for all of his hard work collecting donations and selling watermelons.

Plaque dedicated in honor of former County Commissioner Wilhoit Eubanks

The community gathered at the Liberty County Road Department Saturday morning to celebrate the memory of the late J.W. "Fiddler" Eubanks by dedicating a plaque in his honor. ABOVE LEFT: Kenneth Green, who served with Fiddler on the Liberty County Commission, shared a story about the time a woman came before the board to ask for a $1,000 donation. Eubanks, who kept an eye on the county's finances, made a point about fiscal responsibility when he asked the woman, "When's the last time you paid your garbage bill?" He already knew the answer. Senator Bill Montford, CENTER, expressed his admiration for Fiddler, saying, "He was at the end of his life but he was still looking out for the future of Liberty County." He added, "He lived a good life because he was a good man."

County Commissioner Jim Johnson unveils the plaque.

Fish Tales opens in Bristol

Fish Tales Bait & Tackle, located at 12953 NW Central Ave. in Bristol, celebrated its grand opening on Saturday, July 16. Owner Gar Revell is looking forward to running his new store, which he says will offer many conveniences for local fishermen. He plans to have marine gas available soon along with anything else folks might need when they head to the river or their favorite fishing hole. Anyone who stopped by Saturday was treated to a taste of his daughter Millie's lemonade and was welcomed by Gar along with family and friends. The store, which was remodeled from an old shed, will be open from 5:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. every day of the week. Pictured at left is Gar Revell, his wife, Latrel and their daughter, Millie, along with several folks who joined them for the grand opening.

Hosford's 21st CCLC program celebrates nature

Hosford School's 21st CCLC program celebrated their fifth week of summer camp with a theme of Exploration Nature Network. From forest layers to types of forests and even experiments with celery, we spent a fun filled week learning about our environment.

One important aspect we learned was taking care of our precious environment.

On Thursday kids in the program toured the recycling facility in Tallahassee. We explored the wonders of recycling, reducing and reusing.

Students had fun learning how the facility recycles styrofoam, cardboard, glass, plastic and even hazardous materials.

We were taught how we can help by recycling our things at home and reusing containers to reduce waste. We also were able to tour the actual landfill on our bus to see how they dispose of the garbage.

On Friday our group took a nature tour on Wakulla Springs' jungle boat and enjoyed the numerous animals in Florida's ecosystem.

We learned about the animal habitats, diet and how we can help to keep their environments protected.

We counted 15 alligators in our tour and loved seeing the mullets jump out of the water!

We are sad that our program is winding down for the summer but we look forward to our last week's theme... Getting Dirty!

Chipola athletes named to All Academic Teams

MARIANNA-Though Chipola College's athletic seasons have concluded, postseason academic honors continue to pour in from the state and national level.

The Chipola Women's Cross Country team was recently recognized as a NJCAA All-Academic Team for their academic accomplishments.

The team of Courtney Hodges of Marianna, Mackenzie Willis Johnson of Marianna and Rebekah Wiltse of Alford balanced athletic ability with academic achievement by combining for a 3.43 cumulative grade point average.

In softball, Chipola's Hannah Lovstrand (Wakulla) earned NJCAA Exemplary Academic Achievement honors for her outstanding effort in the classroom during her two-year span at Chipola College. Earlier this spring, Lovstrand won the Charlton Keen Scholar-Athlete Award and the Neal Sportsmanship Award.

The following Chipola student-athletes were named to the Florida College System Activities Association All-Academic Team: Courtney Hodges, Mackenzie Willis Johnson, and Rebekah Wiltse (Cross Country); Ance Celmina, Sara Djassi (Women's Basketball); Haley Adkinson, Mayra Akamine, Elizabeth Krauser, and Hannah Lovstrand (Softball) and Carlos Alegria (Baseball). Panhandle Conference All-Academic Team selections included: Courtney Hodges, Mackenzie Willis Johnson, and Rebekah Wiltse (Cross Country); Shamarr Bowden, Daniel Cummins, Sam Grooms and Marcos Knight (Men's Basketball); Ance Celmina, Sara Djassi, and Ty O'Neill (Women's Basketball); Haley Adkison, Mayra Akamine, Ashley Ellis, Elizabeth Krauser and Hannah Lovstrand (Softball); Carlos Algeria, Adam Bigale, Jonathan Gilbert and Alexandre Lagarde (Baseball).

BLOUNTSTOWN HIGH SCHOOL

ACT to be offered at BHS starting in September

Starting in September, the new Blountstown High School location will offer the ACT to area students.

The school's new location now supports a higher number of available testing seats, however seating remains limited.

The first test will be administered on September 10, 2011. The cost of ACT (no writing) is $34, ACT plus writing is $49.50.

Students who receive free or reduced lunch may be eligible for a fee waiver. If a student qualifies for a fee waiver, he or she will need to contact the guidance office at their home school before registering for the test.

Students who qualify for extended time testing will also need to contact the guidance office at their home school before registering.

The deadline for registration is August 12. Students may register online at www.actstudent.org. Registration packets are also available from the guidance office at BHS.

The next available testing date is October 22. Please email rebecca.stanley@calhounflschools.org for further information or assistance with registration.

ASK THE

OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

What does it mean that the zodiac signs associate Leos with the heart and Virgos with the belly?

—L. J., Abilene, Tex.

Look in any recent Old Farmer's Almanac, and you'll find the famous "Man of the Signs" depicted under the Secrets of the Zodiac page. Each sign is attributed to a certain part of the body, the first sign, Aries, with the head, and on down to Pisces at the feet. Leos (July 23–August 22) take the heart, as you say, and Virgos (August 23–September 22), the belly. The theory is that each sign has influence over that body part, in particular.

Aries the Ram (March 21–April 20), for example, is considered, astrologically, as the sign of a great leader. Some Ariens of note

JULY 18, MONDAY -- Conjunction of Neptune and the Moon. U.S. president Harry Truman signed the Presidential Succession Act into law, 1947. Tenor Jerry Hadley died, 2007.

JULY 19, TUESDAY -- Moon on equator. New York City's first air-conditioned subway cars began service, 1967. Actor Jared Padalecki born, 1982.

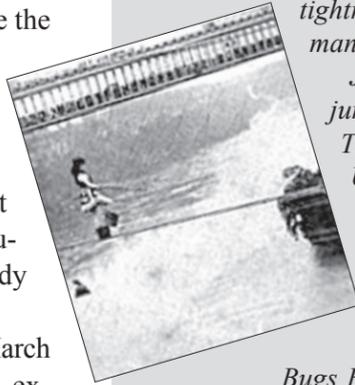

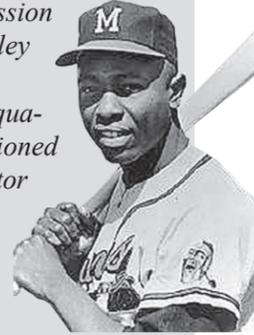

JULY 20, WEDNESDAY -- Colombia declared independence from Spain, 1810. Snow and hail fell in Calais, Maine, 1890. Hank Aaron hit his 755th home run, 1976.

JULY 21, THURSDAY -- Moon at apogee. Conjunction of Uranus and the Moon. John T. Scopes found guilty of teaching evolution in class and fined $100, 1925.

JULY 22, FRIDAY -- St. Mary Magdalene. Maria Spelterini walked across Niagara Falls on a tightrope with her ankles and wrists manacled, 1876.

JULY 23, SATURDAY -- Conjunction of Jupiter and the Moon. The first swimming school in the U.S. opened in Boston, Massachusetts, 1827. A fish is not a fish until it's on the bank.

JULY 24, SUNDAY -- Sixth Sunday after Pentecost. Debut of Marvin the Martian in Bugs Bunny's Haredevil Hare, 1948. Actress Kristin Chenoweth born, 1968.

techniques may be particularly appropriate. She is a networker, a systems builder, and demands order out of chaos. D. H. Lawrence, Mother Teresa, Grandma Moses, and Johann Christian Bach number among the Virgos.

What is cornscateous air?

—G. G., Richardson, Tex.

Well, as you might guess, it has to do with corn. Early almanac makers dreamed up the term and used it to signify a time in July when the air is damp and warm. Although farmers considered it an ideal time for growing corn, it could also pose a serious health threat to elderly citizens (or others) suffering from asthma, pneumonia, or other respiratory ills.

Those old-timers were especially valued as a workforce come husking time, when every good hand was needed. Our 1805 Old Farmer's Almanac advised, "If you make a husking, keep an old man between every two boys, else your husking will turn out a loafing. In a husking there is some fun and frolic, but on the whole, it hardly pays the way; for they will not husk clean, since many go more for the sport than to do real work."

include Jane Goodall, Thomas Jefferson, Maya Angelou, and Leonardo da Vinci. But Ariens are thought to be especially prone to maladies of the head, nerves, and sinuses. They need to watch their blood pressure and may be susceptible to migraines or hay fever.

Leo the Lion, an authority figure, also needs to watch his blood pressure. Remember the lion in the "Wizard of Oz?" His lionhearted quest was for a heart. Astrologically, Leos need to be mindful of circulatory ills or overexertion. They should watch red meat consumption and cholesterol counts. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, Benito Mussolini, Neil Armstrong, and Lucille Ball share the sign.

Virgo (the Maiden) influences the belly and needs to watch her nerves, abdomen, and intestines. Ulcers and irritable bowels may be a risk. Virgos may be prone to perfectionism or undue worry, so yoga or other relaxation

Where Were You?

On July 20, 1969, Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin Jr. walked on the surface of the Moon. The Apollo 11 mission answered President Kennedy's 1961 State of the Union challenge to safely send a person to the Moon and back before the end of the decade. In the next Apollo landing (November 1969), Charles "Pete" Conrad Jr. referred to Armstrong's statement, "That's one small step for [a] man, one giant leap for mankind," by saying, "Man, that may have been a small step for Neil, but that's a long one for me."

Strawberry Cream

Set aside 8 to 10 perfect strawberries for garnish. Clean and hull the rest, then puree in a blender. Blend in the kirsch, if desired, and sugar. Whip the cream in a chilled bowl, then fold in the pureed strawberry mixture. Spoon into glasses or into a single glass dessert bowl, and refrigerate until ready to serve. Garnish with mint leaves and strawberries. MAKES 6 TO 8 SERVINGS.

PETS AND THEIR PEOPLE

Dustin & Tippy

Tippy is a Holstein/Jersey Cross Steer Calf who found his namesake in his tail. Tippy is named for the white tip he has on his tail. Dustin Branch, 6, is the proud owner of Tippy, along with his mom and older brother, as well as a few other calves. Tippy is the smallest of all the calves and maybe that's why he is Dustin's favorite. Dustin likes going out to bottle feed him, even though he has learned that once the milk bottle runs dry it's time to leave in a hurry because Tippy will be after you for more to eat! Tippy also likes to be fed pellets for treats. You would think most little boys would want dogs at six years old but Dustin prefers the calves over the family dog. Dustin is the son of Margaret Branch of Altha and Adam Branch of Grand Ridge.

Settlement selling guineas for your garden

The Panhandle Pioneer Settlement is selling domesticated guineas at $3 each for a young keet or 50 cents for each egg.

Guinea fowl have a long history of domestication, mainly involving the Helmeted Guinea fowl; in the UK they were usually known as "gleanies". The young (called "keets") are very small at birth. They eat lice, worms, ants, spiders, weed seeds, and ticks while on range, or they can also eat chicken layer crumbles (one kind of commercial bird feed) while housed in a coop. When old enough to free range, the adult guinea diet consist of 90% bugs and weed seeds.

They will walk through flower beds and pick out those pesky bugs without harming a leaf. They always return to the roost in the evening.

They are fun to watch and are an asset to any garden.

GARDENING

Seeing spots on crapemyrtle may mean a disease problem

As the heat and humidity increases in Northwest Florida, expect to see some diseases appear in the landscape. One problem that is popping up on crapemyrtles is Cercospora leaf spot. While not a deadly problem, it can greatly detract from the beauty of crapemyrtles.

The initial symptom on crapemyrtles is the appearance of tan to dark brown spots randomly scattered on yellow to red discolored leaves. The spots develop first on the lower leaves and progress upward in the canopy. Spots will continue to develop from mid-summer through fall. The color change is due to the production of a toxin by the fungal pathogen.

Infected leaves will drop prematurely and serve as a source to spread the pathogen causing further disease development. As the summer progresses, many infected trees will have dropped all but the newest leaves.

Older varieties of crapemyrtles are more susceptible to this disease than newer varieties. The crapemyrtle varieties most tolerant to Cercospora leaf spot are Natchez, Muskogee, Basham's Party Pink, Sioux and Tonto.

Long term, this disease is not detrimental to a tree, although it will slow down growth on younger plants. Plants growing in conditions that are

by Theresa Friday,
Horticulture Extension Agent,
Santa Rosa County

not ideal will be more affected by the leaf spot disease.

The best control is selecting a planting site with good air circulation so that the foliage will dry quickly. Thinning interior branches will also promote air flow.

The use of fungicides to control this disease has not been very effective because they would have to be applied repeatedly on a regular basis throughout the growing season. If used, fungicide applications should be started in early summer when the spots are first noticed and continued at one to two week intervals when the weather is warm and wet. Consult your local Extension office for fungicide recommendations.

As always, be sure to read and follow all label directions. Fungicides can be classified by how they work on the fungus or how they work on the plant. Products that work in a similar way on fungi have the same mode of action (also referred to as chemical family or class).

Contact fungicides are sprayed onto plants and act as a protective barrier from pathogen infection. They prevent infections from occurring when applied before symptoms are visible, but infections that have already occurred will continue to develop.

Systemic fungicides move into the plant, but movement inside the plant is limited. The vast majority of fungicides only move upward in the plant vasculature, but not down. Some fungicides only move locally into the plant part treated. Some systemic products exhibit curative action, which means the disease is stopped during its development. For managing fungicide resistance, products with different modes of action should be used in rotations.

Since this disease will result in early defoliation or the loss of leaves, it is critical to practice good sanitation. Raking and destroying fallen leaves should be a routine practice in order to prevent the spread of the disease.

Landmark Park celebrates national watermelon month

DOTHAN - On Saturday, July 23, at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., Landmark Park will celebrate national watermelon month with a watermelon harvest and sampling. This program is part of the monthly farm programs held at the park on the fourth Saturday of every month.

Watermelons are an excellent source of vitamins A, B6, fiber and potassium and the most consumed melon in the United States. Over 1200 varieties of watermelons are grown across the world. Landmark Park will harvest and sample varieties such as Moon and Stars, Black Diamond, Charleston Gray, Crimson Sweet and Jubilee.

These farm programs will be offered on the fourth Saturday of every month except October and December. Other tentative topics for the year include syrup cooking, stripping fodder, blacksmithing, soap making, hearth cooking, clothes washing, chair caning and peanut stacking.

These programs are free with paid gate admission, which is $4 for adults and $3 for kids. The Farm Programs are co-sponsored by the Alabama Agricultural Museum.

Landmark Park, home of the Alabama Agricultural Museum, is a 135-acre historical and natural science park located on U.S. Highway 431 North in Dothan, AL. For more information, contact the park at (334) 794-3452.

Talented high school students to receive specialized STEM education

CHIPLEY — The Florida Department of Education (FDOE) has awarded $3.6 million dollars of “Race to the Top” funds over the next three years to the Panhandle Area Educational Consortium (PAEC) for the creation and implementation of a special program for gifted and talented students in 14 Northwest Florida school districts as well as six other small and rural school districts in south Florida in the Heartland Educational Consortium (HEC).

for Curriculum, Instruction and Student Services with FDOE made the announcement during closing ceremonies at the 44th Annual PAEC/FloridaLearns Foundation Inc. Leadership Conference at the Bay Point Marriot on Panama City Beach.

“We are very pleased and excited to have earned this competitive award through the hard work and creative efforts of our school districts and staff.

More importantly, it is a great opportunity for our small, rural districts and their gifted and talented students”, said Patrick L. McDaniel, Executive Director for PAEC.

The FDOE has made (STEM) Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math education one of its top priorities for providing educational funding through the Race to the Top initiative.

The multi-faceted project will involve STEM-related higher education faculty, business and industry and workforce development systems. Through these partnerships, students will engage in authentic STEM research experiences and leadership development. Curriculum is designed to positively impact perceptions, knowledge, and Skills in STEM.

According to the 2010 Florida Council of 100 report, Closing the Gap, within a decade nearly 9 out of 10 new jobs will require education beyond a high school diploma and credentials in a (STEM) Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math) discipline.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Week of July 31 ~ Aug 6

ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20

Aries, social interaction will put a smile on your face. This week you will find you spend a lot of time with friends simply enjoying their company.

TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21

Taurus, if you question too many things, you will never get anything accomplished. Ambivalence leaves you feeling paralyzed. It's time to make a move.

GEMINI - May 22/Jun 21

Gemini, recent admissions by someone close to you leaves you wondering if this person has ulterior motives. Take things at face value and don't be so suspicious.

CANCER - Jun 22/Jul 22

Cancer, planning a birthday bash for a loved one takes on new meaning. You're ready to pull out all the stops and, if done right, this party has the makings of a night to remember.

LEO - Jul 23/Aug 23

Leo, regardless of what you believe, the world will keep turning if you don't have ultimate control of everything. Therefore, lighten up and share the workload.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

Monetary issues come to the forefront, Virgo. Without some assistance, your accounts could dip much lower than you would like. Take action immediately.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Libra, it's time to focus on personal issues that need to be resolved. Once you tackle these things, you will have more free time to devote to guilty pleasures.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Scorpio, you and your spouse or partner don't see eye-to-eye on many things. This can lead to misunderstandings that need to be resolved. Exercise a little patience.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

Sagittarius, a relationship that you thought might be long-term has ended prematurely. Don't dwell on what might have been; move on to greener pastures this week.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

Capricorn, matters of the heart need to be temporarily set aside because you have other pressing requirements. Just don't neglect family life for too long.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

Aquarius, sometimes you have to lighten up, otherwise people may not want to spend time with you. Now is the time to let loose and enjoy yourself. Try to make new friends.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20

Don't get too lost in your own thoughts this week, Pisces. You need to be focused to handle a few tasks at hand.

Take the itch out of summer

by Ginny Hinton, UF/IFAS Family & Consumer Sciences Extension Agent for Santa Rosa County

It's summertime, and the livin' is itchy - especially if you spend time outside during dusk or dawn. The best ways to avoid mosquito bites are to stay out of mosquito-infested areas, wear protective clothes, and use insect repellent.

According to the EPA, correct use of products containing DEET is not a health concern, while "natural" repellents may not always be safe alternatives, especially if used in high concentrations.

Best practice is to always follow the label instructions and use only repellents approved by the EPA. Also avoid repellents combined with sunscreens. Because sunscreens are designed to be used frequently and liberally, too much repellent may be applied even when the product is used as directed. It's best to apply sunscreen first, then add repellent to be sure each product works correctly.

Some popular ways to prevent mosquito bites are surprisingly ineffective.

For example, there is no evidence that any sound-emitting devices will repel mosquitoes. There is also no scientific evidence to back eating garlic, onions, or other foods to make you less attractive to mosquitoes.

A mosquito's attraction is based on a complex interaction of both chemical and visual signals, so certain foods may work to keep the insects away from one person but not another.

Bug zappers don't work well either. Studies show that they don't reduce the number of mosquitoes and they kill other bugs, like moths and beetles, more than they kill mosquitoes.

The bottom line is, if you don't want to feel the itch, take steps to avoid mosquitoes.

- Stay inside during dusk and dawn and avoid places that are calm, shady and humid.

- The more skin you cover, the fewer bites you'll get.

- Dump out sources of standing water near your house and use an EPA-approved repellent according to the label directions.

FWC's 16th officers class graduates 20 on July 15

"Patrol, protect, preserve." The motto for the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission's (FWC) Division of Law Enforcement was on the minds of 20 new officers Friday, July 15 when they graduated as the FWC's 16th officer class.

At a ceremony at the Florida Public Safety Institute, near Tallahassee, they pledged their efforts to patrol Florida's lands and waters and protect and preserve its people and resources.

Col. Jim Brown, director of the FWC's Division of Law Enforcement, mentioned how FWC officers are the first point of contact most people have with the agency.

"This privilege carries great responsibility," Brown said. "As they interact with the public, I know these new officers will uphold our values: integrity, professionalism, dedication and adaptability."

As FWC officers, they will patrol Florida's lands – nearly 54,000 square miles of it – as well as Florida's nearly 6,000 square miles of water.

"These officers will be protecting the 'Fishing Capital of the World' and one of the largest public hunting systems in the country," said FWC Chairman Kathy Barco, the guest speaker at the ceremony.

The new officers began their training in January.

The beginning part of each FWC academy teaches recruits basic law enforcement information and skills.

"During the final eight weeks of each academy, we focus on the unique information and skills it takes to be an FWC officer," said Maj. Mark Warren, head of the FWC's training section.

The specialized training involves firearms proficiency, wildlife identification, vessel operation, defensive tactics, all-terrain vehicle operation, detection for boating and driving under the influence and a focus on state and federal wildlife and fisheries laws.

The graduates will now spend three months with a field-training officer and are assigned as follows:

- *Rafael Almagro – Miami-Dade
- *Paul Godward, II – Palm Beach
- *Casey Anderson – Levy
- *Matthew Gore – Franklin
- *Christian Ariza – Broward
- *Brandon Lewis – Broward
- *Anna Baker – Brevard
- *Serdar Mert – Miami-Dade
- *Caralyn Cain – Duval
- *Brian Norris – Charlotte
- *Nick Carman – Broward
- *George Reynaud – Miami-Dade
- *Alexander Diaz – Miami-Dade
- *Stuart Spoede – Lee
- *Richard Doricchi – Martin
- *Austin Warne – Broward
- *Brian Ferguson – Pinellas
- *Daniel Willman – Brevard
- *Jordan Fuscaldo – Brevard
- *Aaron Wise – Hillsborough
