Teens arrested for break-ins PAIR CHARGED WITH ROBBING JACKSON COUNTY HOMES

by Teresa Eubanks, Journal Editor

Two Gadsden County teens linked to numerous area break-ins, including eight in Liberty County, two in Calhoun County, six in Jackson County (along with one attempt) and two in Gadsden County, were arrested last week.

Xavier Darcus Parks, 18, and Keldrick Wilson, 17, who live in the Sawdust Community, are each charged with one count of armed burglary, one count of burglary and two counts of grand theft, according to Major Donnie Branch of the Jackson County Sheriff's Office. He confirmed Tuesday that Wilson, who is a minor but has been charged as an adult, was released on $50,000 bond Monday.

Additional charges are expected against the two in Jackson County as well as surrounding counties, Branch said.

XAVIER PARKS KELDRICK WILSON

Pair believed responsible for 8 break-ins in Liberty Co. and 2 in Calhoun Co.

Parks and Wilson's arrest was a combination of luck and hard work, according to Capt. Michael Bryant of the Calhoun County Sheriff's Office. "We had been working on it for two weeks and started concentrating on the vehicle," he said. "We created our own luck by being there, working and beating the bushes."

For the two young suspects, it was a matter of being in the wrong place at the wrong time last week when they stopped at a Chattahoochee convenience store where five lawmen had gathered to discuss the investigation.

Bryant and Investigator Todd Wheatley of the Liberty County Sheriff's Office pulled up alongside a second unmarked vehicle with Investigator Mark Mallory of the Calhoun County Sheriff's Office and Jackson County Investigator Jason McAlpin around 10:30 a.m. Feb. 15. They parked driver's window-to-driver's window as they discussed the case. Gadsden County Investigator Kevin Godwin pulled up nearby, walked over and stood between the vehicles as the men talked.

When a car pulled up at the front door of the BP on Hwy. 90, someone in the group commented, "There's our suspect vehicle there." Bryant said they didn't take the comment seriously at first but everyone looked at the dark green four-door Honda that matched reports of the car seen near homes that were robbed.

"What caught our eye was that he pulled up at an angle, right to the front door," said Bryant. The driver kicked his door open and when he stepped outside, they realized he matched the description given the previous day by Lamar Holland in Bristol. He was also wearing the same white pullover Holland had told them about.

Branch said the car was registered to one of the suspect's aunts.

A news release from the Liberty County Sheriff's Office described the arrest:

Investigators identified themselves as they approached the vehicle. The driver tried to pull out but was blocked by Sneads Police Chief Burt McAlpin. As the men made contact with suspects Parks and Wilson, they noticed two handguns at the feet of the passenger. A box filled with jewelry and some cash was on the console.

Shoe soles worn by both suspects were examined at the scene and found to match impressions taken at the crime scenes. Treads from the car's mismatched tires matched up with photos of tire tracks at homes in several counties where break-ins were reported.

Two break-ins had taken place in Jackson County earlier that morning, according to Branch, who said a gun found in the car was identified as being taken from one of those burglaries that morning.

Sanctuary founder Betsy Knight dies at 73, leaving behind a legacy of love for wildlife

by Teresa Eubanks, Journal Editor

"Take it to Betsy."

That's what was said when injured and abandoned animals were found in this part of the Florida Panhandle for years and that's how many of us first met Betsy Knight.

Baby birds who had taken a tumble out of their nest, orphaned fawns, a desecrated skunk that had once been someone's pet and displaced otters got a second chance when they were brought to her. There were owls, hawks, eagles, wolves, coyotes, a bobcat and even vultures.

Her goal was always to help them find their way back into the wild. Many of those who couldn't return to the woods often became part of Knight's educational program, visiting schools, malls and public events. Others with injuries that would limit their chances for survival stayed on at the Big Bend Wildlife Sanctuary she founded in 1988, where a rotating group of volunteers took turns under her tutelage learning to work with wildlife.

Last week, after dealing with several problems including her recent hospitalization for pneumonia, the family learned she had an aggressive form of cancer. Betsy died Feb. 17.

The animals have lost a friend but Betsy left behind a legacy: The volunteers she taught to care for injured animals and the students who learned to appreciate wildlife through their contact with her.

Betsy Knight is shown with one of the many cubs she raised and returned to the wild.

ARREST REPORTS

compiled by Journal Editor Teresa Eubanks

Domestic battery arrest made after man accused of stomping girlfriend

A report of an altercation in the Shelton's Corner Community resulted in the arrest of a 40-year-old man on domestic battery charges.

Mark McGill was taken into custody after a deputy arrived at the SR 73 home he shares with his girlfriend last Thursday.

MARK MCGILL

The victim reported they began arguing after she awakened him and accused him of lying to her about his work plans. She said he forced her down on the bed and she bit his arm to get him to release her. When she got free and stood up, she said he forced her to the floor and began stomping on her back. She stated that she remembers hearing him count aloud each time he kicked her, which she said was approximately 10 times. He then stopped and left the residence.

Several marks on her back, which she said were the result of their altercation, were photographed.

A deputy found McGill outside and took him into custody. In a taped statement taken later at the jail, McGill said his girlfriend awakened him by biting him on the leg. He said he pushed her to the floor and held her down with his knees until he could calm her down. He stated that once she became calm, he gathered his belongings and left.

Man charged with battery of pregnant girlfriend

A 24-year-old Clarksville man was arrested on a felony battery charge after his live-in girlfriend, who is pregnant, said that he attacked her Feb. 10.

According to the arrest report from the Calhoun County Sheriff's Office, the young woman said David Allen Attaway was upset over finances and had been drinking when he came home Friday.

DAVID ATTAWAY

She was in the shower when she heard him forcefully push open the bathroom door. He reached in the shower, grabbed her by the wrist and pulled her out, she said. When she got away from Attaway, he went outside and she locked the door.

She told deputies he then kicked in the front door.

Attaway had left the scene by the time deputies arrived and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

After being booked into the county jail Feb. 16, he was given a conditional release.

Blountstown man breaks patrol car window, escapes after arrest for methamphetamine

A Blountstown man arrested on drug charges added three more offenses to his case when he broke a patrol car window with his head, slid out while still in handcuffs and led a deputy on a chase before he was arrested a second time, according to a report from the Calhoun County Sheriff's Office.

Christopher Johnson, 28, was charged with possession of methamphetamine, possession of drug paraphernalia and tampering with evidence. His reaction to being taken into custody led to additional charges of resisting arrest without violence, criminal mischief and escape.

Johnson was home Friday night when the Calhoun-Liberty Drug Task Force served a search warrant at 16548 NE Clemons Road. When presented with the search warrant, Johnson became belligerent and began cursing at the Task Force members. When told they were there in reference to information that methamphetamine was being cooked and sold from the site, Johnson replied, "I haven't cooked dope since the last time I got out of jail with y'all." Johnson was a s recently arrested for trafficking in methamphetamine by the Calhoun County Sheriff's Office and was out on bond.

As they entered the residence, Johnson was seen "pushing an unknown object into his pocket" according to Lt. Mark Mallory of the Blountstown Police Department and was secured in handcuffs.

When the search began, Lt. Tim Partridge saw Johnson take a plastic container from his pocket and start dumping the contents. Johnson was ordered to stop but continued to dispose of the material - which field-tested positive as methamphetamine - and pulled away when Partridge tried to stop him. Johnson was put on the floor and the container was seized.

Johnson - with his hands still cuffed behind his back - was taken outside and put in the back seat of a patrol car. After the search of the home resumed, Partridge saw Johnson ram his head into the window of the patrol vehicle, break the glass and slide out through the

Johnson was caught by Calhoun County Sheriff's Deputy Scotty Norris as he ran south for 150 yards and jumped five sections of fencing. Johnson declined medical attention. The arrest report indicated he had only minor scratches.

The search of the home resumed and several common household items used to make methamphetamine were found including a hot plate, charcoal lighter fluid and coffee filters, along with an eye dropper that held acid. A piece of burned plastic that appeared to have been used as a meth pipe and a cut drinking straw that held methamphetamine residue were discovered hidden in a cigarette pack that had been left on the bed.

A plastic bottle that appeared to have been used as a reaction vessel to make meth was found in a burn pile outside.

Evidence at the scene suggested meth was being made at the home but investigators did not find enough evidence to support a new charge of manufacturing methamphetamine.

Johnson is being held on $12,000 bond.

Remembering sanctuary founder Betsy Knight

by Teresa Eubanks,
Journal Editor

“It was just work, work, work all the time but I enjoyed it. I’m glad I did it,” said Babs Moran of Bristol about her experiences volunteering with Betsy Knight. Moran and her husband, Jack, helped establish Big Bend Wildlife Sanctuary in 1988.

“We didn’t make a dime,” she said. Although the plan was to operate as a non-profit group, she jokes, “You could say we were a loss-profit organization.”

Their biggest asset was the community. When there was a need, they went looking for help. When food ran low, local farmers and landowners were asked for their leftovers. “Willard Smith let us come and pick all the grapes we could get and we pulled vines out of the trees for the deer to eat,” Moran said. Other times, a Marianna grocery store allowed them to collect discarded fruit from their bins before the garbage was picked up.

She recalls when a buzzard egg that came into their possession hatched. They had hoped to raise it and place it with other buzzards when it was big enough. Unfortunately, the creature imprinted on humans. “It didn’t know it was a buzzard,” Moran said.

One day several buzzards descended on a deer carcass at the sanctuary. The women realized this was their chance to put the little guy with his own kind. “Betsy brought him over. He sat on a post and watched the other buzzards tear at the deer. Then he turned around and walked away,” she said. He flew up and settled atop a light post. Betsy called a friend and a bucket truck was brought in to help her retrieve the young buzzard. “You just had to hug him and bring him down,” said Moran. “There’s no way that vulture was going to join the others and take off with them.”

Walking through the cages - first set up at Betsy’s home in Blountstown, and later re-established at a new property in the Shelton’s Corner area - often gave visitors their first close-up experience with animals they had only seen at a distance. Inside, Betsy harbored stacks of crates filled with creatures that needed more care. Her family - former husband Phillip and their four children - had to work around the ever-growing animal population that filled their home and their yard.

“It was nice when she had volunteers she could rely on, but if they weren’t there, she did it anyway,” said Moran. “She was absolutely devoted.”

Betsy is perhaps best known for her work with Florida black bears and her efforts to return them to their natural environment.

She bottle fed numerous cubs until they grew up enough to forage for themselves and sparred with wildlife officials until convincing them it could be done. “Nobody said no to Betsy,” said Terry Morse, “and if they did, it only made her will more powerful to make them understand why they were going to do what she had asked.”

“Working with the Florida Black Bear was a unique experience,” said Morse, who along with her husband, John, began volunteering with Betsy around 2007. “I helped her with the last three bears that came in.”

Betsy became the state’s first certified bear rehabilitation specialist and took in 45 bear cubs over the years. “She would only take bears if she could rehabilitate them and return them to the wild,” said Morse. “She did not support turning the animals over to circuses or institutions where they had to live in cages,” she said.

“We raised the bears with minimal contact with people,” she explained. “We fed them natural diets. Betsy was the pioneer who started rehabbing and releasing bears back into the woods.”

Forty-three of the black bears she cared were returned to the forest. “Only two of those couldn’t survive on their own and were taken to a wildlife sanctuary in Citra, Florida,” according to Morse.

“She was a wildlife rehabber before the permitting process ever took place,” said Barbara A. Eells of St. Joe Beach, who began volunteering with Betsy in 1990 or 1991. “She said she started with a little mockingbird out of her house in Blountstown and later became incorporated as Big Bend Wildlife Sanctuary.”

Eells invited Betsy to give a program at the former Highland Elementary, where she was teaching at the time. She assisted Betsy that day with the animals and realized, “I want to do this.”

She and a friend, Paula Boone, eventually became certified to work with wildlife. At that time, they were required to give 1,000 hours of volunteer service before they could get permitted to work with migratory birds. Nowadays, “You can just take an online test, gets some letters of recommendation and get permitted,” she laughs. But she wouldn’t trade the experience for anything although her jobs included cleaning out cages and the ghastly task of preparing crickets to be fed to the smaller birds. “We had to pull off the heads, wings and legs and soak them in vitamins,” she said, admitting that she apologized to them as she did it. They later learned there were other ways to prepare food for the birds and suggested a change. “Betsy was very receptive to the things we learned, too,” she said.

“I appreciated the enthusiasm and the love Betsy had for wildlife,” said Eells. “Through her, we learned to love wildlife in a different way than most people do. Each little soul has a personality. That was the one thing that astonished us.”

She said Betsy taught her perseverance, patience and the hard truth that while you can’t save everything, you can try to do your best.

She recalls when Betsy got a special permit to keep two eagles in 1993. Olah and Agena became the centerpiece of her educational program. “Eagles are now considered protected but when Betsy started with them, they were endangered,” Eells said.

After 9/11, Eells said there was a real difference in the way people reacted to the eagles. She remembers a time they set up at Nature’s Gallery in St. Andrews State Park with the big birds and groups came off the buses to file through.

“The eagle was sitting there; Betsy was holding it. People came in the tent and were quiet. They just stood back and looked at that eagle, who was so majestic. It was such a moving patriotic scene. It gives me chills just to talk about it,” she said.

Betsy’s eagle pair was relocated to the new eagle enclosure at E.O. Wilson’s Biophilia Center in Freeport. A dedication program was held last November and a plaque honoring Betsy was unveiled.

It reads: This enclosure is dedicated to Betsy Knight as it houses Olah and Agena, a mated pair of eagles who were under her care. Betsy Knight devotes her life to rehabilitating wildlife at Big Bend Wildlife Sanctuary.

Betsy’s first cousin and close friend, Nancy Radebaugh Keane of Orlando, recalls, “From day one, Betsy loved the woods and animals.” She remembered a time she met Betsy and her son, Clay, for lunch in Tallahassee years ago. “She brought a huge album with her. I expected children’s photos, but it was all her wild animals!” she said.

It was always fun to visit Betsy. “You never knew what would walk across the floor. The animals were part of her family.”

She added, “I loved her and it is hard to imagine a world without Betsy.”

Three vehicles collide in SR 20 accident at Bristol intersection

A three-vehicle collision sent four of the five people involved to area hospitals last week, according to a report from FHP Trooper Jason King.

A 2000 Buick LaSabre, driven by Acquinonette Latresa Robinson, 34, of Blountstown, was westbound in the outside lane of SR 20 in Bristol around 10:34 a.m. Feb. 15 when she hit the back of a 2001 Dodge pickup traveling ahead of her.

Robinson was unaware that the pickup, driven by Edna Theresa Kever, 49, of Bristol, was slowing down to make a right turn into the gas island at the Chevron Station at the red light. When she realized what was happening, Robinson tried to steer to the left but was unable to avoid a collision.

The right front of the car hit the left rear of the truck as it was turning, forcing the pickup into the parking lot of the business where it ran into the right side and front of a 2001 Chevrolet Impala.

Robinson and her front seat passenger, Blake Torano, 46, of Bristol, had non-incapacitating injuries. Both were transported to the emergency room of Calhoun-Liberty Hospital by Calhoun EMS.

Kever's injuries were listed as incapacitating and she was transported to Bay Medical Center by Liberty EMS. Her passenger, Namun A. McClellan, 28, of Bristol, was taken to the same hospital with possible injuries.

Gary Douglas O'Neal, 57, of Hosford was taken to the Calhoun-Liberty Hospital emergency room by Liberty EMS with non-incapacitating injuries. The car he was driving was registered to the Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ) in Tallahassee.

Damages to the pickup and the DJJ car were estimated at $3,000. Damages to Robinson's Buick were said to be around $6,000.

Robinson was cited for careless driving.

Heavy hand of government

The role of government in American society is debated ad nauseam on a daily basis. A cornerstone of Republican ideology is that big government is bad. Libertarians are more harsh in their assessment of government's role in society.

Libertarians like presidential candidate Ron Paul would take America back to the 1780s prior to the advent of the Constitution when the Articles of Confederation governed the 13 new states. Under a Ron Paul administration, there would be a severely neutered central government, and as with the 13 states during the Articles of Confederation era, the 50 states would be "doing their own thing."

Republicans say they don't like big government, but what that means is that they don't like someone else's piece of the government. The "haves" in America don't like that part of government that provides welfare to the "have nots."

The government, meaning the active military and retirees, provide the cash flow for a large segment of the local economy in the county in which I live. But as the lyrics of the song goes, "There is trouble right here in River City."

As part of the plan to trim the federal budget, the Air Force is taking a budget haircut like all government agencies. I worked in the Pentagon as a planner. As planners, our task was to attempt to make the Air Force operate more efficiently and at a reduced cost. One way to achieve cost savings is to combine and consolidate common functions.

Eglin AFB, located in my county, is one of the Air Force's weapons development and testing sites. Suspicions are that the Air Force would close Eglin and move all the weapons development and test functions to Edwards AFB in California.

At the Pentagon level, consolidating aircraft and weapons testing at one site makes sense. However, to the local "movers and shakers," closing Eglin would be a disaster for the local community. Florida has created a task force to counter any closing of Eglin by the Pentagon.

I think that Florida is doing the right thing in its effort to protect a large chunk of the local economy. But it would be nice if people, primarily Republicans, would stop denigrating the government all the while they are lobbying to protect their part of government, the part that feeds them.

The heavy hand of government is most obvious in the personal lives of Americans, especially women. Preventing abortions is the red meat issue for social conservatives. They gnaw on it like a yard dog. They carry it around, bury it, then dig it up and gnaw some

COX'S CORNER

Now that I'm reluctantly in the senior citizen category, I've learned that there are some things that can't be resolved to the satisfaction of one and all. Abortion is one of those issues that is best left alone. Abortion is a very personal, private matter. A woman has the right to decide what to do with her body. Not me, not politicians and not the guy down the street.

But politicians don't get it, particularly in Virginia. The Richmond Times-Dispatch reports that the Virginia House and Senate have both passed a state law that decrees that a woman seeking an abortion must have a government ordered "transvaginal ultrasound" procedure. The requirement for this invasive procedure is not from a medical doctor, but from the government of Virginia. To make matters worse, Governor McDonnell of Virginia, darling of the social conservatives and a potential Republican Vice Presidential candidate, said he will sign this absurd law.

American women are under assault by social conservatives, and women have every right to be afraid. The following quote says it best.

"It is a truism that almost any sect, cult, or religion will legislate its creed into law if it acquires the political power to do so." —Robert A. Heinlein, science-fiction author (1907-1988)

The heavy hand of government is at work throughout the land. In Michigan, the Republican legislature passed a law that permits the governor to arbitrarily replace elected officials in counties, cities and school boards.

The governor has booted so many elected officials more than 50% of the black population of Michigan is now under control of a government administrator.

Republican governors and legislatures in Arizona, Wisconsin, Ohio, Indiana and Florida have bashed unions and public workers.

Immunity for lawmakers is the latest ploy by the Florida legislature to scam the citizens of Florida. A House bill would provide absolute immunity from having to testify in lawsuits. Lawmakers wouldn't have to provide their documents to the courts.

Governor Scott doesn't want to be left out of the power grab. Scott wants more authority over regional workforce boards; more authority over judicial nominating commissions and specific power over state agencies directors who report directly to Governor Scott.

When Republicans and conservatives talk about the evil of big government, they aren't talking about their slice of big government.

St. Joe lease to allow shipbuilding expansion from the front page

Shipbuilding Group the manufacturing contracts that necessitate our expansion to Port St. Joe," said Brian D'Isernia, President of Eastern Shipbuilding Group. "Eastern Shipbuilding Group remains committed to manufacturing the highest quality vessels our customers demand in a global market. I appreciate the assistance of Gulf County Commissioner Warren Yeager and Port Authority Chairman Joanna White whose tireless efforts led to our expansion to Gulf County."

Governor Rick Scott added, "Congratulations to Eastern Shipbuilding Group and The St. Joe Company on their combined efforts and confidence in taking this bold step which solidifies new opportunities for our State's economy, and specifically, our citizens across the Panhandle. Efforts like this are part of the success we are seeing in Florida to create a business climate that creates jobs, and I commend Eastern Shipbuilding's commitment to our great State."

"Eastern Shipbuilding's expansion to Port St. Joe is great news for Florida," said Senator Bill Nelson.

"Eastern Shipbuilding's growth is continued evidence of the growth of our State's diverse economy," stated State Representative Marti Coley. "Brian D'Isernia's vision and leadership for Eastern Shipbuilding will create opportunities for Eastern's suppliers and vendors to grow their workforce as well. The expansion of Eastern Shipbuilding Group has the potential to put a lot of people back to work."

"The community has been determined to create jobs and this achievement enables us to build a critical mass of industrial suppliers and vendors with an expanded and experienced labor force who can help attract other industrial tenants to our Port," commented State Representative Jimmy Patronis. "This primes the pump for the growth of Eastern Shipbuilding and other potential Port tenants from around the world. We are fortunate that our available facilities in Port St. Joe were a perfect fit for a company of the magnitude and stature of Eastern Shipbuilding Group."

State Senator Bill Montford said, "This is wonderful news for the people of Gulf County and all of North Florida. This is a very important step in the rebuilding of the economy, in our area, that will pay dividends for many years to come. It is an excellent example of interested parties coming together for the purpose of doing what is practical and right."

"For over 30 years, Eastern Shipbuilding Group has produced specialized vessels for their customers around the world," commented Congressman Steve Southerland. "There is no finer operation or harder working group of men and women than those at Eastern Shipbuilding Group. Congratulations to Gulf County on this significant achievement which brings the old mill site back to life and with it, the spirit of many residents who have longed for activity such as this."

Gulf County Commission Chairman Warren Yeager stated, "The significance of this announcement cannot be overstated for the future of our county and the aspirations of generations of local residents who are excited to put their pride and reputation into specialized vessels that will travel around the world. This excites every man, woman and child in our county. We are all thankful for the blessings this announcement represents."

"The expansion of Eastern Shipbuilding Group into Port St. Joe has the potential to provide the opportunity for many people to get back to work," stated Mayor Mel Magidson of Port St. Joe. "We have weathered some difficult economic storms over time and this gives us a platform to stabilize our economy and begin attracting other businesses. On behalf of the City Commission and the citizens of Port St. Joe, I cannot express enough appreciation to Eastern Shipbuilding Group and Brian D'Isernia for believing in Port St. Joe, for investing in our community and for enabling us to once again see a bright future."

St. Joe has been working with the Port St. Joe Port Authority to reposition this area for port-related industrial and commercial activities. St. Joe's former paper mill site is approximately 180 acres in size and offers approximately 2,000 linear feet of bulkhead, which has the potential to be expanded. The Port and Eastern Shipbuilding Group's Port St. Joe facility is also adjacent to a federally-authorized turning basin and navigational channel.

St. Joe also owns about 4,700 acres of undeveloped land adjacent to the site, with more than three miles of frontage along the Gulf County Canal, which connects the Gulf of Mexico to Florida's intracoastal waterway. Additionally, Eastern's Port St. Joe facility has access to nearly 80 miles of St. Joe Company-owned railway that links Port St. Joe to other railway systems, connecting to numerous other U.S. cities, including Atlanta, New York and Chicago.

"We are pleased to welcome Eastern Shipbuilding Group to Port St. Joe and Gulf County and see this as a first step to maximizing this region's potential for port-related industrial and commercial activities," says Park Brady, Chief Executive Officer for The St. Joe Company. "With the Governor's commitment to job creation, the expansion of the Panama Canal in 2014 and this area's assets, we will continue working to attract more port-related businesses."

Last month, The St. Joe Company and the Port St. Joe Port Authority executed a Memorandum of Understanding to partner and collaborate on port-related economic development initiatives.

"The day has finally arrived where jobs, good jobs have returned to Gulf County and the alliance between the Port Authority and The St. Joe Company is bearing fruit - it's a win, win for everyone," commented Johanna White, Chairman of the Port St. Joe Port Authority. "We are fortunate that our available facilities in Port St. Joe were a perfect fit for a company of the magnitude and stature of Eastern Shipbuilding Group."

COMMENTARY

What political endorsements can tell us

The endorsement of a political candidate by another politician generally draws a well-deserved yawn from voters. But over the past half-century of savoring and covering American politics, I have learned that an endorsement can tell us something quite important about the individual endorsing as well as about the individual being endorsed.

Permit me to tell you about Mississippi Republican Trent Lott, who in 1988 was the House minority whip while trying to win a close race for the U.S. Senate. That same year, then-Vice President George H.W. Bush was the heavy favorite to win the GOP nomination to succeed the term-limited President Ronald Reagan.

One of Bush's underdog challengers in the primaries was Rep. Jack Kemp of New York. Ordinarily, discretion and self-interest would dictate that an ambitious Senate aspirant (Lott) would either prudently endorse the vice president or remain neutral. Instead, Trent Lott boldly tossed caution to the wind by endorsing his House colleague.

The next year, long after George H.W. Bush had won and had become the 41st president, I had a chat with Lott and told him how I admired his putting personal loyalty ahead of political advantage in endorsing Kemp and inviting the wrath of the vaunted Bush political juggernaut. Sen. Lott answered me bluntly: "Today

BY NATIONALLY
SYNDICATED COLUMNIST
MARK

in Washington, there are two people who remember that I endorsed Jack Kemp -- you and President Bush!"

That same year, Rep. Dick Gephardt, the Missouri Democrat, tried to become the first U.S. House member since James A. Garfield in 1880 to win his party's presidential nomination. Gephardt did in fact win the first-in-the-nation Iowa caucuses and, as a result, became president of Des Moines for a week. But what really impressed me about the Missouri's campaign was the number and diversity of his House colleagues who went to Iowa on his behalf and who stayed to work by running a county campaign headquarters for their friend.

I can remember Reps. Sandy Levin of Michigan, Marvin Leath and Martin Frost of Texas, Mike Synar of Oklahoma, Dan Glickman of Kansas, Butler Derrick of South Carolina, Jim Cooper of Tennessee, Ed Jenkins of Georgia and Bob Wise of West Virginia. There were others. But the willingness of all of them to sleep in unpretentious quarters, eat in marginal hash-houses and put in the long hours a campaign demands spoke volumes about Gephardt and the rare loyalty he inspired. Yes, he lost the nomination fight, but to me, Dick Gephardt was a big 1988 winner.

Which brings us to 2012 and endorsements. Republican Newt Gingrich served 10 terms in the House, where he became speaker after being architect and engineer of the first GOP takeover in 40 years. During his 20 House years, Gingrich served with 489 House Republicans. According to his campaign, a grand total of 10 colleagues have come forward to endorse Gingrich.

For Rick Santorum, the news is just as bleak. During two House terms, he served with 222 Republican members, none of whom has seen fit to endorse him. In two terms in the U.S. Senate, Santorum served with 89 different GOP senators. None has endorsed Santorum.

Mitt Romney, as of this writing, has been endorsed by 63 current House members and 14 current senators, which may or may not tell us something about him or them.

What's that old refrain about "those who know him best"?

PANCAKE SUPPER

BLOUNTSTOWN UNITED METHODIST YOUTH – The Blountstown United Methodist Youth will be hosting a pancake supper at 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 22, in conjunction with the Ash Wednesday Service.

The meal will be served prior to the service in the fellowship hall. Tickets are $5 each and can be purchased at the door.

The congregation invites the community to join them in the sanctuary at 6:30 p.m. for their Ash Wednesday Service. Ash Wednesday is the beginning of Lent, the forty days, not counting Sundays, preceding Easter.

Lent commemorates Jesus' temptation and fast prior to the Cross. Traditionally God's people have used ashes as a sign of penitence and mourning, and as a purification offering.

A person's journey through Lent should bring us closer to God's Will for their daily lives.

Blountstown UMC youth will begin serving the fluffy pancakes at 5:30 p.m. followed by a meaningful Ash Wednesday Service in the sanctuary at 6:30 p.m.

The church is located on SR 20, across from Subway.

ASK

ALMANAC

Do you know any old-time cures for rheumatism?

-N. C., Kenosha, WI

We know many so-called remedies, but we wouldn't stand behind them for accuracy or even safety. Poplar tree leaf buds are mentioned in some biblical references as the ingredients for a balm made with olive oil.

Scientists today recognize the poplar bud for its chemical compounds that mimic aspirin, but it seems unlikely that a liniment of those chemicals would have the same desired effects.

To many rheumatism sufferers, a spell of warm, clear weather is the best remedy for those aches and pains that seem to act up when the barometer is showing a storm on the horizon.

Ginger root or horseradish might be made into a heat-producing poultice. Massage can be an effective treatment for rheumatism, and various massage oils were recommended by the old-timers, using almost any fragrant herb commonly available.

Rosemary, lavender, marjoram, sage, and various mints might be used, or oil of almonds. Bag balm and other barnyard remedies used as liniments for the livestock were sometimes used for both man and beast.

Again, we recommend none, though the herbal rubs and ointments are mostly harmless, if not particularly effective.

Is it true that Laura Ingalls Wilder's books were once banned in this country?

-R. W., Las Cruces, NM

No, they weren't actually banned, but one of the books in her "Little House" series was chaldefects, chances are that it is safe and sound.

Compared to the thicker rope hammocks with the wooden stretcher bars that we're more familiar with in New England, the Yucatán hammocks do appear delicate, but you'll notice that the fine cotton threads are tightly woven in an intricate lacework that is amazingly strong.

History reports that early Mayans wove hammocks from the bark of the hamack tree. Hammocks were also used in the Bahamas, according to Christopher Columbus, and sailors aboard ships commonly used them.

To test your hammock for strength, try lying crosswise on the hammock and see if the material sags in the middle at all. It should support you in an almost flat position, with your legs and your head at about even distance from the ground.

Next, lie in your hammock in the conventional way, but with your head very near to one end. You should be in an almost upright position, with your legs more or less parallel to the ground. If these two positions are workable, you should be able to twist and turn and experiment with various postures in your hammock.

Because the hammocks have no stretcher bar to keep them open, they take a little getting used to, but you're unlikely to fall out of them because they tend to wrap themselves around you quite snugly.

In our experience, the only real danger with the Yucatán hammocks is that if they are exposed to strong sunlight for several years, the fibers may yield to the elements of the weather and gradually lose their strength.

In this case, you may have rips and tears in the weave and should replace the hammock. Because Yucatán hammocks are so lightweight, however, it is easy to bring them indoors if you will not be using them for extended periods of time.

This will prolong their natural longevity.

and siblings, the family is frightened by an encounter with Native Americans in the Kansas Indian Territory, where the Ingalls have built a log house.

Unlike one of their neighbors, Mr. Scott, however, whose opinion is that "the only good Indian is a dead Indian," Pa (Charles Ingalls) "figured that Indians would be as peaceable as anybody else if they were let alone. On the other hand, they had been moved west so many times that naturally they hated white folks."

The books in the original series were published between 1932 and 1943; "The Little House on the Prairie" came out in 1935. It was this book in particular that the Michael Landon television series was based upon, but all of the books are still popular with both young and old audiences today.

I received a Yucatán hammock for Christmas, but it looks too flimsy to bear much weight. Is it safe?

-H. A., Lexington, MA

If your hammock is brand-new and shows no obvious structural lenged as being discriminatory toward Native Americans. There was an attempt to keep it from the bookshelves in schools and some libraries, but the effort proved unsuccessful.

Two challenges to the book occurred in 1993, one in Thibodaux, Louisiana, and the other in Sturgis, South Dakota. "The Little House on the Prairie" does contain statements that, if taken out of context, might be misconstrued as derogatory toward Native Americans whom the Ingalls family encountered on their trip westward, but even young children seem to comprehend that the author of the book speaks out against such racial prejudices.

Fond readers of the Laura Ingalls Wilder series that begins with "The Little House in the Big Woods" are often puzzled by the discrimination charge.

Indeed, the books were unusually open-minded about the effects of the early settlement and development of America on Native Americans.

In the stories, based on the true accounts of Laura and her parents

The 1804 [Old] Farmer's Almanac reminded us, "This month is short; then work brisk to get done your stint. Waste nothing in house or barn... 'A diligent hand maketh rich.' Remember that moments make days and days make years..." Mardi Gras, French for "fat Tuesday," is celebrated this week to mark the increasing light of February and March. February 21 is also Shrove Tuesday, a day to confess and obtain absolution for the coming year. Also called Fastnacht, it's the "eve of the fast" in Germany, the last day before Lent begins on Ash Wednesday.

Calhoun County announces FCAT writing test planned Feb. 28 for grades 4, 8 & 10

The Florida Department of Education (FDOE) and the Calhoun County School Board would like to inform you that students will be taking the FCAT Writing Test on Tuesday, Feb.28.

The FCAT Writing Test is administered to Grades 4, 8, and 10 students in one 45-minute session in which students write an essay in response to a prompt.

Students will receive a planning sheet on which to plan his/her writing, but writing responses must be recorded in the writing folder. Students will receive a score on a scale of 1-6 points.

Please be sure to review the following policies before the day of the test:

- Electronic Devices—Students may not have ANY electronic devices during testing, including, but not limited to, cell phones and smart phones, even if they are turned off. We encourage students to leave devices at home or in their lockers on the day of testing.

- Academic Honesty—Your student will be asked to sign a pledge prior to testing that states I agree that I will not give or receive unauthorized help during this test. I understand that giving or receiving such help during the test is cheating and will result in the invalidation of my test results. If any student is caught cheating during the assessment, his or her test will not be scored.

- Leaving Campus—If your student leaves campus before completing the test (for lunch, an appointment, illness, etc.), he or she WILL NOT be allowed to complete the test. If your student does not feel well on the day of testing, it may be best for him or her to wait and be tested on a make-up day. Wednesday and Thursday, February 29 and March 1, are reserved as make-up days for the FCAT Writing Test.

Thank you for supporting your student as he/she prepares for the test.

GARDENING

Read the fine print in Sunday supplement plant & grass ads

They're back! It's that time of year when the advertisements in the Sunday newspaper supplements promise maintenance-free lawns that will survive anywhere.

This last weekend saw the return of an advertisement that promises a lawn-grass that will grow where other grasses won't, that will eliminate endless weeds and weeding, and cuts watering by as much as two-thirds.

According to the advertisement, this seemingly perfect grass is zoysia. And while zoysia is a warm-season grass that is one to consider for southern lawns, it's important to learn more about what is being advertised before sending them your money.

The grass being sold in the Sunday supplement is Amazoy Zoysia. According to the University of Florida, 'Meyer' (Z-52, Amazoy®) has been in use since the 1950s. It is very slow to establish, and Hunting billbugs and nematodes pose serious problems with 'Meyer', limiting its use in Florida. 'Meyer' zoysiagrass performed very poorly in trials conducted at Florida locations and its use in Florida is discouraged.

But while the 'Meyer' variety is not recommended, there are many new improved varieties of zoysia that are worth taking a look at. In recent years, dramatic improvements in zoysiagrass have been made by turfgrass breeders. These improvements include insect resistance, accelerated establishment, and overall performance.

Zoysiagrasses are adapted to a variety of soil types and have good tolerance to shade, salt, and traffic. They provide an extremely dense sod that

by Theresa Friday,
Horticulture Extension Agent,
Santa Rosa County

resists weed invasion, but certain pests can be problematic.

To learn more about the several species and varieties of zoysiagrass used for residential and commercial landscapes, athletic fields, and golf courses read the University of Florida publication entitled "Zoysiagrass for Florida Lawns." It's available online at www.edis.ifas.ufl.edu/lh011. For more information, contact your local Extension Office.

Many people are looking for a miracle grass because they are having problems with their existing turf. As always, we recommend you follow the landscaping principal of "right plant, right place". Evaluate the site to determine why you are having problems. Remember, sometimes the best option is not to replace poor-performing turf with another type of turf, but to consider other options. There are some places in a landscape where turf is not the "right plant."

Improper cultural practices such as low mowing, frequent irrigation and overfertilization can also cause a decline in turfgrass. Know your type of grass and follow recommended cultural practices. Zoysiagrass maintenance is different from that of other Florida lawn grasses. When improper maintenance practices are followed, undesirable results are likely to occur.

This winter has seen dramatic swings in temperatures and this will have an effect on our landscapes. But resist the urge to try miracle cures. It's always wise to read all the fine print in advertisements. And keep in mind the old saying, "if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is!"

Florida Peanut Producers Association seeks National Peanut Board nominees

The Florida Peanut Producers Association seeks eligible peanut producers who are interested in serving on the National Peanut Board. The Association will hold a nominations election to select two nominees for alternate to the National Peanut Board during the meeting on March 8 at the Jackson County Agricultural Complex and Conference Center on Penn Ave. in Marianna. All eligible peanut producers are encouraged to participate. Eligible producers are those who are engaged in the production and sale of peanuts and who own or share the ownership and risk of loss of the crop.

Jeff Pittman of Bascom serves as USDA requires two nominees from each state for the position of alternate. The National Board will submit Florida's slate of nominations to the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, who makes the appointments.

The National Peanut Board encourages inclusion of persons of any race, color, national origin, gender, religion, age, disability, political beliefs, sexual orientation and marital or family status. NPB encourages all persons who qualify as peanut producers to attend the meeting and run for nomination.

The Florida Peanut Producers Association is the state certified check-of-organization for peanuts and represents Florida's peanut farmers in the areas of promotion, research and education.

The National Peanut Board represents all USA peanut farmers and their families. The mission of the Board is to provide USA peanut growers with a receptive and growing market for their peanuts and the information and tools for improved efficiencies.

Liberty's Jimmy Brown selected as 2012 Sunshine State Scholar

Jimmy Brown of Hosford has been selected as a 2012 Sunshine State Scholar from Liberty County.

A program that began as a science and math competition has evolved into an exciting initiative that recognizes each school district's top student in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) and provides opportunities for those scholars to meet with college, university, and industry leaders.

Jimmy traveled to Orlando Feb. 16-17 with his parents and a teacher from his school. He attended a special awards presentation and recruitment fair. He also met with representatives from Florida's public and private colleges and universities.

While in Orlando, the group stayed at the Doubletree Hotel at the entrance to Universal Orlando.

Jimmy Brown was recognized for his award by Dr. Sue Summers at Monday night's School Board meeting.

They also received a one day/two park pass to use at Universal on Friday or Saturday.

Jimmy is the son of Doyal and Beth Brown.

Principal Ronnie Hand presents a certificate recognizing her accomplishment to Leah Caitlyn Stewart with Assistant Principal Debbie Williams.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

TWO ARRESTED continued from the front page

Bryant said a third suspect who had pawned some of the stolen property was identified Monday.

An eyewitness in Liberty County reported seeing the dark green Honda on Joe Chason Circle in Bristol at 12:30 p.m. on Feb. 6, the day that three homes were broken-into, including one on SR 20 in Bristol and two on CR 67. An alarm activated at the last house showed the final burglary happened around 2:23 p.m, according to the Liberty County Sheriff's Office.

According to the news release, evidence indicates that on Feb. 14, Wilson and Parks started in Franklin County and traveled into Liberty County where they hit four homes, two on CR 379 and two on NW CR 12 before pulling up at the Spring Street residence of Lamar Holland in Bristol.

Holland and one of the would-be robbers saw each other through a window and the suspect fled. Holland gave a description of the car and clothing one of the suspects wore. A neighbor noticed the car before it pulled in at Holland's home and described it as a dark green older model Honda Accord with dark-tinted

“What caught our eye was that he pulled up at an angle, right to the front door,” said Capt. Michael Bryant of the Calhoun County Sheriff's Office. The driver kicked his door open and when he stepped outside, they realized he matched the description given the previous day by Lamar Holland in Bristol. He was also wearing the same white pullover Holland had told them about.

Liberty County Sheriff Donnie Conyers credited “outstanding cooperation” among area law enforcement agencies in last week's arrest. “That's what it takes to solve something like this,” he said.

“Not one place had a vehicle parked out front,” said Liberty County Major Steve Swier about homes the pair chose to rob. The break-ins occurred between morning and early afternoon at homes along main roadways, which gave the thieves a quick escape route.

They had their parameters and focused on their targets,” Swier said. In most cases, a door was kicked in and the homes were ransacked with drawers pulled out and the contents dumped on the floor. Mattresses were overturned and containers were emptied in the search for cash and valuables.

Descriptions by Holland and a neighbor, along with other specific details noticed by witnesses in Decatur County, GA made a big difference in the case, said Bryant, who noted, “There's thousands of Hondas registered in Gadsden County.”
