from Opportunity Florida

MARIANNA – The interior of this hollowed-out 30-year-old factory building looks more like a scene from NASA than the sewing operation that originally occupied the facility. Within this abandoned 31,000 sq. ft. building in the Marianna Industrial Park, rows of white and silver colored telecommunication dishes and boxes of related electronic equipment are arranged in neat, tagged, inventoried systems, ready for attachment to existing communication towers throughout the eastern end of the Florida panhandle. High-speed, high capacity broadband is soon to be a reality throughout counties served by Opportunity Florida through the Florida Rural Broadband Alliance (FRBA).

Opportunity Florida, along with its sister organization, the Florida Rural Heartland Economic Development Initiative, are co-owners of the Florida Rural Broadband Alliance (FRBA). The two economic development organizations serve state designated "Rural Areas of Critical Economic Concern," most often referred to as RACECs. Opportunity Florida, headquartered in Marianna, is the state's first designated RACEC and serves 9 counties, with the recent addition of Wakulla, County, by Governor Rick Scott. The RACECs jointly own and operate FRBA, a recipient of a $24 Million federal stimulus grant for the purpose of providing "middle-mile" broadband telecommunication capacity to this rural region.

FRBA will employ a network of towers throughout an eight county region that includes Holmes, Washington,

Blaze destroys Bristol home

Firefighters aim water at the burning roof of the Shuler home Friday afternoon in Bristol. DANIEL WILLIAMS PHOTO

by Teresa Eubanks, Journal Editor

A fire that destroyed the home of Jim and Celeste Shuler is believed to have started in the carport where a truck was parked, according to Bristol firefighter Richard Mims.

He said the four-bedroom home was fully engulfed when firefighters arrived at the 13432 NW CR 12 residence at 5 p.m. Friday.

"The fire got up in the roof and everything just fell down," according to Celeste Shuler. "The main thing is that we're safe." The family was out of town at the time.

She said there was nothing that could be salvaged from the home.

"A lot of people have given us clothing and household goods," she said. "We're thankful we live in such a great community where people come together in a time of need."

The couple's seven-year-old triplets - Jimmy, Jackson and Hunter - "are doing OK," she said, but "They miss home."

The family is now looking for a place to rent as they begin to rebuild their lives.

A fundraiser is planned for Friday, April 13 to help the family with their many expenses. The cookout will be set up along SR 20 in Bristol between the Talquin Electric office and Ace Hardware.

Mullet plates including coleslaw, cheese grits, dessert and bread will be sold for $7 each. Deliveries are available for orders of five or more plates. For more information, contact Sue at 643-4040.

Hiers sentenced to 6 months in prison, 3 months home confinement

by Teresa Eubanks, Journal Editor

Former C&L Bank President Jed Hiers was sentenced to six months in prison, followed by three months of home confinement and three years of supervised release after prison during a sentencing hearing that lasted over three hours last Thursday in Tallahassee.

Hiers was indicted last November of conspiracy to commit bank fraud and nine counts of making false entries in bank records with the intent to deceive bank examiners. At that time, U.S. Attorney Pamela Marsh said Hiers' actions caused The Bank (formerly C&L Bank) to lose millions of dollars by making loans he knew could not be repaid.

During last week's sentencing, Federal Court Judge Robert Hinkle said there was no evidence that the bank had lost money. He concluded that what Hiers did was "a crime of concealment," according to Hiers' attorney, Thomas M. Findley.

"Of course, we still maintain that he's not guilty," Findley said of his client. "It's certainly a sentence that reflects that Jed Hiers was trying to help people in the community."

He said the judge challenged the prosecution to find where the bank had lost money "and they couldn't do it." According to Findley, the loans made under Hiers were not performing well. "The judge found that he didn't cause the losses, they were just the result of the bad economy," the attorney said.

Hiers served as the president of C&L Bank of Bristol in the 1990s. After C&L was purchased by The Bank in 1999, Hiers continued to serve as president of the Bristol branch. In 2001, he was appointed to The Bank's Board of Directors and promoted to the position of Florida Regional President.

Evidence presented at trial showed that between 1999 and 2004, Hiers hid bad loans from bank management and federal examiners by falsifying customer financial information, using overdraft accounts to make payments on the borrowers' existing loans, and using the proceeds from loans to third parties to make payments on the debts of insolvent bank customers.

Driver tosses handcuffs aside after DUI arrest and punches deputy

A traffic stop at SR 65 South and CR 67 in Telogia turned out to be anything but routine when a driver ignored the deputy who pulled him over, called him a liar, tossed aside a pair of handcuffs and punched him, according to an arrest report from the Liberty County Sheriff's Office.

Donnie Brown, 36, of Hosford was arrested after relatives he had called to the scene assisted Deputy Jonathan Gentry in getting him handcuffed. Brown was charged with DUI, resisting arrest with violence and battery on a law enforcement officer.

DONNIE E. BROWN

The deputy was parked along SR 65 around 12:05 a.m. March 7 when he saw a white Ford Explorer run the stop sign at the intersection.

Brown did not respond when the deputy pulled in behind him with his emergency lights on. The SUV continued on for another 200 yards after the deputy activated his siren before finally pulling over.

Brown was on his cell phone when the deputy approached. Gentry heard him tell someone to get to the scene because he had just been pulled over. The deputy told him to put the phone down but Brown continued talking. He complied after being told a second time to end the call.

As he walked up to the driver's side window, Gentry noticed the strong odor of an alcoholic beverage and saw a .22 rifle lying in the passenger seat.

When told the reason for the stop, Brown denied running the stop sign and told Gentry, "You're a liar." When told what the deputy had seen, Brown said, "Well, just give me a ticket and be done with it."

Brown asked him to take a roadside sobriety test after seeing Brown stagger as he walked to the rear of his vehicle.

While the two were standing on the shoulder of the road, Brown's father drove up. He complied when asked to remain in his vehicle as the roadside exercises continued.

Brown lost his balance, stumbled during the sobriety exercises and was unable to place his finger on his nose, according to the deputy's report.

When Gentry told him he was being arrested for DUI, Brown started walking toward his father's vehicle and ignored the deputy's order to stop.

The deputy reported that he grabbed Brown, who jerked away, and then put him on the ground to handcuff him. During the deputy's efforts to get Brown's wrists near the cuffs, Brown started a scuffle, flipped over on his back and tried to throw off the deputy. Both men remained on the ground and scrambled for the handcuffs. When Gentry reached to grab the handcuffs, Brown punched him just below his left eye and threw the handcuffs into the woods.

Gentry then stopped Brown with a blast of pepper spray.

Brown's parents then went to their son, who was being held on the ground by the deputy, and urged him to stop fighting. Gentry asked Brown's father to bring him a second pair of handcuffs from his patrol car, which were used to restrain the driver who was then taken to the county jail.

A half-empty can of beer was found in the cupholder of the console in Brown's Explorer.

After several efforts without result, two breath samples were finally taken from Brown about an hour and a half after the traffic stop. His samples resulted in readings of .138 and .134. The legal limit is .08.

Brown was later released from jail on $12,500 bond.

Wewa man charged with stealing gun, jewelry while couple attend church

A 21-year-old Wewa man is charged with armed burglary, grand theft and criminal mischief for a March 11 break-in where a Remington .870 pump shotgun and a large collection of jewelry was stolen, according to a report from the Calhoun County Sheriff's Office.

Arrested was Ethan Perry Goodman, who was wanted on a probation violation in Gulf County. Investigators learned that Goodman was under supervision following his early release from prison for a previous burglary conviction.

Joe and Dannie Bracewell returned to their 19853 NW SR 69 home from church around 12:30 p.m. Sunday to find their back door had been kicked in. They found several items, including a recliner, had been turned over and drawers had been tampered with.

Deputies arrived at their home within 15 minutes after the couple reported the break-in.

A footprint left on the door led investigators to a neighboring home, where the suspect was found. "They got him within an hour," said Dannie Bracewell.

"He wiped out my jewelry box and went through the house and took several things, but luckily we've got it all back," she said. The stolen items, including a gun, were found in the back of the suspect's truck.

She said her car was also burglarized. "He got my handbag, which was empty except for lipstick and ibuprofen," she said, along with her wallet and cell phone.

Shoepprints found on a nearby dirt driveway about 1/10th of a mile from the Bracewell home matched the impression left on their door, according to Investigator Michael Bryant.

The tracks led to a residence at 19991 NE SR 69 but there was no response when deputies knocked on the door. Property owner Kathy Cobb was contacted and agreed to meet investigators at the home, which she said was occupied by her son, James Cobb.

Neighbors reported seeing a white male walking in the area that day. He was described as having black hair and wearing shorts with a red shirt. One woman said she saw him carrying a long object wrapped in a dark bag as he walked toward the woods. Another witness reported seeing the man throw a black bag in the back of a derelict truck before he walked into the woods carrying a long object. Major Roman Wood and Investigator Bryant looked through the bed of the truck and found a black bag partially covered with trash. Items taken from the Bracewell home were found in the bag, including a family photo and jewelry.

After a key was brought to the scene, deputies entered the home after the owner said her son - who was probably asleep - should be the only person there.

FHP plans crackdown on impaired drivers over St. Pat week

The Florida Highway Patrol will be on the lookout for impaired drivers during the week leading up to St. Patrick's Day, March 10 - 17.

FHP's effort is part of a national effort called Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over, and the Patrol will address impaired driving, failure to buckle up, speeding and reckless driving.

"The Florida Highway Patrol continues to make DUI enforcement a priority," said FHP Director, Col. David Brierton.

In 2010, there were nearly 18,000 alcohol-related crashes on Florida's roadways. Nearly 800 people died and more than 12,000 suffered injuries because of those crashes.

Couple hurt when truck hits utility pole

by Teresa Eubanks, Journal Editor

A man injured when he drove into a utility pole at the Bristol boat landing Sunday afternoon remains in critical condition at Tallahassee Memorial Hospital. His wife, who was riding with him, was expected to be released this morning.

Michael Andrew Luke, 60, and his wife, Denise Pfeiffer Luke, 50, of Nashville, GA were traveling toward the Bristol Boat Landing around 8 p.m. Sunday when they failed to negotiate the curve at the intersection of North Central Street and River Road. Their 2003 Ford F150 began spinning counterclockwise, traveled onto the north shoulder of River Road and, while still rotating, slammed into a utility pole. After impact, the truck continued spinning until coming to rest facing east.

The FHP report indicated that the couple were not wearing their seat belts.

A Liberty County deputy and a volunteer firefighter came to the aid of the badly-injured driver, according to Emergency Management Director Rhonda Lewis. She said Sgt. Jamie Shiver performed chest compressions and firefighter Richard Mims used an automatic external defibrillator to keep Michael Luke's heart beating.

Although Luke's medical outcome is not known, Lewis said their efforts kept him alive until an ambulance arrived and EMTs could take over.

Lewis noted that local firefighters were recertified just a couple of weeks ago after completing first responder training.

Luke's brother, Pete Luke, told The Journal Tuesday that his sister-in-law had suffered some spinal fractures but was up and mobile. He said she was expected to be released Wednesday.

He said his brother remains unconscious. "They're doing tests on him and there is some slight improvement," he said.

"Right now, it's just a waiting game. This morning, I was tickling the bottom of his foot and he did react," he said.

His brother's physical injuries were minimal, according to Luke, who said, "The main thing was his heart rate was quite low. We don't know if that affected his oxygen."

The couple had been in Panama City and were on their way home when the accident happened. The crash was investigated by FHP Trooper E.E. Hunt.

Two injured when pickup runs off SR 20 and hits embankment

Two people were seriously injured when the pickup they were traveling in went off SR 20, west of CR 1, around 1:30 p.m. March 7, became airborne and crashed, according to a report from the Florida Highway Patrol.

Jesse C. McCroan, 20, of Port St. Joe was driving east on SR 20 when he tried to pass another eastbound vehicle on the left. McCroan drove onto the north shoulder of the road then steered right, overcorrecting and causing the truck to travel across both lanes into the south ditch. The front of the 2004 Ford pickup collided with a ditch embankment at the Juniper Creek Wildlife Management Area, became airborne and then overturned.

The right front passenger, 24-year-old Phillip J. McCroan, was ejected onto the south shoulder. Both were transported to Tallahassee Memorial Hospital.

The accident was investigated by FHP Trooper K. McNabb.

James Cobb was startled when deputies entered the home. He was standing in the living room and appeared to have just awakened. When asked if anyone else was in the residence he replied that he was not certain. Deputies then noticed a white male in the room with Cobb who was lying on a mattress, pretending to be asleep.

The man gave a couple of different names before he could be identified as Ethan Goodman.

During a search of the home, a pair of Nikes was found matching the shoe prints found at the Bracewell home. The missing gun was not in the house.

Cobb said Goodman had arrived a couple of days ago. He said he had returned from a party early Sunday morning and went to sleep. He noticed that the blinds had all been shut and blankets had been put up to deter anyone from looking inside.

When the grounds outside the home were searched, the shotgun was found buried under debris and pine straw at the edge of the woods. It was wrapped in a green military duffel bag.

During a second search of the home, the clothing witnesses had described was found hidden under a chair in a spare bedroom.

Goodman was arrested on the probation violation Sunday. The new charges were filed Tuesday afternoon. Bond had not been set by press-time.

Bryant was officially awarded the honor by company CEO Donnie Read in a ceremony held March 2 at the south Liberty County campus on Hwy 65, just north of Sumatra.

The award was the culmination of Twin Oaks' annual employee award cycle in which an employee is selected by a peer committee each quarter by each program to represent their program as Employee of the Quarter. In January of each year, each program awards an Employee of the Year from the previous year's quarterly winners.

Eight program Employee of the Year winners for 2011 competed for the company-wide award that Bryant was subsequently selected for, including: Carla Greene of Apalachicola Forest Youth Camp (South Liberty County); Nick Tafuri of Twin Oaks Vocational Academy (Greenville); Priscilla Warren of RAM-C Program (Greenville); Shyron Johnson of DOVE Academy (Graceville); Tammy Wigfall of DOVE IMH Academy (Graceville); and Kendra Campbell and Brigitte Gottwald of Twin Oaks Forensic Outpatient Services (Gainesville). Twin Oaks has over 500 employees statewide.

John Mark Bryant is a native of Greensboro and graduated from Robert F. Monroe High School. He received his BS in Social Science Education from Florida State University in 2003. He was hired by Twin Oaks in 2005 at Apalachicola Forest Youth Camp as a juvenile competency teacher. In the past six years, he has filled multiple roles including math teacher, social studies teacher, science teacher, assessment coordinator, and lead educator. He has been at the Liberty-JUST program for over two years and currently supervises learning for social studies, science and math as well as fulfills administrative duties in education. In addition to his regular work day, John

Mark is also currently pursuing a Master's Degree in Educational Leadership.

Bryant enjoys seeing the progress his students make during their stay with the program, and says his biggest reward in working with troubled youth is in knowing they gained the tools necessary to be productive citizens when they return home. He knows this is not possible by his efforts alone, but by the Twin Oaks team to whom he is proud to share in the responsibility.

"We are very proud of the selection of John Mark Bryant to represent Twin Oaks as our 2011 Employee of the Year. His willingness to go above and beyond his normal duties to serve the best interest of the youth we serve is a shining example for our entire agency. It is always a tough competition, we were truly humbled by the personal dedication displayed by each program Employee of the Year that we interviewed," said Tony Read, Twin Oaks'

Human Capital Manager, who was a member of the selection committee.

NW FL Water District's online well permitting saving time and money

the Northwest Florida Water Management District

HAVANA—Electronic permitting of water wells was an immediate success when the system went live on Jan. 4. That month, the Northwest Florida Water Management District received nearly half its applications and a quarter of its completion reports online.

"The District has passed along direct savings of time and money through e-permitting," said District Executive Director Doug Barr. "The system so simplifies and expedites well-permitting that applications can now be completed and submitted from anywhere, 24 hours a day, seven days a week."

"This is a marked improvement from the days when well-permitting, permit extensions and completion reports had to be hand-delivered or mailed to the District as hard copies and payments were limited to cash or check," said Guy Gowens, Director of the District's Division of Resource Regulation.

"Clients can now process forms and pay online using credit, debit or electronic funds transfer," he said. "They can monitor their application status, notify the District of work starting, extend permits and submit completion reports anytime from anywhere."

In the first three weeks of well e-permitting, 47 percent of applications and 23 percent of completion reports were submitted online.

The District has averaged 6,500 well permits annually for five years. It inspects all public supply wells and wells larger than six inches in diameter, which comprise about 20 percent of wells in the panhandle.

The District also licenses 151 water well contractors and has special oversight in potentially contaminated areas.

Who controls gasoline prices?

No matter what politicians like Newt Gingrich and political pundits say, it is not the President, or the Congress, or the consumer, or the "free market" that controls gasoline prices.

The facts are that U.S. consumption of gasoline is at its lowest point in 15 years. The U.S. has increased its production of oil by opening more U.S. areas to drilling. For the first time in decades, the U.S. is a net exporter of gasoline. Decreasing demand normally means reduced prices, but not in the case of gasoline.

The reason that the U.S. is exporting gasoline is that the U.S. can produce a gallon of gasoline more cheaply than other countries. One of the reasons is that very cheap natural gas is used in the refining process. The result is that other countries want to buy the cheaper U.S. produced gasoline and compete with U.S. markets.

There is a Keystone Pipeline from Canada to Cushing, Oklahoma where crude oil is stored. The problem is getting this crude oil to refineries. The Keystone XL Pipeline that President Obama nixed will run from Canada to refineries in Houston, Texas. Keystone XL became a political football for Republicans, but what the right-wing media will not tell you is that the Republican governor of Nebraska raised the environmental issue and wrote to President Obama and asked him to kill the pipeline deal. The pipeline was planned to be routed through the sand hills of Nebraska, which presented a danger to the state's aquifer. The danger to the state's water supply was too great, and the Republican governor did the right thing by asking the President to stop the project.

However, after the Washington right-wingers and Fox News started bashing President Obama over cancelling the project, the Republican governor of Nebraska did the expected; he flip-flopped and said that the President shouldn't have cancelled the pipeline project even though the President was protecting Nebraska's water supply.

An article in the March 5 Bloomberg Businessweek magazine makes the point that lack of refinery capacity is the major culprit in high gasoline prices, particularly on the U.S. East Coast.

In 1902, Sun Oil, later Sunoco, opened a refinery south of Philadelphia, which began refining Texas Crude. Eventually there were three refineries in that area that supplied about half of the jet fuel, gasoline and diesel fuel produced on the East Coast. Today these three refineries are out of date, unprofitable, closed and for sale.

To make matters worse for people on the east coast, Bloomberg reports that a joint U.S. and Venezuelan company closed its St. Croix refinery, which alone processed some 350,000 barrels of oil a day, most of it for the east coast.

Oil isn't just oil. There are a variety of grades of oil, depending on the amount of sulfur in the oil. Existing refineries can't process all varieties. For example, refineries in the Gulf Coast and Midwest areas are designed to process light, sweet crude such as Brent Crude. But Brent Crude primarily comes from Africa, specifically Nigeria, the price of which is affected by world events and market prices more so than if the oil came from Texas. According to Bloomberg, in the past year, turmoil in the Middle East has increased the price of Brent Crude from $94 to $120 per barrel.

The U.S. Energy Information Administration indicates that there are seven factors working together which affect the price of crude oil. There is two main sources of supply: the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) and Non-OPEC, primarily Canada.

OPEC can put the squeeze on the U.S. and world oil market by decreasing their output. Conversely, increased OPEC production has a positive effect on world oil prices. Inventories or lack of inventory of oil also affects world oil prices.

Speculation does have an effect on oil prices. Right-wing politicians will say that isn't true, but market participants not only buy and sell physical quantities of oil, but also trade contracts for the future delivery of oil and other energy derivatives.

One of the roles of the futures market is price discovery, and as such, these markets play a role in influencing oil prices.

For example, the quarterly average of the number of outstanding oil futures contracts at the end of each NYMEX trading day increased substantially from 2003-2007 as interest in oil as an investment grew. When gasoline prices skyrocketed in 2007-2008 during the last days of the Bush administration, there was about 1.5 million contracts per day and in 2011 the number was approaching 1.6 million.

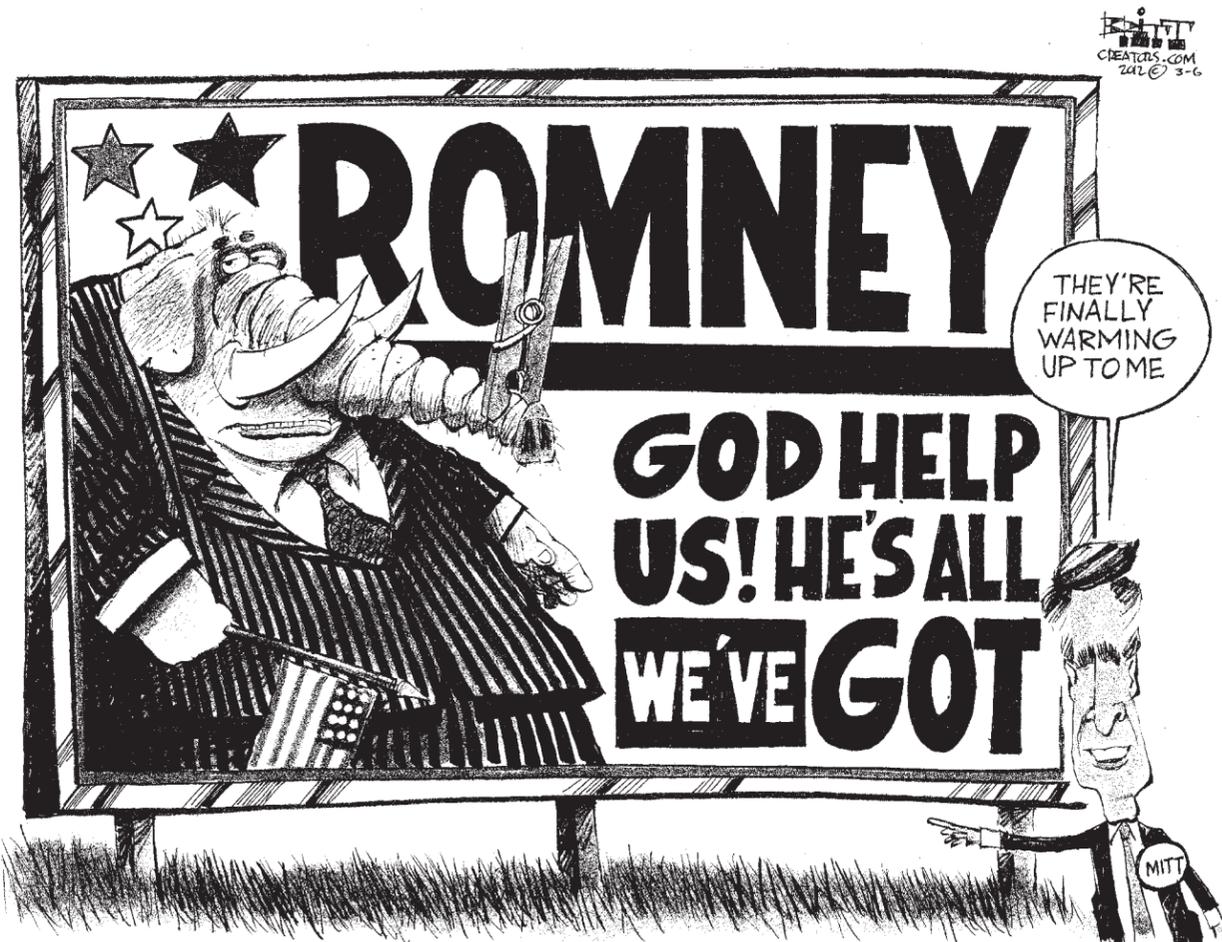

The last factor affecting gasoline prices is demand. The Organization of Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) consist of the United States, much of Europe, and other advanced countries. At 53 percent of world oil consumption in 2010, these large economies consume more oil than the non-OECD countries, but have much lower oil consumption growth. Oil consumption in the OECD countries actually declined in the decade between 2000 and 2010.

Oil consumption increased more than 40 percent in non-OECD countries like China and India. Saudi Arabia had the largest growth in oil consumption among the countries in the non-OECD during this period.

Neither President Bush in 2008 nor President Obama today are responsible for high gasoline prices. Also, Newt Gingrich cannot make the price of gasoline $2.50 per gallon. Just more of Newt's economic ignorance talking.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

by Douglas Cohn and Eleanor Clift

WASHINGTON—Listening to the victory speeches on Super Tuesday, it was glaringly obvious that only Mitt Romney took the opportunity to congratulate his opponents. Romney commended Newt Gingrich for having a good night in Georgia, and Rick Santorum for winning three of the evening's contests. At first blush, it seemed Romney is the only one of the remaining candidates who learned his manners, and who is gracious in both victory and defeat, but the subtext is quite different.

Romney had just finished bludgeoning his rivals with millions of dollars of negative advertising, so he could afford to be gracious. When he congratulates his opponents on fighting the good fight, he wants voters to interpret that as meaning it was also a fair fight, and that's all fair in love, war and politics.

Much of the commentary has focused on how the Super Pacs have allowed Gingrich and Santorum to stay in the race. Each has a billionaire backer feeding money into the Super Pac supporting them; otherwise one or both would have been forced out of the race for lack of money. Yet no one has focused on Romney and the many millions that his Super Pac has poured into the race, demolishing one candidate after another.

If Romney's Super Pac did not exist, would Romney have been able to stomp out Gingrich's emerging campaign in Iowa, and then finish off Gingrich in Florida the way he did? It's not surprising that Gingrich is carrying such a deep grudge against Romney. He belittles Romney's much vaunted ability to manage the economy as "managing the decay" because Romney has not offered a compelling vision for what he would do to turn around the economy.

If Romney's Super Pac did not exist, would Romney have been able to stop Santorum in Michigan or Ohio? Santorum claims that he was outspent 12 to 1 in Ohio, where Romney won by a single percentage point.

Life isn't fair, and neither is politics, but the role of money in this primary campaign, and how Romney in particular has deployed his financial resources, has had a game-changing if not corrupting influence. Nothing will alter the rules for this election season, but there should be ample evidence to go back to the Supreme Court and challenge the Citizens United decision that opened the door to the unregulated sums of money that are underwriting our politics.

Justice Anthony Kennedy, who wrote the Citizens United decision for the majority, notes that there is no evidence that money coming into politics in this manner is "corrupting." The definition of corrupting is at least partly in the eyes of the beholder, and overturning any decision of this magnitude is an enormous challenge. But Republicans who cheered Citizens United may be having second thoughts now about the corrupting role of money.

A former defensive coach for the Redskins was recently in the news for confessing that he paid money to players for hard hits, and extra money for taking out of the game one of the star players on the other side. That's not unlike what Romney has done. First it was Rick Perry who he turned his fire power on; then it was Gingrich; now it's Santorum.

Democrats are suiting up for the big game, and President Obama will have plenty of money to go one on one with Romney. A presidential campaign should be about an exchange of ideas and a debate about each candidate's vision for the country. One of these men will win, and one will lose, and each will be gracious. The voters will judge how genuine they are in acknowledging victory and defeat or whether they are simply duping us into believing they fought the fair fight.

Colorectal cancer is the second leading cancer killer in the U.S., but it is largely preventable. If you're 50 or older, please get screened. Screening finds precancerous polyps, so they can be removed before they turn into cancer. And screening finds colorectal cancer early, when treatment works best. If you're at increased risk—if you have a personal or family history of polyps or colorectal cancer, or you have inflammatory bowel disease—ask your doctor when to start screening. Screening saves lives.

What is the best way to get rid of thistles? They took over my garden last year.

-G. C., Binghamton, NY

The thistle is one of the most difficult perennial weeds to control because its underground stems can travel up to 20 feet a season. After chopping them down, use a plastic mulch to cover the entire area. A straw mulch, laid at least 3 inches thick, also will smother thistles. (Do not use leaf mulch.) Your weed-control program must be long-lasting because the roots can lie dormant for several years. In addition to mulching, plowing the garden deeply in the fall will bring the rhizomes (stems) to the surface. But avoid rototilling, because this will cut the rhizomes, and each piece will become a new plant.

Can you offer any advice about how to choose the best kitchen knives?

-H. L., Paso Robles, CA

There are two important things to consider: the metal content of the blade and the grinding process used. With metal content, you want to look for a high content of carbon, which helps to retain sharpness. Stainless steel blades go dull much sooner than carbon steel ones do, but the trade-off is that the latter will darken and stain much

Who decided on our national anthem?

-B. D., Cheyenne, WY

"O say can you see...?" It was Herbert Clark Hoover (1874-1964), our 31st president, who in 1931, signed the law making "The Star Spangled Banner" our national anthem. Francis Scott Key wrote the anthem during the 25-hour battle at Fort McHenry in Baltimore on September 13 and 14, 1814. Key later gave his poem to his brother-in-law, Judge J. H. Nicholson, who came up with a tune for it based on the hymn "Anacreon in Heaven."

The actual flag (30x42 feet) that Scott viewed from his ship during the bombardment is preserved at the Smithsonian Institution. Sewn by Mary Young Pickersgill, the flag sports 15 alternate red and white stripes and 15 stars—ones for each of the original 13 states, plus Kentucky and Vermont.

President Woodrow Wilson ordered the tune played by the military and naval services back in 1916, over a hundred years after its creation.

It was not until the Hoover proclamation in 1931, however, that it became the official national anthem and began to be heard all "o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!"

Apple John

Our American folk hero, Johnny Appleseed (John Chapman), died in March of 1847. In celebration of his fruitful travels, we ponder a few apple expressions. There's the apple-pie bed, another name for a short-sheeted bed, with its linen folded so that one's legs cannot stretch out. This deviates from a bed in apple-pie order, which means exemplary or perfect. And then there's Adam's apple, so named because it is believed that a piece of the forbidden fruit got stuck in Adam's throat.

Apple Bread Pudding

6 apples peeled, cored, and thinly sliced
1 cup raisins
8 slices buttered bread
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg

Preheat the oven to 350°F. Place the apples and raisins in a saucepan with 1/2 cup of water, then cover and cook until soft, about 15 minutes. Cut the bread into sticks and arrange half in a pie dish, butter side down. Cover with the apple mixture, then the top layer of bread, butter side up. Sprinkle with the sugar, cinnamon, and nutmeg. Bake until crisp, about 20 minutes. MAKES 8 SERVINGS.

Spring gobbler season in full swing across Florida

Better start brushing up on your turkey calling, because spring gobbler season is here. Whether you prefer to use a mouth call, box call, slate or any combination, March means it's time to start talkin' turkey.

Youth hunters benefited from a rule passed last year by the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) that established a two-day youth spring turkey hunting season on private property the weekend prior to the opening of spring turkey season in each hunting zone. The new Youth Spring Turkey Hunt was such a success that the FWC expanded the opportunity to 78 of its wildlife management areas (WMAs) beginning this season.

In Zone A (south of State Road 70) this year, that weekend was Feb. 25-26. In the rest of the state, that weekend fell on March 10-11.

Only those under 16 years old are allowed to harvest a turkey while supervised by an adult, 18 years or older. On private land, no license or permit is required of the youth or supervising adult, unless the adult plans to help "call-in" the bird or otherwise participate in the hunt. In that case, he or she will need a hunting license and turkey permit.

Forty-nine of the 78 participating WMAs require a youth spring turkey quota permit, and if the adult supervisor is going to attempt to call in a bird on any of the 78 WMAs, he or she also will need a management area permit in addition to a hunting license and turkey permit.

But, keep in mind that adults are not allowed to do the shooting—only the kids may harvest a bird.

For safety reasons, the FWC passed another rule last season that limits the methods of take allowed during spring turkey hunts on WMAs. The rule restricts firearms to shotguns and muzzleloading shotguns only, using shot no larger than No. 2. All legal bows and crossbows can also be used, but all rifles, pistols, buckshot and slugs are prohibited during spring turkey hunts on WMAs.

This rule does not apply, however, to private property, where any legal rifle, shotgun, muzzleloader, crossbow, bow or pistol can be used to take turkeys.

One of the most coveted and sought-after game species in Florida is the Osceola turkey, also known as the Florida turkey. This unique bird is one of five subspecies of wild turkey in North America.

The Osceola lives only on the Florida peninsula and nowhere else in the world, making it extremely popular with out-of-state hunters. They're similar to the eastern subspecies (found in the Panhandle) but tend to be a bit smaller and typically are darker with less white barring on the primary flight feathers of their wings.

The National Wild Turkey Federation and the FWC recognize any wild turkey harvested within or south of the counties of Dixie, Gilchrist, Alachua, Union, Bradford, Clay and Duval to be the Osceola subspecies. Eastern turkeys and hybrids are found north and west of these counties into the Panhandle.

For us adults, the highly anticipated spring turkey season comes in first in Zone A and runs March 3 – April 8. In zones B, C and D (except for Holmes County), it runs March 17 – April 22. In Holmes County, the season runs March 17 – April 1.

Hunters may take bearded turkeys and gobblers only, and the daily bag limit is one. The season and possession limit on turkeys is two, except in Holmes County, where the season limit is one.

Shooting hours on private lands are one-half hour before sunrise to sunset, but on WMAs, you must quit hunting at 1 p.m.

To participate in spring turkey hunting, you'll need a Florida hunting license and a turkey permit. If you plan to pursue a gobbler on one of Florida's many WMAs, you also must purchase a management area permit.

All of these licenses and permits are available at county tax collectors' offices, most retail outlets that sell hunting and fishing supplies, by calling (888) HUNT-FLORIDA (486-8356) or online at MyFWC.com/License.

And if you didn't put in for a special-opportunity or quota permit, don't worry; several WMAs don't require them. Visit MyFWC.com/Hunting and under "Turkey," click on "Where to spring turkey hunt without a quota permit" to see a list of WMAs where you need only a hunting license, management area permit and turkey permit to hunt spring turkeys.

Tony Young and his wife, Katie, are already looking forward to turkey hunting together on a small piece of private property and being a guest on each other's quota hunt.

BROAD BAND TECH

Opportunity Florida Vice-Chairman Byron Ward examines broadband equipment arriving at a storage facility in Marianna.

Jackson, Calhoun, Gulf, Franklin, Liberty, and Gadsden. Wakulla county, a recent addition to Opportunity Florida, was not part of the original broadband grant.

Considered the “great equalizer” by rural economic developers, broadband provides the data capacity to support computerized digital equipment and networks that can allow remote, rural areas to compete for jobs with urban areas.

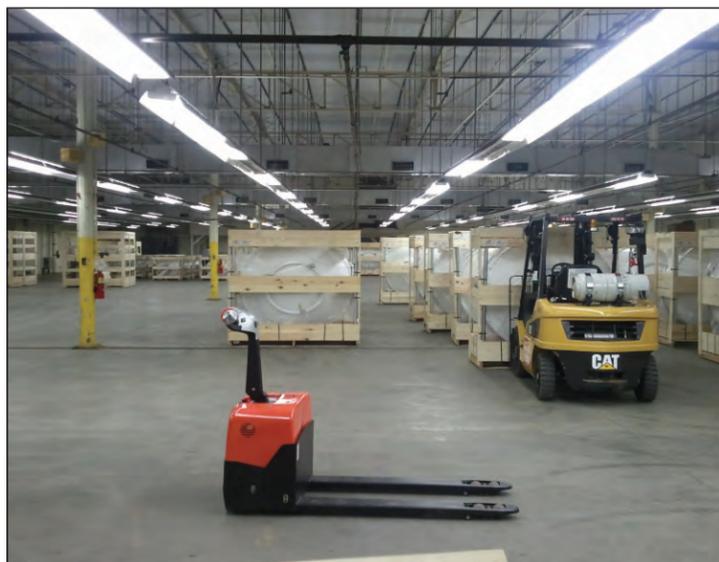

Many parts of rural America do not have affordable access to “always-on, high capacity data networks” and some still rely on dial up Internet access. All modern logistic and distribution systems, for example, depend upon high capacity broadband and digital services.

Broadband is equally important to public service, education and the medical community. Telemedicine, allowing doctors to interpret and diagnose through digitally delivered scans and tests while emergency personnel can provide services under medical supervision through telemetry.

Broadband is becoming the standard means of delivering distance learning through graphic and audio video means and many college campuses now provide anywhere classes through the Internet.

Public service and utility organizations utilize digital, high-speed radio sidebands for emergency, police and service restoration services and monitoring. Typically, these services are not possible due to limited capacity in many small towns and rural areas.

Broadband, a constantly changing definition, generally refers to multichannel telecommunication paths over a fixed or wireless network. Of course, the use of broadband is usually synonymous with the Internet, including voice and data.

The FRBA system will generally be deployed over wireless paths and made available to “last-mile,” or retail customers, not to the end user. FRBA was designed to provide high capacity broadband service to end-use providers, generally, where adequate service is not otherwise commercially available. The wireless system should typically deliver data at speeds 12 times those of existing digital subscriber line services.

The total cost of the FRBA network is budgeted at $34 million, including the $24 million broadband grant along with a $10 million “in-kind” contribution from local governments and public authorities. FRBA was funded as part of the American Recovery and Rehabilitation Act, more commonly known as the Federal Stimulus Program. The grant is administered through the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA), an agency of the United States Department of Commerce.

The Marianna warehouse is fitted with mandatory fire protection and 24 hr. audio/video security surveillance, both requirements of the NTIA. Trucks are arriving weekly with additional equipment that is being installed by Rapid Systems, a Tampa contractor specializing in high speed wireless networks. The construction and deployment is being managed by G4S, an international provider of services to both private and governmental institutions.

Deployment of the network will commence within the next few weeks as the material stocking phase is completed.

More information about the Florida Rural Broadband Alliance (FRBA) project can be obtained through the WeConnectFlorida.com Internet web site.

Rainbow Family returns for annual gathering in the Apalachicola Forest

More than 400 people are expected to gather in the Apalachicola National Forest this weekend for the Fifth Annual 2012 North Florida/Apalachicola Rainbow Gathering.

The group’s spokesperson, Greg “Forkman” Beck, said campers are setting up at Cliff Lake, 1.6 miles down Forest Highway 13, about 14 miles northeast of Sumatra. As of Monday, about 250 had already made the pilgrimage to join their Rainbow brethren.

“The hippies are back and we’ve had the biggest, warmest welcome this time,” said Forkman.

Visitors are welcome to come see them at the lake. Forkman said that several local residents have already stopped by and brought food to share, including some venison.

Rainbow gatherings are open, non-commercial events where free spirits gather to camp, commune and enjoy the woods.

According to the Rainbow mini-manual, there’s only one thing you need to become a member of their group: “If you have a belly button, you can be a rainbow.”

The group gathered in the forest near Liberty County in March of 2010.

The Rainbow Family regularly holds gatherings across the country. For more information about them, visit their website at frainbow.org/A-cola or go to CLJNews.com, select Features and then Photo Features for photographs and a story about the 2010 gathering.

by Christian Bay

This past week 18 students from the Altha FCCLA club attended the state conference in Orlando.

Seven out of the 18 students that attended will be advancing to FCCLA National Conference this summer in Orlando.

We also came home with a Florida FCCLA state officer, Emily Sewell. She was elected Vice President of Recreation for the 2012-2013 term.

Collin Mears, Caylynn Reeder and Katie Detweiler receive a gold medal with their manners project in Focus on Children. They scored a 98 out of 100 and will be advancing to Nationals.

Chelsea Murphy received gold with her creation of decorative pins for ladies out of recycled soda cans with the category Recycle and Redesign.

Cortney Harris, Alicia Griffin, and Brianna Yon won gold with a perfect 100 in Entrepreneurship. They created an Italian restaurant, and will be advancing to Nationals as well.

We also had some students compete in events that did not advance to Nationals because they were only

State level events. Elizabeth Bailey received gold for Artistic Reflections, Ashley Wagner received gold for Chapter Scrapbook, Kayla Gay received gold for Career Investigation and Megan Mantecon received silver for Recycle and Redesign.

Christian Bay also represented District 1 in the talent show, but sadly did not place.

GARDENING

False shamrock (woodsorrel) is a weed that gets noticed around St. Patrick's Day

It's been said that one person's wild-flowers are another person's weeds. This saying applies particularly well to a large group of low-growing herbs in the Oxalis genus.

The name Oxalis indicates the presence of oxalic acid in many of the approximately 500 plant species within the genera. Many of the species are known as woodsorrels as they have an acidic taste reminiscent of the unrelated sorrel. Some species use the color of their flowers instead, and use names such as yellowsorrels or pink sorrels. Other species are informally known as false shamrocks. They are also known as sourgrass because of their sour-lemony tasting leaves.

Woodsorrels are frequently sold as potted houseplants. Around St. Patrick's Day, it is common to see stunning plants that have leaves shaped like a shamrock, with splendid white, pink or purple flowers. While they do make nice houseplants, be aware that these plants can become weeds in the landscape.

By far, Extension's most common encounter with woodsorrel will be gardeners' complaining about them as weeds in their lawns. There are several species of woodsorrel that are troublesome weeds in Northwest Florida.

Creeping woodsorrel

This low growing, prostrate creeping weed is known botanically as Oxalis corniculata. It typically stands no more than a couple of inches tall but the stems can grow to twenty inches long. The stems are slender and delicate, breaking easily when hand pulled. Leaves consist of three heart-shaped leaflets which fold down around the stem at night or when the plant is stressed.

The flowers have bright yellow petals and occur in clusters at the tips of long stalks. Flowers eventually produce seeds that reside in elongated, lantern-shaped seedpods. Each seedpod can hold up to 50 seeds. A single plant can produce up to 5,000 seeds. When the seeds mature, the pod will turn downward and forcefully discharge the seed into the surrounding area. They germinate whenever temperatures are between 60 and 80 degrees F.

by Theresa Friday,
Horticulture Extension Agent,
Santa Rosa County

Although this is a perennial plant and reproduces vegetatively by rooting from its stems, its primary means of reproduction is by seed.

In flowerbeds, a two to three inch layer of mulch can block the light necessary for creeping woodsorrel to germinate. This weed growing in a lawn presents a difficult challenge since mowing does not provide good control and hand-removal can be difficult due to the fragile stems.

Southern yellow woodsorrel

Oxalis stricta is similar to creeping woodsorrel but has more of an upright habit and does not root from its stems.

This herbaceous perennial has hairy stems and deeply-cut heart-shaped lobed leaves that can be green to reddish-purple. It arises from tough underground stems called rhizomes and tends to form clusters of plants.

Pink woodsorrel

Pink wood sorrel is an escaped exotic ornamental plant that is now found throughout Florida. It is native to tropical America. Pink wood sorrel is similar to yellow woodsorrel but has pink flowers from spring through fall.

Control options

When occurring in flowerbeds, remove as much woodsorrel as possible by hand. Concentrate on removing the rhizomes or underground structure of the weeds. Appropriately applied and maintained mulch will reduce seed germination. If hand removal is not an option, apply a non-selective herbicide labeled for flowerbeds such as glyphosate.

In lawns, be sure to maintain a healthy stand of turf by mowing, fertilizing and watering correctly. Apply pre-emergence herbicides at the proper time in the spring. Treat existing woodsorrel with a post-emergence herbicide that is safe to use on your particular type of turfgrass. For a listing of recommended herbicides, refer to the UF/IFAS publication entitled "Yellow Woodsorrel (Oxalis) Biology and Management in Turf." It's available online at www.edis.ifas.ufl.edu/ep385 or by calling your local Extension Office.

Calhoun citizen expresses concern over closing of voting site in Altha

To the editor:

I recently attended the Calhoun County Commissioners meeting along with several other citizens. We attended the meeting due to concern that our local voting site has been closed and we are now required to travel from Altha to Blountstown to vote at the W.T. Neal Civic Center.

During the meeting, the commissioners ok'd about $300,000 in additional payments for change orders on various road projects with no questions asked by any board member.

These additional payments occur at every meeting. Why, with paid engineers designing and planning each project, are there always over runs and costly changes that are readily paid by the County? A citizen asked the board why they readily fork over $300,000 in additional expenses but can't find $7,000 to place a voting machine in our community voting precinct? One commissioner stated he agreed with the Supervisor of Elections' request due to it is a good business decision to close the Pine Island and Henderson Mill voting houses. Another commissioner supported the change due to the voting place in Altha is on a dead end street with limited parking.

Now we must vote at the W.T. Neal Civic Center, on a dead end street where 3,500 voters are registered to vote. The Supervisor of Elections quickly offers to mail you a ballot, at additional expense to the county.

I feel the elected officials failed to consider the impact their move will have on voters. Almost half of the Calhoun County voters are registered to vote at one site, W.T. Neal Civic Center. Imagine driving there around 5 p.m. to vote right after work and seeing the parking lot full of cars — you would not bother to wait and vote.

Imagine how the elderly will manage when, after parking even in the closest spot, they must walk near 100 yards to go inside the facility.

Let your county commissioner and supervisor of elections hear from you. With your help, maybe we can get this mistake corrected. And NO, I am not a candidate for any office this year.

Sincerely, Volena Barfield

Salute the valuable and important job of social workers during National Social Work Month

To the editor:

March is National Social Work Month which makes it an appropriate time for us to salute the valuable and important job that social workers provide all year long. When life's challenges become overwhelming, many people turn to a social worker for help. Here at Big Bend Hospice, we have fifteen social workers who serve as family support counselors, grief counselors and Caring Tree counselors. They work tirelessly with our patients and families to help them cope with the many emotional and practical issues that accompany a life limiting illness.

These dedicated professionals assist with everything from coordinating community resources to helping families solve personal and financial problems, to working through the emotional pain of dealing with an impending death. They recognize the family dynamics that are part of any life threatening disease and help patients reach out to conclude the important business of giving and receiving love and asking for and granting forgiveness. Often it is the social worker who will pause to recognize a special occasion in a patient's life and make sure that a birthday is celebrated or a caregiver gets a night out. Our wonderful social workers are an important part of our patient care team and our Big Bend Hospice family.

The theme for the 2012 National Social Work Month is "Social Work Matters". Time and again I have witnessed the powerful results of social workers both in our organization and in hospitals, nursing homes and assisted living facilities in recognizing and meeting the needs of the people they serve. On behalf of Big Bend Hospice we applaud social workers for their caring hearts and their important contributions to our community.

Bulldogs continue their winning ways

from Liberty County High School

The Liberty County High Baseball finished a third of the season going 2-1 to bring their season record to 6-2-1 on the young year.

On Monday, March 5 the Dawgs hosted the Sneads Pirates in a non-district contest. Fans were treated to a classic pitchers duel with the Dawgs coming up on the short end of a 2-1 score in a game that went 11 innings. Liberty senior Trey Morris started on the mound and went 5 innings giving up 1 earned run. "Trey did everything we asked him to do. He went out there and threw strikes and gave us a chance to win the ballgame," said LCHS Coach Donnie Coxwell.

In the 6th inning, the Dawgs brought out Junior Caleb Barrentine. Caleb pitched the rest of the way again giving up only 1 run. "Both of our pitchers did a great job on the mound. There was not much else we could have asked them to do," the coach said.

Offensively the Dawgs scored only one run on the night. That run was score in the bottom of the 7th by senior Trey Johnson who was pinch hitting for catcher Chase Taylor. The Dawgs had their chances to win the game but stranded the lead off batter on base in each of the last five innings. "Offensively we have some work to do," the coach noted. "We have to be able to get runners on and move them over and get timely hits to score them."

On Tuesday, March 6 the Dawgs traveled to South Walton for an important District match-up. In another close game, they prevailed by a score of 3-2 to improve their District to 3-1. Junior lefthander JoJo Durden picked up the win by throwing a complete game, striking out 9, walking 2 hitters and giving up 0 earned runs. "JoJo pitched a great game for us tonight he kept the ball down and give up only one hit, a blooper into shallow right field," said Coxwell.

On offense, the Dawgs were led by Daniel Deason and Chuck Morris, who each had two hits apiece. The Dawgs trailed most of the way. With the score 2-0 in the fifth, Senior Brenton Bailey hit his second homerun of the season to cut the lead in half. The score stayed that way until the Dawgs scored two runs in the top of the 7th to take a 3-2 lead. JoJo threw a perfect 7th inning to preserve the win. "We are winning the close games and that is something we didn't do the past two years," the coach said. "We are finding ways to win instead of finding ways to lose."

On Thursday, March 8 the Dawgs

hosted the Chipley Tigers and came out with a convincing 10-0 win in a game that was called in the 6th inning by the mercy rule. Junior David Black got the win on the mound for the Dawgs, pitching his 3rd complete game of the year, striking out 8, walking only one and surrendering only one hit on the night. "David threw what I thought was the best game he has thrown all year. He was in total control from the first inning on," said Coxwell.

On the best run total of the season, the Dawgs took advantage on 6 walked batters and 5 hit batters en route to its 10 runs. Eight Bulldogs hitters got a base hit and senior Blake Baggett had 3 RBI in the win. "We executed well tonight on offense," the coach said. "We moved runners over bunted when we needed to and got some two out hits that scored runs for us."

This week will be another big week for the Dawgs. On Monday, March 12 they travel to Chipola College to take on the Coosa Valley Rebels out of Alabama. Coosa Valley is the two-time defending state champions in Alabama. On Tuesday, March 13 they travel to R.F. Munroe to take on a very talented Bobcat team. They end the week against District rival Blountstown Tigers in a very important district 4 contest.

The LCHS Jr Varsity softball team played Marianna March 5, with Marianna taking the Lady Dawgs 15-6 in the first game and 15-8 in the second. ABOVE: Liberty's Odra Chapman anticipating the ball as the Marianna runner slides into home.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Week of March 11 ~ March 17

ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20

Aries, communication is a big deal for you this week. Every time you open your mouth, you have a grand audience just waiting on what you have to say.

TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21

Taurus, attempt a more lighthearted approach to a difficult situation. If you don't let it bother you, there may be an easy solution that comes to mind much faster.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

Gemini, don't worry if the spark seems to have sizzled out of your relationship. While there may be a bump in the road, this is by no means the end of the whole thing.

CANCER - Jun 22/Jul 22

Cancer, have some fun at work. Just because it is a means to making money doesn't mean it has to be serious and boring every day. Be creative in your methods.

LEO - Jul 23/Aug 23

You are at the top of your game this week, Leo. Expect to sail through projects at the speed of light. Also anticipate others turning to you for advice because of the vibe you give.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

Don't expect others to be mind readers, Virgo. If you have something to say, simply say it. It is better than going through the guessing game of your feelings.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Libra, the simple act of expressing yourself will ease any personal issues you are keeping inside. Talking about things can help you feel more secure, as well.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Scorpio, focus on keeping yourself in great shape. Feeling under the weather can be taxing on the body and the spirit. Eat healthy and get more exercise.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

Sagittarius, taking time to notice your feelings can go a long way toward mitigating stress and bringing peace of mind. It also creates other opportunities to relax.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

Capricorn, focus on fitness as the warm weather is once again right around the corner. You'll want to look and feel your best when it comes time to enjoy the great outdoors.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

Aquarius, don't fret too much over a situation that's been troubling you. Realizing the situation is a great first step. Now seek the help of others to determine a solution.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20

You may notice changes to your home life, Pisces, and it may be causing anxiety. The celestial plane is creating the turmoil.
