Furr sentenced to 12 years in shooting death

by Teresa Eubanks, Journal Editor

The woman convicted in the 2012 shooting death of her boyfriend was sentenced to serve 12 years in prison by Circuit Court Judge Jonathan Sjostrom on Monday.

Chairty Furr, 35, was convicted by a Liberty County jury of manslaughter with a firearm last month for the death of Cliff Sloat.

Furr told the jury that she and Sloat had been drinking when he threatened to choke her and started toward her early that September evening in 2012. She admitted grabbing her gun and firing at him but said she never intended to harm him. She said she meant to shoot over his head but "missed" and fatally wounded him.

CHAIRTY FURR

Sloat died in the front yard of Furr's home in the Lowry Community on Hwy. 65, north of Hosford.

Her attorney argued that she fired in self defense and asked jurors, "What if she hadn't shot him? Maybe she would have been the one in that yard lying dead."

The judge also ordered that Furr's sentence with the Department of Corrections be followed by 60 months probation. Furr, who has remained in custody at the Liberty County Jail since her arrest, received 487 days jail credit toward her sentence.

She is banned from having contact with Sloat's mother, sister and three daughters.

Prior to sentencing, the judge received several letters on Furr's behalf from friends and family urging leniency.

One writer detailed the problems Furr had experienced after an accident that caused her to lose a leg and undergo numerous surgeries. "She has a very supportive family who cares about her....an extended prison sentence will cause significant harm to their health," the friend wrote.

But a friend of Cliff Sloat's family urged the judge to give Furr the maximum sentence possible. She wrote of how Sloat's parents had suffered since his death, and told him that they had been hurt emotionally as well as medically after his loss.

Flames destroy mobile home at Green Acres Monday night

by Teresa Eubanks, Journal Editor

A wall of orange flames leveled a mobile home at Green Acres on S.R. 12 South Monday night in Bristol.

John Roddenberry, his girlfriend, Terry Armstrong and his son, John Roddenberry, Jr. had a fire going in the fireplace as they were watching the FSU-Auburn game when the home began filling up with smoke.

"They don't know if the wind caught an ember and put it under the house or if the fire burned through," said Volunteer Firefighter Pam Joiner. "When the fire spread to the undercarriage of the trailer, they tried to put it out."

Their efforts were hindered because they had disconnected the hose due to the freezing conditions that night, with temperatures dropping to 18 or 19 degrees. The blaze quickly engulfed the singlewide structure.

Volunteers from the Bristol Fire Department and the Estiffanulga Fire Department were called out to the scene around 10:40 p.m.

The family received assistance from the Red Cross and are currently staying with relatives next door to their former home.

Child in carseat spared serious injury; parents recovering Hosford man hospitalized after two-vehicle collision

by Teresa Eubanks, Journal Editor

Two men were airlifted to area hospitals and a woman and her one-year-old daughter were taken from the scene by ambulance Friday morning after a truck drove into the side of an oncoming vehicle on S.R. 69 in Calhoun County.

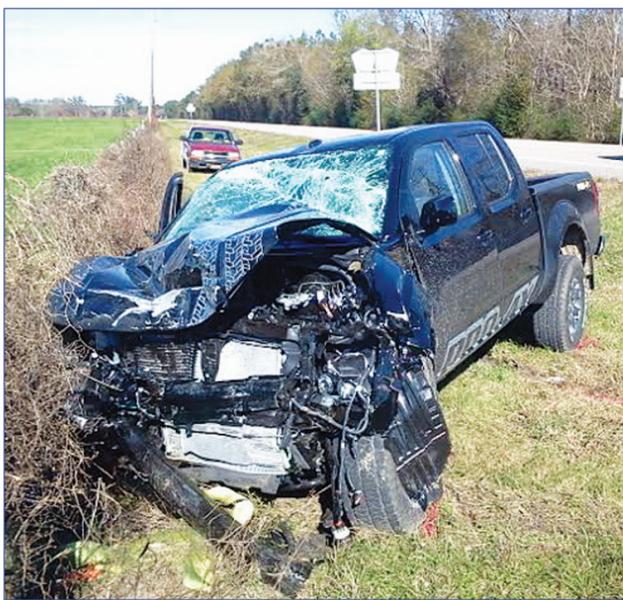

According to the report from the Florida Highway Patrol, Jason Brown, 33, of Hosford was westbound on C.R. 286 around 10:35 a.m. on Jan. 3 when he failed to heed a stop sign as he approached the intersection of C.R. 274. His 2006 Ford F150 slammed into a 2014 Nissan Frontier traveling north on S.R. 69.

After impact, Brown's truck went off the road and overturned, hitting a utility pole and fence before landing on its right side in a pasture.

The Nissan hit the fence and came to a stop.

Chris Coleman, 36, was driving the Nissan. His wife, Sandy, 30, was sitting in the back seat next to their one-year-old daughter, Grace, who was secured in a car seat.

Coleman was taken by emergency helicopter to Tallahassee Memorial Hospital with serious injuries. Brown's condition was assessed as critical and he was flown to Bay Medical Center in Panama City.

Coleman's mother, Fay Duncan of Bristol, said the family of three was treated and released from the hospital that day.

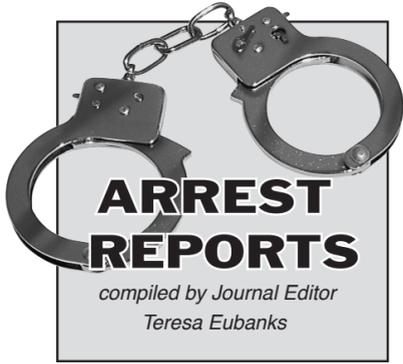

"Chris is just really bruised very, very badly and has a cut on his hand," she said. He was wearing a seatbelt, as was his wife. She suffered a broken collarbone and is waiting on a follow up exam, according to Duncan, who added, "She's moving quite slow."

Remarkably, the baby was uninjured except for "a small bruise on her face and a little scratch," she said. The carseat was facing the rear and spared the little girl from being cut when broken glass was thrown into the back seat. "There was glass in her diaper bag and all in the truck but it did not get on her," Duncan said.

The family had been living in Alabama for several years and had just returned to Liberty County, where they were staying with Duncan and her husband in Bristol. She said the couple had put their home on the market and it sold much quicker than expected, pushing ahead their plans to relocate. They had just gotten the new truck a couple of weeks earlier.

ARREST REPORTS

Man charged with robbery attempt

A man who threatened to "go crazy in there" after demanding money from the clerk at the Central Ave. East Southern Express was charged with attempted robbery and criminal mischief, according to Blountstown Police Chief Mark Mallory.

Brion Alexander Hall, also known as Brion Simmons, went to the store just before 4 p.m. on Dec. 31. When he tried to get the store clerk to hand over money from the register, she refused and tried to talk him out of it.

While he never displayed a weapon, the clerk reported that the man kept his hand in his pocket as if he was armed.

When the clerk failed to give him money, she said he got upset and starting knocking things off the store shelves, causing about $50 in damages.

Officers located Hall a couple of days later at S.E. Azalea Drive and took him into custody.

New Year's celebrant arrested on charge of disorderly intoxication

Blountstown Police Officers went to the residence of an intoxicated man on New Year's Day after receiving a report that he was rolling around on the ground and exposing himself.

Officers arrived at Sutton Creek Apartments at 4:45 p.m. and spotted Deshawn Holmes, who ran inside and locked the door. They knocked on the door for several minutes before he would open it and stepped out on the porch.

Holmes, who smelled strongly of alcohol and stumbled several times, was yelling and cursing at the men.

When attempts to calm and quiet him failed, officers arrested him on a charge of disorderly intoxication and took him to the county jail.

Woman escapes from custody after asking to go to bathroom

A woman charged with stalking last year who was also wanted for a probation violation picked up another charge last week when she slipped away from a deputy.

After Angela Dianne Mickel, 42, of Blountstown was taken into custody Monday, she stated that she had taken a drug overdose.

She was transported to Calhoun-Liberty Hospital for a medical examination before being booked into the county jail. She was handcuffed to a hospital bed when she asked the deputy on guard to let her go to the bathroom. He unlocked the handcuffs and let her go.

A few minutes later, around 10:23 a.m., he realized she had escaped through the adjacent bathroom door into the emergency room. From there, she ran out the back door and fled.

Deputies and a K-9 tracking team from Calhoun Correctional Institution were called in to search for the missing woman, who was back in custody at 11:48 a.m.

The escape charge was added to a list of previous charges, including stalking, violation of community release, failure to appear and possession of methamphetamine and drug paraphernalia.

TRUCK COLLISION

Chris was scheduled to begin a new job at Telogia Power on Monday and Sandy was to start work as a nurse in Tallahassee soon. Their plans will be delayed as they recuperate from the wreck.

"It wasn't until we got to the hospital that we realized we knew the person that hit them," Duncan said, explaining the two men, who are close in age, both grew up in Hosford.

"He's got a long recovery ahead but he will get better and he is alive," said Robin Blackburn about her son, Jason.

His injuries included a closed head injury, multiple fractures on his left side, internal injuries and an eight-inch laceration on his head, according to his wife, Emily.

"He has the use of all his extremities," she said. "We're very blessed that his injuries are not more extensive."

She said the impact threw him into the back seat. He was pulled out of his 2006 Ford F150 by a man who witnessed the accident.

According to his mother, Jason, who is a home health care therapist, was coming back to work in Blountstown after seeing a client in Chattahoochee when the trucks collided.

She said they were "all in shock" when they found out who was in the other vehicle, explaining, "Chris is a good friend of ours."

Brown was charged with running a stop sign. Both trucks were totaled.

Fired LCSO lieutenant files federal lawsuit against Sheriff Finch

A former lieutenant with the Liberty County Sheriff's Office who was fired the day newly-elected Sheriff Nick Finch began his term is accusing him of violating his civil rights in a suit filed in federal court Dec. 26.

Former School Resource Officer James Lowery actively supported the incumbent, Sheriff Donnie Conyers, and campaigned for him. The suit alleges the sheriff took away Lowery's job on Jan. 1, 2013 as an act of retaliation, stating that Finch posted a message on Facebook warning that he would be "cleaning house" with those who did not support him.

The reason given for Lowery's firing was that his "managerial, confidential, or policymaking position...was no longer needed," according to the suit. "Plaintiff's position is not managerial, confidential or policy making," according to the statement of facts listed in the document.

The suit also claims that other employees who were either over the age of 40 and/or did not support the new sheriff's campaign lost their jobs.

Lowery is asking for damages, including punitive damages, and well as attorney's fees, costs and reinstatement to his job.

Panhandle Pioneer Settlement marks silver anniversary

When people think of Panhandle Pioneer Settlement, a few things naturally come to mind: busloads of school-children having the time of their lives, sweet sugarcane syrup made onsite and tourists from all over the world asking questions about the rustic life of Florida's pioneers.

As the Settlement celebrates its silver anniversary this year, co-founders Willard Smith, 74, and his wife, Linda Smith, 75, remember envisioning a place where the rapidly disappearing world of their youth would be preserved for future generations to experience.

"The seed for this idea was planted when we saw Calhoun County go from extreme poverty with no electricity and no running water in the late 1940s and early 1950s to having both," said Linda Smith.

Today, the Settlement provides an incomparable look into Florida's past with 18 historical, fully furnished buildings dating from 1820 to the 1940s, all of which were relocated from within Calhoun County and nearby Jackson and Washington counties. To complete the picture, several "recreated" buildings were faithfully constructed with period techniques.

"I'm very pleased with what we've accomplished in 25 years," said Willard Smith, who personally teaches classes on sugarcane syrup making and blacksmithing. "In addition to preserving local history, one of our main goals was to bring tourists and income into Calhoun County and put Blountstown on the map."

The idyllic life depicted at the Settlement sometimes stands in sharp contrast to the realities of keeping a living-history museum afloat — especially in Florida's low-income, rural Panhandle. Even in the best of times, the Settlement has often struggled to make ends meet in the off-season, and never has enough volunteers.

Smith says people are routinely amazed to learn that it takes $2,000 a week to operate the multifaceted museum.

"There is always a lot of maintenance to do on buildings that are nearly 200 years old," he said. "We can spend $1,000 on paint for porches and steps." If the unsolicited, gushing praise of visitors is any indication, whatever the Settlement is doing, it must be doing it right.

"Because of our authenticity, people are always telling us that this is the best living-history museum they've ever seen," Linda Smith said. "They truly appreciate what is here."

Hog butchering at the Settlement

On Thursday, Jan. 16, starting at 8 a.m. (CT) the Panhandle Pioneer Settlement will hold a Hog Butchering Class. The class will teach killing, butchering and preservation techniques. This is a hands-on class and will give you the knowledge and experience necessary for dressing your own hogs.

This class has limited spots available so don't hesitate to sign up. The class is $25 per person with a mandatory $10 deposit. Please call Diane Watson at (850) 674-2777 or send an email at ppsmuseum@yahoo.com.

New Year's Baby joins four siblings following home birth in Blountstown

by Teresa Eubanks, Journal Editor

A little girl with a unique name made her entrance into the world on New Year's Day during a home birth in Blountstown.

When Oceanna Praise Yoder arrived at 5:20 p.m. Jan. 1, 2014, she let out a cry immediately. "That was so good to hear," said her mother, Angela Yoder, 30.

In the hours leading up to the birth, Joshua Yoder, 33, held his wife's hand and gave her water as they waited. "I did catch the baby when she came out," he said.

A midwife and her assistant were at their side to guide the couple's fifth child into the world.

After having their first baby in a hospital a decade earlier, the Yoders decided they would try something different the next time. They went to The Birth Cottage in Tallahassee for babies #2, #3 and #4, where midwives provide a family-oriented atmosphere. "You go in, have the baby and leave in about two hours," Angela said of the experience.

Midwife Dianna Janopaul helped with the last two births. The Yoders asked her to be a part of Oceanna's big day. "She is beautiful and pink and perfect," Janopaul said about the newborn on her Facebook page for her business, "Where the Heart Is Midwifery."

Oceanna weighed seven pounds and 12 ounces and measured 20 inches in length. "She had really good skin color...we were very thankful," Angela said.

"When I was in labor, the assistant would check the baby's heartbeat and check my blood pressure - which was rising," she said. While acknowledging that the home birth experience is not for everyone, she explained her choice: "I have a good history of non-complicated births. My mom did, too."

All five children were delivered naturally, but she admits that when her labor pains got stronger and lasted longer with Oceanna last week, "I didn't feel brave."

At one point, she told the midwife, "I want an epidural," although aware she was long past that point. "You're almost done," Janopaul told her. "I had the baby within the hour," she said.

Angela is the second oldest of nine siblings. Her husband is one of five. Oceanna - who will likely be nicknamed "Ocea" - has one sister, four-year-old Jasmine, and three big brothers. The eldest is Judah, 10, followed by seven-year-old Weston and Forrest, who is five.

The kids stayed with Joshua's parents,

David and Sharon Yoder, while their parents prepared for the new arrival at their home. The family visited a few hours after the baby's birth and went home with their grandparents for the night, giving Oceanna's parents a rare bit of time alone together.

"It was nice to have the house quiet where I could rest and take care of the baby," Angela said, adding that her husband "took care of me."

Joshua works with his father's septic tank company. She stays busy running the household and homeschooling the children, like her mother did for her.

Angela, who lived in Colquitt, GA, met Joshua at a youth group program at Red Oak Community Mennonite Church, which they still attend.

"I feel a little spoiled when I watch mothers with children go to work," she said, explaining she likes staying at home, teaching her children and selecting their curriculum. While the family enjoys watching movies together, they don't watch t.v. shows or have internet access at home. "I grew up homeschooled and these are my convictions...I enjoy my life," she said.

Angela, who has sisters who are twins, joked that she's glad her children came one at a time. When asked if her fifth child completed her family, she replied, "We're not planning any more but you never know when there will be a surprise."

Joshua and Angela Yoder are shown with their newborn and the rest of their family.

COX'S CORNER

Jerry Cox is a retired military officer and writer with an extensive background in domestic and foreign policy issues. He lives in Okaloosa County.

The Christmas season is a wonderful time, but it's fantasy. If we could enjoy Christmas all year, then it would be a wonderful life filled with the magic of Oz. But the Christmas season is over. Time to take down the tree. Time to go back to work. Time to pay the bills. Time for a reality check and that hurts.

People are resolving to do all the things that they aren't going to do. Go on a diet and lose weight. Great idea but eating squash or kale can't compete very long with a longing for a burger and fries.

I'm going to exercise more. Great idea, but it's raining so maybe I should put off walking around the neighborhood until it's a nice sunny day, like in August. Waiting gives me time to think about it...walking, that is.

But as a society, we should make some resolutions. We should resolve as a society to get our act together. A Dutch friend e-mailed during the Republican inspired government shutdown commenting that we were acting like "keystone kops."

American politics have always been confrontational. The Federalists and Anti-Federalists from colonial days are alive and well today. Americans can't or won't decide as to how much government should exist.

There are those who believe in "smaller government." Of course, they refuse to say what smaller government is or what it should look like. Right-wingers and Libertarians seem to dislike that part of government that requires them to participate in representative government, which is the basis of the American political system.

They speak about their loss of freedom which seems to be a protest against some aspect of the Rule of Law. The belief that 330 million people can co-exist without societal rules is an invitation to anarchy.

Even the most primitive tribes have tribal rules most of which are "socialist" by American standards. Example, tribal rules might require sharing of food gathered or animals killed. Tribal rules recognize that some in the tribe, the elderly, are unable to forage for food and must be cared for by others in the tribe.

America's tribe, particularly Republicans, doesn't share the belief that some Americans are unable to forage for themselves and requires the American community to take care of them. In America, the poor, the afflicted, the unfortunate are seen as leeches on society. In America, if a person hasn't pulled themselves up by their bootstraps, then tough luck.

"Gotcha politics" must stop. Both political parties are warring factions. Attack, take no prisoners. Trash each other. Defeat any idea that might be good for the American people.

If there was ever a case of the inmates taking over the asylum, the U.S. Congress is it. The government we have today is not representative government. It's "Gladiator" government. A fight to the death about even the most trivial of issues.

The election of a black man to the White House not once but twice has tumbled the gyros of the people on the right, particularly people from the South. I'm a southerner and a senior citizen, and I remember the days of white and black bathrooms, white only water fountains and back of the bus for African Americans. My view is that racism is alive and well.

It is documented from day one of the Obama presidency that the Republican goal was to defeat any program, any effort and any initiative that Obama may put forth. They have been almost 100% successful.

The Affordable Care Act or ObamaCare is a classic example of Republican political disservice to the American people. Republicans have trashed this program claiming that if it continues we are all going to die and go straight to Hell. Republicans claim that the law is a scourge on America.

The Obama administration bolloxed the webpage setup in grand style which gave the Republicans and the news media, both left and right, the opportunity to make political hay out of a serious effort to provide the American people with an opportunity to see a doctor.

If you listen to the Republican catcalls, you would think that attempting to provide healthcare to Americans is some kind of evil, diabolical plot. Tell that to the woman with breast cancer or the family with seriously ill children. Who cares? Mitt Romney said they are part of the 47% that depend on the government for their livelihood.

Here is a solution. Amend the Constitution so that presidents and senators get only one six-year term and representatives get one four-year term. Only one term in the Congress and that is it, and no government pension.

Defy the Supreme Court and pass a law that no one can contribute to a national candidate. All qualified candidates get a campaign stipend from the government. That would end the "buying of congress." Also, limit political campaigns to four months, then have a vote.

Then with a Congress that isn't bought and paid for, establish what government functions are essential and establish a taxing system to pay for government services.

I know, my view trashes the Bill of Rights, but what is the alternative? More of the same inept government which is going to be the unraveling of American democracy.

I'd have a hard time eating a hardhead

Hardheads are the black sheep of the catfish family – slimy saltwater cousins of the more respectable channel cats. If they were humans, you'd probably find them in jail or lurking in dark alleys or looking for spare change in vending machines.

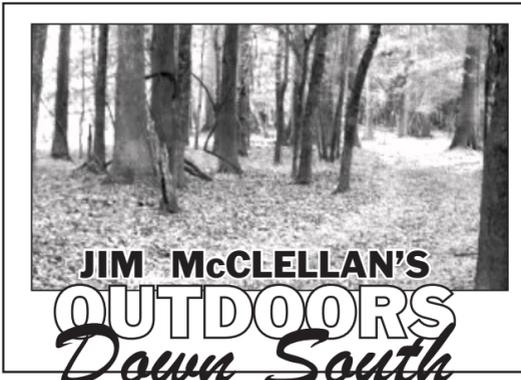

In terms of fishing, their only claim to fame is that they're a third of a trash-fish triple. Add a stingray and a ladyfish and you've got yourself the inverse of an inshore slam.

The worst part is that they fight just hard enough to let you think you've got a trout or small redfish on. Then you see that dull gray body with the dull white belly and the small flames of hope are doused by the urine stream of bitter disappointment.

The catfish misery doesn't necessarily end there either. He can still fin you and slime you while you're taking him off the hook. Some grunt obscenities at you in the process.

All in all, they're an easy fish to hate. But I used to wonder if we were judging saltwater catfish too harshly. What if they're actually good to eat? What if they're like triggerfish and we've just assumed they're bad without finding out for sure?

One person who claimed that to be true was my father. He said he cooked some up once and placed them alongside the other fish he was frying for a group of people.

"People couldn't tell the difference between the saltwater catfish and the channel cats," he said.

On the surface, that's compelling. He was a guy that cooked as many fish as anybody. And I don't doubt his story, but there are still some problems with it.

For starters, "couldn't tell the difference" is a whole ocean away from "really loved them" or even "liked them," especially when you're talking about fish. Second, he never said exactly who these people were. What if they didn't know catfish from cat food?

Most telling is the fact that, no matter what he said, I never saw him put one in the ice chest when we were fishing. My guess is that, if he thought they were all that good, I would have been cleaning them by the boatload.

The truth is, I've never tried saltwater catfish and don't need to. That's because I've got a better data source for such things in my nephew, Jeff.

Jeff isn't what you would call a picky eater. His favorite kind of food is more, and the way he prefers it cooked is quickly. The second word Jeff learned was oyster, and for about 35 years he's put away everything that was put in front of him without hesitation.

So as his father and I were talking about the merits of saltwater catfish, Bill ended the discussion by saying, "I've cooked some before and Jeff didn't like it."

Good enough.

Having Jeff tell me the food is bad is the same as a polar bear telling me the water is cold. In either case, I don't need a second opinion and I don't want to find out firsthand.

Black crappie abound in lakes around Florida

Welcome to 2014. Black crappie are favorite cool-weather targets for freshwater anglers, so join the fun, check your fishing license (License.MyFWC.com) and the list of top sites and tips below and go fishing. What better way to start off a new year than with some healthy outdoor activity and a mess of fresh fish?

Crappie are among the most popular freshwater fishes in Florida. Their deep body with nearly symmetrical dorsal and anal fins and a speckled pattern on the body make them easy to distinguish. Crappie spend much of their time offshore, feeding on small fish. This time of year they will be preparing to spawn and, as the temperatures reach 62-65 degrees Fahrenheit, they move inshore to build nests in colonies. Nests over gravel or muddy bottoms in depths of 3-8 feet are fanned by males.

Crappie eat crustaceans, insects and small fishes. A bright, 1/16-oz. to 1/8-oz. jig or Halfies will produce once they are inshore. If they are schooling offshore, drift Missouri minnows or grass shrimp below a float, with a #4 hook and small split shot. Depth is key, as crappie school at the same level, so experiment until you find the right depth.

Crappie (aka speckled perch or papermouth) longer than 14 inches or heavier than 2 pounds qualify for a Big Catch angler-recognition certificate (www.BigCatchFlorida.com). Youth under 16 can participate with an entry longer than 10 inches or heavier than 1.5 pounds. Easy registration makes people eligible for both Big Catch and TrophyCatch (which rewards anglers for catching-documenting-releasing largemouth bass heavier than 8 pounds), as well as a drawing to take place in October 2014 for a Phoenix bass boat powered by Mercury.

Looking for the best places to go? Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) fisheries biologists compile annual lists of top fishing sites for bass, crappie, bream, catfish or striped bass. It is available at MyFWC.com/Fishing (select "Freshwater" and "Fishing Sites and Forecasts"). You can also find quarterly updated regional forecasts for other key water bodies, with links for more current information.

Here are the selections for your best black crappie fishing in 2014, as compiled by Cheree Steward, FWC fisheries biologist.

- Lake Talquin (8,800-acre reservoir, west of Tallahassee)
- Lochloosa Lake (5,705 acres, between Gainesville and Ocala)
- Lake Weir (5,685 acres, south Marion County)
- Lake Griffin (10,000 acres, Lake County)
- Lake Monroe (9,406 acres, near Sanford)
- West Lake Tohopekaliga (18,810 acres, south of the city of Kissimmee)
- Lake Kissimmee (34,976 acres, east of the city of Lake Wales)
- Lake Marian (5,742 acres, Osceola County, east of Lake Kissimmee)
- Mosaic Fish Management Area (1,000 acres, southern Polk County)
- Tenoroc Fish Management Area (8,300 acres, Polk County)
- Lake Weohyakapka (Walk-in-Water) (7,800 acres, east of Lake Wales)
- Lake Arbuckle (3,800 acres, east of Frostproof)
- Lake Marion (2,990 acres, east of Haines City)
- Lake Istokpoga (28,000 acres, near Sebring)
- Lake Trafford (1,500 acres, southeast of Fort Myers, in Immokalee)

Crappie are considered to be some of the tastiest freshwater fishes. With general bag limits for crappie set at a generous 25 fish and no size limit, unless otherwise specified, you can easily take a "mess" home to eat. So bring your family and friends and get out on the water.

Instant licenses are available at MyFWC.com/License or by calling 888-FISH-FLORIDA (347-4356).

Liberty County Extension Office wins Peanut Butter Challenge

Peanuts produced in our part of the state are the preferred type for peanut butter. From Jefferson County west to Escambia County there are approximately 90,000 acres of peanut grown. Jackson County produces more than any other county in the northwest at approximately 34,000 acres.

The UF/IFAS Extension Northwest District has completed its second annual Peanut Butter Challenge. The Peanut Butter Challenge was created as a friendly competition among county faculty to bring about awareness of peanut production and a way to give to local communities.

Thanks to many of you who donated peanut butter, Liberty County won the small county division bringing in 708 pounds of peanut butter. The Florida Peanut Producers matched the donations, giving Liberty County Nearly 1226 pounds of peanut butter was donated to the Calhoun Liberty Ministry Center for distribution in the food boxes.

690 jars of peanut butter. Approximately 1226 pounds of peanut butter was donated to the Calhoun Liberty Ministry Center for distribution in the food boxes that are given to those in need. The Northwest district collected 9100 jars or 10,880 pounds of peanut butter that have been given to local pantries from Jefferson County to Escambia County.

Peanut butter is very nutritious meat alternate. Peanuts contain an incredible 26% protein. When you add bread to peanut butter it makes a complete protein and is a lot less expensive than most meats. Americans eat on average three pounds of peanut butter per person per year. The average child will eat 1,500 peanut butter and jelly sandwiches before he/she graduates high school.

The UF/IFAS Extension Northwest District faculty enjoys this project as a way to give back to our communities.

Job Fair and Expo planned on Jan. 16 in Tallahassee

TALLAHASSEE - WORKFORCE plus presents the 2014 Job Fair and Expo on Thursday, Jan. 16 at the Donald L. Tucker Civic Center, 505 W Pensacola Street, Tallahassee, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., which is offered at no cost to job seekers and employers.

More than 75 businesses at the job fair are hiring candidates for full-time, part-time and temporary positions in the Capital Region. Various industries represented include healthcare, government, information technology, manufacturing, retail, financial services and law enforcement.

"In order to continue to reduce our region's unemployment numbers, we have to find creative ways to match job-ready applicants with employers who are hiring," said WORKFORCE plus CEO Jim McShane. "Our annual job fair is just one way we are providing re-employment opportunities in our surrounding communities."

Job seekers are encouraged to bring several copies of their resume, to dress professionally, and to register a profile in the Employ Florida Marketplace before arriving to avoid long lines. To prepare for the job fair, WORKFORCE plus is hosting several workshops including basic resume writing, interviewing techniques, dress for success, cover letter basics, network building and more.

"This year we have encouraged employers to host on-site interviews to more easily find the talent they need," said Kara Palmer, WORKFORCE plus director of client services & advancement. "We believe this new approach will increase the number of immediate job placements for our region."

Sponsors for the 2014 Job Fair and Expo include Dynamic Workforce Solutions, The Economic Development Council of Tallahassee/Leon County, Inc., the Greater Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce County and Keiser University.

For more information about WORKFORCE plus and the multitude of programs offered, go to www.wfplus.org or call 1-866-WFP-JOB1. Programs funded through WORKFORCE plus are equal opportunity programs with auxiliary aids and services available upon request to individuals with disabilities. Persons using TTY/TTD equipment use Florida Relay Service 711.

WORKFORCE plus provides comprehensive employment and workforce services by connecting work-ready job seekers with diverse and competitive employment opportunities in Gadsden, Leon and Wakulla Counties. Here's How It Works:
 Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Like puzzles?
 Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!
