Graduate students choose new health plan

Proposal benefits most students

By JEFF SIRMONS

 jsirmons@alligator.org

Prices for graduate student health insurance will rise for most students, but those students, who conduct about 40 percent of UF's research, will not be affected equally.

The Student Government Health Insurance Commission voted Thursday to switch to a system that would put a greater payment burden on graduate students aged 26 to 30.

All other graduate students benefit from the switch because their payment increase through the Gainesville-based Scarborough Insurance is lower under the adopted proposal than if another plan were selected.

For example, a 40-year-old graduate student, who arguably needs insurance the most and typically pays the most for it, would pay the same as a 26-year-old starting this Fall.

"We tried to find the best possible plan that helps out the most people," Chairman Joshua Aubuchon said. "Scarborough Insurance has done a great job working with us to create the best deal."

Under the new plan, 70 percent of graduate students benefit from the switch; however, some students opposed the approved plan.

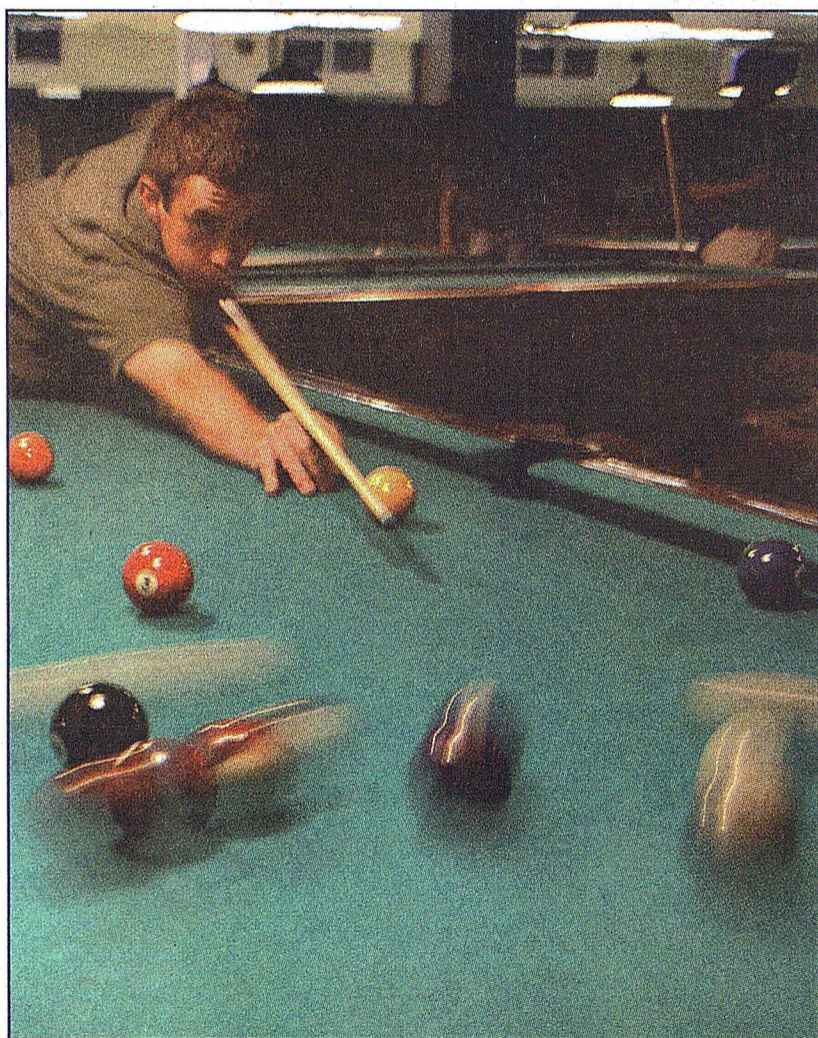

"The Graduate Assistants United felt the flat-rate plan provided a fair rate for all students," GAU co-president Victor Romano said.

"The option selected was a mixed bag that really benefited only the older age bracket."

Under the flat-rate plan, all graduate students would have paid $1,420 for coverage. Graduate students will pay either $1,262 or $1,588, depending on their age, under the approved proposal.

Even if the GAU-favored flat-rate plan was selected, GAU would have continued to fight for better coverage, he added.

UAA usurps student lots

THE PARKING SPACES ARE USED TO HOST GATOR BOOSTERS.

By DAVID COHEN

 dcohen@alligator.org

Next Fall, when the renovated Murphree Hall reopens, its students could be towed for legally parking there — all in the interests of Gator Spirit.

The University Athletic Association pays a yearly fee to Finance and Administration to supply parking for 6,000 of its Gator Boosters, who help fund academic scholarships for UF athletes, during home football events.

"We contribute to [UF's] operating fund for parking lots, in general, so that we have use of them for football game day," said Melissa Stuckey, assistant athletic director for UAA Operations & Facilities. "We move [the car] so it's not in a reserved space, at no cost to [the owner]. It's not moved, it's relocated."

That means even if UF students or faculty members with valid decals are legally parked in these select areas and are not members of the organization, they are towed, though at no expense of their own.

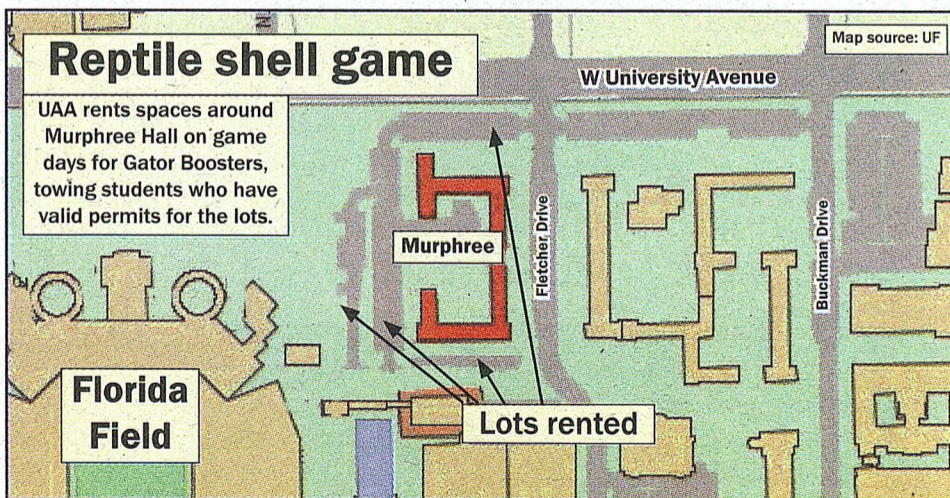

Stuckey said her organization has been paying $200,000 every year for the past five years for the spaces, but UF Business Services Director Jim Morgan quoted the figure at $300,000.

Nevertheless, residents of the Murphree Area, which is composed of the five dormitories located closest to Ben Hill Griffin Stadium, do not appreciate the situation.

Many of them park their vehicles in the Red-1 lots that abut Murphree Hall on its north and south sides, both of which are taken over by the UAA during home games.

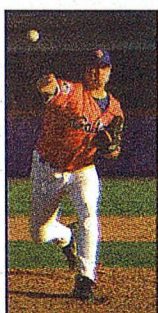

The UAA also reserves the orange faculty parking lots west of Murphree Hall, along with other areas on campus.

Vigil honors violence victims

By MEGAN V. WINSLOW

Alligator Writer
mwinslow@alligator.org

Cupping her hand around a slender white candle, Bridget Desue stood with her face to the wind and attempted to protect the tiny flame that represented her slain brother.

Desue was one of about 60 other community members who gathered Thursday to honor victims and survivors with a candlelight vigil.

As the sun went down over the memorial gardens of Squirrel Ridge Park, friends and families of victims and representatives from various victim advocacy groups across the county formed a circle of support and listened as poems were read and words of hope were shared.

Ten years ago today, Desue's brother Dwan Christopher was choked and shot to death as he slept.

For years his family and friends have attended the yearly event to remember his life, and comfort others who have lost loved ones.

"You can help a person it just happened to," said Betty Irving, Desue's aunt. "You can support them and be there for them because you know how it is. And the park - it's a wonderful place. It helps, it really does."

Under a canopy of trees, the garden contains flowers planted in honor of victims, benches bearing their names, and an area commemorating the 1990 student murders.

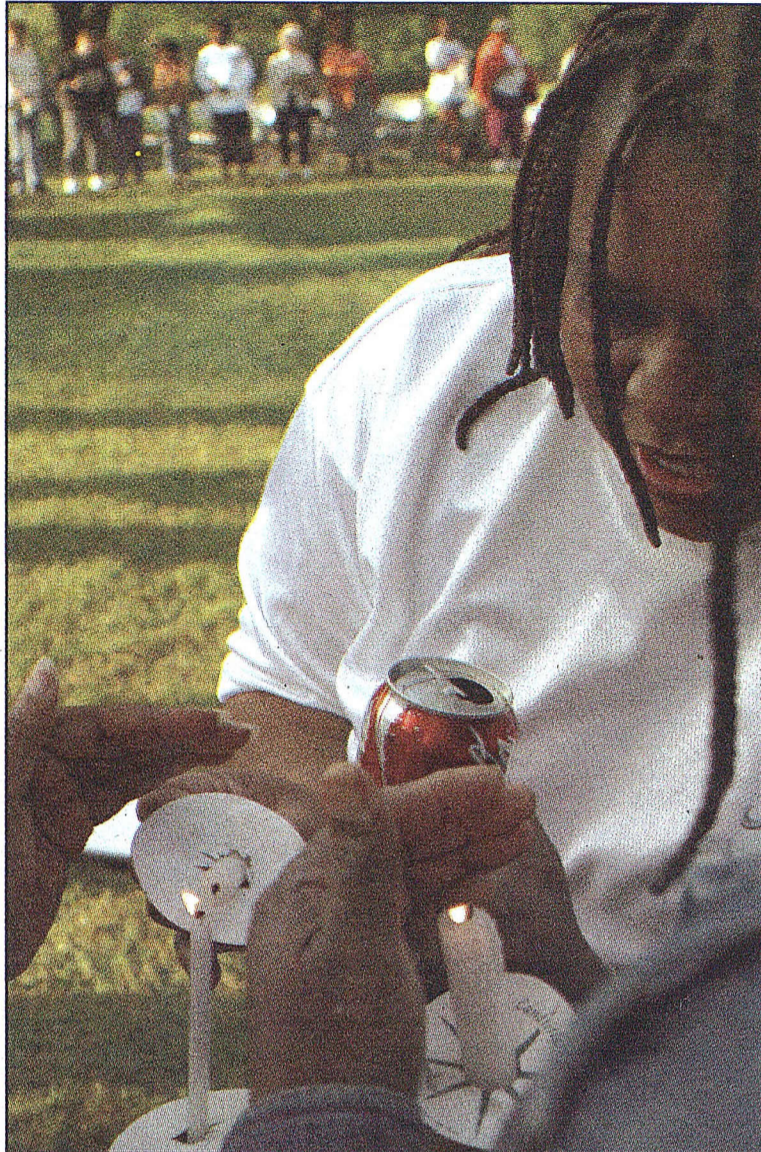

Fold-up tables were set up where attendees could paint small tiles to commemorate victims.

Many were landscapes with words like "hope" and "peace." Others read "Miss you, Connie," and "In honor of Beverly."

The tiles are expected to become part of a movable display that will be showcased within the Alachua County Courthouse and other locations around Gainesville.

Assistant State Attorney Marc Peterson attended the event along with many other representatives from the State Attorney's Office.

and nobody really remembers the victim - other than the family," he said. "It allows people to remember that there are victims and families that have lost loved ones."

The vigil was sponsored by Peaceful Paths, the Alachua County Child Advocacy Center and the victim service units of the Alachua County Sheriff's Office, State

Attorney's Office, University of Florida and Alachua County.

Another in attendance was Eyvette Harris, whose brother Kevin was shot to death in 2003. Only recently was the shooter, Willie Hudson, convicted of manslaughter for the crime.

"I'm glad I could come to this as a healing process," Harris said. "This is the beginning of tomorrow."

RTS to increase county services

■ THE ALACHUA COUNTY COMMISSION RECENTLY APPROVED BUDGETS ALLOWING FOR EXPANSION.

By IVETTE MENDEZ

Alligator Writer
imendez@alligator.org

Regional Transit System is expanding its services more extensively outside city limits.

The Alachua County Commission approved two budgets presented by RTS Interim Director Jesus Gomez for the operating costs of several bus routes outside Gainesville proper for the next three years.

"One of the contracts is to serve outside city limits," Gomez said. "Some on the East side, some are to Santa Fe."

The contracts, however, do not include any enhancements to the bus routes, only covering existing routes.

"We haven't talked about any enhancements yet," Gomez said.

Some years ago, an RTS proposition to SFCC would have enhanced service on routes 10 and 43 and added a new route but did not come to fruition because SFCC couldn't finance the changes, he said.

Due to SFCC's inability to charge a transportation fee to its students, the plan was unable to go forward.

SFCC's Student Government has been looking for ways to improve bus transportation to and from the campus.

Though there is a bill before the Florida Legislature regarding community colleges' ability to negotiate transportation fee contracts, it has yet to be approved.

Unlike universities, community colleges cannot forge any sort of agreement with transit entities, such as the credit hour-based contract UF has with RTS.

SFCC Student Senate President Katharine Bucca and student Daniel Jones took initiative by asking for a referendum reviewing the benefits of annexation into the city of Gainesville in the hopes that being part of the city would give them better leverage to negotiate a contract with RTS.

"This is a student-driven initiative," said Larry Keen, SFCC spokesman, who went to Tallahassee to lobby for the fee contract legislation with 10 students in February.

"The primary reason is bus coverage," he added.

SFCC's administration will not be affected if the annexation does take place, Keen said.

The college is allowing the residents who are impacted the most by the decision to run the campaign.

"It's up to the residents and the business people affected," Keen said. "The school doesn't have a position."

SG leaders prepare to make agency appointments

Applications due today for various positions

By BRIDGET CAREY
Alligator Staff Writer
bcarey@alligator.org

Student Government is opening its doors to fill as many as 66 leadership positions for next year, and today is the last day to apply to potentially make a difference.

Students must turn in applications by 4 p.m. today to the SG office on the 3rd floor of the Reitz Union.

Interviews will be scheduled beginning next week.

The list of positions includes chair of Student Government Productions, the student-run organization with the largest budget in SG that brings entertainment to campus.

Also up for appointment is chair of Accent, the student-run organization which brings speakers to UF.

"There's one more day to show the student body you want to make a difference," Student Body President-elect Joe Goldberg said. "Find something that interests you, show your passion and apply."

Goldberg said positions will not be appointed until Summer A, after he takes office May 1.

Applications are being accepted for directors and chairs of all 41 SG cabinets.

As of Thursday evening, 140 students applied to be cabinet leaders.

Notable applicants for cabinet positions include ex-candidates MacKenzie Moritz and Adam Roberts from the unsuccessful Progress Party.

Student Government

Student Body Vice President-elect Joyce Medina will make cabinet appointments.

There are about 13 spots open for heads of SG agencies and departments, and the supervisor of elections, SGP and the Tower Yearbook have had three applicants each.

Student Body Treasurer-elect Lindsay Cosimi has been interviewing for assistant treasurers, a new position for SG through which students can serve as liaisons between the executives and student groups.

She also is accepting applications until today, and so far about 26 people have applied, she said. Cosimi added she will make between nine and 12 appointments.

Applications are available in the SG office or online at www.sg.ufl.edu.

UF investigates text messaging

■ CLASS CANCELLATIONS AND OTHER LAST-MINUTE NEWS SOON COULD BE SENT TO CELL PHONES.

By RAMONA JONES
Alligator Contributing Writer

UF is seeking yet another way to connect to students, with the possibility of a university-hosted Short Message Service system in the works.

Mobile Campus representatives proposed the program to UF information technology professionals and student leaders at a meeting April 7.

Student Body Treasurer Dennis Ngin worked on coordinating the venture for almost a year. He said he was excited to see the idea making strides toward being a reality.

"The university has the potential to make a mark and pioneer a new communication system in the United States that would bring amazing benefits to the student body," Ngin said.

The program would include instant messages to students' cellular phones regarding class changes and school emergencies that are usually sent through e-mail, Ngin said.

He anticipated that, depending on student response, the program could be in place as early as Fall or next Spring once plans are finalized and Mobile Campus carries out marketing.

Steven Bourdon, Student Government computer support analyst, has worked with the project since the idea emerged about a year ago.

"There are several layers of communication that this application will be able to provide," Bourdon said. "University administrators, professors and organizations will be able to alert students concerning critical announcements, and students will be able to communicate with other students."

The optional service will allow students to set up a profile that would include which organizations to receive messages from and when they would receive messages, Bourdon said.

"Say, for instance, you wanted to send a message to everyone in your sorority to get their shirt sizes for an event," Bourdon said. "Not only could everyone respond back with a given value, but the application would compile the responses and give you one message with the number requested for each size."

The only downfall for the student body Bourdon said he could see was the possible cost of text messages students would incur, depending on their cell phone plan.

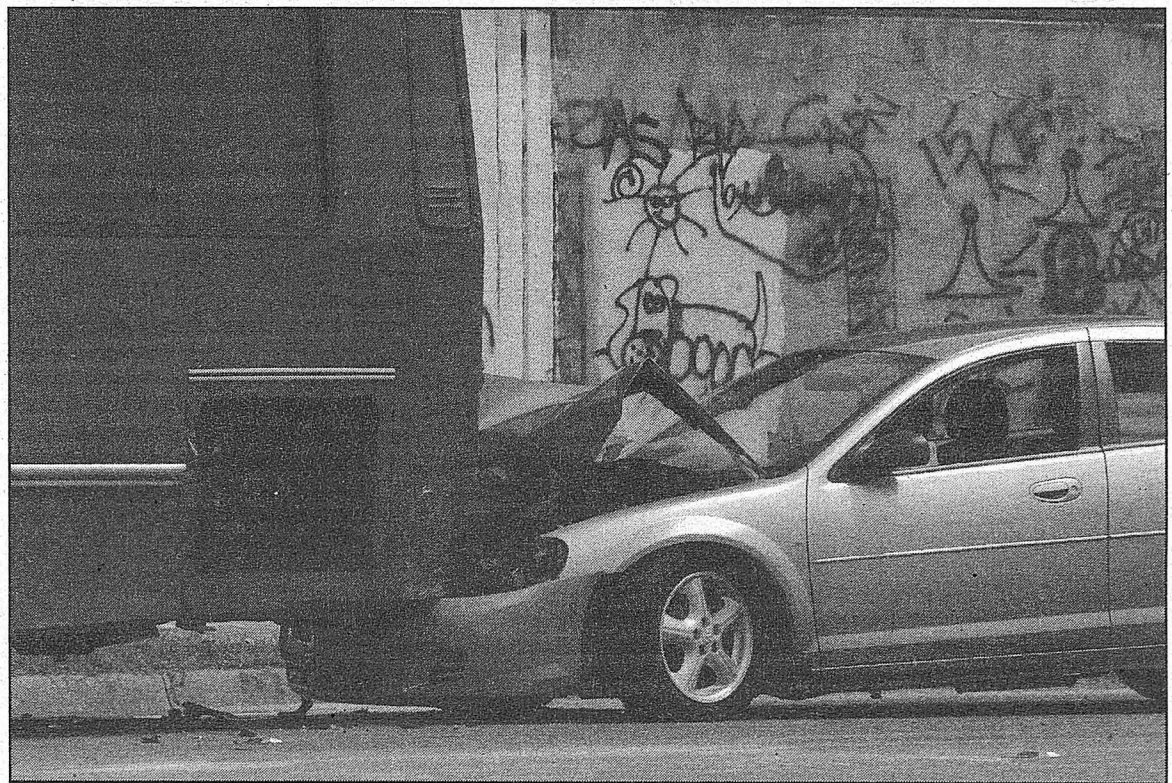

"The students don't have to subscribe to the service, and the university is not bound to any contract as far as I know," Bourdon said. "And if the students try it and don't see any value, the program just goes away."

Third-year journalism student Risa Polansky said there doesn't seem to be a point to replacing e-mail for school information.

"People check their e-mail on their phones, and there are computers everywhere on campus," Polansky said. "And tech-savvy people usually have Palm Pilots anyway."

Polansky said getting bombarded with text messages isn't something she would consider a convenience.

However, Polansky also added, "I'm interested to see how it works out, and I hope they try it out."

FACULTY SENATE

Professors struggle for say in UF affairs

By JEFF SIRMONS
Alligator Writer
jsirmons@alligator.org

Pierre Ramond, chairman of UF's Faculty Senate, said he has worked toward creating a foundation for a working relationship with the UF administration so the faculty can have increased involvement in the governance of UF.

"We're not quite at that stage yet," said Ramond, who helmed his last Senate meeting Thursday. "If our faculty does their homework and learns what they need to do, we should be able to have shared governance of this university sometime down the road."

Amid a battle between the Legislature and the UF administration for control of tuition, the Faculty Senate has fought for shared governance, a policy that gives the faculty equal say with the administration on how UF should be managed.

Proponents of shared governance argue that faculty should be a part of the decision-making process in purely academic affairs.

"Faculty should be in charge of curriculum, graduation requirements, academic freedom and scholarships," said Danaya Wright, who was elected Senate chairwoman for the 2006-2007 school year at Thursday's meeting. "We should govern what affects us."

Ramond

In the future, Ramond expects to see increased involvement in the Faculty Senate to improve its chances of earning shared governance.

"It would be unthinkable for the administration not to tap into the knowledge of the faculty," he said.

UF President Bernie Machen said at the meeting that he is working toward defining what falls under faculty responsibility and administrators' responsibility.

"There have been different opinions, but never has it been disagreeable," Machen said.

In other Senate news, Machen encouraged faculty members to take the UF faculty survey, which will be administered next week. The survey will be identical to the survey taken in Fall 2004 and will serve as a valuable evaluation of Machen's performance as president.

"Hopefully, we will have the same kind of faculty interest and response as we did last semester," Machen said.

Additionally, senators opposed a proposal to cut off a class day for the next two semesters so students will be able to graduate without the burden of taking an exam the same day as commencement ceremonies.

Opponents argued that losing a class day would hinder UF in its mission to become a Top 10 public university.

Other alternatives to cutting a class day are Sunday graduations or Sunday exams, Associate Provost Sheila Dickison said.

"The College of Education has Sunday graduations, and that's been going fine for them," Dickison said. "Plus, most of our peer institutions have no problem holding graduations on Sunday."

TAKING FREEDOM BY FORCE

Group advocates spying on faculty

By JAMES VANLANDINGHAM

Alligator Staff Writer
jvanl@alligator.org

In 2001, journalist Barbara Ehrenreich published an acclaimed book, "Nickel and Dimed: On (Not) Getting by in America."

Recounting Ehrenreich's attempt to make ends meet while working minimum-wage jobs through 1998, the book peers into the world of America's waitresses, janitors and hotel maids in an era when dot-com millionaires and lionized CEOs captivated national attention.

The New York Times Book Review hailed Ehrenreich as a "premier reporter," and a play based on the book premiered to glowing reviews at the Hippodrome State Theatre last October.

So when the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill added the book in 2003 to a summer reading list mandatory for incoming freshmen, little trouble was expected.

In July of that year, a group of students called The Committee for a Better Carolina held a press conference denouncing the book as a "classic Marxist rant" and a work of "intellectual pornography with no redeeming characteristics." The students demanded the book be pulled from the reading list.

The Committee is one of the first local chapters of Students for Academic Freedom, a national group that is pushing "Academic Freedom Bill of Rights" bills like the one filed in Florida by Rep. Dennis Baxley (R-Ocala). Similar bills have been filed in at least 16 other states.

Sara Dogan, national campus director for the organization, wrote in September 2003 that the "socialist tract" should not have been assigned to UNC students.

"The University should not be used as a tool of political indoctrination," she wrote. "Independent thinking is discouraged when students are exposed to only one side of complicated political issues such as the role of free markets in the lives of poor Americans."

Over the past two years, the organization has ballooned, and under the leadership of conservative pundit David Horowitz, SAF has founded dozens of chapters across America's university campuses.

Reached on Thursday at the organization's K Street office in Washington, D.C., Dogan said word-of-mouth was the reason SAF had spread so quickly. And while UF doesn't yet have a chapter, several students have contacted her with interest in founding one, she said.

"It's a testament to how much these issues concern people," she said. "We don't call for firing of professors. We're not an ideological organization, not about conservative views or liberal views. We're just trying to promote greater intellectual diversity on campuses."

Dogan said that student members are guided by a handbook available at the group's Web site, www.studentsforacademicfreedom.org.

The handbook advises students forming a new chapter to first secure funding from student governments and supportive faculty and alumni. The students should then "research political bias and classroom indoctrination on [their] campus[es] by interviewing students and making a record of specific incidents."

Leaders should set up Web sites to encourage students to inform on their professors. The handbook cautions, "Be careful to do this honestly and fairly."

The group should note allegations of one-sided reading lists and faculty lecture series. They should "object to the absence of diversity among faculty in a particular department, in class curricula and in classes offered."

Next, they should report examples to the local media and "take a list of these abuses to parents and alumni and solicit funds."

Then go to the university president's office and "demand a redress of grievances, including an apology from the offending authority," the handbook says.

If the university refuses to "take corrective measures," students should notify the press and "make friends with [their] elected representatives on the Education Committees of [their] state Senate or Assembly."

Rep. Baxley is chairman of the House Education Council.

"The maximum pressure point for all academic institutions is the flow of alumni and government funds that support the institution," the handbook says. "Focus your activities on these vulnerable points of the university system. Continue the pressure until the authorities adopt and enforce 'The Academic Bill of Rights.'"

United Faculty of Florida President Tom Auxter, who also is a UF philosophy professor, said SAF's goal is to create "cells" of conservative students who will sign up for courses specifically to monitor what liberal professors say in class.

And if Baxley's bill passes the Legislature, the students could even sue the university and its professors on bias allegations.

While Baxley continues to insist the bill has no causative action, a staff analysis by the Senate Education Committee warns "the bill appears to create a cause of action for students to litigate against the public postsecondary education institution in which they are enrolled."

Moreover, the bill enjoins faculty to teach "all serious scholarly viewpoints" without defining that term. "Accordingly," the report says, "this provision invites student complaints as to the proper pedagogical method employed by the faculty."

The effect of the law, Auxter said, ironically would cause professors to watch their tongues in class while encouraging students to turn classroom debates into CNN's "Crossfire."

"The law would turn academic topics into political topics," Auxter said. "It would change what would happen in the classroom, and everything will be guarded and truncated to prevent controversy."

If a professor failed to take time accommodating each and every student, he would run the risk of being sued, he said.

"It means we'll be taken to court, potentially, if we don't change the nature of academic life."

But changing the nature of academic life is perhaps the burgeoning SAF movement's first priority.

On the SAF Web site, Michael McKnight, who was president of the Carolina committee in 2003, writes that his primary goal is to add "diversity of ideology" as a major factor in deciding which faculty to hire.

The university must "remedy this situation," he wrote, "where every campus department dealing with social issues — from political science to public policy — were filled to the brim with Democrats."

Ready or not: Tax deadline today

By JOHN W. COX

Alligator Contributing Writer

They say that two things in life are certain — death and taxes.

One of those takes Americans 6.6 billion hours to get ready for, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Gainesville residents are racing to submit their tax returns before today's deadline, said H & R Block district manager Nancy Strampello.

"You always have those last-minute filers," Strampello said.

All nine regional H & R district offices are full and are under a steady stream of customers, she said. Accountants will be working until midnight Friday preparing thousands of filings.

Area students have been a large portion of H & R Block's customers in the past several months, Strampello said.

UF freshman Andrew Hallock said he began preparing his tax forms three weeks ago.

"It was my first time doing it on my own so I had no idea what I was doing," he said.

Hallock said he wanted to avoid the headache of waiting until the last minute and not being ready.

"When you wait 'til the last minute you usually end up losing stuff," he said.

Students have started taking advantage of the online and call-in methods for filing taxes, Strampello said.

"We deal with quite a few students," she said.

When students do file their own taxes, they usually come early, Strampello said. They generally get help to do the job, though.

"A lot of times the students will let their parents take care of that," she said.

"We're trying to reduce unnecessary burden."

Michael Chesman

IRS Office of Taxpayer Burden Reduction director

Brian Melchar, of Gainesville's Donna S. Bowie CPA accountants, said waiting until the last minute to file taxes may not only be a headache, but also dangerous.

"We always have people that bring their stuff in late," he said. "If you're not done, the quality of the work probably is not that great."

The firm's employees begin working 60 hours per week in January, he said.

They plan for problems months ahead of time so they can avoid any mistakes, Melchar said.

Tax paperwork also puts a significant strain on the government. The White House budget office notes that tax work "towers over the entire paperwork burden for the rest of the federal government" and accounts for some 80 percent of all paperwork.

"If anything, those numbers are probably understated," said David Keating, president of the National Taxpayers Union, which reports annually on the increasing complexity and demands of tax returns.

"A lot more of the cost is just planning to do the tax-smart thing. That can actually take a lot more time than reporting what you've done," he said.

Sensitive to the demands that tax laws put on weary taxpayers, the IRS has seven people working full time to reduce the anguish for filers. The IRS Office of Taxpayer Burden Reduction looks for requirements that can be streamlined, reduced or eliminated under the law.

"We're trying to reduce unnecessary burden," said Michael Chesman, the office director.

Some of the burden cannot be avoided because it is a requirement of the tax laws. By attacking unnecessary burden, the office has shaved more than 200 million hours from tax paperwork since the office was created in 2001.

People can do things to avoid trouble with paperwork, Strampello said.

Doing taxes electronically and turning them in early are the best ways to avoid problems, she said.

If the IRS receives an incorrect return early enough they can return it without it costing the person who filed it, she said.

We've got a problem here.

We here at the Department of Darts & Laurels have been looking over our records for this semester, and we've noticed that we just haven't given out enough Darts this semester.

And time is running out.

Luckily, the stress of final exams, final term papers and final drinking binges (just kidding, Bernie) have given us enough concentrated angst to finish out this last regular edition of Darts & Laurels with a bang.

So sit back, have a drink and fix your eyes on that bull's-eye as we head our way into this week's edition of...

Darts & Laurels

Starting off with all due respect for those who have left us (or, actually, will leave us), we give a nah-our-graduating-seniors-don't-need-any-of-those-stupid-"memories" DART to the UF administration for canceling this year's convocation ceremony because their mysterious guest speaker canceled on them.

Here's a great idea: Why don't we hinge the farewell celebration ceremony for our departing students on the questionable appearance of some secretive government figure who probably will be too busy not giving speeches for free?

But they can't fool us — we know that the speaker canceled on us when he or she found out that the administration wasn't going to provide any complimentary cocktails to lubricate their speaking voice.

Moving on to another instance of a few cocktails becoming a lot more meaningful than they should be, we toss a way-to-make-already-uptight-guys-even-more-homophobic DART to New York Times reporter Jennifer 8. Lee for insisting that any two straight guys that hang out for any reason other than sports or business are on a "man date."

As if the whole metrosexual thing weren't bad enough, we now have another superfluous term that exists only to make otherwise confident heterosexual guys ask themselves whether or not they might actually "like the dudes" (they don't: If you don't fantasize about guys now, you're not going to because you bonded with your roommate in line to see "Sideways").

But we don't think Lee really is to blame here: Her parents stacked the deck against her from the beginning. Seriously — her middle initial is a number. And it has a period after it, as if it actually were short for something.

We can only hope that, some day, she'll have the self-confidence to start living her true life as Jennifer 8478749539332.37 (pronounced "Lynn") Lee.

Rounding things off with a watchful eye toward the "Big Brother" tendencies of our country's supposedly-progressive universities, we give a we-may-get-on-their-case-occasionally-but-holy-crap-that's-way-over-the-line DART to Colgate University in New York for requiring that Greek organizations sell their houses to the university because administrators think that will stem incidents of hazing, sexual assault and other acts that obviously only the stereotypical "frat guys" commit.

This gets even more retarded when you learn that these fraternity and sorority houses are off-campus. This isn't university property that Colgate is taking back — it's private property.

How can they force the Greeks to give up their private property? Simple: If they don't, the university won't officially recognize them anymore.

We can't stand for this. Greeks and non-Greeks alike must do something to end the tyranny of anti-party administrators.

When injustices are occurring in times like this (i.e., the end of the school year), there's only one thing that can be done: Chocolate pudding wrestling for everyone.

We're not sure what it'll accomplish, but we know the Colgate Greeks will appreciate the effort.

Alligator hosts live nude revue tonight

Kee those schedules open tonight, folks — UF's best free entertainment ain't happening at Gator Nights.

Tonight, beginning at 6 p.m., the Alligator will host our "Meet the Editors" forum in Gannett Auditorium in Weimer Hall.

While we won't have free popcorn or Brazilian rhythmic dancing for your pleasure, we will bare ourselves completely. We mean it. Total, vulnerable professional nudity.

Think we hate you, your organization or your beliefs? Well, come meet us and decide for yourself. Or at least tell us to our faces.

Have an idea of how we could do better? Come on down, sirs and ma'ams (or ma'ams and sirs). The spotlight's on you.

We're very happy to take your concerns, your criticisms, your questions, your compliments, your debate and your ... well, whatever else you want to throw at us.

(Except I think there's a rule against throwing rotten produce in classrooms. Yeah, that's the ticket.)

In return, we'll do our best to answer those questions, explain our actions and satisfy your demands.

And we're going to give away free stuff too — because what would a stage show be without the chance to win exciting door prizes?

We intend this forum to be a chance for the average student to let us know what they think of our paper — students who might not feel disgusted enough with us to write in a letter to the editor whenever we print something with which they disagree. Which we're sure is all the time.

But we won't turn the angry letter-writers away either. We aren't limiting this to students, however: Faculty, alumni, Gainesville residents and pretty much anyone else who has at least cast a cursory glance at our publication is welcome to attend.

The views expressed here are not necessarily those of the Alligator.

Our reporters have volunteered time over the busy weeks to find out whether the Alligator really did splash Joe Goldberg's name in the paper more than Dennis Ngin's and how many times we brought up "Black History Month" in our quest to present the fairest view of campus possible.

And we're certain some people disagree with that statement — so if you have any ideas for how we can improve the fairness of our coverage, let us know. This is your chance.

The ground rules, as enforced by our moderator Mike "I wanna be a Sex-agenarian" Foley, will include basic tenets of respect, such as speaking in turn, allowing others to ask questions and keeping the proceedings civil by not badgering us unnecessarily.

Not respecting us, even as we pledge to respect you, will make the baby Jesus cry.

More seriously, we do this with the intention of opening a dialogue with UF students, and it's hard to do that when we play the bull's-eyes in a shooting gallery.

To recap: Gannett Auditorium, Weimer Hall, 6 tonight, nudity, prizes, no rotten produce. Gannett's the one with two doors by the TVs.

Even if you don't have any problems or ideas for us, it would be a cheap and fun date.

So, come by and see our promising stab at replacing "Drunk Bitch Friday" — we're ready, able and nude.

Letters to the Editor

Banning alcohol makes students want it

Editor: When you consider the impact of his incompletely and vaguely articulated new "alcohol policy," it is clear that President Machen spoke and acted before he fully understood the far-reaching implications of what he was doing. Let us hope this will not be characteristic of his tenure here.

You cannot change alcohol-related attitudes simply by removing the superficial signs of those attitudes. And, you cannot change alcohol-related behaviors by creating arbitrary policies and rules regarding the consumption of alcohol. That's been done. It was called Prohibition. It didn't work.

College-age adults are intelligent and inquisitive but still often are susceptible to the teenage impulse to rebel. One of the best ways to get them to do something you don't want them to is by telling them they can't. In his personal memoirs, President Ulysses S. Grant wrote, "I know from my own experience that when I was at West Point, the fact that tobacco, in every form, was prohibited, and the mere possession of the weed severely punished, made the majority of the cadets, myself included, try to acquire the habit of using it."

Attempting to control every mention of alcohol to which university students are exposed is unrealistic, insulting and, frankly, unconstitutional. In the interest of "saving" students from binge drinking or underage students from harmful exposure to such corrupting messages, should you remove all televisions, radios, commercial publications and Internet access from this campus? If Machen's policy is to be applied with any consistency, all these things have to go, don't they?

You must remember that most potential underage drinkers on campus have passed the legal age of majority. You cannot treat them as if they are kids caught with their hands in the adult cookie jar. Acknowledging that alcohol exists and is used and enjoyed responsibly in our society does not constitute an endorsement of binge drinking or underage drinking.

Acknowledging that these students are adults, encouraging them to behave like adults and offering them information that will help them make responsible decisions is the best you can do. The greater portion of them will benefit from this approach. A few of them will learn from their mistakes.

UF doesn't need a bull(y) in a china shop at the helm. It needs someone who will make it his daily goal to speak and act, with cautious and considerable forethought, in the best interests of this university, its students, its community and its business partners.

By the way, despite the West Point ban on tobacco, Ulysses S. Grant became a notorious cigar smoker and died of throat cancer.

Law gave university regulation to board

Editor: Your "Bill Blunder" editorial yesterday was right on target in questioning the wisdom of the Florida House of Representative's bill defining the "separation of powers among the bodies that govern the state universities." Your conclusion that universities should have final responsibility for many of these responsibilities also is appropriate.

You fail to recognize, however, that the Florida Constitution gives the Board of Governors responsibility to "operate, regulate and be fully responsible for the management of the whole university system." The constitution also gives the board authority to delegate appropriate responsibilities to university boards of trustees.

The best opportunity for universities to gain control over appropriate functions is for the board to be responsible for these functions so they might be delegated to university boards of trustees. There is a much greater chance of such delegation if the board rather than the legislature has such responsibility.

Whooo! Gator Stompin' rules, man! Not

Editor: So, you want to experience your last official getting-wasted-bonding moment before you graduate? Well, you definitely can do just that at the oh-so-spectacular event called Gator Stompin' — an event for graduating seniors that allows you to get inebriated for a meager fee of about $25.

After handing over your cash, you are then allowed to jump on the Gator "bandwagon" where you are handed an oversized white T-shirt to wear for the night. Then, you can join your fellow comrades for a "real" night out on the town. While skipping with your fellow seniors, you stop at each of the participating bars to enjoy a small, watered-down drink.

Now, if you are thinking about food during this fun fest, don't worry: The Stompin' crew has not forgotten about your belly. You possibly will get some extra-greasy pizza to munch on. Sounds tempting doesn't it?

Well, what is it going to be, my fellow grads? Will you choose to go with plan A and spend money to join an "organization" for a one-night-only event that promotes making a plastered donkey out of yourself or will you go with plan B and spend your hard-earned money on dinner with friends and family, wearing your own stylin' threads and feeling like you didn't have to join the Gator Stompin' entourage to end your final year of college with a bang.

AROUND GAINESVILLE SFCC pitches stadium to county

■ THE BED TAX, CHARGED TO HOTEL ROOMS, COULD RAISE ONE CENT TO FUND THE PROJECT.

By IVETTE MENDEZ
Alligator Writer
imendez@alligator.org

A new baseball stadium or civic center are options being explored by the Alachua County Commission as it reviews what to do with part of the tax levied on tourist lodging.

If approved by the commission, the three-cent bed tax, applied to hotels and other places visitors commonly stay, would increase by a penny.

County Commission Chairwoman Cynthia Chestnut is not worried about the increase as a problem to local tourism.

"I don't think that the extra penny would deter anyone from coming to Gainesville," she said.

Santa Fe Community College proposed to use the extra cent to build a minor-league baseball stadium on its campus.

Chestnut has a different idea for the tax.

She suggested building a civic center that would benefit the entire community.

The three options being considered are the civic center, a convention center and the stadium, Chestnut said.

"The other two options would not impact Santa Fe," she said.

The next step is for SFCC to take the baseball stadium proposal to the Tourist Development Council so it can determine the most beneficial project in terms of tax dollars, Chestnut said.

"The recommendation from the Tourist Development Council will help us make the decision," she said.

The civic or convention center would not be located on SFCC's campus, but no locations have been approved by the commission.

SFCC has not committed any resources or money to the development of the stadium yet. The school is still in the negotiation-and-investigation phase of the process.

Having a stadium on its grounds would be beneficial to SFCC, said Larry Keen, assistant to President Jackson Sasser.

"We'd be able to use it for some of our own purposes," Keen said.

If the stadium were built, it would affect the campus's traffic and parking when the stadium was in use.

If the commission does not approve construction of the stadium via the penny tax, Keen said it is unlikely it will be built at a later date due to low funds.

"The county commission has the say-so in that," he said.

Trees to find home

A crowd of 58,500 UF fans and students attended the Orange and Blue spring football game last weekend, but Saturday will test their true loyalty as they have been invited to join UF players and coaches in the largest tree-planting project UF has ever seen.

"We made an agreement with our players that the losing team from last weekend's scrimmage would be required to participate," UF football coach Urban Meyer said in an e-mail sent to all GatorLink accounts.

That means blue-band-wearing fans and blue players. More than 400 crepe myrtle trees will be planted along Radio Road, Bledsoe Drive and at the Lakeside Residential Complex, according to Meyer's e-mail.

The event was organized by Student Government and Florida Blue Key. Students should check in at the Telecommunications Building lot on Radio Road.

Prizes will be given to the organizations that bring the most participants, including signed Gator memorabilia, project organizer Gary Goldberg said.

"I think it is going to be a lot bigger than we all expected," he said.

GAU to lobby Trustees

"The aim of GAU is to have fully subsidized, comprehensive health insurance for all teaching and research assistants," Romano said. "Peer universities offer much better health insurance programs than UF."

GAU plans to lobby the Board of Trustees, UF's highest governing body, for more comprehensive insurance, or at least for more than the $400 subsidy that covers less than half the cost of full-coverage health insurance.

UF Administration "Right now, Pap smears are not covered by the plan," GAU secretary Erica Pittman said of the procedure used to detect uterine cancer. "Women can get cheap birth control pills, but, to get them, they have to get a Pap smear, which they have to pay for."

The commission also decided not to increase prescription drug coverage, reportedly because less than 2 percent of graduate students were likely to benefit from the increase.

The Commission will reconvene next year to determine whether to sign another three-year contract with Scarborough.

"They've been the best plan in customer service and price, and that's why we've decided to stay with them for one more year," Aubuchon said of the family business.

Students advised to use other lots on game days

Morgan and Stuckey agreed Murphree takes the brunt of the game-day influx, but Morgan said the UAA tries to compensate for the inconvenience.

"Because they are using spaces, we felt that was only fair that some money went back into the parking," Morgan said.

Morgan said that $1 from the price of tickets sold for on-campus events goes back to parking.

"We don't want to charge people too much," he said.

Maintaining and improving existing lots and creating additional parking are two ways Morgan said money from those events is used.

However, residents pay $94 per year for the Red-1 decals that allow them to park in lots like those around Murphree. Many of them do not always move their vehicles during the weekend, so being forced to do so can present a problem.

Leighan Howard, a biology junior and a resident of the parking-deprived area, recounted one Saturday when she did not find her car where she left it.

"It's just frustrating that you have to move your car and then the next day, on game day, you have to walk by and see it totally full of alumni," Howard said. "It's frustrating because you go to the school and you have to live here and you have to park here and then they just get to roll up and pull in a spot."

Stuckey said UAA notifies students well in advance about upcoming parking restrictions by working closely with the resident assistants in the affected areas and posting notices in common rooms.

"We pride ourselves on being proactive to precommunicate that to everyone," Stuckey said.

Howard called the situation "ludicrous."

"I just feel like it's frustrating because they don't give you a lot of notice," she said. "It's basically word-of-mouth for the people that live here that you can't put your car there. They don't put out a lot of warning ahead of time."

Morgan said UF administrators tried to mitigate the conflict.

"We try not to interfere with Monday through Friday," he said. "A few times a year [students] are inconvenienced. Almost all of these events take place on weekends. If you are an individual, that's one or five to 100,000. Yes, it's definitely an inconvenience, but we haven't found a better way."

Approximately 90,000 attendees flock to Gainesville for home games, Morgan estimated.

Morgan said UF has looked into using downtown parking garages and shuttling visitors in with buses but said the cost was "too big," and the inconvenience would discourage visitors from attending events.

Stuckey advised students to use commuter lots during game days.

"We are always going to recommend the RTS lots," she said. "We are always going to look at our efficiency and parking plan on a yearly basis. Football game day on our campus has a big impact on everybody."

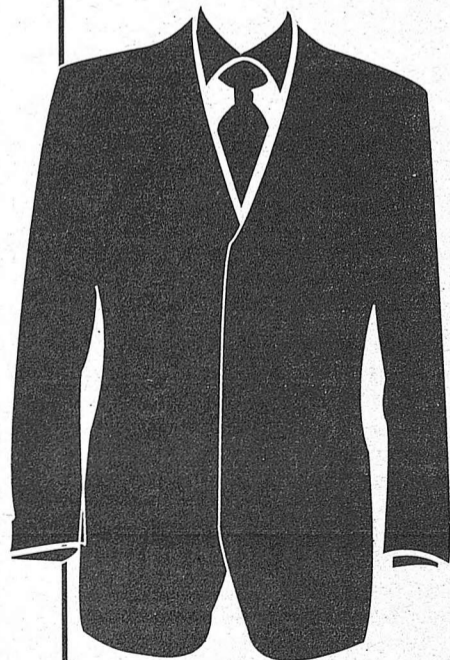

However, when it comes down to parking near the stadium, Stuckey had a definite answer.

"On a game day, they belong to the Athletic Association," she said.

UPD ready in case of shooting

By JOHN W. COX

Alligator Contributing Writer

On Monday, April 4, Jeff Weise walked into Red Lake High School for the last time, armed with three guns and wearing a bulletproof vest.

Shots blistered the dry Monday afternoon air, and when the nation's deadliest school shooting since Columbine High School concluded, eight bodies were left lifeless in the school.

Students at Red Lake said they never thought it could happen there.

Fifteen hundred miles from Red Lake, UF and Gainesville school officials said they know it could happen anywhere.

The 89 University Police Department officers are ready for a crisis situation, said Maj. Brad Barber.

Although he could not be specific, Barber said the university police have plans in place for a variety of situations.

"Our officers are on patrol 24 hours a day, seven days a week," he said.

Preparedness and practice are essential to avoid a tragedy like Red Lake, said recently retired Alachua County School District safety coordinator W.H. "Bear" Bryant.

"For us, it's just a reminder to stay on our p's and q's," Bryant said.

The state mandates that schools do drills every month to simulate an emergency, he said.

"If you don't practice them you will never know what to do when the real thing happens," Bryant said.

"If you've got somebody determined to get on a campus and kill people, they're going to be able to do it. We do our best to limit that and eliminate targets."

W.H. "Bear" Bryant
Alachua County School District
safety coordinator

If an emergency occurs, the school is locked down, and students are barricaded indoors and not released until the area is cleared by police.

Stopping someone from getting a gun in a school is unrealistic, though, Bryant said.

"If you've got somebody determined to get on a campus and kill people, they're going to be able to do it," Bryant said. "We do our best to limit that and eliminate targets."

Gainesville High School freshman Michael Hall said he would not be surprised if kids who were picked on brought a gun to school.

"You never know when someone could flip out," he said. "It's scary 'cause if they shoot somebody it could be your friend or cousin."

Bryant said some of the public has the wrong idea about school safety. Quick action is more important than metal detectors or fences, he said. "A metal detector is a false sense of security," he said.

Red Lake had a metal detector and it didn't stop Weise, Bryant said. Locking down campuses quickly and eliminating targets are the best ways to save lives.

Computer games may have played a role in recent campus shootings, Bryant said.

He has seen evidence that shooters like Weise in Red Lake are much more accurate when aiming straight ahead than when shooting to the sides.

This may indicate they are learning to shoot by playing video games, he said.

"What's unique about a computer is that when you shoot somebody, you hit a reset button, and they come back to life," Bryant said. "In real life, that doesn't happen."

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Casey Anderson / Alligator Staff

These students at Gainesville High School are well protected in case a shooting incident arises there, officials said.

Volleyball team welcomes McCray back from injury

The spring exhibition schedule may not sound like a thrilling time for the UF volleyball team, but Amber McCray has waited a year for this moment.

McCray is making her return this exhibition season after tearing her left anterior cruciate ligament in practice last spring. The fact that the matches do not count towards the team's record is as inconsequential to her as the matches themselves.

"I am extremely excited," McCray said. "My left foot is not as strong as my right, but I feel strong and I am ready to play."

She will continue her comeback Saturday when the Gators take on Georgia Tech in a double-header at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the Gale Lemerand Center.

McCray, a left-handed opposite hitter, poses an offensive threat, and is the only true player at her position on UF's roster.

The team had trouble replacing her last season, so McCray's return will likely have a tremendous impact.

"Amber McCray's return is huge for us," outside hitter Jane Collymore said. "Last year, trying to find a right-side presence was a little bit of a challenge for us when she went down, but now that she's back and she's healthy, she is giving us those kills that we need, which allows the [middle blockers] and the [outside hitters] to get more kills."

McCray took a medical redshirt last season, so the injury will not cost her a year of eligibility. Instead, she will remain a sophomore in eligibility, joining an already stellar group of soon-to-be sophomores.

Georgia Tech went undefeated in the Atlantic Coast Conference last season before reaching the Sweet 16 in the NCAA Tournament.

Despite playing such a formidable opponent, volleyball coach Mary Wise said she would not take the outcomes of these exhibition matches very seriously.

"In terms of [wins and losses], that isn't important. But the performance and execution is important," Wise said. "What we will be looking at are numbers. We will be looking in terms of hitting efficiency and points scored and things where you get a much better indication when playing an opponent instead of just playing against yourself."

While the nucleus of the team is still very young, Collymore, an All-American candidate, believes this team is as good as any in the country.

"Experience can be a factor, but sometimes talent can surmount that," she said. "[I want to] try and help this team get to where it can definitely get to, and I think that is a national championship."

"We've been as athletic and as talented as we need to be to do it, and we just need to do it."

— BRYAN JONES

MEN TO COMPETE IN TWO EVENTS: Coming off a successful showing at the Texas Relays in which the UF men's track and field team achieved 10 NCAA regional qualifying marks, the No. 2 Gators will compete in two events this weekend.

Distance runners will travel to Walnut, Calif., for the Mt. Sac Relays on Friday, while the remainder of the team will participate in the Miami Gatorade Classic on Saturday.

So far, men's track coach Mike Holloway has been satisfied with the improvement of his team from the beginning of the outdoor season.

"We're right where we need to be," Holloway said. "What we wanted to do was get some momentum for the rest of the season. We were very focused and the guys were really thinking about the technical changes we're trying to make."

The events this weekend will prove a test of how the team deals with success and will be crucial in preparation for Southeastern Conference and NCAA regional competitions to come.

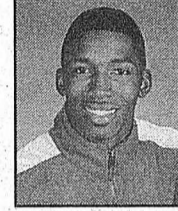

"We've got to get better across the board," Holloway said. "When you have a successful squad, they have the tendency to get a little complacent and not perform at a high level. We're really encouraging the guys to be focused and get it done every weekend."

MORRISON EARNS AWARD: Sophomore Mike Morrison was acknowledged by the U.S. Track

Coaches Association as the Athlete of the Week following his outstanding performance at the Texas Relays last weekend.

Morrison posted three regional qualifying marks in the long jump, high jump and 4x100-relay and helped the Gators set several SEC and national records for 2005.

"I'm really proud of that award," Morrison said. "We came a long way and we're starting to put it together little-by-little. I guess the progression is starting to show."

Morrison

Despite the honor, Morrison remained humble about his abilities and looks to continue to progress.

"I definitely think there are a lot of things I need to work on,"

Morrison said. "I'm doing okay but I'm not close to reaching my potential yet. It's just a lot of little things. I think when I get them done right there'll be big improvements."

With the team losing several significant contributors next year, Morrison looks to fill the void on both a performance and leadership level.

"It's going to be a big loss when those guys leave, but I'm going to do my best," Morrison said. "I'm definitely going to try to be the one to step up and lead by example with my performances."

— BLAKE BONSAK

WOMEN HEAD WEST: The UF women's track and field team will spend this weekend on the West Coast, far from UF and, for many, far from their own teammates.

The No. 5 Gators will be competing in three different meets over the weekend, with the distance runners competing in the Mt. Sac Relays in Walnut, Calif., while the rest of the team will focus on the Mesa Invitational and the Sun Angel Classic, both in Arizona.

The Sun Angel Classic, held at Arizona State University, will be a homecoming of sorts for women's track coach Tom Jones, who coached for ASU from 1988 to 1992.

The Gators will encounter stiff competition from UCLA, Auburn, ASU, Kansas State, Washington and Louisiana State — all ranked teams.

"There's a good mix of [Pacific 10 Conference] and SEC teams," Jones said. "It should make for some interesting competition."

Jones sees the weekend as a chance for the athletes to compete against other teams they wouldn't normally see until nationals.

"We see the same people all the time," he said.

The Mt. Sac Relays and Mesa Invitational are scheduled for April 15, and the Sun Angel Classic begins April 16.

MEN'S AND WOMEN'S GOLF League-leading freshmen carry UF into postseason

By NICK ZACCARDI
Alligator Writer

It's finally time to see what the UF freshmen women's golfers can do.

The NCAA's greatest group of first-year golfers according to Golfstat, four UF freshmen will lead the No. 11 Gators to this weekend's Southeastern Conference Championships.

Tiffany Chudy, Whitney Myers, Sandra Gal and Eleanor Tucker comprise four of the five playing spots for UF at Tunica, Miss.

"Hopefully they view it as the same [as a regular season tournament]," Coach Jill Briles-Hinton said. "The more they play, the better they'll get."

Chudy, Myers and Gal posted the top three scores for UF in its last tournament, the Bryan National Collegiate in Greensboro, N.C.

"There's no difference [at SECs]," said Chudy, who tied for 10th at the Bryan National. "It's still a golf course. It's still teams I've seen all year. You just have to take it like it's no different than any other tournament."

The most heated freshman competition may have already passed, as Tucker and C.J. Kim battled in qualifying for the final spot.

"We call [qualifying] a cage match," Briles-Hinton said. "When two people are going head-to-head and they want to go, it's an event in and of itself."

Tucker secured her ticket for Tunica with rounds of 75, 76 and 77, while putting problems doomed Kim.

"It would have been closer if not for C.J.'s putting issues, but Eleanor played pretty good," Briles-Hinton said.

POSTSEASON BEGINS: The season marred by the No. 1 team in the country dropping out of the top 25 is over.

The season altered by an honorable mention All-American redshirting and a redshirt senior graduate student making an unbelievable comeback for victory is finished.

Now a new season, the postseason, begins for the UF men's golf team, starting with today's first round of the Southeastern Conference Championships at Sea Island, Ga.

"The conference tournament is a big thing at Florida," men's golf coach Buddy Alexander said. "It's one of the major measuring sticks for our program. It's not just a preparation for Regionals."

The Gators enter postseason play as one of the hottest teams in the country, following a 10-shot victory against No. 1 Oklahoma State at the Morris Williams Intercollegiate.

But even more important than picking up its third win of the spring was the way UF regained momentum after a season-worst 10th finish at the Schenkel Invitational, Alexander said.

"I think [the Morris Williams] is very important because it sort of indicates that the Schenkel was a bad week as opposed to a trend," Alexander said. "It doesn't mean that we're going to play well at the conference [tournament], but from a confidence standpoint we ought to feel pretty good about ourselves."

North Carolina transfer Richard Treis picked up UF's second individual title of the season at the Morris Williams and his first since the 2003 Atlantic Coast Conference Championships.

"I think that he's definitely shaken off the rust," Alexander said. "He's a different player than he was in January."

Treis leads a contingent of four UF golfers with scoring averages under 74.

Treis, Matt Every, Brett Stegmaier and James Vargas have led to three wins, a runner-up finish and a third-place finish.

Women's tennis tweaks approach, forgets struggles

By KATE CAVANNA
Alligator Writer

The UF women's tennis team has come a long way in a month's time.

"We hit a bump in the road about a month ago," associate head coach Dave Balogh said. "We wanted to get better every week and I think we've done that."

That "bump" was back-to-back losses to Southeastern Conference foes Kentucky and Vanderbilt. Losing was a novice development, as the Gators finished last season undefeated.

Such a setback could have proved disastrous, but the Gators managed to fight back, winning eight consecutive matches.

What's the key to this turn around? Simply adjusting, Balogh said.

"Against Kentucky and Vanderbilt there were times when we needed to make adjustments and we couldn't do it," Balogh said. "Everybody has a style that they want to play and most of the time it works. But sometimes you need to make changes. You need a plan B. All the girls are starting to get that now."

UF's hard work has paid off, as the Gators now have the potential to end their home season undefeated.

"We're tougher," Balogh said. "Bottom line, a month ago we were soft. The great thing is we have the SEC Tournament coming up. We're going to have an opportunity to redeem ourselves."

Redemption will have to wait, though, as the Gators still have one regular season match left. UF faces No. 23 South Carolina on Sunday at the Ring Tennis Complex at 1 p.m.

"South Carolina is a very good team," Balogh said. "Maybe not the most talented, but very competitive and very gutsy."

"They've won a lot of matches 4-3 this year. They beat Vanderbilt 5-2, who's a very good team. We will definitely have our hands full."

Two out of three ain't bad.

Coach: Gators playing Tennessee at the right time

By WILLIS JACOBSON
Alligator Writer

Of all the series the Gators have played this season, this one will likely mean the most. Of all the top-10 teams UF has played against, success against this one would prove most satisfying. Combine that with the natural animosity between two rival schools, and a recipe for a classic series may be in the making.

The No. 15 UF softball team (32-11, 11-4 Southeastern Conference) will host No. 6 Tennessee (44-7, 12-4 SEC) in a three-game series beginning with a doubleheader at 1 p.m. on Saturday. The teams will conclude the series with a 1 p.m. Sunday meeting.

"[Tennessee] is probably our most important series," said Coach Karen Johns, well aware that the series will be crucial in determining first place in the SEC Eastern Division. "We're going to have our hands full."

Tennessee is one of the more dominant teams in the conference, leading the league in several offensive and defensive statistical categories. The Volunteers lead in hits, batting average, on-base percentage, and total runs scored, and are second in home runs. Their pitchers aren't too shabby, either: Tennessee's 0.81 ERA is lowest in the conference.

"[Tennessee] is probably our most important series. We're going to have our hands full."

Karen Johns
UF softball coach

"If we can just keep the ball in the park, we feel like we'll have a really good chance," said Johns of the Volunteers' offense.

Despite the staggering numbers,

Johns says that her team could be playing the Volunteers, losers in two of their last three, at the right time.

"They're coming off a tough weekend, so we feel like we're finally catching a good team that's maybe struggling," Johns said. "We seem to always catch these good teams when they're on a hot streak. They went into Auburn [last weekend] and really struggled, though, so we'd like to take advantage of that."

One of the more compelling match-ups of the series pits UF's bats against the pitching of Tennessee southpaw Monica Abbott (31-3). Abbott, whose 0.45 ERA leads the SEC, pitched 17 innings and allowed just one run and four hits in two wins against the Gators as a freshman last season.

However, Johns does see a weakness in the Volunteers' defensive attack.

"It looks like we'll be able to run on them," Johns said. "They're giving up some stolen bases, so hopefully we'll be able to execute some things there that will work to our strengths."

UF leads the all-time series 20-11. All games this weekend will be played at the Florida Softball Stadium.

you to 50."

According to Smith, Parker was arrested while exiting the Oaks Mall on Dec. 7.

Smith said Parker was observed meeting former co-defendant Stephanie Moise at approximately 11:44 a.m. at her workplace, Shoe Show, 1124 N. Main St., where he gave Moise a white plastic shopping bag containing 493.8 grams of cocaine.

Moise then drove to the Oaks Mall parking lot, where she sold the cocaine to an undercover officer for $12,800. When the officer informed Moise that the contents were less than the prearranged 500-gram amount, Moise said she would correct the error.

She then entered the mall, and after visiting the Aeropostale store, was arrested upon exiting with 9.8 grams of cocaine, which she said she received from Parker to account for the difference along with all other amounts of the drug she previously had in her possession. Parker was arrested separately with the money the officer gave Moise for the cocaine.

Upon serving a search warrant, officers found $460 in counterfeit money along with $852 in cash in Parker's apartment.

Parker, who was fired from his position with the UF basketball team in early January, was released according to his previous bond of $100,000.

0, 3.79 ERA).

The Gators offense has been rolling since Easter Sunday, led by third baseman Brandon McArthur and his 11-game hitting streak. His .500 average in conference play leads the SEC.

Second baseman Adam Davis ranks second on the Gators with a .388 average in SEC games, but expects a hard-fought series this weekend.

"You might as well throw all the rankings and all that kind of stuff out the window," Davis said. "What it comes down to in the SEC is pitching match-ups, who's got who, how people match up."

Davis credits UF's offensive success to the team's depth.

"If this guy isn't getting it done, and he's a guy that we usually depend on, the guy right behind him has been getting the job done," Davis said. "That's been a staple of our team all year long. I'm sure there's been plenty of games where our 1-2-3 guys haven't got a hit, but the 7-8-9 guys have had all the RBIs. That's a sign of a good team, I think."

add up.

This is not the MLB draft that has about a zillion rounds, or even the NFL draft that can accommodate more than 200 draftees. We're talking about 60 spots for countless players from across the globe. That's it. That's the list.

At last count, 20 underclassmen (including preps) have declared themselves eligible for the draft. Twelve of those players have yet to hire an agent. That's 12 players who appear unsure of what to do.

Ask David Lee if he would go back and risk his career at UF for a roll of the dice following an underclassman season. My guess is Lee's stock has never been higher and he is now a legitimate first-rounder.

You can take your chances with players like Brandon Bowman, J.R. Morris and Von Wafer. I'll take seniors and proven winners like Lee, Chuck Hayes and Channing Frye and beat yours every day of the week.

I fail to see the good in a fringe draftee deciding to hire an agent and forgoing his college eligibility.

On the other hand, his return to school would mean the betterment of the college game, the NBA game and most importantly, his life. Where is the harm in that?

Parker changes plea to guilty in federal drug case

By BRYAN APP
Alligator Staff Writer
bapp@alligator.org

Former UF basketball coaching assistant Major Parker could face a minimum of five years in prison on federal drug charges after changing his plea to guilty on Thursday.

Parker, who originally plead not guilty at his initial appearance on Jan. 11, plead guilty to conspiracy to distribute and possession with the intent to distribute 500 grams of cocaine as part of an agreement with the U.S.

Attorney's Office.

After federal prosecutor Corey Smith concluded presenting facts in the case against Parker, Federal Magistrate Stephen Mickle repeatedly asked Parker if he understood the facts and if they were indeed true.

"Did you, in fact, do what the government says you did?" Mickle asked Parker.

"Yes sir," replied the previously calm Parker with a crack in his voice and a shake in his legs.

Shortly after court adjourned, Parker wiped tears from his eyes while seated at the defense table, as did his wife, who was seated with Parker's father and sister.

As part of the agreement, the U.S. Attorney's Office dropped five additional counts of cocaine distribution that Parker originally faced, stemming from four specific incidences of drug sales to undercover police officers from Nov. 16 to Dec. 7.

According to Jerry Sanford, spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Gainesville, Parker will face the statutory sentence of a minimum of five years to a maximum of 40 years in prison without the possibility of parole, a $4 million fine and five years of supervised release.

Mickle is scheduled to sentence Parker on July 11 at 1:30 p.m.

"The judge is not bound by any guidelines," Sanford said. "So the judge will have the discretion to sentence him to any number [of years] between [five and 40]."

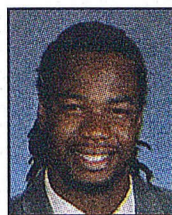

Mickle, however, cited a

Supreme Court case stating that statutory sentences were advisory guidelines and not mandatory.

But Mickle said Parker has the right to appeal his sentence if the judge mandates one greater than the statutory maximum.

"Do you understand that you have the right to appeal your sentence if, for example, I impose a sentence that's in excess of what was previously authorized?" Mickle asked Parker. "Let's say you get 40 [years] and I sentence

Injury-plagued Gators adjust

By TIM CASEY
Alligator Writer
tcasey@alligator.org

The injury bug has finally hit the UF baseball team. Previously entrenched Friday night starter Bryan Ball will be sidelined for his second consecutive weekend series because of an arm injury.

Coach Pat McMahon knows this is a tough blow almost midway through the Southeastern Conference schedule, and is taking precautions so that the pitcher can play later in the season.

"He's got a sore arm, so rest is the cure for that at this point," McMahon said. "It's important that we guard arms. It's important that we take care of people so they can perform when they're ready. It's an opportunity, and a must, for some other guys to step forward."

Ball sports a 5-1 record and 2.22 ERA with 41 strikeouts in 52.2 innings pitched.

In addition, sophomore third baseman Daniel Brooks could miss the remainder of the season after breaking his arm during practice on Wednesday.

"That's a difficult loss at this point," McMahon said. "We really hurt for Daniel because he's been an integral part of our ball club in so many ways. He plays third, plays second, could play left field, DH for us."

Brooks has a .172 batting average with one home run and three RBI. He has played in 16 games this season and started six games.

Alabama (25-10), ranked No. 17 and owners of first place in the SEC Western Division, will face the No. 5 Gators (28-6) this weekend. Both teams boast an 8-4 conference record, with UF first in the Eastern Division.

Senior Tommy Boss (4-2, 4.63 ERA) will begin the series for UF against Alabama junior right-hander T.J. Large (5-2, 1.74 ERA). On Saturday, Alan Horne (2-2, 4.70 ERA) will face Alabama sophomore lefthander Wade LeBlanc (2-1, 3.21 ERA), the 2004 SEC and National Freshman of the Year. Sunday's series finale features a pair of undefeated lefthanders, UF freshman Stephen Locke (5-0, 1.77 ERA) opposite Alabama sophomore Brandon Belcher (4-

Indeed, you are witnesses to some of the many changes of the guards within the world of Alligator sports. To some, the names and faces that are connected to these columns come and go and they are none the wiser, but to us, this is a big deal.

So for this one last time, I will climb atop my soapbox and rant until I am blue in the face.

News broke Wednesday morning that Anthony Roberson has decided to possibly forgo his senior season and test the waters of the NBA draft. This came as no great shock, as he wrestled greatly with the same decision a year ago.

A couple hours later, some more news broke that his teammate Matt Walsh was going to do the same. And now rumors are swirling that Lee Humphrey, Chris Richard and Jack Barry have all followed suit.

Of course, I am being facetious in regards to the last three, but what is stopping them?

The cookie-cutter reasoning given by players like Roberson and Walsh around the country makes plenty of sense. They want to see if they can live their lifelong dream of playing in the NBA, but they will not hire an agent so that they can return to school if the NBA thumbs its nose at them.

I am in no way an NBA draft expert, so I have no idea where Walsh fits in, but what I do know is that there are 30 teams in the league, 12 players on each roster and only two rounds in the draft. Common sense tells me that this is the most difficult professional sport to break into.

Take into account the influx of European players and perhaps the largest crop of high schoolers making the jump due to the looming age limit sanction, and the numbers just don't
