Asbestos fear causes student to exit dorm

Workers build a containment area to hold and decontaminate UF student Randy Gruby's personal belongings outside Reid Hall.

In early April, UF student and Boca Raton native Randy Gruby not only had to evacuate for a possible health hazard, but also was forced to leave behind all of his belongings in a dorm room in Reid Hall.

His clothes, computer and even his new keyboard had to be decontaminated after his mother, Wendy Blasser-Gruby, a certified industrial hygienist and Florida-licensed asbestos consultant, detected what she said were dangerous amounts of asbestos in her son's dorm room.

"He asked if he could wash his lungs out," she said.

And while UF Department of Housing and Residence Education maintains that asbestos levels are not hazardous, Blasser-Gruby said she is not taking any chances.

Inhaled asbestos fibers are known to cause disabling respiratory diseases and various types of cancers.

Gruby's sister, Rebecca, also a UF student, said her brother, a mechanical engineering and piano performance major, left everything behind in his dorm room and moved into her off-campus apartment.

The brother-and-sister pair shared a bed for two weeks, she said.

"UF should definitely take responsibility for its facilities."

Blasser-Gruby, who claims to be one of the first licensed asbestos consultants in Florida, determined the amount of airborne asbestos present in her son's dorm room by conducting a six-hour air sample by sucking air through a filter.

The test she performed showed 36 asbestos structures per square millimeter, which she conceded is lower than the allowable 70 structures per square millimeter.

But Blasser-Gruby explained that although her test shows a lower amount of asbestos than allowed, the test was done "passively" without blowing all of the surfaces in the room with a

Provost finalists in demand

■ FOUR OF THE SIX NAMED COULD END UP AT OTHER SCHOOLS.

UF's best provost candidates could be going, going - gone.

In naming six finalists to be interviewed next week as part of the search for UF's No. 2 administrator, the university's Provost Search Committee disclosed Tuesday that at least four of the top candidates are also finalists in other academic searches nationwide.

Other schools with eyes on the candidates are Michigan State University, the University of Missouri and the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

Committee members agreed at the meeting that the UF job still seems like the most attractive position.

UF Administration

Still, the uncertainty over these finalists, who could drop out of the race at any time, led the committee to dismiss outright only two of the 10 people they considered Tuesday.

The remaining two are "persons of interest," according to committee Chairman

Doug Barrett, for whom more investigation will be performed - but they, like the two dropped Monday, are considered "back-burner" candidates.

"If somebody falls off the map, we could reconvene and decide whether we want to interview these people we have more questions on," Barrett said.

Barrett later told the Alligator he wasn't concerned by the possible volatility of the finalist group.

"We have an extraordinary pool of candidates," he said. "And it's good to know these

Union search narrows

The nationwide search for the next director of the Reitz Union narrowed Wednesday to five remaining hopefuls, officials said.

Chairman Norbert Dunkel said the finalists to replace previous director Dave Kratzer, who was promoted to associate vice president for Student Affairs in early March, "look pretty good."

The committee requires a "breadth and depth of experience" with signs of progressive action from the candidates, he said.

"The eligibility we're seeking is higher than most searches for this kind of position," he said. "Our union is one of the biggest in the country, and it's among a handful of unions of this size."

Conference to highlight fatigue-related syndrome

UF will host the Fourth Annual Fibromyalgia Conference on Saturday from 3 to 5 p.m. at the McKnight Brain Institute in the DeWeese Auditorium.

The conference aims to inform healthcare providers and patients about the ongoing research on chronic fatigue and fibromyalgia.

Fibromyalgia primarily affects women as severe fatigue, insomnia and heightened sensitivity to muscle and tissue pain. UF researchers hope to learn more about what causes the sudden pain flares that interfere with patients' day-to-day activities.

Roland Staud, director of the Center for Musculoskeletal Pain and Research at the UF Health Science Center, and Richard Berry, medical director of the Shands HealthCare Sleep Disorder Center, will speak at the event, which is free and open to the public, according to a press release.

For more information, call Melanie Fridl Ross, assistant director of news and communications at the Health Science Center, at 392-2621.

Former SG president remembered with scholarship

By CRISTYLE WOOD
Alligator Contributing Writer

A scholarship fund has been established to honor a former UF Student Body president who died last month and who some credit with being responsible for UF's current telephone and online registration systems.

Chris Tompkins, of Brandon, who served as Student Government president in 1994 and who would have turned 35 years old Sunday, died April 30 at H. Lee Moffitt Cancer Center in Tampa after being diagnosed with leukemia in 2004.

"I didn't realize he was in such bad shape. It took him pretty quick," said Charlie Grapski, a political science teaching assistant at UF and close friend of Tompkins.

Tompkins, who suffered fatigue during a campaign race for state representative, admitted himself into a hospital in Brandon.

Tompkins

There, the UF alumnus was diagnosed with cancer, Grapski said.

Tompkins' ties to UF run deep.

In addition to serving as Student Body president, the former Gator was also a student senator and SG treasurer.

After graduation, Tompkins, a leader in the Hillsborough County Republican Party, became an aide to State Rep. Faye Culp in Tallahassee and helped develop Florida's Y2K plan.

Amie Riggle, a longtime friend of Tompkins and his chief of staff when he was SG president, helped arrange his funeral services in Brandon and said she was happy to see Tompkins' UF colleagues turn out for the ceremony.

"Chris possessed a unique combination of intelligence, enthusiasm and kindness. His passion for politics and community service was rivaled only by his love of Gator football and the University of Florida," said Riggle, who was key in establishing the Chris Tompkins Scholarship Fund. She added that she hoped the fund could be a legacy to his service to the university.

Brian Siemienas, who served with Tompkins in UF politics, said he hopes the fund will help current students recognize that "many of the things students currently enjoy at UF are a result of the efforts of Chris Tompkins, including the two recreational centers, the recently expanded union and the current telephone and online phone systems."

Grapski remembers his friend and colleague.

"Chris was a great friend and one of the best people I have ever known," Grapski said. "He would have been a great asset to the state."

Tompkins is survived by his mother, Betty Jo Tompkins of Brandon.

To make a contribution to the Chris Tompkins Scholarship Fund, please send a check, made payable to "UF Foundation" (note Tompkins on memo line), to:

UF cancels more than 50 online psychology classes

Department cites 'unforeseen' fund cuts

By STEPHEN MAGRUDER
Alligator Writer
smagruder@alligator.org

UF psychology students have had the door to their online courses for both Summer and Fall semesters slammed in their faces.

Two e-mails sent to the psychology major listserv April 13 told students that more than 50 online classes in the psychology department would be canceled through Fall due to "unforeseen funding issues."

History junior Evan Nooe, who was registered for three online courses before the cancellation, said he had to drop his psychology major as a result.

Because of the timing of the notification, he also had to wait until the drop/add period to select substitute courses.

"It was canceled after the time that we registered," Nooe said.

"Basically, I had to go back and register like I was a freshman."

Nooe, who said he is continuing to iron out schedule issues, added that when he called the department to inquire about the cancellations, a lack of funding was the only given reason.

Students could register for Summer courses by each student's assigned start time between March 28 and April 14, and could do so after his or her start time from April 15 to May 3.

An e-mail sent April 26 by professor Keith Berg alerted students to the opening of two campus psychology courses for Summer A.

However, about half of the online courses in the department were not available on campus, so students who were dropped from those courses could not sit in on the live lecture, Nooe said.

Students wishing to file a complaint may e-mail the psychology advising office at psyadv@grove.ufl.edu.

Psychology Department Chairman Martin Heesacker directed comment to interim Provost Joe Glover, but calls to Glover's office were not returned by press time.

Election official seeks wider open spaces

■ NEW POLLING EQUIPMENT REQUIRES EXTRA SPACE IN ALREADY-CRAMPED OFFICE.

By IVETTE MENDEZ
Alligator Writer
imendez@alligator.org

With gubernatorial elections looming and fewer than four years before the next presidential race, the Supervisor of Elections Office is bursting at the seams.

In a presentation to the Alachua County Commission on Tuesday, Supervisor of Elections Pam Carpenter requested the allocation of more space for the elections office and its warehouse.

Due to legislative changes and the high number of early voters in November's presidential election, the space in the current office, located in the County Administration Building in downtown Gainesville, is not sufficient for all of the office's employees and equipment.

The amount of space needed for early voting in the presidential election took up the whole commission building, Carpenter said.

"The supervisor before me had requested more space, and I'm continuing that request," she said.

There are approximately 300 changes in the legislation still being pored through, she said.

One change of note is the requirement of audio-enhanced voting equipment for the visually impaired.

The new state- and federally mandated equipment takes up more space, Carpenter said, adding that the current warehouse is also too small for all of the office's records.

The supervisor requested the consolidation of the Supervisor of Elections Office and the warehouse.

"That would be the most efficient way for us to do business," Carpenter said.

Carpenter requested from the Commission no less than 30,000 square feet of space for the new office, along with adequate parking.

This fall would be the most convenient time for the office to move to a new location because there will be no elections at that time.

"If possible and we could find a space, we could move in October 2005," Carpenter said.

Medical students showcase different type of talent

By LYNDESEY LEWIS
Alligator Writer

Medical professionals, students and staff will prove they do more than just wield thermometers and stethoscopes when they converge on a local stage this weekend.

This Saturday, the UF College of Medicine presents its first-ever talent show fundraiser at the P.K. Yonge Performing Arts Center in Gainesville. The show, titled "Réveillance: In Celebration of Life and Service," is being staged partly to raise money for mission trips, show organizers said.

"I really admire and respect the kids who still do this stuff once they're in med school," said Beverly Vidaurreta, a clinical assistant professor and program director in the Office of Student Counseling and Development.

Vidaurreta said the show's main purpose is to honor the memory of Caroline Cody, a former medical student who was found murdered in her apartment in 2000.

"In Caroline's memory, I wanted to do something," Vidaurreta said.

"She was always very dedicated."

Both of Cody's parents will attend Saturday night's show, and Lakshmi Gopal, one of Cody's former medical school peers, will make opening remarks at the event's commencement.

Proceeds will benefit next Spring's medical mission trips, which are scheduled to include projects in Haiti, Mexico, Ecuador and the Dominican Republic, said Kuon Lo, a first-year medical student.

"In Caroline's memory, I wanted to do something."

Beverly Vidaurreta
Office of Student Counseling and Development program director

While the second-year students will spread their expertise on next year's trips, all four classes will participate in the show.

Staff, faculty and others will perform as well, Lo said.

Show founder Vidaurreta added that Saturday's production will showcase a variety of talents by the participants, including singing, dancing, piano-playing and a five-piece jazz band ensemble.

The event also will include a silent auction, but organizers encourage those unable to come to the festivities or bid on the items to make donations.

"Even if people cannot attend, we're hoping they're willing to support it," Vidaurreta said.

Tickets are available for $5 at the College of Medicine Office of Admissions and Office of Medical Education.

Tickets purchased at the door are $7.

Five held on drug charges

By IVETTE MENDEZ
Alligator Writer
imendez@alligator.org

Three Gainesville residents were arrested Tuesday after police reportedly found evidence of drug trafficking in the dwelling of two suspects.

Deputies from the Alachua County Sheriff's Office went to the apartment of Donald Wayne Calvert, 25, situated at 3515 SW 39th Blvd., to arrest him on an outstanding warrant for possession of cocaine and marijuana, one felony and one misdemeanor, ASO spokesman Steve Maynard said.

The officers found marijuana when they entered Calvert's apartment, reports state.

After obtaining a search warrant for Calvert's apartment, police found a total of 211 grams of cocaine, 433 grams of marijuana and a handgun, according to reports.

Calvert was charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, armed trafficking in cocaine, possession of a firearm by a felon and maintaining a dwelling where drugs are sold.

Amy Callie-Marie Weathers, 22, lives in the apartment with Calvert and was present at the time of the arrest.

After the search, Weathers was arrested for trafficking in cocaine, possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, possession of drug paraphernalia and maintaining a dwelling where drugs are sold.

Another person of unknown relation, Michael Wallace Kelsoe, 39, was also at the residence at the time and was arrested for three outstanding misdemeanor warrants and possession of marijuana, Maynard said.

The suspects were taken to the Alachua County Jail.

In a similar incident, two UF students were arrested for drug possession on April 27 after a two-month investigation, reports state.

Public Safety Skyler McCoy Smith, 19, was arrested in his residence at College Manor Apartments after selling alprazolam, the generic drug name for Xanax, to an undercover deputy, reports state.

During the transaction, he told the undercover deputy he had Adderall in his possession and intended to sell it to college students, reports state.

He also was charged with possession of and intent to sell LSD, marijuana and Ritalin.

It is unknown if the suspects actually sold any drugs on campus, Maynard said.

Amanda Jennifer Smith, 19, of Beatty Towers, was present during the transaction and was arrested for possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia found in her purse, reports state.

The apartment also reportedly contained the materials to grow mushrooms.

The two suspects are unrelated, Maynard said.

UF seeks new 'vision' for union experience on a large campus.

"There are clearly five or six (applicants) that rise to the top," he said.

Out of the 48 submitted, only 14 applicants met the minimum requirements for the position, which requires a master's degree and at least seven years of experience at a comparably-sized student union.

Phone interviews will be conducted next Friday by the search committee to determine Kratzer's replacement. The weight then rests on the shoulders of Vice President for Student Affairs Patricia Telles-Irvin, who will have the final word on which candidate will be in charge of the 513,000 square-foot facility.

"It's someone who has a vision to take the building to the next level," Telles-Irvin said.

She said she is looking for someone who is "good with financial matters, excellent with students, shows leadership abilities and can be comfortable living in this community."

Telles-Irvin added that maintaining the revenue stream will be one of the major challenges the new director will face. The director will have to ensure the facility will have the "correct funding to maintain the standards we expect" while overseeing a $6.2 million budget.

Mike Mironack, previously the associate director of the building, has served as interim director since Kratzer's promotion and is the only in-house candidate who passed the first exam heading into interviews.

The UF graduate and 10-year Reitz Union employee is anything but a new face.

"I've gotten to know the place really well," Mironack said. "I'm very passionate about the work we do here. I think I can bring my talents to bear on the things we need to be doing to make the union a better place."

Off hours

More than politics makes bar-closing proposal wrong

The problem with extending bar closing hours in town by an hour isn't that local officials are using the issue like a poker chip.

It's just an idea that isn't well thought-out.

Of course, when Bernie Machen doesn't have anything, at all, ever, in this world or the next, to do with the recent decision to cancel the "Drunk Bitch Friday" portion of the Lex and Terry radio program, we shiver at the lack of apparent cleanliness.

When something looks, quacks and walks like a university president, we fairly can assume it is one, as indirect as his influence may be.

On a side note, believing "Drunk Bitch Friday" drives students to drink alcohol is about as ludicrous as those Facebook clubs with names like, "Oh my [insert deity here, such as Zarathustra], Carl Randalfloyd is on Facebook."

And when we see now-exiting City Commissioner Tony Domenech promise to vote to allow an extra hour of non-alcoholic bar time, lose the election and then vote against recommending it from his post on the city's Public Safety Committee, our freshly furrowed eyebrows get an even more rigorous workout.

The reports of shady dealings may not be totally unexpected: He is an honorary member of Phi Delta Theta Fraternity.

Besides, who cares? If we read the voter turnout, just more than 10 percent of Gainesville residents. Probably far less than that for students.

But the other Phi Delta Theta member in the news, Student Body President Joe Goldberg, has been a man possessed by an unnatural force in pushing the same ordinance.

We don't blame him, because it's a popular position to take. It may have contributed to his becoming president.

Extending the closing time in the way proposed just would invite a host of sponsored scientists and others who provide expert testimony that, somehow, an hour without alcohol actually can make the bar-closing situation worse.

We don't have enough facts to challenge the evidence; nor, we believe, does the Student Government committee headed by Goldberg that has advocated the extension.

Furthermore, it's a silly idea to believe that a city administrator would accept the wing-and-a-prayer hope expressed by the Safety and Fair Entertainment Committee that getting students to public transportation would be any less hectic at 3 a.m. than at 2 a.m.

Keeping cops, bus drivers and other employees on the payroll for an extra hour sure does suck up whatever's left in the city's piggy bank.

But even that is irrelevant, because it's just not feasible from a business standpoint for bars to baby-sit their drunk customers an extra hour while they don't make the booze money.

So bars will close at the same time they did before, which leaves our drink-seekers at square one.

Rather than advocate for later bar hours, or perhaps in conjunction with it, SAFE should look into more reasonable alternatives, like the pre-election recommendation by candidate Rob Brinkman to limit alcohol purchase by bracelets or some similar method.

Because it's obvious to us that extending the closing time without other plans won't stop anyone from abusing alcohol.

Admitting blame not the Russian way

After six decades of casting sullen glances at America and struggling with "that Democracy thing," Russia still isn't willing to admit it was wrong.

I normally applaud those questioning the facts in a world where history is written by the victor, but this is getting silly.

Russian leaders recently took offense when President Bush acknowledged in a letter to the president of Latvia that the U.S.S.R. forcibly occupied Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania in the aftermath of World War II.

Instead, the Russian leaders insist their hordes of furry-hatted Gestapo were invited by the Baltic states' governments to come in and do as they pleased.

They're going to have to pass around a lot more of that free "wodka" before I'm going to believe that.

Sergei Yastrzhembsky, the Russian ambassador to the European Union, issued an official statement at a special news conference in Moscow rebuking President Bush.

No one understood his statement, however, because it was in Russian.

A reporter then angered Yastrzhembsky when he asked him to stop speaking his "crazy moon-language."

Yastrzhembsky stormed out in response, screaming, "There was no occupation! Everyone was on vacation!"

This sentiment was echoed by the Russian Foreign Ministry's Web site, which insisted — citing international law — that the U.S.S.R. technically didn't "occupy" the Baltic states because they weren't officially in a state of war.

The site went on to insist that Russia technically owns the entire universe, based on international law, because Sputnik called dibs on outer space "like, way before America did."

Russian President Vladimir Putin himself chided Western nations, according to The Associated Press, saying that Russians "have never divided the victory between ours and theirs."

Yes, Vladdy, you never distinguished between your victory and our victory. That's because we didn't use our victory as an excuse to sneak in a few extra communist shenanigans before the crackdown.

But we can forgive the Russians this little bit of historical amnesia in light of their recent commitment to furthering Democracy.

For instance, Russia, under the guidance of Putin, has instituted a system in which regional leaders are appointed by the government rather than elected.

You may be wondering how exactly this is a good thing for Democracy.

Well, I'm not really sure either. But Putin is quick to point out that Russians elect their president directly, instead of using an Electoral College, which he says "might be even more democratic" than America.

This is a fabulous strategy — instead of answering for your own mistakes, you try to suggest that your accuser has more problems than you do.

You may remember this sort of logic from grade school: "You're stupid."

"Nuh-uh, you're the stupid one."

That never ended the argument then, and it's surely not going to now.

All kidding aside, Russia would do best to take its lumps on this issue and move on. Bush has admitted that the United States made a mistake in playing a part in the Soviet Union's occupation of these nations, and it wouldn't take much for Russia to accept its responsibility as well.

Russia was a vital part of the Allies' victory in World War II and could be a major player on the world stage in the future. If Russia wants everyone else to recognize this, however, Russian officials have to admit where they went wrong so we all can move on.

Column goes too far in defending minors' rights to abortions

Editor: In regards to Eva Kis' column on Tuesday, I agree that many age qualifications do not seem to make much sense.

However, an abortion is a medical procedure, and the law remains that parental consent must be given for medical procedures on a minor.

Kis makes a very weak argument when she implies that if a girl is old enough to conceive, she should be old enough to abort.

That's like saying a 6-year-old who can play soccer should be able to authorize medical procedures himself if he gets injured.

If you are going to attack the parental consent for abortion, then you must attack the greater system of parental consent for medical procedures.

A 13-year-old may have the ability for rational thought, but that does not mean that she has earned the right to make every decision in her life.

Clearly a 13-year-old who is dumb enough to get pregnant should be under the guidance of parental figures for a while longer.

It seems to me that some people are fighting to make sure that more fetuses can be aborted than already are.

Eastside plays dirty in striving for No. 4 ranking in national high-school poll

Editor: As an alumni of Eastside High School's IB program, I find it hilarious that Eastside was ranked as the fourth best high school in the nation by Newsweek.

If not for the prestigious IB program, Eastside probably would be on the bottom of the list.

Eastside is located in one of the worst neighborhoods in Gainesville, and the IB program was established there for integration purposes.

The students that are in IB are extremely segregated from the other students in the school, and at least when I graduated, most IB graduates were white.

As the article in Tuesday's Alligator explains, all the other schools that are ranked higher than Eastside have less than 1 percent of their student body rated as impoverished, whereas 40 percent of Eastside's students are impoverished.

From my past experiences at Eastside, I know that it is not the 40 percent of impoverished students that are taking the IB/AP exams.

Is it fair to judge a school only by the hard work of a fraction of the people who go there?

Passing of former Student Body president delivers a devastating blow

Editor: I have been devastated emotionally since learning about the passing of [former Student Body President] Chris Tompkins.

Chris was a great friend, a tough political opponent and an invaluable political ally all wrapped into one.

I first met Chris in 1989 — when we both served in the Student Senate for the first time.

We became friends immediately and, despite many periods when we were in opposing camps, we remained close friends and continued to work together on issues we believed were in the general interest of the student body and the university as a whole.

Chris left a lasting legacy at UF and we, as a community, should all reflect upon or learn about his contributions.

Chris was one of those rare political actors who both knew how to work the system to get things done and cared about the people he represented.

He was honest, caring and possessed a unique political skill. Unfortunately for all of us in Florida, Chris made his first bid for state political office this past year.

I know Chris would have eventually made it to Tallahassee — and Florida would have been better for it. We have all lost something with his passing.

My heart goes out to his mother, and I hope that she can take comfort in knowing that Chris' life has made a difference. I learned much from Chris and know that I am a better person for having known him. I am sure there are many others who can say the same.

I miss Chris immensely — but I will never forget him.

Expert tests show mixed results

leaf blower, so she assumed the actual amount of structures would exceed 70.

An "aggressive" test, which normally involves blowing all of the surfaces before testing, could not be done without increasing the asbestos exposure to the people in the building, she said.

Gruby's sister said she thinks "UF should definitely take responsibility for its facilities" and for the possible health hazards on campus.

Sharon Blansett, assistant director of housing, said GLE Associates, the environmental consulting firm hired by UF, found "no negligible amounts of asbestos."

The firm conducted two rounds of tests. The first of which were wipe-tests that netted 117,000 asbestos structures per square centimeter on top of a television in the hall lounge, along with 26,000 structures on Gruby's desk.

The second test, which used a special vacuum, found no structures.

Blasser-Gruby said it is "totally impossible" to find thousands of structures with one test and none with the other.

The asbestos problem could be solved if UF decontaminated the entire building and covered all of the dorm floors that have the type of tile found in Reid Hall with indoor-outdoor carpeting, she said.

Blansett said the old tile in many of the rooms in Reid Hall already has been replaced, and more are expected to be renovated this summer.

She said projects like that take years of planning because of the time and money involved to renovate a building of that size and age.

Hundreds of dorm-renovation projects are going on this summer, she said.

Blasser-Gruby would not comment on whether legal action against the university was a possibility.

When asked, given her experience with asbestos, if she felt her son was removed from the hazard in time:

"I don't want to answer that. It's too painful to think about," she said.

people are wanted by more institutions than our own."

Another candidate, UF College of Engineering Dean Pramod Khargonekar, bypassed this phase of the search entirely, having completed it during the first round of searching that took place earlier this year.

He could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

UF President Bernie Machen sent the committee back to the drawing board after the recommendations from the first search did not meet his expectations.

Machen set the goal for the second search of two to four recommended names, plus Khargonekar. He also stressed the importance of diversity among the candidates.

The six finalists number four white men and two white women. The two minority semifinalists, Gerardo Gonzalez of Indiana University and John Roberts from Ohio State, did not move on from Tuesday's deliberations.

The six finalists are expected to come to Gainesville next Tuesday and Wednesday for interviews. Those interviews will be broadcast on the UF Web site, which also hosts each candidate's resume.

By ANGIE DE ANGELIS
Avenue Writer

At a mere three-and-a-half years old, Mary Remer saw the first "Star Wars" installment, "A New Hope," in 1978.

Since that day more than 25 years ago, she has been a devoted fan.

When the clock reads one minute past midnight May 19, Remer will be one of millions of fans packed into movie theaters across the world, anxiously awaiting the release of "Star Wars: Episode III - Revenge of the Sith."

Remer is a member of Gator Knights, the Gainesville chapter of TheForce.net, an unofficial, Internet "Star Wars" fan site. The group of approximately 15 members purchased tickets online when they first went on sale April 20 and will be in full costume at Regal Butler Plaza Cinemas to watch the final chapter of "Star Wars" at 12:01 a.m.

Remer, whose favorite character has been Luke Skywalker ever since she fell in love with him in 1983, will be dressed as a Jedi knight, she said.

"A lot of us are going to be Jedis," Remer said.

Local costume shop Center Stage Costumes and Magic, 2706 SW 34 St., prepared for the big movie release by supplying area fans with "Star Wars" costumes.

The store is also hosting a "Star Wars" costume contest open to anyone 5 years old and up. A panel of judges will choose three winners May 20, awarding a Darth Vader helmet mask valued at $135 to the first-place winner, a Darth Maul mask for second place, and an Anakin Skywalker lightsaber from "Attack of the Clones" to the third winner.

The "Star Wars" operation at Center Stage is no joke, though.

“Everyone’s just very excited about it, and we’re all very happy to be a part of it.”

John Albritton
Center Stage
employee

"We have costumes coming in every week," said John Albritton of Center Stage.

Some of the store's pricier designs are molded from the movie casts, like a $1,000 Darth Vader costume and a $1,500 Stormtrooper suit, Albritton said. He said Center Stage employees will attend the movie's opening night and the 7:30 p.m. Friday show in their own "Star Wars" costumes.

"Everyone's just very excited about it, and we're all very happy to be a part of it," Albritton said.

But movie theaters aren't the only places you will see "Star Wars" stuff - if you haven't already noticed, it's everywhere.

Burger King, Cingular, Pepsi and M&M's are just a few of the big names joining the promotional-partner bandwagon to get their names on anything "Star Wars." Wal-Mart and Target stores both have exclusive merchandising deals, selling toys like the "lava reflection" Darth Vader action figure, or Darth Tater, the Darth Vader version of Mr. Potato Head.

Even Mr. Potato Head is dressing up like a "Star Wars" character.

Coming from South Florida, where the techno craze held me in the realm of expensive clubs and vinyl pants, Gainesville saved me from abandoning my alternative roots.

Punk is not dead here, and you can find hip-hop, metal, electro and emo around the corner. I don't discriminate when it comes to music: from Mozart to Marilyn Manson, I can find a place for it in my heart. There is a special ingredient in a live show, and that's why I must travel the streets of downtown, investigating musical talent. Gainesville rocks, and if you haven't explored this local music scene yet, I will show you the way.

— ADRIENNE HARRIS

I have always been one for the Hare Krishna lunch and my own tofu-veggie skillet creation, but I'm ready to move beyond my kitchen and the sweltering Plaza of the Americas. Won't you join me? I promise not to break out with "Be Our Guest." But I could if you wanted.

After serving the rich and famous at the swanky steakhouse Houston's, I can schmooze with the best of 'em. Before that, I wore a tennis skirt and tan, reflective pantyhose around the '50s-themed Starlite Diner.

I even donned an extra-large hairnet and slopped Hungarian goulash onto fellow students' plates in my school cafeteria. But experience as a server isn't the only passport to critiquing restaurants.

Because the intermezzo at the Greystone Inn tickles my fancy, and the Seven Sisters Inn's teatime makes me squirm with delight, I've realized that a special dining experience can be spectacular for the spirit.

While it hasn't all been glitz and glamour, I've learned a little something about service along the way, which I now put to use. The tables have turned, and this time I'm the guest.

While I might be diving into some less extravagant dishes here, snooping around Gainesville's restaurant scene could turn out pretty satisfying.

— JILLIAN CABALLERO

I've been around music as long as I can remember.

There was a time when I bought CDs as if they were Microsoft stock selling for a penny a share. I would come home with at least two CDs a week.

It wasn't until I bought New Kids on the Block's "Greatest Hits" and Red Hot Chili Peppers' "Californication" at the same time that I knew I had an addiction.

Being addicted to music does have its benefits — I can find a song lyric in almost any conversation.

Being such a lover of music, I must be in a band, right? Wrong.

The only singing I do is on karaoke night, though I've threatened to my mom that if singing badly sold, I would drop out of college to make it as a rock star.

Although it seems singing badly, or not singing at all in Ashlee Simpson's case, does sell.

But I think I'll stay in school and settle for reviewing what's going on in the music world.

— AMANDA SEYFANG

As a kid, I read everything I could get my chubby little hands on.

In the fifth grade, I covertly read "Gone with the Wind" well past my bedtime, until I began hallucinating that Union soldiers were in my closet planning to raid my bedroom.

Most parents encouraged their kids to read more — my mother punished me by forbidding me to read until I completed my work. My brilliant solution: hide books underneath the sink in the bathroom.

I am now an English and journalism major at UF. Though my taste in literature has evolved, books still have the same power over me that they always did.

Whether the book is good or bad, you can be certain my reviews will be written from my bathroom floor, where I continue guiltily to indulge a fake stomach condition instead of getting things done.

— JAYME GOUGH

I am the Avenue's new style liaison, aptly titled "Fashion a Go-Go."

Growing up, I didn't want help with picking out clothes or creating ensembles. I hated jeans and donned courageous outfits. In my mind, I was a fashion plate.

While en route to my goal of fashion editor, this Summer, I am looking out for the funkiest, most daring and chic UF couture.

Ladies, the campus is your runway.

A wise woman once said, "The only thing that separates us from the animals is our ability to accessorize."

If you're a guy reading this, I thank you. But you, too are not without fault — you will be mine.

— CHRISTINE STEFFENS

This is how it happened. I'm shy.

I'm shy and I went to a performing arts high school.

All my friends were actors but not me. I'll pour my heart out to strangers — right after I sprout my third thumb. I am a happy spectator and no more.

Since I would rather be chased by an angry mob of baboons than perform in front of a civilized crowd, I did what any one would. I became good at watching plays.

I look forward to offering my humble reviews from inside the temple of art for the weekly benefit of all.

Arthur Miller says theater is endlessly fascinating because of its accidental quality that is so much like real life. Sir Laurence Olivier believes that it is an outward sign of inward culture.

Watching people who pretend for a living has always fascinated me. I am currently immersed in the study of journalism and am also dabbling in anthropology. I am endlessly intrigued by language, culture and art. I especially love the mixing of the three in live form.

This summer I hope you'll allow me to transfer my theatrical delight to you.

Rapture relocates to Füs

By ALEJANDRA CANCINO
Contributing Writer

For all of those wanting to satisfy their cravings for something other than Hip-Hop, Latin flavors and '80s nights, Rapture promises to give their customers a new taste of gothic music and style Thursday nights beginning May 19.

"Rapture is targeted to that young person that is looking for a specific brand-type of entertainment that is not normally offered in the city [Gainesville]," said Raven MorningStar, founder and disc jockey of Rapture.

Gothic nights is sponsored by MorningStar and his partner Stephen, who would not disclose his last name. They originally started their business in 2003 as a weekly event at Jet Set nightclub.

When Jet Set was sold to a new owner, MorningStar and Stephen decided to move their own "club nights" to a new location — signing a partnership with the owners of Füs nightclub located at 6 SW 2nd Street.

As part of that partnership, MorningStar and Stephen operate the club every Thursday night under the name of Rapture.

"It's kind of a club within a club that operates one night a week," Stephen said.

Stephen said in the past more than 300 people showed up for their events like "Alice in Wonderland," "White Gothic nights," "Shakespearean Midsummer Night's Dream Nightmare" and "Gothic Beach Party."

“Rapture is targeted to that young person that is looking for a specific brand-type of entertainment that is not normally offered in the city [Gainesville].”

Raven MorningStar
founder and disc jockey of Rapture

In their new digs, Rapture's owners plan to continue the trend to include everyone and to break the perception that gothic is exclusive to a certain group who wear a lot of black, said MorningStar.

"We are taking that black notion of gothic, and we are twisting it a little bit," said Stephen.

Although Rapture would be a full-service bar, MorningStar and Stephen want to try to create an environment for people who don't want to drink. "We thought it would be nice to have coffee, have an espresso there," said MorningStar. "Some people don't like to drink, but they like to come out and listen to music."

Rapture would operate from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m.

The cover charge is $5, and everyone who is 18 and up is welcome to attend their events, including Thursday's Grand Opening with special VIP passes for drink discounts.

Raven Morningstar is moving his club nights Rapture to Füs on May 19. He plans to break the traditional Goth mold with themed nights where goths turn in their black leather for white mesh.

SMART FROM THE START

Iron & Wine soothes a sold-out Common Grounds

By SARAH ANDERSON
Avenue Writer

Sam Beam has it backward. Instead of building fame and fortune with a devoted backing band before breaking for a spotlight solo career, the bearded bard better known as Iron & Wine, planted his humble roots alone.

In the days before he let banjo players and backup vocalists join him on stage or in the studio, Beam set down his first EP at home on a four-track recorder. And although the addition of musicians other than Beam has roughed some smooth edges, Iron & Wine still fits the soundtrack of a summer evening spent on a porch swing.

Yes, the Woman King EP, which Sub Pop Records released in February, is edgier than previous projects, incorporating heavier percussion and even some electric guitar. But, at heart, Iron & Wine is still an acoustic band with electric energy.

Beam and Co. proved that April 28, when they played to a sold-out crowd at Common Grounds.

The show began smooth and slow, giving the audience a chance to shake off a week of finals and settle into summer like dust in the bed of an old pickup. Beam's lazy lilt and easy command of the band at first seemed to clash with the excitement of the audience. But it just took a few songs before the band matched that energy and continued to build on it.

Beam's sister, Sarah, who delivered haunting harmonies throughout the set, had only to pick up her fiddle to elicit applause and a cry of "Get that fiddle on, baby!"

She got that fiddle on, launching into a toe-tapping, shot-taking solo that did not disappoint the expectant crowd.

For a musician I normally turn to when insomnia strikes or studying in silence is impossible, Beam has found a way to rock, folk style.

As the set progressed, the quiet, almost timid image I once had of the enigmatic singer faded. He still showed his sensitive side, climbing into sweet falsetto verses set off by soft brush percussion and Sarah's backing vocals. But enter the electric guitar and a quick, percussive banjo, and he was as gritty as Mississippi mud, spitting lyrics like Copenhagen.

Iron & Wine has a studio sound best described as a hot toddy, smooth and soothing enough to lull you into an afternoon nap. But put the band on stage, and the sound is all Sparks, a taste of Heaven with a punch you never see coming.

Beam, whose tracks have found their way onto compilations for "Garden State," "The O.C." and "The L Word," will be at the Beta Bar in Tallahassee on June 8. For more information, visit www.ironandwine.com.

'Jade' kicks kung fu cliché, brings new challenges

Video games and ninjas just mix. Questionably, each is the ying of the others yang.

And yet oddly, in a medium so overly wrought with kung fu that Mario was the last character to jump without flipping, there still has been a great lack of great Asian ambience.

But "Jade Empire," a recent BioWare release, lets players control a powerful martial-arts student with a secret heritage whose quaint, sheltered life is shattered by a less-than-random bandit attack which spirals into a quest to save an ancient mystical kingdom.

Honestly, it is a template for adventure.

But it's so overused that the Xbox's last RPG hit, "Fable," opened the exact same way.

But "Jade" does something great with this hackneyed video game cliché by improving on almost every aspect of the classic, action RPG and brings a much needed flavor to the gaming world.

The game presents a world laced with emperors instead of kings, chi instead of magic and teahouses instead of taverns (players even face an army experimenting with fledgling gunpowder converted from fireworks.) And while the world of "Jade" feels by no means real, it is easily recognizable as ancient China because - like "Jade" as a whole - its environment caters to the cliché and creates something new.

Brett Kelman
Don't Hate the Playa
bkelman@alligator.org

But of course, even with all the ambience, no martial arts romp would succeed if everyone wasn't kung fu fighting.

Fortunately, there is plenty.

In combat, "Jade" wields uncomplicated controls limited to attack, strong attack, area attack and block.

You can keep the bloodshed simple and constant while seamlessly switching among more than 25 fighting styles, skillfully exploiting the weakness of any opponent.

Either strategy will allow a player to tear through the opposing hordes of men, ghosts and demons that foolishly will plague him on his quest toward the capital of the empire.

"Jade" reflects this duality of strategy in almost all aspects of play.

Outside of combat, for example, "Jade" presents its protagonist with a myriad of quests and optional challenges that criss-cross so often that what begins as a selfless errand for a nameless peasant might blossom into a plot-crucial exchange of favors.

Still, those yearning for simplicity always are presented with a dialogue option along the lines of "I'll beat your ass!" which leads to a simpler, bloodier and significantly different play experience.

Gators up after losses, ready for SEC Tournament

By SPENCER DAVIS-VANNESS
Alligator Writer

The UF softball team hasn't had much success in the Southeastern Conference Tournament in recent years.

Aside from a trip to the semifinals in 2003, tournament wins have been few and far between. So when the Gators went into a seven-game, late-season losing skid, a team that once reached a No. 16 national ranking began to look like it might fall right into line with past results.

However, a little more than a week later, the Gators now look like they may be the team to beat heading into the SEC Tournament, which starts today and runs through Sunday. UF is hosting the event and will face Tennessee today.

Starting with last week's double-header sweep of FSU, the Gators have gone 5-0, including a dominating performance at Kentucky during the weekend.

"The week we lost seven of nine games, the team had really hit rock bottom emotionally and they were pretty down on themselves," Coach Karen Johns said. "But we've been a resilient team all season; we have great heart and leadership."

"We've had some rest now and really had time to get back and work on some of the basics. I think that we've made it past the problems we were having."

Johns

One reason for the Gators' recent success may be the return of junior outfielder Lindsey Cameron. Cameron was forced to sit out for several weeks with a wrist injury last month but returned to action last week against FSU.

Since returning, Cameron is batting .396 and recorded her second career grand slam this past Saturday against Kentucky.

"I think that the players are happy to have her back, and I think that in many ways we count on her," Johns said. "She's a very emotionally charged athlete; she keeps the players in line in some ways, and when she wasn't there, I think that we may have panicked a little bit."

With or without a star player, the Gators softball teams of recent years have been anything but spectacular in SEC Tournament play. This year's senior class has seen two conference tournaments in which their team failed to win a single game.

Senior designated player and pitcher Mandy Schuerman thinks that this year may be different.

"We have a great team this year," she said. "I think that if we go out there and play well, there's no reason why we can't win it all."

"Everyone wants to go out there and get a championship."

Although the Gators have fallen a bit in the standings during the past month, Schuerman isn't at all disappointed in her team's No. 5 seed in the tournament.

"The way I look at it, we play in a very good conference," she said. "Any team seeded one through eight has a shot at going all the way."

PLAYERS HONORED: Two UF Softball players earned spots on the All-Southeastern Conference Softball teams and another was named to the Good Works team, the league announced Wednesday at the opening ceremony for the 2005 SEC Tournament. The All-SEC teams are nominated by and voted on by the league's head coaches.

Cameron

Cameron was named to the All-SEC first team. Cameron has a team leading .544 batting average and a .965 slugging percentage in conference play. This is Cameron's second All-SEC honor.

Sophomore Melissa Zick also earned her second All-SEC honor as she was named an All-SEC second team infielder.

Sophomore Lauren Roussel was recognized as part of the SEC-Good Works team for her community involvement throughout the year.

NCAA TRACK: The No. 2 ranked UF men's track and field team and the ninth-ranked women's team will travel to Nashville, Tenn., for the 2005 Southeastern Conference Outdoor Track and Field Championships May 12-15 at Vanderbilt Track.

The competition begins for the men with the decathlon on Thursday, while the Gator women's team will be in action starting on Friday. The men's squad will be looking for its fourth SEC outdoor title in program history and first since 1987. The Gators enter the event having finished second or better at six consecutive championship meets dating to the 2003 NCAA outdoor meet. The women's squad has won the event three times under current coach Tom Jones and hasn't finished outside the top five since 1996.

MEN'S GOLF: The No. 7 UF men's golf team has been selected to participate in the 2005 NCAA East Regional Golf Tournament as the No. 3 seed. The 27-member field will compete May 19-21 at The Golf Club of Tennessee in Nashville, Tenn. the NCAA announced on Monday evening.

Gators continue recent downturn, lose 11-5 to USF

By TIM CASEY

tcasey@alligator.org

Someone needs to post a missing person's report.

Maybe a dozen UF baseball players will appear on the side of milk cartons in the near future, because they are nowhere to be found.

A group of imposters have been wearing the orange and blue jerseys since April 17 when the Gators were ranked No. 5 in the nation.

Since then, the team has dropped nine of the last 14 games, including consecutive games against South Florida in the last two days.

UF fell to USF in Tampa last night 11-5 after losing to the Bulls 8-7 at home on Tuesday.

If the slump wasn't bad enough, the team had to endure an agonizing game that lasted nearly four hours.

Freshman Tommy Wynn (0-2) started for the Gators, but was only able to retire one batter before being removed from the game.

His ERA skyrocketed from 4.24 to 7.79 in the first inning due to the seven earned runs he allowed on three walks and four hits.

UF coach Pat McMahon stresses strike zone command to his pitchers, a message that his starting pitcher failed to grasp on Wednesday.

McMahon

"You've got to command the strike zone with strike one," McMahon said. "Tommy didn't do that tonight."

Senior left-hander Mike Pete entered the game to deliver his strongest performance of the season. Pete pitched five innings, allowing only one earned run while striking out five batters.

Center fielder Jeff Corsaletti and second baseman Adam Davis provided the Gators with the only other strong performances.

"We had guys in scoring position with less than two outs," Corsaletti said. "We gotta execute. We're striking out, we're not putting the ball in play. Anytime that happens, you're not going to win the game."

Corsaletti went 2-for-3 with two walks and a double. Davis hit his ninth home run of the season to go 3-for-5.

McMahon accepted responsibility for the team's recent struggles, saying they still have time to recover for a postseason run.

"I'm not used to this," McMahon said. "I take personal

Zo should be in Hall of Fame

One day many sports fans will cringe at the site of Kobe Bryant dining with the likes of Bob Cousy and Oscar Robertson at the hallowed hall in Springfield, Mass.

And for every anti-hero like Kobe in the Hall of Fame, fans tend to think of those deserving that will never receive an opportunity to read their inception speech. And sooner rather than later, a great tragedy will take place in the NBA.

Alonzo Mourning's name will likely be absent from the NBA Hall of Fame, and there is no doubt the list will be incomplete. Mourning was the nastiest defensive force in the league for the Miami Heat.

But Mourning's kidney forgot to come along for the ride, and the player about to hit his peak announced the most stunning news since Magic Johnson's shocking HIV revelation —

Andrew Abramson
Drew's Control
aabramson@alligator.org

Zo, the greatest physical specimen in the world, couldn't play basketball anymore. It wasn't because he was banned for drug abuse or he was about to stand trial on sexual assault. No, his kidney just wasn't up to par.

But the word "no" doesn't exist in the Dictionary of Zo, and he wouldn't give up. Comebacks were attempted, but the disease, the medication and the grueling NBA wouldn't allow it.

Finally, it was time to give in. Zo needed a new kidney; basketball was a lost dream slowly disappearing in the rear-view mirror. So when Zo

NCAA MEN'S AND WOMEN'S TENNIS UF tries not to repeat 2004

By MICHAEL MAURINO
Alligator Writer
mmaurino@alligator.org

A poor memory serves an athlete well. But every bad hop, blown call and loss is seared into athletes' heads so they can remember that pain.

The UF women's tennis team might relate to this.

The Gators followed their fourth national title in 2003 with an undefeated regular season in 2004. But, as the overall top seed in the NCAA Championships, they were defeated by Miami in the second round.

Heading into the first and second rounds of the NCAA Championships this weekend, the now No. 2-seeded Gators (18-2) have last year's disappointment in the back of their minds.

Calling the Miami loss a "debacle," Coach Roland Thornqvist said it is not productive to bring up last season.

"I don't think it's very particularly useful to stand there and sort of remind them of last year," he said. "I think that'll bring out just more fear, if anything. And that's not the way to play."

Junior Jennifer Magley has been a star for the Gators again this season. Paired with senior Zerene Reyes on the doubles side, they are 14-3. Magley is 12-3 at the top singles court.

"I try not to look ahead. But I feel that if you don't believe that you are going to win, what are you playing a sport for?"

Jennifer Magley
UF tennis player

One of the team's emotional leaders, Magley said anything less than an NCAA title is a disappointment and UF has what it takes to take another title. This confidence, Magley said, is necessary to win.

"I try not to look ahead," she said. "But I

■ May 12, 1998: In his regular-season collegiate finale, junior Brad Wilkerson led the UF baseball team to its first SEC title in more than a decade. He struck out nine in less than eight innings pitched and hit a two-run home run in the 7-3 win against Georgia.

responsibility in each and every one of these."

The Gators (32-17) will host Mississippi State this weekend in their final home conference series of the season.

"We have only one non-conference game remaining and six conference games," McMahon said. "A lot of the same things were happening when we were winning. It's just a ball here, a ball there. It's frustrating. We had a long session today where we talked. We hurt. We all hurt."

UF could only tally seven hits, while committing four errors in the loss. USF (29-25) had 14 hits and played error-free in both games against UF.

Jackson: Men's team knows this is a new season feel that if you don't believe that you are going to win, what are you playing a sport for?"

UF plays South Carolina State Friday at 5 p.m.

If they win, they face the winner of Florida State and Florida International on Saturday at 4 p.m.

MEN'S TENNIS: The UF men's tennis team will have the same advantages as the women's team at the NCAA Championships: the home court, familiar hot weather, even a recent Southeastern Conference Tournament victory.

But that SEC win is something that had been missing since 2000.

Jackson

Coach Andy Jackson said the Gators (20-5) still have the confidence they showed in the SEC Tournament.

However, with the victory three weeks behind them, Jackson thinks the team realizes this is a whole new season.

"I do think our confidence is high, but there's enough distance now back to when they had some achievements where we're hoping that we're level headed and understanding we're 0-0 like the other 63 teams," he said.

Jackson said UF is better than their first-round opponent, Central Florida, but the Gators should not take them lightly.

UF plays UCF Saturday at 9 a.m. If the Gators win, they will meet the winner of the Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt match on Sunday at noon.

announced he would play for the New Jersey Nets this year, everyone shrugged, including Zo's wife.

"C'mon Zo, you have to give it up. Zo, is basketball worth dying for?"

Mourning surprisingly said yes, that he would risk his life for basketball glory although he was financially set for life.

But the glory wouldn't come in New Jersey. Instead, Mourning received a strange invitation from the New Heat, manned by the greatest center of our time, Shaquille O'Neal, and the rising star Dwayne Wade. Zo was asked to return in a limited role, and his ego would have to remain in New Jersey, or in the hospital, or wherever he had to leave it.

Mourning agreed. And his time came. He's shown flashes of dominance. He'll never get a chance to play 40 minutes a game, but in game two of the playoffs against New Jersey, Mourning poured in 21 points and nine rebounds in just 16 minutes of Shaq replacement time. That was Zo reminding us that he still has game; he just had to take a little time off.

That sounds like the game of a NBA Hall-of-Famer.

There will still be skeptics — was Mourning ever good enough in his prime? I'll say this: At his peak, which was never fully reached, Mourning was no Shaq or Bill Russell, Kareem or Wilt, but he was a step above Patrick Ewing and Bob Lanier.

So Kobe, when you finally dine with the Cousy, please reserve time to discuss the greatness of Alonzo Mourning.
