Humphrey detained on additional charges

By DONYA CURRIE

One of the top eight possible suspects in the Gainesville murders was charged Tuesday with an unrelated sexual assault, while police reentered the crime scenes to gather more evidence.

UF freshman Edward Lewis Humphrey was charged in a 1988 attempted sexual battery and armed burglary in Indian River County, police said Tuesday. Humphrey was being held Tuesday night on another charge in Brevard County involving a family dispute.

Gainesville investigators also continued their field work, saying they believe the murderer of five college students taunted police by leaving messages in the victims' apartments.

"The killer may have left signals," Gainesville police spokeswoman Lt. Sadie Darnell said. "They're very subtle. They're not written messages, necessarily.

They're not blatant scrawls."

Darnell also said the killer probably spent some time in the apartments after stabbing his victims.

"He did not go, we don't think, right in and out," she said.

Alachua County Sheriff's spokesman Lt. Spencer Mann said he does not expect anyone to be arrested soon in connection with the murders, but investigators continue to track eight possible suspects. Two of those eight are in custody.

Stephen Bates is being held in the Polk County Jail on charges of armed burglary, aggravated assault and battery. Bates was arrested in Lakeland Aug. 29 after turning himself in, and police said he muttered suspicious things about the Gainesville murders.

Humphrey, 18, has been in the Brevard County Detention Center since Thursday morning. He was charged with beating his 79-year-old grandmother and is being held on $1 million bail.

The attempted sexual battery and burglary charge came after an Indian River County woman stepped forward and identified Humphrey as the man who entered her home, held a knife to her throat and demanded she take off her clothes, said Indian River County Sheriff's Office spokeswoman Theresa Woodson.

In the report filed Oct. 6, 1988, the woman described her attacker as a 24- to 27-year-old blond man with a mustache who drove a white van. At the time of the incident, Humphrey was 16. His high school senior picture shows him as clean-shaven.

While Humphrey was charged, the murder investigation widened.

Task force members sent officials to West Virginia and Wyoming and flew in a reflective light system from the University of Southern Mississippi to search the Gainesville crime scenes.

The light system is designed to pick up hidden evidence such as

Brother of possible suspect says Edward is target of exaggerations

To the nightly news audience, Edward Lewis Humphrey is the unshaven, rumpled young man staring at the judge with vacant eyes and a scarred face.

But to UF history senior George Humphrey, Edward is the little brother whose life has been a series of tragedies.

With his brother in a Brevard County jail labeled a possible suspect in the murders of five Gainesville students, George Humphrey, 22, reflected Tuesday night on the events that have turned his life upside down.

"My family is dying from this," he said. "I'm very concerned. I'm concerned about my family, and the way this will affect my brother."

Edward Humphrey was arrested early Thursday at his family's home in Indialantic, a small city near Melbourne, after he allegedly beat his grandmother. The next day a judge raised his bail to $1 million, and police dubbed him "extremely valuable" to Gainesville investigators.

Police charged him Tuesday with the 1988 armed burglary and attempted sexual battery of an Indian River County woman who stepped forward after seeing his photo. His brother dismissed the charge as ridiculous.

"Ed looks so different than he did back then," said George Humphrey, referring to the facial scars and weight gain his brother suf-

Former U.S. Sen. Lawton Chiles and incumbent Gov. Bob Martinez ran by their opponents in Tuesday's primary and the much-debated issue of a combined Gainesville and Alachua County government failed miserably.

With 67 percent of the state precincts counted, 71 percent of Florida Democrats tossed their support behind Chiles, a former UF professor now living in Tallahassee. The voting results ended an intense campaign scrap between Chiles, 60, and Melbourne U.S. Rep. Bill Nelson, 47.

In the race that wasn't, Martinez garnered 66 percent of the vote, cruising past four Republican opponents who never showed a glimmer of hope in the polls.

Alachua County voters mirrored the statewide results. With 100 percent of the votes cast Tuesday totaled, the unofficial results showed that Democrats supported Chiles with 81 percent, while Martinez received 67 percent of the Republican vote.

Former Student Senator and student body presidential candidate

Juan Vitali joined a group of Chiles' supporters at the Alachua County Supervisor of Elections office Tuesday night. He said the voters rallied around Chiles' issues.

"It's a clear mandate from the city and Alachua County," Vitali said. "Students are unified very much with his issues."

Both Chiles and Martinez will represent their respective parties in the Nov. 4 general election.

But much of the focus Tuesday night was on the voters' answer to the consolidation question. If passed, the referendum would have forced the merger of the city and county governments into one strong-mayor government. But the citizens' answer was a resounding "No," with 66 percent of voters going against the plan.

State Rep. David Flagg, D-Gainesville, was on hand to hear the results Tuesday night at the elections office and said he was glad the voters got to decide on the future of their local government.

"That's what we wanted to do," he said. "To give people a choice."

Senators try to reschedule elections for October

By JACK REJTMAN
Alligator Writer

When Student Government executives decided they wanted to push the upcoming student elections back three weeks, some questioned whether it was legal. Now they've found a loophole.

Thanks to a student body law allowing elections to be moved in case of a holiday, student senators decided Tuesday to move the election scheduled for Sept. 19 — the start of Rosh Hashana, the Jewish

New Year. Senators rescheduled elections for Oct. 10.

Student Body President Michael Browne and Student Body Vice President Kevin Mayeux wrote a letter last week to Student Honor Court Chancellor Bob Lloyd, asking him to postpone the elections. Lloyd then passed that decision on to student senators.

Browne and Mayeux wanted the election moved to accommodate students who left town last week in the wake of the murders of five local students. Postponing the election would allow both SG and potential student candidates to better prepare for the election, Mayeux said.

"There is no way the university can process stuff fast enough for us to have a valid election," Mayeux said Tuesday. "And this will allow students to know that elections are coming up and give them the opportunity to run. Otherwise, only an elite group would be running for office."

Qualifying to run for an SG office and slating to run with one of the student parties was to begin Tuesday. But when UF extended drop/add and fee payment deadlines, SG officials said they wouldn't have time to check students' requirements.

Students must have a 2.0 grade point average, have no outstanding fees and be registered full-time to run for an SG office.

Sen. Adam Tanenbaum said he was against moving the elections at first because the leaders had no legal basis for the move. But that was before he found the law about holidays.

But Mayeux said even if the holiday wasn't planned for Sept. 19, SG leaders could still move the election dates.

"The only clause in the constitution on moving elections is if there is a conflict with a school holiday," Mayeux said. "But (Tanenbaum) doesn't understand. The constitution gives us the power to change the election dates."

State funds unable to cover students' government grants

By DEBBIE CENZIPER
Alligator Staff Writer

About 1,600 UF students found themselves short of money and time at semester's start when state financial aid money ran out.

Because of Florida's swelling college enrollment, an unprecedented number of applicants applied for the need-based Florida Student Assistant Grant this year and flooded state funds, said Liz Sweeny, state student assistance programs administrator.

UF Student Financial Affairs Director Karen Fooks said hundreds of students crowded her Anderson Hall offices the last few weeks looking for alternate financing. Those students were told to apply for student loans — which can take 2 to 6 weeks to arrive — or find employment, Fooks said.

"As soon as we were aware of the problems, we were looking at ways to fill the gap," said Fooks, whose department doles out aid to 22,000 UF students.

Some of the lowest income students immediately were offered minimal grants after they lost the first grants, but money soon ran out, she said.

But students who complained they received last-minute notice were never assured of money, Sweeny said. Instead, students received a letter telling them they would be eligible for money if funds were available. About 3,700 UF students will receive grants.

Sweeny said another option for students who have been denied grants is to wait for possible money left over from unused grants this fall. Extra money will be applied toward spring grants, she said.

Each year, 30 percent to 40 percent of students who are offered grants won't enroll in school or fall short of specific grant requirements, creating a pot of extra money, Sweeny said. But although some money is usually left over, students shouldn't depend on it, Sweeny said.

"I have no idea if we're going to have the money at this point," Sweeny said.

State Rep. David Flagg, D-Gainesville, said he's disappointed not only because financial aid is scarce this year, but also because students were promised money and will not receive it. The Department of Education was "irresponsible" when it gave a "false impression" to students.

"I'm very disappointed in the manner that they handled it, giving out false hopes by sending that preliminary letter," Flagg said.

Many students may have made academic decisions based on the grants they expected to receive, he said.

About 200 Santa Fe Community College students each lost an estimated $660 per semester this year, and there's a slim chance students actually will receive state money, said Joan Buchanan, SFCC student financial aid services director.

Comedian's act postponed

Saturday Night Live comedian Dennis Miller won't perform at UF this weekend because UF police are too understaffed to handle the crowd, Student Government Productions Chairman Raul Mateu said Tuesday.

UF police increased their patrols to 12-hour shifts after last week's discovery of five murdered students. Mateu said the officers' heavier workload, along with Saturday afternoon's football game, will keep police from being free to work at Miller's O'Connell Center concert.

Mateu said the concert will be postponed until November or December, depending when Miller is free. He also said he has to check with ticket outlets about tickets that already have been purchased.

but he said he believes tickets can be refunded or held until the performance is rescheduled.

Miller was signed to perform at UF for $15,000, but he will not receive any of that money, Mateu said. He added the only money SGP, SG's concert producing arm, will lose is the $2,000 already spent on advertising.

Mateu also said Fleetwood Mac tickets will go on sale next Tuesday instead of Thursday to give students who have been out of town a fair chance to buy them. Tickets cost $10 for students and $15 for the general public, and will be sold at the University Box Office and Ticketmaster outlets.

Lombardi promises to tackle UF faculty salary inequities

By ALISON BENNETT
Alligator Writer

UF's procedure to correct salary inequities among faculty members "isn't working," and legislation designed to remedy the problem has not helped much, UF President John Lombardi told faculty members Tuesday.

Speaking to 100 members of the UF chapter of United Faculty of Florida, Lombardi said he alone can't solve the problem, but he is willing to try, and he has already set measures in place to find a solution.

"Salary inequity is surely one of the most difficult problems an administration can face, and there is no doubt that we're facing it now," Lombardi said. "The pot of money that is available creates a tremendous dilemma, given how small it is against the scale of the problem we're trying to fix."

That pot — $500,000 — was given to UF by the state legislature last year to set up ways of identifying and correcting salary discrimination among faculty. Only four of the 61 female and minority faculty members who applied for salary increases in the last academic year received them.

Lombardi said one problem in dealing with salary inequities was that the old process of application review meant final applications and recommendations for salary increases ended up on his desk — a task that belongs to the provost, not to the president, he said.

"I have so many substantive decisions to make every day," he said. "Our system of evaluation of these things is not very effective. The university that has to make these decisions on a presidential level is doing something wrong. I have lots of experience to tell when the system is working. This system isn't."

UFF President Jane Brockmann said the problem is bureaucratic red tape.

U.S. warship seizes Iraqi freighter

(UPI) — A U.S. warship in the Gulf of Oman seized an Iraqi freighter carrying tea from Sri Lanka Tuesday, American defense sources said, and a U.S.-chartered plane was expected to carry about 130 Westerners out of Iraq where they had been held as shields against attack.

More than 300 Britons left Kuwait City by bus Tuesday for a long journey to Baghdad in search of exit visas and a way home. Meanwhile, thousands of refugees remained stranded in dismal conditions along the Iraqi-Jordanian border as "hostages of the desert."

The Iraqi freighter stopped by the American warship was ordered to go to the Omani port of Muscat where it was being held in the U.S. naval interception program's first seizure. The program began Aug. 16 to enforce a U.N. embargo against Iraqi goods — imposed after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

No violence was reported during the seizure, the defense sources said in Washington.

An administration official confirmed the United States was paying for an Iraqi Airways plane to leave Baghdad with about 30 Americans and 100 other foreign nationals Tuesday. The official said the U.S. hoped to be reimbursed by the other countries whose citizens were being freed.

Earlier, a British Foreign Office spokesman had said as many as 30 Britons were to travel from Baghdad to Amman, Jordan Tuesday night on the Iraqi plane chartered by the United States. Virgin Atlantic Airways said it had dispatched a plane to shuttle them to London.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein had promised a week ago to free Western women and children held hostage and used as shields against attack. Western men, however, have not been permitted to leave.

In Paris, the French newspaper Liberation cited Palestine Liberation Organization official Abu Iyad as saying Iraqi President Saddam Hussein would be willing to withdraw from Kuwait under certain conditions.

Iyad said Saddam wanted guarantees Iraq would not be attacked, that Iraq would keep a strategic Kuwaiti island as well as a strip of Kuwaiti land along the Kuwaiti-Iraqi border which Saddam renamed after himself, and that Kuwait's exiled emir not be allowed to return to power.

Previously, Saddam suggested a regional plan that would include Israel's withdrawal from occupied Palestinian land.

Bush forgives Egyptian military debt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While seeking donations abroad to defray the costs of the Persian Gulf crisis, President Bush added to fiscal problems at home Tuesday with a bid to reward Egypt for supporting the U.S.-led stand against Iraq.

The White House announced that Bush would ask Congress to erase an estimated $7.1 billion in U.S. military loans to Egypt in appreciation of support for efforts to drive Iraq out of occupied Kuwait.

The move, telegraphed last week, would free Egypt of a $750 million payment due this year. It raised new questions about the ultimate cost of the confrontation with Iraq and fresh concern about its impact on a strained federal budget.

House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois, warned that "it might be a little bit premature" to approve the request for Egypt "without consideration for other areas where we've got to be doing things foreign aid-wise."

"I think before I commit myself to supporting this or that forgiveness, I'd like to have a full accounting of just what is our status with all the other countries around the globe," Michel said.

For the record, the debt forgiveness was intended to ease the financial burden Egypt faces from its commitment of troops to Saudi Arabia and enforcement of U.N.-ordered economic sanctions against Iraq.

But there was a strong political message as well in the White House announcement, which lauded Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak for helping to unite much of the Arab world against Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Bush was "recognizing the unique strategic contribution by Egypt to peace and security in the Middle East, a role that Egypt has played with courage, determination and consistency."

The proposed debt forgiveness was only the latest example of the costs the United States has agreed to shoulder, including an estimated $46 million a day for military operations, in its confrontation with Iraq.

Canada agrees to negotiate with Mohawks

OTTAWA (UPI) — Indian Affairs Minister Tom Siddon said Tuesday the government is willing to negotiate greater powers for Canada's Indian groups if defiant Mohawks south of Montreal disarmed themselves.

Siddon said the government already funds Indian peace keeper units in Quebec, but would discuss other policing powers as soon as the Mohawks on the Kanesatake reserve surrender their weapons.

"That is certainly one of several aspects we are quite prepared to discuss with Mohawks as an element of self-government which we are going to be taking steps to move on," Siddon said, adding that policing was "an important component" of self-government.

Saturday, armed forces conducted a lightning strike on the Kanesatake reserve and began bulldozing barricades put up nearly two months ago by Mohawks to protest a planned golf course expansion on lands the Indians claimed was an ancient burial ground.

Soldiers continued Tuesday to surround a detoxification center at the settlement in Oka, Quebec, which serves as the last post for about 50 militant Mohawk warriors, women and children refusing to disarm.

One of the militants, known only as Beekeeper, said in a televised interview Tuesday the Warriors were committed to defending the land and the Mohawk nation.

"It must be understood," he said, "that we shall either live or die in the process."

The stand-off between Mohawks and armed forces in Quebec began as a relatively simple land dispute in July, but quickly escalated over the weeks into complex demands for self-government, improved economic conditions and recognition of the Mohawks as a sovereign nation.

Gunmen surrender after 6-hour standoff

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — Three gunmen surrendered early Tuesday after holding a dozen hostages inside a Red Lobster restaurant for about six hours in an aborted robbery.

None of the hostages were hurt. One of the gunmen was shot in the leg by police during the incident.

Police said they were notified about a possible robbery at about 11 p.m. EDT Monday when a passerby saw a man with a shotgun go into the back of the restaurant.

Patrol officers and a SWAT team quickly surrounded the building and a hostage negotiating team was sent to the scene.

One of the gunmen came out the back door of the restaurant and was shot in the leg. A second gunman then burst from the door and ran off, but was captured a few blocks away.

The manager of the restaurant was forced at gunpoint to drag the wounded gunman, who had already been handcuffed, back inside the building. A mechanical robot was used by police to take a handcuff key to those inside, while one of the hostages worked the phone as a mediator between police and the would-be bandits.

cent of the county Republicans supported Hawthorne realtor Sinclair Eaton over retired Sheriff's deputy Johnny Days.

On the Democratic side, former Gainesville Mayor-Commissioner Cynthia Chestnut squeaked past lawyer Clay Phillips, a UF alumnus, and Interlachen insurance salesman Larry Harvey in her run at Martin's District 23 seat.

Because neither Chestnut nor Phillips had received 50 percent of the total vote, the two probably will meet in an Oct. 2 run-off. Elections Supervisor Buddy Irby said Tuesday night he could not confirm that because the race was so close.

And two other candidates will join them on the Oct. 2 ballot — former County Commissioner Jim Notestein and Gainesville businessman Jim Painter. Both men are vying for the District 2, non-partisan City Commission seat. Though they beat out former UF finance professor Bill Howard, neither got 50 percent of the total vote.

In a very close County Commission race, incumbent Democrat Leveda Brown retained her District 4 seat with 50.5 percent of the vote. She was contested by Ron Fuller, a transportation planner from Ocala, who took the remaining 49.5 percent. No Republicans ran for the open seat.

Brown said Tuesday night her run against Fuller was the most difficult of her political career. She also said Fuller's mudslinging tactics clouded the campaign.

Incumbent Rep. Cliff Stearns went a long way toward retaining his U.S. congressional District 6 seat Tuesday when he received 82 percent of county Republicans' support. Facing Stearns in the November election will be Gainesville lawyer Art Johnson, who beat out Tavares lawyer Joan Wollin with 56 percent of the Democratic vote.

OPEN HOUSE

WE WANT YOU TO WORK AT THE ALLIGATOR.
And if you know what's good for you, you want to work here, too.

"The Alligator was a journalism college in itself. When interviewing a UF journalism graduate about a job, the first question that pops into my mind is, 'Did you work for The Alligator?' Anyone who did well for The Alligator is almost guaranteed to do well for a commercial newspaper."

— Stephen Vaughn
Executive Editor, Orlando Sentinel

Alligator alumni, such as Vaughn, can be found in high-powered media positions throughout the country.

They include Miami Herald Publisher David Lawrence Jr., Palm Beach Post Executive Editor Eddie Sears, Ft. Myers News-Press Executive Editor Keith Moyer and staffers from The Los Angeles Times to The Wall Street Journal, points in between and more papers in Florida than you even knew existed.

All we at The Alligator can offer is experience and clips. Luckily for you, that's exactly what you'll need to get any journalism job, much less a good one, after graduation.

So how do you get to work at The Alligator?

It's easy — you walk in the door. And the best time for that will be Friday.

We're having an Open House from 3 to 5 p.m. to greet prospective new writers, photographers, artists...whatever. Come by, have some refreshments and talk to our editors and staff — we'll show you how we put out the largest independent student newspaper in the country, and how you can join the fun.

Our offices are at 1105 W. University Ave., across from Barnett Bank and two blocks east of UF. If you can't stop by Friday, come in any weekday afternoon before 4 and ask for an editor or call us anytime at 376-4458.

OPINIONS

Responsibility

You're supposed to be one of us, and yet we're ashamed of you.

You've invaded our town with satellite feeds and bad attitudes, and you act as if we owe you a comment on these tragedies that have changed our lives.

We don't owe you anything.

The media has marched into this town and turned it into a circus. And although The Alligator never thought it would be saying this, we're sick of some of those who share our profession.

Some members of the media have done an excellent, tasteful job of covering the recent deaths and the impact they've had on Gainesville residents. But some leave much to be desired.

The parents of Tracy Paules and Manuel Taboada were notified by the media, not law enforcement officers, that their children had died. Rather than wait for police to deliver the horrible news, some journalists felt they had to be the first to call the parents or get the victims' names on the air.

Almost everyone had the victims' names long before they were released, but most chose not to use the information until police assured them the families had been notified.

Reporters, and some who don't deserve that title, have come to Gainesville from around the country to jump on the bandwagon.

We know the stories have to be done, but we're saying they could be done with a little more responsibility.

At a prayer vigil on the Plaza of the Americas last week, a student had barely said "Amen" before reporters were asking how to spell her name.

And some reporters' attitudes at the police news conferences have gotten consistently worse. Granted, we also have been frustrated with the police at times during this investigation, believing they owed more information to the public than they were giving.

But the police information officers have held daily news conferences to give journalists an opportunity to ask their questions and get their "live shots." Yet some reporters ask the officers such questions as "Do you have something better to do?" when the representatives say they are tired of answering the same questions again and again.

We'd like other media to keep in mind that no one has to talk to you, and in a city where students are so scared they're entering their homes with baseball bats, you should be glad someone is talking to you at all.

If you feel it necessary to report on services and other events where students are expressing their grief, please do so in a compassionate manner.

It's easy for you to be rude. You can leave your hotel sometime this week, if you haven't left already. Remember students have to stay here, along with their fear and their memories of the way this situation was handled.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

College students pay their respects

Editor: On behalf of University of Wisconsin students, the United Council of UW Student Governments would like to extend our deepest sympathies and regards to all students, friends and families of the victims at the University of Florida.

It is shocking that a tragedy of this magnitude should happen anywhere, much less on our nation's campuses. That it should take an issue of this proportion to bring attention to the need for funding, personnel, and stronger measures regarding campus security for all students, is abhorrent.

We sympathize deeply for everyone touched by this tragedy and wish to extend to all of you our concern and hope that this will be the end of your tragedies.

Forget the sweat and bike to class

Editor: This letter is in reply to Tracy Church's letter which appeared Aug. 29 in The Alligator.

Referring to bicyclists as "annoying little mosquitoes" is an interesting analogy; perhaps drivers who speed down the road with their radios and air conditioners cranked, oblivious to all others around them, can be called "dangerous maniacs."

This analogy, however, would be generalizing and unfair because I possess both a car and a bike, but neither of these opinions.

I'm more concerned about so called respectable automobile drivers than I am about any cyclist. My life has never been endangered by an oncoming bike. Being respectable has never been correlated with a lack of sweat, at least as far as I know. If perspiration bothers you, perhaps Alaska would suit you better!

Some cyclists pay little attention to traffic laws, but then again, so do a lot of drivers; obviously you see only the former. Danger presented by a cyclist is minimal when compared to that associated with vehicular traffic. The real danger is from inconsiderate drivers who feel roads are only for cars: the drivers who refuse to give cyclists enough room to pass — what nerve!

Cycling conserves precious resources, for which American lives are currently being placed in jeopardy. How arrogant of you to advocate more wasteful practices at such a time.

Save your breath for a long bike ride and appreciate the benefits. Hopefully no one will chastise you for perspiring.

Life at UF offers many experiences

Editor: Each year, when I read the New Student Edition of The Alligator, I have felt some sort of nagging absence — something not there, which has bothered me. Glimmers appear, but on the whole, one aspect of UF life is inadequately conveyed.

Perhaps this is because those who attempt to do so are in the midst of experiencing it. Maybe it's because admitting it exists would be too obvious, like wearing too much orange and blue. Maybe it would be like sharing a secret that only special people are allowed to have.

There's a lot of talk about new freshman "freedom" and ways to exploit it, but I've rarely heard anyone bold enough to admit that an overwhelmingly marvelous thing about being at a university is that learning so much, so quickly, is incredibly exciting.

OK, not all faculty members will make your brain zing, but there are those gems along the way who are so awesomely intelligent and able to share information and thought-provoking ideas that you are never the same again.

Who can forget the serendipitous experience of having a calm, everyday discussion with friends develop into a sizzling, electrically-charged debate on some issue, leaving everyone tingling intellectually? (Whatever happened to certainty?)

What about the book you had to read for a class, and it drew you into its grasp until you marveled that anyone could write that way or think that way, and it seduced you to read more, and to follow the threads of references which sounded intriguing?

And what about the scary but challenging realization that there are so many different kinds of people who can disagree on almost everything and yet remain a "community"?

Is all of this a secret? Is it something we should be embarrassed to confess we've experienced? Or to promise to new students?

1,600 season tickets remain

By KEVIN DOYLE
Alligator Writer

UF students who haven't bought their football season tickets still have a chance to get them, UF ticket manager Bill Holloway said Tuesday.

About 1,600 student season tickets are still available for the Gators' 1990 football season, which includes six home games at Ben Hill Griffin Stadium, Holloway said.

Students can pick up their tickets by bringing their season ticket card, a photo ID and $30 to stadium gate 13 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. today and Thursday. Tickets for the east stands will be available today, and tickets for the south end zone will be available Thursday, Holloway said.

Although students have until Sept. 10 to pay their fees, fee cards won't be required to buy season tickets or to pick up game tickets until the Sept. 22 home game against Furman, he said.

Despite the slayings of five students in Gainesville last week, "season sales have gone as well as they have gone in the past," Holloway said.

Many students have not picked up their game tickets, but some said they aren't concerned about their safety at games.

SALARY

"The process to get the salary increases was very complicated," Brockmann said. "People were discouraged and intimidated at every step of the way, and the process itself involved a lot of work."

Lombardi did not talk about past problems, and did not reveal new ground rules. He said administrators are laying to ease the process of getting more money to faculty members who have experienced salary discrimination.

"Our job is to get as much money out of the system as possible to apply to the problem," he said. "You have my word that the university will do its utmost to get the job done."

Faculty who attended the meeting said they were optimistic about Lombardi's message.

"He's admitted that there's a problem and he's assured us that he'll do his best," UFF Vice President Donna Berardo said. "At least we know he's going to do something about it. That's a start."

Marilyn Maple, a professor at the UF Health Science Center, agreed.

"We have a new president," she said. "Therefore, we have new hope."

Off-campus apartments refuse to break leases

By MIKE BRUSCELL
Alligator Staff Writer

As UF offers students living on campus unconditional releases from their rent agreements, several off-campus apartment managers say students who want to break their leases won't receive discounts.

Andy Parmenter, an attorney with UF's Student Legal Services, said landlords don't make emotional decisions, even when tenants are scared.

"You're not going to see a lot of landlords going for mutual consent because they're not going to want to lose $1,000 in rent revenue by leaving an apartment open until spring. And in the southwest part of town right now, there's no chance of someone trying to sublease," Parmenter said.

Parmenter said that since last Tuesday, 31 UF students have asked lawyers at the Student Government-financed service whether they can break their leases or receive home-security improvements from landlords.

Students living on campus can break their leases without suffering a financial penalty, UF Housing director James Grimm said. Students who leave campus housing will have to pay only for the time they've stayed.

While Grimm said 10 students have broken their UF leases, Lakeshore Towers manager Linda Drake said she's had no lease cancellations.

And while managers at apartments such as Brandywine and Colonial Manor said they will extend their rent due dates until at least Friday, Oxford Manor project manager Jeffrey Knack said there would be no extensions.

But the murders have meant increased business at Colonial Manor, manager Tim Burns said. All the apartments are inside one building, which Burns said makes residents feel safer behind their doors.

"If the fire department can't knock them down with their shoulders, there's no way anyone else is going to get in."

And although community colleges received an additional $1.5 million for late applicants, the money must be divided among Florida's 28 community colleges and will not help students who already have been denied grants, she said.

Flagg said he plans to talk to Department of Education officials about the way the grant denials were handled.

Company specializes in finding student aid

By DEBBIE CENZIPER
Alligator Staff Writer

Even as state financial aid dries up and UF's fee payment deadline looms, students may have found a new ally in the search for money.

Financial Aid Resources, a private Gainesville scholarship search service founded this summer, was created to lessen the financial blow to students. This semester, about 1,600 UF students suddenly found they would not receive need-based Florida Student Assistance Grants, about $600 per semester for UF students.

Although 3,700 UF students will be awarded grants, many students received notice from Florida's Department of Education that "insufficient funds" would prevent them from getting money.

FAR President Alise Moss said the program seeks private businesses and organizations through an extensive computer bank to offer scholarships and grants to students. Moss said FAR will become a non-profit program after establishing itself.

Besides the traditional need-based scholarships, FAR searches for aid based on diverse qualifications, such as non-traditional majors or military experience, Moss said.

Although there are similar scholarship search programs in college communities nationwide, FAR is unique in Gainesville, she said.

Students pay a $45 processing fee and are guaranteed a minimum of six and as many as 25 private sources for possible financial aid.

ferred after a serious car accident in November.

"I think that's just a confused woman," he said.

But George Humphrey said his brother is the target of media exaggerations and police frustrations in a case where possible suspects and verified information have been rare.

"He didn't do it," George Humphrey said. "No way. He just couldn't. And if he was capable of something like that, if he did it, they would know by now. If he did it, he would have left a path a mile wide.

"The media has been completely irresponsible. I firmly believe in the public's right to know, but this has been a trampling of our rights. There's a whole camp of reporters outside my family's home."

George Humphrey said the arrest came on the heels of a two-year tailspin in his brother's life. The 18-year-old had two serious accidents, periodic family anxieties, nagging insecurities and the bad influence of some undesirable friends, he said.

"He's had such bad luck — tremendous bad luck," he said. "And now with all the stuff that's happened to Ed recently, well, it shows me how cruel the world can be."

George Humphrey said his brother was an above-average high school student, a football player who was successful in the classroom and popular with friends. But in his senior year, he had a bout of serious depression, a condition possibly fueled by sibling competition and their parents' divorce, he said.

Edward Humphrey entered therapy and had his graduation delayed a few months. Two years ago, he moved from Indialantic to his older brother's northwest Gainesville apartment and enrolled at UF.

"I suggested he move in with me for a change of scenery. I thought it might do him some good to get away from the family,"

George Humphrey said. "There's been some family problems."

He said his brother's depression continued, becoming particularly strong when the approach of the first day of school stirred up a fit of insecurity and self-doubts about his intelligence. Those feelings continued and his brother decided to leave Gainesville.

A few days later, as the two brothers drove to Crescent Beach for a brief vacation, the still-despondent Edward Humphrey "flew" out of the car, George Humphrey said.

"We were doing about 60 at the time," he said. "I can't say what happened. I'm not going to speculate whether he was trying to commit suicide or not. But it happened."

Edward Humphrey's injuries were relatively minor. He returned to Indialantic, and his emotional state took a turn for the worse when his first "serious" girlfriend jilted him for a friend, George Humphrey said.

Last November, Edward Humphrey totaled his car when he crashed into a telephone pole during a second accident. He suffered serious injuries, George Humphrey said, including facial scars. The recuperation also left him 50 pounds heavier and forced him to take daily medication.

"I knew then that things were going to get bad," George Humphrey said. "I knew that Edward was not going to be well. I knew society would reject him."

Edward Humphrey again returned to UF, but his brother said his condition left him edgy and hypersensitive — an upset young man who sought acceptance. He said his brother gravitated toward people who would exploit him and pretend to be his friend.

"Like I said, he's had it rough," George Humphrey said. "After this blows over, after they don't charge him — which they won't — I don't know what's going to happen. I know he needs medical help.

"He shouldn't be on the streets."

faint fingerprints, footprints, semen, blood and hair follicles.

Michael West, a researcher at USM, said the ultraviolet light, called a reflective ultraviolet imaging system, has been used to solve murder investigations in Mississippi and Tennessee.

Tim Whitfield, manager of forensic science for the Hernando County Sheriff's Office, has used laser and light investigation in more than 60 cases across the state in the past three years. He said many of the murders were solved only after investigators used a light system to unearth evidence.

"They're just making sure they don't let one carpet fiber get away or one fingerprint get away," Whitfield said.

Darnell would not say whether the light system will be used to find out more about the killer's messages.

Police also are keeping a close eye on Humphrey's Hawaiian Village apartment, although they have not entered it. The stake-out began last week, but police have not obtained a warrant to search his apartment or his car.

Humphrey's attorney, Brevard County Public Defender J.R. Russo, will ask for a reduction in bail at a hearing set for Thursday morning. But that doesn't mean Humphrey will go free, State Attorney Norm Wolfinger said.

"He can expect to have his bond reduced," Wolfinger said. "I don't anticipate that he will be out of jail Thursday."

Assault on an elderly person carries a mandatory 3-year jail term, Wolfinger said.

Reports that Humphrey's grandmother wants to dismiss the charges against him won't lessen the prosecutor's case, Wolfinger said.

"Unless I see Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer flying outside my window, I'm going to treat this as a serious case," he said. Wolfinger also said he doesn't believe Florida Dept. of Law Enforcement agents broke the law when they entered Humphrey's cell without first talking to Russo.

"I know of nothing myself where the FDLE has done anything improper," he said.

While some of the 125-member task force search the crime scenes and Humphrey's apartment complex, others are following 3,100 leads collected in three-ring notebooks.

Mann said investigators have filled 20 black notebooks with leads from psychics concerned parents, law enforcement officers and people calling in information from across the country.

About 11 of those 2 1/2-inch thick notebooks contain tips that investigators don't take too seriously, such as women reporting dreams that they will be the killer's next victim.

"We've had a lot of calls from ex-wives and ex-girlfriends," Darnell said.

Police are warning Gainesville residents to continue to be careful and to act as if the killer is still in the city.

"We have continued to say it's important to be on the side of caution and not assume the killer or killers have been apprehended," Mann said. "I don't think anybody's going to drop their guard."

These Two Valuable Safety Tips

1. A constant awareness of your environment is one of the best weapons for guarding your safety. Always be alert to your surroundings wherever you may be.

2. Trust your instincts. Research shows that a large percentage of women who have been assaulted had a feeling something was wrong just before they were attacked.

Professors strike at Temple University

United Press International

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Temple University professors Tuesday walked picket lines instead of teaching in what they vowed could be a protracted strike unless their demands on wages and benefits are met.

Many students, most of whom moved onto the campus over the weekend, expressed surprise and anger that the professors' strike could delay their education.

Some 100 unionized professors, librarians and other professionals toted picket signs reading "Temple unfair to education" at entrances to a dozen campus buildings.

The university did not officially cancel classes for its students, but many students left their classes after finding that professors were not there.

Art Hochner, president of the 1,100-member Temple Association of University Professionals, vowed to keep classes from convening.

"I want to tell everybody in Philadelphia that classes are not going to be held here," Hochner said.

The sticking point in the negotiations was the school's proposal that union members chip in $260 a year to pay part of their health insurance premiums, said Temple negotiator Robert Harrington.

Harrington criticized the union for going on strike without first submitting to a fact-finding process.

"This is absolutely unfair for the students, particularly when the law that we operate under provides for fact finding as a way to study issues, as a way to examine them and as a way to have somebody from an impartial stance make a recommendation," he said.

Hochner pledged to maintain the walkout until the administration caved in to the union's demands.

The rejected contract proposal also called for a 5-percent base pay raise, Hochner said. The university insists it averages 6 percent a year, because it includes a merit pay pool and funding to equalize salaries of veteran professors.

Average faculty salaries at Temple range from $35,800 for assistant professors to $54,600 for full professors, the university said.

The TI-68. The engineering calculator designed to handle tough technical problems.

The further you go in engineering, math or other technical courses, the more you need a scientific calculator that speeds you through complex problems. With 254 powerful advanced scientific functions, the TI-68 from Texas Instruments is both a smart choice and an exceptional value.

The TI-68 easily solves up to five simultaneous equations with real or complex coefficients. It evaluates 40 complex number functions. It allows polar and rectangular forms for entries and results.

A convenient last equation replay feature lets you check your answers without re-entering your equations. Formula programming provides up to 440 program steps for as many as 12 user-generated formulas.

You can perform operations in four number bases, one and two-variable statistics, and Boolean logic operations. And, the polynomial root finder calculates real and complex roots of quadratic, cubic, and quartic equations.

Only the TI-68 delivers so much functionality, value and ease in one compact, advanced scientific tool. For more information on what the TI-68 can do, pick up a free copy of the TI-68 technical brochure at your bookstore.

NBA's Lucas to speak at auditorium tonight

By MATT ADAMS
Alligator Writer

UF athletes will hear stories of drug dependency first hand tonight — from a fellow athlete who knows the damage drugs can do.

John Lucas of the NBA's Houston Rockets will talk to UF athletes tonight at the University Auditorium beginning at 8 p.m. All students are invited to attend.

"I've been speaking around the country for four years now and I just want to share my experiences with students and fellow athletes," Lucas said. "I don't think of myself as a speaker, but more of a friend. I just want to tell them to watch out."

Lucas has travelled the country talking about the problems that led to his chemical dependency and the problem of drug abuse since his downfall in late 1986.

He was the first player chosen in the 1976 NBA draft after earning All-American status three times at the University of Maryland. In his 14 seasons in the league, he has played for five NBA teams. In March of 1986, he was kicked off the Rockets for drug use.

After developing the "John Lucas Fitness System" for six Houston area hospitals for chemically-dependent patients, Lucas was honored by the Texas State Legislature for his work in drug rehabilitation and prevention. Recently, the chemical-dependency wing at the Houston International Hospital was renamed the John Lucas/New Spirit Treatment and Recovery Center.

He has worked with other athletes with dependency problems, including former Tennessee tailback Reggie Cobb, now with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, former Washington Redskins defensive end Dexter Manley and former North Carolina State basketball player Chris Washburn.

Lucas, a teammate of former UF basketball player Vernon Maxwell, said he also has helped Maxwell, but with non drug-related issues.

"I teased him and told him I would say 'Hi' for him to the people at UF," Lucas said. "but he laughed and said they wouldn't like that."

UF officials said the warnings of drug abuse mean more when coming from another athlete.

John Lucas has even given advice to former UF basketball player Vernon Maxwell.

Gators visit Gamecocks tonight

Volleyball team will face South Carolina at 7 p.m.

BY MIKE SCHULTZ
Alligator Writer

The UF women's volleyball team will be hoping to improve on the erratic play of Sunday's opening match loss when they meet the South Carolina Gamecocks tonight at 7 p.m. in Columbia, S.C.

It is the first road game of the season for the Gators who have defeated South Carolina the past two seasons, and have a 5-4 lifetime record against the Gamecocks. But, UF coach Marilyn McReavy said it is always difficult to win on the road.

"It's always tough to go to someone else's court and come away with a win," McReavy said.

In Sunday's 3-0 loss to Eastern Michigan, the Gators struggled throughout the match. And despite comebacks in games one and three, UF was never able to mount a consistent attack. Assistant coach Mary Jo Pepler said with more game experience the Gators should start coming together as a unit.

"We did some things well, and others not so well," Pepler said. "Like our passing. It was either great or awful, but nothing in between."

Three newcomers joined three returning players in the Gators' starting lineup Sunday, but McReavy said she might make some changes for tonight's game.

After Sunday's match, McReavy said she was impressed with the play of newcomers Steffi Legall and Suzy Schutz.

Schutz

In her first game for the Gators, Schutz led the Florida team with 13 kills, while Legall, a former player with the West German National Team, was the defensive standout with 20 digs.

UF hires tennis coach

Men's team adds an assistant

Alligator Staff Report

The Gators men's tennis team has added a new perspective as it tries to improve on last year's 17-9 squad.

UF officials announced Tuesday that Bruce Berque has joined the coaching staff as an assistant for the team. He graduated from Haverford College in 1988 and was ranked 23rd nationally in Division III doubles as the team captain that year.

"I'm really looking forward to becoming part of the Gator tennis program," Berque said. "I'm impressed with the players on the team and their work ethic. It will be exciting working with a team, both Ian (Duvenhage, men's head coach) and the players, who really want to put forth the effort to improve everyday."

Saying Berque has "excellent credentials as a teacher," Duvenhage said he expects Berque will mesh well with the team.

"His personality should blend well in our team atmosphere and allow him to make significant contributions towards the progress we're making in the tennis program," Duvenhage said. "His enthusiasm is contagious and should spread quickly."

Berque is a certified member of the United States Professional Tennis Association and has been an assistant with the women's program at Haverford since 1988. He has a B.A. in Sociology and Anthropology.

The Near-Great Wall of Florida?

Offensive line runs a close second to the Gators' 1984 version

By ALEX MARVEZ
Alligator Writer

For over a decade, being an offensive lineman on the UF football team has been a one-dimensional job.

With NFL first-round draft picks James Jones, John L. Williams, Neal Anderson, Lorenzo Hampton and Emmitt Smith in the backfield, the main objective for UF's linemen was opening holes to spark the running game.

The Gators ran the ball 71 percent of their plays during the first six games last season and increased that to 76 percent when starting quarterback Kyle Morris was suspended.

Don't expect that style of offense anymore. Under new UF coach Steve Spurrier, the Gators have switched to a pass-oriented offense, forcing an experienced offensive line to place new emphasis on pass-blocking.

"In this offense, you have to take the proper steps," said right guard Chris Bromley. "You have to set exactly textbook-style. That's the hardest thing to do. Before, it's been 'Anyway to get the job done, do it.'"

UF offensive line coach Rich McGeorge, who held the same position at Duke when Spurrier was coach from 1987-89, says the group is learning the system well, but still needs improvement before Saturday's season-opener against Oklahoma State.

"In our kind of offense with the passing game, a certain person is responsible for a certain person," McGeorge said. "In the running game, sometimes a guy misses an assignment, but the back makes a cut, avoids the (tackler) and picks up a first down. That's one thing about the passing game — assignment wise, we have to be 100 percent."

The loss of Smith, UF's all-time leading rusher who turned professional with one year of college eligibility remaining, also has placed an additional burden on the offensive line.

Even though the Gators offensive line remains unproven under the new system, the The Sporting News ranks the group the eighth best in the country in its preseason issue.

The unit also is being favorably compared to UF's 'Great Wall' of 1984, which consisted of Phil Bromley (Chris's brother), Billy Hinson, and future NFL players Lomas Brown, Crawford Ker and Jeff Zimmerman.

Chris Bromley (6-foot-5, 262-pounds) has started 16 straight games and maybe a candidate for postseason honors. Left tackle Glenn Neely (6-4, 282), junior center Cal Dixon (6-4, 274) and junior right tackle Mark White (6-5, 279) also started last season. The new addition has been at left guard where Hesham Ismail (6-2, 273) took the place of White.

Neely shrugs off any comparisons to the 1984 line.

"There's only one 'Great Wall,'" Neely said. "You look at guys like Lomas...we're nothing compared to them. No matter how much the media tries to build us up. We could probably be the Great Wall II, or the second coming, but we could never be compared to them like that."

Discipline improving with Spurrier

For years UF football players have had a bad boy reputation. New head coach Steve Spurrier took the first step toward erasing that image last week.

UF linebacker Michael Kerr's alleged involvement in a fight at a fraternity house (he reportedly struck a police officer) this summer came as no surprise to Gators fans. After all, some of UF's top players have had brushes with the law.

FURTHER REVIEW

Spurrier sent a message to any would-be troublemakers on the UF football team by suspending Kerr for the first five games of the season.

That message reads: "Wake up and smell the coffee boys. The only headlines I want this team to be a part of are those that deal with football."

UF football players have been stirring up controversy for years and perhaps Kerr's fate will send a message: stop the nonsense.

Penalties handed down in recent years pale in comparison to what Spurrier has done. The irony is, it took no extra effort on Spurrier's behalf to be a little more strict than past coaches.

Former UF running back Emmitt Smith, UF quarterback Kyle Morris and nine other players missed two weeks of spring practice and the Orange & Blue game in 1988 for their participation in a fraternity brawl.

The spotlight shifted to linebacker Huey Richardson later that year. The UF linebacker received a two-game suspension for reportedly beating up a sales clerk who refused his valid Georgia driver's license as identification to purchase alcohol.

Perhaps Kerr will serve as an example to the other players. Missing almost half of a season dims any collegiate athlete's chances of going on to play professionally.

It is unfortunate that Kerr had to be held up to the rest of the team as a whipping boy, but Kerr made a mistake and he has to pay for it.

Maybe the next time a football player decides to stir up some trouble, he'll think about Kerr. Obviously, this is Spurrier's goal.

At Duke, Spurrier built what has been called a "squeaky clean" program that even won games, too.

He is looking to do the same thing at UF.

Football players have a responsibility to the university. These young men are given full scholarships, free meals and countless other advantages that other students do not get.

Spurrier is working to improve the team's reputation. It is no secret that the program is under scrutiny from the NCAA for the second time in seven years.

Unfortunately, many people around the country judge the quality of a school by looking at its football team. Based on that criteria, UF is one of the country's worst universities.

But things are changing.

Emmitt signs, drops out of UF again

United Press International

DALLAS — The Dallas Cowboys Tuesday signed No. 1 draft choice Emmitt Smith and surprised 3,000 of their fans by introducing him at the team's annual luncheon.

"Jerry, you know there is one thing this football team needs," Cowboys Coach Jimmy Johnson told franchise owner Jerry Jones from the podium at the end of the luncheon. "And I think you know what it is."

"Why didn't you say so earlier?" Jones responded in an obviously staged and theatrical dialogue with his coach. "Step up here, will you, Emmitt?"

With that, Smith walked into the large ballroom to the applause of the fans who had gathered for the $40-a-plate luncheon.

Smith, who gained 1,599 yards and scored 14 touchdowns in his junior year at UF, signed a four-year contract and ended the longest holdout by any first-round choice in Cowboys' history. Terms were not disclosed, but the contract was thought to average $650,000 a year with a $1 million signing bonus.

"I haven't been in pads since last Dec. 30," Smith said. "I think I'm in pretty good shape. I've been running back home. But it is different when you put pads on."

Johnson said he did not expect Smith to see action until the Cowboys' second game of the season.

"We've been waiting for this," Johnson said. "We feel he is a tremendous talent."
