AIDS role-playing may alter student attitudes

By DEBBIE CENZIPER
Alligator Staff Writer

Mumbling and anxious, about 25 campus leaders on Monday played the parts of AIDS victims and their loved ones in a role-playing exercise that may soon find its way into UF classrooms.

Microbiology Professor Parker Small introduced the role-playing technique to UF's AIDS and HIV Infection Task Force members and said it can be combined with education to increase student knowledge and change attitudes.

Small said education is not a cure-all prevention of the virus. Encouraging people to actively participate in discussion and role-play can lead to a growth in personal awareness.

"Vaccines are on the way," Small said. "We don't know how far down the road. It's only education that we've got working for us."

Student Affairs Vice President Art Sandeen, UF Infirmatary director Boyd Kellett and Student Government Health Cabinet director Michelle

Encouraging people to actively participate in discussion and role-play can lead to a growth in personal awareness.

Covington, as well as other campus officials, broke up into the four-member acting groups Monday afternoon.

The "it can't happen to me" script centered on a man telling his fiancée he's been diagnosed with the HIV virus.

The couple, who never had sex, then has to deal with the social, ethical and economic issues of the situation, as well as a rush of confusing feelings.

Small said lecturing on the deadly traits of AIDS won't necessarily stop students from having unprotected sex, just like telling die-hard smokers that their much-enjoyed habit is unhealthy.

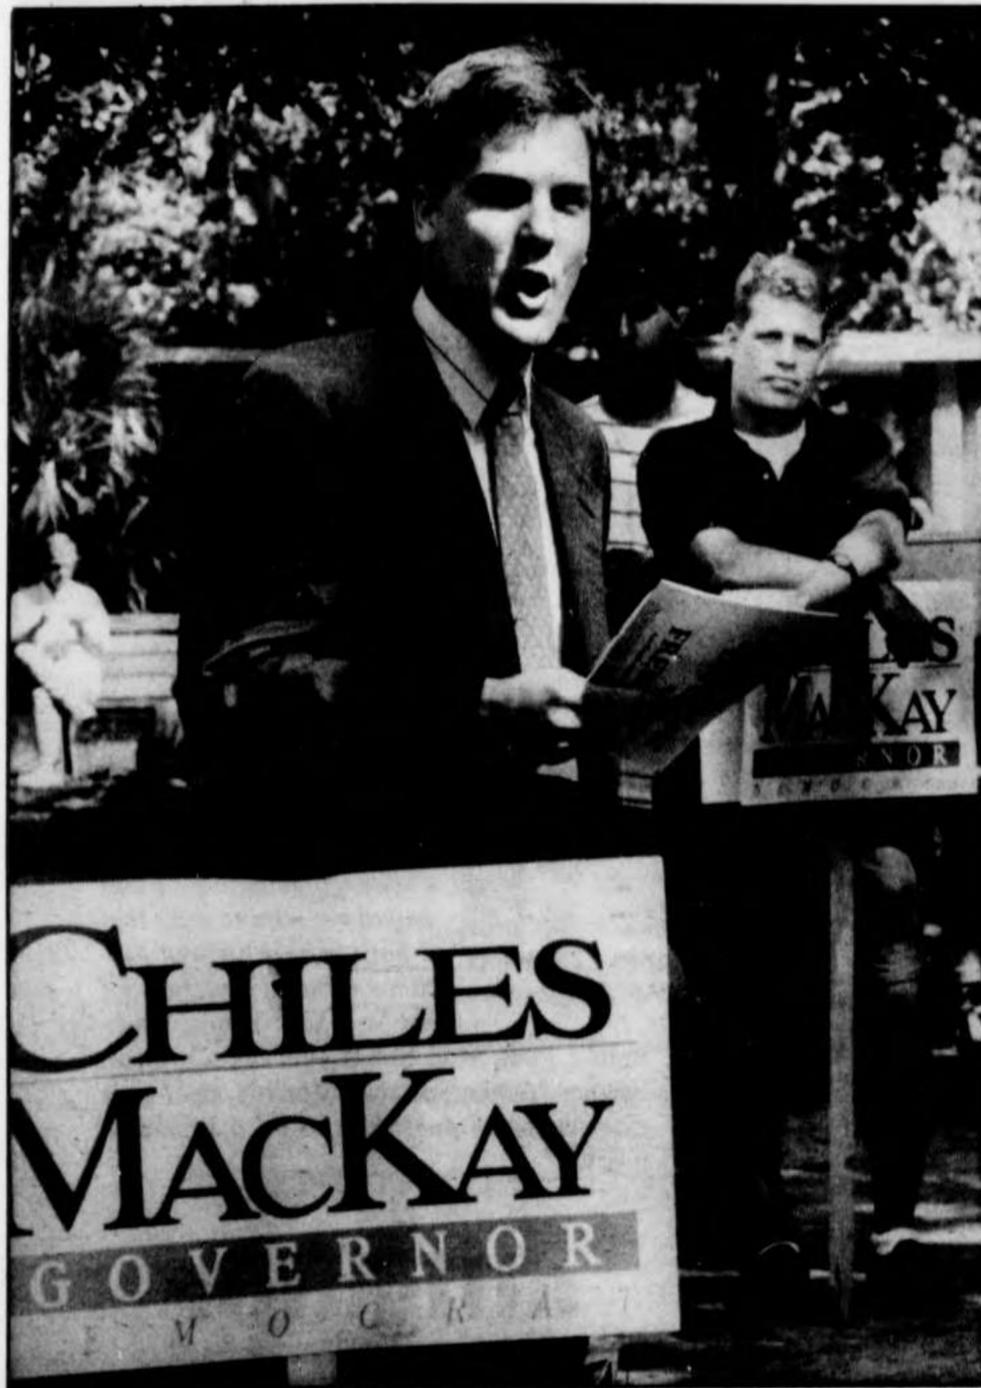

Davidalan Ronnberg, a task force liaison from the North Central Florida AIDS Network, said role-playing is extremely effective because people can avoid admitting anything they're not ready to reveal.

Ronnberg said he tried role-playing in classrooms and had enthusiastic responses.

Covington also has participated in role-playing in some of her health classes, and

Parade, banquet part of Homecoming festivities

By ANNE-MARIE PANKOWSKI

There's more to the 1990 Homecoming than Gator Growl and a football game.

UF's 66th annual Homecoming celebration, based on the theme "We Ought To Be In Pictures," will feature a week of events for students, alumni and the Gainesville community.

More than 100,000 people are expected to watch UF's Homecoming Parade on television or in person as it winds down University Avenue at noon on Friday, said Rob Sniffen, general chairman of Homecoming.

Before the parade, the two-mile Gator Gallop "fun run" begins north of Percy Beard Track and along Fraternity Row at 11:30 a.m. Runners receive a T-shirt for an $8 advance registration fee, which hikes to $9 on the day of the run.

"The run is more community-oriented," Sniffen said.

Professor to study impact of murders on community

By MATTHEW SAUER
Alligator Writer

A UF clinical psychologist will study the effects the murders of five local college students have had on the mental health of Gainesville residents and students.

Michael Herkov, a psychologist in UF's psychiatry department, will use a $15,000 grant from the National Institute of Justice as a start-up fund to study the effects of the serial murders.

"We're looking at the presence of any psychological distress and at people's coping mechanisms for dealing with the tragedy," Herkov said.

The murders may have had a tremendous impact on the UF community because they were so unexpected, he said.

"The only similar type of event (that impacts) like the murders are natural disasters," he said. "The situation is different, though, because in those cases you have warning — the event occurs and then it's over. With this process, people aren't sure if this thing is over."

Herkov has already sent a questionnaire to 1,500 UF students and will survey 2,000 to 4,000 Gainesville residents to determine what lasting effects the murders have had.

"We'll be asking questions concerning what people have done to feel safe," he said. "We're using some questions about how they perceive things happening in the world and how they're affected."

Surveyed residents and students will be contacted several times after the initial survey has been completed to assess the impact of the murders through time.

"We'll contact people who gave us permission to survey again after three months, six months and a year has passed," he said. "We'll be able to track individuals over time to see how they cope with this tragedy and how they heal."

"This study will produce a model that law enforcement people can use to help folks that have been affected by a similar crime."

SG to decide bill's fate

By JACK REJTMAN
Alligator Writer

Administrators who have kept their distance from Student Government for years are being asked to approve the excuses of student senators who want to leave for the summer in an amendment the Senate will consider tonight.

Outgoing student senators will have their last chance tonight to pass a bill that would remove senators who leave UF for the summer — a bill that has been tied up in Judiciary Committee since early July.

Senators sent the summer-replacement bill back to the Judiciary Committee last week to discuss amending the bill to allow for exceptions, such as financial-aid dependents, international students with alien status and students with military obligations.

In the past, student senators who wanted to leave their seats for the summer were able to sign over their seats to anyone they chose, and then get the seats back when they returned in the fall.

In the amendment senators will consider tonight, senators wanting to sign over their seats would have to give their reasons for leaving to a group of administrators who will verify the excuse's legitimacy.

Sen. Gloria Markus proposed the amendment because she said this way, students won't make the decisions of whether to remove an elected official from office.

Also included in the amendment is a request that departing senators give the Replacement and Agenda Committee a list of three senators they would prefer to take their seats.

Markus said she will propose this so that senators can choose someone who agrees with their views.

In the amendment, senators wanting to sign over their seats would have to give their reasons to a group of administrators who will verify the excuse's legitimacy.

If the bill doesn't pass in tonight's first meeting, it will be reintroduced after a group of 40 newly elected senators is sworn in during tonight's second meeting.

But off-campus Sen. Chris Tompkins said having to take extra time with the bill is not necessarily a bad idea.

If a poorly written bill is passed, someone just will have to fix it later, he said.

"This law cannot affect anyone until summer, so there's no reason for us to rush and get this through," Tompkins said.

When senators first heard the bill Oct. 2, it did not provide for exemptions.

"I hesitate making exceptions because it opens the door, maybe not now but possibly in the future, for more and more exceptions," said Judiciary Committee Chairman Adam Tanenbaum.

"But I won't know how to vote until I listen to the debate."

Expo to teach use of ID card

All-in-one student ID cards will be ready by Dec. 26, and UF will require that students have them, UF officials said Monday.

Lyn White, coordinator of UF's student ID card systems, said the card will be mandatory beginning this spring. Interim UF Assistant Administrative Affairs Vice President Ed Poppell said he plans to announce the card will be ready for campus-wide use at "The ID Card Expo" today at 2 p.m. in the Reitz Union Ballroom.

The Expo was created to teach faculty and staff members how to use the card and serve students better, White said.

Poppell said he will discuss the card's origin and how UF will use it but won't demand UF facilities adopt the card. The card can be used now as a library card and a picture ID.

"I will not be setting the policy for every application," Poppell said.

Likely applications next spring include cashing checks on campus and admitting UF students to free campus events, Poppell said.

Cards are available on the Reitz Union's second floor for $5.

Gainesville man jailed for rape

Police charged a Gainesville man with the rape of a 19-year-old woman Saturday in a southwest home, but will not confirm whether she is a UF student, Alachua County Sheriff's spokesman Lt. Spencer Mann said Monday.

Derrick Alexander Kozich, 20, 4455 SW 34th St., was arrested Saturday at 4 a.m., an hour-and-a-half after the woman told deputies she had been raped, Mann said.

But Mann refused to comment on whether the woman attends UF. He also did not know whether Kozich is a student.

Kozich is not listed in UF's computer directory of students.

Mann said the woman had been at a party in the house and gone into one of the bedrooms to sleep. She told police Kozich then entered the room, struggled with her and raped her, Mann said.

Kozich was being held at the Alachua County jail in lieu of $25,000 bail Monday night.

Locks, ID engraving help limit bike theft

By MICHELLE M. ROTH
Alligator Writer

Julian Smyle carries his bike up three flights of stairs, dismantles it and brings the pieces to class each day.

"It's kind of an expensive bike, and I don't want it to get stolen," said Smyle, 20, a public relations student. "I don't want to become a statistic."

Of the 115,000 bikes parked on campus each year, 350 are stolen, UF police spokeswoman Angie Tipton said.

Bikes account for one-third of all petty theft on campus, she said. Other thefts include backpacks, purses and items taken from student housing.

The most popular bikes stolen are mountain bikes, but if a bike thief can't take the whole bike, he often will settle for just parts, Tipton said.

"A bike thief will take what he can get," she said. "If people want to get something, they'll get it."

Most of the bikes that are stolen aren't locked or are improperly locked with ineffective locks, Tipton said.

At least 80 percent of the locked bikes that are stolen are locked with a chain or other ineffective locks, Tipton said. These kinds of locks can be easily broken with bolt cutters.

"The most effective lock is a U-lock," said Richard Lorenzo, store manager of The Bike Route, 1304 W University Ave. "U-locks are much harder to break into when you lock the frame and wheel to a solid, immovable object."

Stolen bikes may be resold in used bike stores, said Mier Cohen, manager of Bike's and More, 2133 NW Sixth Ave.

"It's very hard to keep track of who owns the bike because it changes hands many times," he said.

Cohen usually checks the driver license of a person trying to sell a used bike to the store. If the person looks suspicious, then Cohen will call the police with the serial number of the bike to see if it has been reported stolen.

A big problem in recovering stolen bikes is that many students do not know the serial number of their bike, Tipton said.

UF police, in cooperation with the Gainesville Police Department, began the nationwide program, Operation I.D., two years ago to help recover stolen bikes.

Precautions are necessary to prevent theft, Tipton said, but a better way is to buy a less expensive bike.

"The best bet is to buy a cheap bike so that if it is stolen, it won't be as hard to replace," she said. "Don't bring an expensive bike to school, but if you do, lock it up properly."

Florida marks first encephalitis death

MELBOURNE (UPI) — A 58-year-old woman who had been comatose for two months died of St. Louis encephalitis, the first fatality in Florida's current outbreak of the mosquito-borne disease, state health officials said Monday.

Alvena Patton of West Melbourne died at Holmes Regional Medical Center on Saturday. She was admitted Aug. 18 and lapsed into a coma Aug. 21, according to the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Her husband, Harry Patton, said she was in a coma for four weeks before doctors were able to confirm she was an encephalitis victim. However, he said they had suspected the virus.

Health officials have confirmed 34 cases of encephalitis in Florida since July 28. There are 21 more suspected cases.

Florida's chief health officer issued an advisory Monday urging communities to hold Halloween activities in the afternoon instead of in the evening to reduce children's risk of exposure to mosquitoes.

The virus is spread by mosquitos, which pick up the virus by feeding on infected birds.

The virus produces symptoms such as fever, headaches, light sensitivity, muscle weakness, upset stomach and other flu-like signs.

There is no cure. For most healthy adults, symptoms disappear in about five days. But for very young children, those over 55 and those who are already in poor health, the virus could cause coma or death.

During the last encephalitis outbreak in 1977, 110 cases were confirmed and eight people died.

Senate to approve massive defense cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate prepared Monday to approve the largest single-year cut in military spending since the end of the Vietnam War, despite the risk of combat in the Persian Gulf that could turn into the largest U.S. military operation since Indochina.

The Senate was set to approve a $268.2 billion defense appropriations bill for fiscal 1991 that would be $20 billion less than what President Bush asked for at the beginning of the year, and nearly $16 billion less than what Congress approved last year.

In an attempt to quickly finish the bill, the Senate restricted amendments to a handful, leaving several major issues for Senate and House negotiators to settle.

The major controversy centered on the B-2 stealth bomber, a plane designed to escape radar detection. The bomber has been a major point of argument in Congress since the waning of the Cold War.

The Senate Appropriations Committee approved about $5 billion for acquisition of two B-2s plus components for six more that would be purchased in the next fiscal year. The House voted to cancel the B-2 program but allocated $1.6 billion to complete testing.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., planned to offer an amendment cutting the program by $2.7 billion.

Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, the floor manager for the bill, said the measure represented "the largest reduction of military spending since the end of the Vietnam War." He said if the huge increases in military spending of the 1980s are considered, "it may be the largest reduction in military spending in the history of the United States."

At the same time, warning colleagues against further cuts, Inouye said the United States must avoid fracturing the armed services as it did after World War II, and the wars in Korea and Vietnam.

The bill does not contain money for Operation Desert Shield in the Persian Gulf. Congress earlier approved $2.1 billion and money for the military operation will be included in separate legislation.

The legislation also contains funds for one Trident submarine and one SSN-21 class nuclear attack submarine, and $238 million for research, development and testing of the V-22 Osprey, a horizontal-vertical takeoff aircraft for the Marine Corps.

The Senate bill killed the Milstar satellite communications program, ended the air-defense, anti-tank system and deferred $1 billion for procurement of the MX missile. But it rejected the decision to terminate the M-1 Abrams tank production.

Sikh militants kill 24 people in Punjab

AMRITSAR, India (UPI) — Sikhs seeking independence in the state of Punjab killed at least 24 people during the weekend, including nine felled in a shootout with militants at a farmhouse, police said Monday.

Just before dawn Monday about 12 militants stormed the farmhouse of Nirmal Singh in Dhual Kalan, a village in the outskirts of the Sikh holy city of Amritsar, 250 miles northwest of New Delhi, police said.

Police and village residents said militants killed Singh and eight other inmates in the ensuing shootout. The attackers snatched their victim's weapons as they fled the village after the gunfight, shouting pro-independence slogans.

Authorities were unable to say why the farmhouse was attacked.

Some villagers said militants attacked Singh because he was an alleged smuggler and an illicit liquor vendor, while others said the attack was aimed to seize Singh's weapons, which included two powerful assault rifles.

Militants ambushed a security patrol on a routine duty in the Amritsar district Sunday night, killing all four of them, police said.

Sikh militants carried out several attacks across the state between Sunday evening and Monday noon, killing at least 11 people, police said.

Jury selected for 2 Live Crew's obscenity trial

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — A jury was selected Monday to hear the obscenity case against Miami rap group 2 Live Crew, and opening arguments are scheduled to begin Tuesday.

The diverse panel was selected on the sixth day of jury selection. Included on the jury of four women and two men — including one black woman — are a middle school assistant principal, a diesel mechanic, a retired hospital administration worker, a sociology professor, a retired cook and an office clerk.

Two white men and a black woman were selected as alternates.

Defense attorney Bruce Rogow has said that in order to have a fair trial he needs jurors who are black and have knowledge of rap music or at least have an open mind about sexually explicit lyrics.

Broward County Circuit Judge June Johnson did not swear in the jury Monday because she had decided to sequester them once the testimony begins. She gave them the evening to be with their families and ordered them to report back to court at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

The trial is expected to last about two weeks.

Group members Luther Campbell, Christopher Wongwon and Mark Ross are charged with giving an obscene performance at a Hollywood club in June.

Neighbors howling about UF employee's pet wolves

By DUANE ROMANELLO
Alligator Writer

Barbara Dorsey can't understand why people don't like her pets.

Dorsey, an Alachua County resident and UF's journalism department secretary, owns 18 Canadian-hybrid wolves. The wolves are a mixture of Tindra, Tundra and Arctic wolves and a small percentage of malamute dog.

Dorsey said she is being discriminated against because of the species of animal she owns.

"I'm being run out of my home," she said.

Dorsey's trouble began in 1988 when she moved from Gainesville to a home near Newberry. After arriving at her new home, Dorsey found the neighbors unreceptive to her animals.

Two years later, the conflict continues. Dorsey and her son now have been taken to court and convicted of violating an Alachua County noise ordinance.

Dorsey said the wolves aren't that noisy and that UF noise expert Calvin Oliver tested her home and found the noise levels to be acceptable under Gainesville codes.

"I'm appealing the decision," Dorsey said.

Chris Barnes, another UF employee who has heard the wolves, said she doesn't find the noise offensive.

"My house dog makes more noise than those wolves," Barnes said.

But Howard Aggers, a neighbor of the Dorseys, has a different opinion.

"We're talking about a high-pitched howl four to 10 times a day, not the low barking of a yard dog," Aggers said. "People up to a mile away can hear the sound."

"I feel Dr. Calvin Oliver wasn't being very scientific in the test he conducted and that he was doing Barbara Dorsey a favor because they both work at the University of Florida."

Aggers said other neighbors fear for their children's safety and are concerned about the type of care the wolves are receiving.

"I don't think one of those women (Dorsey or her daughter) could stop a wolf if he took off after a rabbit," Aggers said.

Dorsey said the wolves are not aggressive and are kept in a secure, sanitary environment, including a fenced-in exercise yard.

"These wolves are very shy," Dorsey said. "Because they're captive-bred they could not survive in the wild. They were all bottle-fed since they were 5 days old, and now they eat fresh turkey, chicken and beef."

Capt. Barry Cook of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission described the wolves' living conditions as more than adequate.

"The housing facility meets state specifications quite well," Cook said. "It's one of the best facilities I've seen."

Aggers said he doesn't feel Cook is doing his job properly and added that he doesn't believe the Dorseys are allowed to have the wolf compound on their property or even to own the wolves.

"I'm glad we got them in court," Aggers said. "But the county still hasn't done anything about it. They definitely have grounds to force them to move."

Aggers said he is not being vindictive toward the Dorsey family and has offered to help her relocate the wolves if necessary.

"Our only concern is the noise," Aggers said. "We don't even know the Dorseys except from these unpleasant circumstances."

Dorsey said she has complied with all state requirements for owning the animals. Even if her appeal in court is successful, she will move her family and her wolves to another area.

"My property has been vandalized," Dorsey said. "The other night my gate was glued shut and a note, written in blood, said 'The next thing to die won't be a wolf.'"

"They're just prejudiced against my family because we're doing something different."

OPINIONS

What bugs ya

We asked you to write us last week and tell us what your gripes are, and we promised to print as many as we could in this column. Here are some of the responses we got:

"While Mr. Kirkpatrick (Gators tight end) may be a good football player, I sure hope he's not majoring in business. I believe his quote in Oct. 8's issue was 'I don't think people should be jealous. We work very hard. The money we bring to the university entitles us to some of these things we get.' Perhaps the first two statements are valid, but please, Mr. Kirkpatrick, football generally loses money for a university (please consult the last issue of Forbes for proof)! These articles about the quality of a football player's dorms, food, and social life have been fairly redundant and boring. The football players may have it bad now, but who's going to offer a $700,000-$1.5 million contract to someone else from another major. Quit your bitching!"

This from another reader:

"Today while walking in front of Century Tower, I saw something that disturbed me quite a bit. Milling about were 15 or so Physical Plant workers in the process of ripping up the sidewalk to build a little brick wall. Can someone explain please why there is barely enough money to keep the school open for the summer and yet there is money to build little brick walls that seem to me to be unnecessary. Somehow this seems completely unfair to the students."

Some of your gripes extend beyond UF to us at The Alligator.

"One issue at UF that seems to never die is the endless controversy over COAR (Campus Organized Against Rape) and SARS (Sexual Assault Recovery Service). I don't doubt that these organizations merit press coverage, but I have grown tired of reading letter after repetitive letter and article after article about their pros and cons, triumphs and woes. Since I am not the only student here who feels this way, my suggestion is to create something like a brief, bi-weekly summary of current COAR-SARS happenings and opinions, designed to be read in just a few informative minutes."

Another reader numbered their gripes.

Gripe #1: "It really bugs me that I get mail addressed to 'The Parents of.' I'm 33 years old for God's sake! (Do you think I should write to Lombardi's parents and complain?)"

Gripe #2: "I wonder what Litchfield Cinemas management has done to right the wrongs they committed against their former employees. I've been surprised that a follow-up has not been done by either The Alligator or The Gainesville Sun."

Gripe #3: "It really annoys me to read in The Alligator that 'UF students think' or 'Everyone at UF feels' or 'Voters supported' and to know that this UF student, who is someone and votes, did not feel that way or support that. How about more qualifying/quantifying statements guys! (And it's tempting to add that 'nobody' at The Alligator uses them.)"

Letters Policy

Letters to the editor should not exceed 200 words (about one 8-by-10 page). They should be typed, double-spaced and signed. They should include a typed name, address and telephone number. Names will be withheld if the writer shows just cause. If you have any questions call the editorial page editor at 376-4458.

THE APPROPRIATE DEFICIT REDUCTION PLAN

Are you properly toilet trained?

Pay attention, because it's possible to be sun-bathing on syringes, razor blades, or other garbage items put down the toilet days earlier. An amalgam of human fecal wastes, household chemicals, contraceptives and bathroom supplies are flushed down our toilets. They present an environmental problem that we as students and preservationists of society must contend with.

Flushing the toilet has produced an 'out-of-sight, out-of-mind' attitude. The waste just doesn't disappear. Unless it is precisely and properly treated, it will reappear in our environment with disastrous effects.

Gainesville produces this so-called wastewater at a rate of 16 million gallons every day. This would fill a swimming pool the size of a football field five stories deep. Where does this waste go? How does it get there? What's in the waste? What is the problem, and how can I help?

Gainesville's wastewater goes to one of three treatment plants: Kanapaha, Main Street or University plants. It arrives via underground sewer systems pushed by gravity until a pump station is needed to give it the extra boost to get through the piping system to the treatment plant. The problem is that materials are being put down the toilet that impair proper treatment of the wastewater.

What can you do? Plainly, NEVER put anything in the toilet except your human waste, toilet paper and water. Don't put anything plastic down the toilet. Plant managers find toothbrushes, syringes, combs, tampon applicators, condoms, glass and razor blades in the wastewater. Towels and plastic garbage clog pipes and pumps. This clogging can cause sewage back-up and disastrous environmental hazards.

Raw or untreated sewage can contain viruses that can cause hepatitis, amoebic dysentery and other illnesses. When there is a clog, someone actually has to use their hand to unclog it. This can be dangerous if razor blades or syringes are present.

Also, never put household hazardous wastes such as gasoline, paint thinner, insecticides or varnishes in the toilet. They impair the biological degradation of the waste at the treatment plant.

The wastewater system is a circle. Everything put down the toilet returns to the environment. Here at UF, the conversion of waste sludge to a soil conditioner via composting means that it is possible to come in contact with the same object (heaven forbid a syringe or razor blade) flushed down the toilet days earlier because this soil conditioner is placed all over campus around shrubbery and various plants.

As far as animals are concerned, some of the effluent from the plant is put into surface streams where otters, fish, turtles, water fowl and other wildlife thrive. If the water is rendered difficult to treat due to improper human toilet training, the wildlife will perish.

Remember these simple tips for proper toilet use. Help make the environment safer for everyone.

Chris Lane is a UF senior in environmental engineering.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Nat'l Coming Out Day was ignored

Editor: Dart! Dart! Dart! to the editors and staff of The Alligator for their inept, suspiciously discriminatory lack of coverage of National Coming Out Day.

No pronouncement or article appeared in last Thursday's paper. One letter to the editor was printed, a true paucity considering the fact that several letters were written and sent to The Alligator concerning that special day.

One was sent from myself, one from the official UF Committee for Sexism and Homophobia, one from Michael Giltz — last year's editor of The Alligator — and many more from students and GLSU members.

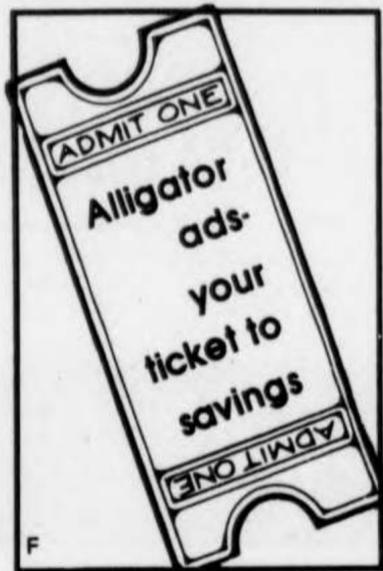

The editors and staff had in their hands an opportunity to help thousands of students at UF, and instead they turned their backs.

Was the motive complacency or complicity? Ignorance or stupidity? Fear or hatred?

My parents have told me since I was a child that in life there exists only two positions. They said, "Either you are part of the problem, or part of the solution." It seems painfully clear where The Alligator stands on this issue.

However, Sniffen said the most prestigious Homecoming event is the invitation-only Florida Blue Key Homecoming Banquet.

U.S. Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, will be speaking at the banquet Friday night, he said. Gov. Bob Martinez is among the 1,500 people expected to attend the event.

While everyone is not invited to the banquet, Sniffen said there are plenty of events planned for all students.

"All the events have a special significance," he said.

This year's Fleetwood Mac concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday was sold-out until obstructed-view seats were put on sale, Sniffen said. "This is the biggest name Homecoming kick-off concert we've ever had," he said.

Gator Expo, the annual display of UF's organizations, will continue the Homecoming spirit Friday and Saturday on the Union's North Lawn.

Other events include a free talent show Tuesday night at 8 at the Orange & Brew and a pre-game barbecue Saturday on the Union's North Lawn. Tickets are $6 and food will be served from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

"It will get people psyched up for the game," Sniffen said.

said both she and her classmates enjoyed the experiment.

Small said Health and Rehabilitative Services has the printed scripts used in the role-playing and will give them to UF at no cost so the program can be implemented in classrooms.

Task force members said they're looking forward to UF Provost Andrew Sorensen's appearance at their next meeting in November. Sorensen, an acclaimed expert on AIDS, may offer the group a more powerful and direct approach to its AIDS-program implementation.

Members also said Sorensen, UF's second-in-command, may find ways for the group to pay for its own programs instead of sending new programs through outside offices.

Before coming to UF this semester, Sorensen was part of a team that developed The Center for AIDS Research and Education.

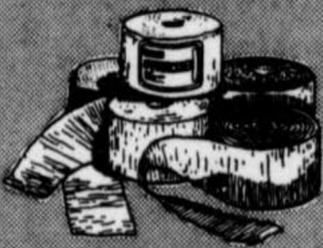

He also founded and chaired a Massachusetts state task force examining AIDS research in 1983.

Final features two UF teams

UF's Doug Prodan and Bruce Haddad defeated Gary Finnegan and Jeff Mager in the doubles' final of the Southern Collegiate Championships on UF's Varsity Courts Monday. Prodan and Haddad won 6-4, 6-4 in the tournament that was delayed nearly a week because of rain.

A sellout crowd of 72,000 is expected for the game, which will start at 1:30 p.m. It will be the Gators' first-ever matchup with the Zips.

Troops to receive UF games

U.S. soldiers in Saudi Arabia who want to keep up with the Gators and other SEC schools will be able to have their fill of conference football at the end of this month.

The University Athletic Association, in cooperation with SportsChannel Florida and the SEC, will send monthly videotape shipments of UF sporting events to several military units in Saudi Arabia.

Golf team to play in LSU tournament

By JEFF MORIARTY
Alligator Writer

The UF men's golf team begins play today in the Louisiana State National Invitational at English Turn Country Club in New Orleans.

The 23rd-ranked team of Tony Soerries, Pat Bates, Keith Albritton, Brian Craig and Kevin Hammer will face four other ranked teams including No. 6 Oklahoma State.

Soerries, the top Gator in the team's first two tournaments, and Bates, a returning All-American, are the only players who have played in a tournament this year.

In prior years at UF, Albritton has played in three tournaments, Craig in seven and Hammer in five.

UF finished third in last year's tournament when the team had three All-Americans.

Coach Buddy Alexander said he hopes the new lineup will turn around his team in this tournament.

"This tournament is important in the selections for the NCAA Regionals," Alexander said. "We are playing another great golf course, and I'm anxious to see how we play, especially with three new players in the lineup."

Some people have a lot to say about the Alligator

Keith Moyer
Editor
Arkansas Gazette

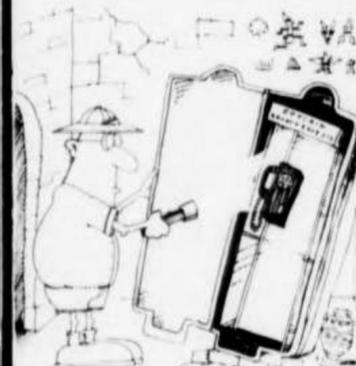

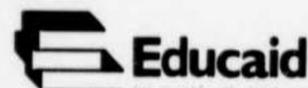

More than anything else, the two years I spent at the Alligator prepared me for my first full-time reporting job after graduation. It was at the Alligator where I learned how a newsroom works and where I turned on to the business that I love so much. I can say that my journalism school training provided me with a strong foundation for a career, but my deepest roots lie with the Alligator. I wouldn't trade my experience there - or all the lifelong friends I made there - for anything.

Gators 17th in Associated Press Poll

When the Gators took on Tennessee in Knoxville Saturday, they hoped to prove themselves worthy of the No. 9 ranking bestowed upon them last week by the Associated Press.

But after UF took a 45-3 beating from the 4-0-2 Volunteers, the sportswriters who vote in the poll may have thought they were a little too hasty in placing the Gators among the nation's finest.

NOTEBOOK

◆ Sharon Ginn

UF (5-1) fell to No. 17 in AP's Top-25 college football poll, the news agency announced Monday. It is the Gators' lowest ranking since they vaulted seven spots to No. 10 two weeks ago.

The Volunteers, who are tied with Auburn atop the Southeastern Conference, jumped two spots to No. 3 after their big homecoming win over the Gators.

Meanwhile, Virginia has taken over the top spot after No. 1 Michigan lost to Michigan State 28-27 Saturday. Michigan fell to No. 10.

Miami jumped one spot to No. 2 after blanking Kansas 34-0, and Florida State moved up three spots to No. 7 after an idle week.

Odom to play against Auburn

Inside linebacker Jerry Odom likely will miss Saturday's homecoming game against Akron, UF coach Steve Spurrier said.

Odom is out 2-3 weeks with a sprained knee he suffered in the third quarter of last weekend's game against the Volunteers.

But Odom said Monday he'll play in UF's Nov. 3 contest against No. 5 Auburn.

"I'll definitely be back for the Auburn game," Odom said. "I wanted to play this week, but the trainer said it wouldn't be a good idea. But I only have five games left in my career, so I want to be out there."

Defense drops in rankings

When UF's usually unbeatable defense took a pounding from the Volunteers' running game Saturday, it was forced to give up its spot as the top defense in the SEC.

UF fell from seventh to 10th in the nation in yards allowed a game. The Gators have allowed an average of 256.17 yards a game, second only in the SEC to Auburn (237.80).

The Gators rank 12th overall against opponents' passing games and 15th overall against the run. The UF defense has allowed 16 points each game, a figure that ties them at 19th in the nation.

UF quarterback Shane Matthews, despite passing for a season-low 119 yards Saturday, remains the SEC's second-ranked passer with an efficiency rating of 134.68. That figure places Matthews 17th in the nation.

Matthews also leads the conference with 1,464 passing yards. He ranks second in the SEC in total offense, averaging 239.83 yards a game.

And running back Errict Rhett, who had four carries for 10 yards Saturday, is third in the SEC with 75.83 yards a game.

Gators get Monday off

The Gators took the day off from practice Monday. Practice will resume today as UF prepares for Saturday's meeting with 3-3-1 Akron.

Peace enjoys life without football

By MATT ADAMS

Wayne Peace remembers Georgia.

"I came out into the stadium (the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville) and saw all those people moving, but I was too nervous to hear anything," Peace said. "That's when I realized this was big-time college football."

Peace was UF's starting quarterback from 1980 until he graduated in 1983. During his career, he passed for 7,206 yards and 34 touchdowns while leading the Gators to a 27-15-1 record.

On Sept. 13, 1982, Peace was on the cover of Sports Illustrated. A framed poster of that cover is still on display at UF's Sports Information department.

"It was such a thrill because I've been a big Sports Illustrated fan since I was a kid," he said, laughing. "Every Thursday I would run out and buy the new issue."

After leaving UF, he signed a contract with the Tampa Bay Bandits of the now-defunct United States Football League, saying that he wanted to stay close to home. That Bandits team was coached by UF head coach Steve Spurrier and was led by quarterback John Reeves, now a UF assistant coach.

But the Bandits didn't have much room for Peace.

"I came in and the team and the league was having financial problems," he said. "There just wasn't room for a guy who had a big salary and sat on the bench. So they let me go."

He later tried out for the Miami Dolphins, the Cincinnati Bengals and the San Diego Chargers but failed to make any rosters.

The last cut from the Chargers ended his professional football career.

"I went back to Lakeland, started State Farm (Insurance Agency) there," he said. "I got married, had a baby boy."

"Everything's going very nice. I'm enjoying life."

He said that football taught him how to deal with people, almost a job requirement for his new profession.

"All the guys (on the team) came from such different backgrounds and that living and working together really taught me how to work with people," he said. "If my son were to play sports, that's what I'd like him to learn."

More than just lessons, Peace said that being a player, especially being a quarterback, gave him an advantage in finding work after UF.

He said the day after he was released by the Chargers, he received three calls from businesses wanting him to interview with them.

"I tell recruits that if you want to go to school in Florida, UF is the place to go," he said. "You've got the world by the tail if you just keep your nose clean and do a good job."

During Peace's UF career, he passed for 7,206 yards and 94 touchdowns.

Basketball practice begins

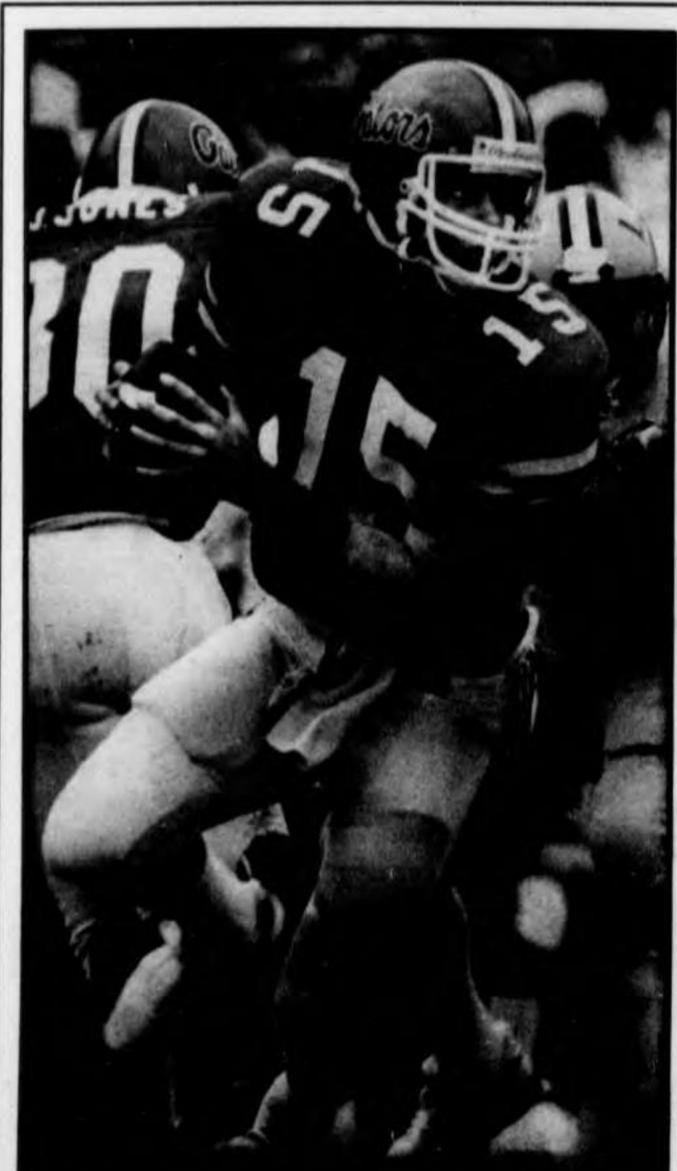

By MATT FOGLESON

The UF basketball team's first practice Monday was much different than the past few seasons.

Rather than practicing on the O'Connell Center's game court amid hundreds of basketball-starved fans wearing Midnight Madness shirts, the team quietly opened on a practice court in a corner of the dome, where a few curious fans peaked in to see what was going on.

First-year coach Lon Kruger ran his team through defensive and offensive drills. Kruger said he was satisfied with his first glimpse of the team.

"I thought their effort was good," Kruger said after practice. "A pretty normal first day." Senior guard Renaldo Garcia passing efficiency. His junior year he completed almost 71 percent of his passes - a Southeastern Conference and at the time, a National Collegiate Athletic Association record.

But he admits the passes were not always difficult. "All we did was throw little sprint out passes in the flat and down the middle. I think we averaged about 85 percent completions. Not real glamorous, but guaranteed five yards."

said he liked what he saw.

"Today went great. The practice was very up-tempo," Garcia said. "That's what we need to be a good team."

Kruger also said the team was glad the NCAA investigation ended before the season started.

"As a university, I think we're glad to have it behind us," Kruger said. "It doesn't affect this team now."

Senior forward Livingston Chatman, who quit the team last November, and sophomore forward Stacey Poole, who injured his knee this summer, practiced with the team Monday.

Chatman was expected to practice, but Poole's status was in question.

Poole, last season's team Most Valuable Player, said he has been running in the swimming pool and asking for help from above to return as soon as possible.

"Working the leg in the pool, you forget about the pain," said Poole, who ran full-court drills with probable starters Chatman, Garcia and Dwayne Davis. "My knee's feeling great. When I first came out, I didn't have confidence, but I felt better later. I prayed a lot, and that's the truth."

Poole said his knee felt 98 percent but that he would be at full strength by the team's opening game at the University of South Florida on Nov. 24.

Kruger said Poole's hard work and upbeat attitude helped get him ready earlier than expected.

The court was full of players Monday, as 15 practiced. Last year, the roster dwindled to 10.
