

UF receives authorization to raise dorm rates

By KAREN MEYER
Alligator Staff Writer

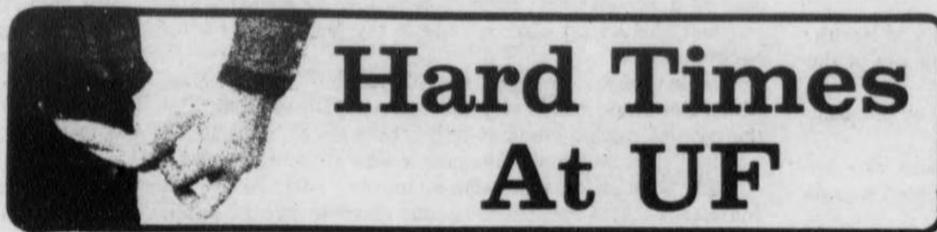

The Board of Regents authorized Monday an increase in UF's housing rates if the UF administration deems it necessary.

UF originally requested an increase from $5 to $20 a quarter for residence halls and from $5 to $12.50 a month for married housing units to help meet rising electricity and utilities costs.

UF STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT Steve Merryday and Director of Consumer Affairs Dan Lobeck suggested the increases might not be necessary and other alternatives should be explored.

Reducing "certain services not integral to dorms would cover the expenses," Merryday said.

He and Lobeck suggested the mandatory linen service provided for dormitory residents could be eliminated at a savings of from $80,000 to $100,000 and that the number of resident assistants be reduced.

UF DIRECTOR OF HOUSING James Hennessey said "there is no way" housing can manage without rental increases as the current fiscal situation stands.

"But we're going to wait," he added. "Things can change either way."

Single student housing would increase about $20 a quarter for airconditioned spaces, and $10 a quarter for non-air conditioned spaces, Hennessey said.

MARRIED STUDENTS WOULD BE paying about $5 a month more, he said, with special adjustments for McGuire Village residents.

The proposed hikes amount to "about an 8 per cent increase across the board," Hennessey said.

The increases, to be effective July 1 for married housing and fall quarter 1975 for dormitories, can wait right up to billing to be effected, Hennessey said.

UF PRESIDENT Robert Q. Marston said he would like to "look at the range of services provided and see if there are ways to serve the students better and at the same time do it in the most economical way.

"I am interested in asking questions beyond resident assistants and washing linen," Marston said.

THE ONLY POSSIBILITY IS the linen service, Hennessey said, adding it would cost the students more to do it themselves.

Sheets and towels laundered weekly are provided for $11.25 a quarter, Hennessey said, at a cost of about 12 cents a pound.

To have them laundered elsewhere would cost students about 30 cents a pound, Hennessey said.

Lobeck requested the regents wait until March before granting UF the authority to increase rates.

The regents instead amended the authorization to include the stipulation that increases would be effected if the UF administration determined it necessary after examining all possibilities.

Regents slash budget by $78 million

By TOM SHRODER
Alligator Staff Writer

The Board of Regents Monday approved a strategy to cut $78 million from next year's State University System (SUS) budget.

The reduction plan was in response to a request by Gov. Reubin Askew to reduce the 1975-1976 SUS budget to the 1974-1975 level.

THE 11-POINT PLAN included proposals to:

- Eliminate faculty and staff salary increases totalling $30.7 million.
- Eliminate $14 million budgeted to offset added costs due to inflation.
- Reduce faculty positions by five per cent resulting in a class-size increase averaging five per cent or about 30 students per class.
- Eliminate $11 million budgeted to offset faculty workload increases.
- Eliminate all new programs except the solar energy center and the Equal Employment Opportunity Plan.
- Eliminate increased equipment purchases for current personnel.

The regents also recommended $8 million budgeted for operating capital be transferred to help pay for inflated utility costs.

SUS Chancellor Robert Mautz will present the regents proposals to Lt. Gov. Jim Williams Wednesday.

ALTHOUGH the regents-approved plan can reduce the SUS budget to this year's level, state revenue for 1975-1976 is expected to be five per cent below 1974-1975 appropriations.

Regent Marshall Harris estimated the university system will have to cut an additional $16 million from next year's budget.

If Harris' estimate is correct, the amended SUS budget for next year will be $94 million below the original amount requested by the regents.

HARRIS SAID he saw three possibilities for accommodating further cuts in state appropriations for the nine state universities: larger classes and fewer class offerings, increased tuition, or fewer students.

"All three alternatives are unpopular, but one of them or some combination of all three will have to be the result (of diminishing resources)," Harris said.

Since the regents rejected a plan to eliminate freshmen at two universities, Harris said raising tuition or restricting class offerings and further enlarging class-size were the only alternatives.

THE REGENTS will consider proposals for a tuition hike at a March 3 meeting in Tallahassee.

In other action, the regents officially approved SUS plans for achieving a 3.3 per cent reduction in this year's operating budget.

Mautz said the budget cuts can be accomplished without layoffs of state employees as previously feared.

THE 3.3 PER CENT reduction was applied evenly to all budgetary units, Mautz said.

Cheating inquiry spreads as more students confess

Honor Court proceedings in the College of Business Administration cheating investigation continue today, with several more students adding their names to the list of confessors and a tight cloak of secrecy surrounding the Honor Court.

Honor Court Atty. Gen. Paul Marmish said Monday his office was still taking confessions, but declined to say how many he expected.

Marmish said no summary hearings were scheduled Monday for students who have been implicated in the alleged widespread cheating on business college final exams fall quarter. He added that some would probably be held later this week.

Robert Harris, Honor Court chancellor, confirmed that no hearings or trials were held Monday, but refused to comment on when the next ones would be.

THE FIRST UF student convicted of cheating on the business college exams was given three quarters suspension from UF by the Honor Court Friday.

The recommendation now goes to the Office of Student Services for action. Rob Denson, UF director of student conduct, said he had not received the recommendation in the mail yet, but added he expected it to come today.

MOST OF THE Honor Court operations involving the cheating investigation has moved from the main Honor Court office to an office in the activities center on the third floor of the J. Wayne Reitz Union.

Wineberger: students abuse food stamps

By ALLAN J. GENGLER
Alligator Wire Editor

ATLANTA — Casper W. Wineberger, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Monday termed student use of the federal food stamp program abusive.

He was speaking at a White House conference on domestic and economic affairs.

WINEBERGER said this is one of the reasons why the administration is seeking to increase the cost of food stamps by 30 per cent.

He said the measure could save the federal government up to $650 million.

An amendment to the Food Stamp act of 1964 gave the President the power to set food stamp prices as high as 30 per cent of a person's net income, according to Kenn Smith, regional food stamp administrator in the Division of Family Services.

Wineberger said the food stamp program "is a program which I'm afraid has been rather substantially abused, as in the case of college students and others whose need is not nearly as great as some of the people who are most in need."

WINEBERGER'S REMARKS came as part of a two day conference that attempted to explain, and convince the public of the need of President Ford's domestic and economic plans.

Ford budget is in Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — national product was 2.2 per cent.

The budget calls for a $51.9 billion deficit and outlays of $349.4 billion in fiscal 1976, which starts next July.

This is an increase of only 11 per cent — barely keeping pace with inflation—over the $313.4 billion the government is spending this year.

The budget being submitted here today is a compassionate one," Ford said in remarks he delivered as he signed the budget message and sent it to Congress.

Ford asked approval for $17 billion in cutbacks and said the deficits for the current and next fiscal years would top $100 billion if Congress did not comply.

The forecasts were the bleakest the administration has issued. "My God," said Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla. "It must mean that he is going to be a two-year President." Ford forecast greater economic stagnation this year than last, with national output dipping by 3.3 per cent when increases due to inflation are left out. Last year's drop in the gross

Overseas food aid boosted $622 million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has approved a $622 million boost in overseas food aid which will raise shipments by more than 2 million tons, officials said Monday.

The long-expected increase covers food aid spending in the current fiscal year which ends June 30. It was disclosed in figures made public simultaneously with Ford's budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said the additional food aid confirms U.S. intentions of supplying needy nations and can be shipped without driving up retail prices for Americans. "There has been some easing of wheat supplies," Butz said in a statement, "and we should be able to take care of additional (food for peace) programs without any threat to domestic supplies."

Ford, who is also scheduled to appear at the conference flew into Atlanta shortly after he presented a $349 billion dollar budget to Congress. His budget, if approved in its entirety, would leave the nation with a $52 billion deficit, the largest peacetime deficit ever.

He said, "What has been proposed is an increase of 30 per cent in the cost of food stamps, which would still leave the people who are receiving food stamps paying somewhere in the neighborhood of 17 per cent of their income for food."

"This is well below what those people not on food stamps would have to pay," he said.

"We do have a substantial number of abuses of the program, for example, the people who are increasing most rapidly as beneficiaries of food stamps are college students."

"College students are found to be eligible because state and local administrators who implement the program, look only at the income of the college student, but not at his total family income," Wineberger said.

A regulation which went into effect Dec. 31, 1974 after being approved by the Department of Agriculture bars college students who receive more than half of their support from another household from receiving food stamps.

Democrats act with dismay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — defense spending would be Congressional Democrats cut back substantially.

expressed dismay Monday Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., said the budget was "a bloated, saddening document replete with monumentally misplaced priorities reflecting a sorry insensitivity to the needy, the elderly, the disadvantaged."

They said the defense budget was the only one showing real growth in Ford's proposals —and even conservative Democrats and recession were having on predicted the increase in people.

Ford pushes Viet aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford proposed today that Congress send a delegation to South Vietnam to judge for itself whether additional American aid is needed.

Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd reported Ford's proposal after a White House meeting between the President and Congressional leaders from both parties.

Byrd said Ford "apparently feels that if that step were taken it might persuade Congress" to approve the $300 million in additional aid Ford has proposed.

Byrd said there was no immediate agreement on whether to adopt Ford's suggestion but he said resistance to further aid remained strong.

Syria seeks peace talk

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko Monday secured Syria's blessing for an immediate resumption of the Geneva Arab-Israeli conference as "the only guaranteed way" to lasting peace in the Middle East.

Gromyko then flew to Egypt which wants to give American step-by-step peace efforts time to succeed before returning to Geneva.

A communique on Gromyko's talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad called for the Geneva conference to meet before the end of February or early March and a full Soviet role in all phases of Middle East peacemaking.

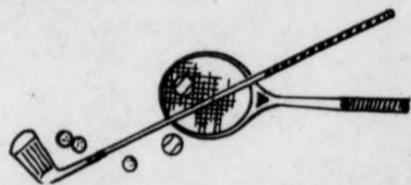

Newspapers closed

SAIGON (UPI) — The Nguyen Van Thieu government shut down five newspapers Monday and announced the jailing of at least 15 publishers and newsmen it described as "underground Communist cadres."

The five papers were among nine Vietnamese-language dailies which had their Monday editions confiscated for publishing a "political indictment" of Thieu issued by an opposition activist, the Rev. Ran Juu Thanh.

The Thieu Government frequently confiscated editions of various papers in the past, but this was the first time in the president's eight years in office it revoked any licenses.

Regents lift freeze; tuition hike due

By KAREN MEYER
Alligator Staff Writer

The Board of Regents voted Monday to lift the freeze on freshman admissions statewide, contrary to its finance committee recommendation last month.

The Regents also voted to give no further consideration to a proposal eliminating freshmen and sophomores at the University of South Florida and Florida Technological University, making a tuition hike a certainty for reducing the budget.

THE FREEZE THAT halted admissions to Florida's nine state universities early January was recommended to be partially lifted by the regents' finance committee Jan. 23.

The three-member committee at that time suggested a moratorium remain on entering freshmen until a decision can be made at the March 3 board meeting.

All enrollment applications will now be accepted for spring quarter and beyond.

REGENT MARSHALL HARRIS said the board's action effectively eliminated any possibility of cutting back freshmen enrollment at the regents next meeting in March.

Lifting the admission moratorium statewide leaves only two equally "unpopular" alternatives. Harris said, increasing tuition fees, or increasing the student-teacher ratio.

"At what point do you reduce the quality of education if you keep adding numbers but no new dollars?" asked Harris.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE proposal to study the possibility of eliminating lower division at FTU and USF stirred a controversy that packed some 250 people into the Orlando regents meeting.

The move would save approximately $1300 per student, with a total budget reduction of $3.2 million.

Gainesville regent Jack McGriff cautioned the regents that four of Florida's nine state universities already have no lower divisions.

"THE BOARD OF REGENTS has always said there should be five four-year comprehensive universities in the state," said McGriff.

They should not be concentrated in the north, but spread across the state, he added.

State University System Chancellor Robert Mautz said a tuition increase is a certainty, but how much "is going to be hotly debated."

AT LEAST a 50 cent per credit hour fee increase is necessary to compensate for students taking fewer hours with the new per credit hour tuition Mautz said.

Other alternatives suggested for exploration were:

- Shifting some Activity and Service Fee funds into matriculation funds or entrance fees, which met with objections from the state Council of Student Body Presidents

- Having the student bear 30 per cent of the total cost of his education, to be accomplished over an extended period of time;

- Increasing tuition by 10 per cent for both graduate and undergraduate students.

The tuition issue was placed on the register for public notice as being considered prior to any decision to be made in March, in accordance with the Administrative Procedures Act.

REDUCING the number of out-of-state fee waivers was another possibility, Mautz said.

With the change of legal age, students 18 years of age or older can live in Florida one year while in school and become residents.

Out-of-state fees have dropped from $5 million to $1.5 million, with the number of waivers remaining the same, Mautz said.

UF cannot assure jobs for fired grant holders

By JANET PARK
Alligator Staff Writer

Three professors and a design engineer from the UF Department of Speech who received notices of termination last week cannot be guaranteed a faculty position next year, according to Dr. C.A. VanderWerf, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Dr. Stephen Feinstein, Dr. Howard Rothman, Dr. William Brown and Wayne Harrington were notified by VanderWerf their contracts would be terminated as of August 31, 1975, with another year's contract possible.

The four are under contract to UF until Aug. 31, 1975, but the Board of Regents operating policy stipulates they cannot be terminated without a year's notice.

THEY ARE PAID by research grants and not from state funds, but if those grants end before August, 1976, UF must find state-funded faculty positions for them.

VanderWerf said he is "absolutely unable to guarantee" that faculty positions will be found for the three professors. The design engineer is classified as an administrative and professional employee, according to Dr. Robert Bryan, interim vice president for academic affairs.

Bryan said Monday UF is obligated to pay these persons even if their federal grant money runs out before August, 1976.

"STATE LINES (open positions with money in the budget for salaries) must be found. We will find them piecemeal if we have to, from people who have gone on sabbatical or are on leave," Bryan said.

Under Board of Regents operating policy, a year's notice of termination is required if the employee has been at UF more than two years.

Feinstein, Rothman and Harrington said they all have been at UF for more than the two-year requirement. Brown refused to comment.

Feinstein and Rothman have non-teaching positions and are employed at UF as assistant professors. Their work includes research and some supervision of graduate students, they said.

BROWN IS also an assistant professor but he refused comment on his duties.

Harrington is an associate in systems design. He designs complex equipment for the Communications Science Lab. This equipment, which Harrington makes cheaply from U.S. government surplus parts, is one of the main reasons why the National Institute of Health's sight inspection teams give UF high ratings.

The health institute is a principal source of the lab's grant money.

The lab is run completely on grant money. UF pays for only the local phone service and the offices, located in the basement of the Arts and Science Building.

No explanation was given in the letter of termination from VanderWerf; under the regents operating policy, the four are entitled to write to ask the reasons they were terminated.

Three of the four said they writing their letters Monday. Brown, the fourth one terminated, refused to comment on any aspect of the situation.

EAG glass recycling truck may roll by March

By JANET TAYLOR
Alligator Staff Writer

After two months of waiting, the Environmental Action Group (EAG) this week will get the truck that will be used to haul glass in their glass recycling program.

EAG Director David Streit said, "I thought we would have it two months ago, but the last I heard was we would have it by the end of this week."

STREIT EXPLAINED that the purchase of the truck had been tied up in paperwork because it had to clear through Student Government, UF, the city of Gainesville and the state of Florida.

Before the truck is used, EAG plans to partition it into three or four sections to separate different colors of glass.

Streit said they have asked Elam P. Patterson, assistant professor in the College of Mechanical Engineering, to assist them in the renovation.

PATTERSON SAID he could not give an exact cost for the renovation because he had seen the truck only once, but he estimated the work will cost "a couple of hundred dollars."

Patterson said the actual work will be done by the mechanical research laboratory.

Streit said the cost for the renovation will probably be covered by taking out a loan from SG and paying it back within 12 months.

STREIT IS HOPEFUL that the truck will be in operation the last week of February.

The proposed pickup system would have the truck picking up glass on campus on weekdays and in different parts of Gainesville on the weekends.

The capacity of the new truck will be about six tons. EAG could only carry about four tons of glass when they used the 55-gallon barrels loaded on a rented truck to transport the glass.

EAG RECEIVES $20 for each ton of glass they take to Jacksonville. With the new truck they will be making $120, an increase of $40 over the old system.

Streit also pointed out that they would no longer have to pay rent on the old truck.

per cent of the total, was also approved over the objection of Florida State University President Stanley Marshall.

FSU received nothing in the emergency allocation.

"FSU WILL SUFFER very severe hardships as a result of the cutbacks. I am sure more severe than the other universities in the system," Marshall said.

However, SUS Vice Chancellor Ken Boutwell said FSU was the only university to receive more than 100 per cent of its funding needs before the most recent allocation.

UF only received 98.2 per cent of what it earned on the basis of enrollment figures.

EVEN WITH the $730,000 emergency reallocation, UF is still funded at a smaller per cent of need than FSU, Boutwell said.

Regent Chester Ferguson said, "UF is not receiving any favorable treatment."

Julius Parker, a regent from Tallahassee questioned the fairness of UF's large reallocation on the basis of 600 freshmen admitted in "clear" violation of a regent-imposed 2,900 freshmen enrollment limit.

Mautz said the 600 extra freshmen had never been counted in any funding considerations.

Neither would the extra students be counted next year as sophomores, Mautz said.

"security reasons."

The press and public are barred from the two Honor Court offices now, and officials say only persons "on official Honor Court business" will be admitted.

All hearings and trials are held in closed sessions and the names of the students are being kept confidential.

THE SCOPE OF the investigation has become so wide, according to Honor Court officials, that they do not expect to finish this quarter and are adding professional staff members to handle the extra load.

The Honor Court was granted $2,000 Monday night to hire two full-time secretaries, one for the prosecution and one for the defense, to accurately record student confessions.

The Activity and Service Fee Advisory Committee, which makes recommendations to the Student Senate on allocation of student activity money, decided to transfer $2,000 from their $175,000 surplus into Student Government's special request fund for the Honor Court to use in hiring the secretaries for two months.

THE PROPOSAL passed over the objection of committee member Sue Cline, who questioned the legality of the Honor Court's closed hearings.

"What about the rights of the students who didn't cheat and received lower grades," she asked. "They won't find out anything from a closed hearing other than that they've been screwed over again."

She said the committee should use their power to withhold money and "ask the Honor Court to open the hearings to insure that due process is observed."

Other committee members argued, however, that the Board of Regents insists on keeping the names of those involved confidential and that any violations would result in an overturning of possible convictions.

Florida Players offer 'Taming of the Shrew'

By KAREN MEYER
Alligator Staff Writer

"The taming school: what, is there such a place?"

"Ay mistress, and Petruchio is the master; That teacheth tricks eleven and twenty long,

To tame a shrew and charm her chattering tongue."

So Shakespeare sets about, not only the taming of the shrew, but the training of UF actors, actresses and audiences in the art of Shakespearean comedy.

The glitter and flamboyance of theatricality, the resonance of boasting voices and the acrobatics of court jesters and servants are a few elements of this production of "The Taming of the Shrew."

WITH A SLIGHTLY different approach to the script, director Dr. Richard L. Green is building an educational opportunity both for performers and audiences.

Shakespeare's works have gained such a distinguished position in the literary world that people often forget they were written and played for the common people.

"Despite the language and style in which it was written, it's still a play for people," observes the cook, Martin Teitel.

DICTION, BREATH control, energy, movement, rhythm: all integrated to precision in time and space with Green's concept of this play within a play. Most cast members find Shakespeare's long lines of iambic pentameter much easier to memorize -- yet requiring much more concentration on diction and making sense.

"It's like memorizing song lyrics," says Suzannah Gilbert, who plays the shrew's sister.

When watching leading lady Leticia Jaramillo stretch her breath to get out that last word of a 12 verse line, it's understandable why one cast member calls it a "very physical play."

NOT ONLY is it vocally taxing, but energetically equally avid. Servants and other stock characters practice running around, falling down, even getting kicked, all in the name of precision.

"It's all more theatrical, bigger gestures, livelier," said Jaramillo.

Theatrical, more so than other productions of "Shrew" because Green has chosen to do the show in its entirety.

That is, it actually begins with a drunken bum and some lords who decide it would be a great trick to dress him as a lord and tell him he's been asleep 15 years. To entertain the new "lord," they arrange for a play to be put on, "The Taming of the Shrew."

Each of the actors in the Florida Players' production is acutely aware on stage that he is

FLYING FLORIDA PLAYERS

Kim Williams and Leticia Jaramillo portray Petruchio and Kate, lead "Shrew" an actor playing a role and therefore has far more freedom for "theatricality."

It's not the classical "staged Shakespearean type thing," explained servant Steve Root. "We're doing it even more bawdy than it was meant to do."

Tickets are available free for students, and should be picked up in advance. The production will be shown at the H.P. Constans Theater Feb. 10-15.

'The Night Porter' tangled in 'Tango'

RICHARD BURKHOLDER
Alligator Staff Writer

It is to "The Night Porter's" great misfortune that its advertising plumps for favorable comparison with Bernardo Bertolucci's "Last Tango in Paris."

For the voyeurs in the movie-going audience, such a notion ought to be dismissed out of hand: Liliانا Cavani's "Night Porter" takes only an "R" while "Tango" boasted an "X." Therefore, by Motion Picture Association of America standards, this former flick can't be as "hot" as the latter.

FURTHERMORE, "Night Porter" didn't carry the pre-release publicity that the Bertolucci movie did. While both

"Last Tango" and "Night Porter" raised eyebrows and quickened pulses across Europe, somehow the North Americans remained unapprised of the Cavani film's panting quality prior to its U.S. release—something which hadn't happened with the long-awaited "Last Tango."

So what one's left with is a seemingly porny-enough cash-in on one of the more financially and dramatically successful motion pictures of this decade. In fact, the sheer gall of mentioning this film's name in the same breath as Bertolucci's ought to provoke some suspicion on the part of even the hippest movie patron.

HOWEVER for those of us who have viewed "The Night Porter" the unfavorable comparison with the Bertolucci product does not end there. What Ms. Cavani has purposefully created is a motion picture that looks and sounds like an imitation Bertolucci. The directing techniques, editing, set lighting and cinematography here all reflect the supervisory presence of a Bertolucci camp follower.

What grates on us more than anything else, though, is the slavish method in which director Cavani and fellow screenwriter, Italo Moscati, attempt to cross major plot and character elements of "Tango" and another Bertolucci film, "The Conformist" (which dealt with the 1930's ascendancy of European fascism).

The resulting hybrid is a bastardized mishmash of kinky sex practices, Naziism, and moral degeneracy which is impaled upon the capricious characters of the film's two principals.

MAX (DIRK BOGARDE), an ex-SS "physician" and photographer in a Third Reich concentration camp is, by 1957, situated as the night porter of an antiquated Viennese hotel. He looks after the hotel denizens, some of whom include pederast studs, effeminate closet ballerinas, and pasty-faced aging courtesans. Max, unhappy in this vocation, years for the glory-filled 1940's days and to this end his Nazi underground contacts are seeking his admittance into an ODESSA-type organization of unreconstructed Hitlerphiles.

There is one hitch (naturally) and this concerns the possibility that not all of Max's former concentration camp victims may be dead. Somebody, says Nazi contact Klaus, may still be alive who could file against Max and subsequently indict the rest of the movement.

This one person, so it turns out, is the girl with whom Max had an affair while in the camp. An inmate who enjoyed being the object of Max's rather abnormal sex kicks (forced fellatio, knife slashings and the like), she just happens to appear at the hotel one day over a decade later.

At first she is repelled at the idea of sharing a roof with this personified past memory but gradually she comes to wish for a re-enactment of those times' exciting and uninhibited perversion. Eventually both Max and this young woman, Lucia (Charlotte Rampling), get together to submit to the mutual—and writhing—carnality which seemed so much a part of their collective Nazidom existence.

Soon Max's Nazi friends find out about the liaison which he and Lucia are sharing. Although she and Max swear that revelations to the authorities about Third Reich days are not forthcoming, the underground cell plots to break up the romance anyway "for purposes of security."

It is at this point that the viewer is introduced to the main thrust of conflict in the film: how to keep the bad old Nazis away from the protagonists' on-going revel.

YET BY this time the moviegoer is also aware of the film's main failing: unlike the romantic twosomes in "Tango" and "Conformist" the duet of principals here haven't strong personalities. Max and Lucia are weak, vacillating, and buffeted by outside forces instead of being driven to (more than purely sexual) action by their own innate complexities of character. They therefore so completely come to share the pleasure in their sensual amorality that their beings become mere extensions of their sexual libidos and defensive reactors against the now-aggressive Nazis.

The one thing that Cavani and Moscati forgot to take from Bertolucci was his willful and independently spirited characters, which were the essential strengths of his "Tango" and "Conformist." Cavani and Moscati's opting for psychologically debilitated principals ultimately contributes to little but the dilution of the film's overall impact.

CERTAIN OTHER Bertolucci hallmarks are herewith in evidence, though, as we noted earlier: brooding chiaroscuro cinematography, half-lit interiors, and bittersweet background music (a mix between Georges Delerue's nostalgic "Conformist" and Gato Barbieri's jazzy "Tango" scores) are utilized rather extensively. These at least make for some aesthetically pleasing visual and aural images.

Nonetheless, our advice to those who contemplate seeing this film is to stay home, save your $2.50 admission fee, and wait until the end of the quarter when you can attend a Union showing of "Last Tango in Paris" for a nominal price. For most of us it should prove better to view the vaunted parent film again than spend an occasion watching one of its highly imperfect offspring.

Brotherhood

Honor Court Chancellor Robert Harris is an alumnus of Tau Epsilon Phi (TEP) fraternity. And thus, through the mist of secrecy surrounding it, can be seen some clue to the form justice could take in the Honor Court's investigation of alleged cheating in the UF College of Business Administration.

At least nine members of TEP were among the 30 students initially subpoenaed by the Honor Court in its investigation.

And for what it's worth, we pass on what Chancellor Harris told us yesterday:

"I can tell you that I will be sitting in the cases of some TEPs."

Harris was one of the judges sitting in the case last Friday of the first UF student convicted in the cheating scandal. The court recommended to the Student Conduct Committee the student be suspended from school for three quarters.

Asked whether the student convicted Friday was a member of TEP, Harris declined comment.

We think it improper for Harris to sit in judgment of students who are brothers in his old fraternity.

But the real point, of course, is that as long as the trials are closed to the public, we will never know if Harris is sitting in cases he shouldn't be because of conflict of interest.

There's always hope that some of the students charged will demand an open trial, which is guaranteed under the Student Body Constitution.

Until then, is there still time to pledge TEP?

Injustice

In what has to be a classic example of mass-condemnation, U.S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Casper Wineberger did a grave injustice to over 60,000 American college students yesterday.

Speaking at a conference on domestic and economic affairs in Atlanta Wineberger indiscriminately passed judgment on these students when he said the Federal Food Stamp program is being "substantially" abused by college students whose need is not as great as others.

Disregarding the fact that the food stamp program is the responsibility of the Department of Agriculture and presumably outside his own sphere of expertise, Wineberger's intent was to push President Ford's proposal to raise the cost of the food stamps thereby trimming some "undeserving" elements off the rolls.

Apparently Wineberger shares the vision of many Federal and state government officials these days of students driving up to food stamp offices in sports cars so they can spend the money sent them by their indulgent parents on pot and booze.

We wonder how many of the 15,000 students who make up one third of Alachua Counties food stamp rolls would fit into this vision.

With the cost of a college education shooting up more than seven per cent in the last year, and with the soaring costs of other incidentals like rent, clothing, utilities and even books, we find it hard to believe that college students are all that needlessly abusive of the system.

We suggest Mr. Wineberger confine himself to matters within his own domain and leave the question of food stamps to the proper department.

On parenthood and society

JANIS MARA

You're shopping in a department store. You notice a woman with two children, one of whom tries to grab something. The mother slaps his hand.

THE BOY bursts into hysterical tears and the mother yells, "Shut up!"

How would you react to this? Would you think, "What a terrible mother," and feel sorry for the kids? That was always my reaction. But my outlook has changed quite a bit since I've started spending time with children.

Here's an example: Sallie, a friend of mine, and her two-year-old daughter Joan accompanied me to a restaurant one night.

After we ordered, the waitress brought a high chair for Joan. When Sallie attempted to install her in the chair, Joan released an ungodly shriek that penetrated every corner of the restaurant. Everyone in the restaurant turned and stared as Joan screamed, kicked and hammered her fists on the high chair.

"JOAN, please don't be so upset."

At this point, what were our options? To get up and leave without eating dinner? To take Joanie out of the high chair, thus showing her she could get her way anytime by raising a fuss? To sit there and ignore her, hoping she would quiet down eventually?

We chose the third option, since we were starving. We were rewarded with fifteen minutes of tears and banshee shrieks from Joan, accompanied with stares and whispers of disapproval from the waitresses and other customers.

No doubt many of these people thought, "What a rotten mother! If she can't control her kid, she should stay home!"

PROBLEMS like this begin not with the mother or the children, but the treatment society gives them. It seems unfair to exclude someone from eating in a restaurant, or going to the store, or leaving the house at all simply because she is caring for a child.

During World War Two, department stores had nursery areas with attendants. Mothers could shop without being distracted by the kids — or having to pay for a babysitter.

Why not have them today?

ANOTHER unfair expectation is that mothers must take sole responsibility for the children. For instance: I saw a tall, strapping man walking with a woman the other day. She carried an infant, a large shoulder purse, and a diaper box. He carried nothing.

Of course, this drew no disapproving stares from passersby. If the situation were reversed, the man would probably receive smiles of approval; the woman might receive puzzled looks.

It would be far more constructive if fathers were encouraged to participate in parenthood. After all, children need fathers as well as mothers. And it's unfair to put the entire burden on the woman's shoulders.

MOTHERS are constantly expected to perform according to others' expectations, and criticized if they do not. A friend of mine was babysitting a two-year-old and brought her to class.

As Sallie, Joan's mother, describes it: "Society says you must control your children. When you're in public and they begin to fuss, you're afraid they'll throw a fit and you won't be able to control them. The children sense this and manipulate it. They demand things, knowing you'll give in out of fear."

RETURNING to the scene in the restaurant: It's true the other diners were disturbed by Joan's screaming. But what did they accomplish by their angry stares? They certainly didn't hush the child. Why penalize the mother for something she obviously can't prevent?

People keep putting a trip over on mothers. They're a little nicer to a father — "After all, what's a man to do with a child?" But if you're the kids' mother it's "Do something!"

In Sallie's words: "Both the parents are human beings with a small human being to deal with. Because one is the 'weaker sex,' she is supposed to be superhuman."

Marston making extraordinary commitment

Last week UF President Robert Q. Marston virtually guaranteed no UF personnel would be laid off and no commitments to graduate students would be broken.

THAT IS an extraordinary commitment.

For the last few weeks a seemingly insoluble deficit of nearly $1 million in UF's general education (E&G) budget had been threatening the jobs of service personnel and the futures of graduate students.

The uncertainties of the situation were beginning to take a toll on the morale of the UF community.

Then Wednesday, in a dramatic public statement, Marston reported he had received the necessary power to assure job security and fulfill all educational responsibilities.

MARSTON said the university system granted him the power to transfer savings from the J. Hillis Miller Health Center and the Institute for Food and Agricultural Sciences (IFAS) to UF's troubled E&G budget.

Enough funds can be transferred to assure the elimination of the E&G deficit, Marston said.

The next day, Dr. Chandler A. Stetson, vice president for health affairs and the health center official closest to the budget negotiations expressed surprise at Marston's optimism.

"If we can help, we will," he said. "But I think it would be stretching it to say positively that IFAS and the health center can totally solve the problem."

IT IS difficult to believe Marston would make such a dramatic commitment unless he was absolutely certain he could make good on it.

On the other hand, it seems doubtful Stetson would purposely misrepresent his ability to help in a crisis situation.

What does seem likely is that Stetson did not realize how far Marston is prepared to go into UF's two relatively healthy budgets.

This year IFAS and the health center must return to the state more than $2.3 million in unspent salary allocations.

ONCE THAT amount is repaid E&G will receive sixty percent of any further salary savings.

However Dr. Robert Mautz, Chancellor of the State University System, said last month he did not believe there would be any further savings. By the time they pay back the state they will not have any savings left, Mautz said.

Unlike salary money, savings in operating capital and expense money in IFAS and the health center can be transferred directly to E & G.

It is in this category of potential savings that Marston's perspective must differ from that of Stetson.

E & G managed to "save" $1.2 million by eliminating purchase of books and equipment.

Another "saving" of about $400,000 was realized by cutting operating expenditures to the point where as one dean described it, "it is no longer reasonable to expect to have paper on which to print a final exam."

Will IFAS and the health center look on similar actions in their own budgets as "savings?"

IF MARSTON finds it necessary to exact such sacrifices from UF's two smaller budgets to save E & G will they feel unfairly used?

The question is now out of their hands regardless of the cost to normal operation in IFAS and the health center, Marston cannot afford to fail in his promise.

If he does UF and its president may never regain a semblance of credibility.

"THE STOCK MARKET MUST BE MAKING ONE HELL OF A RECOVERY!"

Street people story lends too much pomp, prestige

EDITOR: Jeff Cardenas' article on Gainesville's street people gives too much pomp and prestige to the urchin life. I find it difficult to give so much credit to individuals with such hypocritical philosophies. I marvel at their idea of "complete independence", for actually they are totally dependent upon others to fulfill their wants and needs.

One who relies on sponging and spare-changing to survive is hardly a completely independent person. Inasmuch as theirs is a "lifestyle of discovery and identity", how much can one discover or identify with at the bottom of a dumpster? I will agree that their lifestyle is movement, for when they get kicked out of practically every place they go, they have no choice but to move on.

I seriously doubt that Gainesville's street freaks are idealized by college students or anyone else. I find their physical appearance offensive, their attitudes obnoxious, and their philosophies shallow.

One of their biggest rebellions appears to be against personal hygiene. I find it impossible to relate to someone who wallows in his own filth and cannot respect someone who does not respect himself.

What a pity it is that I, with all my inbred ignorance and loneliness, should be deprived of such a life! Think I'll quit school and start cruising the dumpsters (surely my act will come together then) and, to think, all that free food! Far out.

Hey man, spare drumstick?

A few corrections

EDITOR: While it may not seem by some standards very sensible for me to dispute statements made by a strong defender of the University Library, I think that it would be best for all concerned if some misinterpretations in Ms. Ella Kay Carl's letter, "Helping the library", were modified.

She objects to the "elimination of new book purchases, cancellation of magazine subscriptions, and decreasing hours of operation so drastically..." Let me comment.

On December 3rd we agreed with the Vice President to discontinue placing any new orders for books until July. This means that approximately $62,000 out of $700,000 will not be spent.

No magazine subscriptions have been cancelled.

The hours of operation of the libraries have only been decreased by the elimination of Friday evening service, 7-10 p.m., in Engineering and AFA, which were very sparsely populated then anyway. This was partially necessitated by the fact that the legislature failed to increase our OPS funds, while we had to cope with another minimum-wage increase. At any rate, the library's OPS funds were not decreased, as many other units' were.

It was suggested by a news article the other day that an additional $115,000 was being demanded from the University Library. Unfortunately this sort of information can be misinterpreted and I think it was at this time. Actually, it was suggested by the Budget Committee who looked at the fiscal records that this amount of money might possibly be cut from the library budget.

After our presentation of facts to "the administration", the request was modified downward greatly because it was feared that the academic value of the library would indeed be damaged.

While any reduction in funds to the University Library certainly has an effect on present service and future collections, it is my opinion that these reductions in the library budget for this one year will not be disastrous. But it must not happen a second year!

Cheating not result of business ethics

EDITOR: In reply to "Cheating Reflects on Business Ethics." I disagree with Mr. Truesdell's statement: "It is typical that this massive ring of cheating at UF occurred in the Business Department." Has it not occurred to you (Mr. Truesdell) that there are honest and moral business students who may feel "cheated" by their own fellow students?

In addition, there are other reasons: (1) This "cheating ring" represents only a minority of business school students; (2) There are many of us who study and are here because we want to learn; and (3) Your perception of "business ethics" is contradictory to our goals.

I do not defend the actions of those who were involved in the "cheating ring", but I do hope you and other students are just in judging other fellow students. Perhaps there is something we can all learn from these recent events.

May I suggest that students call attention and urge the faculty to take more "drastic" security measures. In addition, we may also be more alert in reference to unfair practices and opportunists who may try to have their own selfish ways.

Mass Seating Facility Ideas Sought

With the expressed hope that all interested parties submit any ideas they might have, President Robert Marston has released a preliminary report of an ad hoc committee on a mass seating facility.

The report of the nine-member student-faculty committee, chaired by Associate Vice-President for Health Affairs Kenneth F. Finger, recommends the construction of three separate facilities physically located in close proximity to each other:

Departmental Chairperson's Status Defined

Departmental chairpersons in Florida's universities are "managerial employees" and if they hold membership in a union it must be "inactive," the Board of Regents staff has reaffirmed.

In a Jan. 23 letter to the University of North Florida circulated to all universities, Dr. George C. Bedell, SUS director of personnel and faculty relations, called attention to a Dec. 20 memorandum to the Council of Presidents by Chancellor Robert Mautz pointing out the status of chairpersons.

Bedell's letter stated that all chairpersons are "expected to cease and desist from all organizational activities on behalf of faculty unions. Until such time as PERC decides to the contrary, chairpersons are managerial employees."

The letter states that chairpersons "may not hold union office, work on union committees, circulate authorization cards, urge faculty members to vote for collective bargaining, or store and disseminate union materials from the departmental office. By accepting and occupying a managerial position, (department chairpersons) have relinquished the right actively to assist union organizing activities."

In transmitting the letter to deans, directors and department chairmen, Gene Hemp, interim assistant vice-president for academic affairs, said the letter "has been interpreted to include all organizations currently involved in collective bargaining activities."

In another letter to the Council of Presidents, Chancellor Mautz has directed an examination of "the functions performed by assistant and associate chairpersons and all academic directors, including directors of institutes and centers, to determine if any of them should be treated as exceptions to Regents policy."

Campus Bus Schedule Alterations Made

Due to increase in ridership, changes have been made in the campus bus schedule, according to the Office of Traffic and Parking.

The bus previously scheduled to leave Maguire Village at 7:45 a.m., will now leave at 7:40 a.m. This will enable riders to reach the main campus area in time to arrive at class and work stations by 8 a.m.

An additional back-up bus has also been added to the Tanglewood-Cin City route from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. An additional bus was added to that route's morning schedule last month.

Committee Proposes 3 Buildings; Four Sites Being Considered

1. A coliseum seating 14 to 16,000 spectators and including a basketball court; an indoor banded track or provisions for one; intramural facilities; offices, classrooms, laboratories and other related facilities for the College of Physical Education, Health and Recreation, and provisions for seating and physical arrangements suitable for the building's use for convocations, assemblies, popular music concerts, speeches, etc. The building would also contain dressing rooms for both men and women and for visiting teams and office and other support space for the basketball staff.

2. A theater for the performing arts that would be acoustically and esthetically suitable for both voice and instrument presentations and would seat 2,400 patrons.

3. A natatorium to provide for the instructional, recreational and athletic needs of the student body. The pool should be olympic sized with a separate diving tank. The building should be capable of seating up to 2,500 spectators and include office facilities for swimming coaches and dressing facilities for both men's and women's swimming teams.

Dr. Marston explained that the University does not plan a "highly visible campaign" for the mass seating facility. He pointed out, however, that there has been "significant interest" shown by the student body, alumni, the Board of Regents, the Legislature as a whole and members of the local legislation delegation in particular.

Dr. Marston also said that there has been considerable discussion that the state legislature might desire to bolster the economy through construction and that "sometime in the future this need (a mass seating facility) will be met."

Because of these reasons, Dr. Marston said, "There is a need to move fairly rapidly. We must work toward a University-wide position on program and location and before it comes down to a fixed decision let large numbers express themselves."

The committee report contained four possible locations being considered by the Division of Planning and Analysis:

1. Fleming Field - said to be desirable because of closeness to other facilities, nearby parking, closeness to main campus, high visibility, minimum displacement of other facilities, excellent site topography but undesirable because site may be too small, displaces some athletic facilities and proximity to University Avenue may cause traffic problems.

2. Drill Field - Said to be desirable for same reasons as Fleming Field, in addition to its large size but undesirable because it is heavily used for other purposes such as football practice, stadium parking, intramural sports, etc. and building services extension costs would be higher.

3. South of Drill Field, including space now occupied by Van Fleet Hall - Desirable for same reasons as drill field but undesirable because of the necessity to remove existing facilities.

4. Site of Flavet Villages now being vacated - Desirable because of adequate size but undesirable because of remoteness from other facilities, parking and main campus; poor site topography for large facility; building services extension may be costly; would displace heavily used parking area, and less visibility.

The committee has recommended "serious consideration" be given to the south of drill field site.

The committee estimated that intercollegiate athletics would require approximately 20 per cent of the available time in the coliseum-type structure.

The committee also pointed out that the Division of Continuing Education has need for a facility to house its programs, but except for large plenary sessions that could be accommodated in the coliseum-type structure, the Division's needs would be better met by construction of a separate building.

The committee also pointed out the community's need for exhibition hall space to house conventions, trade shows and community activities.

A total cost of up to $20 million was estimated. The report did not deal with methods of financing. The Board of Regents has included in its capital outlay asking mass seating facilities for each of the nine state universities.

In addition to Chairman Finger, other members of the committee were students Lori Caldwell, David Cardwell, and Steven Merryday; faculty members Manning Dauer, Don McGlothlin and William Wagner; and administrators William Elmore and Ray Graves.

Persons desiring to submit ideas should do so to any member of the committee or directly to President Marston.

University Digest

Produced by the Division of Information & Publications Services to communicate official notices & important information to students, faculty & staff at the University of Florida.

PRESIDENT'S SCHOLARS

Scholarly Papers By Faculty Sought

Faculty are being asked to submit scholarly papers to the newly-established University of Florida Faculty Forum as part of the first annual search for President's Scholars. Six scholars will be chosen and each will receive a $200 prize.

The scholarly papers should be written for oral delivery, taking no longer than one hour and should be, with suitable modification (references, etc.), publishable. Guidelines for the papers stress that they "avoid popularization" but "be significant to those in other fields," approach the subject through several disciplines, or focus on a specific subject with an eye towards its potential significance to other areas of academic inquiry.

The coordinators of the University Faculty Forum, which was established by President Robert Marston in mid-January, as an "ongoing opportunity for scholarly colloquy," are Professors Sheldon Isenberg and Sidney Homan. Papers are to be submitted by May 16 to Dr. Homan, 104 Bldg. D or Dr. Isenberg, 368 JWRU.

The Faculty Forum, composed of all interested faculty, will meet six times during the 1975-76 academic year to hear each of the six chosen papers read. Papers will be submitted to a panel of judges, selected from a cross-section of the campus's most distinguished scholars.

The following faculty were asked by President Marston to serve as judges for the first year: Alma Altizer, Humanities; George Davis, Animal Science and Sponsored Research; Irving Goffman, Economics; Molly Harrower, Clinical Psychology; Meyer Maskin, Psychiatry; Howard Odum, Environmental Sciences; Walter Probert, Law; Richard Reynolds, Medicine; James Schaub, Civil Engineering; R. Taylor Scott, Religion, Alex Smith, Physics and Astronomy; and Aubrey Williams, English.

Questions regarding the papers may be phoned to Dr. Homan, 392-1580 or Dr. Isenberg, 392-1625.

International Students Number 1,413

There are 1,413 international students at the University of Florida this academic year, from 80 different countries, ranging from Antigua to Zaire.

In announcing the 1974-75 international student census, Assistant Dean for Student Services and International Student Center Director Robert Elting noted that 622 of the students are Resident Aliens, most of whom are of Cuban origin.

With the exception of the Resident Aliens, each of the countries represented on campus is shown below. (The figure Undergraduate and graduate architecture students will exhibit structural models, graphics, photographs, videotapes and other projects from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday through Friday in Room 110 in Architecture and Fine Arts Building C. The public is welcome.

Board members of the Florida Association, American Institute of Architects, also will see the exhibition during a scheduled meeting at the University on Thursday and Friday.

Photography Show

An exhibition of Les Krims' surrealist photography will open in the Teaching Gallery Wednesday for a one-month stay. The 40-photo show was assembled by the Visual Studies Workshop in Rochester, N.Y. The Gallery, in Architecture and Fine Arts Building C, is open from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p.m. weekdays. The 10th annual Art Faculty Exhibition at University Gallery will continue until Feb. 13. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Employment Interview Schedule for This Week

The Career Planning and Placement Center schedules employment interviews for companies recruiting on campus. Students should sign up for interviews at least one day in advance in Room G-22 of Reitz Union. Employers visiting campus Feb. 5-11 are listed below.

Wednesday-Arthur Andersen & Co., General Electric Co., R.H. Macy Co., Peat Marwick Mitchell & Co., and Procter & Gamble Co. will be interviewing on campus.

Thursday-Hartford Insurance Group and Union Carbide Corp. will be interviewing. General Electric, Peat Marwick Mitchell, and Procter & Gamble will continue their recruiting.

Friday-Union Carbide concludes its interviews. Also recruiting students will be Allied Chemical Corp., Southeast Banking Corp., Wheelabrator-Frye, Inc., and Atlantic Richfield Co.

Monday-the Army Material Command, Carolina Eastman Co., the Ceco Corp., Naval Ordnance Station, Pratt & Whitney Aircraft, U.S. Patent Office, and Arthur Young & Co. will be talking to students about jobs.

Next Tuesday-Chicago Bridge & Iron Co., Coopers & Lybrand, Hewlett-Packard Co., St. Regis Paper Co., the U.S.A.E. Waterways Experiment Station, and Westinghouse Electric Corp. will interview. Pratt & Whitney will conclude their interviews.

500 Switch from UF Plan To State Health Insurance

Approximately 500 employees changed from the University of Florida Blue Cross Blue Shield insurance plan to the state plan before the no-medical-report deadline in November.

This leaves approximately 2,400 employees in the UF plan, says Mary Ann Green, fringe benefits director of the Office of Personnel Relations. Approximately 3,800 UF employees are now enrolled in the state plan. Mrs. Green said that a large number of employees who elected to remain with the UF plan are paid from other personnel services (OPS) funds and not eligible to switch to the state plan.

The UF plan for family coverage costs $13.43 bi-weekly, as of December 1 when an increase went into effect. The state plan costs $14.41 bi-weekly, with the state contributing an additional $4.99.

Mrs. Green said that the state plan offers considerably higher benefits for physician's fees and a more attractive plan for major medical expenses. She said that the state plan should offer additional benefits in the future.

Persons desiring to transfer to the state group must now fill out a medical report and have it approved. This can be accomplished by telephoning 392-1225 or going to room 323A HUB.

Arts, Sciences Seeks Teacher Of Year Nominees

The College of Arts and Sciences Student Council is beginning its search for the 1974-75 Teacher of the Year from that college.

Any student may nominate a faculty member within the College by filling out and submitting the proper forms. Sponsorship packets and information are available at 103 Anderson Hall. This week only, sponsorship packets will also be available at tables set up outside the main entrance to Anderson Hall.

No deadline has been set for nominations, but the Arts and Sciences Student Council hopes to reach a decision by the middle of Spring quarter. Faculty are judged on written recommendations by students, letters of recommendation from others and observation of their performance in class by the Teacher Excellence Committee of the Student Council.

The Teacher of the Year will be honored at a dinner given in June, along with other Teachers of the Year selected from the various colleges on campus.

Questions regarding the Arts and Sciences Teacher of the Year search may be directed to Eddie Sawyer, Council member, at 372-1036.

Medical Education Lecture Thursday

Dr. A. McGehee Harvey, physician-in-chief emeritus and distinguished service professor of medicine at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, will present a public lecture, "Medical Education: How Did We Get Here and Where Are We Going?" at 12:15 p.m. Thursday in Room Ci-17 of the Health Center.

Dr. Harvey's talk, sponsored by the Department of Medicine, will explore the impact of historical events on the revolution in medical education in the early 20th century; examine present practices in medical education stemming from that revolution; and possible changes resulting in future medical science and patient care.

Women's Year Proclaimed By UF Senate

International Women's Year (1975) has been declared by adoption of a resolution by the UF Senate.

The resolution states in part: "Women throughout the world are making great progress in alleviating discrimination against their sex and, yet, face an arduous struggle to dismantle barriers in employment, housing, credit, and a wide range of other social and legal issues.

"The leaders of the women's movement, battling those who still embrace an outdated concept of the role of women in national and international life, have organized groups to accelerate the drive toward full and equal rights and will not yield until these rights are won in fact as well as in law.

"Women at the University of Florida have striven to achieve full and equal rights for women in Gainesville."

ACCENT Seeking Student Workers

ACCENT, UF's event-planning organization, is taking student applications for spring quarter participation in Room 305 of the J. Wayne Reitz Union.

ACCENT will have a complete change-over in personnel at the end of this quarter. Student volunteers should apply before February 17 for jobs in areas of publicity, speakers or personnel.

Tallahassee, Jax, Tampa Travel Pools Pushed

Faculty and staff who are traveling to and from Tallahassee and the Jacksonville and Tampa airports are reminded that the Office of Traffic and Parking keeps a travel log on others going to those areas.

Travelers going to those areas should contact Traffic and Parking at 392-2241 as soon as the date of a trip is known. In this way trips can be combined, saving fuel and funds.

DISSERTATION DEADLINE

Monday February 10, is the deadline for first submission of dissertations and all related materials to the Thesis Section of the Graduate School in Room 380, Grinter Hall.

Although the Board of College Councils is only six months old, it has become an effective agency in coordinating College Council activities. It has also begun to represent student interest by serving as an advisory board to various administrative officers on campus. Finally, in order to promote communication and cooperation with the university community in a time of shrinking resources, the Board is actively seeking ways to best represent students.

Dolphins' Moore reflects on pros

By JEFF TUDEEN
Alligator Sports Writer

Nat Moore, lounging sleepy-eyed in his Gainesville apartment one morning, spoke modestly of his success at snagging Bob Griese passes as a Miami Dolphin rookie.

Moore is back at UF, finishing up his B.A. degree in Physical Education. He'll graduate in June, in time to rest before joining the Dolphin camp for season No. 2.

SEASON NO. 1 was a great one for Moore, though for Miami it ended short of the Super Bowl for the first time in four years. He caught 37 passes for 605 yards which placed him fourth in the American Football Conference in pass reception yardage. And this was after Nat spent his two seasons at UF in the Gator backfield.

AT UF ONLY occasionally did he sprint out of the backfield to catch a pass.

Why the success?

MOORE plays down the "natural ability line." He emphasized the "great teaching" of two veteran Miami receivers. One's Paul Warfield, the other Marlin Briscoe. He says they are responsible for "90 per cent of the teaching I got."

"It was a series of luck and a couple of breaks that gave me the chance to show what I could do," Moore said.

THE BIGGEST of these was early in the season. Warfield and Briscoe went down with injuries, so Moore and Howard Twilley took over the two starting spots.

"It took a lot of pressure off, not having them in the lineup," Moore said.

Pressure or not, Moore was quite a replacement. Just three games into the season, Moore was awarded the game ball after his TD catch ignited Miami to a 21-point fourth quarter spurt against San Diego.

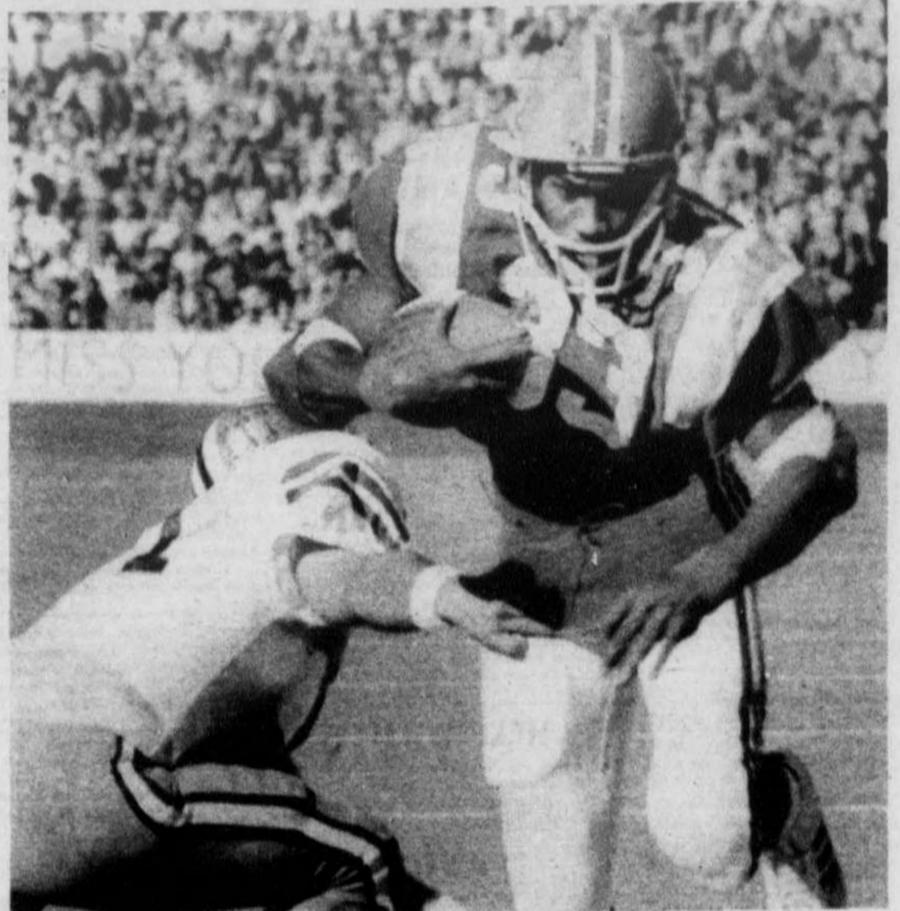

WHEN WARFIELD recovered, there was no doubt either Moore or Twilley would have to go down to second team.

"The coaches saw Howard to the bench and I started alongside Warfield. It gave me more confidence. It meant they thought I could do the job as a rookie," Moore said.

Even Dolphin veterans were impressed. The name "Nat Moore" became a household word in describing Dolphin success. One of the most often repeated quotes came near mid-season. The Dolphins were showing first signs of looking their old selves when linebacker Nick Buoniconti said something to the effect that if the team voted then, Nat Moore would have been most valuable player.

MORE JUST said: "I know a lot of my teammates gave me good PR, good quotes and all. I'm honored. But, honestly, I was just happy they accepted me as a teammate."

Nat specialized last season in the improbable catch — the pressure catch, often on third down with defensive backs all over him. He said playing halfback at UF helped a lot.

AT UF, NAT MOORE WAS GATORS "MAIN MAN" ... proved to be similar with NFL Dolphins

"As a back, I was used to getting hit hard, to having people all over me," he said.

Moore roomed with Warfield on the road. He says Paul and Briscoe grew to be his closest friends.

"ON TOP OF ALL the help in practice, they would take me out and show me all the spots when we were on the road. I plan on going up to Ohio to visit Paul and his family in February," he says.

Moore chuckles now at a subject he says has really bothered him — the NFL Rookie of the Year award, captured hands down by Green Bay's Don Woods. Moore couldn't muster a single vote.

"I was angered at first, probably because I got a lot of phone calls from writers asking me how close I thought the vote would be between Don Woods and I ... I never thought I'd get the award, but I guess I expected something," he said.

There's one thing, though, that he can expect for sure — plenty of playing time as a Miami Dolphin.

Gators overtime 'Dogs 107-104

Guard Bruno Caldwell sank two crucial foul shots with 15 seconds remaining in double overtime helping the Gators to a thrilling 107-104 victory over the Mississippi St. Bulldogs last night.

Don Bostic put UF out in front 104-102 with 30 seconds to go before

Caldwell made good on the one and one attempt and upped the UF lead to four points.

The Bulldogs came back with a basket but a Mississippi St. technical foul which Caldwell capitalized on, iced the Gator victory.

The game was hotly contested throughout and at the end of regulation, the Gators found themselves in their second consecutive overtime game.

Bulldog Rich Knarr hit a jumper at the buzzer to send the game into the first overtime period but after five minutes the score was tied once again at 94-94.

Mississippi St. forward Jerry Jenkins led all scorers with 37 points while Gene Shy paced the Gators with 26.

Bishop oversees course repairs

By PAT McGRATH
Alligator Sports Writer

Clear the path! Here comes foreman Bishop!

UF's multi-hatted golf coach has again dug into his cap supply and surprised the world by donning another heretofore unknown chapeau.

Bishop, who aside from coaching one of the nation's finest golf teams, capably serves the University Golf Club as resident pro course superintendent, tournament director, and advising counselor to his golfers or anybody else who confronts him with a problem.

He might, for the next six weeks or so, be spotted around the golf course sporting a construction hardhat.

LAST WEEK, major reconstruction of several areas of the course got under way under Bishop's watchful eye.

The major area of work is in and around the large lake that fronts the green on the par three eighth hole and crosses the fairway on the par three second. Here is a rundown of the face-changing operation:

- The existing tees on holes number two and eighteen are being reconstructed.

- NEW TEES are being built on the second (both ladies' and regular), third, ninth, and eighteenth holes.

- Both the upper and lower tees on the eighth hole will be reconstructed and, in addition, a three-tiered tee will be fashioned. Also, a new ladies' tee will be built close to the water. "I don't want to lose my girls," Bishop chuckled.

- Greens on holes one, two, and eight are being reconstructed.

EACH OF the tees and greens are in close proximity to the lake which itself is being cleaned and graded. The dirt that is dredged from the lake is being used to manufacture the tees, which shows that the wily Bishop could also wear the hat of an economist.

Ronnie Garl of Lakeland, an ex-UF golfer whom Bishop termed "a big Gator," is the contour architect for the course. Together with Garl, Bishop hopes to rebuild and/or add new tees and greens on every hole during the next five years.

Gators take Flagler

UF's women's basketball team took first place in the Flagler Invitational Sunday by defeating Miami-Dade Community College South 69-44.

Sunday morning the Lady Gators had dealt FSU a 67-46 defeat to make it into the evening's championship round.

THE GATOR CAGERS had begun the three-day tournament Friday night winning over Miami-Dade North by a whopping 72-41.

Saturday morning the women beat the University of Miami 58-45, but suffered their first and only loss from Flagler College 83-60 Saturday night.

Against FSU 5-11 forward-center Sue Chambers led the Lady Gators with 19 points, and 5-6 forward Suzi Brownlee scored 16 hitting 58 per cent from the field. Teammate Val Bazarte was in double figure with 10 points. Bazarte hit 83 per cent from the field.

In the Miami-Dade-South clincher 5-3 guard Bazart had 13 points, Chambers had 12 and Brownlee, Kathy Wagner and Emma Garcey all scored 10. Brownlee was 71 per cent from the field.

The Gators were cold during the first half of the victory game with a halftime score of 42-14 Florida. The second half looked as if it would be more of the same until 5-5 forward Emma Gracey started to score.

BROWNLEE, PLAYING her second year with the Florida cagers, had been benched by a foot injury until Friday. The North Carolinian hit 100 per cent from the free throw line for the entire tournament.

Lady Gator Coach Paula Welch was speechless. She had been suffering from laryngitis since Friday, but no one could mistake the victory smile.

"It is absolutely terrific," Welch whispered, as she strained to add, "The women played so well and deserved the victory."

The Lady Gators see action again next Saturday against the University of South Florida in Alligator Alley at 10 a.m.

SUZI BROWNLEE ... key player

Women in uproar but coverage is adequate

Okay women, let us, as they say, put all of the cards on the table.

Girls, you say that deep burning feeling inside you comes from the sports coverage women athletes have been getting. Well let's take a look at sports and its coverage.

THERE ARE TWO major factors which decide what will go into the paper, reader interest and space availability.

Now, the sports department should not run a public relations campaign for anybody. The department should not be there to promote sports but rather to report it. The newspaper is not going to flood the paper with Mary Muppet's 12 second 100 yard dash time unless there is truly reader interest.

Oh, 18 women libbers might write a letter to the editor now expressing how interested everyone is in women's sports, but they're only kidding themselves. The interest lies in men's sports and for a very good reason. They've been around a few more years -- say 2,000.

THE AMERICAN BASKETBALL ASSOCIATION (ABA) is an excellent analogy about sports and its coverage. When the ABA broke into the sports world there was little fan interest. So there was little coverage.

Recently, after many years of play, the ABA tried to convince the television networks that it should have coverage. But the networks said interest was not great enough and until it was -- thumbs down.

Sports departments are not obligated to give anyone coverage. And this point is important to remember. The state might be obligated to make sure enough women get into law school and the nation might be obligated to make sure women have equal opportunity.

But the newspaper--their only obligation is to the reader. THE SECOND FACTOR in printing news is the space you have available to print it in. There just isn't always a lot of that pure white stuff around to lay print on. Daily, both men's and women's sport stories have to be cut to fit them in.

When the sports department runs into this space problem the first consideration, however, is to cut the news which has little reader interest. Good guess, it's usually the women's sports.

WOMEN'S SPORTS, mind you, is covered. It is found on the sports page almost every day.

But women still seem to have their bras in an uproar as if the coverage has rubbed their breasts the wrong way.

You've come a long way baby, but you haven't come far enough to jam sports stories down unwilling readers' throats.

LA DOLCE VITA

La Dolce Vita is a long and episodic portrait of Rome -- a corrupt, dark, glamorous and ugly place -- seen through the eyes of Marcello (Marcello Mastroianni), a cynical journalist. Like Dante's Inferno, it takes us on a journey into the depths of hell. The film marked the culmination of a tendency found throughout earlier Fellini films: the merging of neo-realism, with poetic, symbolic and non-naturalistic qualities. It is Fellini's best.

Search for VP continues

A date for the recommendation of a new Vice President for Academic Affairs has still not been set by the search committee.

"We're still in the process of gathering reference material. Until we get it in, we can't set a date for recommendation. And we don't know when we'll be getting the information in," said Harry Sisler, dean of the UF Graduate School.

OF THE LIST OF 26 names under consideration, one has been eliminated.

Dr. Dorothy Arata of Michigan State University submitted her request for withdrawal.

Dean Sisler Monday asked members of the committee to conduct a phone survey of all off-campus candidates for recommendation.

THE PURPOSE OF THE survey is to obtain a more accurate picture of the candidate in addition to the letters of recommendation, according to Sisler.

"More people will open up on the phone, more than just in a letter," he said.

Committee members were given an average of three people each to contact.

Sisler predicted the committee would meet "in about two weeks" to discuss the results of the survey.

Utilities, gov't discuss power rates

Power companies, increased prices, and nuclear power plants will be discussed at UF's third annual Public Utilities Research Center (PURC) Conference this Tuesday and Wednesday.

Sponsored by the College of Business Administration, the conference will host more than 100 industry, government and education representatives in the Gainesville Hilton at 2900 SW 13 St.

Center Director Dr. Eugene Brigham said the conference will allow an exchange of issues and ideas between utility company executives and policy-makers in the Public Service Commission.

The conference begins at 9:45 a.m. Tuesday and finishes at noon Wednesday. Entrance fees are $100 for the public and $50 for members of PURC.

Speakers Tuesday will include State Senate President Dempsey Barron, PSC members Paula Hawkins, Bill Bevis and William T. Mayo. College of Business Administration faculty members will present reports on research projects Wednesday morning.

Ad, PR heads speak at seminar

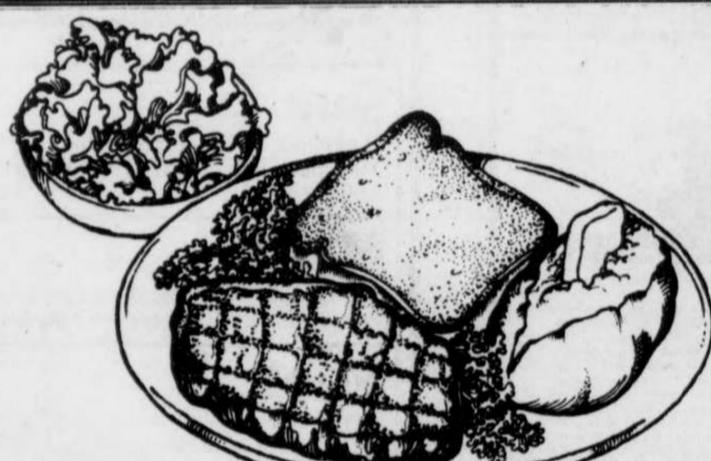

"Advertising and Public Relations Days" will be held for interested students at the J. Wayne Reitz Union.

The first session will be Tuesday, Feb. 4, from 9:05 a.m. to 4 p.m. and the second will be Wednesday, Feb. 5, from 9:05 a.m. to 12:05 p.m.

Guest speakers at the seminar will include

Ramon G. Gaulke, vice president and general manager of Marsteller, Inc., an advertising agency in New York, and William F. Nonnan, vice president and general manager of Burson-Marsteller Public Relations Agency.

The program is sponsored by the UF College of Journalism.
