After county officials endorse him

York denies UF presidency again

By BOB LICHTENSTEIN
Alligator Staff Writer

Amid rumors that he would accept the presidency of UF on a permanent basis if it was offered to him, Acting President E. T. York told the University Senate Thursday, "I haven't expressed a willingness to anyone in either written or oral form."

The rumors reported by the Gainesville Sun apparently came from the Miami Beach convention of the State Association of County Commissioners, which voted to support York for the presidency.

MARION COUNTY Commissioner George M. Rou Jr., a friend of York, said, "It's been indicated to me that if the job were offered to him he'd accept it."

Rou said his source is a letter from York to a mutual friend on the subject of York's interest in becoming UF president.

York said he never has had or will have an interest in a permanent appointment "because of a compelling desire to do other things."

YORK'S comments came after the University Senate conducted its regular business, which included a proposal to change the name of the Department of Comprehensive Logic to the "Department of Behavioral Studies."

Dr. Harry Grater Jr., chairman of the department, explained that the current name is not consistent with proposed changes in the curriculum.

GRATER explained the course "would be organized around topics rather than disciplines. Topics would be selected that are contemporary in nature and can be understood by introducing students to principles and information from sociology, psychology, anthropology, speech, etc."

In addition, the University Senate took action on two other minor proposals. The next meeting will be October 15.

Night raiders nab 3 men; Seize 100 pounds of grass

By JIMMY THARPE
Alligator Staff Writer

Three Gainesville men were arrested in a drug bust that netted 100 pounds of marijuana carried out by the state attorney's task force at 4120 14th Ter. Wednesday at 11 p.m.

Arrested were Stephen Sternfield, 20, and Victor Boccumini, 23, both of 4120 14th Ter., and Eric Lesneski, 24, of P. O. Box 12467 University Station.

STERNFIELD AND BOCCUMINI told officials at the county jail that they were students. An examination of UF registrar's lists failed to produce either of their names. Lesneski said he is employed as a tile layer.

All three men were arrested while trying to sell 100 pounds of marijuana to undercover agents for a reported $14,700. State Attorney Gene Whitworth said the pot had a street value of $32,000.

Whitworth said the arrests came after a three-day investigation by undercover agents.

IN A FIRST appearance before County Judge Emory Cross at 9 a.m. Thursday, all three men had their bail set at $2,000.

Sternfield and Lesneski were released after posting bail Thursday and at 3:30 p.m. Boccumini had not paid bail and was still being held in the county jail.

G'ville murder rate 2nd in nation

By JOE COLLUM
Alligator Staff Writer

Murder: illegal homicide. The blotting of a human life outside the striction of the law.

There is manslaughter and three degrees of murder. The categories stretch from premeditated murder to murder through culpable negligence, and in 1972 only one metropolis in the nation ranked higher per capita than Gainesville in such crimes.

IN 1972 there were 25 murders in Gainesville. In New York City there were 1,725 during the same period.

But because there are just over 100,000 people living in Gainesville and over 10 million in the New York City area, a just released FBI report ranks Gainesville ahead of even New York in the rate of murder.

Atlanta has the nation's highest rate with 23 murders per 100,000 residents. The Gainesville metropolitan area is close behind with 22.3 murders per 100,000.

Some of the nations largest cities rank far behind Gainesville. Chicago's rate was only 11.5. Los Angeles had a 12.8 rate per 100,000 and New York, the worlds largest city, was three murders per 100,000 behing Gainesville with 19.1.

How does a mellow little college town rate ahead of the "Big City" in the horrendous crime of murder?

Some criminologists have been reported as blaming it on the lack of stringent gun control legislation. For years New York has had the toughest gun laws in the country.

Gainesville got its first ordinance — Handgun Control Ordinance no. 30 — last May. It was only the second gun control law ever passed in Florida's history.

Ordinance no 30 consists of a three day "cooling off" period before any person can purchase a pistol. It also provides for registration of store bought handguns with the sheriff's office.

Gainesville Police Chief Nolan Freeman declined to say whether or not the ordinance has had a positive effect on Gainesville's crime rate but he did offer some statistics on murder.

Between January and August 1972 there were 12 murders committed in Gainesville. This year during the same period there were just seven murders. And from May (the month the ordinance went into effect) through August there have been only two murders in the city.

Freeman blames Gainesville's young population as being a decisive factor in the high murder rate.

The average Gainesville dwellers age is only 22.6.

Gainesville, however, has always been a youth haven and the area's murder rate in 1971 was only 13.8 per 100,000, or nearly 40 per cent less than reported in 1972.

Lt. Gene E. Watson of the UF Police Department said none of UF's 23,000 plus students were involved in any murders in 1972 and, to his knowledge, only four students in the school's history have ever been murdered or arrested for murder.

Freeman agrees: "I don't think the university population itself contributes to the murder rate. But we have many young people who are not students in Gainesville and many of our murders involve them."

Freeman says most murders are "crimes of passion." The majority of them are committed on the spur of the moment. The people don't mean in most cases to kill anyone."

Freeman also complained police are usually blamed for statistics like the ones that put Gainesville near the top of the nation's murder heap.

"People don't realize the police department is only one of five agencies in the criminal justice system. There is also the public defender; the state attorney;

BOR to vote on grad study pact

By SUE CLINE
Alligator Staff Writer

A proposal to reduce costs of graduate study through a "common market" agreement among 14 southern states comes up for approval Monday when the Board of Regents (BOR) meets in the J. Wayne Reitz Union.

The board will meet in room 235 of the J. Wayne Reitz Union at 9:30 a.m.

If approved, students would be able to enroll in graduate or highly specialized courses on a space-available basis in another state without having to pay out-of-state tuition.

HENDRIX CHANDLER, director of public relations for the BOR, said it would make available some programs that are too expensive to operate in any one state.

Warning that universities "are going to have a hard time" getting funds from the Florida Legislature next year, particularly in the area of graduate programs, Chancellor Robert Mautz said the market plan is "the kind of action that may eliminate some of the legislative concern."

Mautz said a common market would "eliminate unnecessary duplication of graduate programs."

"Rather than starting a new specialized program, facilities could be made available to the whole southern region if they already exist in one state."

ENDORSED MONDAY

by the Council of Presidents, the plan must win the approval of the BOR, cabinet and Legislature.

It would also require action by the legislature to remove the current ceiling on admission of nonresident graduate students.

Regents are also to be asked to approve a request to the legislature for new buildings in the state university system.

Mautz said emphasis will be placed on construction needs on some of the older campuses to replace outmoded and temporary structures.

"EXCEPT FOR Florida International University and the University of North Florida and possibly one or two other of the newer institutions, it is likely that construction of new buildings to accommodate growth will be at a slower pace during the next few years," Mautz said.

In other business, Mautz will recommend increasing fees for Florida students participating in regional programs in medicine, dentistry and veterinary medicine in other states, effective by fall of 1974.

If the BOR approves the request, contract-for-services fees for veterinary medicine will increase from $3,000 to $4,500 and for medicine and dentistry from $2,750 to $3,250 each.

These higher fees in a number of regional programs had been approved by the Southern

Robert Mautz
... common market

Regional Education Board because of increased cost factors at participating institutions, according to Mautz.

Regents will also name next term's chairman—and vice chairman, to be formally elected in January, as well as vote on requests for tenure for all faculty persons nominated from UF and Florida State University.

No new leads in Tuesday rape case

There are no new developments in a case involving the Tuesday morning rape of a young woman abducted from the parking lot near Jennings Hall, Audie Shuler, chief of the University Police Department (UPD), said Thursday.

Shuler said that a coordinated effort was being made by his department along with those of the sheriff's department and the city police department.

"We are hopeful for some breaks anytime," said Shuler, "but so far we just haven't had any."

Shuler said that four full-time investigators were on the case and other personnel were being called in as they are needed.

The young woman was abducted from the Jennings area early Tuesday morning after she had been to visit her stepdaughter who was staying at the hall.

The woman was then taken to the north end of the county by her three male abductors and raped six times, according to police.

A county-wide search for the assailants is still underway and anyone with any information concerning the case should call the UPD or the sheriff's department.

Local fugitive caught in Indiana

By JIM YACAVONE and HARRY COVERSTON Alligator Staff Writers

A former UF student, fleeing trial in Gainesville on drug charges, was caught late Wednesday afternoon by Indiana State Police outside of Ft. Wayne, Ind. Richard Anthony Hall, 21, was taken to the intensive care unit of Saint

Joseph Hospital in Ft. Wayne suffering from what the Allen County, Ind., Sheriff's Office termed "withdrawal." STATE POLICE, acting on motorists' reports of a man acting strangely on the median, caught Hall on Interstate Highway-69. Florida State Attorney Eugene Whitworth reported Hall was hitchhiking. Indiana police had been earlier alerted to be on the look out for Hall, sought on fugitive charges, by Muncie, Ind., police. Muncie police reported Hall was fleeing to Canada from Muncie, where his parents live.

Hall was arrested last June in Gainesville in a SE 8th St. apartment when he attempted to sell narcotics to an undercover agent. He was charged with six counts of possession of hallucinogenic drugs, two counts of possession of cocaine and one count of conspiracy to deliver and sell marijuana.

RELEASED ON BOND, Hall failed to appear at his Sept. 19 trial. The state attorney then issued a bench warrant for Hall's arrest.

No action has been taken by the state on extradition thus far as Hall is still in intensive care and could not be reached to discuss waiving extradition.

Non-credit courses offered

By DOUGLAS HATCH Alligator Staff Writer

Noncredit continuing education courses ranging from arts and crafts to professional help courses, will be offered at UF starting Oct. 1, according to Dr. B. Scott, of UF's Division of Continuing Education.

Among the 47 courses that will be offered, there will be a special course for expectant mothers, and mothers with new born infants. The course, which will be offered one morning a week, will use the latest methods to teach infant care, Scott said.

ANOTHER OF THE new courses will focus on "understanding man's brain," and will study the brain and its effect on behavior, Scott said.

One course will focus on the possibility the Earth has been visited by persons from other planets. This course, "visitors from space: comets, planets, or spacemen?" will explore the theories of Immanuel Velikovsky, Scott said.

American involvement in the Vietnam war is another course topic. The course "the Vietnam war: the American involvement" will attempt to answer the question of just how did we get into Vietnam, and why we stayed there.

OTHER COURSES will concern arts and crafts, careers for women, world citizenship, music, art and human sexual communications.

Admission to the courses is open to anyone regardless of academic achievement, Scott said.

Scott said registration for these classes shall be at the first meeting of the class. All classes except the special class for mothers shall meet one night a week.

For further information contact Scott at 392-2317.

4 pot smugglers not from G'ville

Contrary to news reports, four persons arrested Tuesday attempting to smuggle more than a ton of marijuana valued at $1.5 million into the country are not from the Gainesville area.

According to Charles Walker of the Drug Enforcement Administration in Miami, the three men and one woman were seized aboard the "Moby Dick" Tuesday night about 150 miles southeast of Miami in the Florida Straits.

A COAST GUARD official said the crew of the cutter Courageous became suspicious of an unusual number of fuel drums aboard the 36-foot American yacht.

Less than two weeks ago, the Courageous ran down another American vessel carrying eight tons of marijuana in the Cal Sal group of the Bahama Islands.

Arrested by U.S. Magistrate Peter Palermo in Miami Thursday afternoon were Allan Edes, 26, Whitingham, Vt., John Goodwin, 28, Charlemont, Mass., Hayward McKinney, 29, and Anna Bolonani, 21, both of Steinhatchee, Fla.

THE THREE men are being held in Miami in lieu of $15,000 bond each. Bolonani was released Thursday on her own recognizance.

Earlier, Coast Guard officials were quoted as believing four persons were from the Gainesville area.

Owned and captained by McKinney, the boat is registered out of Shamrock, a small community near the Gulf Coast west of Gainesville.

the courts, many of which have very low conviction rates; the probation and parole agencies, which have historically been a failure, and we have a penal system that hasn't changed in 100 years.

"But it's always the police who get blamed for crime.

"We did a study on 25 people arrested who were eventually convicted for various crimes. In 25 of those cases the people had been arrested before. One of them was arrested 26 times. So here the police had done its job 26 times but the courts and other agencies involved had failed."

Bond, arraignment set in cocaine arrests

Bond has been set at $10,000 for each of the four men arrested in connection with Tuesday night's cocaine seizure. The almost one pound of cocaine seized in the parking lot of the Picadilly Apartments, 2220 SW 34th St., is the largest cocaine seizure in Gainesville.

The arrested men, Bruce Farrell, 22, Greg Sale, 18, Ernie Miller, 23, all of Gainesville, and Steve Raulerson, 19, of Lake City, will be arraigned Oct. 8, according to State Attorney Gene Whitworth.

Spheeris at Plaza concert

By SONI VELIZ
Alligator Entertainment Editor

Student Government Productions will present Jimmie Spheeris in a free concert Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Plaza of the Americas.

Jimmie Spheeris plays easy and melodic guitar and piano. But there is more to Spheeris' music. A poet as well as a composer, his songs tell well-spun stories.

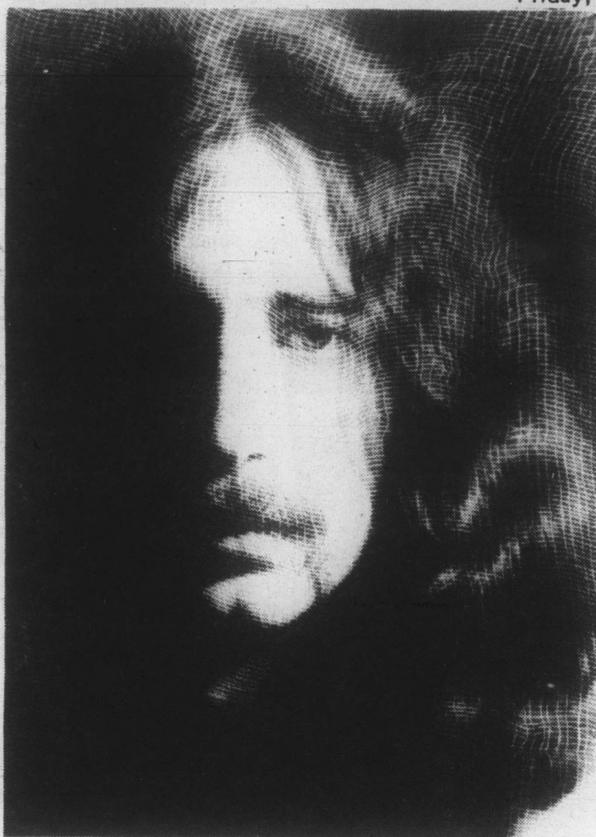

"Most people," he said, "take the view from down in the abyss. But right now, I'm on the ceiling, and I stay here."

From the ceiling, Jimmie said it's "easier to communicate." And communication is what his act is about. It's the most important tie between Jimmie and his friend Lee Calvin Nicoli, who accompanies him on flute, bass guitar, acoustic guitar and occasionally vocals.

Describing their musical involvement, Jimmie says "there is no space between us, it's complete communication. He understands what I'm doing and enhances it."

Jimmie Spheeris said he is a peaceful person, explaining his calm in terms rosy and sweet, "I love people, that's really the only thing in this whole universe and the secret of any kind of greatness is just to continue to love . . . I could never desire revenge for anybody, no matter what he does to me."

Jimmie Spheeris has played in Gainesville twice in the last two years. Both times as a pre-booked attraction. He said his welcome was so warm, and he liked the feeling here so much, that this time he's returning for a free concert.

Why do birth control pills make you nauseated?

Nausea is believed to be due to the estrogen component of the birth control pill which tends to irritate the stomach and upper intestine. When nausea occurs, it is in the first few months on the pills and it usually diminishes thereafter. Most of the nausea may be circumvented by taking the pill with a LARGE glass of water at night. If the nausea persists in the mornings, you should see your physician for appropriate medication to carry you through the first few cycles. Occasionally, a reduction in estrogen content of the pill is required.

Are the records at the Student Health Service confidential?

The Student Health Service fully respects the confidential nature of a student's health record by not permitting the release of any information from that record to anyone, on or off campus, without a specific written request by the student.

What is the best treatment for a blister?

Usually blisters are best left alone and kept clean, dry and covered. The fluid inside is a good culture media for bacteria and should not be contaminated. No cover available is as protective as skin. If a blister needs to be opened for whatever reason, i.e., location, performance, etc., then under clean conditions the top layer of skin should be removed and an antibiotic ointment applied. The best cover we have found is called "moleskin" and is available commercially. Moleskin is quite useful in prevention of blister formation.

Are there any unusual hazards of going barefoot around campus?

Yes - flip tops, broken bottles, stubbed toes, creeping eruption, hookworm and tetanus.

Govt. internships offered at UF

By CELESTE CALVITTO
Alligator Staff Writer

Interested in pursuing a career in urban studies?

Then here's your chance to get some practical experience and earn four hours credit at the same time.

FIFTEEN STUDENT internships with various city, county and state agencies will be available to UF students, according to Tom Munkittrick, student-city liaison officer.

The program is funded under a grant from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

"The grant has been approved," says Munkittrick, "but funding is a different matter."

MUNKITTRICK explained the funding depends upon what is available from unused grant applications in the nation. He estimated the chances for funding during the winter and spring quarters as "very good" although the outlook for this quarter is minimal.

Internships with the following city agencies will be available:

- Gainesville Police Department

- Department of Public Works

- Department of Traffic Engineering

- Personnel Department.

- And two with the Regional Utilities Department.

COUNTY INTERNSHIPS are in the county administrator's office, the planning and zoning department, and in the office of superintendent of public instruction.

State agencies offering internships are the North Central Florida Regional Planning Council, North Central Florida Health Council, the Governor's Council on Criminal Justice for Region II, and the Manpower Planning Council.

For further information call UF's Regional Development Center at 392-0296.

UM medical interviews set

Senior premedical students who have applied for admission to the University of Miami Medical School should make arrangements for admission interviews before Oct. 5, according to Carolyn Grantham, secretary to the Assistant Dean for Pre-Professional Education.

Grantham said a five-man team led by Dr. Bernard Fogle, will be in Gainesville to interview prospective students for admission to the September 1974 term.

All prospective students must have an interview before they can be admitted, and the interview must be either in Gainesville or Miami, Grantham said.

Grantham said these may be the only interviews in Gainesville.

For an interview, call Grantham at 392-2701.

Drop policy tightened

By JIM YACAVONE
Alligator Staff Writer

University College (UC) students will find it harder to drop and add this quarter, according to Dr. Harry Shaw, UC assistant dean for academic advisement.

Students no longer can "capriciously drop a class the last week of the quarter to avoid a poor grade," Shaw said.

THIS IS NOT a new policy, Shaw said, but an enforcement of existing policy. The rules for petitioning to drop and add a course after the normal drop and add period will be interpreted "much more stringently than in the past."

Normal drop and add ended Wednesday. Though a student may drop a course arbitrarily until next Wednesday, the student now has to petition to add a course. After next Wednesday a petition will be required to drop a course.

The petitioning procedure requires a student to take his petition to the UC petition clerk. The clerk assigns the student an advisor who, after consultation with the student and a review of the petition, will recommend acceptance or rejection of the petition.

A RECOMMENDATION is also needed from the instructor of the course the student is dropping or adding. If adding a course, permission is needed from the department.

Ultimate action on the petition rests with Shaw. Shaw said approval will depend upon documented "extenuating circumstances" such as illness, family problems or financial problems.

New course possible

A new course leading to a new degree will be offered winter quarter if there is enough interest, according to Dr. Herbert A. Bevis, of the environmental engineering department, of the College of Engineering.

The new course, ENE 201, Concepts of Environmental Engineering Sciences, will study concepts affecting the environment and how to clean up the environment by environmental engineering.

THE NEW degree is a bachelor of science in Environmental Engineering Sciences, Bevis said.

The course can be used as an introduction to environmental engineering, Bevis said.

DR. SUZANNE Bayley, one of the two instructors, said she would instruct about air pollution, water pollution and other problems facing man and particularly Florida.

The other instructor, Dr. Emmett Bolch, will lecture on waste disposal and the effects of radiation on man and the environment.

Requirements for the new degree include 220 hours of work, and traditional engineering subjects such as thermodynamics. But more emphasis will be on the sciences, especially biology.

Students can call Bevis at 392-0841.

HUD approves UF loan for married housing site

The University of Florida has received verbal notification that the Department of Housing (HUD) has approved a $2.8 million loan for the purchase of Tanglewood Manor Apartments, according to Ken Peet, UF housing business manager.

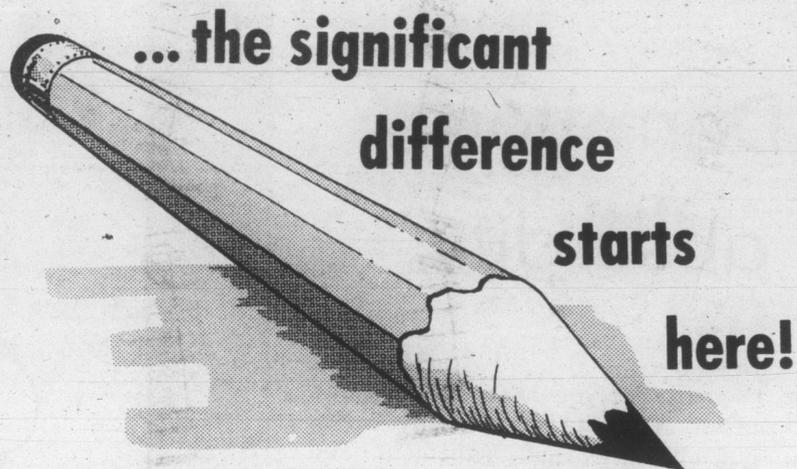

The university seeks to purchase the 208-unit complex at 2901 SW 13th St. to replace the aging Flavel married housing. Last spring the Board of Regents (BOR) authorized UF to seek the loan.

In April it was reported that the owners of the property were asking $2.9 million. The land was assessed at $2.3 million this year by the county.

Peet said no price was agreed upon. When UF receives written notification of the HUD loan, it will go to the BOR, which will authorize an offering price.

If the offering price is not accepted, there will then be a series of negotiations between UF, the Board of Regents and the property owners.

Dormitory absurdity

If you're 18-years-old, you can buy a car and finance it yourself. You can go into any bar in town, sign any binding legal agreement and generally do anything with your life you want.

But if you live in a UF dormitory, you can't have friends of the opposite sex visit you after 11 p.m.

Gov. Reubin Askew signed the Adult-Rights Bill May 9th, granting 18 to 21 year-olds all the legal rights and responsibilities of an adult.

Apparently word hasn't reached the Board of Regents (BOR) yet.

Students can have friends of the opposite sex in their rooms from 2 - 11 p.m. Sunday and from 2 - 12 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

This absurd ruling is an anachronism left from the days of Elizabeth Kovachevich, the regent who managed to convince many Florida parents that university dormitories were "whorehouses".

There is absolutely no justification for continuing the strict visitation hours.

At their Monday meeting, the BOR should rescind the regulation and recognize the fact that as adults, the bulk of students in the dorms have a right to 24-hour visitation.

If they do anything less, the BOR will be violating the rights of 6,000 Florida residents.

Parking pains

When it was announced last year that freshmen could bring their cars on campus, many people wondered just where all the cars were going to be parked.

The solution the Traffic and Parking Division came up with is hardly satisfactory.

Many freshmen brought their cars to campus expecting to be given a parking decal that would allow them to park near their residence hall.

They had been sent a notice during the summer that explained the "type of decal issued is determined by the location of the student's local residence."

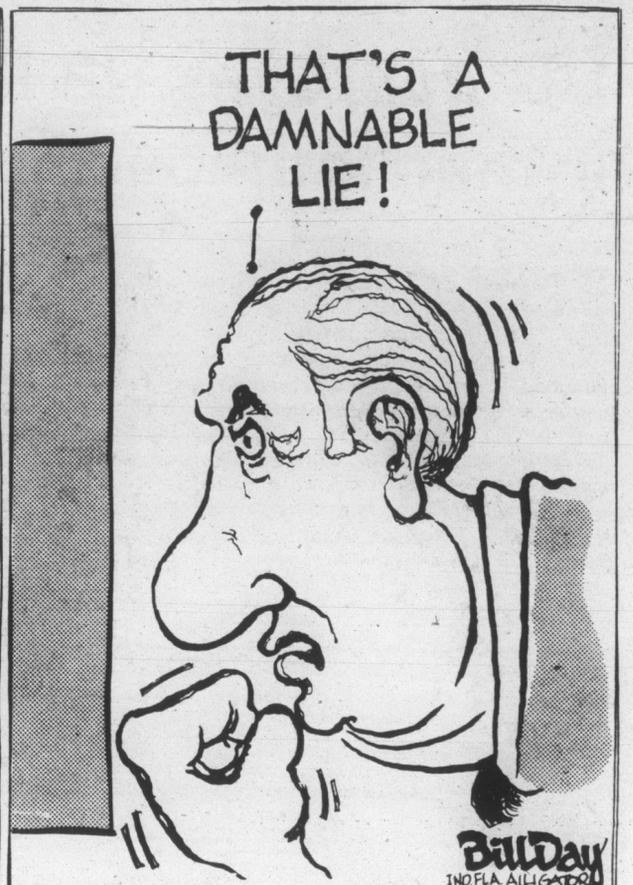

But that certainly isn't the case. Freshmen are being issued only decals for area D by Fraternity Row.

Cars are double-parked along Frat Row and freshmen are complaining bitterly that their cars are of no use to them when they have to park so far from their dorms.

Royce Williams, coordinator of traffic and parking, should see that decals are issued for the parking lots nearest the halls students live in.

If there isn't enough room, students should be allowed to park in the lots serving nearby buildings after 7 p.m.

It's a long walk from Frat Row to Rawlings or Yulee Hall. Students shouldn't be expected to hike that far after many brought their cars only because they were led to believe there would be convenient parking available.

Agnew vies with Connally

Office of the President
September 27, 1973

Spiro T. Agnew
Executive Office Building
Washington, D. C.

Dear Spiro:

In response to your somewhat angry letter of the 26th, I have enumerated below the answers to those questions that concerned you.

First, the matter of your parking space: I have temporarily given John Connally permission to park there, as he will be staying with Pat and me for the next few weeks. I bet you never saw a Lincoln Continental pickup truck before, huh? You may park your new Volvo in the pay lot down the street (we will reimburse you later).

Secondly, I can understand your concern over the absence of any Secret Service agents these past few weeks. I was astonished to hear that Barbara Walters managed to break in to your bathroom this morning for an interview.

Anyway, our visitor from Texas requires the best possible security so I have reassigned your agents to him. In the meantime, Boy Scout Troop 144 will be assigned to guard you and Judy (watch your language around the boys!).

Third, I apologize for throwing out all your Frank Sinatra albums. I thought they were Tricia's. I will order you a new set immediately. Incidentally, during John Connally's visit, we will be piping Ferlin Husky music throughout the White House.

Next, you have objected to my decision to move your office downstairs next to the bowling alley. Look at the bright side: reporters can't find you there, and you can bowl all day for only half-price.

In addition, Mr. Connally can use your old office for phone calls, job interviews, barbecues or short naps.

Next, I'm sorry if I hurt your feelings by not inviting you to Kissinger's big state dinner the other night. I do, however, have a good excuse: at the last minute, Lawrence Welk and two of the Lennon Sisters dropped by so I gave them your seats. You understand.

There are a few additional items you should know about before coming to work tomorrow:

First, Mr. Connally will be borrowing your speechwriters and personal secretary for the next few weeks. In the meantime, you'll have to do your own shorthand and typing. Your new speechwriter is somewhat of a celebrity — a former comedy writer for the Mike Douglas Show. He said he is familiar with your style.

Secondly, I forgot to reorder your office stationery. You can use notebook paper in the meantime.

Also, I accidentally opened all your mail yesterday. Don't worry, though, it was just another bill from those Charles Atlas people.

Please don't feel hurt if you don't get invited to breakfast for a while. Elliot Richardson and a few other lawyers will be dropping by for a chat — just silly old lawyer talk. I took the liberty of ordering you breakfast tomorrow. The guy from MacDonald's said the Egg McMuffin would be ready around eight.

Finally, I want to reiterate my support for you in this pending crisis. You should tackle this head-on, and with the confidence that the White House is 1000 per cent behind you. Don't give a second thought to all this ridiculous talk about your resigning! Your job is secure.

I know these last few weeks have been hell for you, but don't be depressed. Just think of Tom Eagleton... look what resigning did for him! He's more popular than ever.

Be sure to keep me posted on the latest legal developments. In the meantime, John Connally says you're welcome to drop in his office anytime to chat about old times over a mint julep.

Your pal,
Richard M. Nixon

Women, arise

By ALYCE McADAM

(EDITOR'S NOTE:) Alyce McAdam had taught a women's self-defense class and worked in forming the nation's first rape crisis center in Washington, D.C.)

Early Tuesday morning, a woman was abducted from campus and raped by three men. According to the University Police Department, at least three women reported hearing the screaming and one said she heard "tires screeching," and a male voice yelling, "shut up!"

Because students did not respond promptly, the police arrived too late to prevent the abduction.

Women must realize that as long as women are still being raped no woman on this campus is realistically free from the fear of rape. Every time we aid a sister in danger we make our community a little safer for all of us — tomorrow it may be you who needs the aid of sisters.

Such assistance is not all that difficult or dangerous to render. I saw a man hassling a woman in the Tampa airport. When I went up to her he had already taken her money and was attempting to take her ticket. All I did was to say

"leave her alone." The man left and we got the police to recover her stolen money.

Don't assume that because a man and woman know one another that you should not "interfere." Protecting the safety or life of another woman is not interference. According to FBI statistics a third of reported rapes are committed by someone the woman knows from work, school or her neighborhood.

Don't assume someone is "fooling around." Don't be embarrassed to interrupt and ask a woman if she is in trouble. Your temporary embarrassment will be easily forgotten. Rape isn't.

In a released statement Acting Interim UF President E. T. York said, "Women especially must be extremely careful not to move about after dark unaccompanied — on campus or anywhere else."

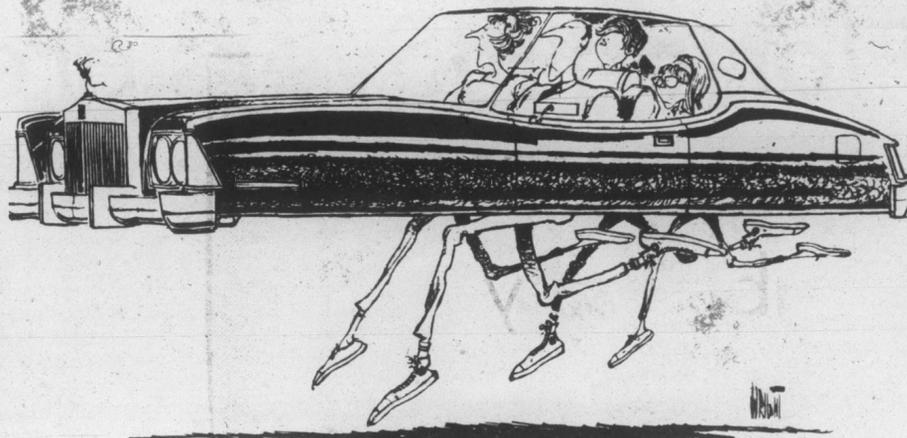

I believe that I and other women have the right to move about unaccompanied after dark on campus or anywhere else — but especially on campus. Unwittingly (I hope) York is aiding the rapist to act as a policeman for the rest of the men in this society. As long as women fear walking alone after dark and as long as men tell women to fear walking alone after dark and as long as rape is tolerated, men will always know the whereabouts of "their women," know that women's activities are restricted and further prevent women from taking full part in the life of this society.

York's statement ended with "Everything in our power will be done to prevent a recurrence of this type of thing." Let's hope so. And there's plenty that can be done. Such as:

- More and better lighting on campus, particularly around Little Hall and the libraries. But lighting is a simple answer.

- Self-defense for women. Classes for women only should be taught by women only, offered for credit through the physical education department, or noncredit courses through the intramurals department every quarter — free of on the proceedings that a rape victim goes through to report the crime and/or receive medical treatment. Many women are reluctant to report the crime for the "hassles" or embarrassment they think they will endure. All women who have been raped need immediate and adequate medical treatment. The problems in the process charge. While training in the martial arts (judo, karate, etc.) is valuable, it is not adequate. An important aspect of women's self-defense is the mental preparedness and confidence to quickly respond — an aspect not always dealt with in the martial arts training. The martial arts also take a great time commitment before experiencing any body contact. Many women do not feel physically adequate to undertake such training. Basic self-defense can be taught in a shorter period of time and women do not need to be in "good physical condition" to learn.

- A campus-wide study of aiding a rape victim must be discovered and steps taken to correct them. The FBI estimates only 20 to 25 per cent of all rapes are reported. If the percentage of reported rape increased, more public attention would be given to the problem and more pressure to capture, prosecute and convict rapists would be applied.

- Female police officers trained to question victims and investigate the crime. This may help in encouraging victims to report.

- An educational program for all female students covering basic self-defense, what to do if raped, medical and legal information. This could perhaps be done by a panel of female police officers, female law students, people from the Women's Health Care Clinic and other women's groups on campus.

- An escort system for women. There has been some talk in the past about such a system. Contact your student senator and urge him or her to get moving on this. Also offer your ideas. And help.

- An end to the paternalistic attitude espoused by the administration, police officers, teachers, fathers, husbands, boyfriends, and male friends that women need to be protected — from men, by men. Wake up women! They're doing a lousy job of protecting us from themselves. Protect your sister, protect yourself!

Both sides

EDITOR: Your editorial first published in The Alligator of Friday, August 17, 1973, in the special issue for freshmen argues that only a liberal position is presented in the social science departments at the University of Florida including such departments as political science and economics. It also presents a picture of faculty as humiliating students who raise an opposite point of view. Frankly, if this is what the University of Florida is I think it would be a travesty on higher education.

The purpose of our education is to have faculty with varying points of view, on matters that are not simply a part of a skill or training process, present different points of view and encourage students to study these divergent topics and be a part of an educational process. This educational process rightfully means that the student explores, learns to test, and judges for himself. If the educational process is simple indoctrination, then it becomes a mockery.

Libertarianism is based on the principle of noninitiation of force (no man may initiate the use of force against any other man).

Conservatism, on the other hand, is based on a devotion to traditional Western values. Noninitiation of force, regrettably, is not among these values.

The two philosophies should be difficult to confuse. Libertarians have no more in common with traditional conservatives than they do with ACLU-style liberals.

Mr. Jones would have done well to note the following projects of SLM and FFP:

- marching in support of the Gainesville 8

As I have observed college students they would rightfully resent being exposed only to a liberal, a middle of the road, or a conservative point of view and certainly would resist indoctrination. The editorial presents only one point of view which is that of the extremist right wing libertarian position and takes exception to everything in opposition to it.

It seems to me that point of view should be presented but should be subject to criticism and discussion. If it can stand the test of the market place, it should survive. If not, it should be rejected. This is what I think the university is all about and I think the editorial showed little understanding of what education is. As a member of a social science department and chairman of the Political Science Department, I simply wish to express to students the idea that things are quite different from that in the editorial and I think we have a different university from what was presented in that editorial. The editorial while accusing others of having only one point of view actually shows extreme hostility to any position different from that of the writer of the editorial.

FFP

EDITOR: An article in the Sept. 24 edition of The Independent Florida Alligator described the Fundamental Freedom Party (FFP) and the Student Libertarian Movement (SLM) as being "right of the political center."

The article, "Student Groups: Politics to Ecology" by Brian Jones, went on to describe these groups as "working to include more conservative viewpoints in university courses."

This is extremely misleading. Both of these groups adhere to a libertarian philosophy.

- working for the decriminalization of marijuana

- bringing anarcho-syndicalist Karl Hess to campus to advocate impeaching the President.

None of these projects fits very neatly into the "conservative" pigeon-hole he provided for us.

EDITOR: Who is Brian Donerly to say that all those who are in favor of the price freeze are either "suffering from terminal stupidity" or are those "who oppose freedom on principle?"

Sixty-four per cent of the population hardly qualify as "smarter than John K. Galbraith" because they oppose price controls. All that is proved is that Brian Donerly does not have any idea of what Galbraith has said.

I am not defending Nixonomics, but I do not believe that Donerly is qualified to hold any rational opinion on the subject. He consistently thinks in absolutes, classing people as stupid and totalitarian who do not agree that libertarian capitalism is the answer to the world's problems. He simplifies issues, ignoring all that is inconvenient, and then launches another juvenile diatribe.

Donerly exemplifies all that is bad about libertarian capitalism: the selfishness, the arrogance, and the anti-intellectualism.

'Paint Your Wagon' starts season

Florida Players prepare for new year

Singing And Dancing
... trying out for musical

Rick Rosen

By ROBIN WILLIAMS
Alligator Staff Writer

Tryouts were held this week for fall quarter's production of "Paint Your Wagon". The show, which will run Nov. 2-10 in the H.P. Constans Theater, is a rollicking musical about the Old West gold rush days.

"PAINT YOUR WAGON" will be produced by the Florida Players in conjunction with the department of music. Dr. Clyde G. Sumpter is directing the show. Musical directors are Dr. John Grigsby and Dr. Gustav Holley.

From today through Nov. 1, there will be work going on at the theater to construct sets, focus lights and make costumes for the show.

Work sessions in the theater shop will be 7-10 p.m. Monday and 2-5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday. Dr. Al Wehlburg and his corps of shop assistants will greet all newcomers and invite them to grab a paintbrush or hammer.

THE COSTUME shop located upstairs at the theater will begin making costumes for "Paint Your Wagon" next week. The costume shop is open from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. each weekday. Costumers will also be at work Monday through Wednesday nights from beginning at 7:30.

Max Frisch's "Andora" will be the major production winter quarter. The director, Dr. L.L. Zimmerman, said he considered Frisch one of the best contemporary Central European playwrights.

Because of this summer's favorable response to Florida Players' performance of the children's play "Androcles and the Lion", the theater department decided to produce another children's show this winter.

DR. CLYDE G. Sumpter will direct "Nicolo and Nicolette", a children's fantasy by Alan Cullen. The fantasy will open for matinee performances March 2.

Spring quarter the Players will offer a former Broadway hit and a contemporary comedy which hasn't been announced yet.

The Broadway show, "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little", by Paul Zindel will open May 6. Director Richard Lake described the show as a "hilarious, revealing and touching comedy."

JULIE HARRIS starred in the show when it opened on Broadway in Feb. 1971.

Graduate student Shep Sobel will be directing the comedy. It will open May 28.

The one-acts will appear in either fall or spring quarter. SEASON TICKETS to the Players Productions are available at the Constans Theater Box Office from 12:30-4 p.m. Anyone buying a season ticket will be able to reserve their tickets for the show one week before regular tickets go on sale.

Price for the tickets will be $8 for non students and $4 for students. The price of a ticket covers admission for the four major productions and for the graduate student one acts.

College Councils held back by student apathy

By SUSAN SPINGLER
Alligator Staff Writer

Since the inception of college councils last February, colleges that previously had not developed councils have been frantically trying to organize councils in order to get full use of appropriated Student Government (SG) funds.

The short time in which the college councils have been created and the lack of student awareness of the councils may be reasons for the apparent student apathy.

THE IDEA of the college council was formulated in 1963 by the Student Senate. No funds were made available for the councils to use until this year when The Alligator went independent and left SG with enough funds to support the councils.

The councils now get $1 for each full-time student enrolled in each college. Fourteen of the 16 colleges at UF have organized councils. Forestry and Medicine are the only two colleges which have not formed councils.

SG has no say in what the councils do with their money. Budgets must be approved by the dean of the council's college and must then go to the Student Body Treasurer, who distributes the funds.

STUDENT BODY Treasurer Gary Neubert said he will reject a budget if funds are allocated for anything illegal, but otherwise he has nothing to say about the use of the funds.

Councils are representative bodies, elected in the colleges in different ways. Most colleges elect a certain number of representatives from each of the departments within the college.

Neubert said the idea behind the councils is to further activities in the individual colleges by providing money directly to them as opposed to money that goes to SG.

Interest in the councils in the form of voter participation and number of candidates running for election has been low.

GARY SEIBERT of the College of Engineering said "not too many" people voted in their college council election, and said they had to "look for people to run" for their 25-member council.

Reports were similar from other colleges. Cecelia Wicklin, a member of the University College Council, said no one received more than 50 votes and voter turnout was "pretty low". Along with Arts and Sciences, UC is one of the largest colleges at UF.

Larry Harrison, of the Arts and Sciences council said it differed in each department, but voter turnout and interest in the councils was generally low in his college.

THE ONLY exception seemed to be the Law School, which incorporated its college council into the John Marshall Bar Association (JMBA), a law student organization that has existed for some time. According to John Wilcox, president of JMBA, voter turnout was about 50 per cent.

Despite the low student interest, the councils have been busy using the appropriated funds.

UC Council projects have included financing fences to go to a tournament, purchasing a 90-minute documentary film on China and giving money to the Equal Education Opportunity Program (EEOP).

THE ARTS and Sciences Council's money must benefit all Arts and Science students or all UF students, according to Harrison. They rejected a request to send some botany students on a trip because the benefits received from the money would not be far-reaching enough, he said.

One of the college's biggest projects was setting up a calculator lab in 116 Building D which is open to all undergraduate and graduate students.

Plans for the future include such projects as a peer advisory board that will provide a student advisory service for students in the hopes the communication gap between student and advisor will be diminished.

THE COUNCIL plans to give money to Accent for speakers, and donate to the Florida Quarterly for a literary magazine.

The law school council has fixed up the student lounge, financed the brown baggers weekly luncheon, have fixed up the JMBA office and sent representatives to the American Bar Association convention.

The journalism college plans to build a lounge in one of the classrooms at the college, buy cassette tape recorders for students to rent, provide more cameras and other equipment for the journalism students and extend the hours of the college library.

THE COLLEGE of Business Administration Council has used its funds to provide scholarships, a book exchange, teacher of the year awards, and money for assistantships within the college, council member Greg Sherman said.

Hey diddle, diddle Meat prices drop

By JOE COLLUM
Alligator Staff Writer

The price of meat seems to have followed that proverbial cow who jumped over the moon. It's skyrocketed.

But the meat-eating species man is not destined to become extinct.

THE CARNIVORE is coming up with ways to beat the meat squeeze.

Buying meat on the hoof — live steers — has become popular with carnivores with big freezers.

Lonnie Thompson Jr., of the Gainesville Livestock Market, said there was a flurry of live steer buying after President Nixon's meat price freeze was lifted two weeks ago.

"THERE WAS a pretty good group in here then. They mostly bought 1,000 pound steers. From 800 to 1,000 pounds is a good size for freezing," Thompson said.

A 1,000 pound steer today goes for 38 cents per pound. The heavier the steer the cheaper. After slaughter and processing, the carcass weighs about 600 pounds and the total cost is about $450. About 25 per cent, or 150 pounds, of that carcass is bone and fat.

So in the end a 1,000 pound steer will bring its buyer about 450 pounds of steaks, roasts, stew meat and hamburger for $450, or $1 per pound.

CHEAP? IF you've got a $900 freezer to store a quarter ton of meat.

Gruver & Cotting Inc. is a wholesale meat dealership which caters mostly to eateries such as restaurants, hotels and schools. But it also serves individuals with room for a side of beef.

Proprietor Richard Gruver said most of his individual customers buy a 275 pound side of beef that is reduced to almost 200 pounds after it is processed and frozen. The price per pound comes out to 87 cents.

CHEAP? AGAIN, yes, if you've got a place to put it.

Most students obviously don't. But that doesn't spell the end of the average student carnivore who's got to fill his stomach on $50 or $75 a month.

At Thompson's Gainesville Livestock Market "The price of 1,000 pound steers has dropped from 48 to 38 cents a pound in the last 10 days," Thompson said.

THAT'S A 20 per cent drop and Thompson said retail price trends at meat counters usually run two weeks behind price changes at his market.

Gruver said, "Probably next week you'll see lots of specials at meat and super markets. And the week after that you'll see even more specials."

The reason? During the Nixon freeze cattlemen kept their steers off the market and in Midwestern feedlots. Unfortunately, said Thompson, there comes a time in every steer's life when he just can't get any fatter, so when the freeze was lifted there was a surplus of steers that couldn't be held any longer.

NOW, SAID Gruver, "The pipelines are full." Thus, the price of beef is sinking almost as fast as it skyrocketed earlier this year.

This situation is temporary, however. Thompson and Gruver agree the "pipelines" will unclog when telescopic retail prices sink back into the atmosphere of the average consumer.

So carnivores better enjoy a sirloin or two while they can, because if what the experts say is true, come January that old cow's going back into orbit.

Dorm Lounges

More room in dorms

By BRUCE MAULDEN
and
BERNIE WROBLE
Alligator Staff Writers

The UF Division of Housing began accepting cancellations from students in dormitory rooms Wednesday, to provide relief for those stuck in dormitory lounges. Students moving out, though, must be prepared to pay partial rent for their rooms.

"We have reopened our door for contract releases, until we find enough rooms for students now in lounges," Joe Ball, assistant to the director of housing said.

Students who decide to move out must pay only for the time they have already spent in their rooms, he said. A student cancelling his room today will be charged $30 to $40, or 1/5 the quarter's rent. The remainder of the rent will be refunded to the student by mail.

"All cancellations should go through my office," Ball said. "Students should make sure they are released from their contracts before signing any leases or agreements off campus." Ball also pointed out that freshmen will not be released from their housing contracts under any circumstances.

A new rule passed by the Board of Regents (BOR) in July, allowing sophomores to live off campus, a BOR cut in funds to universities and an increase in the number of apartments in Gainesville did not stop a large percentage of transfer students and sophomores from wanting dorms. As a result, more than 300 students had to be assigned to dormitory lounges when the fall term opened this week.

UF Director of Housing James T. Hennessey said sleeping in lounges was normal for the school year's opening, although he admitted that this fall's number was greater than anticipated. "Things should be okay in two or three weeks, however," he said. "Most of the students don't want to leave the lounges. It's air conditioned, carpeted and they would really rather stay there."

Hennessey predicted by mid-term there would be plenty of rooms for everyone and things would return to normal.

DESPITE THE critical shortage of space, students who did have rooms were not allowed contract releases earlier this week. Housing stopped taking cancellations from women in rooms last Thursday, and from men on Tuesday morning.

Releases have been granted to students in lounges if they paid for the time they lived in makeshift facilities.

Based on $130-$140 per quarter rates, lounge students breaking their contracts were required to pay 10% of their rent for each week they occupied the lounges or $26 to $28 if they left this week.

Every effort is being made to help students in lounges, Ball said.

"Tuesday night we placed several long distance phone calls to persons who have not checked into their assigned rooms yet," he said. "When we can determine how many rooms will be available due to these no-shows, we will assign such rooms to those now in lounges."

About one dozen graduate students in lounges were moved into rooms Wednesday, Ball said, and added that these were the first of the lounge dwellers to be accommodated aside from exceptional cases handled earlier.

The bulk of the 209 men and 92 women assigned to lounge spaces still await room assignments. All men in Rawlings Hall lounge were given rooms by Wednesday night, Ball said. Remaining lounge students will be moved into rooms as space becomes available, he said.

Ball urged students interested in moving out of their dormitory rooms to act quickly. He could not promise that contract cancellations would be granted after today and he estimated that releases of women's dorm contracts would end very soon.

According to the Educational Testing Service report, only a veteran who earns $2,400 a year with a working wife can afford to meet his expenses, contrary to what was reported in The Alligator Wednesday.

The Alligator regrets the error.

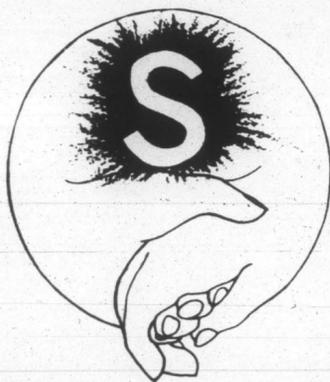

Coordinator of Veteran Affairs Rolf Groseth further clarified his position on a bill that would waive tuition fees for all veterans attending state schools.

He said he thinks the bill could not pass unless a provision requiring the state to reimburse UF for loss of the fees is included in the bill.

Richard Cole: defender of SG

By CELESTE CALVITTO
Alligator Staff Writer

Soft-spoken and forthright, UF Student Body Vice President Richard Cole staunchly defends Student Government and says "it's easy to come up with an argument why SG shouldn't be abolished."

Cole, former Chief Justice of the Traffic Court, was chosen by the Student Senate last summer to fill the vice-presidential post after The Alligator learned that Berni Singley's summer registration was cancelled.

"I'M disappointed that it happened that way," says Cole about his transition from Traffic Court Justice to the vice-presidency. "I thought Berni had quite a potential for the vice presidency."

Cole, noting he and Singley are "still friendly" says he "hates to pass judgment on what the (UF) administration did."

I don't think they handled it properly... The fact that a student's record became public information to a newspaper I don't think is proper... The fact that she was no longer vice-president would have to become public but the way it came about was very unfortunate."

"IN FACT, The Alligator was the way we found out about it. It made us look bad too because it gave the appearance that we were trying to hide something," he said.

COLE SAYS he prefers the "traditional role" of the vice-president — "to be in charge of the cabinet. It frees him (the president) to do emergency-type things that only the president can give an answer to. The cabinet is a more day-to-day thing that can really affect a student's life."

"I try to be very organized," "One of the things I'm trying to do as vice president is to keep a filing system that means something."

ASKED IF the average student takes SG seriously, Cole commented that he didn't think "the normal student body person knows what their elected officers do for them."

He says that situation is partly the fault of SG, The Alligator and UF's administration. "Things are available to the students that they don't know about."

Cole says SG "is like any government — you can't build a road by yourself but if anybody pays taxes, a road gets built. It (SG) really does have a service."

AND THAT is a main reason, Cole believes, that SG should not be abolished.

"The four dollars of your money that goes to SG each quarter has a greater return, I believe, to students than almost any other money they give to this university."

I don't think that if they abolished student government the activity fee (included in the tuition) would go down any. All they would do is reallocate these funds. And the people who compete for funds usually are the Athletic Association, the Reitz Union, and sometimes the Infirmary.

"IF STUDENTS compare the value they get out of each one of these groups, SG does more with four dollars than the other groups do. I don't think its hard to defend it (SG) at all."

Cole said his first contact with student activities came in his senior year in undergraduate school when he became involved with SAMSON. He tutored a young boy who had been through Head Start and kindergarten, but he couldn't read or count.

"IT WAS very shocking," Cole said. "What I read about these things made it seem like a good deal, yet here was a child that didn't know how to do any of the things that I had anticipated him to know how to do."

Cole then worked for a year before entering law school, where he became "more interested in politics and student life and making it better than it was."

He participated in a friend's campaign for Student Body Treasurer and then met Boyer, who was running for Traffic Court Chief Justice. After working in that department for some time former UF Student Body President Sam Taylor asked Cole to be Director of Transportation.

Richard Cole

New Student Body Vice President
... easy to say why SG should stay

AND THAT'S when it all started.

"I ran for traffic court and I heard about people who were running and none of them had anything to do with the traffic court. I didn't want it to go back to being nothing — Tyrie had done so much. That's why I ran — then events changed," Cole explained.

And Cole adds that he does not intend to use his position as a springboard for a political career. He's more interested in pursuing a law career after graduation next June.

"I REALLY don't have any interest in pursuing a political career as a candidate," he says. "It was something I did once and I'm glad I did, but it takes a different kind of person to go out and campaign. In politics in the outside world, all they do is shake hands and tape speeches. I wouldn't get anything out of that," Cole says.

UFW pushing grape organization

By DENNIS CONRAD
Alligator Staff Writer

The United Farm Workers (UFW) are currently embroiled with the Teamsters in a battle to organize the grape pickers of California. At UF students appear to be siding with the UFW.

This week students organized a spaghetti dinner to raise funds for the UFW and in previous months they have conducted boycotts of local supermarkets carrying non-UFW grapes.

SEVERAL MAJOR differences exist in the benefits of different contracts with California growers signed by the Teamsters and the UFW, according to Orrin Baird, Apopka field director of the UFW.

Included in the contract differences between the two unions are the UFW's favoring of the use of the hiring hall, grievance procedure subject to binding arbitration and tougher control over pesticides, Baird said.

Under the two different union contracts signed with growers in Coachella Valley last April, there is very little difference in what a farm worker would make in hourly earnings. The Teamsters' contract provides $2.30 an hour while the UFW pays 10 cents more.

BAIRD SAID THE critical difference between the two contracts was the Teamsters' preference for the labor contractor or crew leader system. A crew leader is responsible for getting the grower the labor he needs and for doing so he receives a percentage of the worker's earnings.

Describing the crew leader as the "most infamous part of the agricultural scene," Baird said workers can be hired and fired at the whim of the crew leader.

Because the crew leader has the power to dismiss workers at his discretion, Baird says the crew leader often uses it to force the farm workers to pay exorbitant prices for soda, ice water, food, transportation and housing facilities.

SCOTTIE BUTLER, general counsel for the Florida Farm Bureau Federation (FFBF), a voluntary association of farm families usually in opposition to the UFW, conceded some crew leaders make as much as $60,000 to $70,000 a year.

"I personally hate the fact Florida agriculture relies on the crew leader system as it does," Butler said.

Jim Burt, director of labor relations for the FFBF, said the crew leader is now being used more than a decade ago because of the shortage of farm labor. Explaining why, Burt said, "They can find labor more easily."

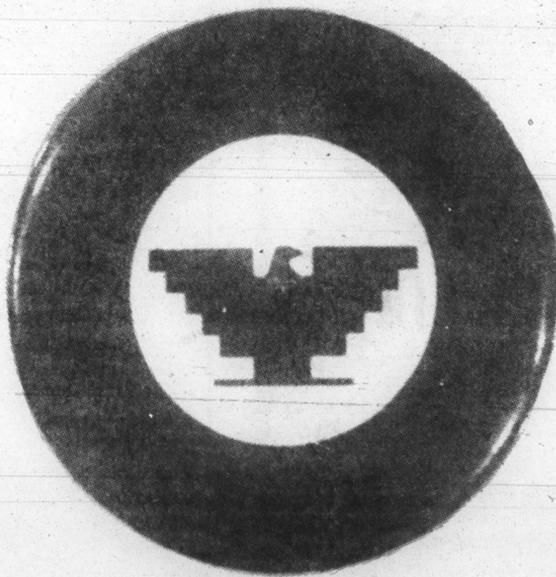

BURT CHALLENGED the UFW assertion that the hiring hall, where the union issues dispatch cards to those workers having the most seniority, would provide a "steadier, more dependable flow of labor" than the labor contractor system.

Burt said the hiring hall has proven to be unreliable. Unions often will call growers one day prior to harvest to tell them then they don't have the necessary number of workers, he said.

Burt said if the hiring hall "worked in practice as in theory, growers might jump at the chance of going along with the hiring hall."

Butler suggested what was needed was not a hiring hall to replace the crew leader but a system whereby crew leaders were "supervised."

A "supervised" crew leader system would "remove some of the black from the eye of agriculture" and help growers in record keeping requirements," Butler maintained.

Offense needed by UF vs. Miss. State

By ANDY COHEN
Sports Editor

UF's highly touted defensive unit will have their hands more than full this Saturday evening when the Gators travel to Jackson, Miss. to face the offensive minded Mississippi State Bulldogs (MSU).

The Gators, who are presently 2-0 and ranked 15th in the nation should have their toughest game to date against the Bulldogs. In the Gators opening two victories over Kansas State and Southern Mississippi, the defensive unit carried most of the burden as the ineffective offense continuously coughed up the ball deep in their own territory.

UF coach Doug Dickey is well aware of the problem. "MSU's potent offensive unit makes it doubly important for the Gators to consistently move the ball," noted Dickey on Thursday. "If we don't eliminate our mistakes, especially deep in our own territory, we'll be in for a long evening."

MSU IS presently 1-0-1, while coming off the heels of an astonishing 52-21 mauling over Vanderbilt. In that contest the Bulldogs racked up 610 yards on offense.

CHIP HIRES

After viewing films of MSU's victory Dickey praised their entire offensive unit. "They've got more confidence in their running and passing game than any team we've faced in a long time," noted UF's coach. "They've got two excellent receivers, a fine quarterback and a fullback named Wayne Jones, who is as good as any runner I've seen this season."

In last week's contest, Jones gained 113 yards on 16 carries for three touchdowns.

"MSU'S DEFENSE is young, but very aggressive," continued Dickey. "Their punter is one of the top kickers in the country. He's presently averaging somewhere near 50 yards per punt."

During the off-season UF's running duo of Nat Moore and Vince Kendrick were rated near the top of UF's illustrious football history. To the surprise of the coaches and players alike, both have been no more than adequate in the Gators' first two outings. "We just need better execution," said Dickey. "We can cure a lot of our ills on the rushing game by getting it and it is surprising we have not yet reached the point where our offensive execution is sharp."

THE GATORS only injury is Glenn Sever, who will miss the MSU contest with slightly torn ligaments. Linebacker Joe Allen was suspended for the game, due to an incident which occurred last spring.

David Bowden, the SEC's leading passer will start for the Gators for the third consecutive week. Hank Foldberg Jr. will see his first action of the season for the Gators after recovering from a shoulder injury.

MSU will have their entire first unit both offensive and defensive healthy for Saturday's contest.

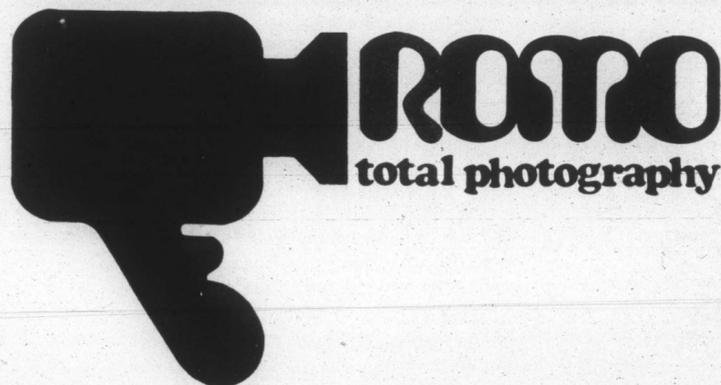

NAT MOORE will be the game's captain for the Gators while Kris Anderson and John Lacer will be co-captains.

Dickey concluded by noting that he hopes the Gators will get their first opportunity to compete on a dry field this Saturday evening. "It's always nicer that way," Dickey concluded.

A plea from mothers

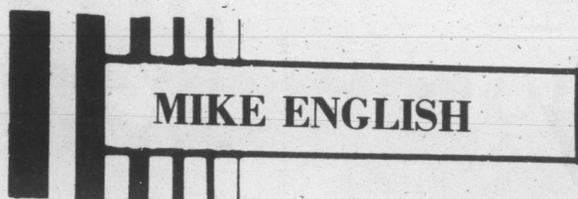

Joe Namath's mother must have been really upset last Sunday, watching her son get plowed under by a huge Baltimore linebacker. If she was watching tv between games she got to see it again three times, in slow motion.

If she was still watching, after that, she could have caught it again on the after game wrap-up and again on the late news.

MONDAY NIGHT Howard Cosell showed it in slow motion adding his own comments. Cosell also got a thrill later being able to add his witness and comment on the fresh injury of Cowboy's Rodger Staubach, who also got knocked out of the game. (Both injuries will probably be included in those funny NFL films showing people being murdered in which Johnny Carson loves to show.)

Is this pandering violence? There seems to be a trend going in that direction in sports broadcasting today.

During last year's Indy 500 the ABC crew broadcast one driver getting wiped out in slow motion, stop action with little arrows pointing out the body for those hard of seeing.

MY FAVORITE example came from a broadcast of the national wrist wrestling championships last year.

One beefy wrestler's arm broke in the middle of a match. They re-broadcast the event in slow motion, while an excited announcer was crooning into his mike, "Listen for the sickening crunch as his arm breaks."

The essence of sports, as has been defined by at least 100 grammar school, high school and college coaches I've met, is competition.

VIOLENCE HAS always happened in sports, but it hasn't been the drawing card, according to tv, that it is now becoming.

Television has to pay a lot of money for the rights to broadcast sporting events and advertisers have to lay a bundle down in turn to hustle their goods. All of this needs a large audience to watch it.

Death, probably the greatest literature ploy, is full of strong emotion and attracts probably the greatest attention. Mayhem, violence and on down the line, also attract great interest, and crowds.

Television only provides the seats for the action, the advertisers provide the "popcorn"

I'm not saying that it is wrong. The Indy crash and Namath's shoulder were news and should have been reported, but harping on such events re-play after slow motion re-play as a sales attraction is a very base appeal.

It probably upsets a bunch of mothers.

Ruggers open season

At noon this Sunday, the Tulane Rugby Club and the UF rugby team will face off on Norman Field, starting off the '73-'74 season.

Even though the season is starting, the club is still looking for members. They are looking for people who have played before and those who have never but want to play the game.

THE TEAM is playing one of the largest and toughest schedules in the country, playing in forty matches and tournaments from now until May.

"We should do real well this year barring any injuries," Buck Curtain, the team adviser said.

By the end of last season, Curtain said that they had only 18 players to fill the 15 team positions while playing four games in a tournament one day.

Next weekend, the team will travel up to Atlanta for a big tournament that will include Texas A & M and Dartmouth, two national rugby powerhouses.

THE ONLY WATERBED DEALERS WORTH YOUR CONSIDERATION

What good is a shop's 5, 10, or 20 year guarantee on a product when that shop has only been around a few months? And what good is a manufacturer's guarantee when the manufacturer has no track record?

Don't swallow the hype that some of the local fly-by-night waterbed shops are baiting their hooks with. Mere desperation tactics. Anyone offering you a 20-year guarantee on a $17.95 waterbed is insulting your intelligence. Anyone telling you a bed in that price range doesn't require a frame, will tell you anything for a buck. And anyone alleging that their beds are larger than our beds is telling you a naughty lie.

Just to further clarify matters, our personal store guarantee is 5 years, not 3 months (We've been here since Sept. 20, 1967). We'll also replace defective beanbags over any reasonable period of time - half a year if you're nice. There, you've got it all in writing.

And you other shops out there - you be nice now. After all, where would you be without us? How would you know what to sell? Or what kind of ads to use? Or anything

Y'all behave, or we won't invite you to our 25th anniversary party either.

McGriff leading SEC; Once banned from game

By GREG FORRER
Alligator Sports Writer

In the eighth grade, the SEC's leading pass receiver weighed 85 pounds. In the ninth grade, he was prohibited from playing football.

Lee McGriff, the "Little Big Man" of UF's squad, was banned from the football field because of his size — even after he had beefed up to a whopping 98 pounds.

"I wanted to play football, but a rule came into effect that year which made it mandatory for anyone playing high school ball to weigh 110 pounds. I went to basketball," McGriff said.

LUCKILY FOR the Gators, McGriff was able to tip the scales correctly a year later, so he went back to football.

"I went back in the tenth grade, but don't think that the basketball didn't help. The hand-to-eye coordination I picked up playing helped me out quite a bit," said the 5 foot 9 inch, 163 lb. Junior.

Obviously it helped somewhat, for going into Saturday's game McGriff had compiled 133 yards on eight receptions including two touchdowns, enough to give him a slim lead over last year's top receiver, Bill Buckley of Miss. State.

"I'D LIKE it to end up that way," said McGriff of his lead, "but sometimes the ball might not be coming my way. It all depends on how the game is going."

When asked if he had ever encountered any coaches opposition with regards to his size, McGriff quickly answered negatively.

CHIP HIRES

UF Wide Receiver Lee McGriff Grabs Bowden Pass ... "Little Big Man" leads SEC in receptions, yards

"Not one coach has ever turned me away. Many people not connected with the game have tried to discourage me, but the coaches were always willing to see what I could do," he said.

McGRIFF PLAYED quarterback in his early days, not becoming a receiver until high school where he met with success at that position. In his senior year at Plant High School in Tampa, McGriff led the conference in touchdowns and pass receiving, only to be somewhat disappointed when he received just an "Honorable Mention" in the post-season awards.

"I don't think our coaches made much of an effort to get recognition for the players. Not only in my case, but we had a few ballplayers that were definitely college material but they never received so much as a tumble," said the Tampan.

SINCE THEN McGriff has made tremendous strides. Last year as a sophomore he shared duties at flanker with Hollis Boardman. This year he is a starting wide receiver for the Gators, and McGriff attributes much of his early success to the coach of the wide receivers, Don Breaux. "Breaux has been doing a tremendous job with the receivers. I believe he is the reason that there has been such a turnabout in the play of the receivers," McGriff remarked. "In one spring he taught me more football than I had learned from all the coaches I've known." "Breaux knows football and he also knows how to handle people. He's worked with us on our downfield blocking, and let me tell you, I'd be embarrassed to see movies of our downfield blocking last year, that's how much of a difference he's made," McGriff commented.

As to what can be expected of the Gators in the future, McGriff remarked that "Nobody knows, but we're a together team that is going to put out and give our best."

Miami collides with FSU

By Alligator Services

CORAL GABLES, FLA. — University of Miami hasn't won a football game from Florida State University (FSU) since it got by in a 7-6 squeaker in 1962.

Since then the teams have met seven times and though the Hurricanes enjoyed the favorite's role on several occasions, the Seminoles have won every game to achieve the longest winning streak any team ever has enjoyed at Miami's expense.

A YEAR ago, Florida State humbled Miami 37-14 to deadlock the all-time series at eight victories apiece. There never has been a tie though Miami has won twice by a single point.

The two teams will do battle this coming Saturday night in Tallahassee. FSU is currently 0-2, while Miami's only game this season was their upset victory over Texas.

The Hurricanes, who tallied 20 points on Texas in their opener, seem much more potent on offense than they did at this time in 1972. The team has adapted well to the new system of attack with the powerful running of Woody Thompson a key factor.

WOODY GAINED 80 yards in 25 tries against Texas for a 3.2 average — but when he got close to the goal line, he was a raging bull.

On Miami's first score, he blasted over from the three in two shots. Next time around, he ripped over from the eight in one shot. In the third quarter, he gained 11 on his first try from the 14 and scored on two more drives. Thus, when the goal line territory, he was given the ball six times in the toughest part of the ball field and got 25 yards, an average of 4.2.

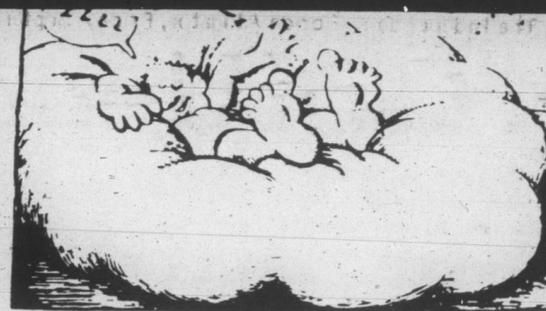

Naturally, his running made the passing more effective — and the excellent passing of both Coy Hall and Kary Baker did the rest. Baker hit on his first five tries, Hall connected on five of his first six, with seven receivers getting into the act.

Silvio Cardosa was an ideal foil for Thompson from the I-back spot and his 35 yards included key dashes of seven and nine yards.

But the Hurricanes employed only a limited portion of the possibilities of their attacking plan and can be counted on to uncover more as they absorb the patient and well conceived teaching of their coaches.

The Hurricanes will meet UF in Miami on Nov. 24.

The first week the headliner was U.C.L.A.-Nebraska... the second week, L.S.U.-Colorado... last week, it was North Carolina State-Nebraska... and this week the national spotlight is on the blockbuster between Oklahoma and Southern California. They're ranked 3rd and 4th in that order in our top 20. The Sooners have had a week off since their impressive trouncing of Baylor in their season opener, and the Trojans have defeated Arkansas and Georgia Tech on successive Saturdays. Both teams are capable of such offensive explosions, it should be a tremendous show. Our pick is possibly a surprise: Oklahoma by nine points.

However, Nebraska is still Number One this week, challenged by runner-up Alabama. The Cornhuskers have a little easier task this Saturday than last as they plan Wisconsin. The Tide meets Vanderbilt. And depending on the outcome of Southern Cal-Oklahoma, the two powers could still be on top next week. Nebraska will dump the Badgers by 35, and Alabama will top the Commodores by - wow - 55 points!

An old nemesis faces 8th-ranked Notre Dame. The Boilermakers of Purdue, thorns in the sides of the Fighting Irish in past years, meet the Irish in West Lafayette. The Riveters are much more of a darkhorse this fall, but are still figured to be an 18-point underdog to Notre Dame.

The two powers in the Big Ten, Michigan and Ohio State, are rated 5th and 7th respectively in our national rankings. The Buckeyes will clip T.C.U. by 20 points, and the Wolverines are a heavy 35-point choice over Navy.

Miami, the big upsetter a week ago, goes after Florida State Saturday. The 12th-rated Hurricanes will win by 25 points.

Three other members of the Big 8 Conference are in the Top 20 again... Oklahoma State is a surprising 6th, Iowa State is 13th, and Missouri is 14th. The Cowboys are favored over Southern Illinois by 49 points... the Cyclones will be a 15-point winner over Arkansas, and Mizzou will take North Carolina by sixteen.

In the Southeast Conference, match-ups between conference title contenders and national powers occur almost weekly. This Saturday, it's Tennessee against Auburn. Last fall, the Tigers upset the Volunteers, 10-6, and this year - well, it could be the same story. Auburn is favored by just one point.
