Americans paused Monday to pay a sad tribute to sons, brothers and husbands killed in United States wars. At the St. Augustine National Cemetery, flags mark rows of gravestones in a Memorial Day commemoration.

Officials may repossess WUFT gear because of contract dispute

By JAYNE THOMPSON
Alligator Staff Writer

Angry local officials are threatening to repossess $75,000 worth of camera equipment they donated to UF's WUFT-TV because the station is not televising the officials' public meetings.

Gainesville city commissioners, Alachua County commissioners and county school board members chipped in $25,000 each in 1974 to purchase for WUFT, the local Public Broadcasting System affiliate, $75,000 worth of low-light color cameras and associated gear.

WHILE THE free equipment was to be used to cover commission and school board meetings live, the coverage has declined steadily in recent months — much to the dismay of the elected officers who purchased the paraphernalia.

And one member from each governmental body said WUFT is violating a contract under which the equipment was purchased because the live meeting coverage is "non-existent."

"I think Channel 5 has violated the letter of the contract," said former Gainesville Mayor and current City Commissioner Aaron Green, a practicing attorney.

"THE COVERAGE has been relatively non-existent lately. I can't even recall when they were there last, even for a taped session," Green said.

The 1974 contract states that Channel 5 will provide live, full-length telecasts of meetings agreed to by WUFT and the school board and county and city commissions.

But the WUFT general manager cannot recall the last time his station televised a live meeting. Nor could General Manager David Brugger predict the next time a meeting would be covered.

THE PROGRAM secretary, Shirley Blackman, was only able to determine the date of the last taped telecast — May 26.

Four years after WUFT agreed to the live telecasts, it now appears the "local government in action" programs are headed for the same fate as other shows with poor ratings — dumped at the end of a season run.

"They have been treating us like forgotten children for about the past year now," School Board Chairman Charles Chestnut said last week.

"THEY HAVEN'T been doing it up to par as far as the city and school board. They have not been living up to that true bill to us," Chestnut said.

Alachua County Commission Vice Chairman Tom Coward added, "We didn't get full coverage and then we got spot checks. Then at some meetings we don't have anybody there."

Calling the gripes a "misunderstanding," Brugger insists that the station never adopted a policy to stop all live coverage of the meetings.

BROADCASTING LOCAL governmental meetings live at their usual 7 p.m. starting times until 10 p.m. is forcing the PBS affiliate to pre-empt increasingly popular PBS programs, Brugger said.

"... all the surveys, mail and phone calls were complaining about the pre-emption and so on," Brugger said.

Student regent vote doomed; UF lobby blamed

By BARRY KLEIN
Alligator Staff Writer

The student member of the Board of Regents probably will remain relatively powerless next year, and legislators backing a proposal that would give the student regent voting power blamed UF student lobbyists Monday for the bill's expected failure.

"The Senate approved the bill almost unanimously, and the governor says he won't veto it. It seems like the only people still against the bill are University of Florida students — or at least their Student Government representatives," bill sponsor Sen. Jack Gordon, D-Miami Beach, said Monday.

"I DON'T understand why the students didn't push to have the bill moved out of committee. It's their bill. It's designed to increase their representation," Gordon added.

Despite the support of House Speaker Donald Tucker, D-Tallahassee, and intense lobbying from Board of Regents staff members, the student regent bill has been sitting inactive in the House Education Committee for more than two weeks.

Tucker has asked education committee Chairman James Redman, D-Plant City, to pull the bill out of committee and put it directly on the House calendar for possible consideration.

BUT REDMAN has refused, saying he can make no exceptions this close to the scheduled June 2 adjournment date.

"I can't pull one bill out of committee without pulling out all the rest," Redman said. "If Mr. Tucker wants the bill to be considered this session, he's going to have to ask for a two-thirds vote of the House."

UF Student Body President Terry Brown, the power behind UF's four-person student lobbying coalition, said Monday he did not push the student regent proposal because he does not think the bill would be in UF's "best interest."

"I WAS asked after my election what my feelings were, and I didn't recommend any changes in what our lobbyists were doing," Brown said.

"I'm not sure voting status will help the student regent, and I didn't feel it should be our primary lobbying thrust. Other lobbying organizations like the FSA (Florida Student Association) are pushing the bill because they think it will help their schools more."

West German terrorists arrested in Yugoslavia

BONN, WEST GERMANY (UPI) — Four of West Germany's most wanted terrorists — including three members of the Baader-Meinhof urban guerilla gang — have been arrested in Yugoslavia, the government announced Monday.

Two of those arrested are suspected of being involved in the kidnap-killing last fall of industrial magnate Hanns-Martin Schleyer.

AUTHORITIES GAVE few details of the arrests, but said the four were all arrested before May 20 and all taken into custody at the same time.

Justice Ministry Spokesman Sepp Binder identified those arrested as Brigitte Mohnhaupt, 28, Rolf Wagner, 33, Sieglinde Hofmann, 32, and Peter Boock, 26.

According to police records, Mohnhaupt, Wagner and Hofmann are members of the original Baader-Meinhof gang.

BOOCK, ACCORDING to the dossiers, is a member of the so-called "Siegfried Haag Group," an offshoot organization.

A spokesman for the Interior Ministry said Yugoslav authorities acted on information supplied by German police and "highly sophisticated technology" played a major part in tracking down the terrorists.

He said authorities believed a "severe blow" has been dealt to terrorist organizations' logistic systems.

MOHNHAUPT AND Wagner are suspected of involvement in the slaying of Schleyer, 62, who was kidnapped on a Cologne street while driving home from work Sept. 5, 1977.

He was killed Oct. 18 after authorities refused to release 11 imprisoned members of the Baader-Meinhof gang.

Mohnhaupt and Wagner are also wanted on suspicion of involvement in the killings of West German prosecutor general Siegfried Buback April 7, 1977, and banker Juergen Ponto July 30.

MOHNHAUPT DROPPED out of sight after her release from a prison where she had served a 4 1/2 year term for illegal possession of fire arms and being a member of a terrorist organization.

She is also suspected of being involved in a gunbattle with Dutch police in Utrecht last September in which one officer was killed.

Hofmann is believed to be a comrade of West German terrorist Stefan Wisniewski, 25, whom French authorities arrested at a Paris airport earlier this month and deported to Germany.

WISNIEWSKI AND Hofmann are said to have received special training in a camp of the People's Front for the Liberation of Palestine in 1976.

Binder said Yugoslavia had asked Bonn for the extradition of some Yugoslav citizens living in West Germany.

Political sources said Belgrade apparently wanted Croatia exiles it believes have been involved in armed attacks on Yugoslav diplomatic personnel and installations in West Germany in recent years.

Binder said, however, that Bonn would not agree to any prisoner swaps.

news in the nation

FBI challenged by SCLC leader

ATLANTA (UPI) — The head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference said Monday the FBI is still trying to discredit black leaders, and challenged the bureau to "put up or shut up" about Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Dr. Joseph Lowery, president of the civil rights organization King founded, said the FBI should make public all its information about King and the SCLC, rather than blotting out the name of a black leader with whom the bureau allegedly conspired to ease King out of the movement.

"I find it incredible that any reputable black leader would engage in a conspiracy with the FBI to 'remove' Dr. King from the civil rights scene," Lowery said in an interview.

Highway deaths match predictions

The Memorial Day weekend wound down to the last, most dangerous, hours Monday with traffic deaths on Florida highways hovering about half the total of 22 predicted by the Florida Highway Patrol.

The patrol reported Monday night one traffic fatality in Alachua County.

The nation's highway death toll Monday matched the grim predictions of safety experts as the homeward crunch began in the final day of the long memorial holiday weekend.

As of Monday, the traffic body count topped 400, the lower edge of the National Safety Council's pre-holiday projection.

The council had predicted between 400 and 500 persons would die on the highways during the holiday which began at 6 p.m. local time Friday and ended at midnight.

A United Press International count at 2:30 p.m. EDT showed at least 425 persons had died in traffic accidents since Friday evening.

Stone evaluates policy toward Cuba

PENSACOLA (UPI) — The United States has told the Castro government in Cuba that it will not give up its rights to the Guantanamo Naval Base, Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., said Monday.

"The administration also has assured me that it does not plan to lift the trade embargo against Cuba in the near future," Stone said in a Memorial Day speech at Pensacola Naval Air Station.

"These are significant developments, especially after the administration's efforts to warm up to (Cuban President Fidel) Castro early last year," the Florida senator said.

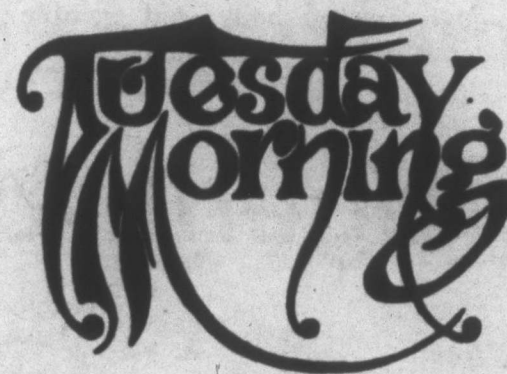

Stone said he wrote Secretary of State Cyrus Vance last week asking if the United States is considering giving equipment openly to certain factions in Angola. He has not received a reply yet.

AL BYRD
 ... operates television equipment for WUFT-TV. Officials who helped pay for the equipment are upset because the station is not televising public meetings.

Masterpiece Theatre and The Forsythe Saga are popular programs that would be bumped during the 7 to 10 p.m. time period.

GREEN, CHESTNUT and Coward said they would use a provision in the 1974 contract to return the cameras to the sponsoring local governments.

The officials have until October 1979, when the contract expires, to act. One provision of the contract requires that if the use of the equipment for live meeting coverage is "terminated" before the contract ends, the equipment becomes the "collective property" of the three local government units.

If no action is taken before the contract ends, the equipment belongs to WUFT-TV.

"I COULD support a motion to try to recover that portion of the city's interest in the equipment, or a reasonable monetary value of it so we could pursue other alternatives," Green said.

"I wouldn't want to feel that Channel 5 is going to take the position that they're going to bogart the whole situation and force us into some kind of position that we'd have to go to court," Chestnut said.

"We invested the taxpayers' money, and if we're going to do anything to benefit the taxpayers, I believe in living up to an agreement," Coward said.

CHANNEL 5's Brugger said, "I think we're living within the agreement" and "we plan to still do live coverage."

"We had not made any decision not to cover the meetings live anymore. We weren't doing as much of it because we felt the contents of the meetings didn't warrant it, and could be done as well with edited coverage," Brugger said.

Chestnut said he is "totally displeased" with the edited, taped version of the meetings because "They (WUFT) are making the judgment as to what is important to the people."

GREEN SAID better efforts should be made between the station and the elected public officials to coordinate video taping of the scheduled meetings. The station should advertise to inform the public of delayed broadcasts, he said.

There is a proposal to move live coverage to a channel on the University City Cable TV system. That may ease Channel 5's coverage woes, Green said.

Brugger said he has been working on the idea since January with cable TV President Jim Milliken. The cablecasts could be ready by January 1979.

MILLIKEN, HOWEVER, called the discussions with Brugger "cursory."

"I've talked to Mr. Brugger at WUFT, but we really haven't come to any conclusions so far," Milliken said.

The "government on the cable" set-up would involve microwaving the original meeting signal from City Hall to Channel 5's UF stadium studios — as has been done for past programs.

CHANNEL 5 would then relay that same signal via a new cable to the cable company, which would then telecast the signal on Channel 8. Channel 8 is now used for printed UPI news and stock market reports.

UF's microwave antenna, however, is broken and a cable from the stadium to Southwest 34th Street would have to be installed.

Brugger said the microwave, which transmits the signal from City Hall to the stadium for live or taped coverage, has been broken for about a month. He said the microwave should be repaired in the next two months.

Milliken said he hopes to work out something between WUFT-TV and the cable company within the next two months.

Six of the seven original signers of the 1974 contract are either out of public office, have resigned or are about to leave their official positions.

Student regent

Former UF Student Body President Paul Leino developed the $6,500 UF Lobbying Association one week after pulling out of the FSA, a statewide student lobbying organization designed to push bills benefiting the entire university system.

LEINO ACCUSED FSA members of ganging up against UF and Florida State University representatives, and said his new lobbying organization would work only on UF-oriented projects.

Rep. Fran Carlton, D-Orlando, a member of the House Education Committee, said Monday the student regent bill could have been saved if the students had pushed harder.

"Why should the committee give the student regent a vote when the students don't care enough to even fight for it?" Carlton said.

"The bill's probably dead — it's pretty late in the session to get things moved up now. It's unfortunate, but there's really no one to blame except the students themselves."

EDITOR-ELECT DENNIS KNEALE
... selected for fall, winter quarters

By VICKI WEGLOWSKI
Alligator Staff Writer

The Alligator's board of directors helped News Editor Dennis Kneale realize a long-sought dream Sunday when it elected Kneale editor in chief for fall and winter quarters.

Kneale, 4JM, said he hopes to introduce weekly in-depth and investigative reporting to The Alligator.

"There are many things happening at this university that the public must know about. I'd like to see us report thoroughly on important issues before they are forgotten and just fall through the cracks," Kneale said.

Kneale has been with The Alligator for more than two years, and served as news editor for two quarters. He interned at The Miami Herald winter quarter.

The board of directors also selected Mark Johnson, 4AS, as managing editor for summer quarter. Johnson, a 22-year-old history major, has worked at The Alligator for more than three years. He served as sports editor for three quarters and Inside editor one quarter, and is recognized for his scathing sports commentary.

Lauren Stoddard, 4JM, will be managing editor fall quarter. The 20-year-old layout editor has worked at The Alligator for five quarters, and will be responsible for the administration and physical appearance of the paper.

Women's leader asks for review of Shaara decision

By VICKI WEGLOWSKI
Alligator Staff Writer

One of UF's top Affirmative Action advocates Monday attacked a decision clearing Infirmiry Director Richard Shaara of hiring violation charges.

Committee on the Status of Women Chairwoman Phyllis Meek said she will ask Affirmative Action Coordinator Jackie Hart to review the decision made by acting Executive Vice President John Nattress last week.

NATTRESS SAID Thursday that an informal group Shaara invited to review candidates for a high-paying Infirmiry psychiatrist position was technically a search committee and met Affirmative Action requirements.

"The thing that concerns me about that is that Shaara will do the initial screening before the search committee gets to interview the candidates," Meek said.

Nattress said the search committee should screen 11 applicants passed by the UF personnel office and recommend candidates for formal interviews with the Infirmiry staff.

MEEK SAID Shaara's committee will review the candidates only after the interviews with the Infirmiry staff.

"Normally, the person who is going to make the final recommendation doesn't do the initial screening. If there is any favoritism involved, this would be the time to do it," Meek said.

"If he wanted to hire a white, male psychiatrist, he just wouldn't include any blacks or women to be interviewed," Meek said.

SHAARA'S HIRING practices in finding a new psychiatrist to replace Mental Health Service Co-director Robert Buchholz have been under question for several weeks.

Shaara was reprimanded by Nattress three weeks ago for interviewing an old friend for the position a week before the job was officially open.

Shaara could not be reached for comment Monday.

Thieves attack cyclist, steal bike

A man was attacked with a steel pipe Tuesday night by two men who were stealing his bicycle.

Richard Shultz told police two black males took his 10-speed bicycle after one of them hit him in the head several times with a steel pipe.

Shultz described both the men as being of medium complexion and having braided hair. One was 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighed 180 pounds, the other was 5 feet 9 inches and 160 pounds, the victim said.

Police said the incident occurred in the 1000 block of Northwest 13th Avenue.

Cigarettes stolen in store robbery

A "nicotine fit" may have prompted the burglary of Strawder Grocers, 432 SE 13th St., early Thursday morning.

The burglar, or burglars, escaped with 30 packs of cigarettes, but nothing else was reported stolen, Gainesville police said.

Sex clause in constitution may help push ERA

By JULIE FARNSWORTH
Alligator Writer

A revision to the Florida Constitution prohibiting sex discrimination may not solve the problems of women seeking equal rights but could serve as a push for the Equal Rights Amendment, the chairman of the Florida Constitution Revision Commission said.

Summarizing the list of revisions at a League of Women Voters luncheon last week, Talbot "Sandy" d'Alemberte said the women's rights issue was one that "stuck in my craw."

"I USED to oppose the word 'sex' added to the state constitution, but now I support it," the Miami attorney and UF law school graduate said.

D'Alemberte added the Legislature's defeat of the ERA last year in Florida was "not a tragedy."

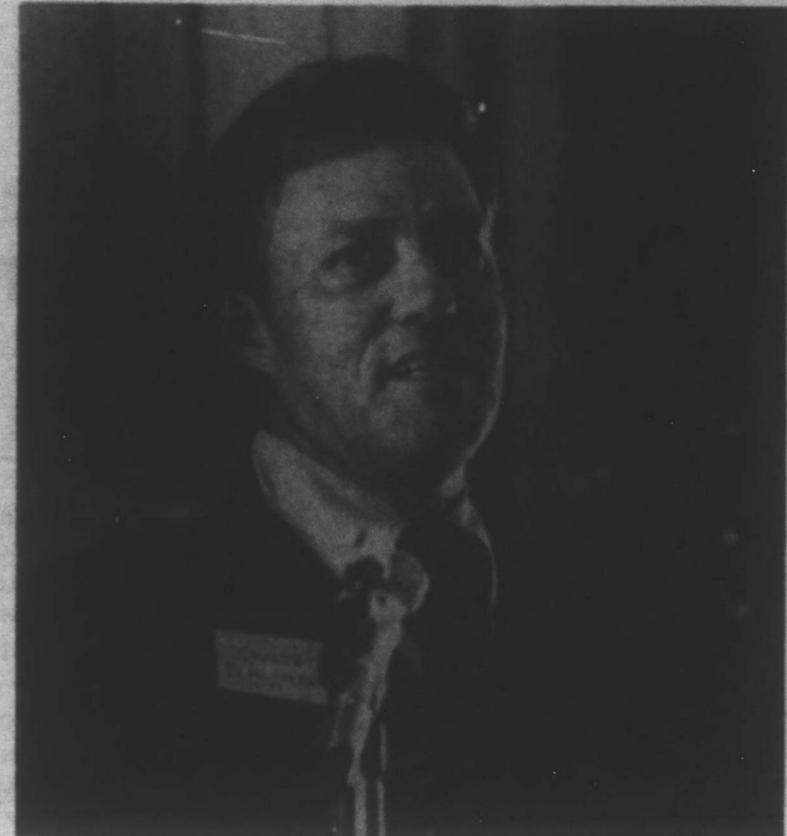

And even though the Florida Legislature is not expected to consider the ERA this year, d'Alemberte said the constitutional sex discrimination proposal will be a boost for the amendment.

THE COMPLETED revisions have been certified by Secretary of State Bruce Smathers and now await approval by voters Nov. 7.

D'Alemberte said the commission received more than 800 suggestions for the constitution from residents throughout the state.

"I am startled at the public interest the revision has received, and there is time for more debate before the people vote on it in six months," d'Alemberte said.

ONE OF the many revision proposals calls for a state board of education made of residents appointed by the governor.

sandy felsenthal
TALBOT 'SANDY' d'ALEMBERTE
... summarizes list of constitution revisions

D'Alemberte said he also wanted a constitutional Board of Regents that would govern the State University System on a day-to-day basis.

"This board would regulate student fees and arrange for guest speakers, but the state Legislature would still have the final authority."

THE RIGHT of privacy proposal was the most controversial, d'Alemberte added.

"The federal and state constitutions do not have the right of privacy fully developed," d'Alemberte said.

The revision states a protection for the right of privacy "against governmental intrusion." D'Alemberte said this clause, however, was "as vague as the phrase 'due process of law.'"

County to discuss charter government tonight

Today's Alachua County Commission meeting has been canceled, but commissioners will meet tonight in a workshop session to discuss charter government.

The proposed charter would authorize more home rule for county commissioners and change constitutional officers to charter officers, which would take away their right to appeal their budget to the Cabinet.

The charter would limit commissioners to two terms in non-partisan elections.

Voters will be asked to vote on the proposed charter during the Oct. 10 primary election.

This will be the third attempt by the county to pass a form of charter government in the last seven years.

The other two attempts failed by wide margins because of heavy opposition by rural and small-town residents, who feared loss of power.

The meeting begins at 7:30 on the fourth floor of the county administration building.

Prof maintains innocence to sexual battery charge

By MICHAEL COLLINS
Alligator Staff Writer

An internationally known economics professor who was arrested here last week on sexual battery charges held a press conference Saturday to deny the allegations.

Visiting economics Professor Ezra Mishan, who will leave UF at the end of the quarter to return to the London School of Economics, was arrested Wednesday after placing ads in local newspapers to solicit sculpture models.

WOMEN WHO answered the ad claim it was a deceptive attempt at attracting them to Mishan's home for sexual pleasure.

"I assure each of the (model) applicants and my friends and colleagues here at the University of Florida and in Gainesville, that I am innocent of any wrongdoing, either legal or moral," Mishan said in a prepared statement.

"I have done nothing more than is commonly done by a sculptor," he added.

MISHAN SAID he warned the women interested in being models before they visited him that his work would require touching their nude bodies.

But one of more than 20 women who answered Mishan's ads directly contradicted that claim Monday.

"What has been omitted from the press accounts, is that before seeing any of the applicants in my home, it has always been my policy to explain that I wished to sculpt an erotic recumbant figure in clay medium and that in so doing I would be required to use both my hand and eye over the body of the model. I explained, then, that I could not work with a timid girl," Mishan said.

BUT ONE of the women interviewed by Mishan for the modeling job claimed Mishan's statements are inaccurate.

"He did not tell me he had to use 'both hand and eye' over the body until I was disrobed," the third-year UF English student said.

After a short initial conversation, the woman said, Mishan left the room, she disrobed, and he returned.

"HAND AND EYE is not the question," the woman said. "Any sculptor has to touch you. But fondling genitals is a different thing," she said.

"I do feel I was deceived," the woman

EZRA MISHAN robert rivas
... denied allegations

said. "Had he told me (he would have to touch her) I would not have gone there for the first time."

The woman was sent back to Mishan's home by police to gather further evidence with an electronic listening device.

SHE ALSO said Mishan identified himself as "Michael."

"If he didn't intend to deceive, why did he use a different name?"

Mishan has directed questions concerning the charges against him to his attorney, Larry Turner. Turner would not comment Monday on the woman's allegations.

Man dies in double shooting

A Friday night traffic accident resulted in a double shooting and the death of a Gainesville man, police said Monday.

Following an auto accident at Hawthorne Road and Southeast Third Avenue, Willard Sanders began to chase the other man involved in the crash, Robert Moore of 654 NE 16th Terrace, Gainesville police said.

When Sanders found Moore in the 600 block of Northwest 16th Terrace, Moore shot him twice in the upper body with a pistol, police said. Police said Sanders then shot Moore, 61, in the head with a shotgun, fatally wounding him.

Sanders of Evinston, Fla., is being held in the Alachua County Jail without bond. He is receiving medication for pain caused by the bullets, which are still lodged in his body, a jail spokesperson said.

Outdated drugs stolen from UF

An estimated $100 worth of outdated drugs were stolen from the UF College of Pharmacy last week, UF police said Monday.

Sometime between 5:30 p.m. Wednesday and 8:30 a.m. Thursday, 20 small bottles of sedatives and antibiotics were taken from a locked cabinet in room P-209 of Shands Teaching Hospital, police said.

The burglar apparently entered the office with a key and smashed the glass in the doors of two locked cabinets.

University Digest

Produced by the Division of Information and Publications Services to communicate official notices & important information to students, faculty & staff at the University of Florida.

DR. BUSHNELL
On Faculty since 1963

Dr. Bushnell Named Chairman History Dept.

Dr. David Bushnell has been named chairman of the Department of History. He replaces Dr. Arthur Funk, who has returned to teaching.

On the UF faculty since 1963, Dr. Bushnell will serve as acting chairman until September, when he will become permanent chairman.

Dr. Bushnell came to UF fifteen years ago from the U.S. Air Force Office of Aerospace Research, where he served for three years as chief of the Historical Division. He taught on the faculties of the Universities of New Mexico and Delaware. Early in his career, he was a research analyst for the OSS and the Department of State.

A specialist in Latin American History, Dr. Bushnell was a Fulbright lecturer to Colombia in 1972, and was visiting professor of international relations at the National War College in 1969-70. In fall, 1977, he served as a Visiting Fellow at St. Antony's College, Oxford University, England.

He has authored four books and 27 articles on topics ranging from Latin American development to space biology. Dr. Bushnell received B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Harvard University.

Loans for Fall Are Available

Basic Educational Opportunity Grant and Federally Insured Loan funds are still available for the 1978-79 academic year. Students needing financial aid for next year should file applications for these programs as soon as possible.

BEOG applications may be picked up in the Office for Student Financial Affairs, Room 23, Tigert Hall. Applications for Federally Insured Loans are available in 324 Tigert Hall.

Proctors Available For Final Exams

Faculty who need proctors for final exams should contact the Phi Eta Sigma Proctoring Service in the Office for Student Services, 129 Tigert Hall, 392-1294. The group needs approximately one week's advance notice in order to have proctors available on the required day.

UNANIMOUS APPROVAL BY UF SENATE

Establishment of Liberal Arts, Sciences College To Go to BOR

Only one more step remains for establishment of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences to take over functions of the 43-year-old University College and the College of Arts and Sciences, a recommendation approved unanimously by the UF Senate Thursday. Newspaper reporters estimated attendance at between 130 and 150 and one newspaper termed it "the largest gathering of Senate members in more than two years."

President Robert Q. Marston has approved the Senate action which would change the UF Constitution, and will recommend approval by the Board of Regents.

The Senate's action changes Article IV, Section 4, to read: "General Education -

The University shall require a program of general education for all students receiving bachelor's degrees, which program shall be under the supervision of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. The courses that constitute the general education portion of the baccalaureate degree must be approved by a Council on General Education, which shall be composed of representatives from the majority of baccalaureate degree granting colleges within the university."

There was no discussion or debate on the motion to amend the Constitution, which required a two-thirds vote of members present and voting. Marston called for a voice vote and received a loud and resounding chorus of "Ayes." When he called for those opposed, there was dead silence.

The Senate also voted with only one dissenting vote, cast by Arts and Sciences Dean C.A. VanderWerf, implementing procedures to put the constitutional change into motion. The procedures disestablish both the University College and the College of Arts and Sciences and transfer all departments affiliated with both into the new college, effective Sept. 1.

The Senate action culminates almost ten years of various efforts to reorganize administration general education at UF. It also follows a concerted one and one-half-year program, involving four task forces with representatives from faculties of both colleges and input from faculty, students and administrators from throughout the university.

University College was established at UF in 1935 as a pioneer in delivering general education to freshmen and sophomores. During the last ten years, most of the universities that had moved to that concept had changed back to the more traditional system. Now freshmen and sophomores will take their general education requirements as students in the new college or as declared majors in some other college on campus.

During Senate consideration Thursday, Dean VanderWerf moved that action on the implementing procedures be tabled for ten days, but the motion failed on a show-of-hands vote. The vote was not counted when it was evident the motion had failed, but estimates were that up to one-fourth of those present voted to table.

VanderWerf said that he was not against the reorganization, but that he felt that the actions of a search and screen committee of faculty members from both colleges should be investigated before the Senate took final action. The committee had recommended only one candidate for the deanship of the new college, Dr. Charles Sidman of the University of Kansas, who was appointed to the position by President Marston following a poll of more than 50 faculty members and administrators who interviewed him.

Black Awards Program Set Thursday Night

The Office of Minority Affairs in Student Services is sponsoring the Second Annual Black Awards Program Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. at University Auditorium. A reception will immediately follow the program at the Institute of Black Culture, 1510 W. University Avenue.

The program will have academic and athletic award recognition, and special awards. The program will include speaker Donald Softly, UF Assistant Professor of History, and performances by the Black Gospel Choir and Marti Thomas.

For more information, call Minority Affairs, 392-1261.

2 Candidates For Exec. V-P To Be Here

Two candidates for executive vice-president will be on campus this week and next for interviews, as pre-screening continues to add others to the list of those who will be invited. Deadline for receiving applications is June 1.

Dr. Ernest J. Briskey, vice-president of Campbell Soup Co. and president of the company's subsidiary Technological Resources, Inc., will be here Thursday and Friday. Anyone interested will have opportunities to participate in interviewing two times on both days.

Dr. Ronald F. Bunn, vice-president for academic affairs at State University of New York, Buffalo, will be here June 7-9. His interview schedule will be published in the University Digest later in the week.

Dr. Briskey's schedule includes public interview sessions with a portion of the President's staff from 8:30 a.m. Thursday, a portion of the Administrative Council from 10:30-11:30 a.m. Thursday, the Faculty Educational Policy Group, 10:45-noon Friday, and another portion of the Administrative Council, 1-2 p.m. Friday. All sessions will be in the Board Room, 226 Tigert Hall.

Dr. Briskey will also be interviewed by vice-presidents in individual conferences, members of UF's Council of Advisors and community leaders throughout the two days. He will be hosted at breakfast Friday morning by a group of students representing Student Government, college councils and other groups.

Dr. Briskey joined the Campbell Soup Co. in 1971 as vice-president for research in the company's Institute of Food Research. Prior to that, he was distinguished professor of agricultural and life sciences and director of the Institute of Muscle Biology at the University of Wisconsin. He joined the Wisconsin faculty after receiving his Ph.D. from that University in 1958. He received the B.A. degree from Wisconsin in 1952 and the M.A. from Ohio State in 1955.

Dr. Briskey is the author or co-author of over 140 scientific research articles published in 26 different international journals.

The native Wisconsin, who grew up on a dairy farm, has conducted research, consulted or studied in nations throughout the world, including Africa, the Middle East, South America, Japan, Hungary, Poland, Denmark, Mexico and England. He was a lieutenant in the U.S. Army from 1952 to 1954 and served in Korea.

The two candidates have been selected from a list of more than 200 supplied by the Academy for Educational Development, which has served as staff to President Robert Marston in searching for candidates and conducting pre-screening. The candidates have also been screened by the vice-presidents and by the Faculty Educational Policy Group. The FEFG is a campus-wide faculty group elected by the Steering Committee of the UF Senate. The screening will continue. No pre-determined number of candidates to be invited to campus has been established.

President Marston has stated that in choosing a successor to Dr. Harold Hanson he will discuss candidates "in whom we are seriously interested" with appropriate faculty, including the FEFG; students, including the presidents of the Student Body and the Student Senate; alumni and Foundation leaders, and the senior administrative officers of the University, including vice presidents and deans.

THIS WEEK

Carl Stokes ACCENT Speaker Thursday at 8

Carl Stokes, former mayor of Cleveland and now a New York news commentator, will speak at Graham Pond at 8 p.m. Thursday as part of the ACCENT '78 speakers series.

Stokes, the great grandson of a slave and a leader of activist big city mayors during the late 1960s and early '70s, was one of the first blacks elected mayor in a major city. He served as mayor of Cleveland for two two-year terms and also was elected first vice-president of the National League of Cities. Since 1972, Stokes has served as news commentator for WNBC-TV, where he produces an urban journal.

Jazz Concert Tonight

A combined concert by the University Jazz Bands, under the direction of Gary Langford, will be presented by the Music Department today at 8:15 p.m. in University Auditorium. The concert, the last of the year, will include performances of: "Green Dolphin Street," arranged by Les Hooper; "Warning, Success May be Hazardous to Your Health," by Toshiko Akyoshi; Gil Evans' "My Ship"; "Intimacy of the Blues," by Duke Ellington; "Best Coast," by Pat Lavarbera, and "Bill's Blues," by Bill Stapleton. There is no admission charge.

Acting Recital

Master of Fine Arts candidates will present an acting recital Thursday and Friday evenings at 8 in Constans Theatre, including a one-man show by student Ronald Gies as poet Edgar Allan Poe and a one-act British comedy, "How the Other Half Loves," by Alan Ackbourne. The play is directed by student Dandy McConnell and features performances by Craig Hartley, David Moberg, Graham Gilbert, Katherine Hallowell, Deborah Bleckley and Susan Mowrer. Admission is free to UF students and $3 to the general public.

Dummy

If the Florida Board of Regents votes to raise tuition at the state universities within the next year, we're going to send all the angry students to Terry Brown.

Should the Regents vote within the next year to raise dormitory rates, we're going to send all the angry students to Terry Brown.

And should the Regents vote within the next year to impose military dress codes at the nine state university campuses, we're going to send all the angry students to Terry Brown.

We are not saying the Regents will approve any of these possibilities. Then again, we cannot say they won't. If they do, they will do it without benefit of a vote from the lone student regent on the board, because for the second year in a row the student regent will not be able to vote. He or she will be powerless.

The Regents have had a non-voting student member for only a year. The Florida Legislature last spring approved adding a non-voting student regent to the board, after Gov. Reubin Askew the year before vetoed the Legislature's attempt to place a student on the board with full voting rights.

Askew signed the Legislature's most recent bill and selected former University of South Florida Student Body President Les Miller as the student regent.

Miller served students responsibly for nine months. He served them with enough dignity and maturity that three full-time regents, including Chairman James Gardener, agreed that a student regent deserved the right to vote.

Enough Florida senators agreed to pass a voting student regent bill this spring. Askew has agreed not to veto it. But the voting student regent bill died in a House committee anyway.

The bill died because not enough student lobbyists, particularly two student lobbyists from UF, pushed House members to vote the bill out of committee onto the House floor for debate. And it is perfectly clear that UF lobbyists David Cohen and Jeff Marcus never pushed the bill because UF Student Body President Terry Brown told them not to.

Brown tells us he never had lobbyists push the bill because, "I'm not sure voting status will help the student regent, and I don't feel it should be our primary lobbying thrust." Malarky.

Brown did not push the bill because of a conflict between UF's Student Government and the governments of the other eight state universities. It was a conflict that urged UF to pull out of the State Council of Student Body Presidents and withdraw UF funding from that council's lobbying group, the Florida Student Association.

Those groups are supporting the voting student regent bill. And because of the earlier conflict over who controls the state council, Brown is not supporting the student regent bill. A classic example of cutting off your nose to spite your face.

Brown never considered issues the Regents vote on that matter to every student in the system, regardless of where they attend. Those issues deserve a student regent's input, whether that regent comes from UF, USF or any other university.

We can only remind all those students who, in the next year, may have reason to scream over a Regents ruling, that Brown took his office door off its hinges as a symbolic gesture of open administration.

For his childish inaction, Brown deserves to have each of those irate students lean through his open door and scream at him.

Nuclear plant debate discussed and corrected

EDITOR: The recent article in The Alligator, concerning the nuclear power debate, was in error on a point I made. I may have been unclear concerning the point, therefore a correction is necessary.

The amount of energy required for enrichment consumes 2 percent of the total national electrical energy, not 2 percent of the total national energy consumption. Uranium enrichment is but one step in the uranium fuel cycle. The fuel cycle is as follows: uranium mining and mills, conversion to UF<sub>6</sub> (Uranium hexafluoride), enrichment, conversion to usable ## advice and dissent letters from readers

fuel, reactor use, temporary fuel storage, reprocessing cost (not in process at this time due to economics and the amount of energy required), long-term waste storage (not realized at this time, therefore cost and energy consumption unknown).

Another point I would like to make is "cost per kilowatt" in the article should read "cost per kilowatt of generating capacity."

The reactor safety study did consider earthquakes, but the Union of Concerned Scientists' assessment made the following points: "In the case of nuclear reactors, the specification of the maximum credible earthquake for which public safety must be assured demands extreme conservatism for two principal reasons:

- The consequences of some types of serious failure in a nuclear facility must be guarded against even if their likelihood is exceedingly remote;

- "The historic record of earthquake occurrences is so short that it cannot encompass the entire spectrum of possible events."

Nuclear power plants do not explode like a bomb. They have contained within them large amounts of extremely toxic biological materials, which may be released into the atmosphere over a large area if the containment vessel is ruptured.

Since my purpose in the debate was to inform the public, they may gain additional information concerning nuclear power by writing either their local congressman or the Environment Energy and Natural Resources Subcommittee, B-371 Rayburn Building, Washington, D.C., 20515. Ask for the House Government Operations Committee report entitled "Nuclear Power Costs."

UF search group slightly warped, but reasonable

"Schlepperman, I can't believe you said that!"
 "Why not? It happens to be true."
 I stood shaking my head in disbelief. Now, you and I know that Schlepperman has come up with some outrageous statements, but this one topped them all.
 "You mean to tell me," I said, "that you think the search committee did a good job in choosing the dean for the newly combined University College and Arts and Sciences College?"
 "I do," he responded.
 "But how? They were operating behind closed doors, offered no reasons or justifications for their decisions, and worst of all, they passed up one of the most outstanding and beloved individuals of this university, Dean Cal VanderWerf."

satire
fred goldstein

"Ya see, Goldstein, you're acting like everyone else. You're just too emotional about this whole thing. You have got to be reasonable about it."
 "Reasonable? What do you mean?"
 "Well, look at some of the recent events concerning the hirings of high paid officials. Remember the woman who was notified of her acceptance as a presidential advisor before all the other applicants were screened?"
 "Yes."
 "And look at the incidents concerning the Infirmary Director, Richard Shaara. He's in trouble for trying to get an old friend the open psychiatrist position and in general exhibiting favoritism in hiring."
 "So what's that got to do with Dean VanderWerf and the committee?" I asked.
 "They were afraid that if they hired Dean VanderWerf, they would also be under fire for playing favorites. Someone would claim that they never really gave anyone else a chance to be dean and that they intended to hire only a UF faculty member," Schlepperman explained.

"So that's why they insisted on an outsider as the new dean?" I inquired.

"Yeah. I'm telling ya, the press has got these administrators scared to death. They're afraid of getting the finger pointed at them, so they hired an outsider to make sure that there'll be no charges of playing favorites."

"I can appreciate that, but still, isn't it more important to get the most qualified person as dean?"

"Oh, they're still concerned with that. In fact, last week I overheard a conversation between Search Committee Chairman Jay Zeman and Dean VanderWerf. It went like this:

ZEMAN: Hello, Cal, nice weather we're having, huh?

VANDERWERF: I suppose.

ZEMAN: Listen, have you got any ideas on how to figure out who the new dean should be?

VANDERWERF: Well, I think he should have experience as a dean of a large university in Florida, be familiar with workings of the UF administration, and be loved by all.

ZEMAN: Terrific. That's exactly what we've been thinking. Know anyone who fits that description?

VANDERWERF: As a matter of fact, I feel, in all modesty, that I'm . . .

ZEMAN: Nice weather we're having, huh?

VANDERWERF: You already said that.

ZEMAN: Listen, Cal, you keep looking around for us. We trust your judgment.

VANDERWERF: Well, if you trusted my judgment, then why didn't . . .

ZEMAN: Incidentally, nice weather we're having, huh?

"But why did they refuse to have any public input in the search?" I asked.

"Simple. Since VanderWerf is so beloved by everyone, they feel that it'd only compound the problem. Then someone could say that everyone was playing favorites, not just the committee. You don't want an entire university involved in a scandal, do you?"

"Uh, no . . ."

"But don't worry. It's all part of the strategy," he explained.

"What strategy?"

"Well, this is how it's planned. VanderWerf, no longer dean, leaves the university. They hire this other guy, an outsider, who's obviously not as qualified as VanderWerf. After a year, this new dean cracks under the pressure. So THEN, they can hire VanderWerf!"

"They can?"

"Sure, 'cause then, VanderWerf will be an outsider."

Intramural program 'deteriorating'

EDITOR: The UF intramural program is turning into a monster. A recent article in The Alligator cited intramurals as the single Student Government-sponsored program most often used by students.

The fact that intramurals are so popular among students has put the intramural staff on a pedestal and has somehow left them blind as to the true intent of intramurals.

INTRAMURALS ARE intended to give students an opportunity for extra-curricular recreation, but the all-knowing intramural staff in room 227, Florida Gym, has made participation so complicated and competitive that it is almost not worth the trouble to sign up.

For instance on Tuesday, May 23, my dorm team was scheduled to play a softball game. When we showed up at Norman Field, one of the officials told us we would have to forfeit because one of our players had lost his fee card. And even though the opposing team consented to play, the official insisted he would lose his job if he allowed us to play. A rule like that is totally ridiculous and does nothing but foster animosity between students and officials.

The recent controversy with the fraternity swim meet is another example. Although I have no love for frats, I feel they were indeed "suckered" by the actions of the intramural staff.

OBVIOUSLY IF 11 frats and three sororities did not see the note stating they would be disqualified if they did not attend the meeting, the notice could not have been very visible.

If the Intramural office and the rest of the "brotherly Greeks" had any sense of fair play they would have allowed the ousted frats to enter the meet so that Intramural Sports Program Director Don Hester's "heated caliber of a fraternity" competition would be equalized.

THESE ARE just two of the many examples of the slow deterioration of the intramural program I have seen since I came to UF in 1975. Sure they can blame it all on lack of facilities and on increased participation. But participation is intramural's goal, is it not?

The presumptuous in room 227 had better start gearing their interests to students instead of trying to make their jobs easier.

Shaara editorial has 'no basis'

EDITOR: I have followed your endless stream of articles on Dr. Richard Shaara and the Infirmary for some time now without comment. However, your editorial of May 26 criticizing Dr. Shaara's hiring practices for not having a "search committee," has prompted this response.

Undoubtedly, that editorial represents a new low in the news media for editorializing with absolutely no basis in fact. To me, the news media is charged with a tremendous responsibility — that being to report, and editorialize, accurately and with the firmest of basis in fact.

The facts are that before any health care professional is hired to work at the Student Health Service he/she must be interviewed by a group of approximately 15 persons. After these individual interviews, applicants are assessed individually and each person's recommendations are given to Dr. Shaara. Dr. Shaara then decides, with the help of these recommendations, who shall be hired. Dr. Shaara has consistently shown the utmost respect and consideration for these recommendations. I want to emphasize that these interviews are conducted absolutely candidly and each interviewer's comments carry equal weight. To me, this represents an extremely effective, open and forthright "search" procedure for prospective employees.

In such shoddy editorializing The Alligator simply demeans itself as an effective, creditable news distributing tool. Indeed, such an editorial as the one in question is clear testimony that although The Alligator wouldn't recognize professional journalism if it tripped over it, The Alligator is still falling flat on its face.

Teaching jobs deserve respect and more money

EDITOR: "I just don't care anymore, I'm sorry." So am I, because these words were spoken by one of the faculty here at the university, and the really sad part is that this feeling of apathy and indignation is probably shared by most teachers in all levels of education.

In ancient times teachers were the most revered members of the community. For where would we be without the teachers who care enough about the human condition to try and impart the knowledge that leads to understanding, in the hopes of making that condition better?

WITHOUT TEACHERS we would be reduced even lower than the lowest creature for we alone have the gift and the ability to master the universe and all its secrets. The door which opens to that mastery is our brain and the key is knowledge, and without teachers that key remains out of reach.

So why then have the teachers come to occupy such a lowly position in our society?

Let us look at some of the more enviable positions in our society to see where our values lie. Doctors, lawyers, businessmen, (only if rich and thereby successful) executive types, etc.

HOWEVER, NOT one of these positions can be had without first going to grade school, to high school, to college and onward and all of these institutions are run by teachers for everyone's benefit — that is except the teachers.

There is nothing wrong with teaching for its own reward and indeed it's, in my opinion, essential for the task, but one must also be realistic. That realism boils down to money and thereby, at least in this society, an assured place among the other revered positions in our society.

I was motivated to write this because of a discussion I had with one of my teachers regarding the format of a test. It seems we both agreed that the best type of test for this particular course of study would be of a subjective nature giving each student the chance to express his or her full range of emotions and understanding of the material. However, being that this teacher is like so many others — grossly underpaid and overworked and probably having been met by negative responses to positive and imaginative ideas — this teacher, like so many others, just doesn't give a damn anymore.

I don't plan on becoming a teacher. I'm just another student who is worried by the ever-decreasing level of education. It is my hope that future teachers will be paid commensurate with their importance in the fruitful continuation of the human condition. Of course money isn't the whole answer but it's a start and something we all can understand.

STAR STRUCK

UF STUDENT WINS HOLLYWOOD TRIP

By ELIZABETH WILLSON
Alligator Staff Writer

"You're going to see a Marilyn Monroe — I hear she's a dead ringer from the back," said "The Boomer," a disc jockey for radio station WGGG.

And was she ever — from the front, too.

STRUTTIN' HER stuff, smilin' pretty, a living Marilyn Monroe swaggered onstage during the Oaks 6 Theatres' "Hollywood comes to Oaks Mall" contest Thursday night.

The blond bombshell was 24-year-old Stephanie Kaplan, a UF law student, also known as the "boppin', blond bar-ristris," according to her friend Tom Kurrus.

Kaplan walked away with a trip for two to Hollywood, a year's free passes to the Oaks 6 Theatres and a $25 gift certificate — the grand prizes for the contest.

THE COMPETITION was tough. In her category, best actress, Kaplan competed against celebrities like Diana Ross, Liza Minnelli, Wonder Woman and Annie Hall.

Outstanding contestants in the other three categories —

AND THE WINNER IS . . .

. . . Marilyn Monroe, alias UF law student Stephanie Kaplan

best film, best child star and best actor — were Darth Vader from Star Wars, two Richard Dreyfuss' (one from Jaws and one from The Goodbye Girl, Shirley Temple, Lawrence of Arabia, Jodie Foster, Joel Grey as the master of ceremonies from Cabaret, Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm and a wolfman.

The judges picked a winner in each category and then narrowed them down to a grand-prize winner.

A TIE for the prize heightened the suspense — it was between Marilyn Monroe and the "Jawas" from Star Wars.

"The judges want you to walk in front of the table. I think it has something to do with measurements but I'm not sure," The Boomer boomed.

Amid whoops of laughter and wolf cries, the restless crowd of about 300 anxiously awaited the judges' decision.

MEANWHILE, MARILYN, clad in a low-cut, red velvet dress, high-heeled shoes, long, black gloves and dangling, diamond earrings, swiveled her hips for the audience while the Jawas look-alike squeaked and pointed his ray gun at curious children creeping closer for a peek.

"And the winner is . . . Marilyn Monroe."

Cheers followed and the ecstatic blond barristris was hustled off to a WGGG interview.

"I JUST can't believe I'm going to California," the dazzled Kaplan said.

While Kurrus, Kaplan's law student cohort, said he urged her to enter the contest, he said she has dressed up like Monroe before.

"She dresses up like this sometimes just to jar some stances, hoping John Travolta will be looking on," Kurrus said. "But he doesn't have a chance as long as I'm around."

TAKING THE venture seriously, Kaplan had her costume shipped to Gainesville from New York City for the contest, Kurrus said.

A former New Yorker, Kaplan has appeared in some off-Broadway plays and plans to try for some parts at the Hippodrome Theatre.

"We'll probably take the trip between the middle of August and the first of September," Kurrus said.

You never know, maybe Kaplan will get that "lucky break" on her Hollywood trip and catch the eye of some Hollywood great.

'Accommodations'

Confrontations and comedy

Put three people in a run-down New York City apartment — a would-be actress, the estranged wife of a male chauvinist and a young psychology student. Take away their bathroom. What are you left with?

Accommodations, the Hippodrome's current weekend dinner theater at the Plantation Inn. If you can bear a little noise from the bar nearby, you'll understand why the Hippodrome's forte is comedy.

THE ACCOMMODATIONS include two rooms with a kitchen-located tub doubling as the sink, and a toilet outside and down the hall.

Into this, the Nick Hall script, directed by Greg Hausch, adds aspiring actress Pat (Dawne Weiner), who borrows various "costumes" from Simon, the gay landlord.

She has called an agency to locate two people to share the rent, Nos. 8 and 9 in an unbroken chain of "roomies."

NO. 8 is Lee (Megan Bachus), who decided over breakfast that she was leaving her husband, Bob (Dan Jesse), and their eight-room home in exclusive Westchester.

Although nearly nauseated after inspecting her new home, Lee forges ahead and settles in. At this point she meets Pat, who is decked out in a Shirley Temple outfit complete with an 11-day sucker. Lee begins to wonder if the situation is worth her new-found freedom.

Bob arrives and begins a sarcastic but funny fight with Lee over her "search for herself." It's a typical scene between two people whose marriage is undergoing change, but the comedy inserts allow the audience to laugh at the familiar scene.

IMPLORING LEE to go home with him, Bob carefully maneuvers the conversation into a reminiscence of the early days of their marriage and honeymoon, but to no avail. Lee holds firmly to her new feelings and Bob exits — alone.

Pat and Lee soon meet their other roommate, Tracy (Graham Gilbert), assumed to be female. He is a young psychology student, to Lee's horror and Pat's delight.

A week passes with Bob calling every day and Lee ignoring him. Tracy studies psychology and Pat studies Tracy.

AFTER SEVERAL attempts to put the make on Tracy, Pat drowns her sorrows in Simon's wardrobe. Lee and Tracy get involved in a discussion which leads into Lee's reflective speech on how values and times have changed.

Lee realizes at the end of this that she has identified her reasons for leaving Bob, the biggest being personal survival. She also realizes that she is enjoying Tracy's company and they agree to go out for the evening and do whatever they please, something new for her.

In the meantime, Pat announces she is having a date over for dinner and would appreciate the apartment being empty. Pat's date arrives — none other than Bob — but she is unaware of his identity. Tracy and Lee have already left, so the audience laughs at the anticipated climax to the evening.

The final scene is as good as the rest, producing a confrontation between Lee and Bob and an alliance between Pat and Tracy. All's well that ends well, so it's been said, and if you enjoy happy endings, this play is a must.

Lady Gator tracksters place high at nationals

By PAUL C. SMITH
Alligator Sports Writer

Climaxing a season of frustration and injury, three members of the UF women's track team placed high in their events at the AIAW nationals held in Knoxville, Tenn., during the weekend.

Junior Jackie Gordon hurled the discus 153 feet to recapture the fifth-place title she garnered in 1977. Gordon's throw was eight feet farther than her 1977 AIAW effort and three feet from the Lady Gator record she set earlier this year.

1975 AAU Indoor National Champion Lorraine Ray finished fourth in the long jump at 20-1/2. Ray is a senior academically, but she did not compete in her first year in junior college and will return for the Lady Gators next year.

Sophomore Shonell Ferguson has been bothered by leg injuries all year, but she recovered in time to leap 19-8 1/4 and capture sixth place in the long jump.

"Lorraine and Shonell did real well considering they were just coming off injuries," Lady Gator Head Coach Deanne

Johnson said. "They were both just competing on guts."

JOHNSON SAW her pre-season team of 20 women tracksters continually reduced this season as injuries took their toll and she was left with three healthy athletes.

While Ferguson and Ray took their turns jumping into the pit, Modepe Osishikoya from the University of California at Los Angeles emerged from the back of the pack to jump 21-6 and establish a new American record.

The AIAW season is over, but Johnson will take the same trio to Los Angeles June 10-11 to compete in the AAU nationals at the UCLA track.

Some praise for the Unsung Gators

Anton: golf a happier game at UF

By DAVE GEORGE
Alligator Sports Writer

Terry Anton must agree with the old adage about golf being 75 percent mental. He gave up a scholarship and a full year of playing to come to a school where he could be happy.

Anton played his first two years of collegiate golf at Florida State University but transferred to UF because he "was very unhappy with the golf program at FSU." He had to sit out last season under NCAA regulations regarding transfers.

HOWEVER, PLAYING with the Gators has allowed Anton to accomplish a goal he probably never could have reached at FSU.

"After I left FSU, I had a goal of playing in the NCAAs, and that is going to happen this year," Anton said. "The program is much better here and the team has been highly underrated."

Because Anton's steady play on a team of erratic scorers has also been underrated this year, he is The Alligator's Unsung Gator in men's golf.

ANTON TIED for ninth place individually in the Gator Invitational, shot UF's second best scores in the Chris Schenkel Invitational and the Southern Intercollegiate Championships and made the All-Southeastern Conference second team with a three-day total of 231 in the conference tournament.

Anton will have another chance to prove himself at the NCAAs June 7-10 in Eugene, Ore. He also has another year of eligibility at UF in which he'll try to reach another goal — the college All-America team.

That would make Terry Anton happier still.

Hafeman: the water's fine in UF's pond

By DAVE GEORGE
Alligator Sports Writer

Mary Hafeman decided last year she would rather be a little Gator in a big pond than the best golfer on a losing team.

Hafeman was the No. 1 player at the University of South Florida for two years. But the junior from West Bend, Wis., wasn't satisfied playing for a team that "knew we couldn't win."

SINCE COMING to UF, Hafeman has been in the headlines less, but she's enjoying life more. Her teammates recently showed Hafeman how they feel about her decision by voting her the Lady Gator golfers' Most Valuable Player.

Hafeman can add to her list of accomplishments The Alligator's Unsung Gator award for her consistently solid and frequently overlooked contribution to UF's talented women's golf team.

"Things are really different over here (UF) but I like it much better," Hafeman said. "At South Florida, everybody just tried to be No. 1 because we knew we couldn't win as a team like we can here."

PLAYING AT UF means more tournaments against better competition for Hafeman, and the physical education major has adjusted quickly.

She finished fifth individually at the Houston Baptist Invitational in October and tied Lori Garbacz for UF's second best score at the Betsy Rawls Invitational in March. Her three-day total of 232 was the Lady Gators' lowest score in their most recent tournament — the Southern Intercollegiate Championships.

Portman: winning is a way of life

By RALPH DIAZ
Alligator Sports Writer

The sun rises, the tide turns, and Joyce Portman wins.

Portman, The Alligator's Unsung Gator in women's tennis, is as predictable as a summer storm. Lady Gator fans have come to expect the words "Match, Portman" every time the sophomore netter steps off the Varsity Courts. Portman seldom lets them down.

"AT NO. 3 I know everybody on the team expects me to never lose," Portman said. "I know (UF Head Coach) B.E. (Palmer) counts on me as a sure point. In a way, it puts pressure on you, but it also makes you feel pretty good because you know everybody thinks that highly of you."

And why shouldn't they? In two seasons the Surfside native has captured a 1977 state singles championship, a second-place finish in this season's state tournament and the past two Southeastern Regional titles.

Not to mention her 1978 record of 13-2 in dual matches, 38-8 in tournament play and 12-3 in doubles competition.

YET EVEN with all these accomplishments, Portman was able to advance no higher than the No. 3 spot on the six-woman UF contingent. While teammates Julie Pressly and Sherry and Judy Acker grabbed the headlines this season, Portman stayed in the shadows quietly knocking off opponents.

The set-up suited Portman just fine.

"I'm not worried about not being in the limelight," Portman said. "I just want to play where it's best for the team. My point at No. 3 is just as good as the point at No. 1 or the point at No. 6."

"She has become progressively more and more of a team player," Palmer said. "She's been very willing to deny herself for the sake of the team."

JOYCE PORTMAN

... expected to win

Picozzi: the trend-setter

By RALPH DIAZ
Alligator Sports Writer

Atlas' job was tiddlywinks compared with the chore of UF wrestler Mike Picozzi.

Granted, supporting the heavens on his shoulders probably wasn't easy, but Atlas could hardly envy Picozzi for the task the 118-pound wrestler faces every time he steps on the wrestling mat.

... the first man out

PICOZZI, The Alligator's Unsung Gator in wrestling, carries the fate of his teammates on his shoulders. Because his is always the opening match, the sophomore from Huntington, N.Y., is UF's trend-setter. His match determines the ferocity of the next nine.

"I feel a lot of pressure because I'm the first guy out there," Picozzi said. "I try and get the team ready for matches by talking to the guys. I feel when I lose that I've let down the team. And I think when I wrestle well, it inspires the team."

UF Head Wrestling Coach Gary Schneider concurred.

"I THINK whoever follows Mike in the match goes out there with an edge after Mike gets out there. He really has the ability to mix it up and really get the guys up for their matches," Schneider said.

Two knee injuries this season limited Picozzi to only eight dual matches and a few tournaments. However, the aggressive wrestler managed to post a 6-2 dual record, an 8-1 tournament mark and six pins.

Picozzi entered the Southeastern Conference championships with a bad knee, yet managed to finish second for the second straight year. And he placed eighth in national competition, earning honorable mention All-America.

UF's Brown eliminated

Chap Brown, UF's lone survivor from the Southeastern Conference tennis championships, was eliminated in the second round of the NCAA Individual Tennis Championships in Athens, Ga., Friday.

Brown won his first match against Jeff

Lubner of Southern Illinois University, 6-4, 6-2, but in the second round of the 64-man tourney Brown faced No. 3 seed Eddie Edwards from Pepperdine University. Edwards won the hard-fought match, 7-6, 6-3, with only one service break during the game.

The new HP-29C could be the last calculator you ever need. Because it has the programming power of calculators costing much more — and it has Continuous Memory.

Saves your programs and data.

Switch the calculator off, then on and your problems are still there, ready to solve your programs day after day. The HP-29C's Continuous Memory retains the data stored in 16 of its 30 addressable registers and in the display register.

Write programs of 175 keystrokes.

Each function — one, two, three, or four keystrokes — requires only one step of program memory. And with 98 steps of continuous program memory, that means you can easily write programs of 175 keystrokes or longer.

Powerful programming features.

The HP-29C gives you conditional branching, three levels of subroutines, indirect addressing, relative addressing, labels, increment/decrement conditionals, pause, indirect storage register arithmetic, and more.

Easy editing.

Review your program quickly and easily and insert or delete operations as necessary. You can even run your program one step at a time and check intermediate answers.

Sooner or later, chances are you're going to buy a Hewlett-Packard calculator. And the sooner, the better.

Come in and see the new HP-29C Advanced Programmable with Continuous Memory today.
