Who should hire next police chief?

The two newest members of the Perry City Council are making their voices heard, with their latest input calling into question how the police chief is hired and casting doubt on the efficiency of some city workers.

Councilwomen Shirlie Hampton and Ventia Woodfaulk both took their seats last fall and have dived in to share concerns they have received from voters in their respective districts.

At a recent city council meeting, Hampton offered her input on how the city hires its chief of police.

"I am just bringing forward concerns from my district and they do not think it should be left to Bob Brown to do the hiring. I think the council should also have input," Hampton said.

During subsequent discussions, Councilman Don Cook expressed his strong opposition to making any changes to how the city's hiring structure is designed.

"Citizens voted twice for the city charter, which outlines this form of government--where we (as the city council) have an executive manager who works at the pleasure of the council," Cook said.

"The only way to change that would be a referendum (regarding a change to the city charter) and I think that would be a step backward. That's the way the city was a new VISION for downtown

Residents were given a sneak peak Tuesday of what downtown could look like if the city moves forward with the plan to build hardtop canopies throughout the main downtown business district corridors.

Designers presented preliminary drawings of their recommendations during two public hearings held at City Hall.

Perry City Council members were able to give their input during the second hearing, which occurred during their regular meeting.

The designs concentrated on a one-block area spanning Main Street to Green. The proposal calls for two-story, balconied awnings wrapping around the block's north and south anchors—in this case the old Dansby building and the former Perry Office Supply.

"That appears to be the pattern throughout downtown—all of the blocks have a two-story building at each end much like bookends," Mark Tarmey with 4M Design Group said.

"By considering a second floor or a 2-story canopy at some, if not all of the corners, we are able to create a much more dynamic streetscape," he said.

"This idea proposes that we will develop 4-5 basic canopy options that can be assembled in several 'patterns' appropriate to the revitalization effort—they would not all look just alike, but would be

Delays plague road project

Just when construction work will begin on Providence Road, a 3,800-foot roadway north of Perry which will connect U.S. 19 and the site of AMTEC Less-Lethal Systems, Inc. (ALS), is up in the air as the county continues working through the permitting process as well as awaiting the results of what is now a contested bid process.

The road project is being funded through a $1.4 million Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT) Economic Development Transportation Fund Grant with no local match.

Four firms bid on the project and the bids were opened during the Taylor County Commission's meeting held Tuesday, March 19. According to County Engineer Kenneth Dudley, the county included incentives in the bid package if firms could complete the work in a shorter length of time.

The four bids were: Sandco, Inc., $892,400 in 45 days; Anderson Columbia Co., $914,000 in 90 days; Old Castle Southern Group, Inc., $1,362,516.06 in 90 days; and Curt's Construction, Inc., $1,346,844.34 in 90 days.

Dudley asked that the bid committee be given time to examine the bids and have the commission make an award that evening to help speed up the project. The board agreed and took a

Construction begins on coastal park

Construction has begun on parking facilities at Keaton Beach Coastal Park to alleviate congestion at the adjacent public boat ramp.

The county received three state grants to assist with the construction through the Florida Boating Improvement Program (FBIP).

"FBIP provided funding assistance in 2010-11 for the design and engineering of the parking facilities at the site and awarded the county a second grant in 2011-12 in the amount of $100,000 for the actual construction," Grants Coordinator Melody Cox said.

In late 2012, the county received an additional $175,000 for the project, which was coupled with a $75,000 local match. The county did not receive the additional funding, however, until Jan. 31.

Facing a grant deadline of July 30, the Taylor County

Remember when...

Class Reunion, take 3

By ANTHONY L. WHITE
anthonylamarwhite@yahoo.com

And the reunion continues.

In early 2012, when Shelly, Sandy, Geri and Jackie first contacted me about our 30-year class reunion, I joined the planning committee and offered several ideas for the reunion. From the very start, Shelly's main concern was a reunion cruise, and it didn't take much effort on her part to convince the rest of us that we wanted to go on a reunion cruise.

Over the next several months, other classmates chimed in.

"I won't be able to make the cruise," one said. "Why aren't we having a reunion event in Perry?"

"I'll be home Thanksgiving," another said. "But, my funds are low, so I won't be able to make the cruise."

"Please have something in Perry," Sharon Moore lamented. "I want to come home to a reunion."

After 30 or so similar messages, the planning committee convened for a special session.

"I'm all about the cruise," Shelly was quick to announce. "We can have a local reunion, but Anthony, it's going to be your baby."

Jackie seconded Shelly's motion. Then Sandy and Geri, gave the motion a thumbs up. And just like that, the local reunion was my baby. However, since everyone on the planning committee was familiar with my "parenting skills," they all volunteered to assist me and in some cases, take over.

Thanks to those wonderful ladies, "MY" baby was a major success.

I felt bad a month later, when I couldn't return the favor and unintentionally let them down. A few days before the cruise, I became ill. This illness prevented me from going on "THEIR" reunion cruise, which didn't win me any Brownie points.

"You're not going where?" Jackie asked. Then before I could answer, she answered for me. "I know you didn't say you weren't going on the reunion cruise."

No, I didn't say it. But, I was about to before she stopped me.

"I better not get down to the port and you're not there," my cousin Fram called and said the night before we were to leave for the cruise. "You hear me, Antmar?"

Yes, I heard her. Loud and clear. But, I was much too afraid to tell the truth. "I'll be there," I said then asked God for forgiveness under my breath.

Thankfully, they, like God, forgave me.

Now, six months after the Class of 1982's 30-year reunion, and five months after the reunion cruise to the Bahamas, the Class of 82 is at it again.

The class has planned a spring break social in Jacksonville the weekend of April 12-14. This time, my class members gave me the simple duty of just showing up.

Still, every other day, since the social's planning committee began organizing the event, I've received a barrage of reminders from various classmates.

"Are you coming, Anthony?" one classmate seems to ask at least three times a week.

Elaine, one of the planners, texts, emails, or calls nearly every day to remind me about the event.

And then there's Tracy.

"Antmar, you're going to Jacksonville," Tracy stopped by the house and said the other day.

"I'm going," I responded.

"You better because everybody wants you to be there," she continued. "It won't be the same without you."

I turned my back so Tracy couldn't see the smile pasted on my face as I whispered, "They like me. They really like me."

And, because they really like me, here I come Jacksonville.

complimentary of the period design."

The designs also include intersection "bumpouts," extending the sidewalks and narrowing the crosswalks.

"However, the drive lane would be the same width."

The free-standing canopies would extend to the curb and have lighting as well as business signage.

"They would be self-supporting and basically abut the buildings. There would be a flash cap installed to keep water from going into the gap," Tarmey said.

The plan also includes free-standing canopies covering the sidewalks leading to Rosehead Park. The city would be responsible for the cost of installing and maintaining all of the canopies. Building owners would pay for upgrades that would allow them to use the second-story balconies. The design proposal can be found on the City of Perry's website (www.cityofperry.net).

administered pre-1982 and there were problems. The city was not well managed at that time at all. It was broke and the governor was this-close to coming in and taking over," he noted.

Councilwoman Shirlie Hampton indicated she would support a charter change dictating how the city's chief of police is hired.

Cook added, "The only other way to take it to a referendum would be to get three of five votes (of the city council) and I'll tell you now you'd have to get four votes because I am going to oppose."

"I would be a yay," Councilwoman Hampton.

"I am comfortable with the charter (as it is)," Councilman Mike Deming said.

"It was chaos," Mayor Daryll Gunter said to describe the city's state prior to the charter changes.

"You'd have five people (i.e. council members) telling the city manager who to hire," he said.

Local resident Wayne Dunwoody contributed to the discussions, stating "a police chief who is hired by one city manager is not worried about serving the entire community, but one person—the man who hired him. This should not be left on one person's hand. The hiring should be done in conjunction with the entire board. It is a lot of power for one person to hire the police chief."

Dunwoody said he had been approached by many in the community concerned over this issue, "and I didn't know how to answer them."

"Now you do—it is outlined in the charter how to make any changes by taking it to a vote," Cook said to Dunwoody, who was given a copy of the charter by Councilman Deming.

"I will say that if a movement is made to change the charter, I would be the first person to form a committee opposing it," Cook said.

The issue has not been brought before the council in its most recent meetings.

On Tuesday, during council discussions regarding a proposed ordinance relating to abandoned shopping carts on roadsides throughout the city, Councilwoman Woodfaulk asked if city workers could retrieve the buggies and the city then charge stores collecting the carts.

Wayne Dunwoody, right, asked the city about its hiring practices, specifically relating to the head of the Perry Police Department.

"Where would we get the man hours to do that?" City Finance Director Penny Staffney asked.

"Get the ones (city workers) riding around not doing anything. They could do it," Woodfaulk said.

"Riding around doing nothing?" Staffney repeated.

"I'm not saying names, but we do have some out riding around burning up gas all day," Woodfaulk said.

No one commented on Woodfaulk's assessment, but Councilman Cook asked members to compile a list of "showstoppers either you want in or not in there and bring it to (City Manager) Bob (Brown) so he can draft a shopping cart ordinance we would all be okay with."

Commission agreed last week to execute a contract with R&E Site Development, Inc., which was the lowest responding bidder in December 2012 and had agreed to honor its bid.

County Attorney Kenneth Dudley said the firm had problems acquiring performance and payment bonds for the project. He instead outlined a series of proposals negotiated between staff and R&E he said would protect the county in lieu of the bonds.

"In light of the FBIP grant time constraints, current economic difficulties obtaining bonding and R&E's extended willingness to hold pricing for this project, staff believes this proposal is an acceptable compromise under these circumstances," Dudley said.

The board approved the recommendations along with the contract.

The county acquired the 44-acre park site in 2008 through a $3 million Florida Communities Trust Program grant.

Egg-tremely educational project underway at B&G Club

By ABBEY L.THARPE
4-H Extension Agent

If you have visited the Boys and Girls Club Jerkins Center recently, you discovered more than just students studying after school—you also encountered more than 50 fertilized eggs in incubators. All youth at the Boy's and Girl's Club are studying about embryology with the help of 4-H.

Through the 4-H Embryology project, students hatched chicks and witnessed the exciting and wonderful miracle of life. Students also took on responsibilities of caring for the fertilized eggs during the 21-day incubation period and the baby chicks after they hatched.

They began the 21-day journey by getting their incubators ready to house the fertilized eggs. Temperature and humidity are two important variables the students have to monitor throughout the process in order to have a successful hatch.

Each day students, keep records while carefully monitoring the eggs. At the end of the 21-day cycle, the hope was to have the eggs hatch. Students then cared for the chicks.

The 4-H Embryology project teaches students about science and respect for life. Children have a natural sense of curiosity about living things in the world around them. Building on this curiosity, students can develop an understanding of biology through direct experience with living things, their life cycles and their habitats.

Many educators believe students learn best through experiences and interactions with the world. They learn by listening, observing, experimenting and applying their knowledge to real-world situations. Through the 4-H Embryology project students develop life skills that help them learn to plan and organize, keep records and teamwork.

So if you have visited the Boy's and Girl's club lately and hear a chirp, you know where it is coming from.

Keaton Beach Fishing Report

Trout fishing should warm with weather

BY PAT MCGRIFF
onemorecast@gtcom.net

Trout were biting great before this week's cold front came down. Only a few folks have been out this week and fewer still have caught anything in the colder water.

This weekend promises to warm up, and so should the trout.

I had Darla and Jeff Dillard of Lake Park, Ga., out last Thursday and we caught 14 trout despite the 39-degree morning. We had 57-degree water early and the trout wouldn't bite for four hours.

Then when the water warmed up to 61 degrees we caught some nice trout. We caught most on live shrimp under Back Bays however, I had three nice trout on Assassin's Sand Trout color 5-inch shads rigged under a Cajun Thunder.

John Rodgers of Dunnellon had two friends on board with him Thursday, Friday and Saturday and had their limits each day while throwing MirrOlips and Cordell Redfins in 1-3 feet of water.

Craig Bozeman and Gus Powell fished with Pat Thornhill, all from Griffin, Ga., last Thursday to put a limit of trout in the boat with "those Jerkbaits" from 1-3 feet of water.

Here are a couple of reports from Keaton Beach Marina:

David, Allen, Phillip and Branton Bailey with Earl Lockhart, all of Calhoun, Ga., had 12, 22 and 30 trout, respectively, over three days last weekend using Gulp and grubs bounced on the bottom in 4-5 feet of water.

Robert Setters and Greg Wood with Travis Arrington, all of Tifton, Ga., had their limit of trout with two over 24 inches long last Thursday, then had another limit last Friday while fishing with Gulp bounced on a jig in 3 feet of water.

TCHS soccer players make All-Big Bend

A large group of Taylor County High soccer players made the Tallahassee Democrat's All-Big Bend team, it was announced Sunday.

The group was led by Chris Davis, who made the first team and Jonathan Thomas, who was picked on the second team.

Making honorable mention were Justin Folsom, Davis Helm, Luke Kallschmidt, Gavin Lewis, Ethan Allbritton and Daniel Wentworth.

Making honorable mention for the girls squad were Jessi Gregory and Hannah Blanco.

Former Taylor County High player Joe Pelt, who now plays at Chiles High, made first team.

State grouper season opens Monday

State waters off the coast of Franklin, Wakulla, Jefferson and Taylor counties will open to recreational harvest of gag grouper starting April 1.

This regional season will remain open through June 30, with the first day of the closure being July 1. The season also includes all waters of Apalachicola Bay and Indian Pass, including those in Gulf County, and all waters of the Steinhatchee River, including those in Dixie County.

Gag grouper caught in state waters (from shore to nine nautical miles out) off the four counties may not be taken ashore in areas that are closed to harvest. For example, a gag grouper caught April 1 in state waters off Jefferson County cannot be taken ashore in Dixie County, excluding the Steinhatchee River.

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) set this regional season at its February commission meeting to provide fishing opportunities for private recreational anglers when gag grouper are closer to shore and can be safely accessed by smaller boats, officials said. The overall fishing effort for gag grouper is low in these counties, because it is the least densely populated region of Florida's Gulf Coast. The FWC also established this spring season to balance the economic and social needs of the region with the conservation needs of gag grouper.

In the remainder of Gulf of Mexico state waters, fishermen will be able to keep gag grouper from July 1 through Dec. 3. State waters off Franklin, Wakulla, Jefferson and Taylor counties will not be open during the July-through-December season. The season in federal waters of the Gulf of Mexico also opens July 1 and will close when the annual catch target is projected to be met, which is expected to be sometime between Nov. 11 and Dec. 3.

Gag grouper caught in state waters outside of the four-county region and in federal waters may be taken ashore in Franklin, Wakulla, Jefferson and Taylor counties during the federal season or the July-through-December state season. However, boats with gag grouper aboard may not stop in state waters off the four-county region and must have gear stowed while traveling through it to shore. Monroe County state waters are included in the Atlantic seasons and regulations for gag grouper and will not be open during the July through December season.

The FWC is working with Florida's anglers to rebuild gag grouper populations in the Gulf of Mexico so they reach strong, sustainable levels.

The gag grouper recreational harvest minimum size and bag limits are 22 inches total length and two gag grouper per person. No more than four of any species of grouper may be kept.

To learn more, visit MyFWC.com/Fishing and click on "Saltwater," "Recreational Regulations" and "Gulf Grouper."

The training is free to all participants. Crone will be able to administer tests for those who are interested in becoming a nationally certified umpire.

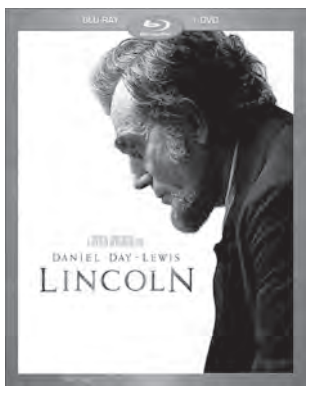
Fight to end slavery brought to compelling life in 'Lincoln'

In no other time during the United States' 237-year history has it been more divided than it was when its citizens took up arms against each other in the Civil War.

The wounds of that war can still be felt today and while people still argue about its causes and reasons, there is no arguing the fact that the Civil War finally killed the stain that was slavery.

Although many point to President Abraham Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation as the end of the slavery in this country, it was in fact the 13th amendment to the U.S. Constitution that truly ended it once and for all.

Although much as has been said and written about Lincoln and the Civil War in the past 150 years, the actual events leading up to the passage of the 13th amendment are not nearly as well known as the various battles and generals involved with the war itself.



Until now. Celebrated director Steven Spielberg ("Schindler's List," "Saving Private Ryan") has brought us "Lincoln," a compelling political drama focused on the president's behind-the-scenes efforts to ensure the amendment's passage as well as a passionate look at the man behind the historical figure left to us in the pages of history books. Spielberg's film, which is sure to be remembered as a classic, is now available on DVD and Blu-ray.

Featuring an Academy Award winning performance by Daniel Day-Lewis ("There Will Be Blood," "The Last of the Mohicans") along with one of the best top-to-bottom casts of the 2012, "Lincoln" makes what upon first glance is a terribly boring subject--congressional lobbying and dealing--into a tense and very fulfilling story.

The majority of the film is set within January 1865. Lincoln was re-elected the previous November and with him a large number of his fellow Republicans, set to take office the next month. Facing the prospect that the war might finally be over by that time, Lincoln sets his sights on getting the 13th amendment through the House of Representatives immediately. He knows that the prospect of its passage after hostilities conclude is almost non-existent, but even with every Republican voting in favor of the amendment--not a guaranteed proposition--he will still need the votes of some 20 of the 40 or so lame-duck Democrats who no longer have to worry about re-election.

Border-state Republicans want the war to end and fear that passing the amendment will prolong the hostilities. Many Democrats support slavery and don't want it passed on principle. To secure the Republican votes, Lincoln needs to pacify Francis Preston Blair (Hal Holbrook, "All the President's Men"), who wants the president to negotiate a peace. For the Democrat votes, however, Lincoln will need to do something a little more underhanded, namely enlist the help of lobbyist W.N. Bilbo (James Spader, "The Office") to offer patronage positions to those outgoing congressmen who will soon need jobs.

Even with Lincoln pulling almost every string he can, however, passage is not guaranteed and it is not until every vote is tallied that he will know if his work has paid off.

There are so many wonderful actors in this film that it's almost impossible to list them all, but notable performances include Sally Field ("Brothers & Sisters") as Mary Todd Lincoln, David Strathairn ("The Bourne Ultimatum") as Secretary of State William H. Seward, Tommy Lee Jones ("Men in Black") as Radical Republican Congressional leader Thaddeus Stevens, Joseph Gordon-Levitt ("The Dark Knight Rises") as Robert Todd Lincoln and Lee Pace ("Pushing Daisies") as Democratic Congressman Fernando Wood.

One of the most interesting aspects of "Lincoln" is how it, for one of the first times in film, truly humanizes him, depicting him as a man rather than a president. He is rather awkward in some settings and often rambles on telling jokes or stories during cabinet meetings. But he is also a man of iron will, who sets out to end slavery, risking almost everything--including extending the war to the cost of untold more lives--to get the amendment passed. Day-Lewis' performance here is one of the most complete and wonderful exhibitions of acting prowess since his work in "There Will Be Blood," which also earned him an Academy Award.

Spielberg's "Lincoln" may not be the movie people might expect, but it is just as compelling and tension-filled as any war drama. Credit goes to screenwriter Tony Kushner ("Angels in America," "Munich") for developing the tale and dialogue, and to Spielberg and the cast for bringing it to life.

The film is rated PG-13 for an intense scene of war violence, some images of carnage and brief strong language.

"Lincoln" debuted Tuesday on a four-disc Blu-ray combo pack "super set," a two-disc Blu-ray combo pack and a single-disc DVD. The four-disc set comes with a bonus disc with six featurettes, including "The Journey to Lincoln," "In The Company of Character," "Crafting the Past," "Living wth Lincoln" and "In Lincoln's Footsteps."

Shakespeare in the Roaring '20s: 'Much Ado About Nothing'

With the presentation of William Shakespeare's comedic classic "Much Ado About Nothing," which opens tonight (Friday), the School of Theatre at Florida State University and director Walter Kmiec embrace the spirit of experimentation and set the production in Southern Florida during the glamorous 1920s.

The show will run from March 29 to April 7 in the Lab Theatre in Tallahassee.

Typically set on the island of Sicily, Kmiec's unique spin on "Much Ado" sets itself up in a lush Southern Florida estate for the glamorous vision of the rough approximation of the 1920s--paparazzi, fame, stardom and allure.

"Looking at the 20s and the press, it's really the beginning of our celebrity culture," Kmiec explained.

"For the first time you had people all across the country looking at and hearing the same person--movie stars, radio stars and musicians; with the birth of this celebrity culture, you also get the beginning of this sensationalized drama."

With that dramatization, the importance of reputation and social rank is imminent; thus, the 1920s status-obsessive culture inspired Kmiec's vision for this particular production.

"To me that is the world of 'Much Ado,' everyone in the play is so concerned with how they look in relation to everyone else," Kmiec said. "Everyone is the best version of themselves until it all comes crashing down on them."

The plot of Much Ado centers around two sets of lovers. Benedick (Chris Martin) and Beatrice (Denee Lortz) are tricked into confessing their love for each other; all the while Claudio (Casey Leach) is tricked into rejecting Hero (Sarah Jo Provost) at the altar.

Showtimes are March 29-30 and April 3-6 at 8 p.m. with 2 p.m. matinees on March 31 and April 7.

Tickets are $20 for adults, $18 for seniors (62+) and $10 for students. Tickets are available online at tickets.fsu.edu or by calling (850) 644-6500.

Joining the Claveries on stage are Cheryl Abercrombie, Judie Baldwin, Ted Ensminger, Molly McCormack, Alberto Rosalio and Jessica Webb. Directing the comedy is Justin Webb, who is assisted backstage by Denise Bell, David Calhoun and Sara Taylor.

"Drinking Habits" will play at the Rural Area Theater on April 4-7 and April 12-13. Show times are 7:30 nightly and 3 p.m. for the Sunday matinee.

Tickets are $15 and can be reserved by calling 850-673-9585 or online at www.rattpact.com. Seating is limited, so reservations are recommended.

We've reached the end of March, but before we say goodbye to the month, there are three final movies opening in wide release this weekend.

Up first is "G.I. Joe: Retribution," building off of 2009's "Rise of Cobra." Jettisoning almost the entire original cast with the exception of Duke (Channing Tatum) and Snake Eyes, the new story picks up when the U.S. president (having been replaced by Cobra) orders the destruction of the Joes and then holds the rest of the world hostage. Joining Duke to help save the day and get some payback for their fallen comrades are Roadblock (Dwayne Johnson, "Snitch") and Joe himself (Bruce Willis, "A Good Day to Die Hard"). I'd just about written this one off early, but I have to admit the trailers look pretty good.

The movie is rated PG-13 for intense sequences of combat violence and martial arts action throughout, and for brief sensuality and language.

"The Host" is based on "Twlight" author Stephanie Meyer's other book, about a young girl whose body is taken over by an alien being, one of countless invaders who have taken over our planet. Although director Andrew Niccol--who also wrote the screenplay--missed badly with his last effort "In Time," he still has credibility with me for directing "Gattaca" and writing "Lord of War." That combined with Saoirse Ronan ("Hanna") in the lead makes this a much more interesting proposal for me. Throw in Meyer's built-in fanbase and this could be the month's next big hit.

The film is rated PG-13 for some sensuality and violence.

Finally we have "Tyler Perry's Temptation," about a married woman's temptation by a suave billionaire. The movie, which was written and directed Perry (who doesn't appear onscreen) stars Jurnee Smollett-Bell ("Friday Night Lights) along with Lance Gross ("House of Payne"), Vanessa Williams ("Desparate Housewives") and Kim Kardashian. Perry tends to jump back and forth between the comedies (in which he stars) and the drama (in which he doesn't), and this is just the first of several films he has set for release in 2013.

The movie is rated PG-13 for some violence, sexuality and drug content.

DMH EMS readies its new ambulance for Steinhatchee

Doctors' Memorial Hospital (DMH) Emergency Medical Services (EMS) is poised to launch its newest ambulance, which will be stationed in Steinhatchee to replace the existing unit there.

The new ambulance is an advanced life support unit to replace the existing 2000 vehicle.

DMH applied for and received a state grant last year to fund the purchase of the new ambulance, which follows two other units purchased by the hospital (through grants) and put into service in February 2012.

In October, the Taylor County Commission agreed to increase its EMS subsidy to the hospital by $12,500 per month for 12 months to help cover the operation costs of the Steinhatchee ambulance, which went into service in July 2011. A caveat to that agreement, however, was for DMH to move forward with the grant and purchase the new ambulance.

The unit being replaced in Steinhatchee is a 2000 model.

According to County Administrator Jack Brown, county and DMH officials are currently negotiating a new contract for DMH to run county EMS services. The previous contract expired in October.

Protest filed over bid

ROAD PROJECT

20-minute recess to give the committee time to review the bid packages.

Upon returning, Dudley said they had examined the two lost bidders--Sandco and Anderson Columbia. He stated that Sandco, the lowest bidder in both money and time, did not include proof of insurance in its package, which was required in the county's bid specifications. Anderson Columbia's package was complete.

Under county policy, the commission can waive "minor defects" in bids if it is deemed in the best interest of the county.

When asked for an opinion, however, County Attorney Conrad Bishop said, "I don't think this is a minor defect," but then added that it was a "close call."

Several commissioners asked whether the board could allow Sandco a chance to provide the documents. A Sandco representative in the audience said his company had the required insurance and could provide proof in the morning.

"If you give them the opportunity to provide [the documents], you'll probably get a letter from an attorney from the next bidder," Bishop said.

With the price of the two bids relatively similar --a difference of $21,600-- the main discussion point became the 45 days between the two companies' timelines.

ALS Vice President Matt Eckel, upon being asked his opinion by commissioners, said that his company's main priority was time.

"Our business plan is hinged on the road being paved," he said.

The commission agreed to accept the FDOT grant to construct the roadway in May 2012 contingent on ALS, then known as Project Phoenix, closing on its site, located on U.S. 19 across from Wayside Park.

ALS announced in August that it was relocating its headquarters and manufacturing operations from Bull Shoals, Ark., to Taylor County. The project is expected to create 100 new jobs over five years.

In October, the commission voted unanimously to execute the grant agreement with FDOT.

"I pride myself on keeping us out of litigation," Bishop said. "You very well may end up in a lawsuit [if you accept the bid]."

"I understand how time is of the essence," Commission Chairperson Pam Feagle said. "As one commissioner, I'm listening to our attorney. This county cannot afford a lawsuit."

Several commissioners also questioned the feasibility of completing the project in 45 days, which prompted the Sandco representative to state, "We bid 45 days in good faith. We feel we can do the project in 45 days."

Sandco is already at the location working on ALS's facility.

"I know anyone can make a mistake," said Commissioner Jody DeVane, who then made a motion to accept the Sandco bid. The motion died for a lack of a second.

Commissioner Jim Moody then made a motion to accept the Anderson Columbia bid. Commissioner Pat Patterson seconded and the measure passed 4-0. Commissioner Malcolm Page announced he was abstaining from the vote and the discussion because his son works for Old Castle.

County Administrator Jack Brown said Tuesday that Sandco has issued a bid protest, which will go to an administrative judge for review.

Meanwhile, county officials are continuing to work with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on permitting issues with the project.

Haiti Project

After such a long wait, we were glad to know that the truck was coming to get our boxes. The Rev. Ellis McKenzie from New Creation Baptist Church called and stated he was on the way.

This will be the completion of Phase II of our Haiti Project sponsored by New Brooklyn Missionary Baptist Church (including the Relief and Resource Ministry and the Men's Ministry) as well as all the churches and the entire community of Perry.

The truck came, loaded up and it's gone. Now we will begin Phase III.

"We sincerely thank everybody for your patience, donations and support. We could not have done this without you."

—Walter Bishop, Sarah Hall, Juanita Calloway, Eddie Mae Jackson and all our volunteers and coordinators.
