NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Subscribers to The Sun who are in arrears are urgently requested to make settlement without further delay.

Under the postal regulations we are prohibited from extending credit to subscribers for more than one year, and those who have not paid up to August, 1908, will be dropped from the list of subscribers during the next two weeks. The privilege of mailing the paper to subscribers who are in arrears for over a year is denied by the postal laws, and we have been notified to comply with this provision at once. If you fail to receive The Sun after the middle of July you will therefore know the reason therefor.

Do not wait to come to town to pay your subscription, but send the amount by mail at once. DO IT NOW.

The Gainesville Sun says it is now going into twice as many homes in Alachua county as it was nine months ago; and names are being added to the subscription list at the rate of from twenty-five to fifty each week. The Sun is an interesting paper, ably conducted, and an excellent exponent of Gainesville life. Therefore we are glad to learn of its well-deserved prosperity.—Times-Union Short Talks. Thanks, Brother Edgar, for your appreciated bouquet. And permit The Sun to say that your department of Florida's greatest daily is the most interesting to us of that thoroughly up-to-date newspaper.

In a letter to The St. Augustine Record, Mr. John O'Connor, of the Oriental Hotel, Manhattan Beach, N. Y., manager of the Florida House in that city during the winter, writes the following interesting paragraph: "About three weeks ago, while down in the market, I noticed some new corn on the cob. I asked where it came from and they told me Gainesville, Fla. This is the first new corn from Florida that I have ever seen in a Northern market. It was a very fine article indeed, and was listed on the swell restaurant bills of fare in town as 'Florida corn on the cob,' and brought, during the first week, $1.25 a portion (two ears). I thought this pretty fair for Florida."

Wonder if our readers will recognize to whom The Inverness Chronicle refers in the following: "The State of Florida has witnessed the spectacle of a former Governor getting down to the level of Pat Murphy and other notorious Jacksonville lobbyists and be it said to the discredit of the members of the late lamented Legislature he evidently had them on the hip, figuratively speaking. That former Governor has lost his dignity, if he ever had any. He wants to be U. S. Senator. His influence was great in the Legislature, but he will not have that body alone to handle in his future political work. Naturally the people detest a professional lobbyist, and their votes next year will prove this. He dropped his candidacy in the last campaign and will not pick it up in the next." —DeLand News.

PINEAPPLE AND PRINCIPLE.

When the Payne Committee was hearing what it was pleased to call evidence, in framing the tariff bill for the Lower House, it was necessary in these columns to call attention to the demands of the Florida fruit growers as an example of what protection run crazy could do. It is true they are not more unconscionable than their fellows in California, but in securing an increase of 128 per cent on the Payne bill's import duty on pineapples they make something like a record for sheer greed.

It was admitted by the Florida fruit growers themselves that the pineapple in their State was "a bit out of its native element." In other words, the only possible varieties were liable to be nipped out entirely by frost. In no case could they hope for a quality anywhere equal to the imported article, now well within reach of the humblest purse. Nevertheless, the fruit growers wanted to try experiments, and preferred to do so with other people's money. It need hardly be said that the Democratic Senators, committed to tariff for revenue only, affixed their approval to a duty which made even Mr. Aldrich's strong stomach turn a little. The Talaferro amendment raising the Payne duty 128 per cent was carried against Senator Aldrich's vote. Nine Democrats voted for the increase and fourteen could not muster up courage enough to protest against this idiocy; while only eight of the party of Thomas Jefferson and low tariff took the side of common decency.

If there were the least prospect of building up a business in home-grown pineapple something might be said even for this high protection. One frost, however, puts the grower back where he began, and until we can entirely alter the meteorological conditions of the United States the consumer of pineapple will be paying for an experiment foredoomed to failure.—Wall Street Journal.

Our usually correct and conservative contemporary is mistaken. Growers of pineapples in this State may have admitted that the fruit was "a bit out of its native element," but there is no doubt about its having become "acculturated," and in those sections where the pineapple is cultivated for profit there is little probability of it being nipped out by the frost. The quality is also equal in every respect, if not superior, to that of the imported article, and the industry has passed the experimental stage until it is now one of the greatest industries in the State.

In the opinion of The Journal it is "idiocy" to protect an industry of the nature of the cultivation of the pineapple in Florida, but it is entirely proper to "protect" every industry in the North from competition with foreign countries.

If The Journal really thinks the cultivation of the pineapple in Florida is only an experiment foredoomed to failure until we can alter the meteorological conditions of the United States, a representative of that paper ought to visit the pinnacles on the East Coast. If "seeing is believing" it would then be convinced to the contrary.

Probably the East Coast contemporaries will give our Wall Street journalistic friend some information which will open his eyes to the justice of protecting this "infant industry" from the pauper labor of the West Indies.

WHY SUCH MISREPRESENTATION?

It is the opinion of Senator McCreary, editor of The Gainesville Sun, that if the new primary law "does not result in the abolition of the primary system of nominating officers, then nothing else is calculated to do so. The new law will have to be seen to be 'appreciated' by the voters."

He thinks its provisions are too drastic.—Times-Union Short Talks.

Senator McCreary is one of the "conservative" Senators who have always been opposed to the primary, which gives to the people the right to select their own candidates, and takes this right away from the corporations who have always controlled conventions. Senator McCreary can perhaps tell an anxious public whether or not the "drastic provisions" of the primary law were inserted with the idea of making the primary so objectionable that it would be an easy thing to halter the voters and lead them back to the convention trough.

Editor Codrington's statement that the editor of The Sun has "always been opposed to the primary," is a malicious misrepresentation of the record of the editor of this paper both as editor and member of the Legislature. The Sun has always advocated the primary system of making nominations and the editor of this paper introduced and succeeded in passing through the Legislature the first bill that was ever placed upon the statute books legalizing primary elections in this State.

We are today as strongly in favor of the primary as we ever were, but we did not vote for the law enacted by the last Legislature, and we are of the opinion that one election held under its provisions will thoroughly disgust the people. If it works satisfactorily we will acknowledge our mistake, but we do not believe the Democratic voters will stand for it for more than one election.

LEARNING BY EXPERIENCE.

The glamour of the footlights leads many people who think they have悲剧ic talent to yearn for stage life. In a few instances the ambition is justified, but in the great majority it is not. People whose heads get turned with a little success and a good deal of applause in amateur theatricals soon learn that the requirements and exactions of professional life are vastly different from what they expected, and fortunate are they who are disillusioned without the loss of money or character.

That sometimes it is not the case is evident from the recent experience of a lady of means who believed she had the qualities necessary to make a good actress and who was imposed upon by a fake theatrical manager.

He represented that he would form a company in which she would be the leading lady. She gave liberally to further the project, and now she is thousands of dollars out of pocket, the manager has decamped, and her ardor for the stage is quenched. The experience was dear but probably effective, and it may serve as a warning to others who may have theatrical aspirations, some money and but few qualifications.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.

One of the greatest advantages ever instituted to the people of Florida is the silos which are now being operated more extensively throughout this section, and which will save many thousands of dollars to the people here if they will but adopt this rule generally.

Davis & Oliver have some forty acres planted in sorghum alone which they will use in this manner, and they will save not less than $5,000 on feed by this process. All parties that have cattle to feed should pay a visit to one of their places.

They have put up a gas engine and chopper which cuts the roughage up and places it in the receiver at any distance, and is an invention well worth the time to examine. Besides the one now in operation by Davis & Oliver there is one in course of erection at the Diamond ice factory, and Stringfellow & Colclough are also having one built, while numbers of others are contemplating erecting to them.

The Western farmers are enabled to ship all of their hay and grain here and use the stalks for their stock, which makes them money that Florida should keep at home.

It looks like real business when one of the foremost textile concerns in the country announces with pride that the goods for next spring, now on exhibition, are to be from 25 per cent to 30 per cent higher than a year ago.
