Even Titusville has grown tired of being used as a cattle range and stock owners will have to seek some other pasture for their stock.

We have to take the world as it is and not as we think it ought to be, but that need not interfere with our efforts to bring the world up to our ideal.

It is reported that there has been too much rain during the past two weeks for the welfare of cotton, and that in some fields shedding of bolls is very noticeable.

Many Gainesville people are now taking an outing at the seashore or in the mountains, but we venture that the "stay-at-homes" are about as comfortable as any of them.

Jacksonville is not doing much for her baseball team in the way of attendance. Dixieland Park is a beautiful ball ground, but many people object to paying ferrage in order to witness the game.

G. Robert Ellis, who is now proprietor of the Varnada Hotel at Brooksville, writes The Sun, in renewing his subscription: "See that this is placed on mailing list at once, for we are lost without the paper."

The streets of Gainesville presented a more lively appearance last Saturday night than they have for many months. The old town is steadily forging ahead even in the "Good Old Summer Time," and the coming fall and winter promise to be the most prosperous our people have ever witnessed.

Some years ago there was a noticeable difference in the number of people to be seen on the streets of Jacksonville during the winter and summer months. But not so now. The place appears to be as crowded with human beings at the present time as it was at any period during the past winter, and business in every line fully as brisk. The growth of the city during the past few years is simply wonderful, and the future prospects are even more bright than those of the past.

Florida farmers will produce more corn the present year than ever before in the history of the State. In some sections of Alachua and Bradford counties as much as 65 bushels to the acre will be harvested, while we hear of a farmer in West Florida who claims that his average yield will be 125 bushels to the acre. Of course these results are an exception rather than the rule, but as a whole the average yield of corn to the acre this year will be far above that of any previous year in this State.

It is not very pleasing to the property owner who has complied with the sanitary ordinance to be compelled to endure the stench from the sanitary wagon standing in front of adjoining property where the bucket system is still in vogue. Every residence or business house in the sewerage territory should be connected with the sewer main without further delay. The ordinance required such connection to be made within six months, and entirely too much leniency has already been shown some property owners in this particular.

ANOTHER INDUSTRY.

Confirmation of the value of long leaf yellow pine wooden blocks as paving substance was received in New York a few days ago, when the result of an interview between William B. Levis, a director of the Market Street Merchants' Association, and J. G. Garthwaite, assistant engineer of London, who unqualifiedly gave as his opinion that he is in favor of wood blocks, and stated that they have given satisfaction in the English Capital.

Mr. Levis, who is on a foreign tour, and is intensely interested in having Market street paved with the best and most desirable material, said that Mr. Garthwaite stated that creosoted pine wood blocks have proven most satisfactory, and especially so where the traffic is the heaviest. It has given such good service, he said, that the streets in the suburbs have been paved with the same material.

Engineer Garthwaite laid special emphasis on the value of wood block as a street paving material, because, he said, it is noiseless, clean, sanitary, artistic, cool in summer, more durable than any other material and is easily kept in repair. In some parts of London, Mr. Garthwaite said, the same blocks have been in constant use for more than twenty years without requiring repairs.

The editor of The True Democrat witnessed the operation last fall of the tearing up of Belgian blocks in the city of Atlanta, and the substitution of square creosoted pine blocks in several of the principal business streets.

A very profitable industry could be built up in Tallahassee in the manufacture of these creosoted blocks. The demand is becoming great and will increase from year to year.

The city of Anniston, Ala., employs about a thousand men in the single industry of manufacturing iron pipe for water mains, and yet here is an industry capable of far greater proportions which could be established and most profitably operated in Tallahassee.

It is through employment of labor that cities are builded, and Tallahassee has the natural resources for many busy shops in which thousands could be profitably employed.—Tallahassee True Democrat.

Here is an opportunity for the Gainesville Board of Trade to do some work in the way of promoting an industry which may prove of incalculable benefit to the business interests of this city. If long leaf yellow pine blocks are as valuable paving material as above set forth, then Gainesville is the very place for the location of such an industry. Miles of our streets could be materially improved by the use of these blocks.

R. Hudson Burr is charged with responsibility for the passage of the law which prohibits the railroads from exchanging transportation to editors for advertising space. We are not prepared to say that the charge is true, but it was reported in Tallahassee that Burr went before the committee and argued against a provision in the bill permitting such exchange. We are informed that Mr. Burr was at one time a farmer, and we wonder how he would have liked a law which prevented him from exchanging the products of his farm with the merchant for his wares? Doubtless he would have considered such a law a damnable outrage.

Every pretender to a throne is a source of uneasiness to the man who actually occupies it. This was especially true in Spain, where several formidable Carlist rebellions in the last fifty years endangered the reigning house. By the recent death of Don Carlos the last Carlist pretender has passed away, and King Alfonso will feel more secure on his throne.

"Elegant" may seem a singular adjective to apply to a catalogue of a cattle farm, but it is justly descriptive of that recently issued by the Spring Park Farm, situated near Gainesville. The Times-Union of Thursday reprinted from The National Breeders' Gazette, of Chicago, an appreciative account of this great stock farm. The catalogue before us is a handsome booklet, printed on heavy book paper and illustrated with photo-engravings of scenes on the farm, its buildings, and portraits of its nest stock. A history of the farm and of the beef interest in Florida, together with advice to prospective buyers, all illustrated with inserts, is found in the first part of the book. The latter part is given to "Extended Pedigrees of a Few Foundation Animals." The whole is bound in a limp, imitation cloth cover, illustrated with appropriate designs. The Spring Park Farm makes a specialty of the breeding of Herefords and the illustrations show some superb animals.—Times-Union Short Talks.

When the Georgia Legislature enacted the prohibition law the saloon people all over the country charged that the manufacture of Coca-Cola "put up the dough" which did the work. So bitter were the saloon keepers against the Coca-Cola Company that they ceased handling the drink and substituted another, and there is scarcely a saloon in the country today at which you can buy Coca-Cola. Now it appears that the prohibitionists are to wage war against their alleged friend for prohibition of the sale of liquor.

When business men and corporations are tempted to make money dishonestly they would do well to follow the example of the old Scotch merchant who wrote in his brass-bound, leather-covered ledger, "O Lord, keep me and this buik honest."

When one considers the influence a woman has in the home life to soften it and make it cheerful and pure, she should be encouraged by loving word and deed on the part of her husband and children.
