Charter school in the works?

Petition started to do just that at SHE

The town of White Springs is moving forward with plans to convert South Hamilton Elementary School (SHE) into a public charter school in time for the 2012-13 school year. Parents of SHE students have requested that SHE Principal Maceo Howell conduct a secret ballot vote allowing parents and teachers to determine if a majority supports the conversion to a charter school.

The Florida Department of Education (DOE) defines charter schools as tuition-free public schools of choice created through an agreement or "charter" between the school and the local school board or a state university.

Two parents of SHE students, Shauna Adams-Farries and Katrina Dye, drew up the letter to Howell and solicited signatures from about 70 SHE parents.

"I know of no parent who is against the charter," said

Jasper man arrested in Georgia for pimping and pandering

By Joyce Marie Taylor

A Jasper man was arrested in Georgia in connection with a prostitution ring, according to Effingham County Sheriff's Office spokesman David Ehsanipoor.

William Brown, 27, Jasper, was arrested in Effingham County, Ga. on Feb. 21, along with seven others, during an overnight sting operation, resulting from complaints in the Rincon area near Savannah, Ga.

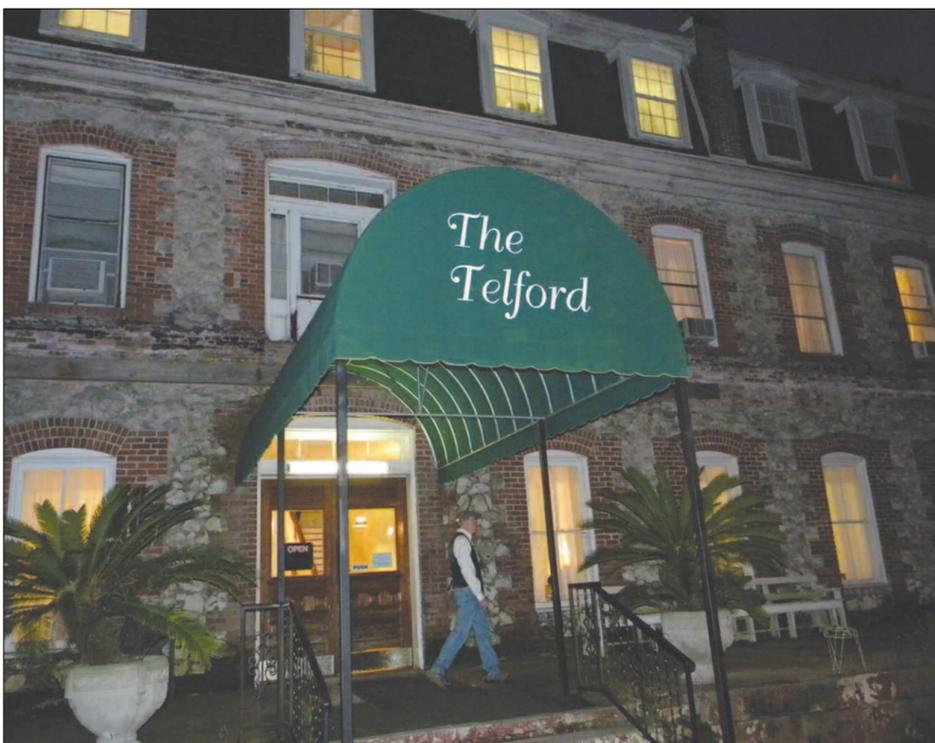

"The Effingham County Sheriff's Office conducted a sting operation at a local motel targeting prostitutes and pimps," said Ehsanipoor. "Brown made contact with undercover investigators and arrived at the hotel with another female."

Brown was charged with conspiracy to commit a crime, pimping and pandering and is being held on $10,000 bond in the Effingham County Jail, according to ECSO.

The White Springs Folk Club is in the midst of their sixth year bringing quality live entertainment and music to the residents of the town and beyond in a "listening room" venue at the Telford Hotel and Restaurant.

The club requires no membership fee and the line-up of talented artists are mostly singer-songwriters who play their own music. They are not cover bands. All you, the patrons, have to do is show up and prepare to be entertained by an eclectic assortment of fabulous music that includes not only folk, but jazz, cajun and sometimes even a little bit of rock-n-roll.

Volunteer general manager and booking agent of the club is White Springs Vice-Mayor Walter McKenzie, who happens to be an avid music lover. Since the beginning, the club events have

Water districts, DEP come together over water issues

By Misty A. Ward
misty.ward@gafnews.com

Last fall, the Suwannee River and St. Johns River Water Management Districts entered into an agreement to work together to coordinate water resource management within the two districts. They are now joining forces with the Department of Environmental Protection to approach local elected officials and area stakeholders, to join them in forming the North Florida Regional Water Supply Partnership.

"Partnerships are critical to protecting our shared water resources. Through our work with St. Johns, DEP and the communities and stakeholders throughout the region, we will ensure long-term, sustainable water supplies," Charlie Houder, SRWMD assistant executive director, said

According to the SRWMD, the Partnership is "an initiative to protect natural resources and ensure cost-effective and sustainable water supplies."

The public meeting is scheduled from 6 to 8 p.m., on March 7, at the Alachua City Hall, 15100 N.W. 142 Terrace, in Alachua. The formation of the stakeholder committee will be announced at the meeting.

"The meeting on March 7 is going to be the first public discussion by the two districts and DEP. We will be looking for feedback from the people," Houder said. "It has yet to be determined exactly how the stakeholder committee will work. The more people we have talking about water issues the better. It is the best way to get answers."

SRWMD stated in a press release that the stakeholder committee will comprise of groups and

The election process: A breakdown

By Joyce Marie Taylor
joycemarie.taylor@gafnews.com

Aside from the general election on Nov. 6, there will be a primary election on Aug. 14 when local county, judicial and school board candidates will be voted on. Early voting is slated for Aug. 4 through Aug. 11.

The following offices are up for election this year in Hamilton County: County judge, sheriff, tax collector, clerk of court, property appraiser, supervisor of elections, county commission seats for districts 1, 3 and 5, and superintendent of schools, as well as district 2 and 3 seats on the school board.

Here is a general breakdown as to how the election process works.

Filing is the first step in becoming a candidate and you must be a registered voter in Hamilton County to run for local public office. Filing allows you to solicit contributions and make expenditures for your campaign. When you file you must complete an Appointment of Treasurer Form that states the office you are running for, your political party affiliation (except candidates for judge, school board and supervisor of elections), what bank your campaign account will

Adams-Farries. "We want a school in our community and this is the only option left to us, in lieu of the school board's decision. The amazing thing is all these signatures were gathered in two hours."

On Friday, Feb. 24, Adams-Farries presented Howell with two separate letters; one was signed by SHE parents and legal guardians, and the other was signed by Hamilton County residents, all of whom are in support of converting SHE to a public charter school.

"Mr. Howell was very cordial and professional, and thanked me for presenting the information," said Adams-Farries.

The letter requests that Howell, as administrator of the school, conduct a secret ballot as soon as possible to give teachers and parents the opportunity to vote on whether or not they approve the charter school proposal. Additionally, it states a public meeting will be held by an independent arbitrator, agreed upon by Howell and SHE parents, to count the sealed ballots aloud in the presence of all in attendance at the public meeting.

Although not required, a second letter with the same wording, and signed by 170 Hamilton County residents, was also presented to Howell. White Springs Mayor Helen Miller said those who signed the letter were diverse community members, including people who live outside the town limits.

"We're also getting support from residents in Jasper who feel that White Springs needs to fight for its school," said Miller.

Copies of the letters presented to Howell were sent to Martha Butler, superintendent of schools, Damon Deas, school board chairman, the Hamilton County School Board and their attorney Jay Willingham.

Miller stated, "Our charter application will state that since SHE has an 'A' team we would plan to operate with essentially the same team of teachers. Of course, if a teacher doesn't apply for his/her position with the charter school, we'll seek the best teachers that we can find for open positions."

The proposed SHE Charter School will be a public school within the Hamilton County School District, Miller said, and she expects teacher pay and benefits will remain the same.

According to charter school statutes, Howell has 60 days from receipt of the letter to initiate the ballot process. Written notification will be provided to teachers and parents at least 30 days prior to conducting the ballot.

For parent voting, if the ballot process proceeds, each household will receive one ballot regardless of the number of students residing in the household. If a student has two households, the household of the enrolling parent will receive the ballot. A teacher who is also the parent of a student enrolled at SHE will be allowed to submit both a teacher ballot and a parent ballot. A majority

(more than half) of parents eligible to vote must participate in the ballot process.

A minimum of one school day will be allotted for teachers to submit a ballot and a minimum of six consecutive school days will be allotted for parents to submit a ballot.

Additionally, the official ballots will be created and distributed by the school and submitted by teachers and parents in a sealed, unmarked envelope also provided by the school. Separate ballot boxes will be created for teacher and parent votes and each box will be visibly sealed, supervised during school hours, and secured when the school is closed in order to maintain confidentiality.

As soon as possible, but not more than three school days after closing the ballot, a public meeting will be held in which an independent arbitrator, selected by agreement between the school administrator and the applicant, will unseal the teacher and parent ballot boxes and count the ballots aloud in the presence of meeting attendees. The votes will be tallied by the independent arbitrator and final ballot results will be posted in a prominent location at the school site.

If a majority of teachers employed at the school and a majority of voting parents support the charter proposal, the conversion charter application must be submitted by the application deadline that follows the ballot. The ballot results may not carry over to another school year or application period. If a majority of parents and/or teachers do not support the charter proposal, the application can't be submitted to the sponsor.

White Springs Town Manager Robert Townsend expressed his concerns at the school board meeting in Jasper on Jan. 24 where it was voted on to close SHE if Central Hamilton Elementary (CHE) does not exit intervene status at the end of the 2011-12 school year. He had told Butler that the interlocal agreement had been violated and he wished to have a meeting with all parties to the agreement to discuss it.

On Jan. 30, White Springs Town Clerk Shirley Heath e-mailed Butler's administrative assistant, Denise Wofford, requesting a recording of the Jan. 24 meeting. Wofford responded on Feb. 7 stating it was ready for them to pick up. Wofford also wrote in her e-mail that Townsend mentioned he wanted to meet with the superintendent. She asked that he contact her so she could schedule an appointment.

Townsend had Heath respond to Wofford's e-mail that same day stating that his request was to meet with the superintendent, the school board chairman, County Commissioner Randy Ogburn, and elected officials from Jennings, Jasper and White Springs. He also asked that the meeting be scheduled for one day the following week and to let him know when.

As of press time, Townsend said he has not received a response from Wofford or Butler to that request.

Meanwhile, Dye is organizing a fish fry fundraiser to help with any charter school expenses that may arise. The fish fry is scheduled for Saturday, March 3 from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the White Springs Community Center at 12760 Roberts St. across from Munchie's.

Adams-Farries summed it up stating, "I just want to say that we have always been a close knit community, and this process has brought us even closer. We are determined to maintain a school in our community and will work diligently to make sure that happens. As parents, we want the best for our children. As citizens of White Springs, we know the value of education as demonstrated by our support of the staff of SHE and the A grade that was a collaborative effort of the school employees, parents, the H.O.P.E. program and the students. We don't want to see this team of individuals broken up, as our success rate has been proven time and time again."

entities throughout the region. It cited that some of the elements of the Partnership include, "developing a shared tool to predict and assess water resources impacts; studying the regional groundwater decline in North Florida; creating consistency and coordination in setting minimum flows and levels; collecting and sharing science-based data; developing a regional water supply plan; and forming the stakeholder committee to ensure that stakeholders have a meaningful opportunity to provide input."

Houder and Hans G. Tanzler III, SJRWMD executive director, and other senior staff will speak at county commission meetings within the two districts to inform the public about water resource issues and to determine participation with the Partnership.

The water district representatives met with Hamilton County commissioners on Tuesday night, Feb. 21. They visited the Lafayette County Commission, Tuesday, Feb. 28 and will visit the Suwannee County Commission at 9 a.m., on March 6.

Norris Notes

By Lillian Norris

A Day to Remember! On Sunday, Feb. 26, 2012, First Presbyterian Church, Jasper, Florida, celebrated a 100 Year Birthday, with a full house, of joy and remembrances. Families, friends and guests rejoiced in remembering those who came before us, making it possible to worship as we have done for the past 100 years.

From the minute the first worshippers arrived until the last person left the grounds, there was joy in remembrance of the many who have brought us this far, with the loss of those near and dear to us, and those who have been added to the membership of First Presbyterian Church, Jasper, Florida.

There will be more about the celebration at a later date, when we all get settled and back on schedule. In the meantime, Waylon Bush will be the Guest Pastor on Sunday, March 4, he is always such a blessing to all who are able to hear his messages. Our pastor, Reverend Sandra Hedrick, will be out of the pulpit on that Sunday, she is always available to members of our congregation, we wish her some time to herself and her family. Reverend Sandra was accompanied on Sunday by her husband, Chuck, and her two sons and their wives, all a very important part of our fellowship in the Church.

Ryan Mitchell served as Year 100 Committee Chairman. Session Members 2012 are Martha Ard, Penny Mickler, Jim coe, Elizabeth Mitchell, Cindy Morgan, Ben Norris and Asa Smith.

Two former pastors of the Church attended on Sunday, Rev. Bill Platt and his wife, Susan; Rev. Dick Mceuen and his wife.

Ten members of the late Rev. Edwin Montgomery were present, June Montgomery who was director of music during their stay here and a very important part of our Church; and their sons and their families, and James Montgomery who has served our Church many, many times, all of the members of the Montgomery family have always been a strategic part of the life of this Church.

We hope to be able to mention others when we look at the guest book.

Dr Harold and Jean Coe were here for the celebration, he is the brother of Jim Coe. I spent time with the Coe family, Dr. Harold and Wade were roommates at the fraternity house in Louisville KY prior to our wedding, and we have remained staunch friends every since. We all met Friday evening in Valdosta for dinner together, with Nan and Tommy Hamm and family; I spent the night in Lake Park, Jim and Jo Coe met us for breakfast at Cracker Barrel Saturday morning, I came home Sat evening and we all met on Sunday morning. Marybeth Windham and Kaleb Windham were there for the morning worship service and the celebration luncheon, Jordan was not able to be here as she had just started a new job. Sandy Coe also was here from Jacksonville.

There are others who will be noted next week when I can get the names together.

To all who worshipped with us we are glad you were here, welcome you back at any time. We are sure you will be hearing about OUR DAY for a long time to come, you are welcome to worship with us anytime you can.

It is my understanding that there is a possibility of a couple of new openings in Jasper community and we will keep you informed as to what is going on, one an eating place and one a used furniture company.

Alice Jones and I attended the spaghetti supper at the cafeteria in the old middle school last week, the meal was delicious, we sat at the table with Carlton and Margie Brown. Sorry there weren't any more people there, undersand that there were a lot of take-outs.

Our prayers go out this week to the families affected by the tragedy in Ohio, evidence that it can happen anywhere, an official said on television this morning, to TALK with your children, encourage them to talk with you.

Will be expecting some news for next week.

OPINION

Equality or inequality

Rick Santorum's speech at the Detroit Economic Club stirred a bit of controversy when he said: "I'm not about equality of result when it comes to income inequality. There is income inequality in America. There always has been, and hopefully -- and I do say that -- there always will be." That kind of statement, though having merit, should not be made to people who have little or no understanding. Let's look at inequality.

Kay S. Hymowitz's article "Why the Gender Gap Won't Go Away. Ever," in City Journal (Summer 2011), shows that female doctors earn only 64 percent of the income that male doctors earn. What should be done about that? It turns out that only 16 percent of surgeons are women but 50 percent of pediatricians are women. Even though surgeons have many more years of education and training than do pediatricians, should Congress equalize their salaries or make pediatricians become surgeons?

Wage inequality is everywhere. According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Asian men and women earn more than white men and women. Female cafeteria attendants earn more than their male counterparts. Females who are younger than 30 and have never been married earn salaries 8 percent higher than males of the same description. Among women who graduated from college during 1992-93, by 2003 more than one-fifth were no longer in the workforce, and another 17 percent were working part time. That's to be compared with only 2 percent of men in either category. Hymowitz cites several studies showing significant career choice and lifestyle differences between men and women that result in income inequality.

There are other inequalities that ought to be addressed. With all of the excitement about New York Knick Jeremy Lin's rising stardom, nobody questions league domination by blacks, who are a mere 13 percent of our population but constitute 80 percent of NBA players and are the highest-paid ones. It's not much better in the NFL, with blacks being 65 percent of its players. Colleges have made diversity their primary calling, but watch any basketball game and you'd be hard-put to find white players in roles other than bench warming.

BY WALTER WILLIAMS

Worse than that, Japanese, Chinese and American Indian players aren't even recruited for bench warming.

There's inequality in most jobs. According to 2010 BLS data, the following jobs contain 1 percent female workers or less: boilermaking, brickmasonry, stonemasonry, septic tank servicing, sewer pipe cleaning and working with reinforcing iron and rebar. Maybe the reason female workers aren't in these occupations is that too many are in other occupations. Females are 97 percent of preschool and kindergarten teachers, 80 percent of social workers, 82 percent of librarians and 92 percent of dietitians and nutritionists and registered nurses.

Anyone with one ounce of brains can see the problem and solution. Congress has permitted -- and even fostered -- a misallocation of people by race, sex and ethnicity. Courts have consistently concluded that "gross" disparities are probative of a pattern and practice of discrimination. So what to do? One remedy that Congress might consider is to require females, who are overrepresented in fields such as preschool and kindergarten teaching, to become boilermakers and brickmasons and mandate that male boilermakers and brickmasons become preschool and kindergarten teachers until both of their percentages are equal to their percentages in the population. You say, "Williams, that would be totalitarianism!" But if Americans accept that Congress can make us buy health insurance whether we want to or not, how much more totalitarian would it be for Congress to allocate jobs in the name of social equality and the good of our nation?

Nobel laureate Milton Friedman said: "A society that puts equality before freedom will get neither. A society that puts freedom before equality will get a high degree of both." Equality before the general rules of law is the only kind of equality conducive to liberty that can be secured without destroying liberty.

Healthy Living

Rest, revive, detoxify

What do raw tomatoes and eggs, spinach, raw or rare meats, asparagus, apples, grapefruit, squash, garlic, broccoli, potatoes, walnuts, carrots, and avocado have in common? Answer: they all have moderate to higher levels of glutathione. Glutathione is an important chemical acting as a powerful antioxidant in preserving and protecting the brain and other body tissues from the damage of free radicals. In addition it acts to recycle vitamin C & E, also powerful free radicals neutralizers. Naturally produced and found in all cells of the body at varying levels, glutathione is critical to healthy functioning.

Because all other antioxidants depend on the presence of this antioxidant powerhouse, glutathione is often referred to as the "master antioxidant". For many is considered the miracle molecule for longevity, as it has been found in higher levels of individuals living well into 100 years.

Elevated glutathione levels support the body in producing white blood cells, defenders against infectious disease and foreign materials. Glutathione works to detoxify our system from damaging environmental toxins we come in contact with, or from poorly engineered food we ingest (again avoid processed foods in your diet!).

Situations that deplete levels can be acidic lifestyle and diet, air or water pollution, prescription and recreational drugs, UV radiation, cell phones, computers, power lines, hair dryers; emotional and physical stress; injury, trauma or burns; cigarette smoke, household chemicals, exhaust, smoke, smog, dirty air, and age (especially over 45 years).

It's easy to see on a daily basis how glutathione can become depleted, and how we must be sure to support our bodies nutritionally to ensure levels are maintained for healthy functioning.

Glutathione is a protein made of 3 non-essential amino acids (non essential meaning our bodies produce them naturally) glutamate, cysteine, and glycine. Because glutathione's non-essential make up, ingested food sources rich in each of these amino acids will help boost levels naturally. Cysteine is found in a variety of foods including poultry, yogurt, egg yolks, red peppers, garlic, onions, broccoli, brussel sprouts, oats, and wheat germ. Glutamate sources include parmesan cheese, scallops, mushrooms, tomatoes, beef, chicken, and corn. Glycine food sources include fish, meat, beans, and dairy products.

Oral supplementation of glutathione does not significantly increase levels in the body, so it must be ingested in the diet. It would also be wise to use a liver and gallbladder detoxifier such as those offered by Isagenix. For more information on quality cleanses feel free to email me at the address below. I personally use a liver cleanse each day and have experienced significant benefit.

Our bodies want to be healthy, each of our individual cells at this very moment are striving for an optimal state of health. Let's give our them a little help shall we? Glutathione, it does a body good!

The chaplain emailed his appreciation for the thoughtfulness of the residents of Hamilton County and promised to distribute the boxes immediately.

Those boxes mailed to an Army unit at FOB Walton in Afghanistan were sent in care of Lt. Jacob Bozeman, step-son of Susan Grantham Bozeman. Susan, who came to help pack the boxes at the VFW with her son, C.J., e-mailed when she heard from Jake. "They have received the boxes. He said that everybody was so excited and very grateful! He said they were very humbled also and wanted me to tell everybody thank you - a million times: THANK YOU! This has been a blessing to our troops."

Death Heart Matters

Claude E. Plummer

By Angie Land

Mr. Claude E. Plummer, a resident of Live Oak, Fla., passed away Feb. 21, 2012 in Shands Live Oak Regional Medical Center, Live Oak, Fla.

Mr. Plummer was 67-years-old.

D.M. Udell and Sons of D.M. Udell Funeral Home is in charge of all arrangements.

The Bible records many specific occurrences of God granting favor: Noah found favor in God's eyes (Gen 6:8) and Mary also found favor with God (Luke 1:30). Likewise, the scriptures also encourage us to ask God to grant us favor with others, just as God caused an official to show favor to Daniel (Daniel 1:9). The word favor indicates an effort on one's behalf or interest; to afford advantages for success. In all three of our examples, we can read how God's favor enabled them to accomplish a task successfully. Taking the definition a bit deeper, the Old Testament Lexical Aids defines favor as simply: "compassion, mercy, sympathy, tenderness, pity, and sensitive love." In other words, God's efforts on our behalf, whether concerning salvation, or specific daily blessings, are the result of his compassion and mercy on us.

After our first look at Nehemiah last week, our distinct challenge was to "hear" the problem or need that would warrant our involvement in taking on an overwhelming project or problem. Like Nehemiah, once we have heard clearly, the next step is an evaluation of where you are currently, and what is needed to get moving forward. In his case, Nehemiah clearly understood that his people were living in shame due to their disobedience to God's commands, decrees, and laws. He acknowledged his part through a prayer of repentance, then reminded God of His covenant with His people. Often we can't make progress in a difficult situation because we fail to see that we are part of the problem. Nehemiah could have easily blamed the previous generations and acted as though he was innocent, but he willingly admitted his sin before God. Armed with the understanding that he was unable to fix this problem simply by his own strength or wit, Nehemiah was now ready to ask for help...for favor.

"Give your servant success today by granting him favor in the presence of this man." In this one sentence, Nehemiah expresses a remarkable grasp on the situation. First, he was God's servant, not the other way around. Often our prayers sound more like three wishes to a genie in a bottle, than requests before the Creator of heaven and earth. Second, Nehemiah clearly understood that the success of this project depended on God, not him. His role was to see where God would open a door, and then obediently walk through. Third, Nehemiah did not disrespect those in authority over him, but rather asked God to grant favor through them. As the last verse of chapter one explains, Nehemiah was the cupbearer to the king. This position is comparable to today's bodyguards. The cupbearer's job was to taste the king's wine in order to guard against poisoning, the most common form of assassination in those days.

For obvious reasons, a king would be reluctant to share his cupbearer with any other task, so Nehemiah would surely need God to intervene on his behalf. (We will discover how God accomplishes this next week!) Meanwhile, once we have "heard" clearly, our next step is to evaluate where we are and how we arrived at this place. This is also the time to acknowledge our part in the problem and ask for forgiveness from God and anyone else that we may have hurt along the way. Finally, ask for favor in successfully seeing this project or problem through to the end...favor from God and others who could make the path a little clearer...because your heart matters!

Blessings, Angie

Boys fall to Hawthorne in regional semifinal

A Hamilton County Trojan keeps the ball from this opponent.

Submitted
It was a hard-fought game in front of a packed house in Hawthorne Tuesday night for the Class 1A Regional Semifinal game. The Trojans overcame foul trouble in the first half and managed to keep it close at halftime, trailing the Hornets 33-29. After the Trojans scored the first basket to start the second half, the Hornets went on a 12-0 run to take a 14-point lead on HCHS. For the remainder of the game, the Trojans tried to fight back while the Hornets tried to hold the lead. Early in the fourth quarter, Hawthorne took a 19-point lead. However, that was not the end of the game. The young Trojans showed a lot of heart and perseverance and kept battling. With a minute left to play in the game, the Trojans had the ball and trailed by six points. Unfortunately, a three point attempt rimmed in and out and Hawthorne prevailed 78-71. Head coach Patrick Murphy was extremely proud of the effort and heart shown by his players. "I don't think anyone here has any regrets and, if you're going to lost the last game of the season, that's the best way to go out."

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. - Have you ever wondered what it is like to be a state trooper? Here is your chance to catch an inside glimpse! The Florida Highway Patrol announced today the release of Troopers - Inside the Florida Highway Patrol, a documentary that features recruits on the path to becoming a state trooper.

The Center for Faith and Freedom, Inc., doing business as Salt & Light Productions, produced the 92-minute video that follows the 118th recruit class through the training academy, highlights the many duties performed by the Patrol on an everyday basis and includes touching footage of a law enforcement funeral. The video demonstrates the breadth and depth of the statewide law enforcement agency's role in achieving the vision of a Safer Florida.

Stuart J. Roth, Founder and President of the Lakewood Ranch based Salt & Light Productions noted, "I felt it was important for citizens all over our state to understand the dedication and commitment to public service that is exemplified by the FHP. Unfortunately, we often take for granted those individuals whose primary responsibility is ensuring public safety. This documentary will serve to remind us of the sacrifice being made on a daily basis by the men and women of the FHP."

FHP is offering the video to Florida media outlets as a public service. Members of the media may request a free copy of the documentary by emailing a request to MarkBrown@flhsmv.gov. A limited number of copies are available, and requests will be filled on a first come, first served basis.

Around the Banks of the Suwannee

By Correspondent
Johnny Bullard

Before the state of Florida became ultra-sophisticated, and "experts" (that's someone with a briefcase more than a hundred miles from home) began to demonstrate how things were done "up there", there were some practices, utilized locally, such as "burning the woods" each year to remove underbrush, etc. This helped produce a bountiful crop of regional fruits that were, and, if you're lucky enough to find them, still are, "near and dear" to the palate of most of us who have "been here a while" (that's an expression that means your folks didn't just set up shop here six months or a year ago—your folks have been in this area for a while.) The title of my column is "From Around the Banks of the Suwannee", and these regional fruits do grow near, and, sometimes, on, the banks of the Suwannee.

Huckleberries. Most people now think about "Huckleberry Finn", the, main character of Mark Twain's acclaimed novel. I am not referring to the carefree young boy of literary fame. I am referring to a sweet, deep reddish-purple, almost black berry, that grows in the woods of North Florida, or did, when I was a young boy. I can recall making trips out to the farm with my paternal grandmother and great aunts to pick "high bush" and "low bush" huckleberries near the Suwannee River. I don't know the scientific names for these sweet fruits of the north Florida woods, but I can close my eyes and taste them. They were sweeter than wild blueberries. We'd never seen or heard of a cultivated or "tame" blueberry in those days. Huckleberries were used to make pies, cakes, jams, and jellies. In our case, mostly pies. Homemade huckleberry pie was "food of the gods". I haven't eaten any in years. I don't need it, but I sure would like to taste it again.

Another fruit that grows in boggy, if you can find a bog, as dry as it is, or along "sloughs" near the Suwannee River or around ponds or lakes is the "mayhaw". The title of a popular song of the big band era is "Shoo Fly Pie and Apple Pan Dowdy". I've tasted both, and neither of them can hold a candle to a "Jelly Cake" made with "umpteens" paper thin layers and covered in homemade mayhaw jelly. If someone makes one for you they love you—period. It takes a lot of effort and is soooooo good.

I've served mayhaw jelly to visitors from other parts of our great nation and from "across the pond", and I've watched their expression of pure delight and, as they savored the wonder of what is, most definitely, my very favorite jelly or jam in the entire world. Usually after tasting mayhaw jam or jelly, one has to explain what a "mayhaw" is. Technology and "search engines" makes the explanation much easier.

One can purchase mayhaw plants from some native nurseries, although it's not easy to grow them. They do better in the wild, as does the huckleberry.

Thankfully, unlike the huckleberry, I can purchase mayhaw jelly at any time over at the Cousin Thelma Boltin's Craft and Gift Shop at Stephen Foster Folk Culture Center State Park. Mrs. Ruth Cribbs, who lives between White Springs and Wellborn, makes great mayhaw jelly, and so do the daughters of the late Mrs. Marie Norris, a native of White Springs, who is near and dear to my heart and was a cherished friend. I am so pleased her daughters, Ethel Annette Norris McDonald, Lake City, and Eleanor Norris Wiggins, Live Oak, still carry on their mother's great tradition and legacy of making wonderful jams, jellies, and preserves.

When I was a child, I would go with a number of family members over to Oosterhoudt Pasture in northern Columbia County were the ponds were, at that time, surrounded by mayhaw trees. We would spread wide sheets and cloths over the surface of the ponds and "beat" the trees with long fishing poles to bring down the deep pinkish red mayhaws. Mayhaws are bitter eaten on their own, but if you add enough of the right ingredients, namely plenty of pure cane sugar, you can make some great jelly.

So, while you walk along the "Banks of the Suwannee" and sing about the Suwannee, and think about the Suwannee, you can also close your eyes and "taste" some of the goodness and sweetness that is part of our Suwannee River Valley - huckleberries and mayhaws.

From the Eight Mile Still, on the Woodpecker Route, north of White Springs, Florida, I wish you a wonderful day filled with joy, peace, and, above all, lots of love and laughter. So blessed to be in the number "one more time".

Natural beauty lures eco-tourists

On any given day eco-tourists are enjoying the natural beauty of Hamilton County. Whether hiking, bicycling or kayaking, these intrepid naturalists come great distances to enjoy what most locals take for granted.

On Friday, Feb. 10, eco-tourist Ron Lang from Seattle, Washington was exploring the Camp Branch Tract when he met Jeff Parnakian, a thru-hiker from Temecula, California. After brief introductions, Lang learned that Parnakian started hiking the Florida Wilderness Trail on Jan. 7 at the Big Cypress National Preserve near Miami. Parnakian is into his second month on the 1,400 mile footpath that works its way to Pensacola Beach. After hiking the length of the Florida Wilderness Trail, he plans to head north to the 335 mile Pinhoti Trail, which runs into Alabama and eastward through Georgia. In Georgia, he will pick up the 2,184 Appalachian Trail going north to Mt. Katahdin in Maine, and then continue north until he reaches Newfoundland, or until snow falls, whichever comes first.

Parnakian was working on a fishing boat in southern California when one of his mates mentioned the Pacific Crest Trail (PCT), a 2,663 mile trail that runs between the borders of Canada and Mexico atop the spine of the mountains of Washington, Oregon and California. Parnakian did the PCT and followed up by doing the 3,100 mile Continental Divide Trail.

Completing these lengthy trails in a single trip is known as "thru-hiking," where one can achieve the Triple Crown of Hiking.

Avid fans of Hamilton County's natural beauty and unique geology, Dr. Helen Miller, mayor of White Springs, and her husband, Ed, were exploring the swallets, resurgences and karst windows in the Camp Branch Tract when they met up with Lang and Parnakian.

"While Jeff Parnakian is thru-hiking to 'Beat Mother Nature,' I have found nothing more restorative than a restful walk in harmony with Mother Nature," explained Miller.

Miller discovered that Parnakian is a former Navy Corpsman and that he celebrated his 31st birthday on the Withlacoochee Bike Trail. He carries an iPod for his tunes and to record his thoughts, and an iPad to connect to the internet when he has access to WiFi.

"I recommend a visit to the Camp Branch Tract to anyone who loves our natural environment," noted Miller.

White Springs Folk Club takes on a life of its own

always been held at the historic Telford Hotel and Restaurant at 16521 River St. in White Springs.

"It started out because I have a friend who's a folk singer and he was coming up this way and I wanted to do a house concert," McKenzie said.

All McKenzie wanted was to invite some friends over to the house to play and listen to music, but his home was too small to accommodate a small crowd. He said he went over to the Telford and asked the owner, Nick Lyras, how much it would cost to rent a room and invite some folks in to listen to music. He was pleasantly surprised when Lyras said he could have the room for nothing if he was going to bring in the music. That first event was a success and turned out to be a nice house concert. McKenzie was still in the workforce around that time and was staying quite busy, so there weren't any more concerts scheduled.

About a year later, he said, a new festival director came to town from Scotland and told him about the folk clubs they used to have in Great Britain during the 60s when he was an up-and-coming musician.

He asked McKenzie if he'd like to try something like that in White Springs and McKenzie told him he was all for it. The two of them decided to put together a folk club where musicians could come and play. It started out on a limited scale utilizing a small room off the Telford Hotel's lobby that could hold about 50 to 60 people. They would meet once a month for six months out of the year and about 25 people turned out for the first event.

"We started out mainly with Florida musicians, mostly real close by like Jacksonville and places like that, and it grew and it grew," said McKenzie. "To make a long story short, we now have an international format. The last people we had come here were from Canada, and we have people from all over the United States come."

It wasn't long before the club had to move the event into the larger dining room of the hotel in order to accommodate all the guests, as well as the artists and their musical equipment.

"The most intriguing thing about it to me is that it has taken on a life of its own," said McKenzie. "The people that support the folk club are like a community."

Loyal followers of the folk club come not only from White Springs, but from Live Oak, Lake City, Gainesville, Jacksonville, Tallahassee and South Georgia, and they show up for each event.

"We've got a lot of people right here in our area who are starved for something culturally fun to do," McKenzie said. "We've got a very loyal clientele, but we also have new people every time."

At first, McKenzie said it was a struggle to get musicians to drive to White Springs to play. Now, he said, he has 20 to 30 groups asking to play, but he only has six spots a year.

"The only part I don't like about it is I have to say no to some musicians who are good musicians, but I can't do 30 or 40 of these a year," said McKenzie.

To attend the events, the suggested donation at the door is $12.50 per person and all of that money goes to the artists. Many who attend eat dinner first before the concert, so it has been good for the Telford Restaurant.

"It's a nice, symbiotic relationship," McKenzie said. "They give us the room and we give them the biggest dinner crowd that they have every month."

Halfway through each concert there is an intermission where hors d'oeuvres are served and folks get to mix and mingle and meet the artists.

"It makes it a more personal experience," said McKenzie.

Also during intermission, there is a raffle. All the items, many of which are hand-crafted, are donated by the guests.

When folks buy a raffle ticket, that money is set aside as a contingency fund for the folk club to pay for the hors d'oeuvres, rent a sound system if needed, or buy printing supplies. McKenzie said the raffle money can also supplement the $12.50 entrance fee, in order to properly pay the artists if not enough people show up for an event.

"That money helps us survive," he said.

McKenzie and his wife Merri get satisfaction from the folk club events because they are able to give to the community in the form of quality evenings of music, entertainment and socializing.

Events are held September through March, but not in December because of all the other holiday activities going on.

The next folk club event is scheduled for March 17 at 7:30 p.m. with guest artists Scott and Michelle Dalziel. Reservations are strongly suggested and be sure to arrive early enough to enjoy a meal at the historic Telford Restaurant. For more information you can contact Walter McKenzie via e-mail at mckenzie@windstream.net or by phone at 386-269-0056.

The election process: A breakdown

be in, and who your treasurer is, even if it's yourself.

After filing, you must submit quarterly treasurer's reports. A candidate has 10 days from the date of filing to execute a "Statement of Candidate".

There are two ways to run for office, by petition or by paying a qualifying fee, which is a percentage of salary for whatever office a candidate is running for. Most people choose to run by petition and in Hamilton County each candidate is required to obtain 80 signed petitions from county voters (which is one percent of the county's 7,920 registered voters). The candidate must then bring those 80 signed petitions back to the supervisor of elections office, who will verify that each petition is properly filled out and signed by a registered voter of Hamilton County.

Petitions for any of these elected offices can be picked up at the supervisor of elections office beginning the second week of January 2012. If at any time a candidate decides not to run, they can go back to the elections office and tell them they are dropping out of the race.

The deadline for submitting candidate petitions is noon of the 28th day preceding the first day of the qualifying period for the office sought.

For 2012, these deadlines are:

March 19, 2012 – Judicial, state attorney and public defender.

May 7, 2012 – Federal, state, multi-county, county and district.

Judicial: Any candidate wishing to run for a judicial, state attorney or public defender office and has not turned in the required petitions by March 19 must qualify between April 16 at noon through April 20 at noon by paying the qualifying fee. This is a non-partisan position.

County: Any candidate wishing to run for state and county offices and has not turned in the required petitions by May 7 must qualify between noon on June 4 and noon on June 8 by paying the qualifying fee.

School Board: Any candidate wishing to run for school board offices and has not turned in the required petitions by May 7 must qualify between noon on June 4 and noon on June 8 by paying the qualifying fee. This is a non-partisan position.

Qualifying fees must be on a properly executed check; be made payable to the Department of State; be drawn upon the campaign account; and be in an amount not less than the fee required.

All county and state races will be on the primary ballot, unless there is only one democrat and one republican running for a particular office, in which case they would be placed on the general ballot. If multiple candidates with the same party affiliation are running for a particular office, the race will be decided in the primary election.

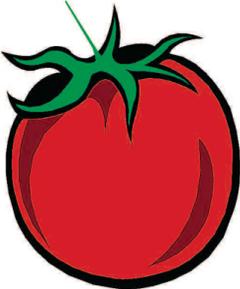

For non-partisan races, judicial and school board, if there are more than two candidates, the top two from the primary election will go on the general ballot. Additionally, if multiple candidates are running in the primary election and there are more than one party affiliation, the top democrat and top republican will be on the general ballot.

Reminder: July 16, 2012 is the deadline for you to register to vote or change your party affiliation in the primary election.

For more information you can visit www.hamiltonvotes.com or the Division of Elections website at www.election.dos.state.fl.us.
