HCSO deputies prepare to destroy evidence.

Yearly drug and evidence disposal witnessed

By Joyce Marie Taylor

On Thursday, Sept. 13, the Hamilton County Sheriff's Office conducted their yearly drug and evidence disposal at the county landfill, as per Florida Statutes. Crystal Talley from the state attorney's office, along with this reporter were present as witnesses, which is required by law whenever seized evidence is destroyed.

Five HCSO deputies were on hand to unload a sheriff's van full of evidence that was ready to be destroyed. Each piece of Jack Hartmann is a nationally recognized singer, songwriter and author, and recently students at Central Hamilton Elementary School got to experience him up close and personal.

Hartmann has written and recorded over 800 children's songs and produced 26 CD's.

Family Resource Specialist Julie Gant said, "His highly educational songs are used by teachers and sung by children in schools across the USA and around the world."

Hartmann performed some of his songs for the students at CHE and Gant said he even invited the teachers on stage for a few dance moves.

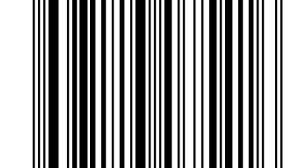

"The students and teachers enjoyed Mr. Hartmann's performance and hopes he will visit again next year," said Gant.

Hamilton County High School Guidance Chair Paula Williams brought three middle school students with her to a meeting of the Hamilton County School Board on Monday, Sept. 10 so they could give a presentation on their experience with the College Reach Out Program (CROP) they attended this past summer.

"We're under the auspices of North Florida Community College for this program," said Williams. "We appreciate all of the things that North Florida has done for our high school and we appreciate the board working along with them."

The three middle school students, Jonathan Mejia, Sierra Beck and Regina Carson spent a week in Tampa with Williams, traveling there via a charter bus along with a group from Florida State University. Meanwhile the high school CROP students were at the University of Florida.

"They had counselors already in place to take care of that group," Williams explained. "For the middle school

Homecoming, parade set

By Joyce Marie Taylor
joycemarie.taylor@gafnews.com

Now that school is back in session it is time to start thinking about homecoming, the first big event of the year for Hamilton County students, which will be held Friday, Sept. 28. The theme this year is,

"Can you 'Bear' the fight?!", which is quite appropriate since the Hamilton County High School Trojans football team will be going head to head with the Cross City Bears in the evening's homecoming game, which starts at 7:30 p.m.

The homecoming parade will be held that same Friday, Sept. 28, before the big game. Parade line up starts at 1:30 p.m. and the parade will begin at 2:30.

The parade route is the same as in years past, but if you're unfamiliar, it will begin at the old high school, cross US Hwy. 41, travel west on East 15th Ave., turning left at the caution light, and then travel south on Martin evidence matched with case numbers had to be verified against a master list signed by the state attorney's office before being tossed into a deep burn pit at the landfill.

The van was filled to capacity with an assortment of seized drugs from various arrests, such as marijuana, cocaine, methamphetamine and prescription drugs, as well as other odds and ends evidence like fingerprint cards, a vehicle sun visor stained with blood that had been tested for DNA, and an assortment of other items from court cases.

One court case pile of evidence included just about everything needed for a hydroponics grow house, including the marijuana. Aside from all the drugs, there were numerous guns and rounds of ammunition, which were handled a bit differently by the deputies for safety's sake.

All of the evidence, some of which dated back to 1996, burned to ashes in the fiery pit as smoke billowed into the atmosphere out at the county landfill and well away from any residences.

Court evidence, it was explained, cannot be destroyed until a case is closed and any and all possibilities of appeal no longer exist, which is why it often takes so long to destroy certain pieces of evidence.

One thing that many probably don't know is that evidence from murder cases can never be destroyed, so it stays in secure lockup at the arresting office evidence room forever.

"The first thing we have to do in any of these destruction's is we have to file a return with the clerk of the court," said HCSO Lt. Chip Belote. "The state attorney has to approve the items that we're destroying. What they're doing is checking to make sure that there are no outstanding dispositions left on those cases."

Once the list of all the evidence to be destroyed is approved by the state attorney's office, the sheriff's office must have a circuit judge sign off on the completed list. Since Hamilton County doesn't have a circuit judge, County Judge Sonny Scuff was the one who signed off on this year's batch of evidence to be destroyed.

The paperwork involved in the entire process of evidence destruction, both before and after the evidence is burned is extremely time-consuming, but necessary, in order to avoid any legal hassles down the road. It will take authorities about three or four months to finish all the follow up paperwork on the evidence that was destroyed.

Not to make light of the oftentimes dangerous situations our law enforcement officers are faced with everyday in the performance of their jobs, but once all the evidence was tossed into the burn pit, Belote went back to his vehicle to retrieve something.

On his way back to the rest of the group, who were still monitoring the fire as it snapped, crackled and popped in the burn pit, Belote suddenly shrieked the male equivalent of a woman's bloodcurdling scream. All eyes turned to where he was standing, hand on his trigger and ready to shoot. This reporter watched in horror as a huge six foot snake with a body the size of a large softball bat darted between Belote's legs and then quickly slithered off into the surrounding brush. The camera shy snake was much too fast and managed to escape capture by the camera lens as it scurried into the woods. Belote was shaken up, but none the worse for wear. Of course, his fellow deputies all had a good laugh, and as boys will be boys, Belote had to endure a round of friendly teasing by his comrades.

When asked what kind of snake it was, all Belote could say was, "It was a snake...a big snake!"

group to go in the month of July, I had to go along with them and it was really a joy."

The CROP students got to visit several colleges, including the University of South Florida, the International Academy of Design and Technology and Hillsborough Community College, where they learned how important it is to begin preparing for college now while they are in middle school, as well as what it would be like living in a college dormitory.

"They all voted for McDonald's, but McDonald's was not a part of the tour," said Williams.

They also had the opportunity to visit other points of interest in the Tampa area like Busch Gardens, International Mall and Ybor City where they were treated to a tour.

Each morning after breakfast, at nine o'clock, the students had to check in with one of the coordinators," said Williams. "They would give them an envelope with X number of dollars in it. That was one of the math parts of the trip. They could budget their funds however they wanted, but they were funds that were to be used for the entire day."

Williams explained that since a complimentary continental breakfast was offered at the hotel where they were staying, it was suggested to the students that they take advantage of it and not buy a full breakfast, but rather save the money for other things like a nice dinner.

"They all voted for McDonald's, but McDonald's was not a part of the tour," said Williams.

The idea was for the students to experience restaurants like Chili's, the Cheesecake Factory, McAlister's Deli or someplace they had never been before.

They also had the opportunity to hang out with HCHS graduates who now live in the Tampa area. One such person was Tally Cooks, a former HCHS graduate who is now a supervisor with the Hillsborough Police Department.

SRWMD seeks to adopt monitoring requirements for largest water users

The Suwannee River Water Management District (District) governing board moved forward with a water use monitoring rule for its largest users and to assist agricultural water users with the required monitoring.

The program will monitor 75 percent of the total water allocated in the District.

"The District needs actual water use data to accurately forecast sustainable, future water supply needs and to develop water supply plans," said Jon Dinges, District director of water supply and resource management.

The Governing Board took the extra step that provides agricultural users a voluntary, convenient, no-cost method of measuring water use by calculating electric consumption. In cooperation with their electric utilities, producers would authorize the sharing of their power use data with the District. If electrical consumption data is not available, other run time monitoring methods may be used.

All stakeholders will have an opportunity to comment on the proposed rule at a public workshop at District headquarters in Live Oak on Oct. 11 at 5:30 p.m.

and I respect her decision," Gaddy told the board. "She has shared with me that I need to speak to the board members."

Gaddy said NHE has three second grade classes with 24 students in each classroom. With differentiated accountability and instruction, and new teacher performance guidelines, Gaddy said those teachers are trying their best to reach every single child in the class every day. She asked the board members to come out to NHE and see for themselves that the teachers need more support.

Bullard stated there are 13 classrooms throughout the district that are over class size. According to the Florida Constitution, class size for pre-kindergarten through third grade is set at 18 students.

"We have some that are over by one or two, and we have one that has 32 (students)," Butler said.

Another issue brought up to the board was that a covered walkway was needed from the portables located on the football field over to the main building. With all the rain of late, students and teachers have been getting soaked walking back and forth to the portables and many have become ill with colds and viruses. It was asked that the board try to do something about putting in a covered walkway.

Minority teacher recruitment

On another note regarding teaching staff, board member Johnny Bullard stated that the district needs to do more as far as minority recruitment of teachers.

"To say that we're giving (North East Florida Educational Consortium) an opportunity to recruit for minorities, and that's about the only vehicle we're taking right now, is not acceptable to me as a board member," said Bullard.

In the past, Bullard said they reached out to Florida A&M, Bethune Cookman and other minority colleges and universities when they had job fairs and he felt the district needed to start doing it again in order to recruit more minority teachers.

At South Hamilton Elementary, Bullard said about 50 percent of the student population is African American, but they presently don't have any minority teachers on staff.

"We can say we posted and we've done everything that the law requires, but I am going to have to go on record and say we are going to have to do more," said Bullard.

To be able to utilize the SHE campus, McKenzie said, would be a wonderful thing because their funding for the program could be cut if costs are not reduced.

Pinello said there were some concerns from the teachers and staff at SHE, such as how to protect and secure SHE classroom materials and who would be supervising the children. Also, with only one janitor on staff, she was concerned about who would be cleaning up once the after school students left for the day.

Bullard said he was for the program, but that a cap on the number of students would have to be set, as there are only two available rooms.

"If it's after school care and it's not going to be any cost to those who are out there in the community, everybody's going to want their children to come," said Bullard.

He also said that the program could only be offered to students who are enrolled at SHE.

"You can't bring children in from Columbia County like you did for the summer program," Bullard said. "If you do that you've got a liability issue on your hands."

Cleanup, Bullard continued, would have to be the responsibility of the HOPE staff.

Other issues Pinello brought up were monitoring the use of computers on campus and use of the Internet, as well as securing the building at the end of the day.

When McKenzie finished his presentation, Butler advised everyone that background checks would have to go through the District's screening process. After more discussion, McKenzie stated that the HOPE program is merely asking for use of the building and that all segments of the program would be handled by HOPE staff, including janitorial cleanup. Butler asked McKenzie to have Mayor Helen Miller call her to discuss the matter further. Chairman Damon Deas stated he would need complete agreement from Pinello before he could vote on the issue.

Emergency shelter

The board approved an interlocal agreement with the Hamilton County Board of County Commissioners for use of the old field house at the old high school to be used as an emergency shelter.

Agreement with SRWMD

Sewanee River Water Management District has offered a $10,000 grant to small school districts, of which Hamilton County was one selected, in order to assess and address any water conservation issues, such as changing out old commodes and fixing water leaks. Central Hamilton Elementary was identified as the school that needed the most attention and the school district would be responsible for doing the work. The board unanimously agreed to accept the agreement for the grant with SRWMD.

In the District, agricultural producers hold the greatest number of water use permits. The District has collaborated

Life in WHITE SPRINGS

By Walter McKenzie

lifeinwhitesprings@gmail.com

Day trips are a great and inexpensive way to share time with your friends and family and day trips from White Springs are plentiful. Two wonderful opportunities for educational day trips from White Springs take place this Saturday and next Saturday. This Saturday, Sept. 22, the Olustee Battlefield Historic State Park will host its Civil War Expo. This is a chance for you to share the experience of Civil War Military encampments with re-enactors and learn about the hardships and victories of war during the event. The annual Civil War Expo is a day of authentic military drills, music and storytelling, exhibits, period artisans and the war's traveling merchants. The event features re-enactors portraying both military and civilian life during the Civil War. We all love good music and there will be musicians performing music of the 1800's throughout the day. Demonstrations of blacksmithing are scheduled, along with exhibits of relic collections. Demonstrations of authentic weapons and fighting tactics used in the Civil War take place throughout the day.

The Civil War Expo will be open to the public from 10:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m. A donation of $5.00 per vehicle is requested. All proceeds benefit the Olustee Battlefield Citizens Support Organization and the Olustee Battlefield Historic State Park.

Another day trip that you might wish to plan ahead for will give you the opportunity to learn about Florida natural habitats at Big Shoals State Park, which will host a National Public Lands Day project on Saturday, September 29th, 2012.

The restoration project will offer volunteers a chance to learn about the importance of wiregrass in sandhill communities and their planting procedures. This is an opportunity for you to have a "hands on" experience and meet some interesting people. You and your fellow participant / volunteers will be involved with planting 1,000 wiregrass plugs within a one acre area. This restoration project will take place in an open area of woodlands at Big Shoals. It is highly recommended that volunteer's bring water, bug spray, gloves and boots.

There will be Junior Ranger handouts along with wiregrass information sheets for anyone that would like to learn more about Florida's natural habitats. This is not all work and no play! All participants are welcome to stay after the project and enjoy their day at Big Shoals State Park.

Please pass the word to all that you can reach—employees, clients, church members, patients, etc. so that this program will be a success.

That is all the news I have for you this week. If you have any news or information about future or past goings on in our town or surrounding community please share them with me. I would love to hear from you and I hope to see you out and about, enjoying life in White Springs.

Local attends the 69th American Legion Florida Boys State

Andrew G. Manalis of White Springs recently attended the 69th American Legion Florida Boys State session held on the campus of Florida State University in Tallahassee, representing American Legion Post 215 in Jasper.

Post 215 appreciates Andrew for agreeing to serve as the delegate, as well as the very fine letter he wrote while there, which follows:

Dear American Legion Post 215,
To start off with, it's been a privilege to represent all American Legions, especially Post 215, my family, school, county and even myself. Coming to this program unfamiliar with how the government works, I was a little nervous and kind of scared. To find out there were other children (boys) unfamiliar with the exact same things made me feel somewhat better. Having lectures on Florida history and the governmental branches enlightened me on how our state government works.

I could thank you a million times and that still seems like it wouldn't be enough. Because of this privileged trip you guys sent me on, I have a full understanding background knowledge on Florida history and on the government.

This time I spend here is amazing, from having debates, to voting, to even playing dodge ball, and to say I'm one of the 500 kids to be selected to come here is an honor. So, I give you thanks for sending me on this trip and I can't wait to tell more about it after the trip and even 50 years later. Sincerely, Andrew G. Manalis.

Academic dishonesty

Many of the nation's colleges and universities have become cesspools of indoctrination, intolerance, academic dishonesty and an "enlightened" form of racism. This is a decades-old trend. In a 1991 speech, Yale President Benno Schmidt warned: "The most serious problems of freedom of expression in our society today exist on our campuses. The assumption seems to be that the purpose of education is to induce correct opinion rather than to search for wisdom and to liberate the mind."

Unfortunately, parents, taxpayers and donors have little knowledge of the extent of the dishonesty and indoctrination. There are several clues for telling whether there's academic dishonesty and indoctrination. One is to see whether a college spends millions for diversity and multiculturalism centers and hires directors of diversity and inclusion, managers of diversity recruitment, associate deans for diversity, and vice presidents of diversity. See whether colleges spend money to indoctrinate incoming freshmen with programs such as "The Tunnel of Oppression," in which, among other things, students call one another vile racial and sexual names in order to develop "oppression awareness."

An American Council of Trustees and Alumni survey in 2004 of 50 selective colleges found that 49 percent of students complained of professors frequently injecting political comments into their courses even if they had nothing to do with the subject, while 46 percent reported that professors used their classrooms to promote their own political views. One

English professor told his students that "conservatism champions racism, exploitation and imperialist war." The "critical race studies" program at UCLA School of Law says that its aim is to "transform racial justice advocacy." At an East Coast college, steal through exploitation." An economics professor told his class, "The United States of America, backed by facts, is the greediest and most selfish country in the world." A Germanic languages professor told his class, "Bush is a moron, a simpleton and an idiot."

A recent National Association of Scholars report, "A Crisis of Competence," reported that the UCLA Higher Education Research Institute found that "more faculty now believe that they should teach their students to be agents of social change than believe that it is important to teach them the classics of Western civilization." Use of public funds for private advocacy not only is academic dishonesty but also borders on criminality.

In today's college climate, we shouldn't be surprised by the outcomes. A survey conducted by the Center for Survey Research and Analysis at the University of Connecticut gave 81 percent of the seniors a D or an F in their knowledge of American history. Many students could not identify Valley Forge, words from the Gettysburg Address or even the basic principles of the U.S.

Constitution. The National Center for Education Statistics reported that only 31 percent of college graduates can read and understand a complex book.

A 2007 national survey titled "Our Fading Heritage: Americans Fail a Basic Test on Their History and Institutions," by the Intercollegiate Studies Institute, found that earning a college degree does little to increase knowledge of America's history. Among the questions asked were: "Who is the commander in chief of the U.S. military?" "Name two countries that were our enemies during World War II." The average score among college graduates was 57 percent, or an F. Only 24 percent of college graduates knew the First Amendment prohibits establishing an official religion for the United States.

A 2006 survey conducted by The Conference Board, Corporate Voices for Working Families, the Partnership for 21st Century Skills, and the Society for Human Resource Management found that only 24 percent of employers thought graduates of four-year colleges were "excellently prepared" for entry-level positions.

Our sad state of college education proves what my grandmother admonished: "If you're doing something you're not supposed to be doing, you can't do what you're supposed to do."

The Hamilton County High School Junior Class invites you to attend the 2012 Miss HCHS "America the Beautiful" Pageant on Saturday, Sept. 22 at 6 p.m. in the Hamilton County High School Auditorium. Admission is $5 for adults, $3 for students, children 3 and under receive free admission.

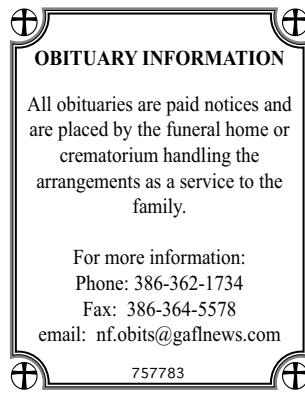

Drug Takeback

The national day for Prescription Drug Take Back will be held in Hamilton County on Saturday, September 29. The locations are the Jennings Public Library, the City Park of Jasper and the Police Department in White Springs. The hours of the event are from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

We encourage anyone that has old prescription drugs that they no longer need - that need to be disposed - to please bring them and turn them in.

This is anonymous—no names, no signing any papers, just dump the drugs. The Department of Drug Enforcement will pick them up from our law enforcement for them to be incinerated safely. This means they will not be going back into our soil or water supply.

We encourage everyone to dispose of old drugs on a regular basis. Everyone can help prevent prescription abuse and overdosing, as well as possible death by removing them from our homes. This removes the temptation for others who may have an addiction to prescription drugs or a young person that is pressured by others to try them.

Heart Matters

By Angie Land

I doubt if anyone has ever been through a difficult time without asking or at least thinking: "How did I get here?" Sometimes we realize we had no control over the struggles we are facing, and yet, other times we have to face the reality that we alone are responsible. Whatever the case, we can conclude that our trials are not without purpose...it is an opportunity to grow, learn, mature, and prepare for what lies ahead. Therefore, it is wise to determine, if possible, why we are experiencing such a season.

At the end of Deuteronomy, chapter one, Moses recounts the reason behind Israel's forty-year stint in the wilderness. In summary, spies were chosen from each of the twelve tribes to report on the best strategy for acquiring the land God had promised. Instead, ten of the twelve returned terrified and spread the news that it was an impossible task, and like wildfire, fear spread to the point that not going into the Promised Land was the preferable choice. At this point, God displayed His anger, and after destroying the ten who spread a bad report, pronounced the verdict: Not one over the age of twenty would enter the land, but would die in the wilderness...all except Caleb and Joshua who remained faithful. Those under twenty years old would remain in the desert for forty years...one year for each of the forty days the spies explored the land. Therefore, God told Moses to have the Israelites turn around and head back into the desert. (See Numbers 14:20-35)

Instead of accepting God's judgment, what the Israelites do next is something we need to pay close attention to, because we have the same tendency: Numbers 14:39-40 records: "When Moses reported this to all the Israelites, they mourned bitterly. Early the next morning they went up toward the high hill country. "We have sinned," they said. "We will go up to the place the Lord promised."

I suppose in light of dying in the desert or spending an extra forty years wandering around, going into the land God has promised doesn't seem so scary all of the sudden. Does this sound like a teenager who offers to clean her room AFTER you take the car keys...or the employee who promises to show up on time AFTER they are fired...or the spouse who agrees to counseling, AFTER you threaten to leave? The Israelites tried it anyway and were "attacked and beaten down." God was not fooled by this gesture of remorse, because He knew it was not true repentance. I can't help but wonder what would have happened at this point if the Israelites had truly repented over their lack of faith.

"Godly sorrow brings repentance that leads to salvation and leaves no regret, but worldly sorrow brings death." (1Corinthians 7:10)

Worldly sorrow is only sorry that it was caught and now faces consequences. However, if those consequences can be avoided, everything will go back like before...no change will occur. Godly sorrow involves remorse over causing pain to another, especially God. Godly sorrow causes us to confess in order to restore the relationship, and makes us willing to face consequences in order to pay our debt.

Repentance is critical to our relationship with God and others, so let's admit that fixing things our way just creates a bigger mess, and practice real repentance...because every heart matters.

Blessings, Angie

Freedom is Here Social justice and mercy

By Pastor John Whittington

James 2:1 My brothers and sisters, believers in our glorious Lord Jesus Christ must not show favoritism.

James 2:8-9 If you really keep the royal law found in Scripture, "Love your neighbor as yourself," you are doing right. But if you show favoritism, you sin and are convicted by the law as lawbreakers.

I've heard many times, "Ours is not merely a social Gospel!" I agree. But the Gospel also extends into rules for holy living and social interaction. As Christians we are called to be a community of justice and mercy.

If you want to see what kind of community James is saying we ought to be you need to look at something that took place in Acts 6. Maybe you've looked at this story before, but I think we often miss the cultural implications.

In the early church, before Christianity had really spread beyond the Jewish people, there were two kinds of Jewish believers. Acts 6 mentions them. One group was made up of Hellenistic Jews. Hellenistic Jews spoke Greek, understood Greek, and thought in Greek. They were more cosmopolitan, more city-oriented. More "modern." They had their own culture. There were also Hebrew speaking Jews. They were closer to the Old Testament practices; probably more traditional in their culture.

The Bible talks about the daily distribution of food in this passage. The early church had a structure that was designed to take care of those who had material needs - such as the widows. Church members gave to a common fund, and would draw from this fund to get food for the needy.

The Hellenistic Jews complained because their windows were being short-changed in the daily distribution of food. Acts tells us that the apostles appointed a whole new class of leaders over the daily distribution of food. Now you might miss this if you read the passage in English. But every one of the people the apostles selected, prayed over and sent forth to distribute the food had a Greek name.

The Greeks complained that their widows were being overlooked. So the disciples picked a new group of leadership over the food ministry, and each one of them was a Greek! What the apostles did in a subtle way, was empower a cultural minority. They created advocates for a group that wasn't being represented. The apostles were living out being a community of justice and mercy.

These faith-based works eventually gave the body of Christ a prominent place in society, time and time again, throughout history. I believe that when the modern American church gets creative in carrying out social justice and mercy, we will regain the relevance we once enjoyed in this culture!

The doctrine of Satan

Part I

Is the Devil a living reality, or is he nothing more than a figment of the imagination? Is the word "Satan" merely a symbol of wickedness, or is he real? In some circles it has become the custom for people to flatly deny the existence of the "Tempter". Among some people it is regarded as a mark of intellectual superiority to refuse to recognize the personality of The Devil. Some see him as some monster in human form, having horns, hoofs, and a forked tail. Some use him as a bogey man to frighten children.

It needs to be said that all the above conceptions are far from the truth. The fact that these beliefs have become so wide spread is largely due to the absence of knowledge of the teaching of God's Word; ignorance concerning the Satan of the Holy Scriptures. It is to Satan's interest to keep people in such ignorance.

The Devil has always worked secretly and sought to hide his true identity. When he misled Eve in the Garden of Eden, he did so through a serpent. When he appeared before God to accuse Job, he waited until a day when "the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan came also among them" (Job 1:6). When he sowed his "tares", he did so secretly in the night (Matthew 13:25). When he betrayed the Lord Jesus, he worked through Judas. Satan is an expert at disguising himself: he comes not as a Dragon of Darkness but "is transformed into an angel of light" (2 Cor. 11:14).

These are some of the personal names that he is called by. Thirty-five times he is called The Devil, which means "The accuser" or "Slanderer". Fifty-two times he is called "Satan" which means "Enemy" or "Adversary". He is God's enemy and man's adversary. "Satan" refers to his character; the malignant adversary of all good in God or His creatures. "Devil" refers to his mode of carrying out his evil designs: by lying, slander, false accusation, by leading in his evil ways. He is called "The Prince of this World" (John 14:10). He is called "Beelzebub" (Matt. 17:27). Other names: "Wicked One" (Matt. 13:19); "Appollyon" (Rev. 9:11); "The Prince of the Power of The Air" (Eph. 2:2); "Lucifer" which means "morning star" (Isa 14:12). This was his title before his fall. He is "The god of this age" (2 Cor. 4:4). He is a "Liar and the Father of it" (John 8:44). These and other titles are meaningless unless he is a personal being.

As we approach this time of year when so many do all the ungodly things of Halloween, I want you to know this is of the Devil. Here it is mid-September and you already see all the stuff in stores to promote it. It is so commercialized that last year it was second only to Christmas. A Christian should have no part in this so called holiday. Next week in Part II I will provide the history of Halloween.

We are told in I Thess. 5:22 to "abstain from all appearances of evil". We are to honor the things of Light not the things of Darkness.

Football - Trojans fall to Bradford, 40-24

Volleyball now 2-4

The Trojan football team is coming through.

Submitted

Sending a big shout to the coaches and athletes on campus at Hamilton County High School. The volleyball teams won their games last week and the record is now 2-4. Thank you to the entire community for supporting Friday night football.

Our team played their hearts out even though Bradford pulled the game out and won it 40-24. It was great seeing so many fans out in the red school color. The students see you and they appreciate the support. We thank parents for the use of their children for without them, there is no athletic department.

There were many staff members from other schools who assisted in the concession stand. TEAM WORK! Our next home game is Sept. 28, which is homecoming. The Trojans will take on Dixie County. If you missed the first game, you want to be sure to make this one.

Don't forget the Middle School football game on Sept. 25 when they take on Baker County here at HCHS. Kick-off is at 7 p.m.

As we work towards homecoming, we ask all businesses, churches and anyone with an outside marquee to please post "GO TROJANS." Thank you so much.

The secrets of life

Beth Harris, CSCS, CHFS
bethharrisfitness@gmail.com

Marooned between Italy and North Africa, Sardinia is the second largest island in the Mediterranean Sea, and one of the most ancient bodies of land in Europe. Most known for its stunning coastlines scattered with prehistoric castles, temples and tombs; Sardinia is also known for it's vivacious and tenacious population.

'Akent' annos', what you might hear parusing the countryside meaning 'may you live to be 100 years old'. An expression Sardenians take to heart. As of 2004 on average in the Sardinian city Nuoro hosts 19 centenarians per 100,000 people versus the 10 per 100,000 in the United States. Men take note: in Sardinia females outnumber male centenarians only 2.7:1, versus the 5.6:1 in most developed countries. Until a recent death, 5 of the worlds 40 oldest people live in Sardinia. With lifestyles as full and robust as their ages one must wonder, what do they know that we don't?

Of all the Italian regions Sardinia has the lowest fertility rate: 1.087 births per woman, and second lowest birth rate; illuminating the fact the island is not overpopulating, thus preserving the natural environment.

As self-sustaining communities go, Sard's are up at dawn tending to vegetables, chasing livestock, chopping wood, tending to the household; then retire at dusk ensuring their circadian rhythm is in harmony with their environment.. You'll find men as old as 80 years on the mountainside herding goat and sheep—a primary occupation of the locals.

With organic, clean diets that are plant based and free of junk food and preservatives, it's no wonder they're so resilient. Their low glycemic index, plant-based diets consist of mostly vegetables, legumes, and whole grains with small amounts of cheese and occasional lean meat.

Sards grow their own organic vegetables, swapping produce with neighbors for variety. Eggplant, broad beans, green beans, onions, garlic, tomatoes, zucchini, artichokes, fennel, potatoes, capers, olives, and herbs such as parsley and mint fill their sauces, salads, soups, pastas, and meat dishes. Instead of sugar Sard's use raw honey to sweeten food. They make their own bread and pasta from whole wheat flour; grow grapes high in antioxidants for food and wine, of which they have a healthy dose at each meal; eat plenty of nuts, walnuts and almonds from their own nut trees, of which they climb themselves of course!

The sheep and goats feed on grass, ensuring their milk and cheese is chock full of the anti-inflammatory omega 3 essential fatty acid, which helps prevent cancer and heart disease. Their milk is un-pasteurized, therefore more digestible than our industrialized milk, and the cheese is fermented with beneficial bacteria.

The key to Sardinian longevity is more than just exercise and diet; it's a way of life.

To the Sard's, family is of utmost importance. They respect their elders, look out for one another, and speak their minds when they're displeased (wonder where the word 'Sardonic' came from?). In the early 1900's Voche Deiana passed at the age of 124. I wonder what Signore Deiana would say was the secret to a long life? Maybe it would go something like this:

Wake and sleep with the sun, eat clean, exercise daily, be self-sustaining, work the land, cherish nature, and love with all your might.

Counselor's Corner by Paula G. Williams

We are ending our 4th week of school and so many exciting things are going on. Progress reports are being sent home. Parent, please ask your child for the progress report and be sure to discuss it. If you do not get a progress report from child, come to the school and pick it up.

There is literary term each week and we ask that families inquire about these terms from their children and discuss them. It will be helpful if you use them when applicable as well. It is the same term school wide.

We email out, post on Facebook and will make every effort to include terms in this article. The terms this week are compare and contrast – pertaining to a written exercise about the similarities and differences between two or more people, places or things. Get your child to compare this article to the previous week's article and then contrast the two.

We are working smarter to meet the needs of our families. Your frontline of assistance is found in our front desk reception area. You are greeted by Carol Harvey or Kim Fenneman. We are here to help and if we cannot, we strive to refer you to someone who can. We ask that you work with us and we do our best following the guidelines. Please make sure you have identification with you when requesting visitor passes, etc. These ladies will gladly get the pass for you, but they do have to follow this protocol.

Please make sure your child's check out list has been updated. If you send someone to pick up your child and they are not listed, we cannot release your child. Thank you so much in advance for helping us keep your children safe on this campus.

Student achievement is our primary concern and all staff members are called on to help when they can. This past week, among his other resource officer obligations, Officer Williams had to tutor.

He said, "Now I have to tutor...what else will be added to my plate?"

He knows it is all in a day's work at HCHS and he does it with a smile. We are seeking mentors on and off campus. If you are looking for a challenge and you would like to give your time, talents, and resources, please call Ms. Williams. We have some students who need you.

Stephanie Reynolds was the guest AVID speaker last week. She talked about her job as the Jasper Postmaster.

"This is a very exciting job and I got my start right in Hamilton County Schools," Reynolds said. "I am a 1990 graduate and I can tell you what you are doing right now will make the difference. I always wanted to be better than average and that is what I tell my children. I started in other positions in postal service but I wanted more. I worked and prepared myself to be in position for advancement. Hard work pays off and I continue to want for more and I am still in school making that happen. The military had been a major influence on my life. I enlisted in the United States Army right after high school and there I learned so much about being a leader. I was proud to wear that uniform and serve my country. I am still in the reserves and I have military friends all over the world. My military experience helps me each day in my role as postmaster. We have seen many changes in our services since the arrival of email, twitter, Facebook, UPS, FedEx and other services. It is our goal each day to remain competitive and keep the customer happy."

Reynolds gave the students a brief account of what the day in the life of a postmaster may be, sharing with them the requirements it takes to function in this role. AVID students were well-prepared and asked so many intelligent, higher order questions.

Ms. Williams thanked Ms. Reynolds for taking from her busy day to share with students.

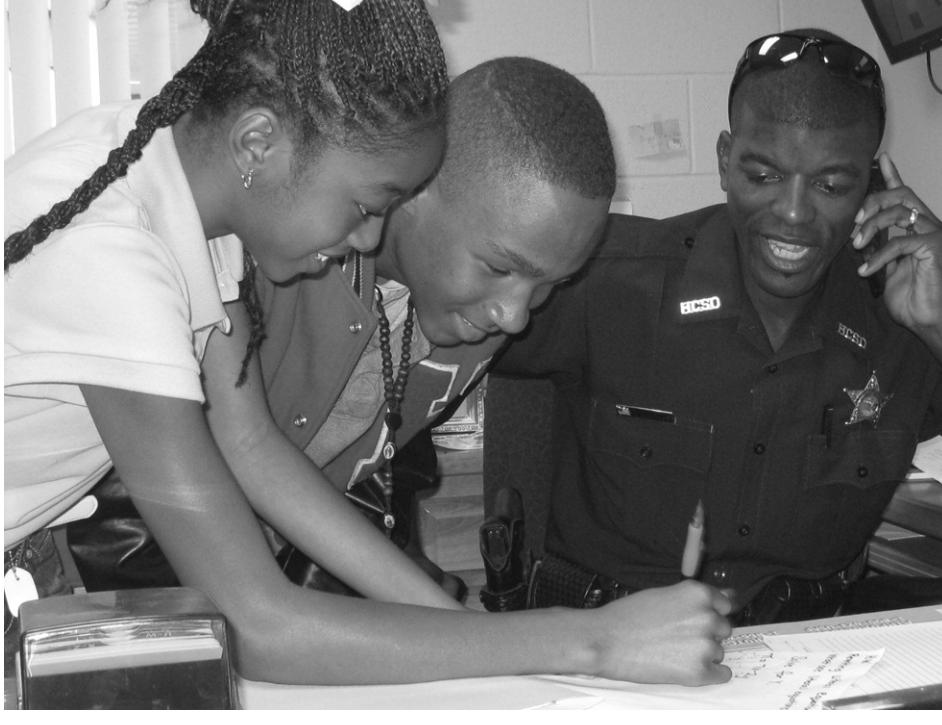

She added, "What makes me proudest of all is the fact that Stephanie is a one of my former students, a Hamilton graduate, a HCHS parent and a productive citizen in Hamilton County."

The group enjoyed edible stamps in the form of cupcakes, compliments of the postmaster.

Stay tuned for more at WHCH.

Around the Banks of the Suwannee

By Correspondent Johnny Bullard

Not too long ago, I began to think about snipe Hunting. How many folks in our area were ever taken on a snipe hunt? A lot of the younger folks won't even know what I am referring in this article. Unless snipe hunt is a computer game, forget it. Truly, I can vividly recall when the sometimes innocent or vapid or those who came from the city or maybe those from up north were treated to a snipe hunt. What is it?

Those who are going on the hunt are taken after dark to a large open field, and they are given a fairly good sized burlap bag, "Crocus bags", what we "crackers" here locally called "Croaker Bags", and, at times, the hunter was given a wooden stick or spoon and a pot or pan, usually one that would make a good bit of noise when you struck with a wooden object. The hunter was told that snipes responded to beating sounds, and they would be sure and catch many in the sack if they would just beat the pot or pan and yell in a loud voice "snipe", "snipe", "snipe"...

Oh, by the way, a "snipe" is supposed to be a good sized bird, and the hunter would be told, by his host "A delicacy to eat... So be sure and catch all you can!!"

Now please know that this writer, while being a part of many hunting expeditions, never actually participated in a snipe hunt as a participant, but this writer has explained the parameters of the snipe hunt to those who, unwarily, set out on the expedition and then this writer waited on the porch of the farm house, as the snipe hunters hunted and hunted. They were told to cover much of farm you see, so it took them a while.

Sitting on the front porch in the rocking chairs rocking back and forth and laughing till the tears ran from my eyes, as the poor hunters beat the pots and pans and yelled "snipe! snipe! snipe!!" and then taking a few more steps and beating the pan again. If there was a long pause in the beating of the pots and pans, and the yelling, we would often drive out to the field and locate the hunters and encourage them with "Don't give up now. I just saw some big ones move over to other side of the farm close to the river." Sometimes encouragement, too, was a huge part of the fun and sport associated with the snipe hunt.

Well, it was all done in good fun, and, finally, we would relate to the poor hunters that their hunt was in vain, and we would have a good laugh and swear we would not to tell a soul that the hunters had fallen prey to an old trick and joke. Of course this was done, "tongue in cheek", as we couldn't wait to tell.

For a few days at school, others would see them in the hall and call out snipe, and then gales of laughter would ensue, but, as I said, it was in good fun.

Recently, and I am going to be a bit serious now,

I have read, with interest, about bullying that takes place in many of our schools. It has become a major problem in some schools.

There have always been bullies and there always will be. Usually they like to "pick on" weaker, more shy individuals who are more introverted. In my day, there was lot of name calling associated with it, "Fatty fatty two by four, can't fit through the bathroom door," "Four eyes", for those who wore glasses, "I'd rather be dead than red on the head", for those who had red hair and on and on it went. Truthfully, almost everyone was guilty of doing some of it, but some people made it a mission. Usually the bullies were those who were physically stronger but mentally more deficient.

Now, once in a while you would find one that was smart and mean, and then you really had something on your hands.

Also, bullies then, as now, usually were carrying, unseen to the eye, a car load of self-esteem problems, maybe some self-loathing problems, maybe some issues with what was going at home, such as being "bullied" by someone even, at times a family member, and many times a car load of "good old fashioned prejudice and narrow mindedness."

In my day I don't remember much of it reaching a point that a child wanted to take his or her own life, but I came along in a day when, in the public schools of this area, they would and had the authority to "tear your behind up" and ask questions later. That is not the fashion today. In my day, the teachers were THE authority, and the principal, well, you did not want to see the principal. If you got in trouble at school, it was "double" at home.

Parents today certainly need to be "tuned in" to what their child has to say about how he or she is being treated by others at school, and not just teacher, but peers. Listen carefully and talk to your child a good bit. I can assure you that some of what is happening today is not a silly snipe hunt.

Will bullying come to an end? Sadly, it will not. Human nature is human nature and humans can be wonderfully kind, and they can be terribly cruel. That is the truth, but, through knowing YOUR child and talking to YOUR child and being in tune with YOUR child, you can find out whether he/she is being bullied or if he/she is the bully.

The snipe hunts of my childhood and teen years were done in good fun. Were they a form of mild bullying? Yes, they were, but I knew and those around me knew, if we took it too far, we would answer to my parents, and while at times, my own conscience might have waned, it picked up in "vivid color" when I thought of them. I loved them dearly, but I had a healthy respect for them. I still do.

Childhood and school years should be wonderful, pleasant years for children. Don't let your child's school years be marred or made unpleasant because of bullying. Keep your eyes and ears opened and don't let the snipe hunt go on too long. There is a fine line between teasing in good fun and pure mean spirited bullying and who knows when that line has been crossed? You know it. When your feelings are truly hurt "more than once", and you've asked for it to stop and it doesn't. Most folks never went on but one snipe hunt. Don't let yourself become a victim of bullying. You are important, and you are valued, and you don't deserve it. Don't let ANYONE keep you on the snipe hunt longer than you want to be on it.
