Pipeline open house draws protesters

By Joyce Marie Taylor
joycemarie.taylor@gafnews.com

Sabal Trail Transmission LLC representatives held an open house event on Tuesday, Oct. 21, in Jasper, which drew a large crowd of local, and not so local, residents who wanted to learn more about the project, as well as others who came to voice their objections to the project in general. Protesters from SpectraBusters, a citizen-organized, citizen-run group that spans multiple counties and states, were out on US 129 with posters alerting motorists to say no to the pipeline.

Sabal Trail Pipeline project

It all began in December 2012, when Florida Power and Light issued a solicitation for a new project, which has come to be known as the Sabal Trail Pipeline project, a natural gas pipeline that would run from a natural gas hub in Choctaw County, Alabama, down through Georgia and into Florida, ending in Kissimmee, south of Orlando.

Spectra Energy Corporation submitted a bid and joined

Commissioners to spend upfront money for Project Bark

"This is the pre-negotiation," County Coordinator Louie Goodin said. "This is what brings them to the table."

By Joyce Marie Taylor

At their Oct. 21 meeting, the Hamilton County Board of County Commissioners voted to spend close to $50,000 upfront for a geotechnical survey and compaction study of the proposed site for Project Bark, a state-of-the-art wood pellet manufacturing plant, as well as hire a specialist to draw up the economic development agreement.

"There are very few entities that do this type of work," said County Coordinator Louie Goodin.

Commission Chair Josh Smith said it would be prudent and wise to do the study, so that they know for certain ahead of time that the site is useable.

The proposed site is on US 41 near Genoa. The land is currently owned by White Springs Agricultural Chemi-

Marketing group gets green light from TDC County commissioners have final say

By Joyce Marie Taylor
joycemarie.taylor@gafnews.com

Lorena (Lori) Regan and Paulette Lord from Suwannee River Valley Marketing Group (SRVMG) presented their annual report to the Hamilton County Board of County Commissioners on Tuesday, Oct. 7.

SRVMG is a tri-county tourism initiative that has been serving Suwannee, Columbia and Hamilton counties. They market themselves as the official tourism marketing company for the Suwannee River Valley area. The group offers assistance in all areas of tourism, recreation, festivals and events promotion, and sports marketing in the tri-county area, which includes Lake City, Live Oak and White Springs.

"Each county puts in a portion of money that comes out of the Tourist Development Council's funds to do joint marketing throughout the region and also throughout the southeast," said Lord.

In the past, Hamilton County has contributed $4,000 to the marketing group, Suwannee County contributes $6,000 and Columbia County contributes $25,000.

"We take that money and we match it for a grant with the Department of Economic Opportunity," said Lord. "We're asking you to support that again this year. We're getting ready to put the new grant in. It gives us $70,000 marketing money to help promote our area."

Commission Chair Josh Smith stated that at the last meeting of the Hamilton County Tourist Development Council (TDC), their board unanimously voted to discontinue participation with SRVMG. Smith said the reason was "because of what they felt was lack of support and advertisement for the county."

"The TDC felt like they could probably find a way to advertise Hamilton County in a more defined way for the amount of $4,000," said Smith.

It was clarified by legal counsel that the decision to participate in the program with SRVMG was up to the TDC.

"We base our decision on the recommendation of the TDC," said Commissioner Randy Ogburn.

Lord said they were scheduled to appear before the TDC the following day.

Smith said the big issue is the limited bed tax they receive, due to lack of hotel and motel accommodations in Hamilton County. He added that there isn't enough revenue coming in to justify paying $4,000 to SRVMG.

"It's not that they don't like it, but it comes down to having a balanced budget at the end of the year," Smith said.

TDC meeting

The Hamilton County Tourist Development Council met on Wednesday, Oct. 8, and after hearing the presentation from SRVMG, the board voted to approve staying in the program.

The TDC board members are all volunteer. They are Commissioner Josh Smith (chairman), Ajay Gandhi, Richard McCulley, William Mitchell, Dennis Price, Dot Robinson, Shirley Smith and Keith Wynn. They meet the second Wednesday of every month at 12 noon.

Now that the TDC has approved staying in the marketing group and agreeing to the $4,000 figure, the matter will again come before the board of county commissioners. Although the TDC has their own budget, the county manages its finances and will have the final say.

Chocolate Chip Nutella Frappe

I have always been a coffee lover. I can remember my dad always giving me some of his coffee, and, if I was lucky, he would give me my own little cup. As I got older, iced coffees and frappes became an everyday necessity for me. Although going out for my caffeine addiction was quicker and more convenient, it was also getting more expensive, pushing me to experiment at home. This homemade frappe will make you feel like you're sitting at your favorite coffee shop. Drink with caution: the completed product is highly addictive!

Larracuent

Ingredients:

- 1 Cup Ice
- 1 Cup Milk
- 1 tsp Instant Coffee (optional)
- 3 Tbsp Nutella
- 1/4 Cup Milk Chocolate Chips
- 1 Tbsp Whipped Cream

Directions:

1. Place all ingredients in a blender. Blend for about 30 seconds.
2. Stir mixture, making sure to get any chunks from the bottom of the blender.
3. Pulse until all ingredients are evenly combined.
4. For a thicker frappe, blend in more ice. For a more liquid frappe, pulse in more milk.

5. Pour into a large glass and top with whipped cream and extra chocolate chips or hot fudge.

6. Grab a good book and enjoy your at-home cafe!

Optional ingredients: Replace the nutella with 1 cup of peanut butter for the peanut butter lovers; Replace the nutella with vanilla ice cream and 1 tsp of pumpkin spice for the fall season; And, of course, I always encourage experimenting with some of your favorite ingredients.

Fall back. Save water, save money

On the first Sunday in November, Daylight Saving Time will end and Standard Time resumes. This is also a signal to change our water conservation strategies throughout the Suwannee River Water Management District (District). Lawn and landscape irrigation for residents and commercial entities within the District boundaries will shift to once per week.

The District's year round lawn and landscape irrigation measures ensure the efficient use of water is maintained for healthy landscapes year round. These measures follow the best management practices for lawns and landscapes and will help ensure healthy landscapes. The watering measures apply to residential landscaping; public, commercial, and industrial property; hotels and motels; and public medians. Agricultural and other large irrigation uses are restricted year round through the water use permitting program.

Numerous local governments throughout the District have embraced and adopted ordinances to support the conservation of water. Key guidelines include:

- Irrigation should not occur between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.
- No more than 3/4 inch of water or the depth of a five ounce tuna can, may be applied per irrigation zone per day.
- Water no more than one hour per irrigation zone.

• Odd numbered or no address locations are permitted to water on Saturdays

• Even numbered address locations are permitted to water on Sundays

The District encourages the use of Florida-Friendly Landscaping principles and skipping irrigation days when it rains near the time you plan to irrigate. Landscapes require less irrigation in the winter because cooler temperatures and shorter days mean slower growth and reduced evaporation. Reducing irrigation can be a cost savings for home owners and commercial entities alike.

"This transition is an opportunity for all water stewards to adopt these guidelines for the health of our regional resources," says Executive Director, Ann Shortelle, Ph.D.

For more information about landscape irrigation measures or to learn more about conservation visit www.mysuwanneeriver.com/waterconservation.

Africa: A tragic continent

VIEW

© 2014 Creators Syndicate

BY WALTER WILLIAMS

Here's how my Aug. 11, 2003, column began: "Anyone who believes President Bush's Africa initiative, including sending U.S. troops to Liberia, will amount to more than a hill of beans is whistling Dixie. Maybe it's overly pessimistic, but most of Africa is a continent without much hope for its people." More than a decade has passed since that assessment, and little has changed to suggest a more optimistic outlook. Now Ebola threatens the very existence of the West African nations Liberia, Sierra Leone and Guinea. Moreover, the deadly disease is likely to spread to neighboring nations.

Each year, The Wall Street Journal and The Heritage Foundation publish an "Index of Economic Freedom," which measures economic liberty around the world. Mauritius is the only one of the 48 countries in sub-Saharan Africa to rank among the 10 freest economies in the world. Botswana is the second-freest African country, followed by Cape Verde. South Africa used to be near the top but has since declined. Of the other sub-Saharan countries, 11 are rated as "repressed" and 26 are "mostly unfree." Eight of the world's 20 least free economies are in Africa's sub-Saharan region.

Poverty is not a cause but a result of Africa's problems. What African countries need the West cannot provide. They need personal liberty. That means a political system in which there are guarantees of private property rights, free markets, honest government and the rule of law. Africa's poverty is, for the most part, self-inflicted. Some people might disagree because their college professors taught them that the legacy of colonialism explains Third World poverty. That's nonsense. Canada was a colony. So were Australia, New Zealand and Hong Kong. In fact, the richest country in the world, the United States, was once a colony. By contrast, Third World countries such as Ethiopia, Liberia, Nepal and Bhutan were never colonies, yet they are home to some of the world's poorest people.

There's no complete explanation for why some countries are affluent while others are poor, but there are some leads. Rank countries according to whether they are closer to being a free market economy or whether they're closer to having a socialist or planned economy. Then rank countries by per capita income. Doing so, we will find a general, though not perfect, pattern whereby those having a larger measure of economic freedom find their citizens enjoying a higher standard of living. Also, if we ranked countries according to how Freedom House or Amnesty International rates human rights protections, we'd find that citizens of freer market economies enjoy a greater measure of human rights protections. You can bet the rent money that the correlation among free markets, wealth and human rights protections is not coincidental.

With but few exceptions, most African countries are worse off now than they were during colonialism, both in terms of standard of living and in terms of human rights protections. Once a food-exporting country, Zimbabwe recently stood near the brink of starvation. Sierra Leone is rich in minerals -- especially diamonds -- has highly fertile land and is the best port site in West Africa, but it has declined into a state of utter despair. Africa is the world's most natural-resources-rich continent. It has 50 percent of the world's gold, most of the world's diamonds and chromium, 90 percent of the cobalt, 40 percent of the world's potential hydroelectric power, 65 percent of the manganese, and millions of acres of untilled farmland, as well as other natural resources. Before independence, every African country was self-sufficient in food production; today many depend on imports, and others stand at the brink of famine.

Though there's a strong case for us to help with the Ebola crisis, the worst thing Westerners could do to Africa would be to send more foreign aid. Foreign aid provides the financial resources that enable Africa's grossly corrupt and incompetent regimes to buy military equipment, pay off cronies and continue to oppress their people. It also provides resources for the leaders to live lavishly and set up "retirement" accounts in foreign banks.

About those holiday health hazards

Dwain Walden
The Moultrie Observer

The older I get the more attention I pay to health news. I'm always looking to see what breakthroughs are being reported, and specifically I look for that research that declares fried chicken to be good for me — that it has been misunderstood all these years. I haven't seen it yet.

I recently read a story titled "Why are the Holidays So Hazardous to Our Health?" Strangely it didn't mention egg nog, road traffic, or people who really think they can climb down a chimney. Mostly it had to do with diet and stress.

Right up front the story notes that how we eat between Halloween and Christmas is a tremendous challenge to our immune system. It's all about our basic biochemistry.

Now most of us will only have a layman's idea of biochemistry. We know some cause-and-effect scenarios such as eating a lot of dried beans, but we don't necessarily have a handle on the biology, chemistry and human physiology that interact.

"We eat a lot more refined sugar, for instance, which is a carbohydrate that's been stripped of all the vitamins, minerals and proteins that make up a complete carbohydrate. Our bodies can't use that, so the cells in our digestive organs work overtime, burning up a lot of energy, vitamins and minerals to digest it, and they get nothing back. So, eventually, they grow weak," says Dr. John Young, who is quoted throughout this story.

And this is not a Ph.D. guy. This is a doctor who can remove your appendix and give you a shot of penicillin.

And while the doctor says we don't have to totally give up refined sugar treats and other goodies that tend to enlarge us and slow us down, we don't have to eat them all. Reading between the lines, I saw moderation and common sense, neither of which can be taken in a pill nor can it be legislated — perhaps a major frailty of mankind.

Probably very few of us think in terms of proteins and carbohydrates when we eat. More than likely we think in terms of white meat or dark meat, mild or spicy, baked or fried, now or later.

This doctor says we need to pay particular attention to vitamin D. The best source, he says, is sunshine but the fear of skin cancer has impacted that design. And so he recommends supplements.

"It helps fight bacterial and viral infections, including the flu. It supports our cardiovascular system; optimal vitamin D levels can reduce hypertension, heart attacks and stroke," he says.

And he suggests one gram of protein for every 2.2 pounds of body weight daily. He says that we tend to think fruits and vegetables are the crux of a healthy diet. But he notes the importance of protein. So in my book, he's getting pretty close to that fried chicken thing.

Now before the thought of algebra scares us off, let's put this in kitchen talk when it comes to protein intake. An egg has about 8 grams of protein. And 8 ounces of fish, chicken, beef or pork have about 30 grams. You can take the math from there if you are honest about your weight — not the weight you have on your driver's license.

Then he offers: "Get a good night's sleep, exercise, and manage your stress."

As for stress, the good doctor advises us to take a walk in the woods, listen to music or perhaps meditate. Now let me add to that thing about taking a walk in the woods. During deer season I would advise you stay out of the woods. And even then don't wear any of those fake antlers. And if you're wife joins you, ask her not to call you "dear."

Dr. Young does not mention novice deer hunters in his holiday health analysis. But the data is there. We read about those tragedies every hunting season.

HEART MATTERS

cessfully settle a conflict requires being consciously aware that the outcome might be less than originally hoped for. The resolution may be acceptable, but not optimal. There can be resistance to using compromise as an approach to conflict resolution strategy when the result seems like a loss. However, if the focus is on what is achieved, rather than on what has been given up, there is a greater likelihood that the parties will leave with feelings of satisfaction. Compromise is more successful when both parties have a range of likely outcomes that are open for consideration such that the final decision is one that remains within the scope of that range.

Compromise can be an effective method for resolving conflict, but it is not always the best choice. Resorting to compromise when other conflict strategies may be more appropriate can result in an outcome that is not effective in the long run. It is important that vital issues or principles are not lost in the course of compromise. All differences do not need to be negotiated. Effective individuals know when to use compromise and when other approaches to problem solving are needed. May we grow in the wisdom to know the difference, because every heart matters!

Blessings,
Angie

Keeping the county safe

Hamilton County Emergency Management and Florida Department of Health-Hamilton County, along with Hamilton County Sheriff's Office and Hamilton County Emergency Medical Services, have stayed busy the past couple of months attending meetings and training sessions on how to keep the residents of Hamilton County safe from not only Ebola, but all blood-borne pathogens.

"We want to make sure all of our First Responders know the how, what and where of all types of diseases, and what personal protective equipment they need to wear and when," said Pam Allen from Emergency Management.

On that same note, on Oct. 23, the health department and Hamilton County Emergency Management hosted an evening of training for daycare workers and private schools in Hamilton County.

Health Department Director Nancy Sult presented information about Enterovirus D68 and the importance of hand washing. This is a virus that is prevalent in infants, children and teenagers. It has flu-like symptoms, but can also cause mild to severe respiratory illness.

To keep your child from getting and spreading the enterovirus, or any virus, is to:

- Avoid close contact with sick people.
- Cover your coughs and sneezes.
- Wash your hands often with soap and water.
- Clean and disinfect surfaces.
- Avoid touching your face with unwashed hands.
- Stay home when you are sick.

Paul wrote in 1st Thessalonians chapter 5 verse 22: "Abstain from every form of evil" (NKJ). The Amplified Bible says it this way "Abstain from evil-shrink from it and keep aloof from it- in whatever form or whatever kind it may be". The NIV says "Avoid every kind of evil". The KJ says "Abstain from all appearance of evil". The Living Bible says "Keep away from every kind of evil".

Every translation of the Bible warns us as Christians to stay away, avoid, have no dealing with even the appearance of evil. According to statistics, Halloween has replaced Easter as the second most commercialized time of the year. Christians spend millions of dollars on costumes, décor, and other things that support evil appearance.

Many today treat the Devil as a figment of the imagination. Some worship him, some flatly deny his existence. It does not matter what mankind thinks of him, the Bible teaches us he is real and is seeking to destroy humanity. He is not something having horns and a forked tail;

he is real.

The Devil has always worked secretly and sought to hide his true identity. When he misled Eve in the Garden of Eden, he did so through a serpent. When he appeared before God to accuse Job, he waited until a day when "the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan came also among them" (Job 1:6). When he sowed his "tares", he did so secretly in the night (Matthew 13:25). When he betrayed the Lord Jesus, he worked through Judas. Satan is an expert at disguising himself; he comes not as a Dragon of darkness but "is transformed into an angel of light" (2nd Cor. 11:14).

The idea of observing October 31st as a holiday originated with the ancient Celtic priests, called "Druids", around 300 B.C. The Druids lived in the area between Great Britain and Germany. Their new year began on November 1st, so October 31st was set aside to worship their god, Samhain, the god of the dead. So October 31st was the Celtic New Year's Eve, the time for their Festival of Death.

The Druids taught that the spirit world was closer to earth on this night than at any other time, and that "the gods" would even appear on this night to play tricks on people.

Friends, Halloween is Satanic! You may pretend that it's a harmless game for kids, but in reality it represents paganism, Satanism, human sacrifice, torture, rape, murder, idolatry, witchcraft, and spiritualism! Did you know that October 31st is considered by Satanists to be their most important day of the year? Friend, WAKE UP! Don't honor the Devil! Honor God instead by refusing to observe Halloween this year. The Lord Jesus Christ wouldn't dress innocent children up like the devils of Hell and march them around town, so why should you? Are you a TRUE follower of Jesus Christ? Then SKIP Halloween this year and tell others to do likewise! (This paragraph taken from "The Fisherman's Ministry".)

"Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils," (1st Tim. 4:1). "And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them," (Eph. 5:11). "The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light." (Rom. 13:12).

We, as Christians, should not be involved in Halloween; calling it a Fall Festival does not change what it is. (NOTE: Part 3 of "Heaven" will be next week.)

Commissioners to spend upfront money for Project Bark

cal, Inc. d/b/a PCS Phosphate, who has agreed to sell 97.5 acres to the county, 16 acres of which is wetlands. The land value, according to the Hamilton County Property Appraiser's Office is $227,727.

Engineer Greg Bailey, referring to the Klausner project, said, "Suwannee County had some problems with their site because of not doing a lot of this stuff upfront."

"It went into the millions to fix that problem," Goodin interjected.

The estimated cost to do the study for 40 acres of the proposed parcel is roughly between $15,000-$22,000, both Goodin and Bailey advised the board. However, the board wound up agreeing to do the entire parcel of 97.5 acres, which will up the price.

Commissioner Randy Ogburn made a motion to get three quotes for the survey and study. It was seconded by Commissioner Beth Burnam and passed by a vote of 5-0.

The board also agreed to spend another approximately $29,000 to hire a specialist to draw up the economic development agreement for the project. For reference, Goodin said the cost of Klausner's agreement was in the neighborhood of $65,000-$70,000.

"It's not foreseen to be anywhere near that for this agreement," Goodin said. "At most, half of that. This is normal procedure for most projects of this size."

Ogburn said he was under the impression that Diane Scholz and Jeff Hendry from the Institute of Government would have the resources to draw up the agreement, but Goodin said they didn't. He said a specialist would be able to draft the agreement that would encompass all the state and local agencies involved, and be able to prepare a document that everyone was agreeable to. Attorney John McCormick said it would not be something that would have to go out for bid.

"If this was something that a development authority was handling, instead of us, do they still go out and find people to fix up these agreements, or do they (Attorney) Rhett Bullard and some of the other ones, as part of their council, do it?" Burnam asked.

Consulting Attorney Cliff Adams said, "It's pretty specialized," and McCormick and Ogburn said they believed the development authority also uses an outside source to draw up their agreements.

"As I understood it from what you were telling me, they want a draft of the agreement before they say yay or nay... the Project Bark people," Adams said to Goodin. "So, this is like a prerequisite for them before they decide whether they want to go ahead or not," Adams added, to which Goodin agreed.

"This is the pre-negotiation," Goodin said. "This is what brings them to the table."

Goodin said at first he was somewhat surprised at the cost to hire a specialist and wondered if it was necessary. After taking into consideration all the details involved, including the state and local incentives, grant funds, and acquiring the land, he said the board could disqualify themselves quickly if they took possession of the land in the wrong manner.

"We have to be careful," Goodin said. "This is an area where I don't have the expertise."

Burnam asked McCormick if the Project Bark agreement could be utilized for future agreements with other potential clients with a bit of tweaking and McCormick said, "That's correct."

He also said it would be money well spent to use for another client should Project Bark decide to back out.

Burnam made a motion to allow Goodin and legal staff to move forward with finding a qualified specialist, Commissioner Robert Brown seconded, and the board voted 5-0 in favor of the motion.

When asked by Ogburn, Goodin said he didn't think Project Bark was looking at other sites at this point in time.

"I think they're very receptive at this point," said Goodin.

Goodin also said he asked Scholz if she knew how much money Project Bark had spent on researching the project and she told him they had spent a significant amount already.

"They definitely have some skin in the game at this time," said Goodin.

Smith said he would like to receive some sort of communication from the people at Project Bark.

"This board has received nothing since we made our last offer to them," he said. "We gave them what they asked for and we have received nothing."

"There is some frustration from this office, as well, for the same reason," Goodin said. "Again, I've been advised that this is a normal part of the process." "The no conversation part?" Smith asked.

"There's been conversation, but not a definite yes or no to proceed without that draft (agreement) in place."

"At some point in time, we've got to draw a line and say, look, we've done this, this and this, so how about..." Smith trailed off.

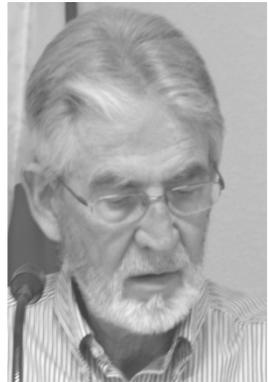

Smith then said he didn't want to spend taxpayer money if the board didn't have proof of a legitimate intent on the part of Project Bark to come into Hamilton County.

"I'm very frustrated about this whole process," said Ogburn. "This ought to be the Economic Development Authority doing this to spend money that we've wrestled with and put down there in their hands to do it with, and we have to spend taxpayer's money to do it. I think that message, somewhere, has got to be relayed to them."

NFBA in trouble

White Springs may need new Internet provider

By Joyce Marie Taylor
joycemarie.taylor@gafnews.com

Walter McKenzie

The town of White Springs held their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 14, and learned they may need to start shopping around for a new Internet provider.

Vice Mayor Walter McKenzie advised the council that the North Florida Broadband Authority (NFBA) operations and management transition agreement with Affinity of Florida was terminated on Sept. 29, after one year at the request of Affinity. McKenzie served on the NFBA board.

"Several weeks earlier, Affinity had concluded that its business model, which primarily was targeting school districts and other community anchor institutions, versus residents and small businesses, they determined that this was not going to be sustainable using the NFBA wireless broadband network, due to recent changes in technology and increased competition in the region, both of which seemed to favor fiber optic networks because they can provide greater Internet capacity and speed to those particular anchor institutions," McKenzie said.

NFBA is now seeking a replacement owner/operator and issued an invitation to negotiate on Oct. 10. The results of that were to be considered by the board of directors on Oct. 22.

"The state of Florida and some other private entities have expressed an interest, but at this time the ultimate outcome is yet to be determined," said McKenzie. "Due to the NFBA's inability to repay a line of credit that has come due, we have notified the governor's office that the NFBA may be facing a condition of financial emergency per state law."

McKenzie added that there has been no word yet from the governor's office, who may offer assistance if another owner/operator is not secured. The National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA) within the Department of Commerce has a secured interest in NFBA's assets and therefore, even though the grant period has ended, they continue to play an oversight role.

"So, we are in a state of transition once again," McKenzie said.

He offered to bring the council up to date on the results of the Oct. 22 meeting at the next meeting of the council. He also said, as far as he knows, there should be no liabilities incumbent upon the counties or towns who are members of NFBA.

Meanwhile, McKenzie told Town Manager Bill Lawrence that he ought to start shopping around for Internet service for town hall. He said they would continue to provide service unless or until they have to terminate service.

"If it comes to that," McKenzie added. "So, I would just have a Plan B ready, which I hope we don't have to go to."

He said NFBA have been experiencing the best Internet service they've ever had by using NFBA.

Pipeline open house draws protesters

forces with NextEra Energy, Inc. in a joint venture to build the Sabal Trail pipeline. They were awarded the project in July 2013.

Sabal Trail Transmission will invest roughly $3 billion in the construction of the pipeline that will access abundant reserves of various regions of the U.S. It will originate in Southwestern Alabama and transport natural gas to Georgia and Florida, terminating at a new Central Florida Hub south of Orlando, where it will interconnect with two existing natural gas pipelines that serve peninsular Florida. To connect with FPL's operations, Florida Southeast Connection will invest about $550 million to construct a separate pipeline from Sabal Trail's Central Florida Hub to FPL's Martin Clean Energy Center in Indiantown.

The Sabal Trail project will include about 465 miles of interstate natural gas pipeline (55 miles in Alabama, 196 miles in Georgia and 214 miles in Florida). The pipeline will be capable of transporting more than 1 billion cubic feet per day of natural gas to serve local distribution companies, industrial users and natural gas-fired power generators in the Southeast.

Open house in Jasper

Since the project was announced, opponents have spoken out against the project and they are gaining in strength across Florida, Georgia and Alabama. Many of them were at the open house event at Florida Gateway Golf and Country Club, just north of the Suwannee-Hamilton county line on US 129.

There was no formal presentation by a speaker, just different tables set up with representatives standing by to explain all facets of the project, including representatives from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), who has the final say as to whether or not the Sabal Trail pipeline will become a reality.

Videos and maps about the project were available to view, along with lots of handouts, including goodies and trinkets to take home, all emblazoned with the Sabal Trail logo. There was also information on rights-of-way and the environmental review process.

Sabal Trail Outreach spokesperson Andrea Grover said, "We've had about 50 of these meetings since we started the project. We're here to answer questions."

Grover explained that FPL had modernization plans in mind to have cleaner burning, electric generating facilities, and decided they needed natural gas, thus, the proposed Sabal Trail pipeline project. Additionally, Grover said, Sabal Trail has been in conversations with Duke Energy, who has plans for a natural gas and generating facility in Citrus County and could benefit from the proposed pipeline. From that point forward, FPL/NextEra will be self-building a pipeline that goes down to their facility at the Martin County Clean Energy Center, just north of Indiantown, Grover added.

The pipeline route, she said, will attempt to parallel existing utilities routes, such as Alabama Power, Georgia Power, Southern Natural Gas and Dixie pipelines, and roadways wherever they can, so that they don't create new corridors.

"About 70 percent, give or take, of the green line (on a map that was presented), parallels those types of things," said Grover. "We have contacted landowners, public officials, and the different environmental agencies all up and down this route since about June 2013," she added.

There are six field offices with the closest ones being in Lake City and Valdosta, Ga. that have personnel who work with landowners on a one-on-one basis and request survey permissions on their properties, Grover said.

The physical surveys and environmental studies take into consideration a multitude of things, including threatened or endangered species, wetlands, karst terrain, underground geology, and historic preservation lands, she explained.

"In doing all of that, we make reroutes and tweaks, and we look at big changes and little changes," said Grover.

One of the bigger changes concerns the route across the Withlacoochee River in Jennings, which they are currently working on. This change was prompted by efforts from local residents in that area, who fiercely objected to the pipeline crossing over an environmentally sensitive area full of karst terrain and sinkholes. Chris Mericle, who led that opposition, popped in at the open house and spoke to many of the Sabal Trail representatives to check on the progress of the alternative route.

"I think we're well into the survey of the alternative route," Grover told him.

Sabal Trail environmental representative Gus McLachlan told Mericle that they were getting geared up to do some geotechnical work on the alternative route.

"It's all coming together," McLachlan said. "It just takes some time."

Grover said they are still in the pre-filing process with FERC, as they compile data for the project, and they hope to file an application with them by the end of the year. They had hoped to file at the end of October, however, because of the potential reroutes they had to extend that timeline. After the filing, it will take FERC about a year to make a decision, Grover added.

"Should they issue a certificate, we would start construction probably around the summer of 2016, and be in service delivering gas to those points by May, 2017," said Grover. "So, it's a long ways off."

SpectraBusters

According to their website, SpectraBusters.org states they are opposed to the Sabal Trail pipeline because it serves no benefit to citizens of Alabama or Georgia, while tearing a 100 foot wide right of way through all three states, including Florida. They claim there is no excuse for another natural gas pipeline when solar power is cheaper and brings jobs and energy.

Their major concerns are the damage done by fracking to get the gas in the first place, the safety record of Spectra Energy, and the potential damage to the Suwannee Valley region.

Patricia Tayman owns 10 acres in Suwannee County and she was present at the open house, along with other SpectraBusters supporters. Tayman said she is worried about her water wells if there was ever a natural gas pipeline incident or explosion.

Tayman asked Grover if the majority of the natural gas was going to be exported out of the country. In fact, she asked the question three separate times, until she got a definitive answer.

Grover stated, "These contracts are for domestic use at their electric generation facilities. At this point in time, our customer's plans (Duke and FPL) are for it to stay in the state."

John Quarterman from the WWALS Watershed Coalition and a SpectraBusters supporter begs to differ about the exportation of the natural gas. He explained that Sabal Trail doesn't have to file for export. It's the end users who do so.

"Three organizations have already authorized Liquid Natural Gas (LNG) export operations right where this pipeline goes," said Quarterman. "Three... authorized by the Department of Energy Office of Fossil Energy. There's a fourth one (Strom, Inc.) that's applying for an LNG export operation next to Duke's plant in Crystal River."

Tampa Electric Company (TECO) wants to build a pipeline over to Jacksonville, which is ramping up for LNG export, Quarterman said. He also quoted from one of FERC's commissioners, Tony Clark, who, in his testimony to the House Energy and Commerce Committee, stated, "The reason for new pipelines is because of the glut of gas due to fracking."

Quarterman said they need a market for the natural gas because the domestic market isn't enough.

"They want to export it," said Quarterman. "Places like India, China and Japan will pay five times as much. Then, guess what happens to domestic natural gas prices. It goes up."

Tayman rhetorically asked Grover if she was aware of all the money spent by Florida Governor Rick Scott and all the measures he and other elected officials have taken in order to preserve the rivers, springs and water supply, as well as protect the natural environment in North Florida and throughout the entire state.

"Are you aware of the land mass here that is all limestone and that we've had numerous sinkholes?" Tayman continued. "We almost lost the courthouse in Suwannee to a sinkhole. You don't want to mess with land that deteriorates very rapidly, and that is why we're all like 'what are people thinking here?'"

Grover offered to introduce Tayman to one of the geophysical engineers, but Tayman said she had already done her research.

"The land is much better over toward Jacksonville," Tayman went on. "This particular corridor is extremely, extremely vulnerable to just disintegrating. I just find it very hard to believe that you would jeopardize the water supply. I'm having a hard time distinguishing between incompetence and just plain greed. It's mindboggling to me that this would even be considered, especially this particular part of the state."

Tayman said the pipeline is not a done deal.

"There's been thousands of people that you've shook up by all these bogus different routes," Tayman told Grover. "You've got so many people from Georgia to Alabama and in Florida that are just in a tailspin and concerned, and that fright turns into anger."

Tayman continued, "I'm tired of hearing that this thing is safe."

Tayman said when a natural gas disaster happens it will be up to the area residents to clean up the mess.

"I don't think the majority of these people are willing to jeopardize their drinking water," Tayman said. "This is the epitome of ignorance and greed."

Tayman said in her research she found that Sabal Trail does not have insurance to clean up a spill.

"We do not have a facility to fight something like this," Tayman said. "Our little fire department? If something was to go bad? Please... They think they can just push us around. They're not. I don't have a lot of money, but I'll tell you what, with the little bit I have left, I'll get a lawyer. I think if I got enough people to help with that, we could have a little bit of a battle with them. I still believe in America. You can't believe how deep this goes with organizations with their hands in this that are getting their pockets filled. It is mindboggling. This is the biggest joke I have ever seen in my life with the blatant lying about whether it's going to be exported."

ternoon event at Stephen Foster Folk Culture Center State Park from 3-5 p.m., on Saturday, Nov. 1, in tandem with that evening's 6 p.m. Campfire Program Series, which is in its second year. Participants in the Step Out for Health at Stephen Foster program will be offered free entry into the park on Nov. 1.

Step Out for Health at Stephen Foster will be an ongoing program, Lander said, and it will run through June 30. Here's how it will work:

"We'll start issuing the free park entry passes for the program on Nov. 3, to our health department clients," Lander said. "A total of 500 passes will be given out to clients we feel could benefit from getting out for some exercise at the park."

The program is open to Hamilton County residents who are a health department client. A table will be set up in the park where guests can get handouts on the Healthiest Weight program, get weighed on portable scales, and even have their Body Mass Index (BMI) calculated. There will also be two 30-minute walks around the loop, one at 3:30 and one at 4:30. Bottled water and some healthy snacks will also be provided.

"It gets you out exercising, especially if you have issues related to obesity," said Lander. "It gets you out, it gets you moving, and it helps you understand that the park system is a place where you can get this exercise. It's such a nice, local resource."

While at the park, guests can also check out the museum, the bell tower and the craft square after the program ends and before the campfire program begins, should they choose to join in the fun of some amazing campfire stories.

The Campfire Program Series

"Every one of the southern proposed routes crosses the Suwannee River," Quarterman added. "There's only one way to make it not cross the Suwannee River. Have no pipeline!"

When asked if he thought the pipeline was necessary, Quarterman said if you look at FPL's filings with Florida Public Service Commission, they project only 13 percent increased demand in electricity over the next decade.

"How does that justify a third pipeline?" he asked. "The EPA even questioned them about that. The electricity demand nationwide is still going down."

Patricia Petrizzo, who lives in the Tampa area and has another home in North Florida, was also at the open house.

"I came to get information to find out where it was going because I couldn't get any down in Tampa," said Petrizzo. "It's so vague."

"If you're an FPL customer, it's your rates that are going to be paying for this pipeline, to the tune of $3 billion," Quarterman said. "Plus another half a billion for that connector line that FPL is putting in from Orlando to Martin County."

PATCHOULI!

Folk meets Flamenco!

Featured Performers, Julie Patchouli and Bruce Hecksel

National touring guitar duo "Patchouli" is coming this fall to White Springs, for a concert at White Springs Community Center on Saturday, Nov. 22, at 7:30 p.m.

Master guitarist Bruce Hecksel is considered one of the most exciting acoustic lead guitar players of our time. Teamed up with Julie Patchouli, whose crystal pure voice and dynamic percussive guitar sparkle, Patchouli's sound has been described as "the harmonies of Simon & Garfunkel meet the guitar brilliance of the Gipsy Kings".

Performing their original blend of folk meets flamenco with their blazing guitars and heartstring tugging lyrics, Patchouli's energy and chemistry guarantees to make the night in White Springs an uplifting one of music that will leave you uniquely inspired and excited to pick that old guitar back up.

Patchouli's music lyrically expresses that celebration of the beauty of nature, the healing messages of connection and environment, as well as topics of tolerance, love and stories from their extensive travels.

The duo's instrumental guitar project Terra Guitarra - "Dragonfly" has been in the Top 5 of 100 albums on the ZMR World Music Radio Charts.

Both studied at the Old Town School of Folk Music in Chicago and together are a songwriting powerhouse duo. Sixteen years of non-stop touring the country has honed this classically trained duo into legendary performers, playing over 3,000 shows and traveling over half a million miles.

Get out of the house and hear world class music with Patchouli at the White Springs Folk Club!

Awesome refreshments will be served during intermission. Reservations are strongly suggested.

Please RSVP to mckenzie@windstream.net for reservations and directions. The Telford Hotel is closed (we hope it will re-open soon), so we are having this performance at the White Springs Community Center, 12760 US 41 (Roberts Street) in White Springs.

on Nov. 11, and will be advertised to the public to begin the interviewing process.

The SVTA is currently operating under interim administrator Teresa runs from Nov. 1 through April 25, 2015. Park Rangers will be presenting programs on different topics, such as campfire basics, folk story-telling, prehistoric technology, primitive skills and campfire cooking, all around the warm glow of a campfire. Each week it will be something different and exciting, and it is open to everyone, kids and adults alike.

Fortner after the resignation of the previous administrator, Gwendolyn Pra, who resigned earlier this year.

Meanwhile, the Florida Department of Transportation continues its financial audit of SVTA.

It is an opportunity to spend time with family and friends, while learning about some of Florida's natural and cultural heritages. The campfire programs are free with regular park admission. Bring your own blanket or lawn chair and leave your vehicle at the multi-use trail head parking area.

So, Hamilton County, it is time to Step Out for Health at Stephen Foster! If you'd like more information about the program, please call the health department at 386-792-1414. For more information about the park or to get directions, call 386-397-2733.

Sabal Trail: Setting the record straight

mission pipelines are the safest method of transporting energy products and, at Spectra Energy, we have a strong safety record. Over the past five years, the incident rate for Spectra Energy's U.S. onshore natural gas pipelines and facilities is roughly half the rate of the industry average. Safety is at the forefront of everything we do. Our dedication to continuously improve our operational safety practices stems from our relentless focus on protecting the people within the communities where we operate, our employees and the environment. While we already have a strong safety record, our goal is zero incidents as no incident is acceptable. When issues are identified, we work hard to quickly, safely and properly remedy the situation as well as learn from them in order to continuously improve.

Sabal Trail will meet or exceed all US Department of Transportation (DOT) requirements and will maintain stringent operations and maintenance through a 24/7, 365-day-a-year monitoring program. There are more than 300,000 miles of natural gas pipelines in the United States in communities large and small, rural and urban. Pipelines are America's life lines, and they operate safely every day across the country.

Water Quality – Sabal Trail's pipeline will not contaminate drinking water or aquifers. The pipeline is made of high-strength steel with epoxy coating; and the natural gas is transported in a gaseous state. Natural gas is lighter than air which means in the highly unlikely event that natural gas escapes from the pipeline, the gas can only travel up through the soil into the atmosphere, where it dissipates. Additionally, no toxins are released that would affect water quality associated with the construction or operation of the Sabal Trail facilities.

Air Quality – Sabal Trail's compressor stations will be designed with the best available state-of-the-art low emission turbine technology fueled by clean natural gas in strict compliance with federal and state regulations. In fact, the new turbines will achieve an emission rate that is lower than what is required by federal and state regulations. Additionally, Sabal Trail will be equipping the turbine with an exhaust catalyst system, which is designed to significantly reduce other air emissions, even though it is not required by federal or state regulations. It is expected that regulators will classify Sabal Trail's compressor stations as minor sources of emissions.

Solar Power for Compressor Stations – There have been some suggestions that Sabal Trail should use on-site solar power to run its compressor stations. Unfortunately this is not feasible for a variety of reasons. Primarily, solar power would be only available during ideal, sunny daylight hours and not during the night or on days with heavy cloud cover. Also, the minimum amount of land required to harness enough solar energy for the compressor station, under ideal conditions, ranges from 200 to 250 acres of land. A typical compressor station occupies a site of approximately 40-50 acres. However, Sabal Trail will utilize solar energy for some lighting and other mechanical devices at the compressor station.

Noise – The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) regulates noise associated with pipelines and compressor stations and requires that the station's noise levels do not exceed an average day-night sound level of 55 decibels at the nearest receptors. Research has concluded that the Sabal Trail compressor stations will operate at less than 55 decibels. For comparison, a normal conversation is 55 decibels and an automobile at 50 feet is as much as 90 decibels. Sabal Trail compressor stations will not be a significant source of noise.

Global Warming/ Climate Change – On Sept. 2, 2014, Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Administrator Gina McCarthy asked the energy business community to spend their dollars on building more natural gas pipelines across the country. In her speech to the investors, she said, "This is really about building a healthy industry, a healthy investment market, and lowering carbon pollution."

Even President Obama supports expanding the use of natural gas to lower carbon pollution. Natural gas systems have a relatively small carbon footprint compared to overall emissions due to their small size and the low carbon content of natural gas. In fact, due to its low carbon content, natural gas can play a significant role in helping to reduce emissions when used in place of other fossil fuels in end use applications such as power generation, commercial or industrial applications. Natural gas is recognized as a very clean energy source, and its use is rapidly expanding.

Jobs and tax dollars – Every county along the pipeline will benefit from the initial development and construction of the pipeline, as well as from the new taxes that the pipeline will generate every year as long as it operates. In this respect, it is no different from any new business moving into a community. Businesses along the pipeline route, such as bulk fuel, equipment rentals, gravel and paving, fencing, landscaping, welding shops, restaurants and retail businesses all will have opportunity to do business with Sabal Trail, and we will conduct a job fair soon to explain business and job opportunities.

Insurance for properties with pipelines – While some people have raised concern about property values and insurance rates we want to assure you that there is no evidence demonstrating that natural gas pipelines affect home loans, property values or insurance costs. FERC, the lead federal agency on the construction of pipelines, researched this issue and reported the results in a recent Environmental Impact Statement issued in March 2012. (FERC Docket CP11-56-000, FEIS, pages 4-181, 4-183) FERC even interviewed bank, mortgage and insurance company officials and determined that there are no pipeline-related impacts. And with more than 300,000 existing miles of pipelines in the U.S., there would be plenty of evidence to the contrary if it were the case.

Additionally, a natural gas pipeline impact study was conducted at the request of the Interstate Natural Gas Association of America Foundation (INGAA Foundation). Its purpose was to determine the impact of natural gas pipelines on real estate. The study examined data from many different perspectives to identify possible price and non-price impacts to locations along the route of a natural gas pipeline. The study determined that there is no significant impact on the sales price of properties located along natural gas pipelines and that pipeline size and product made no difference. It also concluded that there is no apparent impact on the marketability of properties located along a natural gas pipeline's path and that a pipeline did not impede development of the surrounding properties. And, the study concluded that the results and conclusions of this study are very likely transferable to other situations involving natural gas pipelines in other regions of the country.

Sabal Trail transportation contracts are for domestic use – Once completed, the Sabal Trail pipeline will deliver domestic natural gas supplies to Florida Power & Light and Duke Energy Florida for their electric generation needs. Their intended use is domestic. In fact, the exportation of natural gas is an entirely separate permitting process required by the U.S. Department of Energy, and Sabal Trail is not seeking any such approval. Also, Sabal Trail representatives are continuing to seek commercial opportunities with additional potential customers at other locations along the proposed pipeline route. There is plenty of need for clean burning natural gas in the Southeast, and Sabal Trail will be an integral element in the delivery of that natural gas.

We intend to be good neighbors – We appreciate your concerns and interests in the Sabal Trail project. We are working hard every day to earn your understanding and confidence. We hope this paper answers your questions; however, if you have additional questions, you can contact us through the "contact" page at www.sabaltrail.com to get additional information. We look forward to hearing from you.

Haunted jail brings out the creepies

The grim reaper is about to enter the haunted old jail in Jasper. - Photo: Joyce Marie Taylor

The haunted old jail, a.k.a. the Hamilton County Historical Museum, is located at 501 1st Ave. NE, just beyond the Hamilton County Courthouse in Jasper. This Friday's haunted house event begins at dark and runs until the last ghostly creature leaves the building.

Not for the faint-hearted, the tour through the narrow hallways and dark stairwells, as you run into gory creatures and roaming ghosts while viewing haunting scenes inside the jail cells, might just creep you out, but it is all in fun...good, clean fun, and the kids had a blast just showing off their costumes.

Last week, West Palm Beach gothic and mystery writer Cynthia Morrison was seated on the jailhouse porch, appropriately dressed in a black witchy outfit, as she promoted her latest book, "The Passion of Poe".

Morrison is a member of the Horror Writers Association and is also a stage combat director and award winning playwright. She plans to include the old Hamilton County Jail in her upcoming book about historic confinement.

Business, individuals of the year named

By Joyce Marie Taylor

joycemarie.taylor@gafnews.com

A large crowd of invited guests, along with city and county elected officials converged on the Ernest Courtoy Civic Center on Thursday, Oct. 23, for the Hamilton County Chamber of Commerce Annual Appreciation Dinner.

Suwannee Valley Electric Cooperative was the signature title sponsor for the evening. Table sponsors included the City of Jasper, Hamilton County Democratic Party, First Federal Bank of Florida, Hamilton County Development Authority, Hamilton County School Board, Lake City Medical Center, Physical Therapy Works, Potash-Corp White Springs, Town of Jennings, Town of White Springs, VFW Post 8095 and VyStar Credit Union.

Members of the Hamilton County High School FFA team and BETA Club members did an excellent job of serving a delicious meal prepared by Sugar Dumplings' to all the guests and deserve a special thank you.

"We appreciate them taking time out of their busy schedules between sports and all of the things they do at school to come out and be here for us tonight," said Chamber President Susan Ramsey.

Commander of Jasper's VFW Post 8095 Lamar Royals had the honor of leading everyone in the Pledge of Allegiance to start off the program.

"I know we military personnel are authorized to do the hand salute, but tonight I'm going to ask that we all place our hands over our hearts because that is where the lifeblood comes from," said Royals. "I would like us to say thank you because we live in the land of the free and the home of the brave, and show our respect for those young men and women that are standing watch tonight, so that we are able to assemble ourselves here and enjoy ourselves in the comfort and security of a great nation that we love so dearly."

Florida Senator Bill Montford (D-Tallahassee) was the esteemed guest speaker again this year and he enjoyed chatting with everyone, going from table to table to meet new faces. When he arrived at his front and center table, waiting for him were Bob and Peggy Alderman, former classmates of Montford from his home town of Blountstown. The Aldermans now live in Jennings and enjoyed rehashing old times with Montford.

As everyone was winding up eating their meal, Montford approached the podium. With his usual down home Southern hospitality, he charmed the guests with his humorous anecdotes before briefly speaking about current legislative issues.

The Chamber then recognized First Federal Bank of Florida in Jasper as 2014 Business of the Year.

"First Federal has been an outstanding asset to our community, supporting the Hamilton County businesses, individuals and civic organizations, and the Chamber," said Ramsey. "It's a little bittersweet, as we know Manager Debbie Reid is going to be retiring soon."

"We love being out in the community," said Reid. "We love supporting the businesses, and we are just honored to accept this."

Further recognitions were made for 2014 Individual of the Year in all three communities of Jasper, Jennings and White Springs.

First up was Johnny Bullard from White Springs. Bullard is a member of the Hamilton County School Board, a member of the Florida School Board Association, and serves as the Planner for the Florida Department of Health-Hamilton County. Bullard also actively serves on numerous committees, including the Citizens Support Organization for Stephen Foster Folk Culture Center State Park, and is a member of the Bullard Brothers Band.

"If you ever go to an event in White Springs, you'll see Johnny there," said Ramsey. "If he's not there, he's really, really sick, or he's out of town for an educational conference," she added, which amused everyone.

When it was time for Bullard's acceptance speech, there was dead silence for a few moments as he gathered his thoughts and choked back emotions.

"For once in my life, I am at a loss for words," said Bullard.

He quickly regained his composure and thanked everyone for honoring him.

For the town of Jennings, Samantha Prueter was selected as 2014 Individual of the Year. Those who nominated her stated she is a remarkable person, as well as a mother of four children who is involved with the PTO and church activities, despite working a full time job. Prueter has also served on the Jennings City Council and she helped head up the Inaugural Peanut Festival this year.

Prueter humbly said, "It's been a group effort in everything and I appreciate my family being there to support me."

She wanted to let everyone know that next year's Peanut Festival will be held the second Saturday of September. She also said, "the north part of the county might be the best part of the county."

The 2014 Individual of the Year for Jasper went to Frankie Hunter, a 16-year employee of the city of Jasper, as well as a volunteer firefighter. Hunter is also a family man with three children and enjoys hunting and fishing when he can.

"He works hard to please everyone," said Ramsey. "He's been referred to as multi-talented. He is respectable, a hard worker and dependable."

After he accepted his award, Hunter simply said, "Thank you all very much."

Door prize winners were announced at the end of the evening. Prizes were donated by Bass's Furniture and Appliances, Gold Coast Auto Detailing, Hamilton County Farm Bureau, Harrell Insurance Agency, Jasper Hardware and Supply, Jasper Marketplace Antiques and Collectibles and Jasper's Revitalization Committee.

Silent Auction sponsors were Bass's Furniture and Appliances, Brown's Flowers and Gifts, D&S Signs, Duke Energy, Huston Veterinary Clinic, Jasper Auto Supply, Jasper Revitalization Committee, Jasper Marketplace Antiques and Collectibles, Sun-sations, Will's Auto and Charles and Barbara Williams.

Sweet, Sweet Candy History

Halloween is as much about candy as it is about dressing up in fun costumes and engaging in scare tactics.

Humans have loved their sweets for centuries. Early human beings made candy out of honey by drying it and forming a taffy-like confection, while many modern incarnations of candy involve dissolving sugar into water or milk to form a syrup. Candy is then made by varying the temperature of the syrup and the sugar concentration to achieve desired textures. The word "candy" is derived from the Arabic "quandi," meaning "made of sugar."

Candy also often refers to chocolate bars and other treats that people find so delectable. Ancient Mayans and Aztecs were the first to experiment with the cocoa bean, the cornerstone of chocolate confections, in the 1500s. However, their chocolate drinks were bitter and not the sweet delights we've come to associate with chocolate. It wasn't until the 19th century that innovators began mixing cocoa with sugar to create chocolate bars. Joseph Fry is credited with making the first chocolate bar in 1847, using bittersweet chocolate. Milk chocolate came later, in 1875, when it was introduced by Henry Nestlé and Daniel Peter. Milton Hershey began producing sweet chocolate in 1894.

Hershey bars, Nestlé bars and many other original candies are still in production today. Tootsie Rolls and Charleston Chews are other classic candies still produced. Good & Plenty debuted in 1893, making it the oldest branded candy in America. NECCO company Wafers were officially branded in 1901 and are another classic treat consumers can still find in the candy aisle of their nearest grocery store.

Smarties is another candy that's bound to show up in trick-or-treat bags this Halloween. Smarties have been owned and operated by the same family since 1949. The Ce De Candy Inc. factory opened up in August 1949 in Bloomfield, NJ, and produced a candy that would not melt in the heat.

Smarties are a favorite all over North America and elsewhere. When demand is too high for the NJ factory, particularly around Halloween, Smarties are also produced in a Canadian factory in Newmarket, Ontario. Smarties imported to the United States are still called Smarties. However, Smarties sold in Canada are known as "Rockets," as another candy sold in Canada already bears the Smarties name.

Candy dishes up delicious fun in time for Halloween celebrations.

Halloween wouldn't be nearly as sweet without troves of candy treasures. Children are urged to have their candy sorted and inspected by parents prior to eating to avoid any dangers, such as food allergies or tampering.

Around the Banks of the Suwannee

By Correspondent
Johnny Bullard

Five little pumpkins
sitting on a gate,
The first one said,
"Oh my it's getting late."

The second one said,
"There are witches in the air."

The third one said,
"But we don't care."
The fourth one said,
"Let's run and run and run!!!"

The fifth one said,
"I'm ready for some fun!!!"

OOOOOOH" went the wind,

And out went the lights,

And the five little pumpkins rolled out of sight."

Yes, it's that time of the year again. To me, the most wonderful and magical time of the year "Around the Banks of Suwannee". I love the autumn, the fall of the year, and this week I am going to jump around just a bit in my column. I do that from time to time. Please bear with me.

First, I want to comment about Live Oak's Jazz and Blues Festival that was held on Saturday, Oct. 25. . SPECTACULAR! WONDERFUL! FABULOUS!!

With the kind of talent performing there, well, it was just simply "off the charts". My hat is off to those who organized this event. I want to say to you, I know, from personal experience what goes into the organization of an event. Do not be discouraged. I am not kidding. This was, without a doubt, one of the finest musical venues I have ever attended anywhere, anytime. GREAT! Thank you so much.

Next, I want to comment on Kathy McGhin's GREAT shop, B'posh. I loved it. I think my niece Laura Leigh will love it more. My longtime friend, Marilyn Sapp and I visited with Kathy and Stephen McGhin, and while we were there we enjoyed some great coffee and fat-free, sugar-free yogurt. It was a salted caramel flavor. Wonderful in their shop "You Got Served". A great addition to downtown Live Oak. Keep up the good work.

Next, I want to thank the Brown family of White Springs, the descendants of the late Mrs. Annie Brown, for including me in their Old Fashioned Day. I attended again this year, and again, I had such a good time. As Mrs. Maude Havener would write in her social column, "A good time was had by all." And, if anyone went away hungry, either you didn't fix yourself a plate or it was your own fault.

My word, I have never seen so much food in my life; enough food to feed Pharaoh's army. Of course, there was a visit by Sister Hattie Mae Jankins, and remember, that's "Jankins" with an "a". We always enjoy her visits. Such great music, food and many memories shared, right here in my beloved home of White Springs, "Way down upon the Suwannee River".

Now, I want to move up to Jasper, and I want to commend those who made the annual Chamber of Commerce Appreciation Dinner on Thursday evening, Oct. 23, a tremendous success. Thank you very much and God bless you for all your hard work and planning. I especially want to thank the young people, our Beta Club members and our FFA Chapter, both from Hamilton County High School who served dinner. They were such handsome and beautiful young people, and did such a wonderful job. I also want to thank their sponsors, Mr. Doug Clayton, the FFA sponsor and Mrs. Elizabeth Mitchell, who is the Beta Club Sponsor. God Bless you and thank you.

Now, I want to move back again to White Springs and remind everyone that Rural Folklife Days will be celebrated at Stephen Foster Folk Culture Center State Park this coming Wednesday, Oct. 29, through Friday, Oct. 31. Make your plans to attend this wonderful event each day from about 9 a.m. until about 4 p.m. Learn about the rural heritage of North Florida and at Stephen Foster Folk Culture Center State Park in White Springs.

Now back to Jasper. I can't think of a much spookier place than the Old Jail and it will be opened on Halloween night for those who dare to walk through. Go and visit the Old Jail in Jasper... if you dare... Oct. 31.

Trick or Treating in the Town of White Springs will be on Friday, Oct. 31, from 6 p.m. until around 8 p.m. Parents, please accompany your children. If a porch light is off and you don't see any lights on in a house, move on. Nobody is at home there or they don't want to be bothered. Also, if you're old enough to shave or nearly old enough to vote. You don't need to be trick or treating. Seventh grade folks is about the limit and that is stretching it some. Give it up. You've had your day by that time, but for you, it's about over. Sad but true. All good things have to come to an end, and you end the cutesy phase by about that time in Halloween costumes.

Be courteous when you go to someone's home and make certain you thank them for your treat. Again, parents, Friday in White Springs, 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. on Halloween night, Friday, Oct. 31.

White Springs United Methodist Church will celebrate homecoming services on Sunday, Nov. 2, beginning at 11 a.m. We encourage everyone to come join us for worship services and for a covered dish luncheon afterward. We have been a presence in the White Springs community since 1850, and our historic sanctuary was built in 1890. Come join us this Sunday. We are always glad to have you worship with us.

Pumpkins, apples, bonfires, cornstalks, candy corn and candy apples... Spirit of the Suwannee Music Park is having an event called the Halloween Festival. I really am not sure what it is, but I am sure it will be a lot of fun. They have their own press agent. I just give them a plug now and again. I am not affluent enough to purchase tickets to go to many events that are held there, but I hear they are very nice, and I am glad that they bring quality entertainment to the area. I am sure this will be no exception.

Get out and enjoy this spectacular weather and give thanks and rejoice in God's many blessings, and just revel in this time of the year.

I also encourage each of you to vote. Your VOTE is your VOICE. If you don't vote, then don't complain. Early voting is going on at the Supervisor of Elections Office through Saturday, Nov. 1. Election Day is Tuesday, Nov. 4. Polls are opened from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. It is a privilege to vote. Please, please, remember Adolf Hitler was elected by one vote, think about that one. You think your vote doesn't matter, it DOES matter. VOTE!

From the Eight Mile Still on the Woodpecker Route north of White Springs, wishing you all a day filled with joy, peace, and above all, lots of love and laughter.

FISH OF THE WEEK

Compliments of Rooster's Outfitters

Reminder: Rooster's Outfitters "First Saturday of the Month Fishing Contest" is set for Saturday, Nov. 1. For more information, please call Rooster at 386-397-2724.

LADIES CATCH OF THE WEEK

Compliments of Rooster's Outfitters

Inspired by Rooster's weekly fishing reports in the Jasper News, Edna Meadows of Jasper decided to go fishing. Her efforts paid off with great success, and she traveled from Jasper to White Springs to show Rooster her "Ladies Catch of the Week." Meadows had asked a young man at a gas station in Jasper, who happened to be a customer of Rooster's, how to get to Rooster's Outfitters. The young man realized that Meadows couldn't understand the directions, so he drove to Rooster's and Meadows followed him, so that she could have Rooster take her picture with the fish she caught at a private lake. - Courtesy Photo

A Healthier You

FLORIDA HEALTH HealthiestWeight

"Trick or Treat!
Trick or Treat!
Give me something SWEET to eat!"

Yes, it's that time of the year again, and this week, neighborhoods all over the United States will be filled with children who will be out trick or treating. As obesity rates soar, affecting around 12.5 million children and adolescents in the United States alone, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, you can do your part to make a difference this Halloween by offering an alternative to traditional Halloween treats. Whether you're treating your own family or neighborhood children, healthy snacks, toys and school supplies can delight children and their parents. Try these options to add fun and healthy twists to trick-or-treating.

90 and 100 calorie snacks

Many name-brand cookie, cracker and snack products offer a 90 or 100 calorie version of the original. These snacks are individually packaged in portion controlled sizes. They provide an alternative to traditional Halloween candy that typically is lower in calories and in fat—most contain around 2 grams of fat or less and are comparable in price to the individually packaged candies.

Pre-packaged fruits and vegetables

Offering pre-packaged fruits and vegetables can be far from bland. Today, supermarkets offer fresh pre-washed carrots, apples and grapes in single portion pre-packaged sizes. For items with a longer shelf life, consider snack-size boxes of raisins, dried fruit bits or trail mix. Apple sauce and fruit cups also make sweet guiltless treats.

School supplies

School supplies may sound dull, but many children will be pleased to find Halloween or fall-themed pencils, erasers, rulers, crayons, miniature notepads, stencils or stickers in their treat bags. These items individually can cost pennies and typically no more than a quarter. They are usually sold as multiples in a single package. Placing a variety of these low-cost items in a clear baggie translates as a mini art kit.

Toys

As October nears, the Halloween section of your local super store or craft store typically will be stocked with multi-packs of themed mazes, puzzles, rubber spiders, whistles, yo-yos, silly disguise glasses, wax vampire teeth, bracelets, rings, paddle balls, finger puppets, tattoos and fun items, packages of crayons, coloring books and sidewalk chalk are all great trick or treat ideas.

Halloween is a wonderful time for adults and children to celebrate a beautiful time of the year here in North Florida. The air is crisp. Carved pumpkins, ghost stories, hayrides and lots of seasonal fun are all a part of this magical season. Be sure during this special holiday that you work "with" our children to ensure that they have a healthier tomorrow by treating them to healthier treats today, and "treat yourself" to some healthy treats, too. Apples are wonderful, especially this time of the year, and I do love them. Be good to yourself for a "Healthier You", because you are worth it.

Father-daughter fishing adventure leads to unexpected surprise in saltwater catfish dinner

By guest columnist Greg Workman

It started off as your typical "let's go fishing" kind of week for my 13-year-old daughter, Hannah, the youngest of my four children. I've been working with the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) for 29 years, and my family has spent time on the water and in the woods. Our experiences are golden to me, and each one is unique.

As Friday came around, the night-before checklist was completed: batteries charged, poles, tackle and PFDs loaded in the boat, fuel and oil topped off, and the trailer hooked to the truck.

I woke up extra early to double-check the weather, which looked to be perfect. We loaded up and headed to the boat ramp before the morning rush and started our journey toward our desired fishing spot, which happens to be several miles out from the ramp in the Gulf of Mexico. Manatee and other marine life sightings heightened the excitement.

As we arrived, I caught the sun rising, its rays dancing on the water. About that time I heard Hannah say, "What a beautiful day, Daddy." The smile on her face was what memories are made from, even if we didn't catch a single fish. She casted and her smile grew even bigger with anticipation of what might bite. We'd been talking all morning about having fresh seafood for dinner. Fish on! We started catching black sea bass and spotted seatrout, but unfortunately they were all under the minimum size limit, so we released them to be caught another day. What we caught the most of was saltwater catfish.

As I threw yet another catfish back, Hannah asked me an interesting question, why did I throw the saltwater catfish back, when I keep the freshwater catfish we get. I couldn't give her a good answer, except that I've always been told they're not fit to eat and are only used for bait. Her remark puzzled me though, and as I'm always up for trying something new and adventurous, I kept the next good eating-size catfish, about a 1-pounder, and placed it on ice. We later caught a nice legal black sea bass to join the hardhead catfish in the cooler, ending our fishing day on a good note.

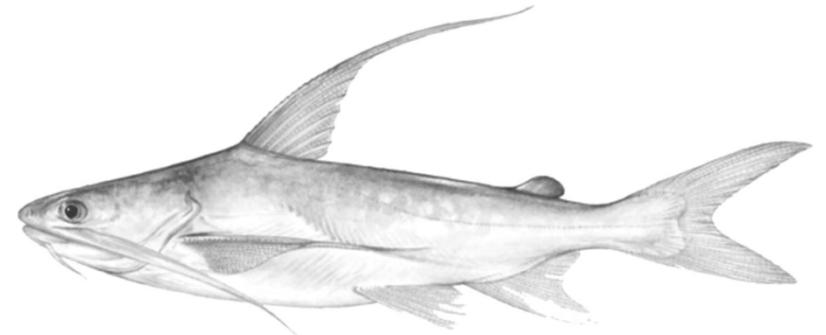

There are two primary types of saltwater catfish people typically catch, by the way: the hardhead, which is brownish to gray-green with four barbels on the chin, and the less common gafftopsail, which is more blue on the top and only has two barbels on the chin. Neither of the species are the same as the two primary freshwater catfish species: the channel and the flathead catfish. The state record for a hardhead catfish is 3 pounds, 5 ounces, and the record for a gafftopsail is 8 pounds, 14 ounces.

There are no seasons or minimum size limits for either species of saltwater catfish, but there is a daily bag limit of 100 pounds. Visit MyFWC.com/Fishing and click on "Saltwater" and "Unregulated

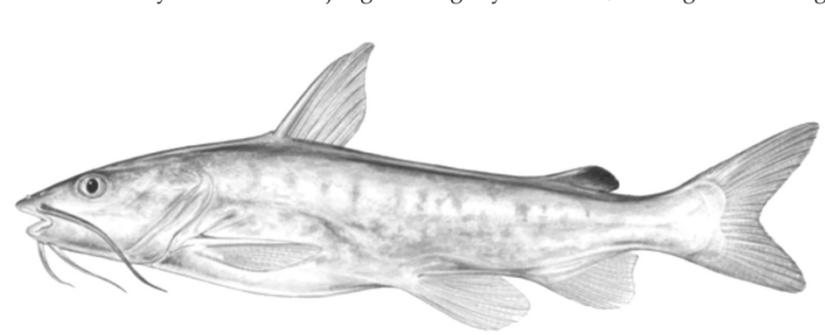

The catfish turned out to be a great tasting catch – mild, flaky and delicious. I'll be keeping my share from now on. It actually had a better taste and texture than freshwater cats. I'm sold and can't wait to catch some more so I can share with my coworkers. I've definitely learned not to judge a fish based on what people say about it. Just like fishing, you have to try it for yourself. Share your fishing photos and stories with us with by emailing them to Saltwater@MyFWC.com. Species" for more on such species. Watch for the spines. I've had the opportunity to work in several different divisions during my career with FWC, one of which was Freshwater Fisheries. During my time there, I've been stuck and jabbed by freshwater catfish with little to no pain, but let me tell you, I made the unpleasant mistake of getting stuck by a saltwater cat on this trip and it lit me up. It was comparable to a scorpion or wasp sting. I didn't show my pain because I didn't want Hannah to worry, and I think that made it hurt worse. So I caution folks to pay attention and be careful when handling these fish, especially near the dorsal fin on the top of the fish and the two pectoral fins, where the barbs are located. The pain eventually went away, but I'm glad it was me and not my daughter, because that could've ruined a perfectly good day.

The trip home was filled with laughter and a discussion about how we were going to cook our catch. Now comes one of my favorite parts of a fishing trip; the cooking and eating. I took the sea bass fillets and blackened them to perfection in my cast iron skillet. Then it was time for the catfish fillets, which I dusted in Zatarain's Fish Fri Southern Crispy Style Frying Mix. I took the lightly covered fillets and placed them in the 350-degree oil until crisp on both sides. Hannah prepared a few side dishes, set the table and dinner was served. With both fish carefully divided and placed on a plate, it was time to see what the fuss was all about. The sea bass lived up to its reputation of being a special treat and a savory eating fish. Enthusiastic to try the catfish, we both took a bite and looked at each other. Wow, it was awesome! Who knew!

on "Saltwater" and "Ethical Angler Photo Recognition Program" at the bottom of the page. Don't forget to record all of your catches on the iAngler phone app or at www.snookfoundation.org/data.html. Gone Coastal is one of many ways that the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) Division of Marine Fisheries Management is helping recreational anglers understand complex saltwater regulations and learn more about saltwater fishing opportunities and issues in Florida. We are also available to answer questions by phone or email anytime, and we would love the opportunity to share information through in-person presentations with recreational or commercial fishing organizations. To contact the FWC's Regulatory Outreach subsection, call 850-487-0554 or email Saltwater@MyFWC.com.

BUSINESS SAVVY

Small business facts and figures

Submitted
A business starts with an idea. The idea concerns a product or service that can be sold to a consumer. The good ideas make the life of the customer easier, better or allow him/her to do new things. The Small Business Administration defines a small business as an enterprise having fewer than 500 employees. There are 28 million small businesses in the United States. More than 75 percent of these (22 million) are known as "non-employer" businesses, which means that they have no employees other than the owners. Eighty five percent of non-employers choose to operate without a formal business structure. These business owners are known as "sole proprietors." Non-employers account for almost 1 trillion dollars of revenue (GDP) each year. One-half of the United States workforce (60 million) work for small businesses and two-thirds of all new jobs are created by small businesses. The fastest growing sectors are auto repair facilities, beauty salons and dry cleaners. One in 10 Florida residents own their own business. Ninety seven percent of these Florida businesses have less than 20 employees, create 80 percent of Florida's jobs and are responsible for 75 percent of Florida's revenue (GDP). Do you have an idea for a product or service that will improve the lives of others? Your local Small Business Development Center consultant can help you evaluate the feasibility of your concept. Statistics show that entrepreneurs who seek business assistance stay in business longer, hire more employees and generate more revenue than businesses that struggled along on their own. The SBDC has 250 consultants and 40 offices in Florida. The newest addition to the SBDC network is the North Central Florida office. Our confidential consulting is available at no charge. Please call us at 386-362-1782 if there is any way we can help you start and grow your business. Mark Yarick is a certified business analyst with the Small Business Development Center (SBDC) in North Central Florida and is hosted by the University of North Florida in the offices of the Suwannee County Chamber of Commerce.

Bake time: 30 minutes
Servings: 6

- 1 carton (4.2 ounces) Hungry Jack Cheesy Hashbrown Potatoes
- 3/4 cup Hungry Jack Mashed Potato Flakes
- 3/4 cup milk
- 2 eggs

For one night a year, ghouls, ghosts, witches and goblins have free reign, scurrying up and down the street from house to house. There's no limit to the kind of creature you may encounter, except for that of imagination! Each year, children become excited as October rolls around, anticipating the fun of dressing up, and of course, the trick-or-treating that is part of the Halloween tradition.

C OSTUMES SHOULD BE BRIGHT ENOUGH FOR OTHERS TO SPOT YOU IN THE DARK.

Another fun way to celebrate Halloween is to have a party. Need some ideas to get inspired? Try the old favourite, the Haunted House party. With a little dry ice and ominous lighting, you can make a spooky fog that thrills and chills. Get some volunteers to pose as ghosts and witches to lead your guests through a "graveyard", complete with spooky music and scary sounds.

Try a pumpkin carving party. Everyone should have their own pumpkin, and the best part is they can take them home to light the way for others on Halloween night. Telling ghost stories, making costumes or playing Halloween party games are some other suggestions. The Internet is a great source of ideas.

A party could also be an alternative to trick-or-treating. The advantages are many, especially for younger children. There's less worry about children's safety as they mingle with cars and strangers on their journey around the neighbourhood. Many parents would also feel better about the snacks their children will eat.

HALLOWEEN

SAFETY TIPS FOR

Our Little Pumpkins

Light up Halloween – with jack-o'-lanterns

One of the most fun family activities at Halloween is making a jack-o'-lantern. Deciding what kind of face to carve in the pumpkin, whether scary, funny or artistic, can be the subject of a great debate among children. Even better, what if everyone has their own pumpkin to carve?

After that big decision comes the squishy, messy part – cleaning out the pumpkin. Cutting a circle around the stem and lifting off the top reveals a fine network of seeds and pulp, all of which must be scooped out. It's up to you whether you use a spoon, or just dig in with your fingers and pull.

For the best lighting effects, the inside wall of the pumpkin should be scraped thinner, so the candlelight can more easily escape the carved out eyes and nose, and lend a faint glow to the entire pumpkin. When you've finished carving the pumpkin and lit the candle, (this should be done by an adult or under adult supervision), turn off the lights and admire your work.

Now that you've got your jack-o'-lantern, it's time to roast the seeds for a nice healthy snack. You might even have an extra pumpkin or two left over to make some delicious pumpkin pies. Some people may not know this, but pumpkin is a fruit which ripens and takes on its bright orange colour in early fall, just as the leaves start to change. Imagine pumpkin bread or soup!

Did you know that originally, jack-o'-lanterns were made from turnips? The story is Celtic in origin, and Irish immigrants to America started using pumpkins instead of turnips in the 1800s, altering their tradition since pumpkins were so plentiful.

With a bit of creativity, a simple pumpkin can be transformed into a true work of art!
