USS Hué City rescues distressed mariners

By Ensign Nicholas Vandiver
USS Hué City (CG 66) Public Affairs Officer

Guided-missile cruiser USS Hué City (CG 66) rescued three fishermen March 27 off the coast of Georgia.

At approximately 4 a.m. Hué City was notified by the U.S. Coast Guard and guided-missile destroyer USS Mitscher (DDG 57) that a small craft in their vicinity had issued a distress signal and needed immediate assistance.

Hué City Commanding Officer Capt. Jake Douglas and the ship's crew turned to the last known position of the distressed boat, fishing vessel Barbara Lynn, and began the search.

Approximately 20 minutes later, the cruiser's look-out spotted the flashing strobe light of the life raft and its three passengers.

Hué City deployed their search and rescue swimmer, STG3 Nathan Andrade, a native of Stockton, California, who swam to the life raft and assisted in attaching the rescue harness to each passenger. The ship recovered survivors using medical litters and a rescue davit.

"When I woke up to the call that someone needed to be rescued, I was just praying to God that everyone was safe," said Andrade.

"Thanks to great teamwork from the boatswains mates and everyone else willing to help, we were able to save everyone and bring them on board safely."

Two hours after receiving the distress call, all three passengers were aboard Hué City with no significant injuries.

Following the rescue, the recovered personnel were transferred by an embarked helicopter from Helicopter Maritime Strike Squadron (HSM) 70 to Naval Station Mayport for further assessment and treatment.

"Our crew was excited to assist in the rescue of fellow mariners," said Lt. Steven Deering of HSM-70. "But none of it would have been possible if it weren't for the Coast Guard aiding in finding the survivors, the Hué City expertly maneuvering to safely pick them up, and the HSM-70 maintenance personnel who were able to Douglas added, "The Hué City team did a great job this morning. They showed their excellence in seamanship and exemplified the Navy core values. We are glad to have been able to assist fellow mariners at sea."

More than 70 stateside commissaries, including Naval Air Station (NAS) Jacksonville, honored the military members who were on active duty during the Vietnam War era as part of Vietnam Veterans Day March 29.

All Vietnam era veterans who served from Nov. 1, 1955 to May 15, 1975 were invited to attend the ceremony hosted by the Defense Commissary Agency.

"We are showing appreciation for their service," said Bob Darden, assistant store director of the NAS Jacksonville commissary. "It is something veterans are deserving of."

About 20 Vietnam veterans who attended the ceremony received a lapel pin and other gifts, as well as a handshake and a thank you.

About 20 Vietnam veterans were honored for their service during a ceremony at Naval Air Station Jacksonville's commissary March 29.

"Thanking them is the most important thing," Darden said.

"Because when many veterans came home from the Vietnam War they did not feel appreciated as they anticipated they would."

One of the veterans at the ceremony was Tyrone Oakes, who joined the Army in 1969.

NAS Sigonella hosts exercise Dynamic Manta 18

By Lt. Brian F. O'Bannon
Commander Task Force 67 Public Affairs Officer

Naval Air Station (NAS) Sigonella hosted exercise Dynamic Manta 2018, a NATO led anti-submarine and anti-surface warfare exercise featuring 11 maritime patrol aircraft from eight different countries.

Dynamic Manta is held yearly out of NAS Sigonella, Italy, while Commander, Task Force (CTF) 67 assumes its NATO role as maritime air controlling authority (MACA). MACA Sigonella hosts NATO elements and is responsible for briefing every air crew, ensuring safety of flight, providing real-time debriefing products, and for the first year ever of overall exercise control staff.

Whether for an exercise or a NATO operation, MACA Sigonella is accustomed to its dual-hatted role, and this exercise was no different. MACA Sigonella watch teams expertly managed both U.S. 6th Fleet operations while simultaneously relaying safety of flight reports from air borne Turkish P-235s, French Atlantique-IIs, Canadian CP-140s, Spanish P-3Ms, German P-3Cs, Italian and United Kingdom EH-101 Merlins, and US P-8A Orions flying in support of Dynamic Manta.

"Every year Dynamic Manta is a challenging exercise for both the participating units, and ourselves as MACA Sigonella," said Capt. Bill Ellis, commodore, MACA Sigonella.

"This year was no different and the challenges we overcome together whether being logistical, operational, or language barriers continue to prove NATO is the world's premiere war fighting alliance."

Nobody's fool – proud military wife and mother

By Lisa Smith Molinari

Special Contributor

If I had a dollar for every time I've slapped my hand to my forehead and thought, "I'm such a fool," I'd be rich.

They say— whoever "they" are— that one should live without regrets, but for me, regret has always been a part of my schtick.

Something in my childhood made me this way — a person who focuses on her own faults and beats herself up for them. Some are lucky to have iron-clad egos that protect them from criticism and self-doubt. I, on the other hand, was a kid with dreaded "self-esteem issues" that compelled me to constantly seek reassurance. Like many people with insecurities, humor and self-deprecation became my defense mechanisms.

At my first dance in middle school, I won best costume when I came dressed as a huge onion, much to my parents' dismay.

That night, I got the laughs and attention I was shooting for, along with a "Boomtown Rats" record as my first-place prize. But, not surprisingly, no boys asked me to dance. In high school, my misplaced pleas for attention earned me the title "1984 Class Clown," which I hid from my parents until it was reported in my hometown newspaper. Needless to say, they were not amused.

In college, I fully embraced my newfound freedom to make a complete idiot of myself, much of which (mercifully) I cannot recall. The college memories that are clear make me cringe with embarrassment to this very day. Thankfully, digital photography and social media had not yet been invented.

As a young adult in the workforce, I thought I made every rookie mistake in the book and was doomed to failure. I was actually quite fastidious, dedicated, hard-working and reliable, but as always, I focused on everything I did wrong rather than right.

Today I still feel as if I'm stumbling through life. I'm always running late, I inevitably burn the toast, I say the wrong thing, I overstay my welcome, I never remember people's names, I eat too much.

But as our last child prepares to graduate from high school and leave the nest for college, I'm reflecting more clearly on my last 24 years as a military wife and mother of three, and I'm surprised to find that I have no shame, no remorse, no regrets.

The Meat & Potatoes of Life

In fact, I feel pretty damned good about it.

Being a military wife and mother hasn't been easy by any means. At first, marrying a Navy guy seemed so glamorous. At our wedding, our relatives oohed and ahed when Francis' uniformed buddies formed a sword arch. Everyone believed we would lead a life of adventure, honor, pomp and circumstance.

But reality soon hit, and I found myself where most military spouses eventually turn up — alone in an unfamiliar place without a job or friends, solely responsible for the household and kids.

Facing daunting circumstances, nature, instinct or pure necessity kicked in, revealing qualities I didn't know I possessed.

I didn't make a conscious decision to be a dedicated wife and mother, I just did what needed to be done without thinking about it. Hour after hour, day after day, year after year.

When we were stationed in England, and our son was diagnosed with autism spectrum disorder, I shed tears, then hit the ground running because I had no choice.

During deployments and TDY, I did what every military spouse does — I chopped onions, did carpool pick ups, nursed the baby, cut grass, took out garbage, paid bills, folded laundry, visited in-laws and fixed the leaky faucet.

The added responsibility and stress that military moves, deployments and separations added to marriage and parenting forced me to put my own fragile ego aside and get to work. Looking back now, I realize that I — the bumbling class clown — became a rock for our family.

I mix up left and right, forget to add email attachments, miss exits, and overcook beef, but I'm no fool.

I'm a proud military wife and mother, who did whatever it took to create a stable home, and to raise three human beings who will soon go out into this world and touch the lives of others.

The Chief Petty Officers (CPO) from Naval Air Station Jacksonville (NAS Jax) and tenant commands celebrated 125 years of serving in the U.S. Navy with a week of activities.

"We wanted a week to show our Sailors what being a chief means, being a part of something bigger than just yourself," said ADC Catherine Cameron of Fleet Readiness Center Southeast and CPO Association events coordinator.

A 5K run kicked off the week March 26 at the antenna farm. The first 200 finishers were given a special medal, to commemorate the significance of the years.

"For those who missed the run, we are also doing a virtual run, which can be completed at any time," said Cameron.

Next up, was the annual CPO golf tournament in which players were broken into teams of four.

"This is an opportunity for all hands to come together and play a good game on the golf course," said AWC Mike Ducker of Commander, Patrol and Reconnaissance Wing 11. "This week was meant to reward chiefs for all their hard work."

A Feed the Troops event was held March 28 at the barracks, with CPOs serving the junior Sailors. Cornhole, a bounce house, DJ music and other activities were available during the lunch.

"We expect so much of our Sailors that it was really nice to stop and give back to them," said AOC Jeff Wainwright of Helicopter Maritime Strike Squadron 70.

According to Wainwright, nearly 700 Sailors were fed at the lunch.

The week finished off with the base CPOs gathering for colors at Building 1 March 29 and gathering for a group photo. Later that day, they marched in formation from the base outdoor pool to Dewey's All Hands Club for lunch. During the march, passersby stopped and applauded the chiefs and took photos.

Navy shooting competition season begins soon

From the U.S. Navy Marksmanship Team Public Affairs

The U.S. Navy Marksmanship Team (USNMT) recently announced this year's match schedule for service rifle and service pistol competition.

The Atlantic Fleet and All-Navy East matches will run May 5-17 at Marine Corps Base Quantico, Virginia.

After the All-Navy matches, the top 20 shooters Navywide for pistol and the top 20 for rifle are invited to represent the Navy at interservice and national matches where they compete against the best shooters from all military services.

The interservice pistol match will be held at Fort Benning, Georgia, June 17-22. Interservice Rifle will be at MCB Quantico, from June 21-29.

Like last year, national rifle matches will be held in two locations: Camp Perry, Ohio, and Camp Atterbury, Indiana. National pistol matches will be held at Camp Perry, Ohio.

"Our primary focus at the fleet matches has always been to introduce new shooters to disciplined marksmanship competition with service pistols and rifles," said Cmdr. Jon Marvell, USNMT officer in charge. "We accomplish this with our Small Arms Firing School and our full match program. Last year, we added a .22 Excellence-in-Competition match to the Atlantic Fleet Match. This gave experienced shooters the opportunity to earn additional awards and it gave new shooters an opportunity to warm up with a low recoiling target pistol before the service pistol matches began.

"In recent years," Marvell continued, "we have sought to incorporate more intermediate and advanced training for our more seasoned competitors. Last year, we had a breakout training session with Lt. Keith Trapp, a member of the 2017 United States F-Class (Open) National Shooting Team, on wind reading. We also had a clinic on service rifle positions conducted by Cmdr. (ret.) Matt Bartel who won the 2014 National Trophy-Individual for rifle at Camp

Perry.

"We also have the support and presence of the Retired Navy Shooters Association (RNSA). This group supports our matches and provide an opportunity for face-to-face interaction with people who were champions before many of our new shooters were born," said Marvell.

"RNSA members are match officials and referees, some still shooting competitively, still serving the Navy shooting community long after their military service has ended. The military is, and always will be, a profession of arms," said Marvell.

"While the big Navy focus will always be on ships, aircraft and big weapons platforms, we cannot forget small arms skills at the deckplate level," he continued. "The RNSA involvement in our matches helps link new shooters to the long-standing tradition of small arms in the armed forces and the nation.

"All of these resources are available at no cost to the shooter or his command, but they are priceless in terms of improving marksmanship skills. 2018 will be our 57th annual Fleet Matches," Marvell said.

"We've been doing this for a long time yet remain an unknown to so many in the Navy," he added.

"Please spread the word. Every year we have dozens of Sailors with no experience show up to safely learn about competitive marksmanship and the advanced techniques required to employ service-type rifles and pistols at or near maximum effective ranges. Even for those with no experience at all, they are welcome to join us and learn from the best in the Navy about safe and responsible small arms use, learn and practice advanced marksmanship in a safe and professional environment, and join a growing Navy shooting sports community."

For more information, shooters can visit the team website, www.usnmt.org or the Facebook group U.S. Navy Marksmanship Team.

NAVFAC Southeast awards increase to Hurricane Irma repair contract

NAVFAC Southeast Public Affairs

Naval Facilities Engineering Command (NAVFAC) Southeast awarded a nearly $12.5 million increase March 22 to a previously awarded task order for the stabilization and repairs due to Hurricane Irma within the NAVFAC Southeast area of responsibility.

This task order will be used for roof replacement, further stabilization of damaged facilities, mold remediation and other construction related tasks resulting from Hurricane Irma at Naval Air Station (NAS) Key West, Florida.

"We continue to see improvements every day since Hurricane Irma," said NAS Key West Commanding Officer Capt. Bobby Baker.

"The base took a hit, but with the help of NAVFAC, we are operational and continue to train warfighters, just six months after the storm."

URS Group, Inc. of Morrisville, North Carolina was contracted last fall to make repairs to Navy and Marine Corps facilities that were damaged in Florida and Georgia when Hurricane Irma made landfall in Florida Sept. 9 and 10. After award of this modification, the total cumulative task order value will be $36 million.

Hurricane Irma left many building envelopes exposed by either a compromised roof or exterior closure. To date, the regional storm repair contract has addressed the damage to over 120,000 square feet of roof, 232 windows and 83 doors.

"The first objective for executing this contract was to ensure all building envelopes were secured prior to addressing interior spaces," said NAS Key West Public Works Officer Lt. Cmdr. Shawn Gorman.

To date, roofing and interior repairs averaged about two months and two weeks respectively per facility."

Upcoming critical work includes shoring and concrete repairs at hangar A936, constructing new Receiver and Transmitter facilities, and perimeter fence repairs.

Work is expected to be completed by September 2018.

NH Jax presents first DAISY Award

Lt. j.g. Wesley Limberg, a registered nurse at Naval Hospital Jacksonville's Labor and Delivery unit, asks Carolina Wilson questions about her pregnancy. Limberg (a native of Owensville, Missouri) earned the command's first DAISY Award for Extraordinary Nurses. He has participated in 141 deliveries. "The one-on-one care is something special to me. You get to be involved in their birth story; something they'll remember forever." Limberg received praise from numerous patients, including: "he built a personal connection and trust," "he took the time to explain everything they were doing and everything they were concerned about," and "he is truly passionate about what he does and it shows." DAISY is an acronym for Diseases Attacking the Immune System.

Sexual assault awareness, prevention and help

By Yan Kennon
Naval Hospital Jacksonville
Public Affairs Senior Writer

Both military and civilian communities recognize April as Sexual Assault Awareness and Prevention Month. For the Department of Defense, this year's theme is "Protecting Our People Protects Our Mission."

According to the National Sexual Violence Research Center, nearly 1 in 5 women and 1 in 67 men report experiencing rape (sexual violence) at some time in their lives.

"It's everyone's responsibility to combat and eliminate sexual assault," said Capt. Matthew Case, Naval Hospital (NH) Jacksonville commanding officer.

NH Jacksonville provides medical forensic exam services 24/7 at its hospital. The medical forensic exam incorporates the collection of potential forensic specimens into the medical exam process. Specialized training is required for those that provide or assist with the exams.

Service members and their adult military dependents who are victims of sexual assault have two reporting options: unrestricted and restricted. Unrestricted cases are reported to both the command and law enforcement. Restricted (Confidential) reports allow adult victims access to healthcare, advocacy services, and legal services without notifying the command or law enforcement. Military retiree, DOD civilian and DOD contractor victims currently may use only Unrestricted Reporting.

Naval Hospital Jacksonville's Lt. Cmdr. Kristina Polk, emergency medicine physician, and Terri Augspurger, sexual assault medical forensic exam program manager, discuss treatment for survivors of sexual assault. April is Sexual Assault Awareness and Prevention Month (SAAPM). DOD observes SAAPM by focusing on creating the appropriate culture to eliminate sexual assault and requiring a personal commitment from all Service members at every level.

Active bystander intervention can help prevent sexual assault.

An active bystander identifies situations that might lead to a sexual assault, and then safely intervenes to prevent an assault from occurring. The three components to active bystander intervention are: recognize when to intervene, consider whether the situation needs attention, and decide if there is a responsibility to act.

The Navy offers 24-hour response capability to victims of sexual assault regardless of location — ashore, afloat, or deployed — to ensure timely access to services.

Anyone in immediate danger should call 911 (in the U.S.).

For those who have experienced a sexual assault, call the 24/7 toll-free DOD Safe Helpline at 877-995-5247, NAS Jacksonville Sexual Assault Response Coordinator (SARC) at 904-548-7789, Naval Station Mayport SARC at 904-548-8392, or your command SAPR victim advocate.

Defense Switched Network (DSN) users can dial 94 plus the 10-digit toll-free number. Or, call 202-540-5962 or use the Safe Helpline APP (which offers Voice over IP technology).

April is the month of the Military Child

From Navy Region Southeast Public Affairs

April is designated as the Month of the Military Child, underscoring the important role military children play in the armed forces community.

Sponsored by the Department of Defense (DoD) Military Community and Family Policy, the Month of the Military Child is a time to applaud military families and their children for the daily sacrifices they make and the challenges they overcome.

The Month of the Military Child is part of the legacy left by former Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

He established the Defense Department commemoration in 1986 to highlight the year-round contributions, courage and patriotism of the military community's youngest members.

Illustrating the importance of children, DoD created the Child Development Program offering childcare up to age 12. Similarly, youth development programs offer older children opportunities for recreation, and character, social and emotional development.

In addition, the New Parents Support Program helps parents during pregnancy, childbirth, and until children reach 3 years of age, to reach their full potential through home visitations and parent support groups.

Military OneSource is another resource available 24/7, 365 days a year, to support parents to learn more about parenting skills, as well as to find support for themselves.

Family support has evolved over the last 40 years to become the family readiness system, which is a collaborative network of agencies, programs, services and professionals who promote the readiness and quality of life of military families both on installations and in the community.

"Respected, that's how it makes me feel," he said. "In those days, you didn't join the military for money. It was for honor and country."

Vietnam Veterans Day was established in 2012. Approximately 9 million U.S. military members served on active duty during the Vietnam War era. Of the 2.7 million who served in Vietnam, more than 58,000 were killed and more than 304,000 were wounded.

Team Navy Jax wins award for MS fundraiser

WE BRING THE MILITARY TO YOU

Together, our communities of service members and their families, and your business, can spell SUCCESS. Not only will your business benefit while the families are stationed here, many military families retire to the area, with NAS Jacksonville being one of the most sought-after assignments in the U.S. Navy. To advertise, or to find out more information, please call 904.359.4168.
