Marching for Healthy Babies

By TONY BRITT

tbritt@lakecityreporter.com

Kaylie Grace Spradley is a perky 11-month-old girl whose main focus is pulling herself up on items as she attempts to walk. Sometimes she utters the words "mama" and "dada."

She's only weeks away from celebrating her first birthday as a normal child with normal medical concerns. However, her parents Keith and Betsy Spradley, can vividly remember days last year when their daughter's life and happiness was in doubt.

Kaylie was born premature at 32 weeks on April 28, 2011 at North Florida Regional Medical Center. She weighed only 3 pounds, 14 ounces and was 17 inches long.

Although premature, her lungs were developed enough for her to breath. However she had other medical problems and had to be kept in an incubator for 22 days to keep her body temperature regulated.

"They (doctors) didn't like for us to hold Kaylie because of her body temperature dropping so much," Keith Spradley said. "That was tough... Just sitting there staring at your baby in a box wears on you."

When Kaylie was one week old, she was rushed to Shands at the University of Florida in Gainesville because she was throwing up green bile. Doctors diagnosed her with a stage 1 necrotizing enterocolitis, a bowel obstruction common to premature infants. She remained at Shands in the Level 3 Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) for four days where she had a tube down her throat and a PICC line, offering intravenous access. Sometimes she would stop breathing and her heart rate would become too slow.

Contributions from the local March of Dimes helped make a significant contribution to Kaylie's health. She now weighs 19 pounds, 6 ounces.

This weekend the March of Dimes will give residents an opportunity to help other babies in need during the organization's annual walk-a-thon fundraiser. Kaylie is an ambassador for this weekend's fundraiser.

The 2012 March of Dimes March For Babies is Saturday in Olustee Park in downtown Lake City. Money raised during the walk supports community programs that help mothers have healthy, full-term

Hair-raising efforts

United Way's local impact totals $1,075,973.

Few, if any men, want to lose most of their hair at one time.

But if losing his hair, in a public meeting, with a pair of pink hair clippers, in front of close to 100 people meant the United Way of Suwannee Valley met its challenge goal, then Mike McKee, United Way president took the buzz cut as a good sport.

United Way of Suwannee Valley held its 2012 Royal Awards Banquet and annual meeting Thursday night at Florida Gateway College Howard Conference Center, chronicling the organiza-

At-large seats studied by panel

The Columbia County Charter Review Commission passed a motion to vote on move two at-large county commission seats at the next meeting with further legal analysis provided.

The amendment was opposed by Glynnell Presley, who claimed the addition of two at-large seats would dilute the strength of minority voices on the commission.

Charter member Bettye Lane expressed concern over the amount of familiarity the at-large positions would have with the needs of individual districts.

"It's a matter of familiarity and common concerns," she said.

Charter member Jack Berry encouraged the amendment to be pushed

County Line Fire surrounded

Officials unsure of containment lines' security.

By HANNAH O. BROWN

hbrown@lakecityreporter.com

Fire officials have boxed in the County Line Fire with 45.5 miles of containment lines completely around its perimeter, Southern Area Type 2 Incident Management Team public information officer Bonnie Strawser said Thursday.

Although the fire has been surrounded with containment lines, officials do not have a "high confidence level" about the security of all of those lines, Strawser said.

"Just because we have containment lines, doesn't mean the fire is contained," Strawser said.

Strawser estimated that 25 percent of containment lines were "solid," meaning a wide area has been cleared of dry vegetation that would feed the fire.

Strawser explained that the approach fire officials utilize is to take fuel out of the fire's path in an effort to keep it from spreading.

A major part of the acreage included in the fire, which has now grown to over 35,000 acres, is composed of land that has undergone strategic burning.

The purpose of strategic burns is to eliminate or reduce as much fuel as possible between a stable point, such as a road, and the fire.

"The whole idea is to burn with small fires to prevent a big fire," Strawser said.

Fire officials also plow the soil to reinforce containment lines.

Strawser said that it was not possible to conduct a direct, face-to-face attack because there are no roads in the area where the fire is predominately located and the ground is wet and will not support much weight.

"It'll carry a fire but it won't carry a tractor," Strawser said.

According to Strawser, the most recent strategic burn was done on swamp lands.

"It was a spotty fire at best," Strawser said. "It's still a line but there's still lots of fuel."

According to Operations Section Chief Pete Kubiak, the next method of fire containment will be the use of chemically-filled

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Grey spends 80th birthday in style

NEW YORK – Joel Grey partied into the night while celebrating his 80th birthday. The festivities began at curtain call at his Broadway show “Anything Goes,” when the cast wheeled out a big blue birthday cake. Then stage and screen legend Bernadette Peters came out to lead the audience in a few celebratory verses of “Happy Birthday.” “Eighty is the new 60,” Grey told the audience at the Stephen Sondheim Theatre.

Joel Grey, center, is flanked by performers from “Sleep No More” at Grey’s 80th birthday party held at The McKittrick Hotel in New York on Wednesday.

Backstage, still in costume and makeup, Grey admitted being surprised by the gesture, and equally happy to see his old friend. “Anytime I see Bernadette, it’s thrilling to me. I love her,” Grey said. Grey also said that he’s feeling better than ever, saying: “Everything seems fresh and new and exciting to me.” Later in the evening the celebrations continued with a party at the McKittrick Hotel, the home of the immersive, mask-filled, genre-bending Chelsea show “Sleep No More.” Grey held court at its bar and also toasted the 40th anniversary of the Oscar-winning “Cabaret.”

Fosse classic ‘Cabaret’ restored to original glory

LOS ANGELES – It took a stray bit of dirt to scratch the perfection of “Cabaret,” and painstaking effort to return it to cinematic glory. The restored “Cabaret,” minus damage that had prevented a high-definition version, earned the opening spot at the four-day TCM Classic Film Festival. Stars Liza Minnelli and Joel Grey were scheduled to attend Thursday’s ceremony marking the musical’s 40th anniversary. Minnelli, whose turn as cabaret singer Sally Bowles captured a best actress Academy Award and cemented her young stardom, said making “Cabaret” was a joyful “secret,” filmed in Munich and far away from meddling Los Angeles studio bosses. Director Bob Fosse “got away with murder. We all did,” Minnelli said in a recent phone call from New York. She’s on a concert tour, “Confessions,” based on her album of the same title.

‘Dateline NBC’ series puts parental maxims to test

NEW YORK – Correspondent Natalie Morales ended up in tears when she put herself and her 8-year-old son through the same parenting test that “Dateline NBC” is subjecting others to for a series that starts Sunday. Using hidden cameras and actors, the network set up scenarios to see if kids really follow their parents’ instructions to avoid strangers, don’t get into a car with a drunk driver or don’t cheat. The results will probably depress you. Time and again, children gave their names and addresses to a “stranger” who had taken their picture and talked about putting them on TV. Promised free ice cream, they climbed into a van driven by an actor who could easily close the door on them and speed away. Parents watched it all on monitors nearby. “I would have lost my money if I put a bet on it,” one cringing parent said after watching a youngster climb into a car with an actor pretending to be drunk behind the wheel. For four consecutive Sunday nights, “Dateline NBC” will show the scenarios, which also test whether kids would cheat or discriminate if given the opportunity.

Prosecutor: Zimmerman ignored backing off

SANFORD – After weeks in hiding, George Zimmerman made his first courtroom appearance Thursday in the shooting of 17-year-old Trayvon Martin, and prosecutors outlined their murder case in court papers, saying the neighborhood watch volunteer followed and confronted the black teenager after a police dispatcher told him to back off. The brief outline, contained in an affidavit filed in support of the second-degree murder charges, appeared to contradict Zimmerman’s claim that Martin attacked him after he had turned away and was returning to his vehicle.

In the affidavit, prosecutors also said that Martin’s mother identified cries for help heard in the background of a 911 call as her son’s. There had been some question as to whether Martin or Zimmerman was the one crying out.

The account of the shooting was released as Zimmerman, 28, appeared at a four-minute hearing in a jailhouse courtroom, setting in motion what could be a long, drawn-out process, or an abrupt and disappointingly short one for the Martin family because of the strong legal protections contained in Florida’s “stand your ground” law on self-defense.

During the hearing, Zimmerman stood up straight, held his head high and wore a gray jail jumpsuit. He spoke only to answer “Yes, sir” twice after he was asked basic questions from the judge, who was not in the courtroom but on closed-circuit TV. The defendant’s hair was shaved down to stubble and he had a thin goatee. His hands were shackled in front of him.

State courts struggling with juvenile sentences

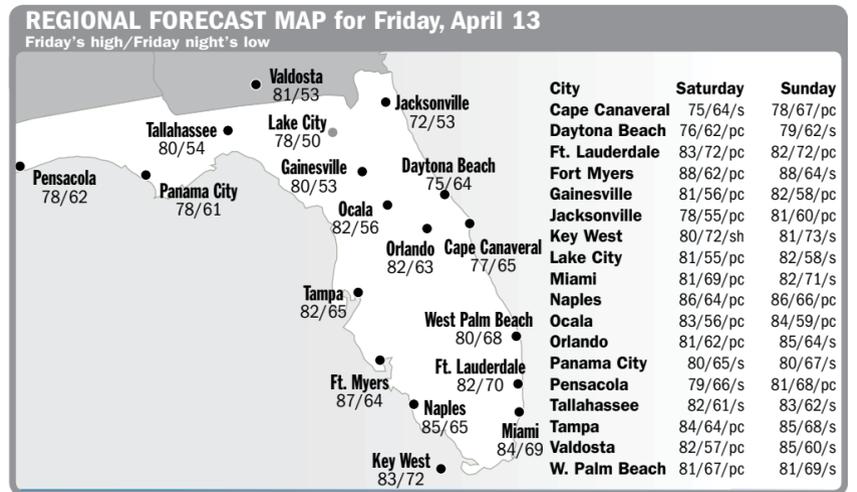

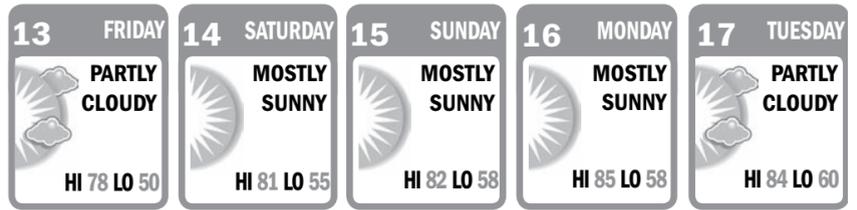

TALLAHASSEE – A Florida appeals court panel said Thursday that 80 years is too long to keep a juvenile locked up for a non-homicide crime. However, the three-judge panel of the state’s 1st District Court of Appeal also said uncertainty will continue over compliance with a U.S. Supreme Court opinion that rejected absolute life sentences for juveniles who haven’t killed anyone until a higher court or the Florida Legislature addresses the issue. The judges struck down an 80-year sentence for an inmate who committed armed robberies when he was 17. A term that long is the functional equivalent of life without parole, the appellate judges wrote as they sent the case back to a Pensacola trial court for resentencing. They also urged lawmakers to follow the high court’s guidance and explore how to comply with its opinion.

First Lady praises military families on stop

JACKSONVILLE – First Lady Michelle Obama is continuing her push to help military families. She stopped in Jacksonville on Thursday as part of the anniversary of her “joining forces” program, which aims to help veterans and their families. Mrs. Obama was joined at Naval Air Station Jacksonville by hundreds of high-school girls whose parents are in the military. The young women were given gift cards that they can use for their upcoming proms.

Loveloud wraps up FGC entertainment season

From staff reports

Tickets are selling out for the FGC Entertainment season finale, featuring Wellborn-based rock band Loveloud, this Saturday at Florida Gateway College. The Saturday night performance in the Levy Performing Arts Center serves as a reunion and farewell concert of sorts for the band, whose hard-hitting sounds and positive lyrics have landed them some unique opportunities in the few years they've been together. Loveloud has performed alongside popular bands such as Red Jumpsuit Apparatus, A Rocket to the Moon and Downtown Fiction, and last year were included in the annual Warped Tour. But their most popular songs – along with a few unreleased tracks – will be on display Saturday night, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The show is sponsored by the Law Offices of Tommy Demas. Tickets can be purchased by calling (386) 754-4340 or by visiting www.fgcertainment.com.

Individual seats are $10 for general admission and $5 for FGC students, staff and faculty. This is the 10th and final concert of the inaugural season of FGC Entertainment, a series that has featured country music stars Easton Corbin and Diamond Rio, and other eclectic acts such as illusionist Jason Bishop and the Golden Dragon Acrobats. The lineup for the 2012-2013 series will be announced in the coming months.

pregnancies and it funds research to find answers to the problems that threaten babies. Registration begins at 8 a.m. There is an awards party scheduled for 8:30 a.m. and the walk starts at 9 a.m. Beginning at 10 a.m. there will be food and entertainment in the park. Local chairs for the march are doctors Chuck and Robin Hall. Kathy McCallister, March of Dimes Suwannee Valley Community Director, said the walk will be a 5-mile trek through the downtown area. McCallister said 56 teams have registered to take part in the event and she anticipates at least 250 people participating. "Last year's fundraiser goal was $85,000 and our goal this year is $100,000," McCallister said. "We are still looking for teams." Teams can register online at www.marchforbabies.org. "We are anticipating a huge turnout and anticipating we'll go over our fundraising goal," McCallister said. Spradley encouraged people to take part in the fundraiser. "We were going to walk, take part and try to raise money just because we had a premature baby," he said. "It's important to take part in an event like this because you never know when it will happen to you or one of your family members. It's scary when it does happen to you. As much research as they can do, it's great that there's an organization where the money goes to help these babies get home faster or save a baby's life."

forward. "I think we ought to have it on the ballot so that people can decide what they want," Berry said. An amendment that would take out the current appeals process for the termination and appointment of department heads by the county manager was also moved forward on Thursday night. Currently, the county manager retains the right to terminate department heads. Terminated individuals are subsequently given the right to appeal the county manager's decision. Berry proposed that the appellate process be taken out so as to keep the "politics of the board" of the County Commission out of an appeal for reinstatement. Charter member Nathan Morgan motioned to take out the appellate process in that procedure. The amendment was pushed forward 10 to 2. The Commission also discussed the possibility of changing the county attorney position to a non-elected post. A motion was passed to have legal representatives of the charter develop legally suitable options for this amendment to present to the board at the next meeting. The commission will revisit all passed motions at the next meeting April 26. If the motions continue to move forward, they will end up at one of three public hearing dates which have yet to be officially scheduled.

plastic spheres dropped from a helicopter into the interior of the fire. The spheres, called "ping pong balls" are one-half inch in diameter. They are filled with antifreeze and potassium permanganate by a machine that quickly drops the balls from the air. Within 10 to 30 seconds the balls ignite, consuming any lingering fuel on the ground. The number of spheres dropped depends on the reaction of the fire as well as the conditions of the weather. "We can run several thousand," Kubiak said. "It depends on how much fire we need, it might only take a dozen."

Kubiak said the intensity of the fire created can be managed by the spacing of the spheres. According to Kubiak, this operation is fairly commonly used for prescribed burning, controlled fires which are used to prevent out of control wildfires from occurring. "We are very familiar with this operation," he said.

ONE

Will U.S.- Afghan pact on special ops help?

The U.S. and Afghanistan signed a deal Sunday that should end the worst point of friction between U.S.-led forces and the Afghan government and its people.

From now on, special operations missions, including night raids, will be conducted by the Afghan military, with U.S. troops in a supporting role, and in general pursuant to a warrant issued by a special panel.

The night raids were deeply unpopular with the Afghan people. The raids were undoubtedly terrifying and offended longstanding Afghan cultural norms, especially when the troops entered houses where women were present.

By signing the agreement giving the Afghan military the lead role in special operations, the U.S. hopes it will remove an obstacle to negotiations over the U.S. and NATO's role in Afghanistan after the scheduled 2014 withdrawal date for foreign troops.

However, the U.S. agreement to limit itself to a supporting role in special operations is not a decision that, once taken, can easily be reversed. The arrangement's success depends on the ability of the Afghan military, which is expected to be at the planned full strength of 352,000 by year's end.

The Afghan forces are already being tested. March 21 was the start of the Afghan new year, and with warmer weather comes the traditional start of the fighting season. Both the U.S. and Afghan governments are negotiating an agreement that would guarantee a U.S. presence there for another 10 years.

That could be a hard sell with the American people and Congress. Under this new agreement, it's up to the Afghan government and military to prove that a continued American presence is not a waste of lives and money.

ANOTHER

A streetcar named debt

The District of Columbia on Friday completed the first phase of testing for its $1.5 billion streetcar project. The nation's capital joins big cities like Los Angeles in advancing the revival of a transportation option that has been obsolete for more than half a century. The Obama administration is spearheading the effort to turn back the clock.

If $1.5 billion seems like a lot - it's an entire year's income-tax revenue for the city - Washington bureaucrats have a ready answer. A January 2012 study commissioned by the city concluded the 19th-century-style trolley service "strengthens real-estate values by adding $5 billion to $7 billion to the value of existing property and sparking an additional $5 billion to $8 billion in new development in the 10 years after completion." But wait, there's more. Operating electric trains in the middle of busy city streets will "draw an additional 6,300 to 7,700 jobs" to the District.

It's a perpetual-motion machine of prosperity, and Transportation Secretary Ray LaHood wants more of it. Two years ago, he loosened funding rules so light-rail and trolley projects would have an easier time bypassing pesky cost-benefit analyses. "Measuring only cost and how fast a project can move the most people the great distance simply misses the boat," Mr. LaHood wrote on his Fast Lane blog on Jan. 14, 2010.

On Easter Sunday, Mr. LaHood blogged triumphantly over a 5 percent bump in transit ridership for the month of February, saying, "If we build it, riders will come." Objective measurements suggest that's simply not the case. According to the Census Bureau, the number of people commuting to work on public transportation dropped from 12.6 percent in 1960 to 5 percent today. The percentage of the population that depends on the automobile for this task has remained essentially unchanged since the 1970s despite the hundreds of billions of dollars spent by state and federal authorities on transit.

Almost as many people work from home - 4.3 percent - as take the bus or subway to work. The number who take a streetcar or trolley is an almost unmeasurable 0.1 percent, but not because the systems are unavailable. Last year, the Cascade Policy Institute surveyed five major events in Portland, Ore., to count how many in the liberal stronghold took advantage of the tram or train. A mere 8 percent hopped on the trolley on the way to the circus. About 80 percent of the environmentally conscious attendees of a "green building" show at the Expo Center used internal-combustion machines to get there. Light rail accounted for just 2.2 percent of trips to the shopping center on the Friday before Thanksgiving.

The folly of trolleys goes far beyond the massive debt they create. Mixing a rail system with automobile and pedestrian traffic is a recipe for accidents. Houston's "Wham Bam Tram" caused 245 accidents between 2004 and 2009.

Still, public officials remain infatuated with the idea of getting other people out of their automobiles so the government can decide when and where they can travel. In these tight budgetary times, such old-fashioned transit boondoggles should be the first to go.

Tiny changes – huge results

"I want to win the PGA Masters golf tournament."

Bubba Watson is a well-liked young man from Baghdad, Florida, who won the PGA Masters this last Sunday. Overjoyed and emotional, he was congratulated and hugged by lots of caring family and friends. I bet that Bubba's road to this incredible accomplishment began with a tiny spark, like playing his first putt-putt golf, or seeing his dad or personal hero make a great shot.

I think most great interests and accomplishments begin with a tiny spark, a dream, or a special event in your life. Do you remember a childhood dream? Is there something now that you would like to do, have, or be?

It's easy to be discouraged by others, who may have told you that your goals and dreams are unrealistic. Maybe a parent said, "You've got your head in the clouds?" Did a friend discourage you? You may have torn down your own dreams, thinking them too lofty or unreachable.

One day in 1991 I was driving my wife to work in Panama City when we passed a counseling center. I said, "That's what I'd like to do: counsel troubled youth, and help them build happy, successful lives for themselves." My own childhood was not very happy, and my life wasn't off to a good start. It took me many years to learn how to overcome my own demons and build a happy, successful life for myself. It occurred to me that having traveled that path myself, I might be able to help others along that journey.

She said, "Why don't you go in and apply?" I replied, "No, to do counseling you need a master's degree and experience." But later that day I did apply. It turns out that in Florida you can do some beginning counseling with just a bachelor's degree, under close supervision from a licensed counselor. That supervision is the best education and preparation you can get, when you combine it with taking graduate courses in counseling and psychology.

Just mentioning my interest led to the career of my dreams: counseling troubled youth and families, and eventually teaching psychology at Florida Gateway College. That's just one of the minor changes in my life that have made a big difference to me.

What does it take to start the ball rolling? Follow a few basic principles, and watch for opportunities. You never know where trying something new will lead you. Life is long. If not now, when? If not you, then who? No one has found an absolute limit to what people can do. Why not use a little of my time, ability, and effort to try something new and different? Can I afford the time, money, and effort? What can I do to get started?

Keep your eyes and ears open. Nurture an interest in talking with others about their interests, hobbies, pastimes, and their careers. Does this spark a new interest of your own? Share your interests, your dreams, with someone. What would you like out of life that you're not getting now? What would your life be like if you explored a new interest? What is a tiny change you could make today? Big things happen with a series of tiny changes. Schedule that tiny change on your calendar. Don't put it off.

What will come from this? The sky is the limit. Look back over your life. What tiny change in your past made you what you are today? What tiny change can build the future you want? Share your changes by emailing me at bob.denny8@gmail.com.

Climbing a rock and getting nowhere

You've probably seen the Citi credit-card commercial that has generated a lot of buzz.

It opens with a woman's saying, "My boyfriend and I were going on vacation." She appears to be in a clothing store and needs to get a few accessories. With her Citi card, of course. Then the scene changes. She picks out "a new belt" (it's a rock-climbing harness) and "some nylons" (rock-climbing ropes). "And what girl wouldn't need new shoes?" she asks. (Yes, for rock-climbing, of course.)

Then we watch as she hoists herself up to the tiny top of a huge rock formation we can't believe is real, with her guy following. Natch. As we get dizzy watching her triumphantly stand on the little precipice, we hear her voiceover again: "We talked about getting a diamond. But with all the 'thank you' points I've been earning, I flew us to the rock I really had in mind." In the background, we hear the lyrics "Somebody left the gate open" chime in. (From "Into the Wild" by LP.)

It turns out the actors are real rock climbers, climbing a real rock formation near Moab, Utah. It's all very glorious.

Betsy Hart

betsysblog.com

I can't stand the ad.

In fact, it just about has me climbing the walls!

This is a tough girl who eschews those silly feminine trappings of fashion for real power - high heels for high rocks. And that rock on the third finger of the left hand? Who needs it? Especially when she has all those handy-dandy "thank you" points instead.

Well, let me offer this: Her Citi "thank you" points are not going to keep her warm at night. And they are not going to help her with the baby if she gets pregnant by the boyfriend she doesn't think she needs to marry. Or, rather, who doesn't think he needs to marry her. So what's to keep him from finding a younger, more attractive rock-climber?

And "Somebody left the gate open"? I guess the gate was closed when a rock meant marriage, not hiking.

I know, it's just an ad. But it reflects a culture in which girls are more and more "supposed" to be tough, independent, aggressively sexual and with no need for men or marriage. In fact, that's all seen as constraining.

"I flew us to the rock I really had in mind." Real women create their own destiny, with their own money, and they don't need to consult anyone. Not even someone they might descend to love.

Whatever we want in our professional lives, most women want marriage, and children, and a man who will pursue them and, in some tangible way, care for them. That's how we are built.

Yes, I want my own daughters to rise to the tops of their professions. If they want to get to the top of precarious rock formations, too, that's great.

But you can bet I'm also clear that, of course, real-life women want men, and marriage, and family. And so my daughters had better be darn tough. Because increasingly in our culture, it takes a strong woman to admit just that.

Dealing with 'sticky' situations

Onesimus is a profitable assistant to Paul, but because the former slave is the property of Philemon he must be returned. How can Paul, an apostle, inform Philemon of how to accept Onesimus back without appearing overbearing? How will Paul handle this "sticky" situation?

The book of Philemon, located between Titus and Hebrews in our New Testament, is a personal letter, written by the apostle Paul and is filled with love. It is an appeal for Philemon to accept back Onesimus as a brother in Christ and not as a "useless" slave.

Paul begins in standard first century letter writing fashion by addressing the letter to Philemon and those in his household. Then he follows with a prayer concerning Philemon, an appeal to Philemon, and his expectations of Philemon. Paul concludes with the greetings from those accompanying Paul to the household of Philemon and the traditional benediction of requesting "the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ" to be with the spirit of Philemon.

Surely there were other "personal letters" that Paul wrote, so why do we have this one? While we may not learn why only this letter is included, we know that we can receive instruction in some things from this short New Testament letter.

In the appeal section of the letter (verses 8-20), there are four things we can observe from Paul about how to handle a "sticky" situation. The first is that Paul is not going to "order" Philemon to take Onesimus back but rather appeal to him intellectually. We can never "order" anyone to do anything for us. Paul wants Philemon's "consent," his actions to be based upon his "own free will."

Second, Paul does not want to assume that Philemon would take Onesimus back just because "an apostle" is making the request. Our position in life should not be the compelling factor.

Third, Paul would like for Philemon to consider the hand of God being active while Onesimus was separated from Philemon because it gave Onesimus an opportunity to become a Christian. We need to give God and His word time to work.

Fourth, the relationship between Philemon and Onesimus has changed. Paul is not speaking of the master/slave relationship but of the relationship they have in Christ Jesus. Both are on equal plane with each other. Both are brothers in Christ. Both are partners with Paul in the spreading of the gospel.

How we handle the situation should improve our relationship.

A final thing we can learn from Paul is to expect the best in people. Paul expects the best from Philemon and assumes the relationship will not be hurt because of this letter. Paul knows Philemon will honor this appeal even beyond his expectations. Paul continues by asking Philemon to "prepare me lodging." And finally, Paul knows that Philemon will continue to pray for Paul's release from prison.

Paul's writings are a masterpiece. His example is the best way to help us to deal with "sticky" situations.

How to pray with confidence

Sometime ago I read a survey taken by someone. A group of adults were given a sheet of paper with this statement on it: "When it comes to pray, I _____." They were to fill in the blank. The majority of the results fell into these categories: "I don't pray enough", "I don't know what to pray", "I don't know if prayer does any good".

I realize that this subject can be a little touchy to some, but God had laid it on me to teach the truth about His word. My prayer is that this will be received with the same, as it is sent, "in love".

BIBLE STUDIES

ems-hugh43@comcast.net

It amazes me today that so many who stand up to pray, including some pastors, don't know what the Bible teaches us about prayer. So many have to make sure they get all the "thees" and "thous" in. We often try to be so proper we forget the simplicity of prayer. Jesus gave us the example of how to pray in Matthew 5:9-14: "Our Father in heaven, hallowed be Your name. Your kingdom come, Your will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. And do not lead us into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one; for Yours is the kingdom and power and glory forever. Amen (NKJ)".

This is not the Lord's Prayer, it is the example prayer, for Jesus said in this manner therefore pray. The Lord's prayer is John Chapter 17.

The example prayer tells us to pray to the "Father", not to God, not to Lord, not to Jesus, but to the Father. In John chapter 17, Jesus prayed to the Father. Four times in these 26 verses, He says Father; one time, Holy Father; and one time, Righteous Father. Today, many people begin every sentence with Father, or God, or Lord, or Jesus. Prayer is a simple request to the Father and we can make these requests with normal conversation. It does not have to be so proper.

Jesus also gave us this instruction in John 16:23: "And in that day you will ask Me nothing. Most assuredly, I say to you, whatever you ask the Father in My name, He will give you."

So we see plainly that we are to pray to the Father, in the name of Jesus. We have these pre-given instructions. The Holy Spirit had the writer to put these in the Bible so we will know how to pray the prayers that God the Father hears and answers.

James Montgomery said "Prayer is the Christian's vital breath, the Christian's native air. Surely we should seek to know all we can about such vitalizing air. As in the physical realm our life depends on the air we inhale, so in the spiritual sphere the development of our Christian life is dependent on the recognition of the importance of prayer. Communion with God must be the element which we live in and move and have our being."

Prayer is not only a privilege, it is necessary, for without its exercise we are cut off from the source of life, light, and love.

Hugh Sherrill, an ordained minister and Bible teacher at Eastside Baptist Church, is available for revivals.

Small steps accomplish large tasks

How do you eat an elephant? Say it with me: "One bite at a time!" This old cliché is more than just a quick reply...it contains the wisdom and necessity of a plan when tackling an overwhelming task. When we look at the overall picture, no wonder we want to run away! But no matter how huge a problem or project seems, it can be accomplished with a process of beginning at one point and continuing step by step until completion. So, I wonder what daunting task lies before you: finding a job, caring for elderly parents, overcoming an addiction, raising children, saving your marriage, or maybe just finding purpose in your life...the possibilities are endless, but the first question is always the same: "Where do I start?"

For the next several weeks, I hope to get the answer to this question and the inevitable ones that follow through an in depth look at the book of Nehemiah. This scripture is so valuable because it gives an eyewitness account of an overwhelming task with much opposition, and not only records his actions in reaching the goal, but also some of his private thoughts and prayers throughout the process. Nehemiah begins his story by telling of the troubling news he received from several men returning from Judah to Persia, where he served as cupbearer to the king. The report was bleak concerning the condition of the Jewish remnant and Jerusalem:

HEART MATTERS

Angie Land
angieland3@windstream.net

"Those who survived the exile and are back in the province are in great trouble and disgrace. The wall of Jerusalem is broken down and its gates have been burned with fire" (Nehemiah 1:3).

(A little background: Jerusalem had been destroyed some 140 years earlier by the Babylonians, with the Jews being taken as slaves into exile. After Persia conquered Babylon, King Cyrus established a policy of returning exiles to their homeland. His successor, King Darius supported the reconstruction of the temple in Jerusalem, but little else had been accomplished.)

After "hearing" this news, Nehemiah sat down and wept, then he mourned, fasted and prayed. In the original Hebrew language the word "heard" is transliterated "sama." According to the Old Testament Lexical Aids, it means "to hear, give undivided attention, to understand what one has heard, to obey, give heed to...essentially denotes perceiving a message or sensing a sound." I want to suggest to you the answer to our first question. This is where we start, by really "hearing" the problem or need that warrants the project. To not just hear with one ear as it goes in and out the other, but with our "undivided attention," to understand what is needed and then to "give heed to" and perceive what role we will play in accomplishing the task. Is our role as a leader, a helper, an encourager, or do we have a valid role at all?

If we don't properly "hear", we can react emotionally and make an even bigger mess out of a difficult issue. With good intentions, we can even move in a direction farther away from the real goal. Through "hearing," Nehemiah determined that his goal was to bring glory to God by restoring the reality of God's presence among his people in Jerusalem. Practically, his role would be to rebuild the wall around Jerusalem and implement civil authority. You and I are going to take this journey with him, but meanwhile, I encourage you to set aside time this week to "hear." Pray about the role you are to play in the task you are facing, and get a clear picture of the goal. Take this important first step...because your heart matters!

Blessings, Angie

HAIR: United Way meets challenge goal of $570K

tion's fundraising efforts this year as well as placing new officers on its board. The United Way of Suwannee Valley has provided services to area residents for 44 years.

McKee challenged the community to at least match the $570,000 raised in the 2009-2010 campaign. The campaign was roughly $10,000 short of its goal when PCS donated another $10,000 bringing the final campaign tally to $571,361.

"I was concerned up until right before the meeting that we weren't going to make our goal, but thank goodness for Potash Corp. that stepped up," McKee said. "Terry Baker's leadership at Potash Corp. with the employees stepping up was wonderful. It was an awesome goal to reach."

United Way officials realized the organization was close to $100,000 short of reaching its campaign goal, so they decided to focus on surpassing last year's goal as well as the fundraising goals for 2009.

"I think we're at about $3,000 more than we did last year," McKee said. "This means a lot to the agencies who need the money. The need is great in the community. We could use more fundraising."

Collectively, United Way's community impact initiatives resulted in United Way's receipt of $227,890 in grants and community agencies' receipt of $276,722 in grants for a total of $504,612. Volunteers with corporate citizens raised $561,361. Combined with $504,612 in grant funds, United Way's community impact total is $1,075,973.

Todd Sampson, the incoming United Way president, said the goals for the organization haven't been established yet, but he's nearly certain the community goal for the fundraising campaign will be at least $685,000.

"The main goal is to help as many people in the community as we can through as many partners as we can," he said. "We're looking forward to a successful year and hopefully we can bring in a little more money to the community than we did this last year."

Sampson said he thinks the big thing for next year will be to get everyone involved in giving. There are 26 local United Way agencies.

"If everyone would give something then we could meet our goal," he said. "That's the key - making sure people are aware of what's available. This money does stay local."

Rita Dopp, United Way of Suwannee Valley executive director, said the annual banquet was fun.

"I think that when we work this hard all year we should get together, have fun and celebrate all the successes, in addition to being honest about all the challenges," she said.

Dopp said the United Way wanted to get the trend line going up like in 2008-2009 and that's why McKee issued the challenge.

"He didn't just want to meet last year's amount, he wanted meet the 2009 amount and get the trend line going back in the right direction," she said.

Super seniors

Softball is all about numbers, averages and percentages.

One number seldom associated with the sport is 1,000, but that is the percentage of the Fort White senior class that has signed softball scholarships.

Cecile Gomez signed with Jacksonville University last year, while Alison Wrench and Kayla Williams both signed with Thomas University during the season.

"I'm glad I had the opportunity to coach all three of these girls," said second-year Lady Indians head coach Cassie Sparks. "All three have set the bar high and will be missed. Our underclassmen have big shoes to fill."

A testament to Sparks belief in her players is she went to bat for Wrench and Williams with Bill Wilson, her former coach and at her alma mater.

The three seniors will be honored at 6:30 p.m. today, before the start of the game against Lafayette High.

Now for numbers. Gomez has pitched 11 complete games and three shutouts this season. She has a 1.51 ERA in 102 innings. Opponents are hitting .164 against her. She has 177 strikeouts and helps herself with a .995 fielding percentage.

At the plate, Gomez is hitting .302 with 10 runs and 13 RBIs. She has seven walks and struck out just once.

"Cecile is a coach's dream," Sparks said. "She's an amazing pitcher, but what people didn't get to see this year as much is her phenomenal fielding skills at other positions. She's really grown as a pitcher with a young team behind her. She has a great attitude and never complains."

Center fielder Wrench is hitting .483 with 13 runs, 10 RBIs, five walks and only three strikeouts. She has a 1.000 fielding percentage.

"Ali is an all-around athlete," Sparks said. "She has an athletic mind and thinks about every situation. She carried the young outfielders under her wing this year. We are definitely going to miss her speed and outfield skills, as well as her bat."

Williams has nine hits, three walks, two RBIs and seven runs. She has a fielding percentage of .889 at second base.

"Kayla is one of those players who always had it in her," Sparks said. "Her range at second base has been a blessing; the coaches have confidence in her fielding more than anything."

Senior sendoffs

Columbia battles back from 5-1 deficit to win, 7-5.

By BRANDON FINLEY
bfinley@lakecityreporter.com

Columbia High looked like it would have its Senior Night spoiled against P.K. Yonge on Thursday. But senior Taylor Douglass started a Columbia rally in the bottom of the fourth inning and the Lady Tiger came back from 5-1 down to win 7-5.

After a two-run first inning for P.K. Yonge, the Lady Tigers got one back when Michaela Burton scored on a wild pitch in the second inning.

P.K. Yonge added three more to lead 5-1 heading into the bottom of the fourth inning, but that's when the Lady Tigers struck back.

Taylor Douglass started the inning off with a single and Burton scored her two-batters later to make it 5-2.

Stephanie Pilkington then singled to score Brandy Morgan, who reached on a hit and Burton.

Down one run, Kayli Kvistad delivered ripped a double to bring in Pilkington and tie the game.

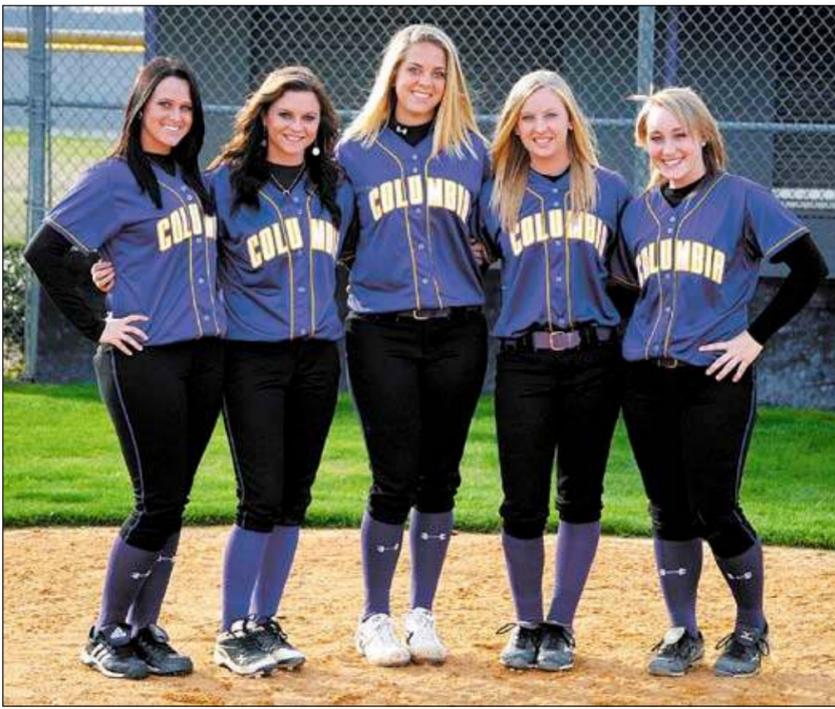

One-inning later, the Lady Tigers took the lead for good.

After hits by Douglass and Morgan, Holly Boris laid down a bunt with a 3-1 count to bring in both runs after a throwing error.

Ashley Shoup picked up the win after entering the game in relief of Jessica Keene and Erin Anderson in the fourth inning. Shoup finished the game without allowing an earned run and shut down P.K. Yonge's hot start.

"She's the perfect pitcher for a team with fast bats," Columbia head coach Jimmy Williams said. "She's got really good control and did a great job. I'm just excited for the seniors, because they've worked really hard and we're starting to come from behind to win some of these games."

Columbia (20-4) will close out the regular season tonight as the Lady Tigers travel to Live Oak to take on the Lady Bulldogs at 7 p.m.

Fort White beats Taylor County on Senior Night.

FORT WHITE — It was a Senior Night that showed the resilience of Fort White High's baseball team. The Indians scored a run in the bottom of the sixth inning to beat Taylor County High, 4-3, on Thursday.

Fort White honored seniors Bryce Beach, Nick Butler, Taylor Morgan, Nate Reeves and Brandon Sharpe in pre-game ceremonies.

"It's been great working with these young men," Fort White head coach Mike Rizzi said. "I appreciate everything you have done for us and for me."

The team also honored volunteer assistant coach and Rizzi's son, Tony Basile. Basile is entering the service soon after the district tournament.

Sharpe picked up the win. He went 6²/₃ innings with six hits, one earned run, four walks and nine strikeouts.

Kevin Dupree relieve with a runner on second and got the final two outs to earn a save.

Beach had a pair of hits and scored Fort White's first run in the bottom of the third inning. After his single, Brady Wilkinson walked. Beach stole second and third and scored on a sacrifice fly by Brandon Myers. Dupree added a single.

The Indians (14-9) scored two runs with no hits in the fourth inning. Kody Moniz reached on an error, stole second and third and came in on a throwing error. Nick Butler walked and eventually scored when Beach's ground ball was booted.

Taylor County tied it at 3-3 with a two-out rally in the sixth inning.

In the bottom of the sixth, Moniz worked more of his base-running magic. He walked, moved to second on a wild pitch, stole third and scored on a wild pitch. Butler walked and Morgan ripped a one-out double to the left-field fence. The runners were stranded, but the run was not needed in the end.

Georgia's defense may have edge in G-Day game

Dawgs rebuilt offensive line having trouble.

By CHARLES ODUM

ATHENS, Ga. — Georgia's offense, led by quarterback Aaron Murray, has been overmatched at times this spring when lining up against a defense that returns nine starters.

Georgia is rebuilding its offensive line. That has led to some ugly matchups against All-America outside linebacker Jarvis Jones and massive defensive tackles John Jenkins and Kwame Geathers.

The Bulldogs ranked fifth in the nation in total defense last season, and most of the top players from that unit will play for the Black team in Saturday's G-Day spring game. Murray, tailback Isaiah Crowell, receiver Tavarres King will lead the first-team offense on the Red team, according to G-Day rosters released on Wednesday.

The challenge for the offense is nothing new.

"It's definitely a challenge every day," offensive coordinator Mike Bobo said Tuesday.

There are a lot of veterans over there. Some of them have been playing three years. It makes it harder for us but I think it's going to make it better for us in the long run. It makes us fight every day in practice and it's going to help us in the fourth quarter in

Newman, crew chief pay homage to memory of champ

When Ryan Newman and his crew chief Tony Gibson were celebrating their victory at Martinsville Speedway on April 1, the date had special significance for Gibson and Newman and for legions of longtime NASCAR fans.

It was on that date 19 years earlier that the reigning Cup champion Alan Kulwicki died in a plane crash as he was en route to Bristol Motor Speedway for that week's race.

Back then Gibson was Kulwicki's car chief and a fabricator for the team, Newman was in high school and was inspired by Kulwicki to follow his example — first to an engineering degree and then to NASCAR's elite circuit.

Gibson said in the winner's interview at Martinsville that the 19th anniversary of Kulwicki's death was on his mind before the green flag ever flew.

"I thought about that [Saturday] night actually, and it means a lot," he said. "A lot of the reason I'm where I'm at is because of Alan. The fight to never give up, and always believe in yourself comes from him, too."

Kulwicki was a rare breed, both driver and sole owner of his race team. He was underfunded compared to the top teams in his era, but he overcame that with hard work and determination to win five Cup races in his relatively brief seven-year career and the 1992 championship. His old crew members eventually moved on to other teams, and like Gibson, became known for their work ethic.

Now Gibson is back working with another engineering graduate, and the similarities between Kulwicki and Newman don't end there.

"It's just pretty cool to be with Ryan with the engineering background, and he's just like Alan," Gibson said. "He's just like him. He's wicked smart, and when you ever try to catch him on something, he's got a little bit better answer for you. So I don't try that anymore ..."

"It's pretty neat if you look back, same type of guy; a guy that all he wants to do is race; all he believes in is racing. Just goes to show you, you can be smart and you can drive, too."

Newman said Kulwicki's legacy means a lot to him too.

"He was an inspiration for me," Newman said. "He was part of the reason why I chose to be an engineer and follow through with my racing career at the same time."

"Just like Tony said, he's inspirational to a lot of people in the garage; that never-give-up attitude; the underdog kind of mentality that he had. It's no matter what, we'll do our best and that's all we can do."

Kulwicki's championship year of 1992 wound up being one of the great turning points in NASCAR history.

Besides being the last time that a driver/sole team owner won a title, it marked a major changing of the guard in the Cup series. In the '92 season finale, Richard Petty ran his final Cup race, and

Jeff Gordon ran his first.

The championship that year saw six drivers still in the running up until the season finale at Atlanta.

Davey Allison, Bill Elliott and Kulwicki had the best chances, but Harry Gant, Kyle Petty and Mark Martin also had mathematical chances.

Allison, the wildly popular young member of the famed Alabama Gang, crashed out early in the finale at Atlanta, and never got another shot at a championship. He died in a helicopter crash the next year.

Elliott never came as close to winning a championship again, and Junior Johnson, the car owner who led him to the runner-up position in '92, saw his long run as a dominant force in NASCAR essentially come to an end.

Gant, who scored two wins in '92, running his career total to 18, never won again or contended for another title, and retired from the Cup series at the end of 1994.

Kyle Petty, who finished fifth in the '92, standings, won one race and finished fifth in points the next season, but was never higher than 15th after that.

Of the six in contention for the title in 1992, only Mark Martin remained a factor on down the road. He's won 33 races since 1993, and finished in the top five in the points standings 11 times.

The late NASCAR writer David Poole, in his book about the 1992 season, summed up the lingering effects of that year, and the tragedies that followed, by saying: "If any lesson is to be learned from the events of the 1992 season and the months that followed the climactic race at Atlanta, perhaps it is that life is not lived in a straight line. It comes, instead, in a series of circles that change constantly as they ripple across the circles made by the lives of those around us."

Perhaps that was Poole's way of explaining how after 19 years, Tony Gibson, who had stints at Hendrick Motorsports and Dale Earnhardt Inc., is back in victory lane with another engineer-driver, Ryan Newman, and working for a team co-owned by driver Tony Stewart.

Crew shakeup on JRM teams

JR Motorsports, looking for an improvement in the performance of its Nationwide Series teams, has swapped the crew chiefs for its No. 88 and No. 5 teams.

Crew chief Bruce Cook will move to the No. 88 Chevrolets driven by Cole Whitt, while Tony Eury Sr., the team's competition director and a veteran crew chief, will take over the No. 5 in addition to his regular duties.

Tony Eury Jr.'s role as crew chief for Danica Patrick's No. 7 car will remain as is.

"Our teams have a tremendous responsibility, not only to perform at the standards we set for ourselves but reflect the commitment to excellence of our sponsors," team co-owner Kelley Earnhardt Miller said in a team release. "Our on-track performance isn't meeting those standards, and we felt a change was necessary."

The No. 5 car will race at Texas Motor Speedway this week with team co-owner Dale Earnhardt Jr. driving. He and Eury Sr., his uncle, won 15 Sprint Cup races between 2000 and 2004.

Cook takes over the No. 88 team that has one top-five and two top-10 finishes this season and is sixth in the standings with the rookie Whitt doing the driving.

"Bruce's demeanor is probably more suitable in the developmental process of young drivers, and Tony Sr. has the experience and familiarity with Dale Jr. that can help get our 5 car to Victory Lane," Earnhardt Miller said.

Controversial Chevy retired

Team owner Rick Hendrick recently told reporters from ESPN that the No. 48 Chevrolet that failed inspection at Daytona International Speedway, and led to a long battle with NASCAR officials over the ruling about the car's C post, won't be returning to the race track.

Johnson crashed the car during the race, and rather than repair it and risk another run-in with NASCAR, Hendrick gave the car to his driver Dale Earnhardt Jr., who plans to add it to the collection of crashed cars that he keeps on his North Carolina property.

Repairs complete at Daytona

The operations team at Daytona International Speedway put the finishing touches on Turn 3 last week, painting the yellow lines on the repaved area affected by the jet dryer incident during the 2012 Daytona 500.

After Easter: Some drivers on roll, others must hop to it

As the NASCAR circuit cranks up again following the Easter break, there are several drivers who need to step up their performance to reach the levels expected of them, and others who are off to surprisingly strong starts.

Carl Edwards, for instance, is showing signs of continuing the trend in which the runner-up in Sprint Cup points one year is basically a flop the next.

After six races, Edwards has yet to show the speed that kept him in the title hunt last year all the way to the final lap at Homestead, where he wound up tied in points with Tony Stewart but lost the tie-breaker, as Stewart had five wins to his one.

Edwards is 11th in the standings heading to Texas Motor Speedway, 47 points behind his teammate and points leader Greg Biffle. So far, Edwards has not led a lap all year.

In his career, Kyle Busch has scored 104 victories in NASCAR's top three series, but none since he was parked for the rest of the weekend at Texas Motor Speedway last fall after wrecking truck series championship contender Ron Hornaday Jr.

Since that weekend, he has just one top-five finish in Cup, a runner-up run at Auto Club Speedway.

On the Nationwide Series side, he's running his own team, but the results have been lackluster. He has an average finish of 17.4 and a best finish of eighth at Auto Club.

Jeff Gordon, who has had fast cars at most races this year, has just one top-10 finish to show for his efforts, and he's 21st in the standings. He appeared headed for a win at Martinsville only to be taken out in a crash with Clint Bowyer on the first of two attempts at a green-white-checkered-flag finish.

A.J. Allmendinger got one of the premier rides in NASCAR when he was picked to replace Kurt Busch in the No. 22 Dodge at Penske Racing, but until a second-place finish at Martinsville, he hasn't run like a Chase contender. He's 20th in the standings with no other top-10s besides Martinsville.

Kasey Kahne perhaps is the biggest surprise of the season, but not in a way he'd like. After moving to the No. 5 team at Hendrick Motorsports with his crew chief Kenny Francis, he was expected to be an immediate Chase contender. But after six races, he's mired in 31st place in the standings, 96 points out of 10th place after experiencing a mix of driver mistakes and mechanical failures.

On the other hand, defending Cup champion Tony Stewart, who normally doesn't hit his stride until mid-summer, is off to an unusually fast start, with two wins already. And Dale Earnhardt Jr. is off to a strong start and sits second in the standing, just six points behind leader Greg Biffle.

Gopher tortoises move through 'spring training'

Commission releases

Like a baseball player stretching muscles and practicing skills during spring training, the gopher tortoise is emerging from winter dormancy and moving slowly and steadily through the landscape in search of greenery to eat and a new place to dig its burrow.

Look for gopher tortoises' distinctive domed brown shells and stumpy legs, as these land-dwellers make their way through Florida's open canopy forests and sandy areas. The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission asks people to remember that gopher tortoises are good neighbors, so leave them and their burrows alone.

"The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission works with, and is grateful to, the homeowners, landowners, businesses and public agencies willing to share their lands with gopher tortoises and their burrows," said Deborah Burr, the FWC's gopher tortoise plan coordinator. "This state has made progress in reversing the decline of gopher tortoises by providing direction to developers, including re-locating tortoises, if necessary, and giving help to people interested in making room for tortoises."

Florida's first Gopher Tortoise Management Plan was adopted by the FWC in 2007 and is being updated this year as scheduled. More than 50 individuals and stakeholders already have made suggestions on improving the 2007 plan, and proposed draft revisions to the plan are available online at the GTAG SharePoint site for review and comment.

To comment, go to MyFWC.com/GopherTortoise and click on the "Management Plan" link.

Since the Gopher Tortoise Management Plan took effect in 2007, an annual average of 36,000 acres of gopher tortoise habitat has been restored and managed; protected tortoise habitat expanded by more than 6,500 acres; and more than 4,000 gopher tortoises were humanely relocated from development sites.

"In addition to changes in Florida's economy, the needs of the gopher tortoise have changed since the plan was first approved in 2007," Burr said. "The proposed revisions to the plan include new actions that the FWC and our partners can implement together to improve the status of the species, and help secure viable populations well into the future."

She added, "There will be public-comment opportunities through July on each improved draft of the plan."

In Florida, it is illegal to harm gopher tortoises or their extensive burrows, which provide shelter to more than 350 other native species. Generally, the only time people should pick up and move a gopher tortoise is to help it get across a road. Remember, though, not to put the tortoise in your car. Do point the tortoise in the same direction it was going when you picked it up, but never put it in the water because it is a land animal.

The best long-term protection for this state-threatened species is the people who are aware of gopher tortoises' needs and happy to share their lawns and lands with the tortoise that can live to 40 to 60 years in the wild.

FWC moves forward on plan to manage black bears

The FWC is moving ahead on its plan to manage and conserve Florida black bears so they are never again at risk of extinction. With the bear population rebounding from about 300 to 3,000 over the past 40 years, the FWC recognizes Florida's conservation success with bears and recommends the state's largest land mammal be removed from the threatened species list.

The Commissioners discussed the draft Florida Black Bear Management Plan, a proposed black bear conservation rule, and heard public comments and suggestions at a Feb. 9 meeting.

The Commissioners are scheduled to take up a revision of the draft plan and the rule during their June meeting.

Pointing out a paragraph in the draft bear plan tracking the fall and rise of Florida's bear population, Commissioner Brian Yablonski said, "We had 750,000 people in Florida in 1914 and we had roughly 3,000 bears, and here we are at the last data point in 2002 and we've got 17 million people in 2002 and about 3,000 bears. That's an amazing success story. I think this is a very positive day."

The draft bear management plan, released on Nov. 10, 2011, was followed by a two-month period of public input, which included public workshops in Bristol, Naples, DeLand and Gainesville. Floridians offered feedback at the workshops, online where the draft plan was posted at MyFWC.com/Bear, and by mailing written comments.

About 2,500 comments were received from private citizens and stakeholder groups on the draft plan. People had the opportunity to speak on Feb. 9.

The public commented on issues such as updating bear population estimates, reducing human-bear conflicts and continuing the review of land-use changes impacting bear habitat.

Members of the public also expressed opinions on whether to allow bear hunting in Florida and whether taking bears off the state's threatened species list would impact bear conservation.

FWC staff is recommending following many of the public's suggestions to the overall plan.

Saints name Vitt interim coach

By BRETT MARTEL
Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — The New Orleans Saints have named Joe Vitt as interim coach, despite the top assistant's six-game suspension for his role in the club's bounty system.

The Saints had to find a one-season replacement for head coach Sean Payton, whose season-long suspension in connection with the bounty scandal begins Monday and runs through the next February's Super Bowl.

New Orleans general manager Mickey Loomis said in the release Thursday that Vitt will take over on Monday.

"It is important that we keep Sean Payton's philosophy front and center during this season," Loomis said Thursday. "Sean has been the driving force behind the tremendous success our team has enjoyed during the past six years, his leadership will be missed. But we need to set a course of action that gives us the best chance to win this season without our head coach. ... We considered a number of great options to handle Payton's duties both internally and externally, but believe this will provide the most seamless transition for our players and our coaching staff, allowing our offensive and defensive staffs to remain intact with the fewest changes.

"This is the same structure we used last season during Sean's knee injury."

Vitt, who carries the titles of assistant head coach and linebackers coach, briefly stepped in as interim head coach last season when Payton broke his leg. Vitt also was interim coach with St. Louis in 2005 before joining Payton in his first season with New Orleans in 2006.

Vitt will be able to oversee the offseason training program and training camp, before stepping aside for the first third of the regular season.

The NFL played no role in the decision-making process.

"It's the Saints' decision," NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said, adding the team did not have to get approval from the league to make Vitt the interim coach.

The Saints did not say what their plans will be during Vitt's six-game suspension.

"We will work through the offseason under this plan and when we get to training camp we will decide on a course of action for the first six weeks of the season, while Joe Vitt is unavailable," Loomis said. "We are fortunate to have a great veteran coaching staff well equipped to handle this challenge. Joe and

New Orleans Saints assistant coach Joe Vitt arrives for a meeting at NFL headquarters in New York on April 5. Vitt was named the Saints' interim head coach on Thursday.

Sean have worked closely together to build our program, one of the most successful in the NFL in the past six years, and I have the fullest confidence that Joe will continue that success that Sean has brought us." The Saints' assistants who can pick up the slack during Vitt's absence include: offensive coordinator Pete Carmichael, offensive line coach Aaron Kromer and new defensive coordinator Steve Spagnuolo.

■ Carmichael, who also joined the Saints in 2006, began calling plays after Payton's injury last season. Payton allowed Carmichael to continue calling plays through the final 10 regular season games of 2011 as the Saints went 9-1 and broke numerous NFL offensive records.

■ Kromer, who also oversees the running game, will be entering his fifth season in New Orleans and like Carmichael has been mentioned as an up-and-coming head coaching candidate around the NFL.

■ Spagnuolo, who was a head coach in St. Louis the past three seasons and defensive coordinator for the New York Giants' 2007-08 Super Bowl winning team.

The decision gives Saints players a measure of certainty and direction as Monday's first day of the offseason training program approaches.

Still looming, however, are possible punishments for between 22 and 27 current and former Saints defenders that the NFL says participated in the crunch-for-cash bounty system that disgraced former Saints defensive coordinator has apologized for running for the previous three seasons.

The league's investigation found that Williams' bounty system offered off-the-books cash payments of $1,500 for "knockouts," in which an opposing player was knocked out of a game, or $1,000 for "cart-offs," in which an opponent needed help off the field. The league has said the bounty pool grew as large as $50,000.

The investigation also found that Payton initially lied about the existence of a bounty program and instructed his defensive assistants to do the same.

Loomis received an eight-game suspension for failing to ensure the program was stopped after the NFL first asked him to do so in early 2010.

The franchise, meanwhile, was fined $500,000 and docked second-round draft choices this year and next, although NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell has said he may lessen the 2013 penalty by modifying which pick the Saints lose if the club cooperates with the NFL's ongoing probe.

Williams, who was hired as defensive coordinator in St. Louis after last season, has been suspended indefinitely. His penalty will be up for review after next season.

Petrino, mistress exchanged hundreds of calls, texts

By KURT VOIGT
Associated Press

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — Former Arkansas coach Bobby Petrino and his mistress exchanged more than 4,300 text messages and nearly 300 phone calls over the past seven months — on game days, before dawn and even as the police report that hastened his downfall was being released to the public, according to a review of his business cellphone records by The Associated Press.

The messages, among some 300 pages of records released under a Freedom of Information Act request, appear to include picture and video files, though there was no way to verify the content. But the records clearly show a married father of four in frequent contact with Jessica Dorrell, a 25-year-old former Razorbacks volleyball player.

Petrino was fired Tuesday night for failing to disclose his relationship with Dorrell, whom he hired last month without disclosing his conflict of interest or the fact he had once paid her $20,000. Athletic director Jeff Long said he had determined their relationship had been ongoing for a "significant" amount of time, but he did not say for how long.

The phone records show that Petrino remained in close contact with Dorrell following the April 1 motorcycle accident in which Petrino suffered four broken ribs, a cracked neck vertebra and scrapes and bruises.

That day, Petrino and Dorrell went for a motorcycle ride on a two-lane highway southeast of Fayetteville and skidded off the road. Petrino and Dorrell talked for 16 minutes earlier that day before the crash at 6:45 p.m., and they also had a 22-minute conversation the following day — while Petrino was apparently still in the hospital recovering.

police on April 5, and the two talked 11 times that day. That included a pair of 2-minute calls around 3:30 p.m., when police were releasing the report that for the first time exposed her presence at the accident.

Later that evening, as questions swirled about his future at Arkansas, Petrino exchanged four calls with his agent, Russ Campbell, totaling 10 minutes.

The cellphone records show Petrino and Dorrell were in contact at least as far back as Sept. 12. The university provided nearly seven months of Petrino's business cellphone records, and that is the first date listed. Among the findings:

Petrino exchanged 91 texts with Dorrell on Sept. 13 and 84 texts with her over five hours on Oct. 28, the day before a game at Vanderbilt. On Oct. 17, the two swapped 73 text messages, and on four days in a row in the week before a loss to eventual national champion Alabama, Petrino called Dorrell early — at 5:52 a.m., 6:35 a.m., 5:49 a.m. and 7:55 a.m.

The day Arkansas beat

Troy, the two exchanged 70 texts. They exchanged 26 texts the day Arkansas beat Mississippi State and four following the Razorbacks' loss to LSU on Nov. 25. Dorrell sent Petrino a text during Arkansas' Cotton Bowl win over Kansas State, though the coach didn't reply until the following day.

The 51-year-old Petrino was earning an average annual salary of $3.5 million and he had built Arkansas into a national power, including a 21-5 record over the past two seasons and a No. 5 ranking in last season's final AP poll. He was expected to lead the Hogs on a national title run next season, but his career was effectively ended the day of the accident.

Petrino didn't disclose Dorrell's presence on the ride to Long until 20 minutes before the police report was released to the public. The records show Petrino's six-minute call to Long at 3:11 p.m., during which the coach first told Long of his inappropriate relationship with Dorrell and her presence at the accident. He was on the phone with her a few minutes later.

Petrino has issued a lengthy apology and said he was focused on trying to make amends to his family.

Long, meanwhile, is now a full day into his search for a new coach. Late Wednesday, he tweeted: "At this time I have not spoken to anyone about the Head Coaching position."

Former Arkansas quarterback Ryan Mallett, now with the New England Patriots, tweeted his support for Garrick McGee. The former Razorbacks offensive coordinator was hired as the head coach at UAB in December after four years in Fayetteville.

"GM only coach Ark should look at if they wanna win now," Mallett wrote. "I'm talkin about Garrick McGee. He can win at Arkansas."

Mallett made clear he was not referring to Gus Malzahn, the former offensive coordinator at Arkansas, Tulsa and Auburn who took the head coaching job at Arkansas State in December.

"That would be a mistake," Mallett tweeted.

the fall."

Bobo said Murray, who set a school record with 35 TD passes last season, may play only one quarter. Hutson Mason will play behind Murray.

Christian LeMay is the probable starting quarterback for the Black team. Bobo said some quarterbacks may play on both teams.

"Everyone cares because there are a lot of guys out there playing for jobs," Mason said.

Georgia plans to hold out Mason as a redshirt this season. LeMay could move up as Murray's top backup.

Bobo said Mason, a junior, has not practiced as if he doesn't plan to play in 2012.

"From day one he's been competing his tail off like he wants to be the starter, and that's the only way he's going to get better," said Bobo of Mason. "He has done that from the first day of spring. Day in and day out, he's trying to say 'I'm the best guy on this team' and that's the only way he's going to get better."

Georgia lost center Ben Jones and tackles Cordy Glenn and Justin Anderson from last year's 10-4 team.

Offensive line coach Will Friend has tried different combinations this spring. He said his current starting five includes tackles Kolton Houston and Kenarious Gates, guards Chris Burnette and Dallas Lee and center David Andrews. Houston opened spring practice as a guard.

Watts Dantzler and Austin Long were other options at right tackle before Houston's move.

King said the line is "coming together so much, it's pretty amazing."

"The first couple of days our big D-line was just blowing them off the ball and just moving them around," King said. "Now we kind of see our guys learning from that and not making the same mistakes. It looks great."

Players who have been suspended for the start of the season will be available to play on Saturday.

Cornerback Sanders Commings was suspended by coach Mark Richt for two games following an arrest on a domestic abuse charge. The other starting corner, Branden Smith, is facing at least a one-game suspension for his arrest on possession of marijuana.

All-America free safety Bacarri Rambo also could face a marijuana-related suspension. Alan Ingram, Rambo's coach at Seminole County High School in Donalsonville, Ga., said last month Rambo inadvertently ate marijuana-laced brownies on a spring break trip to Florida and will be suspended for the first four games.

Georgia has not issued a statement on Rambo's status.

Strong safety Shawn Williams left a scrimmage last week with a knee injury but is not expected to need surgery.

Bobo said Tuesday freshman tailback Keith Marshall may miss Saturday's game with a hamstring injury. Bobo had positive reviews for sophomore tailbacks Crowell and Ken Malcome.

Crowell was the SEC Freshman of the Year after he ran for 850 yards despite missing two games. A failed drug test resulted in a one-game suspension.

"Isaiah has practiced well every day," Bobo said. "He continued to get better, becoming more consistent and more dependable, somebody that you can depend on. I think that has been his goal. He's really done a nice job. He knows his assignments a lot better."

Bobo said Malcome is playing with more confidence.

"He has always been a physical looking guy who has played kind of timid, not really knowing what to do and unsure of himself," Bobo said. "But last year I think the confidence he got playing at the end of the season has helped him in the spring. I'm really pleased with his progress and his attitude."

Malcolm Mitchell, one of the team's top receivers as a freshman last season, has moved to cornerback this spring and may be held out on Saturday with a hamstring injury.

In this Oct. 20, 2007 file photo, LSU coach Les Miles is escorted onto the field prior to a football game against Auburn in Baton Rouge, La. The Bobby Petrino saga has left unsavory trails of deceit, including a troubling perception about the relationship between coaches and the police who handle security for them around the Southeastern Conference — a region where college football reigns supreme. When Petrino wrecked his motorcycle in the hills outside of Fayetteville on April 1, the person he trusted most to handle the immediate aftermath was Arkansas State Police Captain Lance King, who provided security for the team at Razorback games.

SEC football programs, law officers have long history

By DAVID BRANDT
Associated Press

The Bobby Petrino saga has drawn attention to an often overlooked aspect of big-time college football: The relationship between coaches and the police who handle security for them.

Around the Southeastern Conference, providing sideline security for SEC programs is considered coveted duty. Some officers travel to away games, a cost paid for mostly by the schools. In can range from volunteer duty to part of the officer's regular schedule.

Arkansas State Police Captain Lance King, who provided security for Petrino at Razorback games, got the call from the coach when he wrecked his motorcycle.

King was cleared of any wrongdoing and it's not unusual for marquee college coaches to have at least a causal relationship with the law enforcement officials who work closely with the program.

"We consider it an honor because college football is such a public part of life in the south," said Mississippi Highway Patrol Maj. Billy Mayes, a 31-year veteran of the MHP who graduated from Ole Miss in 1981. "But from my point of view, the relationship is strictly business. Some coaches are more personable than others. Ed Orgeron didn't talk to us much. Houston Nutt did."

In the Petrino case, the coach felt comfortable enough to with King to have the officer handle the crucial minutes following the crash.

Since the incident, Petrino has been fired with cause in the wake of explosive details of the crash and attempted cover-up, including lying about details of the accident, infidelity and workplace favoritism. Arkansas athletic director Jeff Long found that the coach made "a conscious decision" to mislead the university in the aftermath of the crash, including that 25-year-old Jessica Dorrell was on the motorcycle with him during the accident.

Long's role in that aftermath was examined by the Arkansas State Police, but the department concluded he did not violate "any State Police policy or state laws."

At LSU, the state police escort began back in the late 1970s when Jerry Stovall was coach, according to State Police Capt. Doug Cain. The trooper for current LSU coach Les Miles is Sgt. Bryan Madden, who has handled the assignment since 2008 was an LSU player.
