Following new information and tips, authorities continue to search for two suspects in the fatal armed robbery of a Lake City convenience store Friday. The armed suspects remain at large and it is possible they are still in the area, said Steve Shaw, Lake City Police Department public information officer.

Rajnikant K. Patel, 55, was killed Friday afternoon during a robbery at his store, A&M Discount Beverage, 394 SE Duval St.

A silver bell chimed 15 times Tuesday night, each time honoring a Columbia County public safety officer who has perished in the line of duty. Last year the bell only had to ring out 12 times.

More than 300 community members, leaders, family members and officers attended the ninth annual Columbia County Public Safety Memorial Day ceremony at the First Baptist Church of Lake City fellowship hall.

Since last year's ceremony, Columbia County has lost three officers.

Forest rangers Brett Fulton and Josh Burch and corrections officer Ruben Thomas III were the most recent fallen public safety officers to the Memorial Roll Call.

Forest Rangers Brett L. Fulton and Josh O. Burch were killed June 20, 2011 while fighting a wildfire.

Corrections officer Sgt. Ruben H. Thomas III was killed by an inmate March 18.

After the bell, representatives from each officer's agency announced the date of the man's death, how he was killed and the family that survived him. Representatives laid a rose in front of a photograph of each officer, dating back to 1900.

Ruben Thomas Jr., Thomas III's father, said the ceremony was "very nice and very honorable." It was touching to see officers from more than 100 years ago honored, although it was tough to see his own son honored. "I am proud of our community that we can come together and be strong," Thomas Jr. said.

Ken Tucker, secretary of the Florida Department of Corrections, said during the ceremony the best part of his job for the last 35 years has been working with heroes every day.

Tucker said officers from every agency leave the safety of their homes to stand up for what is right.

"I've been to far too many funerals for those who have given their lives," he said.

He offered condolences to the fallen officers' families. "I do know you are

No injuries in house fire

An electrical fire damaged a home Tuesday at 243 NE Easy Terrace. Columbia County and Lake City fire departments responded at about 2:20 p.m. after an air conditioning unit tripped the breaker and started a fire in a living room electrical outlet, said Ret Tompkins, CCFD driver and engineer. Two people inside the home at the time were not injured. The fire caused structural damage in the living room and smoke damage throughout the home. "It's not livable," Tompkins said.

County agrees to fund recreation improvements

By HANNAH O. BROWN

The county commission agreed to fund over $1 million dollars in improvements to the Southside Recreation Complex during a day-long meeting on Tuesday.

The TDC will contribute over a million dollars to the project through funds from the county's bed tax. TDC director Harvey Campbell proposed that the bed tax be increased by one penny to aid in paying for the improvements. The TDC's contribution will fund renovations geared toward making the complex more attractive for hosting tournaments.

"Our responsibility in Columbia County is to rec ball, it is not to tournament play," commissioner Jody DuPree said. "But there comes a point that it does become part about tournament play because it does have an economic impact."

Nick Patel, hotel owners and TDC board member, told the commission that the project was an "investment not only for hotels but for the community."

"It's time that we move forward with this project."

Leibovitz receives L.A. MOCA honor

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. – Annie Leibovitz has photographed practically every celebrity, rock star and politician over the past four decades, but when she was honored by the Los Angeles Museum of Contemporary Art, she showed a photograph of Niagara Falls.

Leibovitz received the 7th MOCA Award to Distinguished Women in the Arts Tuesday at a private luncheon at the Regent Beverly Wilshire hotel in Beverly Hills. She showed the Niagara Falls image and told a story about a recent trip there with her children featured in her new book, "Pilgrimage."

She said the MOCA honor "means a lot to me."

"This award has been given to a great group of women, very distinguished company," she said, noting that artist Barbara Kruger was among the guests Tuesday. "And here I am in California. This is where I learned to be a photographer."

Leibovitz, 62, started shooting for Rolling Stone magazine in 1970 while still a student at the San Francisco Art Institute. She went on to work for Vanity Fair and Vogue and has released several books of her photographs. Her "Pilgrimage" collection is currently on view at the Smithsonian American Art Museum.

Some of her most iconic images include a naked John Lennon curled around clothed Yoko Ono and Demi Moore nude and pregnant on the cover of Vanity Fair.

LOS ANGELES – The Oscars will be in Dolby.

The CIM Group, which owns the Hollywood & Highland Center, announced a 20-year deal on Photographer Annie Leibovitz, right, and Maria Shriver greet each other at the 7th Annual MOCA Award to Distinguished Women in the Arts luncheon in Beverly Hills, Calif. Tuesday.

Tuesday with the audio technology company Dolby Laboratories Inc. to rename the Academy Awards venue as the Dolby Theatre.

In a separate deal, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences revealed a new agreement to keep the annual Oscars extravaganza at the theater for 20 more years.

"We are thrilled that Dolby is now the name of the theater because Dolby stands for excellence," said Tom Sherak, president of the motion picture academy. "It's a no-brainer for us."

The posh four-level, 3,400-seat theater, formerly known as the Kodak Theatre, has been home to the Academy Awards since 2002. CIM Group dropped the Kodak name from the theater earlier this year after a bankruptcy court judge approved the early exit of 131-year-old Eastman Kodak Co. from a 20-year naming rights deal it signed with CIM Group in 1999.

During this year's Oscar ceremony, host Billy Crystal jokingly referred to the space as the "Chapter 11 Theatre."

Sherak said the motion picture academy, which did not immediately renew its deal with CIM Group last year, briefly considered moving ceremonies to another venue but decided to keep the Oscars in Hollywood.

"We got a number of suggestions from people saying, 'we'd love to have you,'" said Sherak. "We talked to them, and they gave us some offers that they would have loved to negotiate with us, but we stopped there because the board met and we decided we wanted to be in Hollywood with the awards show." May Day protestors block up Port of Miami

MIAMI – A small group of protestors briefly barricaded the Port of Miami during a May Day march, blocking traffic and causing police to respond.

Most marchers Tuesday did not participate in the roadblock, simply continuing on with the march.

The smaller group — clad in black clothing and wearing bandanas over their faces — dragged metal pedestrian barricades into the busy seaport entrance, which is adjacent to the American Airlines Arena downtown.

Police reacted quickly, removing the barriers so that traffic into the port could resume. The incident lasted less than ten minutes. Miami Police did not immediately have information about the incident.

Self-defense laws task force starts work

TALLAHASSEE – A new task force created by Gov. Rick Scott to look at Florida's controversial self-defense laws spent its first meeting debating where to meet, what to do, and whether or not change is even needed.

Scott created the panel in the wake of the shooting death of teenager Trayvon Martin by neighborhood watch volunteer George Zimmerman. Zimmerman said he acted in self-defense, relying on a seven-year-old law known as "stand your ground" that allows a person to meet force with force if they reasonably believe they are in danger of being killed or seriously harmed. Zimmerman was charged with second-degree murder after weeks of protest.

It will be months before the group wraps up its work, but it became clear that battle lines were already forming over the law, and whether it should be kept or modified as prosecutors, judges and legislators argued over what they should do. They spent a good portion of the meeting debating the scope of their work and whether it should go beyond Florida's chapter of laws dealing with self-defense.

Rep. Dennis Baxley, R-Ocala and the sponsor of the 2005 law that has sparked controversy for weeks, wanted assurances that the Task Force On Citizen Safety and Protection would spend time on more than just those laws. Baxley raised questions on whether or not the group needed to look into the role of neighborhood watch and citizen groups.

"Don't let this turn into a trial (of the law)," Baxley said.

Lt. Gov. Jennifer Carroll, the head of the task force, maintained that the main focus of the group needed to be on the self-defense laws because the group doesn't have the time to "delve" into every public safety law.

Scott signs bill on trade restrictions with nations

MIAMI – Gov. Rick Scott signed a bill on Tuesday banning the state and local governments from hiring companies that do business in Cuba or Syria.

Influential business interests and the governments of Florida's top two trading partners, Brazil and Canada, have warned the law would discourage investment from foreign firms. It is unclear which, or how many, companies would be affected by the legislation.

But Scott said at a signing ceremony that although many Floridians remain unemployed, it was important to send a message that the state is principled.

"If we don't stand up against tyranny, if we don't stand up for political freedom...then why are we here?" he asked the packed audience at Miami's Freedom Tower. Thousands fleeing Fidel Castro's revolution first received health care and were processed by immigration officers in the 1960s at the historic building overlooking Biscayne Bay.

Rubio: All BP spill fines should go to Gulf states

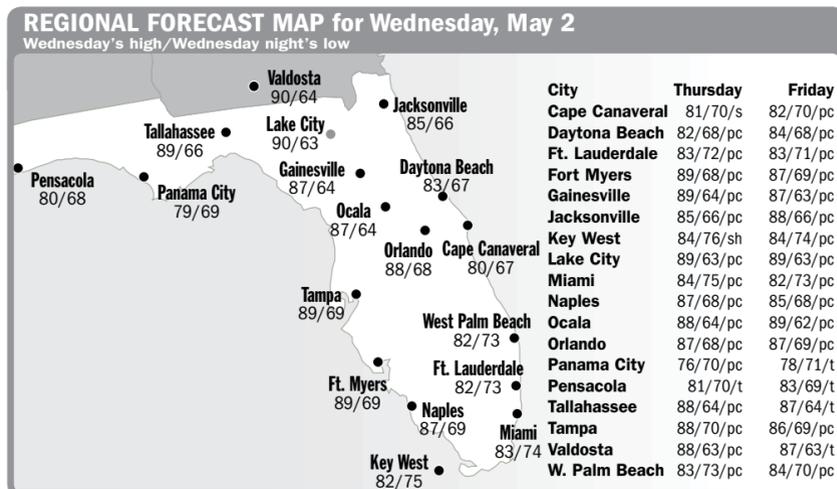

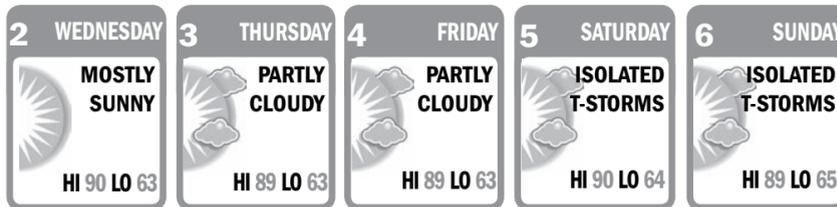

PANAMA CITY BEACH – Sen. Marco Rubio said he opposes a plan that would give Gulf coast states 80 percent of the fines stemming from the 2010 oil spill because the other 20 percent will be cut up and spent elsewhere, a position that drew loud applause from a crowd in this Gulf coast city that was hit by a drop in tourism during and after the spill.

The Senate voted in March to approve directing 80 percent of the fines to restoration in five Gulf Coast states. The House passed a similar version and the differences still need to be worked out. Rubio said he hopes the House changes the bill so that all the money goes to Gulf states.

"Senators from other states come to us and say, 'Well, we'll go ahead and pass this bill where we'll let you keep some of the BP oil spill money, but only if you agree to allow us to get some of that money for the Great Lakes, for California, for other parts of the country that have nothing to do with the oil spill,'" Rubio said.

ect," Patel said.

Included in the county-paid improvements are better quality field playing surfaces, 40 new sets of bleachers and new lighting at the girl's softball field.

DuPree motioned to approved the budget with the exception of $100,000 worth of upgrades to the central building at the complex.

Campbell suggested that the addition of a warming kitchen and a small expansion to the building could turn the space into a viable community center.

Campbell's suggestion was rejected by DuPree who said it would be difficult to have a community center at the complex as it will often be crowded with people on the weekends.

President of girl's softball Chad Padgett listed a string of improvements that he said were necessary to ensure safety such as bathroom upgrades, new lights and new netting to surround the field.

"The dugouts are not up to standard. We have tin roofs flying and flapping in the wind. You have the woods rotting, falling on people's heads," Padgett said.

Padgett explained that the facility had major plumbing issues with the bathrooms on Sunday. He said the bathrooms in the facility were a reoccurring problem.

"I am not asking for anything over and beyond keeping the field safe," Padgett said.

Improvements to the girl's softball field were included in the approved budget.

Additional funds from the TDC were budgeted to provide new restroom and concession stands, parking lot improvements, landscaping and bleacher shading.

DuPree suggested that the TDC be awarded the money on the contingency that they hire an administrator to manage tournament play at the facility and that the TDC accept responsibility for the bidding and construction of the facility.

DuPree added that the TDC would be required to develop a yearly marketing plan with a review of the previous fiscal year.

Patel assured the commission that proper management of the facility would be set into place.

"Trust me, we want to do it the right way," he said.

Police have not yet identified the two suspects and no arrests have been made, he said.

One suspect is described as a young black man about five feet seven inches tall, weighing around 180 pounds. He has short hair and was last seen wearing a gray T-shirt and blue jean shorts.

The other suspect is a light-skinned black man in his mid-30's weighing 230 to 250 pounds. He was last seen wearing a dark straw hat with a white T-shirt, light blue jeans and dark shoes. The man had white tape across his nose and the left side of his neck. He reportedly walked with a limp.

Authorities said the two suspects went into the store around the same time and the first suspect took the money before fleeing on foot and the second suspect shot Patel.

Patel's wife, Daxa Patel, was behind the counter when the men entered the store and Rajnikant Patel was coming out of a broom closet off from the side of the counter when he was shot multiple times. Shots were fired at Daxa Patel but she was unhurt.

Tucker said he attended Thomas' memorial service and was struck by the respect the community showed.

During the miles-long funeral procession, people on the opposite side of four-lane highways pulled over or stood outside with their hand over their heart, he said. "In many big cities people don't pull over any more," Tucker said. "I think this speaks highly of this community."

Tucker said members in the audience should take time to thank public safety officers for what they do to keep the community safe.

It is the desire of the Columbia County Public Safety Memorial Committee to never forget the sacrifice these officers have made, said Frank E. Armijo, Lake City Fire Department assistant chief.

Each year in the U.S. 140 to 170 law enforcement officers are killed in the line of duty, Armijo said. From January to today, 34 officers have given their lives, he said.

The memorial is a time to give our respects to those who have made the ultimate sacrifice, he said.

Davis said he knows the shock and numbness the

From staff reports

Last September, the U.S. Department of Labor proposed regulations regarding child labor safety rules for agriculture and agriculture-related jobs. By Thursday evening, the DOL changed its mind.

"I am pleased the Labor Department chose to withdraw their proposed rules that would have drastically impacted the ability of many young people to work in agriculture," Florida Farm Bureau president John Hobblick expressed. "I appreciate the willingness of the administration to listen to the hundreds of Florida Farm Bureau members who expressed their concern with this proposal."

The proposed rules would have limited the ability of children to perform common farm jobs such as working around animals, working with power driven tools such as battery powered screwdrivers or weed eaters, or working at any height over six feet.

"My experiences as a young man working on my family's farm taught me many valuable lessons," Hobblick said. "I am glad that many young people in this generation will have the same opportunity I had. Florida Farm Bureau will continue to work to ensure that parental exemptions remain intact as well as promote the importance of farm safety in all aspects of farm life."

In withdrawing their rule, DOL issued a statement saying, "The decision to withdraw this rule - including provisions to define the 'parental exemption' - was made in response to thousands of comments expressing concerns about the effect of the proposed rules on small family-owned farms."

Gingrich says thanks

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Newt Gingrich thanked supporters Tuesday, a day before he officially leaves the Republican presidential race, and pledged to work hard to prevent the "genuine disaster" he says would come from re-electing President Barack Obama.

Gingrich says in a video message posted on his website that he will close his campaign on Wednesday.

"Your help was vital," he tells supporters in the nearly two-minute video.

The former House speaker doesn't mention Mitt Romney, the all-but-certain GOP presidential nominee, but said he would continue working to deny Obama a second term.

Gingrich has scheduled his announcement for this afternoon in Arlington, Va.

Lake reviews reverse 911 system

Associated Press

TAVARES — When a 9-year-old girl went missing this week, authorities used a reverse 911 system to alert residents.

But a glitch in the system apparently caused some residents within a 10-mile radius of the girl's home to receive multiple phone calls before dawn on Wednesday.

And some Lake County residents aren't thrilled their sleep was interrupted by as many as four calls by the time the child was found safe later Wednesday morning.

Lake County's emergency management director told the Orlando Sentinel the problems will be analyzed and they will review how the notification system will be used in the future.

Director Jerry Smith says the county purchased the program for tornado warnings and other natural disasters. It has been used about 24 times, most often for missing children.

OPINION

Zealots fiddle, future burns

Here's a political quiz:
Q: What would be great for the nation's fiscal health, would be popular with the great majority of moderates who will determine the outcome of the presidential election and has almost no chance of passing this year?

A: The Simpson-Bowles deficit-reduction proposal. That's the plan crafted in 2010 by a commission appointed by President Barack Obama – led by proposal namesakes Alan Simpson, a Republican former Wyoming senator, and Erskine Bowles, a Democratic former White House chief of staff – and then ignored into a coma by him.

For that he has been skewered by Republicans, who would have done the same thing were they in his place, if for different reasons.

The idea still has a pulse, albeit faint, and may be brought to a vote in the Senate after the election.

To understand the political danger of the plan, the pertinent fact is that the Democrat who has said he will revive it, Senate Budget Committee Chairman Kent Conrad of North Dakota, isn't running for re-election.

And to understand the challenge of getting it passed, check the results of a vote in the House a few weeks ago on a bill that closely resembled Simpson-Bowles – 38 for, 382 against.

That number reflects the chasm that divides the left and right today. Most who step into the breach will fall a long way.

The plan reduces the deficit by cutting spending and increasing taxes.

End of story, at least until enough people come to their senses and realize that although it's not the plan they prefer, it's the kind of compromise that eventually will have to pass. The question is how much damage will have resulted before we get there.

Floridians shortchanged on pre-K education

If it is true that our children are our future, I am convinced that Florida's future is bleak.

While Florida has the nation's highest percentage of 4-year-old children in a state prekindergarten program, taxpayers are being shortchanged on their investment on at least two fronts: The program is not adequately funded, and instruction in many classrooms is of poor quality.

In its 10th annual report, released last week, the National Institute for Early Education Research (NIEER) shows that Florida's Legislature, mostly Republicans, is unwise and stingy. Each year since 2005, when 61 percent of voters approved the voluntary prekindergarten constitutional amendment, lawmakers have cut per-child spending or lowered standards for instruction in their effort to balance the budget.

This is a worrisome trend in a state whose voters have set a lofty goal for universal pre-kindergarten enrollment. But it shouldn't be news to Florida lawmakers.

For years, the Children's Movement of Florida and other education advocates have been trying to impress on Tallahassee that better investment and expectations for children in their preschool years will pay dividends for decades in improved high-school graduation rates and lower incarceration rates.

According to NIEER, Florida's spending per child for the 2010-11 school year, the most current number available, was $2,422, well below the national average of $4,141.

This figure ranks Florida 35 out of 39 states with public pre-kindergarten programs.

Shortsightedness is not the only problem. NIEER reports that Florida is low on professionalism.

Teachers, for example, are merely required to have completed coursework in early literacy and hold a child-development associate certificate, which is slightly higher than a high-school diploma. I do not mean to knock the people filling these positions, but we should set our standards higher.

I believe that pre-K programs, which prepare students for kindergarten and beyond, are so important that we should put our best teachers with our youngest students. After all, research demonstrates that 90 percent of brain development comes before the age of 5. The nation's best pre-K programs hire teachers with a strong background in education and training and who have a bachelor's degree.

NIEER, with the backing of the U.S. Department of Education, has 10 benchmarks for measuring the quality of prekindergarten programs. Only five of the 39 states with public pre-K systems met all 10 benchmarks, which include class sizes that do not exceed 20 children, the adoption of comprehensive early-learning standards and regular, on-site visits to monitor quality.

Disappointingly, Florida met only three of the quality benchmarks. To satisfy all 10 benchmarks, according to NIEER, the state would have to spend $4,464 per child, nearly double what it spends today. That will not be happening anytime soon given the GOP stranglehold in Tallahassee.

The short- and long-term value of pre-K education, especially for children from low-income families, cannot be overestimated. "There is strong evidence showing that young children who participate in high-quality pre-K programs enter school more ready to learn than their peers," according to the Center for Public Education. "The national Early Childhood Longitudinal Study ... shows students who attended a pre-K program scored higher on reading and math tests than children receiving (only) parental care.

Students who attended a child-care center or other preschool programs also showed gains, although former pre-K students exhibited the greatest achievement."

In addition to academic progress – learning numbers, letters, colors and shapes – children in pre-K programs learn how to become students.

Researchers find that, among many other skills, in pre-K classrooms, children learn how to raise their hands, take turns and capture the teacher's attention. And they learn how to socialize.

Kindergarten teachers long have pointed out that students who are ready to learn on the first day are those who come to school with "good" behavior and social skills.

We Floridians need to start paying more attention to our voluntary pre-K programs and elect lawmakers who also care. We need to provide effective screening to identify children who may be struggling, especially those in low-income families, before they enter kindergarten. We need to insist on small class sizes, and we need to put our best teachers with our children.

Florida may have the nation's highest voluntary pre-K enrollment, but we certainly can't brag about our teachers' qualifications or the per-child investment. We are giving lip service to the future. When will we get serious about pre-K education and demand improvements?

John Edwards threw it all away

Of the seven deadly sins, John Edwards seems to have escaped only sloth. But when it comes to the others he seems to have covered all the bases, though inadvertently.

The former U.S. senator who was first a candidate for vice president and later one who hoped to be president of the United States, Edwards built a successful law career after his birth into a solidly middle-class family of textile workers. He seemed to have everything needed for a good and happy life.

But he destroyed it through vanity ($400 haircuts), greed and envy (his political aspirations), wrath and pride (denial, denial and more denial of his failings), lust (needs no explanation if you've been following the story), and gluttony (all of the above).

When the country first became aware of this fresh-faced poster boy for the American dream, Edwards seemed to have the whole package tied up in red, white and blue: a handsome man and his pretty, intelligent wife in a happy marriage that had known tragedy and triumph. It was a family that seemed ideal for the campaign trail.

And for a while, even if, by some skeptics' standards, too good to be true, it was. But it was not to last.

When Elizabeth Edwards was diagnosed with breast cancer and bravely encouraged her husband to continue on his quest for the White House, he soldiered on, praising the woman who had borne his children, suffered through the death of one with him, stood by his side, advised him (some think she was the brains of the outfit), and made any appearance into something special with her presence.

Meantime, he was having an affair with a campaign videographer, with whom he had a child, which he first denied, then admitted, under duress. The Edwardses eventually divorced; Elizabeth died of cancer not long after.

The main witness against Edwards in his trial, now going on in Greensboro, N.C., is former campaign aide Andrew Young. He can't cast many stones himself.

At issue is close to $1 million from two wealthy donors to the Edwards campaign who did not know they were helping in the effort to conceal Edwards' affair with Rielle Hunter until the election was over.

Under oath, Young has acknowledged that most of the $925,000 was kept by him and his wife, mostly to build their dream home and travel.

Edwards, who is accused of six counts of violating federal election finance laws during his 2008 presidential bid, could face up to 30 years in prison and a $1.5 million fine.

But even without a conviction, it's a bitter end for what was, for years, an almost picture-perfect life. The trial is long from over, but no matter how it turns out, two things are clear: One is that John Edwards had it all. And he threw it all away.

The other is that if Edwards is found guilty, it must be for the charges that he violated the law – not his sins, no matter how deadly to his family and his future they proved to be.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Who are Smith and Davis?

To the Editor:

Who is Robert L. Smith?

I read in the paper about a Robert L. Smith. He was a captain at the Lake City Police Department for one year before being put on paid administrative leave. For the last 6 months he has been receiving a paycheck and not working a day for the city. I read he was terminated on Monday, April 23rd. I believe until then he was being paid by the taxpayer. Yet, I read about allegations he is claiming about the City Manager and the Chief of Police.

Who is he? How long has he lived in Lake City? What civic clubs is he a member of? Does he have a job or is he unemployed? Why have never seen him in public? Just wondering.

Who is Rudolph Davis?

I read in the paper about a Rudolph Davis. I have read in the paper his complaints and accusations towards the Chief of Police and the City Manager. I also see around town campaign signs for Sheriff with the name of Rudolph Davis. Is this the same guy who is suing the city and making allegations against the leadership of the city? What is his platform for running for sheriff? If this is the same Rudolph Davis, is he showing a pattern of accusing leadership and will the county manager and the county commissioners have to face what the city leaders are facing? Just wondering.

10 graduate from Hooked on Phonics program

From staff reports

Saturday marked the graduation of 10 students who learned to read before entering kindergarten. The 10 students ages 3-6, participated in an eight-week Hooked on Phonics program, conducted by It's About My Efforts, Inc. The only prerequisite for program participation was a child's ability to recognize the alphabet. Over 50 family, friends, board members of It's About Me joined Mayor Stephen Witt, School Board Member Glenn Hunter, TD Bank representatives Wendy Coody & Nancy Clark, along with Reverend Donnell Sanders at Ft. White Library on Saturday, to recognize graduating students. The graduating class included NyShaun Jenkins, Jermauni Bryd, Jaden Griffin, Alyssa Jones, Tre'jen Holley, Jayden English, Jaiden Jackson, Najeeb Smith, Abryana Holland, and N'Coreyia Atkins.

The students each received graduation certificates, gifts, and savings certificates for their tenacity, forgoing playing, video games, and hanging out with their friends once per week, resulting in each child reading on a kindergarten level, prior to entering kindergarten. The keynote speaker, Victoria Coker, a student from Westside Elementary School, told the children that their new skill would prevent parents from being able to secretly spell words in front of them, and give them the independence to order from the menus for themselves. Victoria explained to the students that becoming literate now had reduced their chances of poverty, becoming homeless, jobless, and involvement with criminal activity.

Program administrator Bea Coker explained that learning to read prior to entering kindergarten served two major purposes for the students. First, the program established a routine for parents to experience meaningful parental involvement necessary for academic success. Second, the children developed a fundamental vocabulary and an appreciation for learning which is the cornerstone to academic success.

State health centers getting $21M in fed grants

By KELLI KENNEDY
Associated Press

MIAMI - Community health centers around Florida will receive $21 million in federal grants under the Affordable Care Act, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services said Tuesday.

The announcement comes after Gov. Rick Scott and state leaders have turned down more than $100 million in grants tied to the federal health care law, which Florida is challenging in court.

Community leaders estimate the money will help them serve more than 41,000 new patients, according to the health department statement.

Borinquen Health Care Center, Inc., which was awarded more than $4.2 million, serves 27,000 patients in Miami every year, up from 13,000 four years ago. The majority of patients don't have health insurance. Another large amount, $5 million, went to the Pinellas County Board of County Commissioners.

"It doesn't matter to me (where the money is coming from)," said Borinquen CEO Bob Linder. "We're there for those who need to be served. These moneys are tremendous opportunities for us that we can expand our services."

Linder says the demand for health care services has increased in the downturned economy as the unemployed and underemployed struggle to find health insurance. The organization has 13 locations, including five schools centers, and serves about 3,000 Haitians a month. The grant money will allow the center to expand from 18 to 32 exam rooms, modernize its x-ray machines, add more dental chairs and add hurricane impact windows.

The medical home model, where patients go to one location for regular health care, can better coordinate care for the patients they know and are monitoring over time, in theory. Proponents say it also saves money by diverting patients from making emergency room visits for less-serious issues. Borinquen has a state-funded ER diversion program with three local hospitals.

Scott's office did not immediately respond to a request for comment about Tuesday's $21 million grant announcement.

Scott and the Republican-led Legislature have rejected or declined to pursue more than $106 million in federal grant money and returned another $4.5 million for programs linked to federal health care initiatives, including cancer prevention. Critics to say he is putting his conservative agenda ahead of residents' needs.

Scott has ordered state agencies to reject any money tied to President Barack Obama's health care plan. The figures, which are totals of funds that could have been obtained over five years, were provided by the governor's office last fall.

2 FAMU professors resign amid 2010 hazing review

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE - Two Florida A&M University music professors who allegedly were present during the hazing of band fraternity pledges have been forced out, their lawyer said Tuesday.

Both faculty members had been placed on paid administrative leave in late March after a Tallahassee Police Department report quoted witnesses as saying they were on hand when the hazing occurred at the home of one of the professors in early 2010.

The university has been the focus of intense scrutiny since the unrelated hazing death of FAMU drum major Robert Champion while the famed Marching 100 was in Orlando for a football game last November.

Diron Holloway, the band's director of saxophones, and Anthony Simons, an assistant professor of music, resigned last week after receiving notices that they had 10 days to contest their impending dismissals, said attorney Mutaqee Akbar.

"They both decided to resign from the university and pursue other career opportunities," Akbar said.

He said no one from the school discussed the allegations with them.

Both want to remain in education but plan no further action related to their employment at Florida A&M, Akbar said. He said very preliminary steps have been taken to explore whether they might have legal recourse to clear their names, such as a lawsuit alleging defamation of character.

The police report said pledges to the Kappa Kappa Psi band fraternity were slapped on the neck and back and may have been paddled in early 2010. It listed both faculty members as suspects in the alleged hazing but said no charges were filed because a two-year statute of limitations had passed.

The university issued a statement from its general counsel, Avery McKnight, saying only that "appropriate employment actions" have been taken against the professors. McKnight cited a confidentiality law that says employment documents can only be released with a faculty member's consent or court order.

The allegations were reported to campus police last November, two days after Champion's death. He died after suffering from blunt trauma aboard a band bus. Authorities found he went into shock due to internal bleeding.

No charges have been filed in that case so far, but authorities have scheduled a news conference on Wednesday to announce the results of their investigation.

The university has suspended the band and launched a task force to recommend steps it can take to curtail hazing, the subject of complaints involving the university band for years.

The state has two classes of hazing, a felony and a misdemeanor. There's a three-year statute of limitations for felony hazing but such cases require proof of great bodily harm. There was no evidence of such injuries in the early 2010 case.

City police blamed a lengthy delay in launching the investigation because they learned of the allegations only through media reports on Jan. 20, two months after campus police had been notified.

Taco Bell customer ruined system

Associated Press

GAINESVILLE - A Taco Bell customer is facing felony charges after police say he threw his soda on a cash register after becoming upset that his order wasn't prepared correctly.

Thirty-year-old Suresh Chapman was being held Tuesday at the Alachua County jail.

The Gainesville Sun reported that Chapman visited the restaurant Sunday and became angry after his order wasn't correct. He allegedly threw his soda on the register and credit card machine, causing $2,500 damage and shutting down the restaurant's computer system.

Police said the restaurant lost $3,000 in business before the system was repaired.

He was charged with damaging a computer system with a loss greater than $5,000, a second-degree felony. He was also accused of violating his probation on a previous child abuse case and was held without bond.

Indians thin at top entering spring practice

Phillips expected to lead charge for Fort White in fall.

By TIM KIRBY
 tkirby@lakecityreporter.com

FORT WHITE — Thin may be in, but not when it comes to class size when filling out a football roster.

Fort White High graduated 10 football players from the 2011 season and only had five juniors on the 34-man roster.

One of those juniors is Trey Phillips and assistant head coach Ken Snider is expecting him to lead the defensive charge for the Indians in 2012.

"Trey is a three-year starter and we want him to take charge of the defense," Snider said Tuesday morning before the start of spring practice. "This is his time. He is excited about his senior year."

Phillips, the son of Fort

White coach Isiah Phillips, is expected to play a big part on offense as a receiver. Snider wants him chasing down passes in the defensive backfield, too.

"Trey is capable of playing linebacker, but we need him to quarterback that secondary," Snider said. "He is a real physical-type player. I am glad to have somebody back there with his skills."

Tavaris Williams returns at cornerback, and Snider expects him there as well as at running back.

"Tavaris is probably the most athletic player on our team," Snider said. "The light just needs to come on."

Snider also has his sights on quarterback Andrew Baker for the secondary.

"Andrew saw some time on defense in the past out of necessity and depth, and he is willing to come over," Snider said. "He is a physical-type kid."

Snider's son, Kellen, returns at linebacker, as does Cameron White.

"Kellen is a two-year starter and Cameron started at outside linebacker as a freshman," Snider said. "Our defensive line will pretty much be our offensive line. (A.J.) Kluess and (Chris) Waites have a hint of experience on defense."

Plenty of Indians will get a chance to impress this spring.

"Our other cornerback slot and another linebacker is up for grabs," Snider said. "This is not a strong senior class and we still have a lot of holes. Our kids will play both offense and defense. There is no selfishness or specializing. The main thing is to get everybody cross-trained and trying to get some depth. We need somebody to show up in the spring, so we can get some people off the field."

The Indians will be in shorts through Thursday and head coach Demetric Jackson said there will a scrimmage on Friday.

The Red & Black game is 6 p.m. May 11 and the spring game at Orange Park High is 7 p.m. May 18.

Football's back

Columbia opens up spring practice on Tuesday.

By BRANDON FINLEY
 bfinley@lakecityreporter.com

It's the moment more than 120 Columbia High students had all been waiting for. Football returned on Tuesday as the first day of spring practice kicked off for the Tigers.

Not only were Tiger players on the campus but coaches were rolling in to look at some of Columbia's top seniors with representatives from Alabama, Florida, Pittsburgh, LSU and Oklahoma coming to the campus over the last few days.

Most were in town to see offensive tackle Laremy Tunsil, but Columbia head coach Brian Allen said it's benefiting the other players as well.

"Javere (Smith) could pick up an offer from Pittsburgh in the next couple of days," he said. "They seem real interested."

Of course, the player Allen was most interested to see on the field was senior quarterback Jayce Barber.

With the baseball team locked in the state playoffs, Barber is splitting time between the two teams.

"He's going to be with us for the first part of practice and then leave each day around five," Allen said. "Coach (J.T.) Clark is helping us out. I don't know what we'd do to run practice without him. We have young Jake Thomas, but he hasn't seen time in the big leagues. We definitely rely on Jayce's leadership."

The first three days of practice will take place in pads before the Tigers put on the gear Friday for a practice at Annie Mattox Stadium around 4:10 p.m.

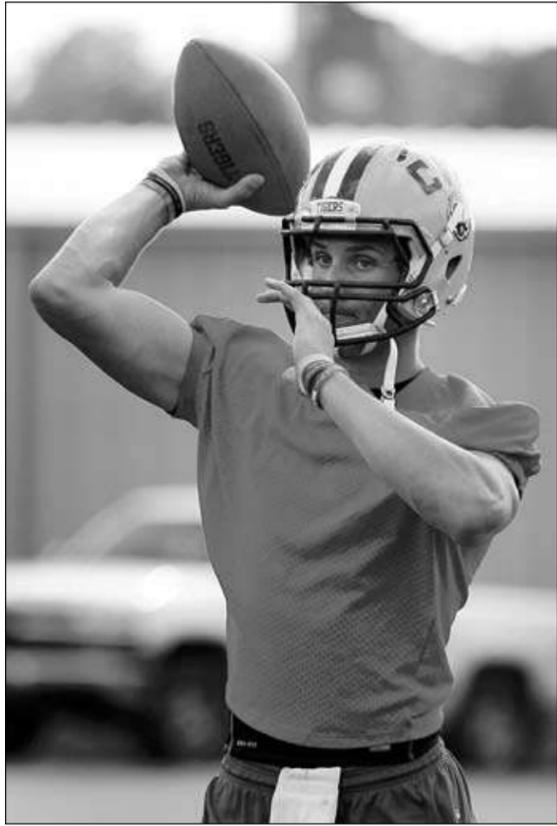

"The first few days for the most part is a refresher course for the guys that have been here," Allen said. "We're going to throw in a new wrinkle or two and (new offensive coordinator, Mitch) Shoup will throw in a couple of wrinkles. We're just trying to let them learn the first few days so they can rely on their natural ability."

Allen is hoping to get in a 20-play team period on Friday during the first day of pads. He said that having a practice at Annie Mattox is just a way of giving back to the public.

"It's a part of public relations," he said. "We want to get around the community and branch out around Lake City. One of the big things we've been looking for since I took over is community support and one of the ways to get that is to have our presence seen. We'd like to go to different venues and have some of the old guys come back here. We don't think of ourselves as an elite group but as part of the community. This is how we show that. We want to be seen out and about."

San Antonio Spurs head basketball coach Gregg Popovich sits behind the Red Auerbach trophy after he was named the NBA's Coach of the Year during a news conference at the team's basketball practice facility on Tuesday in San Antonio.

Spurs' Popovich is the NBA Coach of the Year

By PAUL J. WEBER
Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — Gregg Popovich was selected as the NBA's Coach of the Year on Tuesday after leading the San Antonio Spurs to 50 wins and the No. 1 seed in the Western Conference in the lockout-shortened season.

Popovich also won the award in 2003 when San Antonio won its second of four championships, and he might be headed for a fifth ring if the Spurs keep this up. No longer able to simply lean on Tim Duncan and defense, Popovich has nonetheless molded another contender with a surprising supporting cast of rookies and former NBA no-names.

He whipped them into winners quickly. After a bumpy 12-9 start, the Spurs lost only seven more games the rest of the season.

"If you can draft David Robinson and follow that up with Tim Duncan, that's a couple of decades of very, very possible success unless you just screw it up," Popovich said. "So it's hard to take credit when circumstances have gone your way so consistently."

Popovich received 77 first-place votes. Chicago coach Tom Thibodeau was second (27), Indiana coach Frank Vogel was third (7) and Memphis coach Lionel Hollins was fourth (6). Boston's Doc Rivers and Denver's George Karl each received a vote.

The season loomed as one of Popovich's toughest projects yet. Besides Duncan and Manu Ginobili growing another year older, the Spurs started the year with much of the same roster that fell in the first round to the up-and-coming Grizzlies last spring.

But Popovich, who is also team president, looked in unlikely places to keep San Antonio's championship window from shutting just yet. Rookie forward Kawhi Leonard became a starter by midseason, as did swingman Danny Green.

"Pop has done a terrific job molding a mix of experience and inexperience," Spurs general manager R.C. Buford said.

Popovich also steered the Spurs through what has typically been a death-knell for them in recent years: injuries to their Big Three. Ginobili missed nearly half the season after breaking his hand, yet San Antonio still kept winning without their playmaking guard.

Popovich was aggressive as ever in keeping his stars healthy. He willingly surrendered 11-game winning streaks twice to avoid wear and tear on Duncan, Ginobili and Tony Parker, keeping them on the bench or home altogether four times this year.

Duncan has called this Popovich's best season between managing minutes and integrating the newcomers despite the condensed schedule.

"Timmy just wants to get minutes," Popovich said. "He's just trying to ingratiate himself."

Redskins release Gaffney

Associated Press

ASHBURN, Va. — The Washington Redskins have released veteran Jabar Gaffney, their leading receiver last season.

Gaffney made 68 catches for 947 yards and five touchdowns in 2011, setting career highs in receptions and yardage and matching a career high in TD catches. He started 15 games in 2011.

Washington signed free agents Pierre Garcon and Joshua Morgan in free agency, and already had five other holdovers at wide receiver.

The 31-year-old Gaffney has played 10 NFL seasons, making 443 catches for 5,622 yards and 24 touchdowns.

He previously played with Houston, New England and Denver.

GOLF REPORTS

Of aces and double eagles

The Sunday Scramble turned into a memorable event for two local golfers.

Dennis Reynolds scored his first hole-in-one with a shot from 144 yards on Creeks No. 2.

Reynolds has been playing golf for many years and was finally rewarded with the 12,000-to-1 shot Sunday evening, as he and everyone in his group watched.

His ball hit just left of the hole and roll ever so gently into the cup to give Dennis his first ace.

Not to diminish Reynold's ace, but the Sunday Scramble delivered an even rarer shot.

Curtis Mixon's 3-wood from 233 yards found the bottom of the cup on Creeks No. 9, a 433-yard par 5 for a double eagle — a million-to-1 shot.

While Curtis had used a team members drive as the first shot of the hole, the double eagle will be a shot he and his team members will remember for a long time.

For Sunday's results the team of Keith Hudson,

QUAIL HEIGHTS COUNTRY CLUB

Chet Carter

Phillip Russell and Bob Wheary edged out Mixon, Gordon Fuller and Braden Fuller on the fourth play-off hole for the win. Both teams had finished at +6.

The pot rolls over to next week.

Wednesday's scramble finished in a tie with the team of Curtis Mixon, Ashley Mixon and Jesse Lamb splitting first and second prize at +4 with the team of Chet Carter, Ralph Minster and Wallace Christie, which collected the pot for their birdie on Dunes No. 3.

A new pot starts today. Wednesday blitz results: Pete Skantzios +7, first; Gary Croxton +6, second; Ricky Crawford Jr. +5, third.

Eight skins were recorded with five going to Todd Carter during his round of 67. Skantzios had two skins and Mike Kahlich had one.

Friday's Dogfight was won by Bob Wheary at +7, followed by Jerry Perkins (+2) in second and Kevin Odom, Pete Skantzios and Don Horn tied for third at +1.

Closest to the pins went to Garrett Odom and Joe Herring. Skin winners were Wheary (2), Kevin Odom, Garrett Odom, Wallace Christie and Tim Tortorice.

Thanks to all the sponsors, golfers and volunteers who made the P.C.E.R.A. event a huge success on Saturday.

Tournament results: first — Brandon Ramsey, Bootsy Kirby, Eaton Kirby, John Kirkpatrick (55); second Ricky Bennett, Dennis Crawford, Matt Marable and Bob Brown (55-scorecard match); third — Jay Ogburn, John Skidmore, Tom Whiting and Eric Graybeal (56).

In junior news Tiara Carter placed third in at Sunday's NFJG Junior event at the First Tee Course in Jacksonville. Carter's 84 on the par 68 course was her best 18 hole score.

Good Old Boys go scramble

The Good Old Boys switched to a scramble format for its weekly match.

In a closely contested battle, the team of Ed Snow, Stan Woolbert, Joe Persons and Merle Hibbard fired 61 for a one-stroke victory over the team of Jerry West, Bill Rogers, Jim Stevens and Dan Stephens.

Other teams in order of finish were: Don Howard, Dennis Hendershot, Mike Spencer and Howard Whitaker with 63; Monty Montgomery, Tom Elmore, Hugh Sherrill and Tony Branch with 64; Mark Risk, Jim Bell, Carl Wilson and Bobby Simmons with 66.

Jerry West finished the Sunday blitz at +6 to edge Tom Wade and Jim Cannedy by a stroke.

Wade padded his second-place finish with three skins and two closest-to-the-pin prizes.

Rickey Lovvorn picked up two skins. Mike Jacobs, Roger Mitzel, Buddy Slay and West had the other skins.

Jacobs was closest to the pin on No. 17 and West was closest on No. 7.

Bruce and Nicole Gibson teamed with Maggie Woods

COUNTRY CLUB at LAKE CITY

Ed Goff

and Tim Lewis to post 132 for first place in the Mixed Two-Two scramble.

Jerry and Anita West joined Bill and Dottie Rogers for second place, one stroke behind the winners.

Jonathan Allen rode three birdies to the winner's circle at +8 in the A flight of Wednesday's blitz. Joe Paul was three strokes back in second, followed by Mike McCranie and Chad Hunter tied for third.

Dwight Rhodes (+10) also took a three-stroke win in B flight. John Dennis (+7) was in second and Keith Shaw (+5) in third.

McCranie's eagle on No. 11 was good for a skin. Jerry Smith, Jordan Hale, Rhodes and Shaw had the other keepers.

Smith blew a big pot hole win with his skin by opting out of the pot hole game. Both pot holes carried over.

Mike Jacobs' two birdies on the back nine put him at +8 for the win in the A flight of the Saturday blitz. Greg Lyons was three points back in second, followed by Joe Paul (+3), and Timmy Rogers (+2).

The B flight ended in a most unusual four-way tie for first place among Steve Osborne, Ron Bennett, Don Combs and Julius Davenport. All four players finished at +8.

Tony Kent carded two skins. Allen Moody, Ken Radcliffe, David Poe, Osborne and Combs had the other winners.

The LGA gave each player a mulligan on the front nine and two mulligans on the back side.

After the "do-overs," Nicole Ste-Marie found the winning combination in a close contest. Her 65 was one stroke better than Caroline Stevens and two better than Dottie Rogers, Cathy Steen and Nancy Edgar.

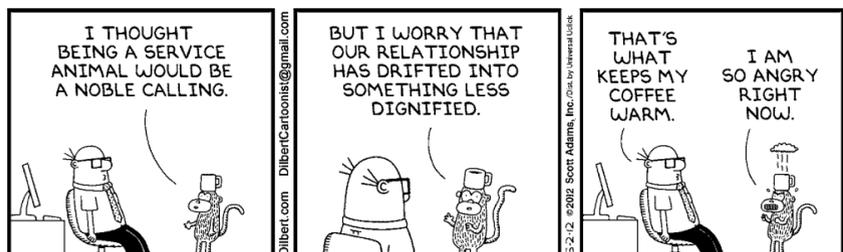

Upcoming events:
■ Saturday, The Edge Scramble;

■ May 11, The Arc of North Florida, 9 a.m. (course closed until 1:30 p.m.);

■ May 12, "The Players" blitz.

FOR BETTER OR WORSE

DEAR ABBY

Offense was in the eye of body art's beholder

Abigail Van Buren www.dearabby.com

DEAR ABBY: On a recent airline flight, a tall man who sat behind me had his left leg out in the aisle during most of the trip. He was wearing shorts, and you could see his large tattoo of a naked woman on his thigh. The drawing was very explicit, and there was no way to avoid seeing it because passengers had to cross over his leg to reach the bathroom.

How do you explain this kind of "art" to children? Would the airline have the right to ask him to cover the tattoo? - OFFENDED TRAVELER FROM NEW YORK

DEAR OFFENDED: Because body art could be classified as freedom of expression, I'm not sure they do. However, someone's leg protruding into the aisle might be considered a safety issue because it could cause a trip and fall. It would also impede food and beverage carts traveling up and down the aisle. Because you were offended, I hope you averted your gaze if you needed to make more than one trip to the lavatory, and if there were children in tow, that you didn't call their attention to the "picture."

DEAR ABBY: I had an urgent piece of mail to get to the post office. My sister called the postmistress, who agreed to stay open for her to deliver it. In the responsibility for paying for it. For her to say that you were "involved" is stretching the truth. She's trying to guilt you into paying. Stand your ground.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 20-year-old female junior in college. I am intelligent, attractive and friendly, and I want to remain a virgin until I'm married. This is not because of religious reasons. I have had a few relationships I thought were serious, but I ended up getting dumped for a "looser" girl each time, which really hurts.

My family and friends don't understand that waiting until marriage is part of who I am. I was raised to think this was proper, but once I reached a certain age, everyone seemed to change their minds.

I'm not looking to get married for at least five years, which means a long wait for anyone who wants to date me. Am I going to be alone forever just because I won't jump into bed with a guy before we're married? - PRINCIPLED IN ANN ARBOR, MICH.

DEAR PRINCIPLED: Not quite forever. I admire you for adhering to your values and so will the man who marries you.

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

meantime, I found two other pieces of mail that required checks, quickly wrote them out and gave the three envelopes to my sister, who rushed them to the post office.

Upon her return, she showed me her vehicle, which had a deep gash running along one side because she had backed down the driveway too quickly, not paying attention, and had scraped the car against the stone post. She thinks I should pay half the cost of repair because "I was involved."

I think it was her carelessness, and therefore, I should not have to pay. I'm not angry, just confused by her reasoning because the same thing happened to me when I ran an errand for her, but I paid on my own for my carelessness. What do you think? - THINKS DIFFERENTLY IN TENNESSEE

DEAR THINKS DIFFERENTLY: I think you should remind your sister that when the same thing happened to you while running an errand for her, you assumed the
