5th-graders learn to save lives

Summers students learn CPR, Heimlich maneuver.

Fifth-graders press with all their might into their patients' chest. Although the "patients" are training mannequins made of only a head and upper torso, the children are sure to press two inches deep and time their compressions to "Stayin' Alive," the almost 40-year old Bee Gees song.

More than 100 fifth graders at Summers Elementary School learned CPR and the Heimlich maneuver Thursday from Lifeguard Ambulance Service paramedics and emergency medical technicians.

"It's a little complicated," said Marissa Congressi, 11, of CPR. "I would do it because it's a matter of life and death."

Students learned to administer layperson CPR, which involves only chest compressions and does not deliver oxygen, said Capt. James Brinkley of Lifeguard. There is a better chance of patient survival when people without medical training focus on chest compressions, he said.

After touring an ambulance, students also learned how to use an automated external defibrillator, which shocks a heart back into rhythm, and to give infants CPR.

"I have a baby sister so it would be really good to learn to do," said Kelsey Mott, 11, sitting with other students practicing compressions on the mannequin.

"I would feel really scared if it was one of my friends or family members," said Mackenzie Freeman, 11. Even in an emergency, Mackenzie said she would remember what to do.

Lifeguard hosts career days for local schools to showcase what emergency responders do and so children are less frightened, Brinkley said.

"We try to get involved in schools where they feel safe so in an emergency situation they are less scared," he said. Next year the Lifeguard team plans to certify high schoolers in CPR, which is part of Lifeguard's contract with the city and county.

Summers students received the full CPR training and are eligible to get a certification card with a small fee, Brinkley said.

"One day you can save a life with this," he told students.

Lifeguard paramedics and EMTs made the detailed instructions interesting with jokes and funny faces. "We love it," Brinkley said.

Fifth-grade teacher Katie Cunningham said the Lifeguard team did a great job breaking down CPR to an appropriate level for the students. Students are working on projects on other careers too, she said.

Lifeguard also donated $300 to the school, which will allow 10 needy fifth-graders to attend the year-end field trip to SeaWorld. Summers is a Title 1 school with 70 percent of students on free and reduced lunch. Many families could not afford the trip, so teachers fundraised and sought sponsorships to reduce the cost, she said.

Vote plan draws more heat

However, county OKs precinct boundaries on advice of attorney.

By HANNAH O. BROWN

Polling locations for the 2012 election season continues to arouse controversy in county proceedings.

NAACP representative Glenel Bowden spoke before the county commission on Thursday night about what he called the unfairness of the proposal for polling locations made by the Supervisor of Elections.

The proposal presents only one polling location for all of Lake City. The office of the Supervisor of Elections would be the single polling location.

"I don't see logic in that change," Bowden said. "I would suggest that you be adamantly opposed to it even if you can't do anything about it."

According to County Manager Dale Williams, county commissioners have no legal influence on polling locations set by the Supervisor of Elections.

Commissioners are required, however, to approve precinct boundary lines for the upcoming election.

Commissioner Rusty DePratter said it was his understanding that com-

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Donna Summer dies at 63

NEW YORK — Like the King of Pop or the Queen of Soul, Donna Summer was bestowed a title fitting of musical royalty — the Queen of Disco.

Yet unlike Michael Jackson or Aretha Franklin, it was a designation she wasn't comfortable embracing.

"I grew up on rock 'n' roll," Summer once said when explaining her reluctance to claim the title.

Indeed, as disco boomed then crashed in a single decade in the 1970s, Summer, the beautiful voice and face of the genre with pulsating hits like "I Feel Love," "Love to Love You Baby" and "Last Dance," would continue to make hits incorporating the rock roots she so loved. One of her biggest hits, "She Works Hard for the Money," came in the early 1980s and relied on a smoldering guitar solo as well as Summer's booming voice.

Yet it was with her disco anthems that she would have the most impact in music, and it's how she was remembered Thursday as news spread of her death at age 63.

Summer died of cancer Thursday morning in Naples, Fla., said her publicist Brian Edwards. Her family released a statement saying they "are at peace celebrating her extraordinary life and her continued legacy."

Donna Summer performs at the conclusion of the Nobel Peace concert in Oslo, Norway. Summer, the Queen of Disco who ruled the dance floors with anthems like "Last Dance," "Love to Love You Baby" and "Bad Girl," has died. Her family announced her death in a statement Thursday, May 17, 2012. She was 63.

mourned the loss, as did President Barack Obama, who said he and Michelle were saddened to hear of the passing of the five-time Grammy winner. "Her voice was unforgettable, and the music industry has lost a legend far too soon," he said. "Our thoughts and prayers go out to Donna's family and her dedicated fans."

NBC counting on more comedy

NEW YORK — Hoping to lure viewers with laughs, struggling NBC is calling on old friend Matthew Perry to lend a hand. The TV network unveiled a fall schedule on Sunday that has 10 sitcoms, double the number of dramas it will air. Comedy is being added to two nights, Tuesday and Friday. All the low-rated but critically-acclaimed Thursday comedies earned renewals, although "Community" will move to Fridays.

Four of the comedies are new, including "Go On," starring former "Friends" actor Perry as a fast-talking, sarcastic sportscaster who loses his wife in a car accident.

"It is heavy on comedy," said Robert Greenblatt,

NBC entertainment president. "It was a conscious decision we made ... at the beginning of the development season. The audience is really open to comedy right now."

Joey Lawrence joins Chippendales

2 plead no contest in Florida A&M hazing

TALLAHASSEE — Two defendants have pleaded no contest to lesser charges of misdemeanor hazing in the beating of a fellow Florida A&M University band member.

Aaron Golson and Sean Hobson then were sentenced Thursday in Tallahassee to 30 days in the Leon County work camp followed by 12 months of probation.

They had been charged with felony hazing. Assistant State Attorney Stefanie Walters said medical records did not provide the required proof of serious bodily injury.

The state also dropped battery charges. Action in the case of a third defendant was delayed.

Police say Bria Shante Hunter was beaten and bruised on Oct. 31 and Nov. 1.

Golson also is one of 11 former band members charged with felony hazing in the Nov. 19 death of drum major Robert Champion in Orlando.

Woman gives birth at gas station

LONGWOOD, Fla. — A Florida woman has made what can certainly be called a speedy delivery: She went into birth at a gas station.

Orlando's WKMG reports Shelly Tester gave birth with the help of her husband early Wednesday at a Mobil gas station in Longwood, about 15 miles north of Orlando.

The couple was on their way to Florida Hospital Alamonte when it became clear the baby wasn't going to wait any longer. John Tester pulled into a Mobil gas station and called 911.

Emergency dispatchers helped guide him in delivering his son from their pickup truck in the gas station parking lot. Paramedics arrived shortly after the baby was born.

Ed secretary questions Fla. law

MIAMI —U.S. Education Secretary Arne Duncan questioned Thursday why the Florida Legislature passed a law requiring districts to continue tutoring services that have not proven effective.

Florida was one of nearly a dozen states that received a waiver from the federal No Child Left Behind law earlier this year. That waiver included lifting a requirement for the state to set aside 20 percent of Title I funds for special tutoring services.

In remarks in Washington before the Florida Council of 100, a nonprofit organization, Duncan noted a new study showing the mandated tutoring had no impact on student performance. He said a cottage industry of tutoring companies has emerged around the mandate.

"But there has never been accountability for results," Duncan said. "Districts don't know if individual companies are actually having an impact on student achievement."

The Florida Legislature passed a law that will take effect in July requiring 15 percent of Title I funds be used for supplemental education services in the upcoming school year. Title I funds are provided to schools with large numbers of low-income students, and the tutoring program is designed to offer extra help to students at schools deemed in need of improvement.

Student says he threatened Obama

MIAMI (AP) — Court records show a Miami college student intends to plead guilty to making threatening posts against President Barack Obama on Facebook.

A change of plea hearing is set for Wednesday for 20-year-old Joaquin Amador Serrapio Jr. He had previously pleaded not guilty.

Federal prosecutors say Serrapio posted threats on Facebook in February coinciding with a speech Obama gave at the University of Miami. Serrapio attends a different school, Miami-Dade College.

One post threatened to put a bullet in the president's head. Another asked if anyone wanted to help with an assassination.

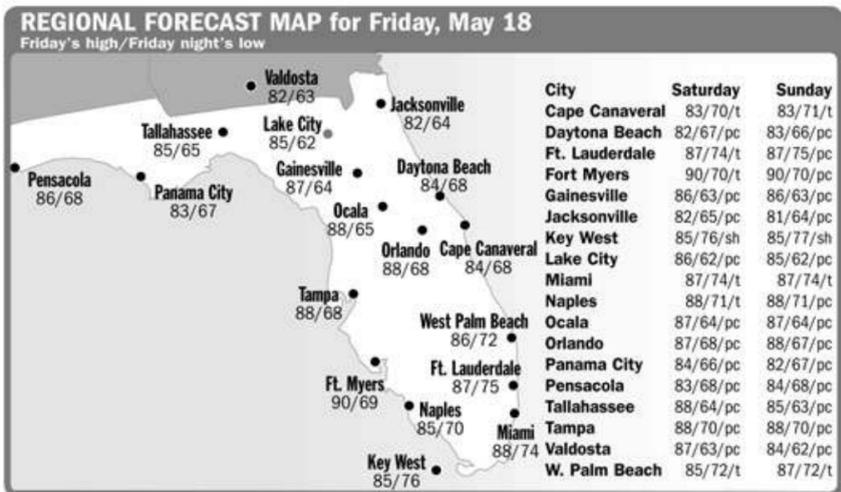

Serrapio faces a maximum five-year prison sentence.

Buffett's Berkshire to buy Media General papers

NEWYORK—Billionaire Warren Buffett's company is making another foray into newspapers, agreeing to buy 63 newspapers from Media General Inc. for $142 million.

Berkshire Hathaway Inc. is also extending a loan to Media General and taking a 19.9 percent stake in the company, which will still own 18 TV stations. Media General also owns some websites, such as coupon provider DealTaker.com. Media General on Thursday said the deal includes all of its newspapers except the Tampa Tribune of Florida and smaller newspapers in that market. It's in talks to sell those newspapers to other buyers.

Berkshire Hathaway is buying the Richmond Times-Dispatch in Virginia, the Winston-Salem Journal in North Carolina and the Morning News of Florence, S.C., among others.

Berkshire Hathaway has owned the Buffalo News of New York for decades and bought its hometown paper, the Omaha World-Herald, in December. The company is also the largest shareholder of Washington Post Co., with a 23 percent stake.

Buffett has defended newspapers, saying that they will have a decent future if they continue delivering information that can't be found elsewhere. They also need to stop offering news free online, he has said.

"In towns and cities where there is a strong sense of community, there is no more important institution than the local paper," Buffett said in a statement Thursday. "The many locales served by the newspapers we are acquiring fall firmly in this mold and we are delighted they have found a permanent home with Berkshire Hathaway."

That's a reversal of his opinion in 2009, when he told Berkshire shareholders that most newspapers faced the possibility of unending losses because the industry had lost its essential nature.

"For most newspapers in the United States, we would not buy them at any price," he said then.

Berkshire is also lending $445 million to Media General, which it will use to pay off debt. In return, Berkshire is getting the 19.9 percent stake in Media General and a seat on the board.

Shares of Media

General, which is based in Richmond, Va., jumped $1.06, or 34 percent, to $4.20 in afternoon trading. The stock has ranged from $1.14 to $6.84 over the past year. Berkshire's Class B shares dropped 33 cents to $80.26.

Berkshire paid $150 million cash and assumed $50 million in debt when it acquired the World-Herald Co. from its employees, retirees and a charitable foundation.

North Florida shelters receive $195,000 grant

By TONY BRITT

tbritt@lakecityreporter.com

Two North Florida shelters have been awarded a total of $195,500 by the Florida Department of Children and Families.

The Another Way domestic violence shelter received $100,000. The grant will fund operating costs and essential services for the 35-bed domestic violence shelter and transitional housing facilities. The provider expects to serve 470 persons at the facility in Lake City serving Columbia County.

Vivid Visions in Suwannee County was awarded $95,500. Vivid Visions is a 15-bed domestic violence center serving Suwannee County. The grant will be used to renovate the facility to be able to better serve 100 women and children.

The Department of Children and Families awarded more than $2 million in grants to benefit community homeless shelters throughout the state.

According to information from DCF, $2.1 million in federal Emergency Shelter Grant funding was awarded to 25 homeless shelters around the state.

The funds come from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Donna Fagan, Another Way executive director, said they hope to have the funding in hand by July 1, but the timing is dependent on DCF.

"The funding helps tremendously," Fagan said. "It will provide for a couple of part-time positions as well as operating expenses for the shelter."

Fagan said they were notified they would be a funding recipient on Wednesday.

"We've gotten the funding before," she said. "In the past we've split it between our two shelter facilities, the one in Lake City and the one in Chiefland. This year we were restricted to applying for only one facility, so it will all go to Lake City."

Another Way, constructed in 2005, provides shelter for battered women and children from Columbia and Dixie, Gilchrist, Hamilton, Lafayette and Levy counties.

Fagan said the Lake City facility serves mostly people from Columbia, Hamilton and Lafayette counties.

"In order to qualify for these grant funds we must be an active participant in the Homeless Services Network of Suwannee Valley," Fagan said. "We want to thank them for all they do."

Tax incentive deal solidified

By HANNAH O. BROWN

hbrown@lakecityreporter.com

Columbia County's Board of County Commissioners approved a memorandum solidifying the contributions of the city towards a Target tax incentive established in 2006.

In the memorandum, the city agreed to pay a shortfall from taxes that have exceeded the five-year annual contribution of $350,000 that was initially agreed upon.

"After Target had opened its doors, they increased the amount of equipment in the building," County Manager Dale Williams said. "Well when they did that, the amount of taxes they owed went up. Because of that, what the city's contribution was to the project no longer matched what Target was actually having to pay. This agreement corrects."

The county, which originally agreed to a 10-year incentive, will no longer provide a rebate, because Target has been approved for tax exemption from county taxes.

"Everybody is doing what they need to do but it has just been in different forms," Feagle said.

The memorandum was approved unanimously by the county commission on Thursday night.

missioners had to approve precinct lines before discussing polling locations.

"Staff knows of no reason that you should not accept the precinct lines as presented," Williams informed the commissioners at the meeting.

"I understand that, Dale," Commissioner Ron Williams said, "but once we adopt these lines, we are at the mercy of precincts going where they want to."

County Attorney Marlin Feagle advised commissioners that there is a statutory mandate that commissioners approve the proposed precinct lines unless they have a valid reason not to.

"I hear what the board is saying about the polling, and that is certainly an issue for the supervisor, but I have to tell you I don't think you have discretion not to approve this unless you have good reason," Feagle said.

DePratter made a motion to approve the precinct lines, the motion passed unanimously.

"Never go against the advice of your attorney," Commissioner Williams said.

The city council has expressed its displeasure of the polling place proposal as well.

One more shot for Greece

The forces of big spending will have another shot at the polls next month in Greece. The Syriza party, which is strongly opposed to austerity programs, is expected to gain in the upcoming election. Unfortunately for the long-suffering Greek taxpayers, opposition to austerity means, in all probability, that Greece will remain stuck in the recessionary spiral that's dizzied the nation for the last four years.

Though protesters scream about draconian cuts and enforced austerity, actual government spending in Greece has declined by a mere 3 percent. Such a small slice only counts as "draconian" in profligate places like Brussels, Athens and Washington. The Greek economy, on the other hand, has shrunk by 20 percent over the last four years.

The much-despised European Union (EU) and International Monetary Fund bailouts have continued to pour billions of dollars into Greece, keeping the state afloat. That has allowed the government to maintain itself without any real austerity in practice.

The failure of Greece to form a coalition government will now mean the next tranche of the bailout might not be released, and the public sector might run out of funds before mid-June when the elections are scheduled. The timing couldn't be worse. June is also the start of the tourist season, a major driver of the Greek economy.

If Greece chooses to remain in the eurozone, there will have to be a certain amount of deflation to make the exchange rate competitive. Increasingly, the question is when, not if, Greece will exit from the EU. The present path Greece is on leads to ruin. Instead, the country should look to emulate the Baltic states, which have shrunk government and increased economic freedom.

The choice between them delineates American changes

Even as we learned white births no longer are the majority in this nation, we heard a small group of wealthy Republicans planned to remind you that President Barack Obama's middle name is Hussein.

Here we go again? As if the debate over our economic future weren't sufficient, some people hope to go back over old ground and discuss whether America really should have a president who is a "metrosexual black Abe Lincoln," although that sounds cool and Obama has been president for over three years. (The "Hussein" thing is certainly tired. There is no doubt that Obama has done his part to fight terrorism, with the best evidence being the death of Osama bin Laden.)

Mitt Romney rejected a now discarded (we hope) conservative plan to spend $10 million to fund political ads during the presidential campaign linking Obama to the racist comments of his one-time pastor, the Rev. Jeremiah Wright Jr. Really? Didn't we go through this in 2008 and decide a member of the congregation is not actually responsible for what's said in the pulpit?

The nation's long-predicted demographic switch happened slightly earlier than predicted and means that Hispanics, blacks, Asians and others of mixed race now represent a majority of births in America. Our country is inevitably changing, and all the border fences in the world will not prevent it.

In many respects, we have no better choice to delineate dealing with change than Romney

annmcfeatters@nationalpress.com

versus Obama.

Romney represents a return-to-yesterday approach to government, religion, social values and demographics. Obama represents an embrace-the-change approach to government, religion, social values and demographics.

Romney wants government to do less regulating. Basically, he wants the government to butt out of business affairs on grounds that corporate leaders know better than government what their social responsibilities should be. He does not want the wealthy to pay a greater share of their wealth in taxes than the poor or the disappearing middle class. He does not believe that government should do ever more for the poor, victims or the elderly. He argues that should be the responsibility of individuals or of private charitable organizations.

Romney would not end the Bush-era tax cuts for the wealthy nor would he have bailed out the auto industry. He would continue subsidies for oil companies but would not spend government dollars on research on alternative energy. He would eliminate many onerous environmental regulations.

Obama believes that government has a role to play when the economy is weak. He believes he saved 100,000 jobs by bailing out Detroit. He is convinced that federal regulations level the playing field for everyone and that protecting the environment is worth forcing business to pay more for controls than they otherwise would if left to their own devices.

Obama does not believe the current tax rate is fair. He does not want to leave tax revenues at a 60-year low. He does not believe the rich create more jobs if their taxes go down.

Romney does not approve of marriage for anyone but a man and a woman. Obama says he now believes that government should not prevent marriage between any two people who love each other.

Romney does not want immigrants here illegally to have a legal path to citizenship while remaining. Obama thinks there should be a way for those who work hard to succeed in America to stay although he has sped up deportments.

Romney thinks we must contain the soaring national debt immediately even though programs Americans like most about government (roads, bridges, child health, education, food and drug safety) would be cut. Obama thinks there will be time to deal with the debt when the economy improves.

We hope Americans decide the election by considering how Romney's rich-people-know-best, private-sector-wins-all economic policies would restore jobs and improve the economy versus Obama's stay-the-course, let-government-do-its-job strategy. Please, voters, reject all attempts to turn this process ugly.

VIEW

Obama makes history — up

In 2008, Michelle Obama said her husband believed that Americans were "going to have to change our traditions, our history." Who knew she meant it literally?

Word broke this week that the Obama administration amended White House website biographies of most of the 20th century's presidents to include information touting President Obama's supposed accomplishments. The additions are contained in a "Do you know?" section at the end of each bio entry. And do you know? It is turning out to be another major public-relations disaster.

It was bad enough when Democrats sought to make Ronald Reagan an unwitting co-conspirator in promoting Mr. Obama's proposed tax increases. Now every president from Calvin Coolidge on has been drafted into the effort to hype Mr. Obama. Lyndon Johnson signed Medicare into law, as Mr. Obama signed Obamacare. Franklin Roosevelt signed the Social Security Act, as Mr. Obama "continues to protect seniors and ensure Social Security will be there for future generations." Trying to associate "Silent Cal" Coolidge's first presidential radio address in 1924 with the verbose Mr. Obama's nonstop tweeting is particularly awkward, but apparently every chief executive in the last 90 years was simply paving the way for the current White House occupant.

The biographical trespassing was typical of the Obama administration's self-aggrandizing style, and it lent itself to instant parody. There was a spontaneous outpouring of mockery on various social-media outlets. The viral meme "Obama In History" quickly established itself, and tweets and artwork appeared associating Mr. Obama with everything from the first Thanksgiving to the famous Elvis/Nixon Oval Office photo. "In 1803, Jefferson bought the Louisiana Purchase for $233 million in today's dollars," @CuffyMeh tweeted, "which Obama spent while you read this." Even more on point, "30,000 Americans died on the Oregon Trail," @EthanMyers007 observed, "due to lack of health insurance."

White House flacks pouted that they were not actually changing history, just adding to it, but cyberspace is a faultless judge of official pretension. Others observed that this act of presidential kidnapping reflected the general contempt the Obama administration has for history. Facts are only important inasmuch as they support the official view of reality. Official data such as unemployment numbers and gross-domestic-product figures are refigured after the fact to shape perceptions.

The ceaseless propagandizing is disgraceful. Citizens expect the history-themed pages of the White House website to be like the White House itself, reflecting a shared national heritage and off-limits from politics. Visitors on the White House tour don't expect to find the historic rooms of the executive mansion festooned with Obamanalia. They would cringe at seeing the famous portrait of Abraham Lincoln by George Peter Alexander Healy paired with another painting of Mr. Obama gazing thoughtfully towards the horizon. As hard as it is for members of the administration to accept, not everything is made that much better by adding Mr. Obama to it.

Homosexuality – A sign of the times

The first promise made to man as Jesus ascended up after the resurrection was "He will come again" Acts 1:11. John 14:3, the night before the cross, He told His disciples that He would come again and receive us to Himself. The question is not if He is coming but when. Jesus said in Matthew 24:36: "But the day and hour no one knows, not even the angels of heaven, but My Father only". Then He gives us the signs of Noah in Matthew 24:37-39. Then in Luke 17:26-30 Jesus adds Lot's day at Sodom as a sign.

Sodom was an evil city, along with Gomorrah. They were overridden with sin, especially homosexuality (Genesis 19). God destroyed the cities so completely that today only the area they were is known.

I believe that the single most compelling sign of the soon return of Christ for His church is the sign of homosexuality. Almost every time we listen to the news there is one state or the other promoting same sex marriage (homosexuality). Some want them to have the same rights as a married couple (a man and a woman). Even as I write this article, the President of the United States of America will appear on that worldly TV show "The View" to explain his statement last week when he endorsed homosexuality. Churches are giving in to it and allow "gay" men and women to fill the pulpits. The last two editions of "Florida Baptist Witness" has the story of the "Cooperative Baptist Fellowship (CBF)" seemingly debating on how to deal with homosexuality. It amazes me how the men and women who claim to be Christians (Christ-like) even debate this issue. It's time to call it the "sin" that it is.

The only authority we have of the subject or any other for that matter is God's word. If the Bible says it is a sin, then it is a sin. No doubt about it. Those who say that the Bible does not condemn homosexuality are either ignorant or mistaken. We have already mentioned Genesis 19. Leviticus 18:22 says: "You shall not lie with a male as with a woman. It is an abomination". Leviticus 20:13 tells us that in those days it carried the death penalty. I would advise those of you who practice this sin, and those of you who are uncertain, to study II Peter chapter 2. I would also remind you that Hebrews 13:8 says "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today, and forever". Anything that was once a sin is still a sin. Paul wrote in I Corinthians 6:9-10 about those who could not inherit the Kingdom of God; and one of those are homosexuals. The KJV uses the word "effeminate", which is the same meaning.

Some say they can help it; they are born that way; being homosexual is natural. That is a lie from the Devil. Studies have been done to try and prove this, but no credible evidence has been found to back this up. The fact is evidence points to it as a lifestyle of choice.

Jesus died for all sins and He will forgive if one comes to Him for forgiveness and turn from sin (Romans 6:1-10).

Regardless of other abilities, homework is important

I recently heard someone compare a particular politician to that kid in your high school English class who gives an oral book report, but obviously has not read the book. No matter how smooth a speaker they might be, it soon becomes painfully obvious they did not do their homework.

After five weeks watching Nehemiah do his homework, we are more than ready for him to present his vision! So, diving in and taking only two verses, Nehemiah confidently shares the mission with the Jews living in Jerusalem: "Then I said to them, 'You see the trouble we are in: Jerusalem lies in ruins, and its gates have been burned with fire. Come let us rebuild the wall of Jerusalem, and we will no longer be in disgrace.' I also told them about the gracious hand of my God upon me and what the king had said to me." (Nehemiah 2:17-18a)

In this short presentation, we find a successful model of casting a vision and enlisting others to join. Remember all the groundwork that Nehemiah had invested time and effort in up to this point: "hearing" the problem, mourning, fasting and praying for favor, and asking for the King's help. Also, don't forget that Nehemiah arrived in Jerusalem three days prior to this meeting, with no welcome party. Quietly, he went about gathering information and surveying the damaged walls. Nehemiah didn't want a committee to labor over every detail...what he needed was one plan that would get results...and fast!

Nehemiah approached the enlistment process with the assumption that those living in the city were fully aware of their vulnerability because of the broken walls. "You see the trouble..." Nehemiah knew he didn't need to tell them this was a problem, after all, it was their homes and family living without protection! Notice also how Nehemiah never questioned why they had not already undertaken the task of repairing. Pointing a finger at what others "should" have done never wins allies. The main concern now is to move forward. The walls need repairing. Let's repair them.

The next move Nehemiah makes in enlisting others is to join the mix. Notice that he didn't say, "You need to get on board because I have graciously taken a leave of absence from my important job at the palace to come down here and help you fix your wall." Instead, he says, "Come let us rebuild the wall, and we will no longer be in disgrace." He spoke aloud the feelings they all had in common. There is something so powerfully motivating about a leader who considers his or her place among those being led. We are quick to follow those who have a stake in our fight, but leaders who stay disconnected lose respect quickly. Consider those you have joined for a task. Did they simply point you in a direction, or did they roll up their sleeves and join you? Personally, I tend to want a leader in the trenches with me!

Being reminded of all Nehemiah invested in this project to get to the place of sharing his vision is a humbling reminder that it takes a lot of work to begin a work. Homework must be done, information gathered, groundwork laid...we must be willing to count the cost in order to cast a vision. And never, ever miss the opportunity to bear witness to what God is up to and give Him glory. "So they began this good work."

Rock Bash on tap

LIVE OAK — Suwannee Rock Bash is coming to the Spirit of The Suwannee Music Park in Live Oak Saturday with bands Black Molly, Big Engine, ONE, Jamocracy and EFen. Music will be on two stages in the Music Hall for this event.

The event kicks off Friday night, May 18, with a combination event kick-off and CD release party for ONE in the Music Hall beginning at 8 p.m. with free admission. Food and drinks are regular price both nights. The kick-off party will feature ONE playing music from its new CD just released this week, Worlds Collide, with special guest band EFen playing during the evening also.

Suwannee Rock Bash opens at 3 p.m. Saturday in the Music Hall with music beginning at 4 p.m. Admission is $10 advance, $15 day of show. Disabled veterans and active duty military are free with a valid ID; VIP $50 advance, $60 day of show. VIP tickets include a catered meal, discount cash bar and VIP seating area.

Black Molly combines the original guitarist of legendary southern rock band Blackfoot with the original bassist of legendary Southern rock band Molly Hatchet. With both bands' catalogs to draw from, Black Molly is bound to please the crowd with Southern rock hit after hit! With Gold and Platinum albums under their belts from their original bands and thousands of world wide concert tour experiences to draw from, Charlie and Banner light up the stage with professionalism that's hard to match.

When you think of the band ONE, the words determination, driven and hard working come to mind. In a day and age where talent isn't enough, this band knows there is only one way to succeed, HARD WORK! Following the release of ONE's second album, "Dirty Valentine," ONE has spent the better part of the last two years on the road, taking the music to the people, crossing North America countless times and selling thousands of the band's two albums in the process.

Having peaked at No. 77 on Les Palmes (Quebec version of the Billboard charts) and also having won an award for Rock Song of the Year in 2009 for "Today Will Last Forever," as well as being one of the most active independent touring bands in the last couple of years, the Canadian band ONE is showing no signs of slowing down.

Farmers Market freshness

TODD WILSON/Lake City Reporter

The Lake City Farmers Market downtown in Wilson Park on the banks of Lake DeSoto continues to offer fresh fruit and vegetables, along with a varying selection of homemade canned goods and crafts. This week, the Farmers Market shares the park with the Third Annual Haven Hospice FamFest, a festival featuring fitness, art and music. The Farmers Market is open every Saturday morning in the park.

Jesus gets temptation

How would Jesus understand my temptations? How would the Son of God be able to relate to the struggles that I have with my temptations? Some think it would be impossible for this sinless man to be able to relate to one who has committed so many sins that it would be impossible to count them!

The Hebrew writer makes the point that Jesus can come to our aid when it comes to temptations because He was tempted (2:18). As we think about this statement about Jesus, we must ask ourselves, "How was Jesus tempted?" "How can the Son of God be tempted?"

We must begin to answer this question by stating that when Jesus came to this earth, He put away His deity qualities and became like a human being just like the rest of mankind. Notice what Paul told the Philippians (2:6-8), "... although He existed in the form of God, [He] did not regard equality with God a thing to be grasped, but emptied Himself, taking the form of a bond-servant, and being made in the likeness of men. And being found in appearance as a man, He humbled Himself by becoming obedient to the point of death, even death on a cross." The Hebrew writer said that Jesus took on "flesh and blood" so that He could be like human beings (2:14). Jesus was as much a human being as you and I are.

Second, we must realize that Jesus endured temptations just like we did.

The Hebrew writer says that Jesus was "tempted in that which He has suffered" (2:18). In another section of Hebrews, it says that Jesus was "one who has been tempted in all things as we are, yet without sin." If Jesus was "tempted in all things" just like we are, then He can relate to what we have gone through. Matthew tells us of three temptations that Jesus went through (Matthew 4:1-11). When we look at these three temptations, we see that they are just as John the apostle said. All temptations are; "the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eyes and the boastful pride of life" (1 John 2:16).

We also must realize that just because Jesus is labeled the "Son of God" (and He rightfully is so labeled), He is not God. I am the son of my father, but I am not my father. I have some of the characteristics of my father, but I also have some characteristics of my mother. So was Jesus. In some respects, He was like His Father, but in other respects, He was like His mother. He cannot be denied that Jesus was tempted, likewise it cannot be denied that God cannot be tempted by evil (James 1:13). So because Jesus was tempted, He cannot be God or deity.

It provides me with great comfort to know that Jesus understands my temptation because He has endured the same temptations. It is of great comfort to me to know that I can overcome temptations because Jesus overcame His temptations. I picture in my mind that Jesus possibly is saying, "I know how you feel. You can do this. I did it; so can you." He can sympathize! He understands!

Catching up with state track

For most of Columbia High's 4x100 relay team that qualified for state, football has taken over as their main concern.

The relay team of Rakeem Battle, Cornelius Montgomery, Zedrick Woods and Trey Marshall ran a 43.59 in state qualifying, which placed them sixth in heat two and 13th overall in the state.

Lincoln, a member of Columbia's District 2-3A, won state in 41.06.

Columbia placed second behind Lincoln at district with a 42.33 and was third at region with a 42.66.

Richardson Middle School began a track program this year under coach Quinton Jefferson.

The Wolves qualified seven for the middle school state meet.

Ladarius Powell tied for sixth in the long jump and tied for eighth in the high jump.

Konstance Washington placed ninth in the shot put.

Jameson Carter placed 10th in the 100-meter hurdles and Robbreca Fulton was 14th in the 100 hurdles.

Kamario Bell placed 23rd in the shot put.

Jordan Thompkins and Ronnie Williamson joined Bell and Powell on the 4x100 relay team that made state. They were disqualified at the meet.

Santa Fe College baseball won the Mid-Florida Conference and shortstop Jacob Tillotson of Lake City was named conference Defensive Player of the Year.

Santa Fe went 1-2 in the state tournament, starting with a 4-1 loss to State College of Florida. The Saints beat Indian River, 7-5, but were eliminated by eventual state champion Polk State College, 3-1.

Tillotson went 3-for-12 with a double and run scored in the tournament.

Cameron Sweat played for St. Johns River this season.

Sweat played in 23 games and hit .175 with 10 hits, six runs scored, one double and six RBIs.

Alex Nieland played for Pasco-Hernando.

Nieland appeared in 26 games and pitched 124 innings. She was 2-18 with 48 strikeouts, 57 walks and a 5.19 ERA. At the plate, Nieland had a .176 average with six hits and eight RBIs.

At the Columbia High wrestling banquet, Ethan Treverrow received the Most Improved award.

Tiger tangle

Columbia travels to Dunnellon for spring game today.

By BRANDON FINLEY
bfinley@lakecityreporter.com

Columbia High will travel to Dunnellon High to cap off its spring schedule today in a rematch of last spring's 17-0 win for the Tigers.

Not all is expected to be the same, however, as Columbia expects a set of new stripes from the other group of Tigers.

"When you think about last year, going into the game, we had an opportunity to see what they'd do," Columbia head coach Brian Allen said. "This year, they've changed up their offense to more of a pistol look. That's a little change compared to the option stuff they've been running.

It's going to change things up for us defensively."

While some things will change, Allen said Dunnellon will run primarily the same base defense as it did last spring.

"Defensively, they're going to give a five-man front and rush five every down," he said. "Sometimes they'll throw in a sixth rusher. They're going to man up with one free safety high."

Allen believes that based on the other Tigers' look, Columbia should have some spots it can attack with comfort.

"When you're playing a team with one-hot safety, there's going to be some things that open up underneath," he said. "We have to know where they are number heavy. We have to find out where they are weak up front. I think they'll come out and be a good football team. They're going to know what they're doing and come out to compete. We have to as well."

But Allen said Dunnellon shouldn't expect to see the same group of Tigers that it saw last spring.

"The difference is night and day," Allen said. "One of the things that kind of scares me now is that we have a veteran group of kids that are confident in themselves. They're stronger and quicker across all spectrums. Where will the motivation to compete come from each day?"

Allen has said that it's been a different unit shining each day, but he wants a level of consistency from his team.

"Offense is dominant one day and defense is the next," Allen said. "What we Jackson worried with Indians' preparation.

FORT WHITE — Coming off its best winter offseason in the weight room and a strong spring practice, Fort White High defeated Orange Park High, 17-14, in the 2011 spring game at Arrowhead Stadium.

The Indians visit the Class 6A Raiders for a 7 p.m. game today and head coach Demetric Jackson is expressing concern with his team's preparation.

"It has not been a great couple of days of practice," Jackson said Thursday morning. "We'll take who shows up today and tomorrow and see. It will be a great opportunity for some young guys to play a lot."

Jackson said the players have had to study for testing, plus dealing with banquets and obligation in other sports.

"It is just frustrating," Jackson said. "So many of our kids are involved in everything. When they miss practice, it puts a damper on what we are

Green in comfort zone with coaching staff

By TIM KIRBY

tkirby@lakecityreporter.com

Orange Park head coach Danny Green is getting the band back together.

After 40-plus years of coaching, the last 30-plus as a head coach, Green is rejuvenated with several new staff members.

His son, Corey, has been with him since he went to Orange Park in 2008 and serves as offensive coordinator. Green has added Bobby Harrison, also a Columbia High graduate and former head coach at Bishop Snyder High, and his son, Greg Harrison. Both were on Green's staff at Baker County High, and join Jim Blakely who Green coached at Baker County.

"It is a unique situation and I feel real blessed," Green said on Thursday. "Most of the other guys on the staff have been with me since I've been here."

Greg Harrison is handling the defense and Bobby Harrison is coaching the offensive line.

"I am very excited to have them come in and work with me," Green said. "They understand the system and it makes for a great coaching environment. It has worked out good for me."

out of coaching last year and it is certain Green has told them about last year's spring loss to Fort White

High.

"I hope we will play better than last year," Green said. "We turned the ball over and they out-played us and out-coached us. The kids are working hard and they have a better attitude than last year."

Green said the Raiders dressed out 91-92 varsity and junior varsity players for the intrasquad game last week. He said he is working with 60 players for the spring game.

"In our last six games last year we started six sophomores and a ninth-grader," Green said. "It was a difficult time, but we averaged 380 yards per game. We don't have the speed we used to have."

Indians head coach Demetric Jackson said the Raiders have a defensive lineman that everybody is looking at.

Green said he is DeAsian Richardson. "He is pretty much being recruited by everybody in the SEC," Green said.

Green also mentioned linemen Jhory Jones and Trevor Kintyh and said his main running back is Eddie Fuller.

"In the spring you want to see what kids play aggressively and hopefully get them in the right positions," Green said. "They have worked hard this spring and we are looking forward to the game."

New York Jets quarterback Tim Tebow sits at his locker at the teams football training facility on May 10 in Florham Park, N.J.

Jets' Revis says Tebow has passion — even at lunch

By DENNIS WASZAK Jr.

Associated Press

FLORHAM PARK, N.J. — Here's some food for thought: Tim Tebow has unmatched passion — even in the cafeteria.

At least that's what Darrelle Revis thinks.

When it comes to lunch partners, the All-Pro cornerback says there's no one like the New York Jets backup quarterback. Sure, Tebow has had his share of game-winning drives and incredible comebacks during his football career. But just watch him chat over a turkey sandwich.

"Some people have it and some guys don't," Revis said Wednesday. "I just think the passion, it's the passion within, of him wanting to be a leader, wanting to win. You see it all the time — eating lunch you see it. Walking down the hallway you see it."

Revis has been impressed with how Tebow has fit right in with his new teammates after being acquired from Denver in March. He has also noticed that Tebow has "the gift" of being able to lead and does so by example all the time.

But, eating lunch with passion? Really?

"He's into stuff, like when you're talking to him, he's like, 'Yeah!'" a smiling Revis said, making believe he's leaning into a conversation. "I'm like, 'All right, buddy, we're not competing.' Nah, he's very passionate. When he talks about things and during conversations, he's really into it."

While neither Tebow nor starting quarterback Mark Sanchez was made available to discuss their approaches to eating lunch, Revis compared his newest teammate to Zeus.

"He's just one of those guys," Revis said. "He's just very positive. He has passion for what he does and you can see it. You can see it when you have a conversation with him. He's just a leader. He wants to win and everything is positive about him."

It certainly appears Tebow has settled in nicely with his Jets teammates, taking — and giving — razzings from them, just like one of the guys.

At the end of locker room availability for the media, Tebow noticed Bart Scott sprawled out on the floor and joked that he's getting old and should head to the cold tub. The veteran linebacker didn't miss a beat, playfully asking Tebow — known for his strong religious beliefs — if he'd baptize him.

Revis thinks having Tebow and Sanchez on the same team can only help the Jets, especially because of the potential to confuse defenses.

"My initial (thought) to the play would be a trick play, something tricky," he said. "Tim is dangerous and Mark is dangerous as well. So, to have them both on the field at the same time, you wouldn't be able to prepare for it because no one has ever seen it. You've just got to be cautious, where maybe on the defensive side, you're like, 'Hey, back up,' and it could be a trick play or a double-reverse trick play or something up their sleeve."

Revis last season commented that he didn't think Tebow, then with the Broncos, would be able to sustain a level of success as a starting quarterback in the NFL because of his deficiencies. He thinks Tebow's in the right place to maximize his talents.

"You respect the guy," Revis said. "He's a playmaker. He makes plays and wins games, that's it. Him being a teammate is kind of different because you get to see him every day, you get to talk to him every day, you get to eat lunch with him every day and get to know him as a person. It's totally different. When you're competing against somebody and you don't know that person, you only see what you see on film."

Saints' Vilma sues Roger Goodell for defamation

By BRETT MARTEL

Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Suspended Saints linebacker Jonathan Vilma filed a defamation lawsuit Thursday against NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell.

The suit in U.S. District Court in New Orleans claims Goodell has made false statements about Vilma while discussing the NFL's bounty investigation of the New Orleans Saints.

Goodell has said Vilma was a leader of the team's bounty program that put up thousands of dollars for big hits on opposing teams' star players from 2009-11, including on then-Arizona quarterback Kurt Warner and then-Minnesota quarterback Brett Favre during the playoffs in 2010.

"Commissioner Goodell opted to make very public and unfortunately erroneous allegations against Jonathan," said Vilma's attorney, Peter Ginsberg. "By making these false and public statements, he has significantly harmed Jonathan's reputation and ability to make a living."

"By suing Commissioner Goodell in court, Jonathan opted to use a fair playing field where he has procedural rights and protections to remedy the harm Commissioner Goodell has done to him," Ginsberg added.

Vilma wrote on his Twitter account that, "As I've said before, I NEVER PAID, NOR INTENDED TO PAY ANY AMOUNT OF MONEY, TO ANY PLAYER FOR INTENTIONALLY HURTING AN OPPONENT."

Goodell has suspended Vilma for the entire season. Vilma and three other players who received shorter suspensions — defensive end Will Smith, defensive lineman Anthony Hargrove and linebacker Scott Fujita — all have appealed their punishments. Hargrove now plays for Green Bay while Fujita is with Cleveland.

"We have not yet reviewed the filing," NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said. "However, our commitment to player safety and the integrity of the game is our main consideration. We recognize that not everyone will agree with decisions that need to be made."

Vilma's lawsuit, which is expected to be heard by Judge Ginger Berrigan, asks for unspecified monetary damages.

The players' association has said that the league has refused to turn over what the union would view as hard evidence that Vilma or the other sanctioned players tried to intentionally injure targeted opponents or sponsored such behavior on the field.

INDIANS: Will face Wing-T attack

trying to do. We have about 25 guys showing up regularly that we can count on."

Jackson said one positive is the Fort White defense will be facing the Wing-T offense run for years by Orange Park head coach Danny Green.

"We see the Wing-T all the time during the season and have had success against it," Jackson said. "Ken (assistant head coach Snider) is running our defense and is familiar with the Wing-T. That's the bright side. They will try and pound us inside. We have our offensive linemen playing defense and we have to be smart how we play them. They will eat up the clock and that will work to our advantage."

Jackson said 6-7 Indians will be playing both ways and Orange Park may not have any players doing double duty.

"On offense we can't turn the ball over and give them a short field," Jackson said. "We are going to change up formations and try to get them out of alignment and create some mismatches. We will try to stay balanced as much as possible."

Jackson also plans to take advantage of the experience of third-year starting quarterback Andrew Baker in spotting those mismatches.

"We are going to give Andrew a little more freedom to make calls at the line," Jackson said. "We will see how they line up and adjust."

Jackson said there will be no kickoffs and limited contact on punts, extra points and field goals. The varsity will play three quarters with subs and junior varsity in the fourth quarter.

Directions: Take Interstate-10 east to Interstate-295 south; exit on Blanding Boulevard and go south; Orange Park High is on the left; turn on Kingsley Avenue.

CHS: Caps off spring practice today

want is a level of consistency so that we can go out and have one heck of a football practice. I want to see that consistency from this veteran group. It's easy to make it through practice when you're getting ready for a game, but you have to have that in practice to translate to Friday nights."

Still, Allen isn't going to stress if the Tigers fall in a spring game. His focus is on preparation for the fall.

"We're not going to put a whole bunch of stock into whether we win or lose," Allen said. "We want to win in everything we do, but there's not a lot of stock put into the final score. The big thing is having guys doing what they're supposed to and giving us a good view of where we are as a group as we get ready to approach the fall."

Allen said he will pay special attention to mental mistakes and turnovers.

"We don't need a bunch of turnovers," Allen said. "We want to see guys running to the ball and doing the things that we coach every day. We do those things like we're supposed to, at the end of the day, we will be in the win column."

Columbia will kick off against the Tigers at 7 p.m. in Dunnellon today.

At Preakness, Motion is the hunter, not the target

By DAVID GINSBURG
Associated Press

BALTIMORE — A year ago, Graham Motion was one of the most popular figures at Pimlico Race Course.

As the trainer of Kentucky Derby winner Animal Kingdom, Motion had the lone horse in the Preakness field with a shot at winning the Triple Crown.

"The pressure is on you," the Englishman recalled Thursday. "The two weeks between the Derby and the Preakness, I felt like I was holding my breath. You're kind of walking on egg shells, hoping everything is going great with the horse."

Animal Kingdom came in second in the 2011 Preakness, a half-length behind Shackleford. Motion can't get the outcome out of his mind — no matter how hard he tries.

"We came that close," Motion said, holding his index finger and thumb a half-inch apart. "I was quite shocked to see Shackleford's picture on the grandstand when I drove in this morning. That was kind of a pit in my stomach."

Exercise rider Zeke Castro rides Went the Day Well as trainer Graham Motion looks on at right, during a morning workout at Pimlico Race Course on Thursday in Baltimore. The Preakness Stakes horse race is Saturday.

Motion will saddle Went the Day Well in the Preakness on Saturday. The bay colt finished fourth in the Derby two weeks ago but has won two of his four starts this year. Went the Day Well was bumped at Churchill Downs and forced to go seven wide in an effort to catch up. He rallied gamely under jockey John Velazquez, but couldn't quite make up enough ground to finish in the money. "He ended up much farther than Johnny wanted in the Derby, and that's probably what cost him being second. Maybe cost him the win," Motion said. "It's all about getting a good trip. There's always going to be a horse in the Derby that doesn't get a good trip, and that's what makes it so hard to win the Triple Crown."

If Motion has his way, horse racing will go another year without a Triple Crown winner. I'll Have Another has assumed the role held by Animal Kingdom last year, and Motion is determined to deny the Derby winner from making it two in a row.

"We're going to try our best to make sure it doesn't happen," Motion said. "We're going to make it hard for him. Let's put it that way."

Motion has been operating in relative obscurity this week while I'll Have Another trainer Doug O'Neill and Bob Baffert, trainer of Preakness favorite Bodemeister, are attracting much of the attention.

"I'm more comfortable being under the radar," Motion said.

He did, however, acknowledge that last year was far more exciting.

"You come to the Preakness with the Derby winner, that's pretty cool. It doesn't get any better than that," he said.

Meeting McClure

After dramatic crash, spotlight falls on driver from racing family

Among the upsides to Eric McClure's frightening crash at the end of the May 5 Nationwide Series race at Talladega Superspeedway is that the NASCAR world was finally introduced to McClure, and vice versa.

McClure, whose family once owned and operated the Morgan-McClure race team that competed in the Sprint Cup Series until 2008, grew up working around the team shop, but he didn't pursue driving until after graduating with a mass communications degree from Emory and Henry College in 2000. His mother was a schoolteacher and insisted that education come before racing.

After working his way through the short tracks around his Chilhowie, Va., home he moved to NASCAR's elite divisions in 2003. Since then, he's made 179 Nationwide Series starts and three in Sprint Cup. He's run full-time in Nationwide since 2007, but he's never had a top-10 finish and never received much attention until he slammed into the wall at Talladega and was cut from his car and airlifted to a Birmingham hospital.

Last week at Darlington Raceway, just six days after a crash that could have taken his life in the era before HANS devices and SAFER barriers, he made his first appearance at a track media center, something usually reserved for those who win poles or finish among the top three in races.

Eric McClure speaks Friday during a press conference about being injured in an incident last week. (NASCAR photo)

"The first thing I need to say is that when I started racing, I always dreamed about having this opportunity to be in [the media center] under different circumstances," said McClure, a 33-year-old father of four. "It hasn't panned out that way."

Not surprisingly, his next comments were words of thanks for the safety personnel and the safety features on the cars and tracks, features that became commonplace after Dale Earnhardt's fatal crash at Daytona in 2001.

"I'm thankful to be here, and certainly very thankful for the safety initiatives and everything NASCAR's put on display over the years — certainly, firsthand experience — very grateful for that," he said. "I would just like to say thank you to everyone."

He said he'd received lots of calls from fans and fellow drivers concerned about his well-being, following a crash that left him with little memory of the impact and the events that followed.

"I remember bits and pieces of everything," he said. "It's very spotty at times after the impact. I just remember being really excited. We were in a good position, and I felt like I had an opportunity for our first top-10, and we were just in a pack there."

He said he saw smoke ahead of him and stepped on the brake pedal, only to feel it go to the floor.

"The brakes were not there," he said. "At that point, I just remember getting hit by someone and going toward the wall. At that point, I just braced for impact, and that's really all I remember until after the accident."

He said the main injury he suffered is internal bruising, which kept him out of the car at Darlington. He'll work with NASCAR and a team of doctors to determine when it's OK for him to resume racing.

"Once they feel that I'm cleared to get back in the race car and, that I'm ready to get back in the car, then I look forward to doing that," he said.

"We're definitely preparing the best we can to do that as soon as possible."

McClure said the crash and his hospital stay did have an emotional effect on him and his young family.

"I was able to see them Saturday night [after the crash], and I'd be lying if I said it didn't affect our oldest daughter just a little bit," he said.

"Fortunately, they didn't see the accident. They were at the track, but they did not see it live." He said that it helped that his wife is a nurse and was familiar with hospital procedures, but it was still a tough time for the family.

"I hate for them to go through anything like that, but I will keep most of it private, but there were times with the family when things died down at the hospital that made me understand how loved I was by them and made me very thankful that I had a family like that," he said. "This week, it's been good."

McClure closed his remarks by saying he appreciated being able to come to the media center and see how that part of the sport works, and he said there were other positives too.

"There have been some good things to come out of everything this week," he said. "I got to meet Jeff Gordon and that was really cool."

"I've never got to do that in the five years I've done this. And growing up with Morgan-McClure and watching him revolutionize the sport was kind of cool. So, evidently a lot of people have paid attention to this. ... We'll push through it the best we can and get back as soon as possible."

NOTEBOOK

Danica discusses Darlington

The Lady in Green, Danica Patrick, didn't exactly tame the Lady in Black, tough old Darlington Raceway, in her first try at the tricky South Carolina track. But she did better than many expected.

In Friday's Nationwide Series race, she started 15th and finished 12th, on the lead lap. On the Cup side, she started 38th in the Southern 500 and finished 31st, six laps behind winner Jimmie Johnson, who talked with Patrick at the drivers meeting about racing at the "Track Too Tough to Tame."

"She said she underestimated how big of a challenge this race track would be," Johnson said, adding that she seemed to be getting better by the end of the race. "She looked like she was fast at the end of the race. Took me a few laps to get by her. Looks like she did a good job and ran well."

Johnson said the main advice he gave her was to run her own race and not worry too much about getting out of the way of oncoming traffic.

"When people try to get out of the way on this track, it's so narrow, it usually creates problem," he said, adding that he advised Patrick to "drive hard, be smooth and consistent, stay up to speed, let people work their way around her and by her if they got to her."

"I think she did a great job."

Patrick told reporters afterward that she was pleased with her effort.

"I know I didn't have a great result, but, I accomplished all the things I wanted to accomplish," she said. "Things went good on the Nationwide side. Here on the Cup side, my goals were to be respectable out there. I think I held my own all right ... I will be much less worried coming back to this place."

NASCAR makes car changes

In moves apparently aimed at reducing downforce on race cars and preventing cars becoming airborne on newly repaved superspeedways at Pocono and Michigan, NASCAR has informed teams of several changes to the cars.

Beginning this week at Charlotte Motor Speedway, the side skirts of the body must be raised about an inch, which will allow more air to flow under the car. And the large "shark fin" deflective device attached to the left side of the rear window at Daytona and Talladega also will be used at tracks two miles in length or longer, which includes Pocono and Michigan.

Johnson dry spell ends, giving 200th win to Hendrick

Five-time Sprint Cup champion Jimmie Johnson held off Denny Hamlin and Tony Stewart at the end to win Saturday's Southern 500 at Darlington Raceway for his 56th career Cup win and his first of 2012.

More important, it was the 200th Cup victory for his car owner Rick Hendrick, who got his first back in 1984 with Geoff Bodine at Martinsville Speedway. The win came seven months after Johnson got No. 199 last fall at Kansas Speedway, and it ended the coast-to-coast journeys for the celebratory 200th win hats that the Hendrick team had been hauling around for months.

"I didn't think it was ever going to happen," Hendrick said with a big smile. "I thought we were going to haul those hats around forever."

But the win meant a lot more than the end of a hat journey. Johnson said in his post-race comments that he's especially proud for Hendrick and all the people who have worked with him along the way.

"My mind goes back to the early days of Hendrick Motorsports, the people that won the early races, worked on the early cars, helped Rick build Hendrick Motorsports to what it is today," he said. "I think of Harry Hyde, Tim Richmond, Geoff Bodine, Kenny Schrader, a lot of people over the years that put a lot of time and effort and commitment into this organization. So I'm thinking of all those people.

"And so happy for Rick. His dedication to the sport, the performance, winning, is second to none. So happy for him to get his 200th."

Hendrick said it would have been special to get No. 200 last month at Martinsville, where he got No. 1 and where he lost 10 friends and family members in a plane crash in 2004. It almost happened, but a late-race crash knocked Johnson and Jeff Gordon out of the top two spots. But Darlington Raceway is a special place too, he said.

"When I think about Darlington, how special this place is, in 1976, I had a little Chevy dealership over here in Bennettsville," he said. "My wife and I, about a third of the way through the race, drove in the track, drove up behind the stands, didn't buy a ticket, parked the car and went up in the stands and watched the race.

"I don't know how we did that. To think, it's been a lot of years since then."

Being able to play a major part in the 200th win also was significant for Johnson's crew chief Chad Knaus, who has spent the bulk of his career with Hendrick.

"When I started at Hendrick Motorsports back in 1993, man, I think I was like the 75th employee," he said. "To sit back and think of the people that were there before me, the people that have been there since the day I started, contributed to the efforts, man, the list is long and varies."

"I'm proud to be a part of it."

Knaus also had a part in some of Hendrick's earlier milestones.

"We got the 150th for Mr. H in Vegas," he said. "I guess we won our 50th victory here at Darlington. I was changing tires for the 24 car. I had the Oakley glasses, mullet. I was rocking back then."

To think of the people that have been there then, those that are gone, it's a proud accomplishment and glad to have done it."

DEAR ABBY

Dad not eager to celebrate at rival graduation parties

www.dearabby.com

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorced man with a live-in girlfriend I'll call Donna. Her two boys also live with us. Donna's older son will graduate from high school this year, and she has planned a party that her mother and other family members will attend from out of state.

My daughter, "Sara," is graduating from the same high school. Sara has shared her concerns with me that Donna's family won't care about celebrating her graduation. I tried to assure her that it's my day to celebrate her accomplishment with her.

I discussed this with Donna and asked if we could recognize Sara at her son's party. Donna refused because my ex is having a party for Sara, and her son would be an invited guest but not the celebrated graduate there.

I say it's a different scenario because I'm Sara's father and if I were remarried, we'd celebrate the step-sibling graduation together. Donna then told me she has some issues with the way Sara behaves at times. I feel this has given me an insight that I don't like. How should I handle this upcoming graduation and other important issues?

MIXED FEELINGS IN MISSOURI
DEAR MIXED FEELINGS: Handle the graduation and other important issues by keeping them SEPARATE. While it would be generous for Sara to be acknowledged at Donna's son's party, it isn't mandatory - and I'm sure the reverse isn't planned for the party your ex is hosting for Sara.

What the circumstances "would be" if you and Donna were married instead of living together is irrelevant because you are not married and the graduates are not step-siblings. However, this does point up that Donna has not warmed to Sara as much as she might have and you might wish she had. And, because it could be a deal-breaker, this is an issue that should be examined carefully in the very near future.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 16-year-old girl. I love my mother, but she puts very little effort into how she looks. She has been divorced since I was a baby and hasn't dated much. When it comes to how we dress, we are complete opposites. I like to put on real clothes, even if I'm accompanying my mom to the grocery store. She goes out wearing sweats and no bra.

Sometimes I try to help her by picking out her outfits for the week, but she gets mad when I say anything about her no-bra rule. She says I'm trying to pressure her to be someone she's not. Maybe I am, but I want her to meet people and go on dates. It feels like she has no pride in what she looks like. I care about her, but I can't help but see that she could improve. - DOTING DAUGHTER IN MARYLAND

DEAR DOTING DAUGHTER: We could all "improve," but if your mother is comfortable with herself as she is, you should try to accept her that way. Many women find bras uncomfortable, and if they don't have to wear them they don't - especially when wearing loose sweatshirts.

Your mother appears to be happy with her circumstances. When she's ready to try to attract male attention, she will. You are sweet to want to help her, but trying to manipulate her isn't working, so for both your sakes, cut it out.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 19 and have a dear friend, "Emily," who is offended by cussing. She literally has never said a curse word in her life. When I'm around her I never use swear words because I respect her and her friendship.

My issue is that Emily gets very upset if people swear around her. There have been nights that she ended up in tears because someone used foul language. She also angrily confronts people on this issue.

I commend my friend on her decision not to curse, but I think it's unrealistic of her to expect everyone in the world to bend to her morals. I also think it's wrong for her to try to force them. Abby, what are your thoughts? - CHALLENGED FRIEND IN LARAMIE, WYO.

DEAR CHALLENGED: If Emily prefers not to be in the company of people who use four-letter words, that's her privilege. And if she finds it offensive, she has a right to speak up and make it known. But to "wind up in tears" because someone used foul language - as long as it wasn't directed toward her - is overreacting. And for her to angrily confront someone about it would only invite more of the same. Emily will be much happier if she spends more time in the company of people who feel as she does.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, "Gina," is engaged but hasn't started making any plans yet. We have had some rough mother/daughter years but are now in a good place. When it's time, I would like my daughter to ask me to help her pick out her wedding gown. I have a strong hunch that Gina will ask a girlfriend instead. I also know that if I talk to her about my wishes, she'll say, "Sure" or ask me to join her friends. This may seem silly, but I want her to want just me to go. What do you think is the best way to handle this? - MOTHER OF THE BRIDE

DEAR MOTHER: Your relationship with your daughter may be better now, but its pattern was established years ago. You appear to be extremely invested in an "ideal" of how her wedding will be. For your own sake, lower your expectations. You can't make somebody want something if it doesn't come naturally. Because Gina isn't a mind reader, speak up now for that exclusive mother/daughter shopping jaunt. If she likes your fashion sense, she may agree. However, it is not unusual for a bride to include not only her mother, but also her attendants and future mother-in-law when choosing her wedding dress.

THE LAST WORD Eugenia Last

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: Tina Fey, 42; George Strait, 60; Reggie Jackson, 66; Robert Morse, 81.

Happy Birthday: Your willful actions will pay off monetarily, but you may not please everyone. Don't worry too much about the fallout you have with someone heading in a different direction. It's important that you continue to move toward your own goals instead of accommodating others. It's your turn to be recognized for your talents. Your numbers are 4, 9, 17, 24, 27, 31, 48.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't give in to someone trying to bully you into taking on the responsibilities of others. Romance will develop if you discuss your plans with someone with whom you want to share your future. A promise made will be honored. ★★

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Something you enjoy doing can bring in extra cash. Fine-tune what you have to offer, and approach someone who could contribute to your plan. Promptly tend to any matter that requires you to deal with an agency or institution. ★★

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Avoid a conflict of interest. Focus on friendship and nothing more for the time being. An innovative idea will turn into a prosperous venture. Strive to stabilize your life; don't disrupt it by making a poor personal choice. ★★

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Someone may try to coerce you into making a last-minute change that isn't in your best interest. Look into developing a skill in order to bring in extra money. Hands-on help will be more beneficial than a cash donation. ★★

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take a break from the stress you are facing. Spending time with family will help you put problems in perspective. A fresh start will help you pinpoint the best way to proceed. Romance will lead to a stronger relationship with someone special. ★★

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The coast is clear for you to make a move. Share your ideas and make a point to connect with people who can open doors that will help you get ahead. Travel will have a great impact on the way you move forward. ★★

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't let money matters confuse you or make you angry. Instead, reconfigure your budget to suit your needs. Avoid anyone prompting you to spend on something you don't need. A personal matter must be dealt with in order to ease your stress. ★★

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Ask questions and your concerns will be answered. A creative project will give you the push you need to develop one of your skills. Partnerships will play an important role in the choices you make regarding your professional future. ★★

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): An unanticipated change of plans will cause uncertainty if you haven't prepared well enough to move forward alone. Don't miss out on an opportunity. Spring into action, ask questions and make your move. Spontaneity is required. ★★

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Alterations at home will enable you to be more productive. Your ability to outmaneuver anyone you come up against will lead to a profit. There is money to be made if you do the legwork yourself. Romance will enhance your personal life. ★★

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Assess your skills and you will find a way to utilize your best attributes to bring in more cash. Love and romance are highlighted. Changing your current living situation will make life more interesting and financially sound. ★★

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't make decisions based on hearsay. You will disrupt your home life if you act distant or neglectful. Talk to someone you trust regarding your current personal situation and you will be able to decipher your next move. ★★

Birthday Baby: You are patient, practical and hard-working. You leave nothing to chance.
