CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

School voucher debate stirred by No. 8

'Religious freedom' amendment called into question.

By MATT SEDENSKY
Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — There's a reason you'll find no mention of school vouchers when you read Florida's proposed Amendment 8. If you believe the ballot initiative's supporters, it's because it has absolutely nothing to do with the state using tax dollars to pay for students to attend private schools. If you believe the opponents, it's because it's all a veiled effort to get private school vouchers approved and that if that succeeds in Florida, it will be attempted in more than 30 other states.

The amendment, which is on the Nov. 6 ballot, would remove from the state constitution language that specifically prohibits religious institutions from receiving taxpayer money. However, it goes a step beyond repealing the ban by turning it on its head. Another provision says that people, instead, couldn't be barred from participating in public programs because they've chosen to receive those benefits from religious organizations.

How those changes would be used, however, are as hazy as the "Religious Freedom" title the measure appears under on the ballot.

Backers, funded largely by the Roman Catholic Church, insist they're simply trying

A Lake City man is among 15 people nationwide in the running for a contest that could bring more than $10,000 for United Way of Suwannee Valley.

Dale Tompkins, Church On The Way pastor, was nominated as a Safeco Insurance Community Hero for his work helping flood victims after Tropical Storm Debby. Just being named a hero brought $5,000 to the local United Way, but to raise more, Tompkins needs the community's help.

From now until Oct. 29, supporters can vote online for Tompkins. The community hero with the most votes will win $10,000 for his or her charity. The runner-up will receive $5,000.

Tompkins was nominated for the award by John Wheeler, owner of The Wheeler Agency. The Safeco Insurance Agent Giving Program is designed to recognize local heroes and nonprofit organizations that have a positive impact in education, health and safety, or civic engagement.

Water district hires new director of resources

LIVE OAK — Erich Marzolf joined the Suwannee River Water Management District as the new director for the water resources division Monday, according to a district news release.

In that capacity, he will oversee water resource evaluations, including water quality in springs, rivers and lakes; monitoring/data acquisition; and data management and analysis operations.

Marzolf

Marzolf has nearly 30 years of experience in the field of environmental sciences. Prior to employment here, he served at the St. Johns River Water Management District since 1994 in various environmental scientist and supervisory positions. During that time, his focus was on hydrologic and nutrient restoration for lakes, rivers, springs and wetlands. A key accomplishment at SJRWMD was his management of a 760-acre treatment wetland designed to remove phosphorus from Lake Apopka.

Role gives Katie Leclerc career boost

NEW YORK

Playing a deaf teen on the ABC Family drama "Switched at Birth" has put Katie Leclerc on Hollywood's radar.

"I was acting for about 10 years before I got 'Switched,' the 25-year-old actress said in a recent interview. "It was all minor things, nothing of note. And when I went into the audition for 'Switched,' I was aware of the potential and that this is something that could really launch me."

Leclerc plays Daphne Vasquez, a teen who lost her hearing as a child after a bout with meningitis. Daphne was switched as a newborn in the hospital with another baby. She grew up with a single mother in a working-class neighborhood while the other child grew up in a wealthy family with two parents and a brother.

Since the premiere of "Switched at Birth" last year, Leclerc has landed roles on "The Big Bang Theory" and "CSI," a sci-fi film, the lead in an upcoming Hallmark Channel movie and a part on a Web series called "Synthesized Life."

She was familiar with American Sign Language before playing Daphne. Her sister has an inner ear disorder called Meniere's Disease that can cause hearing loss and vertigo. Leclerc learned ASL in high school and realized afterward that she also has Meniere's.

For "Switched," she wanted to make Daphne's speech realistic. She sat down with her sister, who teaches ASL, and mapped out an audiogram.

Florida Panther found dead

NAPLES — A Florida panther has been found dead from a vehicle strike in southwest Florida.

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission reports that the body of an uncollared male panther was found in Collier County Tuesday morning. A female panther — also struck and killed by a vehicle — was found in the same county early Saturday morning.

A total of 18 Florida panther deaths have been document this year, 10 from apparent vehicle strikes.

Insurance fund may still fall short

TALLAHASSEE — Florida still may not have enough money to pay off hurricane insurance claims if a big storm hits.

New claims paying estimates drawn up for a state advisory panel conclude that the state could fall $1.5 billion short of what's needed to cover its obligations.

The panel will review and approve the estimates Tuesday, which are similar to ones drawn up earlier this year.

Florida created a backstop for insurers after Hurricane Andrew slammed into the state nearly 20 years ago. But the fund has to borrow money if claims exceed its cash reserves.

The new estimates conclude the state could likely borrow up to $7 billion after a hurricane. The $7 billion would be paid back with a surcharge placed on every property and auto insurance policy.

Zimmerman asks for delay

ORLANDO — Neighborhood watch leader George Zimmerman will ask a Florida judge to delay his murder trial and request that Trayvon Martin's school records and information from the teen's social media accounts be released during two hearings next week.

Zimmerman's attorneys said in motions made public Monday that they expect to take between 50 and 75 depositions, and more time is needed to review all of the prosecution's evidence.

Romney looking to take Florida

Republican presidential candidate and former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney and his wife Ann campaign in Port St. Lucie on Sunday. Romney's campaign is working hard to chip away at President Barack Obama's advantage among early voters, and there are signs the effort is paying off in North Carolina and Florida, two competitive states that the Republican nominee can ill afford to lose. Obama is doing better in Iowa, another battleground state important to both candidates.

Justices deny inmate's appeal

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court said a judge properly denied a mental competency hearing for a convicted mass killer scheduled for execution on Oct. 16.

The justices unanimously denied an appeal Monday from John Errol Ferguson, 64.

Circuit Judge Nushin Sayfie of Miami acknowledged Ferguson "undoubtedly suffers from mental illness" but ruled he waited too long to ask for a clemency hearing.

Ferguson was convicted of killing six people in a 1977 drug-related, execution-style mass killing in Carol City, a Miami suburb. He also was convicted of killing two Hialeah teenagers on their way to a church meeting in 1978.

Missing juvenile found safe in Gainesville

From staff reports

A missing juvenile has been found and returned to her mother, according to a report from the Lake City Police Department.

Helena Magilene Pinkerton, 16, ran away from the Youth Interface facility in Lake City, a drug and alcohol rehabilitation and treatment facility, on Aug. 16, police said. She had not had contact with her family since.

Pinkerton was located at a Gainesville apartment leased by her 19-year-old boyfriend, Craig J. Kaczmarek, reports show.

LCPD Investigator David Greear coordinated Pinkerton's Oct. 5 recovery with the Gainesville Police Department and Faith Skeen, the girl's mother.

In earlier questioning by police, Kaczmarek reportedly said he "had no knowledge of the whereabouts of Ms. Pinkerton," authorities said. Charges are said to be pending against Kaczmarek for interfereing with the custody of a minor.

Books close today for Nov. 6 election

By TONY BRITT
tbritt@lakecityreporter.com

Voters who plan to participate in the November 6 general election should make sure they are properly registered with the elections office. Voter registration books close today.

According to information from the Columbia County Supervisor of Elections office reports, there is a total of 34,902 voters in Columbia County — 15,696 Democrats, 14,075 Republicans and 5,131 voters belonging to other political parties.

The voter registration book closing is a state mandate which requires political party changes be recorded as well as updated voter information for new voters to the area.

"Voters need to come in and get registered to vote if they want to vote because this is their last chance," said Liz P. Horne, Columbia County Supervisor of Elections. "When the books close, voters can no longer register to vote."

The book closing requirement also includes updates such as name and address changes. Voters who have moved from another county to Columbia County must also register with the supervisor of elections office if they want to take part in the upcoming election.

"If county-to-county voters wait to change their address on election day, they will probably have to vote a provisional ballot because we have to have proof they've actually moved here," Horne said.

The required proof includes identification with a change of address and an updated drivers license for their provisional ballot to count.

Horne is also suggesting people come to the elections office and update their signature of record if they plan to participate in the election through the early or absentee voting method.

"If voters haven't changed their signature in the last five - 10 years, we ask that they please come in update their signature because people's signatures do change," she said. "If voters are asking for an absentee ballot, the signature has to match what's on our file or the voter's absentee ballot will not count."

ONE OPINION

Iranian regime feeling pressure

Iran's currency, the rial, is falling fast, due in large part to economic sanctions but also to Iran's economic mismanagement and longstanding high unemployment. Riot police in Tehran met street demonstrations with violence last week.

"They have made their own government decisions, having nothing to do with the sanctions, that have had an impact on the economic conditions inside the country," Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said about Iran last week. She suggested sanctions could be lifted if the Iranian government would be willing to work with the international community "in a sincere manner."

Iran's rulers pose an existential threat to the West and to their own people. Iran leads the world in per capita executions and the execution of minors — as well as in the imprisonment of dissidents, which include religious minorities such as Christians and Baha'i. The regime has insisted its nuclear program is peaceful and geared toward generating electricity, but at the same time has threatened Israel with annihilation.

Nuclear experts have frequently said that Iran appears to be making significant progress in building a reactor with the ability to yield weapons-grade nuclear material. The regime is extremely belligerent; it supplies weapons to Syria's Bashir al-Assad and continues to supply its proxies, Hamas and Hezbollah.

Israeli finance minister Yuval Steinitz said in response to the plunging rial that the Iranian economy is "on the verge of collapse" and suggested sanctions are finally working.

The only thing that could absolutely prevent a nuclear Iran, short of war, is a revolution by the Iranian people.

Sanctions are an important tool of foreign policy, but they aren't always predictable as we'd like them to be.

Obama's popularity bubble appears far from bursting

Star Parker
parker@urbancure.org

Can there be political bubbles like financial bubbles?

Financial bubbles, inflated by hopes and dreams, burst when reality negates any possibility that those hopes and dreams will be realized. At that point, sky-high stock or bond or real estate prices come crashing down to earth.

Can the same thing happen in politics? Can a skilled politician, who has become popular with soaring rhetoric and promises, deflate when it starts becoming clear that he is not going to deliver?

Of course, I am thinking about our president.

Mitt Romney demonstrated in the first presidential debate that the considerable gap between President Barack Obama's rhetoric and his performance makes him a vulnerable candidate.

Yet, the president's bubble is far from bursting.

Romney, in the debate, was aggressive but deferential toward Obama. He was deferential because, despite the poor state of the country after almost four years of the Obama administration, Barack Obama is still a popular president.

Recent polling shows his approval remains around 50 percent. At similar stages in the presidencies of the last two presidents voted out after one term, George H.W. Bush and Jimmy Carter, their popularity ratings were in the 30s.

What accounts for Barack Obama's Teflon? How is it that, after almost four years of terrible economic results — high unemployment, sluggish growth, huge deficits and mounting national debt — that Obama's persona is not more tarnished?

Shouldn't today's economic facts on the ground be sufficient to puncture the Obama bubble?

One part of the answer to this puzzle is the changing demographics of the country.

The United States today is a nation that is much less white, much less married and less traditional than it once was. These are growing trends and each reflects in at least some large part constituencies with values supportive of Obama's world view — activist government and moral relativism.

What was once the exception to the rule in America — not being white, not being married, not having traditional views on family, sex and abortion — is now becoming the rule. And these constituencies are becoming sufficiently large to elect a president.

National Journal released a poll right before the debate showing Obama and Romney dead even nationwide — 47 percent each — among likely voters.

The poll shows Obama's white support at just 38 percent.

Obama was elected in 2008 with 43 percent of the white vote. It appears that he could be re-elected with even less.

In Gallup's polling of last week, Obama's approval among white voters stood at 39 percent.

He gets 38 percent approval among those who attend church weekly compared to 55 percent among those who attend church seldom or never.

And his approval among married voters is 40 percent compared to 57 percent among those not married.

According to data compiled by the Tax Foundation, the large majority of those now filing tax returns in the United States are single. In 1960, 65 percent of all tax filers were married and 35 percent single. In 2010, it was reversed — 61 percent of filers were single and 39 percent married.

When Obama pushes for taxing the rich, he's not just pitting those with the highest incomes against everyone else. He's pitting married against singles. Eight of 10 tax filers in the top 20 percent of earners are married. Most filers at the middle income and below are single.

It's really a cultural divide, one you can be sure that Obama is very aware of, that is keeping his bubble inflated.

The fact that Obama's support is still this strong despite his terrible record sends a clear warning to those looking for a new birth of American freedom.

Romney and Rep Paul Ryan should consider taking these constituencies on directly — blacks, Hispanics, singles — and explaining why America's future hinges on shutting down the government plantation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Errors abound in newspaper

To the Editor:

I applaud Mr. Johnny Starling for taking the time to address an issue (LAKE CITY REPORTER, Sept. 23, 2012) that has been concerning me for years. In his Letter to the Editor, Mr. Starling stated that, for the second time in two years, he is notifying THE REPORTER that there are often writing errors in their final product.

I don't feel a need to repeat the different types of mistakes (which Mr. Starling pointed out) that are regularly made in THE REPORTER. However, I would like to ADD (on top of the aforementioned errors) that there are other problems in the way the product is presented. On several occasions, I have been reading an in-depth article that suddenly just ran out. It was obvious to me that the article had been cut in order to fit the space that was considered to be available. This is just wrong! It is unfair to the original writer as well as being unfair to the reader.

On at least two occasions, I was reading "Dear Abby" in which was printed a question. Lo and behold, Abby's answer was not there! How disappointing!

Since the answers that were not printed would have been at the end of the column, I can only assume that this, too, was due to a problem of available space, but that does not make it right!

There are other issues I have with this newspaper. The main ones are the lack of writing creativity and the lack of investigative reporting. Perhaps you believe this is a matter of opinion.

I am a very long term subscriber to THE REPORTER. My yearly subscription fee comes due every August. Each August, for several years now, I seriously consider not renewing (the subscription). But THE REPORTER has become a habit, so I always wind up renewing. If it weren't for the local news that is reported, I would not.

Thank you for having the "Letters to the Editor" for expression and thank you, Mr. Johnny Starling, for caring. Is anyone listening?

Vicki Lang,
Lake City

ANOTHER VIEW

Jobs report fudged for sure

It says a lot when a government jobs report is so out of line with reality that no thoughtful person can take it seriously. At best the new unemployment number is a fluke; at worst it is the product of partisan hacks.

The Department of Labor reported Friday that total nonfarm payroll employment increased by a net 114,000 in September. This poor showing — it reflects a 28,000 drop from the previous month — should have resulted in unemployment increasing by a tenth of a percent. Instead, it dropped by 0.3 percent to 7.8 percent. Call that Chicago-style math.

The official jobless rate is now down to around where it was when Mr. Obama took office, though still higher than what the White House promised it would be after blowing more than a trillion on stimulus programs. Former General Electric CEO Jack Welch was among the first to call shenanigans on the dramatically favorable unemployment figure, echoing a general skepticism from all but the most credulous of Mr. Obama's defenders.

Labor Secretary Hilda Solis said she was "insulted" by charges that there was something fishy going on. She then betrayed her own ignorance of the facts by saying the 86,000 jobs that the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) discovered in the last two months were private-sector jobs. They were actually government hires. Private-sector employment fell last month by a net of 5,000. Manufacturing jobs were down 16,000.

Mrs. Solis threw her underlings under the bus, saying "the information that I received is given to me by our professional, civil service staff in the BLS." Perhaps these are the same BLS economists whom the Washington Free Beacon reports have contributed thousands to the Obama campaign.

This fudged figure allowed Mr. Obama to evade the sort of negative headlines that George H.W. Bush suffered in October 1992 when unemployment was 7.7 percent. Bill Clinton called it the worst economic record of any president in 50 years. Reuters described the 1992 report as "the final nail in the coffin" for George H.W. Bush. The same news service hailed Mr. Obama's 7.8 percent number as "providing a boost to his re-election bid." The liberal press seems to have mislaid its coffin nails.

There's good reason to question the latest fantasy figure. The U-6 unemployment rate, which factors out low-paying, part-time jobs, remains lodged at 14.7 percent. The percentage of long-term unemployed is four times what it was five years ago.

There are still 10 million fewer jobs than at the start of the recession. The number of new weekly jobless claims is up. The number of people on unemployment benefits and food stamps is at record levels. People know in their gut that things aren't getting better.

On main street America, "for lease" signs have replaced grand opening signs. Many malls are vacant and warehouses empty. Middle-class Americans see shrinking paychecks and a rising cost of living. A single massaged, distorted and misleading government datum doesn't change any of that.

No. 8: Opponents say real aim is to make taxpayers pay private tuition costs to protect the status quo — the hundreds of secular programs run by religious organizations that receive public dollars, including two school voucher programs. Like all amendments, it requires 60 percent voter approval to pass.

"It would be a pre-emptive strike to make sure no activist judge would rule that a Catholic hospital, for example, could not receive funds from Medicaid," said Archbishop Thomas Wenski, the Catholic leader in South Florida and a strong advocate of the amendment. "Do we have reason to be afraid of this? Yes."

Opponents say the fact those programs have gone on for decades is evidence they are in no danger. Courts have permitted public funding as long as it is not used for proselytizing. They also argue the new guarantee of funding for religious organizations would open the door to taxpayer support of groups with anti-Semitic, racist and other extremist views.

The opponents are an eclectic group that includes the Florida Education Association, which is the state public teachers union; the American Civil Liberties Union; the Anti-Defamation League; the League of Women Voters; Americans United for the Separation of Church and State; and the National Council of Jewish Women. They say Amendment 8 has been devised to intentionally mislead voters and reignite the voucher debate.

"The whole effort is built on trying to fool the voters," said Alan Stonecipher of the Vote No on 8 Committee. "It doesn't really have anything to do with religious freedom at all. It's a smoke screen and it's not true. They are perfectly safe under not only the state constitution but the U.S. Constitution. They're not endangered at all."

A voucher program championed by Gov. Jeb Bush that let students from failing public schools attend private schools at taxpayer expense was struck down by the state Supreme Court in 2006. Wenski calls that decision an injustice, but he and other backers insist Amendment 8 has nothing to do with the issue. They note the section of the state Constitution they're seeking to rewrite, the so-called Blaine Amendment, was not the reason the court used to strike down vouchers.

The 1st District Court of Appeal, though, did cite the funding ban in an earlier ruling that also found Bush's voucher program unconstitutional. The Supreme Court, instead, based its ruling on another provision requiring a uniform system of public schools.

Ever since, voucher supporters have been trying to get both constitutional provisions changed with no luck until the Republican-led Florida Legislature agreed to put Amendment 8 on the ballot. Two other voucher programs for low-income and disabled children were not covered by the ruling and haven't been challenged.

The Blaine Amendment has been in the Florida Constitution since 1885 and similar language is enshrined in several dozen other state constitutions.

Backers such as Wenski also point to a lawsuit still winding through the courts seeking to cut public money to prison programs run by religious groups. They have been accused of using the funds to advance their religious beliefs. Religious leaders nevertheless say they fear a ruling that would cut state funding to nursing homes, drug treatment facilities and all sorts of other programs run by faith-based organizations.

"If there's passage of Amendment 8, we don't have to worry about this in the future," said Jim Frankowiak, whose Citizens for Religious Freedom and Non-Discrimination organization is running the "Yes on 8" campaign. "We're not proselytizing. These are secular programs, social service programs. Don't cut us out, don't hurt us, don't prevent us from pursuing these things just because we're religious."

Barry Lynn, executive director of Americans United for Separation of Church and State, calls Amendment 8 "clever" and "devious" and says voucher supporters see it as part of a long fight in establishing a voucher program and erasing boundaries between public and religious life.

"It is a beginning volley in an effort to eliminate church-state provisions in 36 other state constitutions. It very much does open the door," Lynn said. "They know it will have an effect."

PASTOR: Helped with flood relief during Tropical Storm Debby in June

Wheeler said when he first heard about the award, he immediately thought about Debby and then about Tompkins, who organized volunteers as the rain was still coming down.

Wheeler said he thinks this is the first time an area resident has been nominated or made it to the finals. "It's very prestigious," he said.

Money from the contest will be used by United Way for long-term recovery efforts, Wheeler said.

Although competing with 14 others, Tompkins said he thinks Lake City has a good shot because of our tight-knit community. "I think that will work in our advantage," he said.

"My plan primarily is to try to leverage Facebook and social media," Tompkins said. Engaging different networks of friends and community members to get out the vote is especially fitting because Tompkins said social media is where the storm cleanup project first began.

During Debby, people began messaging him, asking for assistance from the floodwaters, Tompkins said.

Tompkins said he helped gather and direct volunteers from his church and others as they removed carpet and drywall from flooded homes for weeks after the storm.

Volunteers made rescues in canoes and brought supplies to people unable to pass flooded roads.

Tompkins said he doesn't deserve all the credit as about 20 people from Church On The Way helped, plus crews from other churches.

"I could not have done anything without the teams of people with me," he said. Many volunteers took time off from work to help their neighbors in need.

Wheeler said residents should vote every day and get friends involved too. "The number of votes we get will win the day for us," he said.

"It was a team effort and we need it to be a team effort now if we are going to win," Tompkins said.

People 13 years and older can vote once per day until the contest ends at www.safeco.com.

Building woes plague Okla. charter schools

Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY — Enrollment in charter schools is on the rise in Oklahoma, but the high cost of buildings and facilities is holding back the schools' potential, supporters told lawmakers Monday.

A joint meeting of House and Senate education committees examined the issue and looked for ways state lawmakers might be able to help find a funding source for charter school facilities.

Charter schools receive state funding on a per-pupil basis but are operated privately by an independent board and are free from many state mandates. The schools do not, however, receive any property tax funding and are unable to issue bonds to pay for buildings or other educational materials.

As a result, charter schools are forced to subsidize the cost of rent for their buildings with their state funding.

Ky. board approves restraint regulation

FRANKFORT, Ky. — The state Board of Education on Monday approved some changes to a new statewide policy regarding when and how students may be restrained in public schools.

Board members unanimously backed the amended the amendment, which prohibits physical restraint of students except when a child's behavior poses imminent danger of serious physical harm. It also requires that school staff receive training to help them identify situations considered serious enough for restraint and learn positive reinforcement methods.

Responding to concerns, a state Education Department attorney said the rule would not prevent teachers from breaking up a fight because most times a student fight is going to have that imminent threat there."

First playoff steps

Fort White, Red Devils rest during district-play week.

By TIM KIRBY
tkirby@lakecityreporter.com

FORT WHITE — Fort White High and Williston High got a week off to rest up before their football game hosted by the Red Devils on Friday. Kickoff is 7:30 p.m.

Williston (2-3) plays as an independent, but the rest of the opponents for Fort White (3-2) — except District 3-3A partner Trinity Catholic High — were engaged in district duties.

Trinity Catholic, which will visit Fort White on Nov. 2 to decide the district, won its homecoming game over Monsignor Pace High last week, 38-14.

Monsignor Pace pulled to within three points in the fourth quarter, then Trinity's Jamonte Jones responded with a 90-yard kickoff return for a touchdown. Demonta Blunt and Joe Sandstrom had touchdown runs and Trinity's defense had two fumble returns for touchdowns.

The Celtics (3-3) host Vanguard High this week in a Marion County matchup.

Fernandina Beach High, Fort White's homecoming opponent on Oct. 19, was shellacked by Yulee High, 35-0, in District 2-4A.

Yulee star running back Derrick Henry ran for 190 yards and three touchdowns. He set a national record for most consecutive 100-yard rushing games.

The Pirates (2-4, 0-1) host Mantanzas High this week.

Rickards High, Fort White's road opponent on Oct. 26, lost to Wakulla High, 35-7, in a District 2-5A game.

Rickards' only score came on a 75-yard kickoff return by Stephen Denmark.

The Raiders (2-3, 0-1) play host FAMU School this week.

Wakulla ran its record to 6-0, 1-0. Dillon Norman rushed for 129 yards with touchdown runs of 14, 20 and 18 yards. Demetrius Lindsay ran for 119 yards including a 14-yard touchdown. Caleb Stephens had a 23-yard touchdown pass to Mikal Cromartie.

Wakulla has the week off before a district game at Suwannee High.

Santa Fe High, which will host Fort White on Nov. 9, lost a District 5-5A home game against Dunnellon High, 39-12. Dunnellon snapped a four-game losing streak.

Santa Fe (0-6, 0-2) has an open date before bringing in North Marion High for a district game.

Tigers' district sorting it out

Oakleaf, Orange Park join CHS with victories.

By BRANDON FINLEY
bfinley@lakecityreporter.com

While Columbia High took control of the district race on a week that included two other District 3-6A matchups, the Gainesville High Hurricanes remained undefeated with a 56-7 win against Citrus High.

Raphael Webb scored three touchdowns in the first half and ran for 140 yards in the game while Tony James added another 72 on the ground.

Quarterback Mark Cato threw for 115 yards and a touchdown.

Oakleaf 33, Leon 13

Oakleaf High continued to show it's a player in the district with a 33-13 win against Leon High. Austin Chipoletti hit Robert Mims on an 11-yard touchdown pass after a blocked punt to put the Knights up 20-10. The Knights recovered a fumble on the following drive and added another score to begin the rout.

Orange Park 49, Middleburg 14

Gillislee, Elam earn SEC honors

Gators' defensive back has to share with LSU's Minter.

Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Florida tailback Mike Gillislee is the Southeastern Conference offensive player of the week.

Gators defensive back Matt Elam and LSU linebacker Kevin Minter shared defensive honors on Monday.

Gillislee rushed for 146 yards and two second-half touchdowns in Florida's 14-6 win over LSU.

Elam forced a fumble late in the fourth quarter, and led the Gators with seven solo tackles — one for a loss.

Minter had a school record 17 solo tackles.

South Carolina return man Ace Sanders and Vanderbilt punter Richard Kent shared special teams honors.

Sanders scored on a 70-yard punt return against Georgia.

Kent had a net average of 44.9 yards on six punts against Missouri.

Mississippi State linebacker Bernardrick McKinney and Texas A&M quarterback Johnny Manziel are co-freshmen of the week.

Cardinals draw even

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Carlos Beltran hit the last two of St. Louis' four homers and the Cardinals chased an ineffective Jordan Zimmermann early in a 12-4 rout of the Washington Nationals on Monday night that tied their NL division series at one game apiece

Allen Craig and Daniel Descalso also went deep to help the Cardinals build a big lead and compensate for a two-inning start from Jaime Garcia.

Columbia High wrestling hosts Ken Chertow camp

By TIM KIRBY
tkirby@lakecityreporter.com

FORT WHITE — Columbia High wrestling hosted a Ken Chertow Weekend Warrior instructional camp on Saturday and Sunday.

The camp was conducted by Matt Dunn, wrestling assistant at Belmont Abbey College.

"We had 24 kids who pre-registered and 40 showed up," Columbia High assistant coach Kevin Warner said. "That is fairly good for this area — a lot better than we thought we would do."

Warner was head coach at Lake City Middle School for three years and has been an assistant to Andrew Porter at CHS for two years. Allen Worley also is an assistant for the Tigers.

Jason Langston is head coach for the Falcons and Warner said the feeder programs are "desperately" in need of a head coach for Richardson Middle School.

"We are trying to bring wrestling back in Lake City," coach Warner said. "That is why we are doing the camp. Ken Chertow was an Olympian in 1988 and has been doing camps for years. To bring something like this to Lake City is big. We hope to do it every year."

Returning CHS wrestlers Cole Schreiber, Kaleb Warner, Daniel Devers and Josh Walker participated in the camp.

Schreiber, a senior, has won district and region the last two years and placed sixth and third at state. He is a veteran of wrestling camps and spoke favorably of the Weekend Warrior camp at CHS.

"They introduced new techniques," Schreiber said. "The camp was not as intense as others, but some of the techniques were different."

As an example, Schreiber demonstrated the "Dunn slide" takedown move.

"Cole is the hardest working kid on the team," coach Warner said.

Devers and Warner were each one match away from making state last year, something they plan to remedy in 2013.

"I want to be in the top 3 at state," Devers said. "I plan to run through everybody and take them out on the way to my goal. Our conditioning is intense and really hard. We have bumped it up a lot in the last few years with a whole lot of running and push-ups and bleachers."

Warner also is shooting for the top 3 at state.

"Last year I was a freshman and kind of choked at region," Warner said. "I don't plan on doing that this year. I am looking to beat anybody that steps on the mat. We do weight lifting, but with lighter weight and more repetitions. It gives you longer and leaner muscles and helps with your speed."

Columbia wrestlers are conditioning this month and practice will begin in November.

DEAR ABBY

Wife's surprise travel plans throw husband for a loop

DEAR ABBY: Many women like surprises. Most men don't. My wife can't understand that. She recently "surprised" me by informing me she had made non-refundable arrangements for us to visit a foreign country. She said I had once mentioned that I'd like to see it. I have no recollection of saying so, but it's possible.

Abby, I am physically barely able to endure such travel. My balance is bad and walking is extremely painful for my legs and hips. I wish she would have discussed her plan with me in advance.

Now that we're locked in, I'll go. But if it becomes too arduous, I'll tell her that we're going to have to leave the group and return home immediately. Abby, can you comment? – GOT AN UNWELCOME SURPRISE

DEAR SURPRISE: What your wife did was wrong; she's well aware of your physical limitations. Foreign travel isn't cheap. I think your method of handling the situation is a good one, particularly if no accommodations can be made for your disability by the company arranging the trip.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with a beautiful woman. She's divorced with two kids, 15 and 17. I believe the 15-year-old boy is feeling threatened by my presence. He has become very "clingy" to his mother and tries to get between us.

I love both of her kids and treat them like my own. I know it's a delicate situation and I want to do the right thing. The disrespect he shows me is becoming an issue, and I know his mother won't do anything about it. I have mentioned it a few times and nothing has changed.

I know she would be crushed if I ended this relationship, because recently she asked me to move in by Christmas. Marriage has been discussed prior to or shortly thereafter. Please help. – DISRESPECTED IN OHIO

DEAR DISRESPECTED: Do not move in with this woman unless she first agrees to premarital counseling with you to ensure that you're both on the same page regarding parenting, and then family counseling with her children. As much as you care about them, you are not their parent. Because your ladyfriend appears to ignore problems when they arise, without counseling nothing will change. Be warned.

** ** **

DEAR ABBY: Our son and daughter-in-law have invited us for Thanksgiving in another state.

Recently my daughter-in-law mentioned that we may all be going to some sort of buffet instead of making the dinner at their home. We would also end up paying for the meal.

I would much rather cook for them than eat and pay for a Thanksgiving meal at a buffet or restaurant. How can we get this across without hurting anyone's feelings? – NO BUFFET FOR US IN LEAVENWORTH, KAN.

DEAR NO BUFFET: Tell them you would be glad to prepare the dinner, and if your daughter-in-law would help you, the task wouldn't be onerous for either of you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Personal problems will affect your work and productivity. Keep your personal and professional lives separate, and avoid making a rash decision that will alter the dynamics of your family and your household. Protect and nurture what you have. ★★

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't let disappointment slow you down. Use your ingenuity and adaptability to move forward with or without the people you thought you could count on for help. Get out, interact and make new friends. Surround yourself with people who share your goals. ★★★★

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You can make a difference if you share your knowledge and experience with others. Friendship is on the rise, and the opportunity to get involved personally or professionally with someone who shares your concerns will lead to a relationship. ★★★

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Size up your situation and prepare to take action or expect to be criticized for not doing your part. Emotions will be close to the surface, and problems with older individuals or those you live with will develop if you aren't patient. ★★★

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Interacting with others will lead to new endeavors and friendships. What you learn now will help you make wiser choices regarding the people you associate with and the types of indulgences that tempt you. Talks will lead to romance and opportunities. ★★★★

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emotional decisions will end up being costly. Overspending on something you don't really need must be avoided. Focus on what you can learn from people who come from different backgrounds and you will find a way to get what you want. ★★

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You have to work diligently if you are going to maintain your position and be in the running to advance. Don't share your ideas or someone will surpass you and take credit for what you are trying to do. Make home improvements. ★★

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Home improvements, a move or investments will all turn out well for you. There is money to be made, but also to lose if you don't take what you receive and put it in a safe place. "Easy come, easy go" will lead nowhere. ★★★★★

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't hesitate to answer questions. Keeping your thoughts out in the open will lead to better relationships with others and greater possibilities with regard to love, money and prospects for the future. Consistency will be required. ★★★

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You'll be at a loss if you let someone take control. Be creative and find a way to call the shots when it comes to the way you want things done at home or with regard to finances. Speak your mind compassionately. ★★★

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Gains and losses are both prevalent. Think before you make a move that is costly. A love relationship may be exciting, but it mustn't be allowed to put you into the poorhouse. Make plans that don't break the bank. ★★★

Georgia Tech fires defensive coordinator

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Georgia Tech has fired defensive coordinator Al Groh, who was in his third season.

Head coach Paul Johnson announced the move Monday, two days after the Yellow Jackets (2-4) lost 47-31 to Clemson.

The previous week, Georgia Tech gave up 49 points in an embarrassing loss to Middle Tennessee.

back under head coach Danny Green to knock off Middleburg High, 49-14.

Orange Park High improved to 1-1 in the district and 2-3 overall.

Columbia will travel to take on the 1-5 Broncos after a bye week

Lincoln 45, Buchholz 7

Jordan Nichols and the Lincoln High Trojans had little trouble in the Gainesville-Tallahassee rivalry as Lincoln downed Buchholz High, 45-7.

Nichols had two interceptions and scored on offense to help pace the Trojans in the contest.

Lincoln improved to 5-0 on the season while the Bobcats fell to 2-4 without senior running back Kenny Scott in the lineup due to concussion-like symptoms.

Godby 54, Suwannee 0

Suwannee High came into the game 2-2 and looking to prove something against undefeated Godby High. They may have proven the wrong thing in a 54-0 loss.

Cougars' running back Khalid Thomas led Godby as it improved to 5-0.

Elsewhere...

Baker County High cruised to a 36-0 victory against Paxon High and remains undefeated since its opening-game loss to the Tigers ... Darren McNair ran for 127 yards including a 47-yard run to help Vanguard High bounce back with a 42-3 win against Lake Weir High.
