Sandusky gets 30 years, denies guilt

Proclaims innocence in rambling speech before sentencing.

By MARK SCOLFORO

BELLEFONTE, Pa. — In what sounded at times like a locker room pep talk, Jerry Sandusky rambled in his red prison suit about being the underdog in the fourth quarter, about forgiveness, about dogs and about the movie "Seabiscuit."

With his accusers seated behind him in the courtroom, he denied committing "disgusting acts" against children and instead painted himself as the victim.

And then, after he had said his piece, a judge sentenced him to 30 to 60 years in prison Tuesday, all but ensuring the 68-year-old Sandusky will spend the rest of his life behind bars for the child sexual abuse scandal that brought disgrace to Penn State and triggered the downfall of his former boss, football coach Joe Paterno.

He leaves behind a trail of human and legal wreckage that could take years for the university to clear away.

"The tragedy of this crime is that it's a story of betrayal. The most obvious aspect is your betrayal of 10 children," Judge John Cleland said after a hearing in which three of the men Sandusky was convicted of molesting as boys confronted him face to face and told of the lasting pain he had inflicted.

The judge said he expects Sandusky to die in prison.

In a disjointed, 15-minute address before he learned his sentence, Sandusky said: "In my heart I did not do these alleged disgusting acts."

Committee presents findings on feasibility of $28 million project.

A fact-finding committee tasked with looking at the feasibility of constructing an events center in Columbia County unveiled a proposal Tuesday night to build a 265,000-square-foot, multi-purpose facility for $28.2 million.

An estimated $23.6 million would be financed through bonds for at least 30 years, with $4.6 million coming from the sale of the current fairgrounds property. The debt service portion of the project's cost would come from funds from companies that were given tax abatements, where the money they owed the county would go back into the event center project.

County officials say they are continuing to digest information from the meeting and did not vote in favor of adding the proposal to the next board agenda.

Preliminary estimates from SMG, an entertainment and convention venue management company, indicated the operating costs for the first year of the event center would be in the red about $240,810, an estimated $58,712 in the red in its second year and $117,576 in the black during its third year.

The fact-finding committee made its presentation to a group of elected officials, residents, chamber of commerce and Columbia County Resources representatives Tuesday night. About a 100 people attended the meeting, which lasted about 90 minutes, at the Columbia County Resources entertainment building.

The meeting was held to provide attendees with the information necessary to decide if it's feasible to construct an events

'Felony lane gang' strikes here

Thefts reported throughout the state, beyond.

A group of thieves known by authorities across the state as "The Felony Lane Gang" are operating in Lake City, according to police. The group burglarized a local vehicle resulting in more than $6,000 worth of fraudulent purchases to the owner's checking and credit card accounts in less than 48 hours, authorities said.

Suspect 2

According to Lake City Police Department reports, the incident occurred about 11:20 a.m. on Aug. 30 when Lisa Huchingson parked her vehicle in the front driveway of the Country Kids Daycare and went inside. While she was inside, two witnesses said they saw a black, four-door vehicle pull up along-

More child care cuts eyed

Working poor would feel brunt of state reduction

By LAURA HAMPSON
lhampson@lakecityreporter.com

As the state grapples with growing needs and a stagnant budget, North Florida is losing money that helps the working poor send their children to child care programs.

This year the Early Learning Coalition of Florida's Gateway lost 27 percent of its budget for subsidized child care in Columbia, Hamilton, Lafayette, Suwannee and Union counties.

Over six years, the area would lose $1.8 million, according to a plan designed to reallocate money based on demographic changes across the state. That represents about 28 percent of the 2011-12 local budget for subsidized child care. State officials met Monday in Lake City with child care providers and area early learning coalitions to discuss the changes.

A state auditor general report found the formula that had been used for a decade to distribute more than $628 million in School Readiness Funding to counties was not equitable, as required by state law.

The School Readiness Program was created in 1999 by the state legislature to prepare children for school and enable parents to work and become financially self-sufficient. The program targets children of low-income families, children at risk for abuse or neglect and children with disabilities.

The coalition would be able to serve about 400 fewer children after the cuts, said Dr. Thomas Logan, executive director of the Early Learning Coalition of Florida's Gateway. Currently, the coalition sends about 1,600 children in the five-county to day care with a budget of $6.8 million.

Under the cuts, the area risks losing child care providers who might be unable to stay in business without the subsidies, he said. For example, Union County has one large private child care provider. "Without that center, Union County

'Peanuts' headed to big-screen

LOS ANGELES

Charlie Brown and his "Peanuts" pals are coming to the big-screen. Charles Schulz' beloved characters are starring in their own animated film scheduled to hit theaters Nov. 25, 2015. That year marks the 65th anniversary of the "Peanuts" comic strip and the 50th anniversary of "A Charlie Brown Christmas," the first of the gang's many TV specials.

The as-yet-untitled film will be produced by 20th Century Fox and its Blue Sky Studios animation unit, the outfit behind the "Ice Age" flicks and such cartoon hits as "Dr. Seuss' Horton Hears a Who!"

Schulz' son Craig and grandson Bryan co-wrote the screenplay with Cornelius Uliano, and the three also are producing the film.

Steve Martino, co-director of "Horton Hears a Who" and "Ice Age: Continental Drift," will direct the "Peanuts" film.

Drake — a huge Aaliyah fan — has announced that he is working on a posthumous album of Aaliyah music, and he's already released the song "Enough Said" featuring himself and the singer-dancer, who was killed in a plane crash in 2001. Some who were close to Aaliyah have not expressed support for the album. Missy Elliott and Timbaland, who produced most of Aaliyah's music, are not involved, and DMX, who co-starred with Aaliyah in the movie "Romeo Must Die" and recorded a song with her, has been critical of the project.

Hazing defendant pleads no contest

ORLANDO — The first of more than a dozen defendants charged in the hazing death of a Florida A&M drum major entered a plea of no contest Tuesday to third-degree felony hazing.

A judge didn't impose a conviction on 23-year-old Brian Jones, of Parrish, who switched his plea from not guilty. Jones isn't admitting or denying guilt in the no-contest plea.

Jones refused to comment after the hearing in an Orlando courtroom. Sentencing is set for Oct. 22.

In agreeing to the deal, Circuit Judge Marc Lubet said Jones' role in the hazing death of Robert Champion was relatively minimal.

"It is my understanding ... that there is no testimony that he at any time beat or hit Mr. Champion. Is that correct? Lubet asked Jones' attorney, Alisia Adamson.

"That is correct," she said.

Champion died last November after being beaten by fellow band members during a hazing ritual aboard a bus parked outside an Orlando hotel following a football game. An autopsy concluded Champion suffered blunt trauma blows to his body and died from shock caused by severe bleeding.

Ten other FAMU band members face felony hazing charges, while two others face misdemeanor counts for alleged roles in Champion's hazing. Their trials are set for early next year.

Champion's death revealed a culture of hazing at Florida A&M and other schools. It also contributed to the abrupt resignation of the univer-

5 teens accused of attacking two

HOLIDAY — Police said five Pasco County teens face multiple charges in an attack on their neighbors over a home-grown marijuana plant.

According to police, three boys and two girls broke into a Holiday home Friday evening and dragged a woman out of the home. When a man ran out to help her, police said they beat him with a baseball bat and metal pipe.

Pasco Sheriff's spokesman Doug Tobin said the teens believed the man had stolen their pot plant.

The Tampa Bay Times reported the man suffered severe damage to his face, including possible fractures.

The teens, ages 15 to 17, were charged with aggravated burglary with a deadly weapon and attempted burglary.

The Times said police did not find the marijuana plant.

Top GOP officials won't back party

TALLAHASSEE — Florida Attorney General Pam Bondi is refusing to back her own party when it comes to whether or not three state Supreme Court justices deserve a new term.

The Republican Party of Florida is officially urging its members to vote against three justices who will be on the November ballot.

Bondi, the state's chief legal officer, said Tuesday that she has cases before the high court, and she won't say if she agrees with the decision by party leaders.

State government panel eyes raising college tuition rates

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A higher education task force appointed by Gov. Rick Scott may recommend tuition increases and varying tuition rates based on a student's year in school or academic field — ideas similar to those in a bill recently vetoed by Scott.

The panel is scheduled to hold a webinar Friday to discuss those and other suggestions before finalizing its recommendations to the Republican governor and GOP-controlled Legislature.

The working draft of the Blue Ribbon Task Force on State Higher Education notes that Florida's tuition rates remain among the lowest in the nation and includes comparisons with universities in other states.

For example, annual tuition is $6,403 at Florida State University and $6,170 at the University of Florida, the state's two leading research schools. That compares to $7,694 at the University of North Carolina, $10,037 at Ohio State University and $16,006 at Pennsylvania State University.

Tuition at Florida's then-11 active universities increased by 22 percent, or $202.2 million, from 2007-08 through 2009-10, according to the draft. Over that same three-year period, though, state support dropped by 19 percent, or $443.3 million, for a net loss of $241.1 million.

"If the foregoing conditions persist, it should be understood by all interested parties that Florida's research universities and, to a lesser extent, all of the institutions are vulnerable to (faculty) 'raids,'..."

CENTER: Sites on either side of Interstate 75 near Ellisville considered

center in Columbia County.

The meeting included financial plans for funding the building, an estimated cost of the building, an architect's rendering of the site, employment possibilities, potential locations and an explanation of where the data was collected.

The presentation was developed by the fact-finding committee, which worked on the project for at least 16 months, after visiting other event and convention centers out of state and in other parts of Florida.

The presentation also noted the project hinged on a partnership with Columbia County and Columbia County Resources.

Dale Williams, county manager, told the audience that a memorandum of understanding between Columbia County Resources and the county was in the works, where the land of Columbia County Resources would transfer to the county and then be available for sale and/or development.

The Columbia County Resources campus is 82.56 acres. Based on the fair market value established by the county Property Appraiser's Office, the land is listed at $4.6 million, or $56,216 per acre. The committee's presentation indicated that 100 percent of the land sale proceeds could be allocated to the Events Center.

The top priority the fact-finding committee emphasized was acquiring a large acreage with interstate frontage. Officials believe interstate frontage is crucial to a successful center and creates a presence and awareness of the facility. A campus setting with multiple buildings would allow for multiple events simultaneously. Parking is a major concern, and the plan called for 1,500 to 2,000 parking spaces.

The second priority was that the facilities need to be designed for multi-purpose events and not be limited to conferences or conventions.

Priority three — event facilities are seldom self-supporting and will require financial assistance. However, most events should be structured to cover their costs. The best management projections only provided 75 to 80 percent return on operating expenses. The most successful facilities used "fairs" to generate a large portion of their annual revenue.

The proposed site would be a minimum of 200 acres with interstate frontage; would have access to public utilities and adequate ingress and egress; and the building would be multi-purpose in design and contain approximately 250,000 square feet.

The project would require a strong governance plan, and the project must be done in cooperation with Columbia County Resources, the owners and operators of the Columbia County fairgrounds.

The proposal is based on new jobs being created on the fairgrounds site, which eventually will be developed into commercial buildings, hopefully bringing in at least 1,760 jobs with three hotels, five restaurants and two merchandise supercenters.

Following the meeting, county commissioners fielded questions and comments.

Ed Harris, a Lake City resident, voiced his concerns about the county commission potentially having the last word on the proposal.

"I think a project of this magnitude should be voted on by the general public and not passed by a general committee," he said.

He also questioned who owned the land that was being considered.

Officials were also questioned why Ellisville was being considered as a potential location for the events center, since it is at least 10 miles away from town.

Commissioner Jody DuPree said that land near the U.S. 90 and State Road 47 interchanges was too expensive and noted officials were looking at two potential sites in Ellisville, one on the east side of the Interstate 75 and the other on the west side.

GANG: Woman, two men sought for identity theft, other property crimes

cash were stolen.

The two witnesses went inside to notify Huchingson of the theft, at which time she notified her bank. The bank let Huchingson know that someone had just used her credit card to purchase gas at the S&S Food Store #5 at 704 S. Marion Ave.

Huchingson immediately closed her accounts and filed a report with LCPD.

During her initial on-scene investigation, Officer Connie Hightower went to S&S #5 and found the victim's purse in the trash can next to the gas pumps. However, Huchingson's driver's license, Social Security card and two credit cards were missing.

Investigator Tammy Cox of the department's Criminal Investigation Division learned that the thieves had not only used the card at the S&S but also committed several other crimes in surrounding counties and Valdosta, Ga.

Craig Strickland, LCPD assistant public information officer, said the timeline is a quick one for the thieves as they stole the purse about 11:20 a.m. and got gas from the S&S station at 11:27.

Less than an hour later, at 12:12 p.m., the suspects attempted to use the debit card at an ATM in Live Oak and were declined.

In a similar case from Gainesville, Tiffany Pridgen's vehicle was burglarized and her purse and checkbook were stolen on the same day at 10:23 a.m., where her checkbook was stolen.

After the attempt to use Huchingson's ATM card failed, the suspects wrote a check from Pridgen's stolen checkbook to Huchingson and cashed the check for $1,750 at 12:13 p.m. in Live Oak. The trio then drove to Madison and at 1:07 p.m. wrote another check for $1,850 and got it cashed in Huchingson's name.

The crew reportedly turned around and went back to Live Oak where the three suspects went into the Walmart store on U.S. 129 and opened a charge account in Huchingson's name, using her stolen ID.

About 4 p.m., the three suspects charged more than $2,000 to the card in electronic merchandise and loaded the goods into the trunk of a black, four-door vehicle.

The next day, Aug. 31, the white female suspect went to the Gainesville airport and rented a white, 2013 Chevy Malibu, with license plate number F78-45N from Hertz. The vehicle had not been returned or located and has been entered into a criminal database as stolen by the Gainesville Police Department.

Later that day the suspects opened a checking account at a bank in Gainesville in Huchingson's name.

The suspects are also accused of using a check belonging to Huchingson to buy merchandise totaling $421 at the Walmart store in Valdosta, Ga.

The suspects are described as a heavy-set white woman with dark hair and average height. The first black male suspect has short hair, a beard and mustache. The second black male suspect appears to be shorter and has a thin mustache. The original vehicle is possibly a black Chrysler 200 sedan with tinted windows.

Strickland said Huchingson was targeted by the thieves.

"They're targeting women frequenting daycares, gyms, church parking lots, where they would normally leave their purses in the vehicle — often on the seat or floor board in plain sight," he said.

He said local authorities believe the "Felony Lane Gang" was only operating in Lake City for that one incident.

Because of the similarities to other cases reported around the state, it is believed the suspects are part of the "Felony Lane Gang."

The gang is accused of operating in several parts of Florida, Arkansas, Missouri, South Carolina, Nebraska, Tennessee, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Authorities across the state used the label due to the thieves' use of a banks' outer drive-through lanes to pass fraudulent checks. Those lanes often don't have good camera coverage and the cashiers can't see into the vehicles well. Members of the group often commit burglaries and steal IDs, checkbooks and credit cards, then write checks on the accounts for thousands of dollars and charge up the cards until they are shut down by the victim's bank.

Reports said the thieves often travel with a woman and two men and the woman usually wears a wig to suit the identity theft victim's hair color and other disguises.

"As we approach the holiday season and as our city is attracting more and more people, Lake City Police Department is encouraging our citizens to secure their vehicles and ensure valuable items are not left lying in open view in their vehicles," Strickland said. "Remember to lock before you leave. This will greatly decrease the crime of opportunity."

CUTS: Many families in area would need to choose between jobs and care

would have very little to fall back on," he said.

Logan said small rural counties without alternative resources should receive special consideration in the new funding formula. Some coalitions receive funding from other sources, such as county commissions, but the Gateway coalition depends entirely on the state for money.

"I think our child care situation is more fragile than it is in other counties," Logan said.

Many families could not afford to work without out a subsidy for child care, which costs about $90 a week for a toddler, Logan said.

A family of four can not make more than $30,000 and must be working to be eligible, he said.

At least half of the centers that receive state funding are in Columbia County, Logan said. With less students able to go to the centers, less teachers would be needed. "It'll be noticed in Columbia County," he said.

Counties near Orlando and Tampa have seen an in need and population, while North Florida and some areas in South Florida are seeing a decline, Logan said.

Florida's Office of Early Learning will submit a final formula for allocation to the legislature next spring.

"Our goal this evening is really to hear from you," said Mel Jurado, director of the state early learning office, while meeting with child care providers at Florida Gateway College. The stakeholder workshop was the third of nine happening across the state this month.

"We are just as important as Miami, Fort Lauderdale or Pensacola," said Janice Summers, owner of A Plus Learning Center and the Busy Bee Playschools, during the meeting.

"Every day on a waiting list they are falling behind," she said of children waiting to enter the program.

Summers said this was the first time the state had offered a meeting with child care providers and she thought it was helpful for voicing her concerns.

During the workshop, providers worked in small groups to define equity, discuss the fair allocation of state funding and discuss how the state early learning office could do better.

Gordon Tremaine, CEO of the Early Learning Coalition of Alachua County, said there isn't a fair way to spread child care money throughout the state because there just isn't enough money to provide for every child in need. Tremaine said residents can't ask for a tax break and expect social services not to be cut. "Every child should get an equal share at a quality education," he said.

In a response to the auditor general report, the state early learning office estimated that an additional $907 million would be required to provide for existing unmet needs across the state.

John Burn, Gateway coalition chairman, said during the meeting that nothing about the situation was equitable. Florida ranks 45th among how much states spend on children, he said.

"Ya'll are demanding too much and supplying too little," said Angela Turbeville, owner of Happy Hearts Child Care Centers in Lake City, to Jurado.

Rates paid to providers for subsidized child care haven't increased in years while reporting and other requirements have increased. "My rates don't cover the cost of care," Turbeville said.

Vote early and often in this race

Plenty of folks pitched in to help in the aftermath of Tropical Storm Debby, and not just the professionals.

Churches, civic groups and just plain folks did everything they could and then some.

It's hard to single out any one individual for special praise, considering the community-wide commitment of so many. But one local pastor in particular merits notice.

Dale Tompkins of the Church on the Way was everywhere during Debby and afterward.

Tompkins and his flock made it their jobs to bring relief to the hundreds here who suddenly found themselves in need.

Now he's in a position to help again. This time, he needs our help to make it happen.

Tompkins is one of 15 people nationwide participating in a contest to bring $10,000 to the local chapter of United Way.

How do we make it happen?

Just go to safeco.com and click on "Safeco Community Hero" on the home page. You'll be redirected to the ballot where you can recognize Tompkins for the hero he surely is.

The contest runs through Oct. 29. Whoever gets the most votes wins.

But unlike most political bouts, you can cast your ballot every day in this one.

Please be sure you do.

Every one of us can come out a winner.

Deal would erode BP fines

How do you get the likes of Sen. Bill Nelson and Rep. Steve Southerland on the same side of an issue? Threaten to touch Florida's share of money from the BP oil spill settlement.

After months of political wrangling, Congress in June finally passed the RESTORE Act (which President Obama signed into law in July). It allocates 80 percent of Clean Water Act fines from the 2010 Deepwater Horizon oil spill to Florida and the four other Gulf states. The act directs that the fines returned to those states be used for ecological and economic recovery efforts.

Florida law ensures that the Panhandle counties most affected by the spill — Escambia, Santa Rosa, Okaloosa, Walton, Bay, Gulf, Franklin and Wakulla — receive three-fourths of the Sunshine State's share of the money.

According to the funding formula, that could mean tens of millions of dollars for each county.

Recently, reports swirled that the Justice Department was negotiating a deal with BP to settle civil and criminal charges resulting from the oil spill.

It would give the federal government more control over the billions of dollars in fines paid by BP, shifting that authority away from the affected states, and it would divert a greater portion of those fines toward a Natural Resource Damage Assessment (NRDA), reducing the civil penalties for violating the Clean Water Act.

NRDA fines have stricter federal controls on them, whereas CWA fines are subject to the RESTORE Act and are more flexible.

The NRDA fines are also tax-deductible. That means BP would be able write off hundreds of millions of dollars in penalties, thus easing the financial pain it should feel for operating in such a reckless and destructive manner.

Put simply, that deal would be outrageous. It's a slap in the face to every resident of the Gulf Coast — and a slap on the wrist to BP.

Gulf Coast members of the House and Senate, including Florida's 2nd District Rep. Southerland, R-Panama City, and 1st District Rep. Jeff Miller, R-Chumuckla, recently sent a letter to Attorney General Eric Holder expressing "in the strongest possible terms" their opposition to any settlement agreement that disproportionately applies penalties to NRDA over the CWA.

Sen. Nelson, a Democrat, wrote to President Barack Obama: "I urge you to hold BP fully accountable for the harm it caused and send the bulk of the fines to the Gulf as directed by the RESTORE Act."

Anything less would be an injustice to Gulf Coast communities."

The Gulf Coast thought it had finally cleaned up this mess. Now here comes Washington muddying the waters.

Holder needs to back off and let the RESTORE Act work.

Chilling blast from the past

During this presidential election year, as Republicans seek to oust President Barack Obama from the White House, Americans are getting a chilling blast from the past. The right to vote, which sets the United States apart from many other nations worldwide, is under attack as it has not been in nearly 50 years.

Using the ruse of wanting to assure that everyone who votes is eligible to vote, several state legislatures controlled by Republicans have passed strict voter identification laws requiring the show of a photo. This requirement may seem innocuous, but its purpose is to suppress voting among racial and ethnic minorities, especially Hispanics and African-Americans, and other groups who tend to vote Democratic.

It is voter suppression redux. Having come of age during the 1960s in the South, I am familiar with the relationship between voting and disenfranchisement. I knew that the right to vote, along with actually casting a ballot, was essential to full citizenship.

In 1963, during the height of the voting rights movement, Donald Matthews and James Prothro, professors at the University of North Carolina, wrote a prescient assessment of blacks and the vote in an article for the American Political Science Review:

"The vote is widely considered the Southern Negro's most important weapon in his struggle for full citizenship and social and economic equality. It is argued that 'political rights pave the way for all others.' Once Negroes in the South vote in substantial numbers, white politicians will prove responsive to the desires of the Negro community. Also, federal action on voting will be met with less resistance from the white South — and Southerners in Congress — than action involving schools, jobs, or housing."

As a child, I did not know any blacks who voted. We could not vote. I recognized an ugly irony up close: Several of my relatives who had served as Marines and soldiers during World War II and the Korean conflict could not vote after returning to U.S. soil. They were not alone. More than 500,000 blacks fought, and many died, as members of racially segregated units during World War II. More than 600,000 served during the Korean conflict. Many died.

To keep blacks out of voting booths back then, whites used practices that included poll taxes, proof of residency, physical intimidation and even murder. The most effective tool, though, was the literacy test.

In 1964, during my first college summer break, I joined the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and traveled throughout the South with fellow students as a volunteer for the federally endorsed Voter Education Project.

Our job was to help register black voters. We had our clients memorize as much of their state constitutions as they could.

We would drive the brave ones downtown where white registrars would ask constitution-related questions. Even many highly educated white citizens could not answer these questions. Of course, whites did not have to take the tests. Even after quoting entire sections of the constitutions verbatim, most blacks were deemed illiterate and were rejected.

In some towns, we were warned to be outside the city limits by sundown. These places were appropriately named "sundown towns." In one Mississippi town, a sign read: "NIGGERS! Don't Let the Sun Set on Your Behinds in This Town." Being smart college kids, we were gone long before sunset.

My scariest experience came in Alabama, when a sheriff's deputy and a mob raided the tables we had set under a magnolia tree on an all-black college campus. The deputy massaged his holstered pistol as he cursed and hurled epithets. Every man in the mob carried either a baseball bat or an ax handle.

The mob battered our tables and chairs and ripped up our documents. Our leader was clubbed to the ground when he protested. We put him in the bed of our pickup and drove to a black church where we hid until the next morning.

Our next stop was Selma.

I was a changed young man after returning to college that fall. I had learned that the vote was a right brave people would die for. I learned, too, that taking away the vote is the most effective way to disenfranchise entire groups.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

No wars for profit, Mr. Romney

To the Editor:

Mr. Romney, heard your foreign policy speech today. You read a speech written by the same War Profiteers that controlled the Bush administration. It is what got us into almost bankruptcy in the first place!

I'm sure you are sending your five sons to enlist into this future army. You want boots on the ground don't you? Please stop the fear promotions!

Even with our defense budget cutbacks to stop wasteful spending and WAR FOR PROFIT, the U.S.A. budget is still more than the rest of the world put together!

So, what I see — as a GOLD STAR DAD — is that nothing has changed. You are a war monger for never ending wars for profit!

Leave the Middle East people alone. They are having their own revolutions for freedom — which President Obama helped spark by giving them a little respect! That's all they wanted! And knowing he would not invade them for their oil while they did away with tyranny in their countries!

Sir, voting for you is like voting for Bush all over again! Stop obstructing jobs for our young people.

They are not going to fight the Military Industrial Complex wars anymore!

PS: Romney, tell your puppet masters that the American people don't want to police the world anymore!

Not when there are 40 million in poverty and 25 million going to bed hungry over night. Your $500,000 bombs mean that American's suffer, their children die in wars and you just prolong the greening of America with renewable energy!

Please stop scaring people into giving up their freedoms and jobs just so you — internationalist with no country — can profit from never-ending war!

We want peace ... now!

Fred McGill,
Fort White

To the Editor:

This is in reference to the proposed change in Amendment No. 8 in the upcoming election.

The title is "Religious Freedom" That is incorrect. It should say "Religious Bondage."

As proposed, it binds taxpayers to finance private schools, and is unconstitutional.

The rewording tries to cover up the real purpose by saying no person may be denied a government benefit.

That is not the question. The question is: Is this benefit constitutional? No.

Congress shall make NO laws (good or bad) in respect to the establishment of religion, or the free exercise thereof.

The amendment is about financing private school by taxpayers.

This amendment is designed to make it constitutional in Florida for the "voucher system." Vote no.

School board prepares for transition

By LAURA HAMPSON
lhampson@lakecityreporter.com

Columbia County School Board members agreed Tuesday night to hold their annual reorganizational meeting Nov. 20 at 6:30 p.m. before the regular meeting at 7 p.m. Members agreed to cancel their Nov. 27 meeting as the two new board members will have state training that day and cannot attend the meeting.

In other matters:
■ A parent of a Shining Star Academy of the Arts students asked the board members to consider allowing the charter school to enroll students up to their senior year in the future.

Superintendent Michael

Millikin said during the meeting Tuesday night the charter school would have to change its contract with the district, but a formal meeting can be arranged to discuss the process.

■ Michael Friedman of Ring Power Lift Trucks said the company was excited to support the Columbia High School Global Logistics Academy during a brief presentation to the board.

Last week Ring Power donated use of a $20,000 forklift for the school year.

Friedman said teaching students how to operate forklifts and work in a warehouse is important "so when they get out of school they can be a valuable assets to the workforce."

Education board seeking budget increase of 4.4%

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press

The State Board of Education voted Tuesday to seek a $643 million, or 4.4 percent, spending increase next year for Florida's public schools and colleges.

The board during its meeting in Orlando also approved other legislative requests and a new five-year strategic plan that envisions minority students narrowing — but not fully closing — their achievement gap with white students.

The total $15.6 billion spending request for the budget year beginning July 1, 2013, includes $9.88 billion in basic funding for kindergarten through 12th grade. That would be $322 million, or 3.37 percent, more than is currently being spent. The increase for community and state colleges would be $100.5 million, or 9.43 percent, for a total of $1.17 billion.

The overall 4.4 percent increase equals the state's estimated growth in general revenue next year.

Lawmakers last year approved a $1 billion increase for public schools, but that wasn't enough to offset prior cuts.

Fifteen percent of the new money the board is seeking would be needed just to keep up with enrollment growth. Other proposed new spending includes $442 million for K-12 technology improvements, $63.6 million for charter school capital outlay and $64.8 million in matching funds for private donations to the colleges.

Board member John Padgett questioned why the achievement goals for all children, regardless of racial or ethnic background, shouldn't be the same.

Board member Roberto "Bobby" Martinez said that would be "a heck of a statement" but noted that black and Hispanic children "are starting at a different place."

"We have to be realistic," added board member Kathleen Shanahan.

SANDUSKY: Says conviction was a conspiracy

ferences, the former assistant coach spoke of being locked up in a jail cell, subjected to outbursts from fellow inmates, reading inspirational books and trying to find a purpose in his fate. His voice cracked as he talked about missing his loved ones, including his wife, Dottie, who was in the gallery.

"Hopefully we can get better as a result of our hardship and suffering, that somehow, some way, something good will come out of this," Sandusky said.

He also spoke of instances in which he helped children and did good works in the community, adding: "I've forgiven, I've been forgiven. I've comforted others, I've been comforted. I've been kissed by dogs, I've been bit by dogs. I've conformed, I've also been different. I've been me. I've been loved, I've been hated."

in June of 45 counts, found guilty of raping or fondling boys he had met through the acclaimed youth charity he founded, The Second Mile. He plans to appeal, arguing among other things that his defense was not given enough time to prepare for trial after his arrest last November.

Among the victims who spoke in court Tuesday was a young man who said he was 11 when Sandusky groped him in a shower in

Lady Tigers bounce back

Columbia defeats Stanton Prep in district contest.

By BRANDON FINLEY
 bfinley@lakecityreporter.com

Columbia High picked up where it left off after dropping its first district game against St. Augustine on Friday.

The Lady Tigers needed four sets but came out on top of the visiting Stanton Prep Lady Devils.

Columbia earned a 25-7, 26-24, 20-25, 25-20 win on its home court.

Although it was a district match, it didn't count for the Lady Tigers' record due to only being allowed to count the first game played against each district opponent.

Annie Milton had 11-consecutive service points in the first game to help the Lady Tigers cruise to victory and helped shut down Stanton Prep in the second game.

Stanton Prep was leading as late as 19-17 and after Milton earned a kill at 24-24, she closed the game out with two service points.

Kelbie Ronsonet led the Lady Tigers in kills with nine in the match and added three blocks.

Jara Courson had seven kills and Jessie Bates led the team with 22 assists.

Hannah Baker had eight assists and Milton finished with five kills, four aces and three blocks in the match.

Columbia will host Atlantic Coast High at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday. Although its a district opponent, the game will not count against the district record.

Fort White High holds its own in tough first half.

By TIM KIRBY
 tkirby@lakecityreporter.com

FORT WHITE — Fort White High football had its open date last week. The Indians are 3-2 at the midpoint of the season, with a schedule that is definitely top-loaded.

First-half opponents Wakulla High and Union County High are both undefeated and ranked third and second in their respective classes. Newberry High is 4-2 and Taylor County High is 2-3. Only Hamilton County High, at 0-5, could be considered a pushover.

The five teams Fort White has played have a winning percentage of .696 when not counting their performance against the Indians.

The difficulty tapers off in the second half. The winning percentage for teams down the stretch is .321 and only District 3-3A opponent Trinity Catholic High (3-3) is at .500.

For the first half, Fort White is averaging 27 points per game while giving up 18 (134-89). The two top 3 opponents accounted for 65 points.

"We knew we were playing some teams that were pretty good," Fort White head coach Demetric Jackson said. "We thought we could take care of Hamilton, but the other games could have gone either way. To prepare ourselves for a playoff run, you need to play teams that will challenge you and that is what we tried to do. It will benefit us in the second half."

Fort White leads opponents in overall offensive yardage 1,529-1,195.

The Indians have rushed for 683 yards on 158 carries for a 4.3 average. Opponents are 205-965 (4.7), which includes running juggernauts Newberry, Wakulla and Union County.

Fort White is way ahead in passing yardage, 846-230. The Indians are 54 of 94 (.574) with five interceptions and nine touchdown passes. Opponents are 14 of 51 (.275) with four interceptions.

Fort White leads in first downs, 55-52, and has been penalized 39 times for 301 yards to the opponents' 59 times for 439 yards. The Indians have fumbled 15 times and lost 10; opponents have fumbled 12 times and lost eight.

Quarterback Andrew Baker has the passing statistics mentioned above. His touchdown passes have

Hard-luck night for Richardson

Baker County Middle School wins 14-6.

By TIM KIRBY
 tkirby@lakecityreporter.com

Richardson Middle School football continued its hard-luck run with a 14-6 home loss to Baker County Middle School on Tuesday.

Richardson got on the board first with a touchdown at 2:22 of the first quarter.

The Wolves stopped the Bobcats on a fourth-down try on the opening drive and took over at the Richardson 45.

Kamario Bell ran for 12 yards and a first down at the Baker County 43. On fourth-and-5, Bell took a pitch around the right side. He broke a tackle at the line of scrimmage and ran through two defenders at the 20-yard line to complete a 38-yard scoring play. The PAT run came up short.

Richardson forced a three-and-out punt, but returned the favor.

On the Wolves' punt Baker County broke through and blocked it, then picked up the ball and ran 30 yards for the tying points.

Later in the second quarter, the Wolves got interceptions from Michael Dougherty — negated by a blow-to-the-head penalty — and Ronnie Collins to stop the Bobcats.

Richardson moved into Baker County territory on an 18-yard run by Bell, but came up short on a fourth-and-1.

The Wolves lost a couple of fumbles in the second half and one led to the winning touchdown by the Bobcats.

Richardson (1-4) has lost each of its four games by one touchdown. The Wolves travel to Fort White for a 6 p.m. game on Oct. 16.

Without Strasburg, Nats turn to Jackson for Game 3

By HOWARD FENDRICH
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Stephen Strasburg joined his teammates for an off-day workout at Nationals Park on Tuesday, red socks pulled nearly up to his knees while tossing baseballs in the outfield a day before the first postseason game in the nation's capital in 79 years.

That's about the extent of activity these days for Strasburg as the Washington Nationals carry on without their acknowledged ace, shut down a month ago.

The NL East champions' opponent right now, the St. Louis Cardinals, are very much counting on their returning ace, Chris Carpenter, who has pitched only 17 innings all year. Carpenter will be on the mound Wednesday afternoon for Game 3 of the NL division series, facing Washington's Edwin Jackson. The best-of-five series is tied at 1.

The 37-year-old Carpenter had surgery in July for a nerve problem that left his throwing arm and much of the right side of his body numb. He came back on Sept. 21, and is 0-2 with a 3.71 ERA in three starts.

"Everybody knows that it wasn't supposed to happen," Carpenter said about the prospect of pitching at all in 2012. "I put a lot of work into it, to hopefully have this opportunity. I didn't know if I was going to have this opportunity or not — and fortunately, I do."

He is 9-2 with a 3.05 ERA in the postseason for his career.

That includes going 4-0 with a 3.25 ERA last year while helping St. Louis win the World Series; he beat the Texas Rangers in Game 7 for the title.

"Him winning the World Series last year or whenever isn't going to do anything for him tomorrow," Nationals third baseman Ryan Zimmerman said. "He's a great pitcher, and nobody's taking anything away from him in that aspect, but tomorrow we're going to go out there with our plan and try and do what we've done all year."

Which was good enough to own the best record in the major leagues at 98-64.

Strasburg played a key role up until his final start, a three-inning outing on Sept. 7. The No. 1 overall pick in the 2009 amateur draft went 15-6 with a 3.16 ERA with 197 strikeouts in 159 1-3 innings.

General manager Mike Rizzo made quite clear all season that his prized right-hander's innings would be limited in his first full season back from Sept. 3, 2010, reconstructive elbow surgery.

"I bet the kid has to be going crazy, being in the situation where he is," said Cardinals right fielder Carlos Beltran, who hit two of his team's four homers Monday in Game 2. "He pitched all regular season, and right now he's not available for them."

Unable to put Strasburg on the mound now, the Nationals used playoff rookies Gio Gonzalez and Jordan Zimmermann in Games 1 and 2.

"The starting pitching, we showed a little inexperience there," manager Davey Johnson said. "I mean, not going right after hitters — and also not pitching."

Washington now needs to rebound from that 12-4 loss in Game 2 at St. Louis, although the Nationals prefer to focus on having taken one of their two road games at the outset of the series.

Going up against Carpenter will be his former teammate Jackson, the only starting pitcher on Washington's roster who ever had participated in a playoff game before this season. He was a member of the Cardinals' championship club in 2011, and his overall postseason mark is 1-1 with a 4.91 ERA.

He went 10-11 this season, but Washington's record in Jackson's starts was only 12-19.

"It's high expectations on me. I have high expectations on myself, as well," the right-hander said. "This is one of those games where you go out and you try to lead by example."

That's certainly the sort of thing the Cardinals expect from Carpenter, who won the 2005 Cy Young Award and helped St. Louis win a title the following year.

Goodell re-issues bounty suspensions

By BRETT MARTEL Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell upheld the suspensions of Jonathan Vilma and Will Smith on Tuesday for their role in the New Orleans Saints bounty scandal and reduced penalties for Scott Fujita and Anthony Hargrove. Vilma will sit out the entire season and Smith's punishment stands at four games. Hargrove, a free agent defensive lineman, will face a two-game suspension once he signs with a team. He originally was hit with eight games, but that was reduced to seven with five games already served. Fujita, who plays for Cleveland, will now miss only one game instead of three. The players were implicated in what the NFL said was a bounty pool run by former Saints defensive coordinator Gregg Williams and paid improper cash bonuses for hits that injured opponents. The players have acknowledged a pool but denied they intended to injure anyone. Goodell's new ruling comes about a month after an appeal panel created by the NFL's labor agreement vacated the original suspensions on technical grounds during Week 1 of the regular season and informed Goodell that he needed to clarify the reasons for the punishment. The panel asked Goodell to clarify to extent to which his ruling involved conduct detrimental to the league, which he has the sole authority to handle, and salary cap violations resulting from bonus payments, which would have to be ruled upon by an arbitrator other than the commissioner. Only Smith and Fujita have played this season. Vilma has been recovering from offseason knee surgery and hopes to return in two weeks when the Saints play at Tampa Bay.

Still no Tebow for Jets

By DENNIS WASZAK Jr. Associated Press

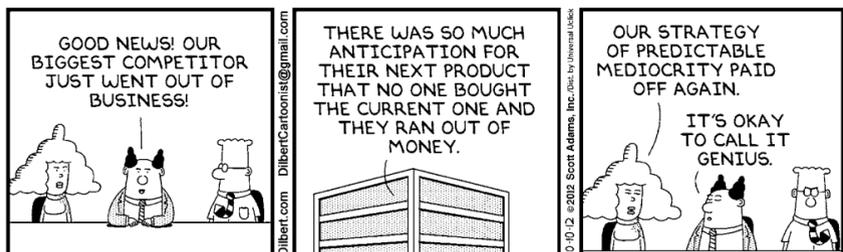

NEW YORK — Mark Sanchez is staying put as the New York Jets' starting quarterback. Despite struggling again in a 23-17 loss to the Houston Texans, Sanchez is still Rex Ryan's guy — despite many fans and media suggesting a switch to Tim Tebow could help the Jets (2-3) get back on track. "Yeah, no question," the Jets coach said Tuesday without hesitation when asked if Sanchez remains the team's starter. Sanchez has completed less than 50 percent of his passes in four straight games, and his 48.4 completion percentage ranks last in the NFL. He also has an unsightly 66.6 quarterback rating, which is 31st in the league — ahead of only Kansas City's Matt Cassel (66.2) and Cleveland rookie Brandon Weeden

(64.5). Ryan wouldn't speculate on whether he might pull Sanchez for Tebow if the starter continues to struggle and the Jets' two-game losing streak increases. "I'm not going to get into the what-ifs and all that," Ryan said. "We're not preparing to lose, that's for sure. We're thinking we're going to win, starting this week." New York is home again Sunday against Andrew Luck and the Indianapolis Colts, who stunned the Green Bay Packers 30-27. Another loss could really ramp up the Tebow Time chatter. Ryan thought Sanchez "played pretty good" Monday night, especially considering that he was without top receiver Antonio Holmes, out for the season with a foot injury, rookie wide receiver Stephen Hill and tight end Dustin Keller — both out with hamstring injuries. The Jets coach cited three dropped passes and four tips as skewing Sanchez's final stats: 14 of 31 for 230 yards, a touchdown and two interceptions. "I thought he was accurate the football," Ryan said. But, he also had some poorly timed mishaps. With the Jets trailing 14-7 and driving before halftime, Sanchez had a pass tipped by J.J. Watt that went off Jeremy Kerley to Brice McCain, who ran back the interception 86 yards before Kerley caught him at the New York 9. Houston then kicked a field goal to take a 10-point advantage. Sanchez had a chance to lead the Jets on a potential winning drive with 3 minutes left, but a pass to Jeff Cumberland tipped off the tight end's hands and right to Texans cornerback Kareem Jackson to end the comeback bid.

DEAR ABBY

Teenage sons' group showers prove puzzling to their dad

Abigail Van Buren www.dearabby.com

DEAR ABBY: I am the single dad of two teenage boys (17 and 18) who are both in high school. I am wondering about something they do with their friends. The boys take showers in large groups. When they come in from running or sports, or if a group is spending the night, they shower in groups of two, three or four. It's not like we have a huge shower - it's normal size.

I know there's nothing sexual going on because I can hear them talking and joking around. When I asked the boys about this, they looked at me like I had two heads. They said it was just a social thing and the same as showering together after football in the school gym.

They also "air dry" after showers by walking around in towels, sometimes watching TV or goofing off for hours while in their towels. When going out, they get naked in the bathroom, fixing their hair, shaving, brushing their teeth, etc. It's like a big "nude fest" with them and their friends.

While I'm glad they are comfortable with their bodies and who they are, it still bothers me somewhat. Am I being a prude in thinking this is unusual or inappropri-

ate? - STUMPED IN KENTUCKY

ate? - STUMPED IN KENTUCKY

DEAR STUMPED: I see nothing inappropriate about what your sons and their friends are doing. Nor do I want to label you a prude. You are just not as comfortable in your skin as your sons and their "jock" friends are. Is it possible that they take after their mother?

DEAR ABBY: My best friend and I do everything together and I love her, so when she showed up at the gym in "booty shorts," I didn't say a word, even though they don't flatter her one bit.

Heck, there's a mirror on every wall, so she must have liked what she saw, and it's none of my business.

When she wore them to a school sporting event, my husband accused me of being a "bad friend" for not telling her that her rear view was getting the wrong kind of attention. Some of the other parents in the bleachers were snickering. I guess if the situation were reversed, I'd want my best friend to give me a hint, but I'm not exactly sure how to do it. Am I wrong to just keep my mouth shut and mind my own business? - ANONYMOUS IN A SMALL TOWN

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Allow me to provide a couple of hints. First, tell your friend when you are alone and can't be overheard, which will spare her unnecessary embarrassment.

Second, ask, "When you bought those shorts, did you get a look at yourself from the back?"

If she says no, provide her with a mirror so she can look over her shoulder at herself. Then explain that at the school event, some of the other parents were staring, and not too kindly.

You will be doing her a favor to speak up. That is what friendship is all about. And if she's smart, she'll thank you.
