By TONY BRITT
tbritt@lakecityreporter.com

County officials increased the budget for the Westside Community Center by more than 25 percent Thursday night by approving change orders for an additional $127,458 for services and materials.

The additional funding was unanimously approved by commissioners. Commissioner Rusty DePratter did not attend the meeting.

The decision to allow the change order was made following a presentation by Dale Williams, county manager, who addressed the board and gave a line item review of each of the new budgeted items which totaled $127,458. County staff recommended the change orders be adopted and they were added to the meeting's agenda as a late addendum.

Is Florida ready for a replay of 2000?

Both parties prep for possible nightmare election scenarios.

By CHARLES BABINGTON
Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — Here in a county that knows a thing or two about Election Day meltdowns, both parties are fretting over what might go seriously wrong before, during or just after the Nov. 6 presidential election.

"More than 50 percent of the provisional ballots are thrown in the trash in this state," Florida state Rep. Mark Pafford told about 80 retirees who gathered for last week's meeting of the Golden Lakes Democratic Club.

That's only a slight exaggeration — 48 percent of the provisional ballots cast in Florida in 2008 were rejected. And Pafford's warning underscores anxiety in Florida and other states about legal challenges, ballot problems or bizarre outcomes that could bedevil a race that seems likely to be close — conceivably as close as the 2000 contest that people still quarrel about.

Merely the mention of that election unsettles people in Palm Beach County. The county's poorly designed "butterfly ballot" confused thousands of voters, arguably costing Democrat Al Gore the state, and thereby the presidency.

Gore won the national popular vote by more than a half-million ballots. But George W. Bush became president after the Supreme Court decided, 5-4, to halt further Florida recounts, more than a month after Election Day. Bush carried the state by 537 votes, enough for an Electoral College tie.

"Pregnant chad" entered the political lexicon. And Americans got a jolting reminder of the Founding Fathers' complex recipe for indirectly electing presidents.

Even if everything goes smoothly, it's conceivable the nation will awaken to a major shock in three weeks: an Electoral College tie between President Barack Obama and Republican Mitt Romney. That would throw the decision to the House of Representatives, currently controlled by Republicans but up for grabs in this election.

A 269-269 Electoral College tie is unlikely but far from impossible. It could result, for instance, if Romney wins all the competitive states except Ohio, Wisconsin and New Hampshire.

Four U.S. elections, including 2000, saw the presidency go to the person who finished second in the popular vote. There has never been an Electoral College tie. However, the U.S. House handed the 1824 election to John Quincy Adams after he finished second — in both the popular vote and the Electoral College

Aldean to play at Fenway Park

BOSTON

Country music star Jason Aldean will be making history at one of baseball's most historic sites. Aldean will be the first country music star to play a concert at Fenway Park, the iconic home of the Boston Red Sox. The July 13 appearance will be the initial stop on his first stadium tour. Aldean made the announcement Thursday in the shadow of the Green Monster with an assist from Red Sox President/CEO Larry Lucchino and members of the team who made a celebratory clip for the singer that played on Fenway's video board.

"Being the first country music artist to ever come here and headline a show is amazing," Aldean said. "It's going to be a fun night. Over the last several years, my career, especially the touring side of that, has been pretty amazing. It's been growing. So thank you guys for having us."

The Georgia native released his fifth album, "Night Train," this week. That title is an apt metaphor for his career, which has been steaming along on a steep trajectory. About the only thing he hadn't attained yet was a stadium tour, and he's crossing that goal off the list.

Williams campaigns for medical marijuana

Williams

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Talk show host Montel Williams says opponents of an Arkansas ballot measure to legalize medical marijuana are resorting to "racist" imagery with a television ad featuring an African-American actor portraying a drug dealer.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Country singer Jason Aldean will play a concert at Fenway Park, the iconic home of the Boston Red Sox, on July 13, 2013. He will be the first country music star to play a concert at the famous ballpark.

Williams appeared Thursday at the state Capitol alongside members of Arkansans for Compassionate Care, which is campaigning for the legalization measure on the November ballot. He criticized an ad aired by a coalition of conservative groups that opposes the proposal.

Williams, who lives in New York, suffers from multiple sclerosis. He says he uses medical marijuana to treat symptoms of his condition.

The Arkansas measure would allow patients with qualifying conditions to buy marijuana from nonprofit dispensaries with a doctor's recommendation. If approved, Arkansas would become the first Southern state to legalize medical marijuana.

Springsteen explains his support for Obama

NEW YORK — After vowing not to get involved in this year's presidential election, Bruce Springsteen is supporting Barack Obama again, saying he believes Obama is the best person to lead America.

The Boss posted a message on his website Wednesday night endorsing Obama's re-election, saying he had been "getting asked a lot about where I stand." Springsteen is making his debut on the 2012 campaign trail Thursday at events in Cleveland and Ames, Iowa, with former President Bill Clinton.

Springsteen supported Obama in 2008. In his letter, he called Obama's four years in office "a really rough ride" because of the "economic chaos" from President George W. Bush's administration.

Court vacates death sentence

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court has vacated the death sentence of a man convicted of killing a woman in Lake County.

The justices unanimously upheld Eric Simmons' first-degree murder conviction on Thursday for the 2001 slaying but ordered a new sentencing hearing by a 5-2 vote.

The majority ruled Simmons' lawyers failed to fully investigate and present mitigating evidence. That includes his low intelligence, a brain injury suffered as a child and substance abuse.

Simmons also received two life sentences for kidnapping and sexual battery.

Deborah Tressler was beaten and stabbed. Her body was found in a wooded area in Sorrento.

Justices Charles Canady and Ricky Polston dissented on the sentencing issue. They noted Simmons and his family asked lawyers not present anything embarrassing or bad about him.

Sign wavers could disappear

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — The days of Lady Liberty waving a torch or chickens clucking at passing cars could come to an end soon on St. Petersburg streets.

The Tampa Bay Times reported that the city council on Thursday will discuss amending rules for signs and flags along roadways. The proposed law would require human billboards to stand still while hawking tax services, pizza joints and pawn shops.

No more spinning, twirling and swinging. Sign wavers also could no longer boogie on risers, stilts, podiums, vehicles or roofs.

City staffers believe sign wavers create safety issues for drivers, but proponents say they provide inexpensive advertising and jobs paying up to $15 an hour.

The St. Petersburg Area Chamber of Commerce opposes the proposal.

Prescribed burn planned at park

HOBE SOUND — Visitors to a state park in Hobe Sound likely will see smoke from a prescribed burn this week.

The Florida Department of Environmental Protection reports that Jonathan Dickinson State Park will conduct a prescribed burn today and Saturday, weather permitting. Less than 10 acres of pine flatwoods will be burned.

State fire officials said prescribed burns mimic natural fire cycles to restore healthy forests and natural communities, reduce undergrowth that accumulates over time and decreases the potential for wildfire. Burned lands experience an increase in native wildflowers, birds and other wildlife.

Boy, 2, dies in septic tank

STARKE — Deputies in Bradford County say a 2-year-old boy apparently fell through the broken lid of a septic tank and died.

News accounts said the boy was found dead inside the tank after going missing from his Starke home Wednesday evening.

Sheriff's Capt. Carol Starling said family members called 911 after searching for Aiden Wyatt Howard on their own for about an hour.

Officials said the boy must have slipped through a hole in the concrete covering the septic tank.

Officer resigns after DUI arrest

PINELLAS PARK — Officials said a Pinellas Park police officer has resigned days after he was accused of rear-ending a vehicle while driving drunk.

The Tampa Bay Times reported St. Petersburg police arrested Matthew Patsch Oct. 11 on misdemeanor DUI charges.

Pinellas Park police spokesman Brian Unmisig said Patsch resigned Monday. After the arrest, Patsch was placed on administrative leave with pay pending an investigation.

St. Petersburg police said a motorist told them he was stopped at a light when a vehicle driven by Patsch hit his Toyota Tundra. Police said Patsch told everyone at the scene he was a police officer but denied that he'd been drinking.

Police reports show Patsch's blood-alcohol level was measured at 0.189 percent and 0.192 — more than twice the legal limit in Florida.

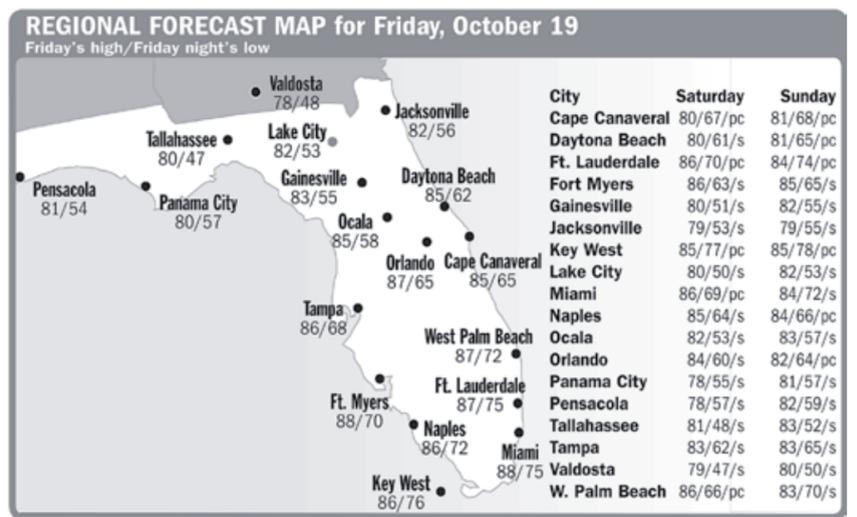

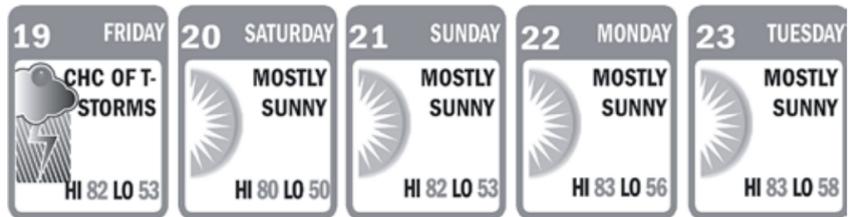

Gov. troubled by firings at insurer

TALLAHASSEE — Florida Gov. Rick Scott says it's troubling that Florida's largest property insurer recently fired four employees responsible for investigating wrongdoing.

Scott on Thursday wrote a letter to the president of Citizens Property Insurance raising questions about the decision to terminate the employees working in the Office of Corporate Integrity.

Gunman kills 3, self in salon shooting

By KYLE HIGHTOWER and SUZETTE LABOY

Associated Press

CASSELBERRY — A gunman opened fire at a central Florida beauty salon Thursday, killing three women and wounding the manager, who had asked for a restraining order against him, police said. After the rampage, the gunman went to a friend's house and killed himself.

Authorities said the shooting was part of a domestic dispute, but did not elaborate. The gunman, identified by police as Bradford Baumet, was served with a domestic violence injunction Oct. 9 and scheduled to be in court Thursday for a hearing with the salon's manager, Marcia Santiago. Their relationship was not immediately clear.

About two hours before the hearing, Baumet, 36, entered Las Dominicanas M & M Salon in Casselberry and started shooting, police spokeswoman Sara Brady said. Two women hid inside a bathroom and one ran outside through a back door.

Santiago, 44, was in serious condition at a hospital. She was shot five times, according to her ex-husband, William Ayala, who spoke to her sister. Ayala said he had a daughter with Santiago and the girl lived with him.

"I heard he was violent and had a criminal record," he told the AP.

Records in Florida and Rhode Island show Baumet has been previously arrested for domestic assault, felony assault, stalking, burglary and drug possession.

Police identified two other victims as 52-year-old Gladys Cabrera, a customer and 29-year-old Noelia Gonzalez-Brito, a salon employee. Authorities did not immediately identify the fourth woman who died.

Shortly after the shooting, about two dozen mourners gathered near the salon, located in a strip mall. Police taped off the parking lot and officers stood guard outside the business.

Yellow paper covered up some of the glass windows. A Dominican Republic flag hung in the storefront along with a neon sign that read: Hair Cut. Color. Perm.

Calls to the salon's owner also went unanswered.

Florida man charged dinosaur fossils case

SUZETTE LABOY
Associated Press

MIAMI — A Floridian was charged Wednesday with smuggling dinosaur fossils into the United States, including a nearly complete Tyrannosaurus Bataar skeleton from Mongolia, federal prosecutors said.

Eric Prokopi, a self-described "commercial paleontologist" who buys and sells whole and partial dinosaur skeletons, was arrested at his home in Gainesville, according to a complaint unsealed by prosecutors. He was charged with smuggling goods into the U.S. and interstate sale and receipt of stolen goods.

He also faces one count of conspiracy to smuggle illegal goods, possess stolen property and make false statements. If convicted on all of the charges, he could face up to 35 years in prison.

Prokopi made an appearance Wednesday in federal court in Gainesville, where U.S. District Judge Gary R. Jones ordered him to be held on $100,000 bond. Prokopi must also surrender his passport and be kept under home detention. He did not enter a plea.

The arrest was handled by U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement's Homeland Security Investigations.

Manhattan U.S. Attorney Preet Bharara said the investigation "uncovered a one-man black market in prehistoric fossils." The U.S. government seized the Tyrannosaurus skeleton earlier this year after it was sold by an auction house for $1.05 million.

Prokopi did not immediately respond to a phone call, but his attorney has said he did nothing wrong.

Prokopi has been involved in a lawsuit in New York over the auction because the Mongolian government has said it may belong to that country.

ANOTHER VIEW

Do we really know them?

In 2008, John Edwards pulled the rug out from under the supporters who had backed his run for the presidency when the scandal about a mistress and illegitimate child hit the news.

We're sure those die-hard supporters had no idea that while his wife was suffering from the breast cancer that would eventually kill her, he was fathering a child with another woman.

They also probably didn't know they were giving unqualified support to a man who had persuaded a campaign aide to claim he had fathered the child.

My, how messy politics can get when you link your name to an unknown quantity.

That lesson hit even closer to home this fall when a Missouri candidate for U.S. Senate made an outlandish remark about women being immune from pregnancy in cases of "legitimate rape"

If you check websites for campaign donations, you'll see the names of people and organizations that donated to their campaigns, people and organizations that probably right about now are wondering how well spent that money was.

The question we all have to ask before unequivocally supporting a candidate or making a donation is: Do we know where each candidate really stands?

Kicked in the teeth?

Do you feel like life has "kicked you in the teeth?" That's a feeling many of us can relate to. Good news reports bring us stories of hardships and successes every day. Is your marriage one of the 50% that ends in divorce? Or, has someone closest to you died? Are you a disabled American veteran? Are there irreconcilable differences with your boss? Are you recovering from a devastating heart attack or stroke? Were you paralyzed in an accident? Were you convicted of a felony, learned your lesson, and still unemployable or feeling social rejection? Have you recently gone through a bankruptcy, or lost your home in the terrible recession? Are you struggling while trying to survive battling cancer?

Well, it's not always easy. But, it's still possible to look for the good side; to find something positive that comes out of anything that life throws at us. As it turns out, if you're an optimist, your chances for successful recovery are good. If you're a pessimist, consider becoming an optimist. It's a choice that you can make, because your attitude and your outlook are things you can do something about. It may help to recognize and to appreciate the "re-" words—restore, rehabilitate, recover, rebuild, and renew yourself. Here are some positive thoughts and attitudes that could be beneficial for you to develop:

Bob Denny
Bob.Denny8@gmail.com

Build hope. Don't let fear of failure stop you, even when the odds are against you. Rekindle a dream.

Explore the possibilities. What have you always wanted to do, in your wildest dreams? Don't shoot down your dreams, allow yourself to reach for the sky. Focus on what you can do, and on your capabilities, rather than what you can't do.

Reach up. Dig deep. Put effort into what you do. Stretch and exercise your body, mind, and social muscles. Try hard. All successes feel good. "When life gives you lemons, make lemonade."

Learn to find the good side of everything that happens to you. Decide that along with the hit you're blindsided with, life is offering you an opportunity to learn and grow. "If it doesn't kill you, it will make you stronger."

You may have those around you who actually want you to fail, for their own reasons. Rather than allowing your self to blame anyone, to be angry with anyone, or hold onto resentments, let it go. You don't need their negativity in your life. The best way to deal with those who would hurt you is to succeed and build a great happy life for yourself.

"Bust a move!" Get up and take action. Begin that first small step that will build you into that great person you are supposed to be.

As a side benefit, psychological research indicates that optimists live several years longer than pessimists. Several years after the Mount Saint Helens violent explosion and eruption, and miles and miles of devastation of all living things, wildflowers and seedlings rise out of the ashes. It's not an ending; it's a new beginning.

As polls narrow, tensions increase

Do you smell the desperation? The polls show the race between Mitt Romney and Barack Obama has narrowed so tightly there is suddenly talk of a 269-269 tie in the Electoral College.

With 270 needed to win, that means the GOP-dominated House could decide the election. That would definitely outdo the 2000 election, when George W. Bush lost the popular vote but won the election by the Supreme Court voting 5-4 along partisan lines. Not the best scenario for democracy.

The problem, of course, is not really with the candidates. The problem is us. We are so divided that there is no majority party and little likelihood there will be one.

We saw in the town-hall debate that Romney and Obama can't stand each other. It was jarring to see Romney talk over the president in a shocking lack of politeness. It was also disconcerting to see Obama's eye-rolling disdain for his opponent. That debate was a mirror for us all. Most of us can't talk civilly about our political differences.

The two men don't agree on how to fund government, what government should do, what the tax rates should be, what rights government should guarantee for women, gays and lesbians and children, what role the United States should play abroad, or what the future of this country should look like.

In the two-and-a-half weeks before Election Day, Romney's strategy is to convince voters that because he made millions buying and selling businesses he knows what is best for the national economy and to convince them that although Obama inherited a bad economy, his efforts to improve it were wrong.

Obama's strategy is to convince voters that Romney's economic plan would cut taxes for the rich, raise them for the middle class, cut the social safety net, raise military spending, reduce regulations on businesses and bring back what Democrats think got the nation into the worst recession since the Great Depression.

Romney's big problem is that he can't or won't explain the math behind his proposals. Obama's big problem is that he can't or won't explain what he would do differently in a second term, if anything.

Many voters feel trapped between a rock and a hard place.

The good news for Romney is that while his social views anger millions of women, the economy is dominant, and many are willing to take a chance because he is not Obama. Romney's best argument is that if you're unhappy with your economic condition, take a chance he'll be better than Obama.

The good news for Obama is that the economy slowly is improving and he seems more consistent than the multi-tiered Romney.

Thus, many of us will vote our gut instincts — deciding whom we trust more. If it's a tie, we'll all lose.

Embassy attack was terrorism

Before we argue over whether Mitt Romney misspoke about Libya in Tuesday's debate, we need to parse the meaning of what President Barack Obama said immediately after the Sept. 11 incident that claimed the lives of ambassador Chris Stevens and three other Americans.

Romney said the administration waited nearly two weeks to acknowledge that terrorists, not demonstrators, carried out the assault on the U.S. embassy in Benghazi. He was corrected by the president, and by debate moderator Candy Crowley, who said the president stated almost immediately during a Rose Garden appearance that it was "an act of terror."

Technically, that is true. But an examination of Obama's words reveal that it was a general statement based on the belief that any such incident — including one resulting from a protest that spontaneously turned violent — is such an act.

What the president apparently did not know at the time, nor did his administration concede for days, was that there was no demonstration against an anti-Muslim video. This was, in fact, a carefully planned operation by al-Qaida terrorists.

Why did it take so long for the administration to change its story? Who knows and who cares? Where Obama, and more specifically the State Department, are vulnerable is the lax security that resulted in a tragedy — one that cost the lives of four Americans, including a highly praised diplomat whose popularity in Libya was extensive. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton was quick to realize this, and claim responsibility.

The situation was made worse by the fact that department security officers testifying before Congress have said they had asked for beefed up forces to ward off just such an assault and were refused. It clearly was an incident that might have turned out differently. The president said he immediately ordered improved security for all embassies, a move that can only be described as the usual closing of the barn door after the horse has fled — a philosophy that seems to permeate most of what happens here these days, from Capitol Hill to the White House.

One need only look at the history of the elite Bureau of Diplomatic Security, part of the State Department, to understand that the attitude among the striped-pants set toward DS — professionalized since the 1980s — far too often has been disdain. Though the department recruited bright young people and gave them extensive training in security and protective services, the efforts were frequently impeded by the Foreign Service hierarchy.

The department initially insisted on filling key oversight positions — from the director down to those in charge of onsite embassy security — with career diplomats who had little or no security experience. DS agents, trained alongside Secret Service and other law enforcement agents, were often armed with considerably less than what was necessary to hold off an attack by assailants.

My son was in DS in the 1980s and was assigned to protect the Israeli ambassador to the United States. He confided that he'd told the ambassador, in case of an incident, to "run like hell" while he would try to hold back any attackers with what seemed insufficient firepower. The ambassador, shaken by the revelation, was instrumental in having the weapons upgraded.

ALLIGATOR: Full-scale battle re-enactment

Newcomers and even natives to the area can learn about and celebrate North Florida's unique history, he said.

When Florida was just a territory, U.S. settlers formed Alligator Town, close to the Seminole community of Alligator Village. Interactions were peaceful, he said. African Americans escaping slavery lived among the Seminoles, so North Florida was a multi-cultural society early on, Rowley said.

Since 2010, the festival has offered a full-scale battle reenactment.

"It's the only event like it in North Florida," he said.

"It's a living history camp," Rowley said, so families can interact with reenactors in the camps.

The festival also includes a drum arbor and dance circle for veterans, fancy and inter-tribal dances, demonstrators of traditional Native American and pioneer skills, and a variety of food vendors. Daily fund-raising auction to support the event after the battle on Saturday and Sunday.

There will be local food vendors, trade demonstrations and hands-on historical games for children. The documentary "Unconquered Seminoles" will play continuously at the park's recreation hall.

Rowley said organizers expect between 2,400 and 3,000 visitors this weekend. "We put the whole event on for about $4,000," he said. Sponsors and volunteers make the event work.

State Park admission is $5 per vehicle holding between 2 to 8 people. Single occupancy is $4. Folding chairs are recommended for watching the battle.

The park is located at 410 S.E. Oleno Park Road in High Springs. For more information visit alligatorfest.org.

vote — in a four-man race in which no one won a majority in either count.

An Electoral College tie isn't the only nightmare scenario that could raise doubts about the election's fairness and worsen partisan bitterness, which already divides Americans and makes compromise in Congress so difficult.

Since 2000, "we've had an amazing group of dedicated lawyers that have been on the ground for 12 years," said Charles Lichtman, a Fort Lauderdale-based attorney helping oversee the Democrats' effort. "So there's nothing they can throw at us that we haven't seen or that we're not ready for."

Other states are doing the same. A single memo seeking lawyers and law students to help safeguard Obama's voter turnout efforts netted nearly 4,000 responses, a campaign official said.

CENTER: Gets a budget boost

The updated costs include funding for furniture, playground equipment, electric service, an upgrades septic system, standing seam roof, paved entry and parking lot, interior work and a two-inch water meter.

The original project bid and budget for the Westside Community Center was listed as $491,000. Through previously approved change orders totaling $69,867 and the $127,458 change order from Thursday's meeting, the cost of the project is now listed as $688,325.

The Westside Community Center, which is still under construction, will be located off of Birley Road.

County officials also reviewed a rough draft listing the criteria the North Florida Broadband Authority has to meet for the county to consider letting the agency use space on county communication towers.

The rough draft will be given to the county attorney for review before its sent to NFBA officials. Earlier in the month the board unanimously voted in favor of having county staff develop a list of criteria the NFBA has to meet, including a business plan, and then county officials will decide whether or not they would lease space to the NFBA on the four county towers. Officials from the NFBA have not presented the plan to county officials yet.

The commission also selected the Nov. 15 meeting as the public hearing date to introduce new ordinances governing local parks;

In addition, a resident addressed the board saying he was not reimbursed for impact fees he paid when he constructed his home and he singled out Commissioner Ron Williams as the cause. Williams told the resident that the move to cut of reimbursements after a certain date was adopted by the entire board of commissioners, not just a single commissioner. Dale Williams explained and gave the resident the official cut-off dates.

There will also be several tournaments throughout the weekend, like the National Wild Turkey Federation sanctioned calling contest, a shooting contest and an archery tournament.

"It's kinda like going to Bass Pro Shops for the day," Ronsonet said.

The Guns-N-Hoses Challenge will pit local firefighters against police officers in a tug-o-war on Saturday afternoon.

Roger Parish, outgoing Kiwanis presi-

The Church and Angels —Part 2

As we continue our study on angels this week, let us look at just some of their work in the New Testament. Angels are spoken of almost 300 times in the Bible, so it would be wise to see some of their work and ministry.

Acts 8:26-40 records the account of Philip, the evangelist, as he was witnessing in Samaria when an angel spoke to him and directed him to go to the desert. Philip was given no explanation; he was just told to go. We, the church, all too often need to see the end results, even before we begin a work. It is so important for us to listen for the call to a work; then do the work. By faith is how the church should respond to ministries. Hebrews 11:1 says "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen". So it is by faith we walk.

Angels are not employed to preach the gospel; they bring directions and encouragement to God's ambassadors. The angel directed Philip but it was the Holy Spirit through Philip that unfolded the gospel to the eunuch. So it is today that every preacher of the gospel is to be led by the

BIBLE STUDIES

ems-hugh43@comcast.net

Holy Spirit of God. When we are led by the Holy Spirit we will all speak the same message.

As angels were present when God gave the law to Israel, so an angel participated in the giving of the gospel to the Gentiles (Acts 10). Cornelius, a devout man, a Gentile, had received instructions, brought by an Angel of God, to send for Peter; of whom he may have never even heard of. But Cornelius, a Gentile, was a stranger and a foreigner to Israel and God. In the law the Israelites were forbidden to have any association with the Gentiles. Peter now a Christian, still was prejudiced toward the Gentiles. It was hard for him, a Jewish convert, to understand the bringing of the Gospel to the Gentiles. This kind of reminds us of Jonah, doesn't it?

It is extremely hard for even the church of Jesus Christ to overcome prejudice and bigotry. Here God sent an angel from heaven to bring the two together. The meeting, presided over by the Holy Spirit, was the channel God used to get the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ to the whole world. Peter, under the leadership of the Holy Spirit, declared "in truth I perceive that God shows no partiality. But in every nation whoever fears Him and works righteousness is accepted by Him" (Acts 10:34-35). If God shows no partiality, then as long as people want to worship God according to God's word, we also should not show partiality.

Acts 12 records how Herod, after killing James, the brother of John, seized Peter and bound him and put him in prison, an "Angel of the Lord" came and loosed Peter from the prison where he was kept. I wonder how many times an "Angel from the Lord" is sent to protect His people and to keep us for the ministry.

Angels are ministering Spirits that God gives us to assist us along the way. They are never to be worshipped. Worship God!

Immediate action by Jesus

As one reads the Gospel of Mark, he must be impressed with the number of times the word "immediately" is used in the text. According to my concordance, it is used approximately 40 different times. Mark is trying to show that Jesus is a man of action, something that would impress Roman citizens, supposedly his intended readers.

Jesus did something "immediately" after he was baptized (1:10). "Immediately the Spirit impelled Him to go out into the wilderness" (1:12). Peter and Andrew, James and John immediately left their nets after they were asked by Jesus, "Follow me" (1:18, 20).

After Jesus cast out an "unclean spirit," it is said that "immediately the news about Him spread everywhere" (1:28).

When a leper was brought to Jesus to be healed and Jesus agreed to heal the man, the text says, "immediately the leprosy left him and he was cleansed" (1:42). After telling a paralytic man "get up, pick up your pallet and go home" the text says, "and he got up and immediately picked up the pallet and went out in the sight of everyone" (2:11, 12). When Jesus healed a woman with a blood issue, Mark says, "Immediately the flow of her blood was dried up" (5:29). After speaking to the dead daughter of the synagogue official, the text reads, "Immediately the girl got up and began to walk" (5:42).

There are many other times in the book of Mark where the term "immediately" is used. The Pharisees went out "immediately" and teamed up with the Herodians as to how they could "destroy" Jesus (3:6). In the parable of the sower, the word "immediately" is used to describe how fast the seed sprang up after being sowed on the ground (4:5ff). Other examples can be seen throughout the remainder of the book.

BIBLICAL MEDITATION

Carlton McPeak
carlton_mc@msn.com

The question for us to think about is why did Mark use this word to describe the actions of not only Jesus, but other people in the book? Because it would have appealed to his readers. It is said that the Romans were people who wanted to see action. Mark portrays Jesus as a man of action. It did not take Jesus a long time to do something, something the Roman citizen would greatly appreciate.

We may not be people who appreciate "immediate" action, but are we willing to do things "immediately"? Thinking about something has its place, but can we do things on the spur of the moment? For some of us it would come naturally, but for others, it would be very hard.

Mark concludes his book by recording the commission Jesus gives to his apostles about going "into all the world and [preaching] the gospel to all creation"

(16:15). Within a few short days of receiving this commission, the apostles were standing in front of the Jews on the day of Pentecost and telling them about this man of action (Acts 2).

On that day there were some people who were baptized "immediately" after hearing the preaching of Peter and the other apostles.

The question for us is what do we do "immediately" after hearing a message from the word of God? Do we forget it? Ponder it, and then obey it? Or do we take "immediate" action? Whether it is immediate or in the near future, let's take action!

Repentance is a difficult lesson

I doubt if anyone has ever been through a difficult time without asking or at least thinking: "How in the world did I get here?"

Sometimes we realize we have no control over the situation we are in, and yet, other times we have to face the reality that we alone are responsible. Whatever the case, we can conclude that our struggles are not without purpose. They provide an opportunity to grow, learn, mature and prepare for what lies ahead. Therefore, it is wise to determine, if possible, why we are "here" and perhaps more important, what we need to know in order to leave!

At the end of Deuteronomy, Chapter One, Moses recounts the reason behind Israel's 40-year stint in the wilderness. In summary, spies were chosen from each of the 12 tribes to report on the best strategy for acquiring the land God had promised. Instead, 10 of the 12 returned terrified and spread the news that it was an impossible task, and like wildfire, fear spread to the point that not going into the Promised Land was the preferable choice.

At this point, God displayed His anger, and after destroying the ten who spread a bad report, pronounced the verdict: Not one over the age of 20 would enter the land, but would die in the wilderness ... all except Caleb and Joshua who remained faithful. Those under 20 years old would remain in the desert for forty years ... one year for each of the 40 days the spies explored the land. Therefore, God told Moses to have the Israelites turn around and head back into the desert. (See Numbers 14:20-35)

Instead of accepting God's judgment, what the Israelites do next is something we need to pay close attention to, because we have the same tendency:

HEART MATTERS

Angie Land
angieland3@windstream.net

Numbers 14:39-40 records: "When Moses reported this to all the Israelites, they mourned bitterly. Early the next morning they went up toward the high hill country. "We have sinned," they said. "We will go up to the place the Lord promised."

I suppose in light of dying in the desert or spending an extra forty years wandering around, going into the land God has promised doesn't seem so scary all of the sudden. Does this sound like a teenager who offers to clean her room AFTER you take the car keys ... or the employee who promises to show up on time AFTER they are fired ... or the spouse who agrees to counseling, AFTER you threaten to leave?

The Israelites tried it anyway and were "attacked and beaten down." God was not fooled by this gesture of remorse, because He knew it was not true repentance. I can't help but wonder what would have happened at this point if the Israelites had truly repented over their lack of faith.

"Godly sorrow brings repentance that leads to salvation and leaves no regret, but worldly sorrow brings death." (1 Corinthians 7:10) Worldly sorrow is only sorry that it was caught and now faces consequences. However, if those consequences can be avoided, everything will go back like before ... no change will occur.

Godly sorrow involves remorse over causing pain to another, especially God. Godly sorrow causes us to confess in order to restore the relationship, and makes us willing to face consequences in order to pay our debt.

Repentance is critical to our relationship with God and others, especially as we travel through the difficult seasons of life. Let's admit that fixing things our way just creates a bigger mess, and practice real repentance ... because every heart matters!

Blessings, Angie

Out of the mouths of children

Veterinarians are a special breed of people who not only care for animals, but spend much time and money in learning how to take that care to a higher level. It always amazes me how they can be so gentle in the most difficult situations.

True story: "Some of the most poignant moments I spend as a veterinarian are those spent with clients assisting the transition of the animal patients from this world to the next. When living becomes a burden, whether from pain or loss of normal functions, I can help a family by ensuring that their beloved pet has an easy passing. Making this final decision is painful, and I have often felt powerless to comfort the grieving owners. That was before I met Shane.

"I had been called to examine a 10-year-old blue heeler named Belker who had a serious health problem. The dog's owner,

Jack Exum Jr.
jackexumjr@yahoo.com

Ron, his wife and their little boy, Shane, were all attached to Belker and were hoping for a miracle. I examined Belker and found he was dying of cancer.

"I told the family that there were no miracles left of Belker, and offered to perform the euthanasia procedure for the old dog in their home. As we made arrangements, Ron and Lisa told me they thought it would be good for their 4-year-old son Shane to observe the procedure. They felt Shane could learn something from the experience.

"The next day, I felt the familiar catch in my throat as Belker's family surrounded him. Shane seemed so calm, petting the old dog for the last time, and I wondered if he understood what was going on.

"Within a few minutes, Belker slipped peacefully away. The little boy seemed to accept Belker's transition without any difficulty or confusion. We sat together for a while after Belker's death, wondering about the sad fact that animal lives are shorter than human lives.

"Shane, who had been listening, quietly piped up, 'I know why.' Startled, we all turned to him. What came out of his mouth next stunned me. I'd never heard a more comforting explanation.

"He said, 'Everybody is born so that they can learn to live a good life — like loving everybody and being nice, right?' The 4-year-old continued. 'Well, animals already know how to do that, so they don't have to stay as long.'"

Cheerleaders' Bible banner approved

Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas — A judge ruled Thursday that cheerleaders at an East Texas high school can display banners with Bible verses at football games, saying the school district's ban on the practice appears to violate the students' free speech rights.

District Judge Steve Thomas granted an injunction requested by the Kountze High School cheerleaders allowing them to continue displaying religious-themed banners pending the outcome of a lawsuit, which is set to go to trial next June, Texas Attorney General Greg Abbott said.

School officials barred the cheerleaders from displaying banners with religious messages such as, "If God is for us, who can be against us."

Wisdom of young women

When Fort White High's middle school team hosted Richardson Middle School in a football game on Tuesday, there was an unusual circumstance.

Both teams had a girl on their roster — Katlen Williams for the Wolves and Taylor DuBose for the Indians.

There have been other female football players in Columbia County, some at the varsity level, but it remains rare and especially with a girl on both teams.

Williams and DuBose met at midfield before the game for a picture and talked about their shared experience. They showed tenacity and a respect for, and from, their coaches and fellow players.

"I like the way they don't treat me like a girl," Williams said. "They treat me like a brother or a teammate."

"The drills are fun, trying to tackle each other," DuBose said. "I enjoy it. Last year, a lot of girls signed up, but it was only me. They were just talk."

Both players are receivers and got in the game. DuBose was even one of the deep guys on a kickoff return. Williams was the intended receiver on a PAT attempt, but the ball was underthrown.

As an eighth-grader, Williams knows she may be at the end of the line. "I will be in high school next year and I am trying to go to a girls' league," Williams said.

A big dream remains alive for seventh-grader DuBose.

"Next year I would like to be quarterback," DuBose said.

Football seemed suited for both girls.

"It is the best sport ever, if you don't get along with girls," said Williams, whose brother played at Richardson. "I like playing football with the boys. It has been awesome."

"The first couple of practices were awkward because I didn't know anybody," DuBose said. "If you like being aggressive, you can take out your anger on the players. That is 100 times better."

Another recent profound statement of a female athlete came from Columbia High golfer Abby Blizzard. In the district tournament on Monday, there were no "gimme" putts.

"You have to play until you get it in the hole, and that is hard to do," Blizzard said.

From hacker to pro, every golfer can relate.

Fort White hosts Fernandina for homecoming.

FORT WHITE — With skits and bonfires, courts and queens, field day and fun during homecoming week, football seems to take a back seat.

Fort White High is celebrating homecoming this week, and the football team will take on Fernandina Beach High at 7:30 p.m. today.

The Indians are 4-2, while the Class 4A Pirates are 2-5. Fort White spoiled Fernandina Beach's homecoming last year, 65-30.

"Homecoming is really for the alumni and we welcome them back," Indians head coach Demetric Jackson said. "We like for former students to come back and enjoy the festivities. We want our seniors to enjoy it, but our part is to play hard and win the game."

To that end, the Indians put in a little "extra work" at practice on Tuesday.

MIDDLEBURG — Lightning struck quickly for Columbia High and it kept on striking as the Tigers gave a Bronco butt-whipping to Middleburg High in a 58-0 win on Thursday.

The Tigers held Middleburg to a three and out on its first series, thanks in part to a sack from Terry Calloway on third down.

On Columbia's first offensive play, Ronald Timmons went the distance for a 38-yard touchdown and the rout was on.

Roc Battle picked off a Rick Lassiter pass on the second play of the next series and the Tigers went back to work.

This time, it was a methodical approach as Jayce Barber led the Tigers on a six-play, 51-yard scoring drive.

The drive was capped off with an Alex Weber touchdown on a 28-yard pass from Barber.

Barber fires opening 67

From staff reports

Lake City's Blayne Barber fired a 3 under 67 in the opening round of the Web.com Jacksonville Open.

Barber was two shots back of Doug LaBelle II.

There were three golfers at 66 and nine tied with Barber.

The first round at the TPC Sawgrass Dye's Vally Course was suspended because of darkness with eight golfers still on the course.

Barber is grouped with Ryan Blaum and Donny Lee. The threesome will tee off at 2:10 p.m. today from the 10th tee.

The Golf Channel is airing a tape delayed broadcast of the Jacksonville Open, beginning at 5 p.m.

Yankees put out of misery

Associated Press

DETROIT — Max Scherzer capped a stupendous stretch for Detroit's starting rotation, and the Tigers advanced to the World Series for the second time in seven years by beating the New York Yankees 8-1 Thursday for a four-game sweep of the AL championship series.

Miguel Cabrera and Jhonny Peralta hit two-run homers in a four-run fourth inning against CC Sabathia.

"Yeah, we did it," Cabrera said. "It's an unbelievable feeling. ... Four more wins, guys. Four more wins."

Scherzer took a no-hit bid into the sixth inning.

Detroit won its 11th American League pennant and first since 2006.

After scoring in just three of 39 innings during the series, New York heads home to face unpleasant questions about its future.

The Yankees hit .188 in the postseason and .157 in the LCS. Detroit outhit New York 16-2 in the finale.

Gators may not see Lattimore in the starting lineup for USC

By PETE IACOBELLI
Associated Press

COLUMBIA, S.C. — South Carolina running back Marcus Lattimore did not practice Wednesday because of a bruised hip and coach Steve Spurrier said his junior star might not start Saturday against No. 3 Florida.

Spurrier had said Lattimore was running well earlier in the week, but the injury kept him out of Wednesday's workout. Lattimore arrived at practice let and watched from the sidelines.

If Lattimore can't go, Spurrier says backup Kenny Miles and freshman Mike Davis would handle the load at tailback when the ninth-ranked Gamecocks (6-1, 4-1 Southeastern Conference) go against the Gators (6-0, 5-0).

"We're sort of banged up all of a sudden," Spurrier said.

Spurrier said an injury like Lattimore's generally takes a week or two to heal. Lattimore had a touchdown, but gained just 35 yards on 13 carries in ninth-ranked South Carolina's 23-21 loss to the Tigers.

Spurrier has gone back-and-forth on Lattimore's condition since Sunday. At first, he expected Lattimore to miss a couple of workouts, but said Tuesday that Lattimore had looked OK during Monday's session and expected him to play at The Swamp on Saturday.

Then came Wednesday's twist.

Lattimore is sixth among SEC rushers with 584 yards. He's tied with Texas A&M quarterback Johnny Manziel for the SEC lead with 10 rushing TDs.

"It's not surgery type things," Spurrier said of Lattimore's condition. "It appears it's something that'll be fine in a week or so."

Lattimore tore ligaments in his left knee while blocking against Mississippi State last year, an injury that cost him South Carolina's final six games in 2011. He had offseason surgery and has looked strong this fall.

Spurrier detailed several other key players dealing with injuries and illnesses.

He said sophomore defensive end standout Jadeveon Clowney had a foot problem that has limited what he can do at practice. Defensive tackle Kelcy Quarles had his arm in a sling because of a shoulder injury and is doubtful to play against the Gators. Defensive linemen Byron Jerideau and J.T. Surratt are also hampered by injuries, although both are expected to play.

And then there's the flu bug, which Spurrier said has kept some Gamecocks from working out this week. Punt returner and starting receiver Ace Sanders missed practice Tuesday while receiver Bruce Ellington was out on Wednesday.

Spurrier was hopeful all players hit by the flu could play on Saturday.

downs by the Broncos and Johnson rumbled to the five. Braxton Stockton did the rest and put the Tigers up 21-0 with 6:03 remaining in the first quarter.

Dugan Dotson sacked Lassiter on the Broncos' next possession and the Tigers returned to Timmons and the ground game on offense.

Timmons smashed forward 28 yards and Barber hit fullback Darren Burch for 29 yards before giving back off to Timmons for a two-yard touchdown run.

Another three and out by the Broncos gave Columbia the ball with 55 seconds remaining in the first quarter.

The Tigers would end the quarter the same way they started it — with a one play touchdown drive. This time it was Johnson going in from 40 yards away for a 34-0 lead at the end of the first quarter.

"It was an absolutely outstanding effort all night."

—Brian Allen,
Columbia High head coach

Columbia didn't let up in the second half as Charles Combs picked off a pass on the Broncos' first possession of the quarter and the Tigers went back to the quick-strike attack.

Again, it was one play as Timmons took the ball on a handoff and went 23 yards for a score to put Columbia up 41-0 in the second quarter.

Columbia took over again with 7:54 remaining in the second quarter and added seven more points after a seven-play, 78-yard scoring drive.

The drive was capped after Stockton rushed 32 yards for a score. He also had a 27-yard run on the drive. Up 48-0, the officials brought out the running clock.

The Tigers picked up where they left off in the second half and added a field goal to the score when Brayden Thomas connected on a 31-yard try to put Columbia up 51-0.

Wyndell Wallace recovered the following kickoff at the Broncos' 7 and Columbia would hand it off to Lonnie Underwood on consecutive plays. Underwood scored from four yards out for the final of 58-0.

"It was an absolutely outstanding effort all night," Columbia High head coach Brian Allen told the team after the game.

Columbia (6-1, 3-0 District 3-6A) can clinch the district championship with a win against Orange Park High at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 26 in Lake City.

INDIANS: Preparing for Wing-T

well," Jackson said. "We are trying to figure out how to motivate them and pick up the tempo a little bit."

Fernandina Beach is coached by Travis Hodge, a Bolles graduate who spent several years at Madison County High with the Cowboys' well-known ground game.

"They run the Wing-T and they have some big linemen," Jackson said. "On defense they run a 3-4. They are playing a lot better than last year. They play hard, but they tend to make a lot of mistakes. We can't make mistakes and let them stay in the game."

A football win would cap off perfectly the week-long festivities and celebration.

"We want the alumni to come back and enjoy it," Jackson said.

Fort White travels to play Rickards High next week, while the Pirates have the week off.

Fort White dedicated its football fieldhouse this year to long-time varsity and middle school head football coach Mike Hunter.

Hunter, known as the "Father of Fort White Football," toiled for Columbia High back in the day, before the new Fort White High was built and before there was Indians middle school football.

In his senior season, Columbia played Fernandina Beach for homecoming on Oct. 24, 1969, and Hunter had his own field day. The Tigers' 44-14 win was perhaps Hunter's best high school performance.

Hunter ran the ball 12 times for 173 yards and scored four touchdowns. Hunter's touchdown runs were 26, 8, 11 and 4 yards, the last one set up by his fumble recovery on defense.

NASCAR INSIDER

By RICK MINTER / Universal Uclick

To fight another day

Earnhardt talks about concussion, 'playing hurt'

Concussions in the sports world have pretty much been a football story, until last week when NASCAR's biggest star, Dale Earnhardt Jr., had to get out of his car.

Earnhardt's problems began with a violent wreck during a tire test at Kansas Speedway in August. But he kept it quiet until a seemingly minor impact on the last lap at Talladega Superspeedway triggered more symptoms and led to his seeking medical help for concussions suffered in both incidents.

Missing Saturday's Bank of America 500 at Charlotte Motor Speedway pretty much ended any hope Earnhardt had of winning the Sprint Cup championship, but the driver and those around him all said the most important thing at this point is the driver's health.

And most around him were praising him for having the courage to come forward and admit he was suffering. Earnhardt, throughout his career, has been known for telling the truth no matter the consequences.

"I think that's one thing everybody admires about Dale is how honest and up front he is," Earnhardt's car owner Rick Hendrick said in a press conference at Charlotte. "He cares a lot about the team, his fans, and the sport in general.

"But when he knew that there was something not right, he went to see Dr. [Jerry] Petty, and I admire him. I think a lot of guys would try to play hurt, but when the doctor tells you if you get hit again like right away, it could be catastrophic."

Petty, who has worked for years with NASCAR and its drivers, said the very nature of concussions requires honest answers on the driver's part to get a correct diagnosis.

"Ninety percent of a concussion probably depends on individual information," Petty said. "People around you might notice that you're different. By and large, the history that the patient gives is the thing that tells you that they've had a concussion."

"A concussion can be seeing stars. A concussion can be just being addled for a minute. Any time the brain is not doing what it's supposed to be doing after an acceleration or deceleration, that's a concussion."

But despite the possible consequences of concussions after concussions, drivers tend to try to keep their symptoms from keeping them out of their race cars, especially when there are big trophies to be had.

Earnhardt's teammate Jeff Gordon said he probably wouldn't take the steps Earnhardt took if there was a championship on the line.

"Honestly, I hate to say this, but no, I wouldn't," he said. "That's why I say we all play a part in this. If I have a thought at the championship, there's two races to go, my head is hurting, and I just came through a wreck, and I am feeling signs of it, but I'm still leading the points, or second in the points, I'm not going to say anything."

"That's the competitor in me, and probably many other guys. And, that's to a fault. That's not the way it should be. It is something that most of us, I think, would do. I think that is what gets a lot of us in trouble."

But Earnhardt's comments reveal that there's a lot at stake, career-wise and otherwise, when a driver has literally rattled his brain in a crash. And sometimes the best decision is the one that seems so hard to make at the time.

"I want to live a healthy life, so I'm going to make sure that I'm doing the right thing, and that's all I felt like I was doing here," Earnhardt said. "I think if I give myself time to get healed up, I can race for as long as I want to race, and that's my objective."

2012 CHASE CONTENDERS

Chase Chart Following the Bank of America 500 at Charlotte Motor Speedway

- 1. Brad Keselowski 2,214 (finished 11th)
 Fuel-mileage racing, which had been one of his strong suits throughout his career, worked against him at Charlotte as he had to stop for gas while his closest Chase competitors stretched theirs to the finish. "It's like playing blackjack," he said of mileage racing. "Sometimes you're going to get a good deal, but you're not going to win 'em all."
- 2. Jimmie Johnson -7 (finished third)
 With four finishes of fourth or better in the five Chase races to date, he's making a strong bid for a sixth Cup title. "We're still not the best car out there at it, but we're making it work week-in and week-out," he said.
- 3. Denny Hamlin -15 (finished second)
 The five-time winner this year played it conservatively in the closing laps at Charlotte, stretching a tank of fuel to the finish, and now he's headed to four of his best race tracks. "It's finally good to have a fuel mileage race somewhat go our way," he said. "You've got to be prepared for those because they seem happy more often than not."
- 4. Clint Bowyer -28 (finished first)
 He made gas-mileage racing work for him again and remains in the hunt for the championship in his first year at Michael Waltrip Racing. And it was a milestone victory. "It is my first mile-and-a-half race track win, and it's Charlotte, my worst race track," he said.
- 5. Kasey Kahne -35 (finished eighth)
 Many figured he'd be battling for the win at Charlotte, where he has three points-paying Cup victories, but he wasn't. Still, he's not completely out of the running for the title.
- 6. Greg Biffle -43 (finished fourth)
 After setting a track record in qualifying on the pole, he led the race early, but wasn't fast enough to win at the end. "It was too loose all night," he said. "I just didn't want to take big enough swings at it. And then fuel mileage; we are just not in that game to go as far as those cars were going."
- 7. Martin Truex Jr. -49 (finished 10th)
 He salvaged a top-10 finish after struggling mid-race. "We started out really strong, but lost some track position, and it was so hard to get it back when we were in traffic."
- 8. Tony Stewart -50 (finished 13th)
 He battled back from as low as 36th after an early race incident damaged the nose of his car. "I was following the 2 car [Brad Keselowski] there, and he had to check up, big time, for whatever was going on in front of him," Stewart said.
- 9. Jeff Gordon -50 (finished 18th)
 His chances for a fifth Cup title dwindled after he lost a lap due to a penalty for speeding on pit road.
- 10. Kevin Harvick -56 (finished 16th)
 Handling problems throughout the 500 led to his worst Chase finish so far, and he doesn't have any top-10s to offset it.
- 11. Matt Kenseth -67 (finished 14th)
 The Talladega winner spun early at Charlotte and never really recovered. "It took us so long to get that lap back, and we never had any cautions to really get caught up," he said.
- 12. Dale Earnhardt Jr. -86 (did not compete)
 His decision to seek medical help for concussions led to his not being able to compete, and his chances for even a top-10 Chase finish at this point are slim to none.

NOTEBOOK

Smith drives Earnhardt's No. 88

Dale Earnhardt's concussion opened the door for Regan Smith, displaced from the No. 78 Furniture Row Chevrolet, to get in Earnhardt's No. 88 Chevrolet, and Smith made the most of it while the car was running.

He qualified a disappointing 26th, but was second fastest in the Happy Hour practice session. Then in the race he was steadily marching toward the front when a blown engine sent him to the garage at Lap 61.

"I think the important part is that we had a really fast race car," he said. "We had a good first adjustment there, went just a little too far with it and got a little too free. Needed one more stop and I think we would have had it dialed in."

"I'm looking forward to next week. We get three days to test when we get there to Kansas and we will see if we can get the AMP Energy/National Guard Chevrolet up front there."

"I feel confident we will have the same speed we had here."

Smith had planned to drive James Finch's No. 51 Chevrolet at Charlotte, but his move to the No. 88 opened the door for A.J. Allmendinger to make his return to NASCAR after being suspended back in July for failing a drug test. He responded with a 24th-place run despite a late-race penalty on pit road. He's expected to drive the car again this week at Kansas.

Kurt Busch, who had been driving the No. 51, made his first start in the No. 78 Chevrolet that had been driven by Smith. He finished 21st.

"As a competitive racer you always want to get out there and be a contender, but on the other hand when you're starting something new you need to focus on the big picture, and that big picture is to get primed and ready for the start of the 2013 season," Busch said. "Finishing 21st might not appear that we made progress, but the fact of the matter is that we did in our first three days together at the track."

"But we're also realistic, knowing that there will be more kinks along the way to work out in the final five races of the season."

Tests set for repaved speedway

Sprint Cup drivers and teams will arrive at Kansas Speedway a day early this week. NASCAR is allowing an extra day of testing because the track has been repaved and slightly reconfigured since the last time the circuit raced there.

Kasey Kahne said he's looking forward to the extra laps to fine tune his No. 5 Chevrolet.

"We don't get a lot of testing these days. So it's nice to go to a race track that you race on, and have the tire that you are using," he said, adding that some of the knowledge gained could apply to other tracks the circuit races on this season.

"You can learn some things for Texas and Homestead, and maybe even a little bit of stuff for Phoenix. So, I think it's a nice test for all the teams to just be a little bit better prepared throughout the rest of the season."

His Hendrick Motorsports teammate Jimmie Johnson agreed that the test will be helpful for this week and for the future.

"I would imagine the Chase guys will really just be focused on this year's stuff and what we need to do there," he said. "It's nice to have data files, as we all know, for our simulations programs and 7-Post machines and all the stuff that we use back at the shop. So, that's good. I really feel more than anything, it's just a safe move and it makes total sense to do it for our sport."

He said that if there is a problem with the tires or the track, it'll come out in time to make a fix before Sunday's race.

"We all get acclimated with the new surface and re-design," he said. "I guess there are some small little changes and things; and validate the tire and validate the track and get everything right so that when we show up Friday, we can put on the show that we need to."

Columbia High's junior varsity team wrapped up its season on Wednesday and the future looks bright for the Tigers.

The JV finished the season at 6-2 by closing out North Marion High, 26-6, at home.

"We've had a good group of kids that played a lot better than I thought we would at the beginning," junior varsity head coach John Brown said. "We had our work cut out for us with a lot of ninth-graders, but we matured as a program and played pretty good."

Brown said if he had to name one MVP for the season it would be Akeem Williams, who eventually got the call to take part with the varsity.

"If it had to be one, it'd be Akeem," he said. "He played wide receiver for us and started out with three touchdowns against Baker County in a game we won 29-6. He came back against won 32-10. They pulled him up during the week we played Gainesville and we lost 14-28, but we got him back for Lake Weir and he had a couple of crucial catches for us including a touchdown in a game we won 20-18."

Williams didn't play in the season finale on Wednesday, but the JV still had a host of kids that will suit up for the varsity for the rest of the season including Juicy

Woods, who had two interceptions and a touchdown.

"Our entire defense has been tremendous this season," Brown said. "We gave up 100 points total, but we outscored our opponents 166-100. We won at least two games due to key plays by our defense."

Brown also singled out quarterback Nathan Taylor and Tim Mallard of the defense as having tremendous seasons.

As a whole, Brown feels this group of JV players are ready to make an impact on the varsity in the upcoming years.

"They're pretty equipped," Brown said. "We always work together with the varsity. We run the same plays and our drills are the same. The rest is just execution. I feel like the success we had as a team will be used by the kids to motivate them at the varsity level. Of the 51 players we had, we're moving 21 up to the varsity. The majority of that will come from our defense."

DEAR ABBY

Woman's healthy eating habits may have taken unheathly turn

Abigail Van Buren
www.dearabby.com

DEAR ABBY: I have recently developed what I consider to be a very healthy lifestyle. I exercise, eat lots of fruits and vegetables and mostly whole foods.

My problem is I think I may be becoming obsessed. It has become harder and harder to eat away from home. I constantly plan what I'm going to eat next. I'm still happy, but too much of my time is being spent on this.

Apparently, there's a disorder similar to anorexia known as orthorexia. It's the psychological obsession with eating healthy. I don't think I could be classified as an extreme case, but what should I do before I become one? - OBSESSED IN BOSTON

DEAR OBSESSED: As with any obsessive disorder, the first step is realizing and admitting you may have one. Then discuss it with your physician and ask for a referral to a psychologist who specializes in eating disorders.

This is not to say that you have a disorder - but because more and more of your time is being devoted to thoughts of food, it would be a good idea to check. Too much of a good thing can be harmful if it is taken too far.

DEAR ABBY: I am 23 and have one child. I have been married for three years, and my husband has recently become physically abusive. He was prosecuted for his actions and pleaded guilty, but he still blames me entirely for the scenario and refuses to accept any responsibility.

I fear for the safety of myself and my daughter every day, and I want to leave him for good. Many of the shelters I have called require that I quit my job, which is something I feel is counterintuitive to establishing a life on my own, so I refuse. That said, I don't make much money, and the money I do make goes toward paying the fine my husband incurred for harming me.

Am I aiming too high? I feel the only way to break free from him entirely is to quit my job, but I don't want to have to resort to this. What would you advise? - CONFLICTED OUT WEST

DEAR CONFLICTED: I would advise you to take your child and get out of there before the next episode of domestic violence. And, if you truly want to break free entirely from your abuser, that you follow TO THE LETTER the instructions you receive from the people at the domestic violence shelter. And one more thing: Let the person who incurred the fine pay it himself!

DEAR ABBY: I have a question about office microwave etiquette. I work in a building with one kitchen for 40 people. Often there is a wait to use the microwave around lunchtime. Recently I needed to use it and found a warm packaged meal in there, and no owner around. I waited five minutes and came back. It was still there as if it had been forgotten.

I decided to place it on the counter with a napkin covering it so I could use the microwave. When I was finished, no one appeared to claim it, so I put it back in and went on my way.

Did I do the right thing? There was no way to know whose meal it was. What's proper in this situation? Should I have just waited? - HUNGRY IN ITHACA, N.Y.

DEAR HUNGRY: You handled the situation appropriately. However, had it been me, I would have left the item on the counter so it wouldn't be touched by the other 38 hungry people in your office who also needed to use the microwave.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 13, and a few weeks ago I met a guy online, got his number and we texted - a lot. Before I knew it, we were flirting up a storm.

He lives in Tennessee and I'm in Texas. He's the same age as I am, so I don't see anything wrong with liking him, even if he's so far away. We have decided not to date until we have a chance to meet each other in person.

The problem is, I feel like I love him. He doesn't call me "hot," he calls me "gorgeous." He doesn't call me "Babe," he calls me "Angel." He listens to me when I have a problem and gives me sweet advice.

Yes, I know I'm young and love is supposed to come later in life. Yes, it seems shady that I met him online and we have never talked face-to-face. I know I might be mistaking love for infatuation - I've heard all this before. But I trust this boy to be faithful and supportive of me.

How can I tell if I love him or not? Should I cut off contact with him? Is it OK to feel the way I do? - TEENAGE GIRL IN A DREAM

DEAR TEENAGE GIRL: I'm all for young love, but before plunging in, I think both parties should know with whom they are having the pleasure. Has it occurred to you that because you met this person online and have never spoken face-to-face that he might NOT be who he says he is?

The person you have described may not be a teenage boy in Tennessee. He could be an adult man (or woman) ANYWHERE. He doesn't communicate in the language most teens of today use. He doesn't call you "hot," he doesn't call you "Babe." He is using terms that someone much older would use.

Personally, I think you should take a giant step backward until you AND a more experienced adult in your life learn more about him. Adults who carry on online romances with 13-year-old girls are called predators for good reason.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend of four years, "Taylor," and I are opposites in that I like to be on time and he is generally late. We usually work this out by leaving for an event I choose at the time I want, and leave for his friends' gatherings when he wants.

My problem is leaving for the airport when we travel together. We use public transportation, which takes 45 minutes, but things can go wrong and make it longer.

Taylor would like to leave so we arrive at the airport 45 minutes before our flights. This causes me a lot of stress because security lines can be long and I'm afraid of missing our plane. We have had to run through airports in order to avoid being left behind.

I'd like to be at the airport an hour and a half before flight time to be safe. Taylor hates waiting in the terminal when security is light and thinks we could be doing other things with our time. Please save me from our next argument and tell us who is right. - FRAZZLED TRAVELER IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR FRAZZLED: You are. Better to be safe than sorry, especially when you have nonrefundable tickets. I have been on flights when seats were given to standby passengers because the ticketed passenger was held up for some reason. There are worse things than having to kill a half-hour at the airport. Missing your flight is one of them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Play to win. Talks will lead to solutions and your hands-on approach to whatever comes your way will be rewarded. You will find yourself in a position to make significant and triumphant improvements. Seize the moment and the opportunity. ★★★★★

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A problem with a relationship must be dealt with practically. Do not let your emotions cause you to make a costly mistake, leaving you in a vulnerable position. Love, romance and socializing should be welcomed and given top priority. ★★★

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Generosity and excess will be your downfall. Do your best to focus on honing your skills or looking for a better position. Striving to get ahead instead of overindulging or taking on projects that won't pay the bills will be a must. ★★★

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Make plans to socialize or network with people who may be able to help you improve your position. Love is in the stars and building a stronger relationship with someone who contributes to your goals will help secure a better future. ★★★

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take action. Talking about what you want to do will solve nothing. You must be willing to go the distance if you want to gain credibility. Let your heart lead the way. Sincerity will be key when dealing with relatives, peers or your lover. ★★★★★

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Speak your mind, but avoid getting into an emotional argument that leads to a no-win situation. Focus on being dedicated and loyal. Avoid impulsive purchases or decisions that can contractually bind you. Practicality will be required. ★★

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Avoid making last-minute changes because of what someone else does. Stick to your game plan and rely on your experience and past friends, colleagues or partners to fill in whatever gap is missing. Your resilience will leave a good impression. ★★★★★

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Keep your feet planted firmly on the ground, and protect what you have worked so hard to acquire. Innovative ideas will come to you that will help turn a situation that appears grim into a positive turn of events. ★★★★★

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't let passion and emotional matters hold you back. Put your energy into building a better domestic life by spending time with the people you feel can contribute the most to your future achievements and happiness. ★★★

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Keep your communication with friends, relatives and superiors cordial if you want to get your way. Positive changes to your position will develop if you show dedication and are willing to adapt quickly to what's offered. ★★★

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Strive for perfection and pick up skills that will help you advance.

Showing greater enthusiasm and helping without being asked will make a difference to the outcome of a new venture. Greater demands will also bring you greater pleasure. ★★★★★

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): If possible, close a deal, settlement or pending legal matter without getting into a scuffle. You will be forced to compromise, but in the end, it will benefit you. Love is within reach, but demands will make you revise your plans. ★★

Miami quarterback Stephen Morris (17) hands off during the first half the game against North Carolina in Miami on Saturday.

Miami waiting to see if Morris can play

By TIM REYNOLDS
Associated Press

CORAL GABLES — Miami is willing to wait and see if Stephen Morris' sprained left ankle improves before the Hurricanes choose a quarterback to start on Saturday night against No. 12 Florida State.

Ryan Williams practiced Tuesday as Miami's presumptive starter, with Preston Dewey as his backup, while Morris spent the day in and out of treatment and unable to do anything on the field. And while plenty of signs point to Williams getting the call in the annual rivalry game with the Seminoles, Miami coach Al Golden said he's still giving Morris a chance.

"We've got a long way to go," Golden said. "I would have to classify him as a game-time (decision) right now. ... So we'll see. Ryan did a great job today, threw the ball well, practiced really well, made all the throws so we're excited about him. We don't have really two separate game plans going in. And if Stephen's healthy, we'll give it a shot."

Golden said the earliest he expected Morris would have any chance of being on the practice field was Thursday, and if he makes it out there then, he'd likely be limited to 7-on-7 work. Miami is obviously concerned, and obviously doesn't know if Morris will be ready, as proven by Golden sending a 5:30 a.m. text message to ask how his quarterback was feeling.

Small problem: Golden sent that text to the wrong Morris — he sent it to Jim Morris, Miami's longtime baseball coach.

"I'm feeling fine," Jim Morris said.

Either way, Florida State is ready for either Williams or Morris. Seminoles coach Jimbo Fisher said his staff might even study some tape of Williams' games at Memphis in 2010.

"You have to prepare for both," Fisher said. "And when you say prepare for both, though, how drastic are they going to change? I mean, in two or three days of practice, you could change your offense and do some different things, but the foundation is still going to be the same. One's a little more mobile, one's a little bigger and stronger, but they're both very good quarterbacks."

Fisher's offense has no such who-will-start dilemma.

The Seminoles boast perhaps the ACC's hottest quarterback right now in EJ Manuel, who led Florida State past Miami last season and is coming off a career-best 439-yard, four-touchdown showing last weekend against Boston College.
