Pension pay-in upheld

Government workers will have to contribute to retirement fund.

By BILL KACZOR

TALLAHASSEE — A law championed by Gov. Rick Scott that requires teachers, state and county workers and some municipal employees to contribute 3 percent of their pay to the state's pension plan was narrowly upheld by the Florida Supreme Court on Thursday.

The 4-3 decision reversed a trial judge's ruling that the law violated the collective bargaining, contract and property rights of about 600,000 public employees including police, firefighters and other first-responders.

The law, which went into effect on July 1, 2011, also repealed 3 percent annual cost-of-living increases for benefits accrued after that date.

The ruling was vindication for the Republican governor — who had sought an even bigger 5 percent employee contribution — and the GOP-controlled Legislature. The decision was a bitter defeat for public employee unions, led by the Florida Education Association, which had challenged the law.

"The court's ruling today supports our efforts to lower the cost of living for Florida families," Scott said in a statement. "This

Spelling it out

JASON MATTHEW WALKER/Lake City Reporter

Richardson Middle School eighth-grader Eva Kirby, 13, spells out a word on her arm as she battles with Lake City Middle School's Hunter Ragsdale during the Columbia County Spelling Bee held at the Columbia County School Board Administration Building auditorium on Thursday. Kirby won in six rounds, finishing with the word 'untenable,' which means hard to defend or maintain. She will advance to the regional spelling bee at the Jacksonville Main Public Library on Feb. 23. 'I'm so excited I won, and I was really nervous,' she said. 'I was afraid I would psyche myself out. I'm just glad I got to represent Richardson.' See another photo, Page 3A.

Woman now missing for 12 days

From staff reports

The Lake City Police Department is seeking assistance from the public as authorities attempt to find a woman who has been missing for 12 days.

According to LCPD officials, around 4:30 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 5, Betty Ann Hicks, 49, walked away from her home at 434 SE Waldron Terrace and has not been seen since.

Around 3:45 p.m. on Jan. 5, Lisa Hicks, called the LCPD and reported her sister Betty Ann

Hicks

Hicks missing. Officer Gerald Ford responded to the residence and met with Lisa Hicks, who told him the last time she saw her sister Betty was around 4:30 that morning. Lisa Hicks told Ford that unconfirmed reports last placed her sister at U.S. 129

Uphill battle on guns for Obama

'Congress must act soon,' he says, but some senators wary.

By ERICA WERNER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama's sweeping gun-control package faces an uncertain future on Capitol Hill, where majority House Republicans are rejecting his proposals while the president's allies in the Democratic-controlled Senate are stopping well short of pledging immediate action.

The fate of his plan could ultimately hinge on a handful of moderate Democratic senators. Although they are unlikely to endorse the president's call for banning assault weapons, they might go along with other proposals, such as requiring universal background checks on gun purchases.

Several of those senators responded warily after Obama unveiled his proposals Wednesday with the challenge that "Congress must act soon."

"I will look closely at all proposals on the table, but we must use common sense and respect our Constitution," said Sen. Jon Tester, D-Mont. Tester told the Missoulian newspaper in his home state recently that he supports background checks but doesn't think an assault weapons ban would have stopped the shootings at an elementary school in Newtown, Conn., where a gunman massacred 20 children and six adults before turning the gun on himself.

Obama's proposals came a month after the shootings in Newtown, which he has called the worst day of his presidency. His announcements capped a swift and wide-ranging effort, led by Vice President Joe Biden, to respond to the deaths.

The $500 million plan marks the most comprehensive effort to tighten gun laws in nearly two decades. It also sets up a tough political fight with Congress as Obama starts his second term needing Republican support to meet three looming fiscal deadlines and pass comprehensive immigration reform.

The White House strategy for pressing Congress centers on building public support for the president's measures.

"There's only one voice powerful enough to make this happen: yours," Obama

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Original 'Dear Abby' dies at 94

Pauline Friedman Phillips, who as Dear Abby dispensed snappy, sometimes saucy advice on love, marriage and meddling mothers-in-law to millions of newspaper readers around the world and opened the way for the likes of Dr. Ruth, Dr. Phil and Oprah, has died. She was 94.

Phillips died Wednesday in Minneapolis after a long battle with Alzheimer's disease, said Gene Willis, a publicist for the Universal Uclick syndicate.

"My mother leaves very big high heels to fill with a legacy of compassion, commitment and positive social change," her daughter, Jeanne Phillips, who now writes the column, said in a statement.

Private funeral services were held Thursday, Willis said.

The long-running "Dear Abby" column first appeared in the San Francisco Chronicle in 1956. Mother and daughter started sharing the byline in 2000, and Jeanne Phillips took over in 2002, when the family announced Pauline Phillips had Alzheimer's disease.

Pauline Phillips wrote under the name Abigail Van Buren. Her column competed for decades with the advice of Ann Landers, written by her twin sister, Esther Friedman Lederer, who died in 2002. Their relationship was stormy in their early adult years, but they later regained the closeness.

Pacino to play Paterno in upcoming movie

LOS ANGELES — Al Pacino will play Joe Paterno in a movie about the late Penn State football coach. Producer Edward R. Pressman confirms Brian De Palma will direct "Happy Valley," the tentative title of the film, based on Joe Posnanski's best-seller "Paterno."

Pauline Friedman Phillips, right, the nationally-syndicated advice columnist best known as "Dear Abby," and her daughter Jeanne Phillips, are seen in 2001.

"Happy Valley" reunites the 'Scarface' and 'Carlito's Way' team of De Palma and Pacino for the third time and I can't think of a better duo to tell this story of a complex, intensely righteous man who was brought down by his own tragic flaw," Pressman said in a statement. No start or release dates were given for the film.

While Pressman said the plot remains "under wraps," Posnanski's book followed Paterno's final years, as the winningest coach in college football history saw his career end in disgrace in 2011 with the sex abuse scandal involving assistant coach Jerry Sandusky.

Schwarzenegger talks gun control

LOS ANGELES — Arnold Schwarzenegger doesn't think there's a parallel between film and real-world gun violence.

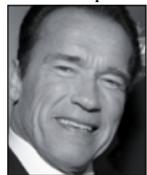

The 65-year-old former governor of California returns to the big screen Friday as the sheriff of an Arizona border town tasked with stopping a Mexican cartel boss from returning to Mexico. It marks his first leading role since serving as The Governor for six years.

"I personally feel that this is entertainment," said Schwarzenegger.

Martin parents to give scholarship

ORLANDO — The parents of Trayvon Martin are presenting a scholarship in their son's name during a Martin Luther King Jr. celebration in Daytona Beach.

Sybrina Fulton and Tracy Martin will join attorney Benjamin Crump for Thursday's annual banquet hosted by Martin Luther King Jr. Celebration for Florida, Inc. at the Hilton Oceanfront Hotel to honor the civil rights leader.

They will present the scholarship to a local high school senior. Crump is giving the keynote address.

Trayvon Martin would have graduated from high school this year. He was fatally shot last February by neighborhood watch volunteer George Zimmerman during a confrontation in Sanford. Zimmerman has claimed self-defense under the so-called "stand your ground" law and is awaiting trial.

All convicts must pay $20 fee

TALLAHASSEE — An appellate court says every defendant convicted of a crime must pay a $20 fee to support Crime Stoppers programs.

The full 1st District Court of Appeal on Wednesday unanimously withdrew a prior decision by a three-judge of the same court that said the assessment applied only to defendants who are fined.

The new ruling noted that the law requiring the fee was revised on July 1, 2010, to change language that made the fee a surcharge to any fine imposed.

The 14 participating judges wrote that the cost is no longer an additional surcharge.

Teller conspired to rob bank

TAMPA — Authorities say a teller at a Bank of America branch in Tampa helped another man rob the bank.

Tampa police say a 911 caller reported a suspicious person putting on gloves and a hoodie near the bank around noon on Wednesday.

The Tampa Tribune reports an armed robbery call came in as police were responding to the original call. An arriving officer saw someone running from the bank.

Tampa police say the man dropped the bag when he saw police. Officers caught up with 21-year-old Marcus Ryan Halbert after a chase. Officers say Halbert told them he and 20-year-old teller Alan Michael Ethington planned to stage the robbery.

Spy cam catches man abusing cat

BOCA RATON — A woman who suspected her roommate of torturing her cat installed a spy camera and caught the abuse on videotape.

Police arrested 25-year-old Jordan Bean Tuesday on a charge of animal cruelty after Alanna Jenkins did some preliminary undercover work.

The Palm Beach Post reports Jenkins was suspicious because her belongings were often misplaced when she returned from work. So she installed the camera.

Police say the video shows Bean entering Jenkins' room and "actively" hunting the cat, named Chompers. The cat is seen hissing and moaning before Beans catches it and wraps it in a towel. Bean then seemed to smother the cat while holding her down with "all of his weight."

Elderly man gets 8 years for killing

TAMPA — A Tampa Bay area man has been sentenced to eight years in prison for fatally shooting his neighbor.

A Hillsborough County judge sentenced 72-year-old Trevor Dooley on Thursday. He was convicted of manslaughter in November, despite claims of self-defense.

Authorities say Dooley shot 41-year-old David James at a Valicro park in September 2010. Dooley, who lived across from the park, was yelling at a skateboarder using a basketball court when James interceded.

Witnesses say Dooley flashed a gun, starting a struggle that left James dead. James' then-8-year-old daughter watched him die.

Dooley testified he had no interest in a physical confrontation and only shot James because James was choking him.

Man gets life for gang shooting

BARTOW — A 20-year-old man has been sentenced to life in prison for a fatal gang shooting.

A Polk County judge made Alejandro Baez-Garcia's sentence official on Thursday. He was convicted of first-degree murder and attempted second-degree murder last month. Because prosecutors didn't seek the death penalty, life imprisonment was the judge's only option.

BATTLE: Much resistance in Congress to gun laws

wrote in an op-ed Thursday in The Connecticut Post.

The president is also expected to travel around the county pitching for his proposals and could activate his still-operational campaign organization, Organizing for America, to fight for the plan as well.

Campaign manager Jim Messina sent an email to Obama supporters Thursday urging them to sign a petition backing the president's proposals and promising "more soon" from the organization.

Obama, seeking to sidestep some congressional opposition, also signed 23 executive actions Wednesday, including orders to make more federal data available for background checks and end a freeze on government research on gun violence. But he acknowledged that the steps he took on his own would have less impact than the broad measures requiring approval from Capitol Hill. He is also calling for limiting ammunition magazines to 10 rounds or less.

"To make a real and lasting difference, Congress, too, must act," Obama said.

The question now is how and whether that happens.

House GOP leaders have made clear they'll wait for the Senate to act first, since they see no need to move on the contentious topic if it doesn't. "House committees of jurisdiction will review these recommendations. And if the Senate passes a bill, we will also take a look at that," said Michael Steel, spokesman to House Speaker John Boehner.

Many rank-and-file Republicans scorched Obama's proposal. "The right to bear arms is a right, despite President Obama's disdain for the Second Amendment," said Rep. Tim Huelskamp, R-Kan.

Senators are expected to begin discussions on how to proceed when they return to Washington next week.

COURT: Employee contribution law upheld

means even more businesses will locate and grow in our state."

Scott argued it was unfair that Florida's public employees didn't contribute because workers in most other states and the private sector are required to help pay for their pensions if they still have that benefit.

The public employees' contributions, though, were not used to strengthen the Florida Retirement System, already one of the nation's strongest pension plans. Instead, they reduced contributions made by state and local government employers.

"Balancing the state budget on the backs of middle-class working families is the wrong approach," teachers union president Andy Ford said in a statement.

A ruling against the contribution law would have created a nearly $2 billion budget gap for state and local governments because they then would have had to return the employee contributions.

"We still believe that a promise is a promise," Ford said. "We are more determined than ever to change the face of the Florida Legislature. The next elections in 2014 can turn this decision around."

Although Democrats, who are closely allied with the unions, picked up a few seats in the Legislature last year, Republicans continue to hold large majorities in both chambers.

"The changes made to the Florida Retirement System reflect the Legislature's efforts to maintain a sound retirement system for our hardworking state and local government employees as well as the reality that Florida taxpayers can no longer bear the full cost of this benefit," said Senate President Don Gaetz, R-Niceville.

A key legal issue was how to interpret a law passed in 1974 that declares the retirement rights of public employees are contractual in nature. That year, the Legislature, then led by Democrats, also eliminated employee contributions to the pension plan.

The high court majority cited a 1981 Supreme Court opinion that said the law protected rights and benefits already earned but did not preclude the Legislature from altering benefits prospectively for future service.

Justice Jorge Labarga wrote for the majority that the same principle applied to the new law that restored employee contributions, so it does not violate employees' contract rights nor take away property in the form of their pension benefits.

The new law also doesn't violate collective bargaining rights guaranteed by the Florida Constitution for public and private employees because it doesn't prohibit such negotiations between unions and employers, Labarga wrote.

"Although I understand the frustration of state employees, who have in effect taken a 3 percent pay cut in addition to years without cost-of-living adjustments, this case is not about the wisdom or fairness of the Legislature's decision," Justice Barbara Pariente wrote in a concurring opinion.

Labarga and Pariente were joined by Chief Justice Ricky Polston and Justice Charles Canady, the high court's two most reliably conservative members.

EPA gets earful at water hearing

By TAMARA LUSH
Associated Press

TAMPA — About 150 protesters, many in neon-green T-shirts protesting slime in Florida's waterways, showed up Thursday at a U.S. Environmental Protection meeting, concerned about nutrient pollution.

The meeting — where federal officials took only written statements from people — was the first of two held this week. The second is on Friday and Web-based meetings are scheduled for Jan. 22-24.

The EPA is accepting comment on proposals that set numerical limits on nutrients that come from such sources as fertilizer, animal waste and sewage effluent, which feed the toxic, slimy algae blooms. They can kill fish and make people sick.

Many of the folks who turned up at Thursday's meeting said that the excess nutrients are fouling beaches, harming wildlife and contaminating drinking water. Environmentalists point to recent events as proof that nutrient pollution is a serious problem, including Sarasota County's removal of 4.5 tons of dead fish from beaches after a red tide bloom and a drinking water plant in Lee County closed because of green slime.

Environmental groups are urging the agency to adopt stricter pollution rules than the state.

and Interstate 75, walking north.

Betty Hicks is a black woman, 5 feet 3 inches tall, 230 pounds, black hair, brown eyes, freckles on both cheeks, wearing a black stocking cap, black leather jacket, gray hoodie and blue jeans.

Authorities said Betty Ann Hicks is possibly en route to Alabama, where it is reported that she was located the first time she went missing.

Betty Ann Hicks doesn't have a boyfriend or family in the area, other than her sister, and there are no relatives in Alabama.

Lisa Hicks said her sister suffers from a mental illness and she took some of her medications with her, but not all. She added that Betty Ann withdrew all the funds from her bank account on Jan. 4 and she also has her Social Security check with her.

Authorities entered Betty Ann Hicks' data into the state and national database as missing-disabled on Jan. 5.

The case was turned over to LCPD investigator David Greear, who immediately began contacting other relatives and friends in an attempt to locate Betty Ann Hicks. The LCPD has exhausted all its leads to Betty Ann Hicks' whereabouts and is requesting assistance from the community.

Anyone with any information concerning the location of Betty Ann Hicks is asked to call Greear at 758-5451 or contact the LCPD anonymously on the department's TIP line at 719-2068.

PARADE: March on Marion Avenue set for Monday

of Transportation office off Clements Street.

"We've always put on an Martin Luther King Jr. parade," said Ron Williams, Columbia County Commissioner and Northeast Florida Leadership Council president. The annual parade has been held in Columbia County for more than two decades. "The North Central Leadership Council has sponsored an MLK parade from the beginning of a Martin Luther King Jr. holiday."

The parade grand marshals for this year's event will be Ermon and Alma Owens from the Watertown community.

"They are pillars and pioneers in this community — especially the Watertown community," Williams said.

The local Martin Luther King Jr. parades traditionally average more than 50 entries and this year's parade could be larger than past events because there is no entry fee to participate, Williams said.

"We'll take entries up until 10 a.m. Monday," he said.

The parade will begin near the DOT office on Marion Avenue and head north through the downtown area before making a left turn on Washington Street and ending at Memorial Stadium.

Williams said continuing to hold a local parade in honor of Dr. King is an important tradition.

"We always say it's a day on and not a day off," he said. "It's something that we need to do to show that the dream is still alive for justice and equality for all men."

People interested in registering a parade entry can call 752-0158 or 867-0468 or call Angela Woody at 965-8000.

In addition to the grand parade, the community will continue to honor King during a commemoration service.

The host church for the commemoration service is Olivet Missionary Baptist Church, 901 Davis St., with Rev. Ronald Walters Sr., pastor and keynote speaker for the event.

The event will feature music, inspirational dance and a inspirational message by Walters.

"As part of the commemoration service, two plaques will be given to local residents for their outstanding achievements in mentoring local youths, on and off the field," said Audre Washington, Northeast Florida Leadership Council MLK program coordinator. "Coach Brian Allen and Coach Demetric Jackson were nominated and selected as the award recipients."

Following the church service, the community is invited to Annie Mattox Park for community events.

"There will be a flag football game featuring the men and women of Columbia County against competitors from Suwannee County, a men's basketball tournament and soul food vendors," Washington said. "The children will have bounce houses and other fun events. The specialty of the day will be the live-streaming, via television, of the inauguration of President Barack Obama. We invite the community to a day of food, fun and family as we commemorate the life and legacy of another king, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr."

OUR OPINION

'A promise is a promise'

That's what Andy Ford, president of the state's largest teachers union, said Thursday in derision of the Florida Supreme Court's ruling to uphold 3 percent mandatory pension pay-ins for government workers.

The 'promise' to which Mr. Ford refers was made in 1974 by the state legislature with the passage of Florida Statute 121.011(3)(d), under which most state workers were no longer required to contribute to their own pension funds through the Florida Retirement System. Moreover, the new law declared this arrangement to be contractual in nature, thereby affording it protection under the Contract Clause of both the state and federal constitutions.

In 2011 state lawmakers, responding to a long-term fiscal crisis, changed course and began requiring a 3 percent pay-in by state workers.

Last March a Tallahassee circuit court found the law unconstitutional, deeming it, among other things, a violation of workers' contractual rights.

The state high court had the last word Thursday.

The court ruled that, yes, a contract is a contract – a promise, a promise – but said legislators hadn't broken their word in reconfiguring the FRS after all.

It all comes down to a question of what was promised.

The lower court contended that under the 1974 law, workers who entered the FRS could never be made to contribute to their own retirement.

The Supreme Court disagreed, ruling the 'contract' was only meant to ensure that money already earned under the law couldn't be taken away.

A good lawyer could argue it both ways, and if you read the various pleadings and briefs, they did.

But nowhere did any of those documents address the fiscal reality of current-day Florida.

Everyone has had to cut back. Not just government workers, but all of us private sector folks whose taxes pay their salaries.

Sorry, Mr. Ford, but we're all in this together, and the sooner we realize it, the better.

Secret for a happy life

Want to know the secret for a happy life? Well, many experts out there have written books telling you how to do it. Many of them say there's one path to happiness, based on what they believe or understand of what happiness is. I think a lot of them have great ideas, that could help you build that happier life for yourself, but there probably isn't just one best way. Is it true that "all roads lead to Rome?"

I don't think so. I don't think there's one pat, easy formula that's good for everybody. As far as I know, our human race has pondered and explored what makes a "happy life," for as long as we've been on Earth. Common sense and folk wisdom have offered ideas for thousands of years. The science of psychology emerged more recently, and offers its own "two cents" to the body of beliefs about happiness. A few principles and ideas seem to have outlived the ravages of time, and are generally believed to have some seeds of truth. Research from the science of psychology adds some evidence that seem to support that common sense and folk wisdom. It seems that there's not just one way to a happy life. Here are some ideas that seem to be accepted as "tried and true." You may find some of them helpful: It doesn't matter who you are, or what you've got to work with. Anyone can make his or her own life happier. Happiness means something different to each of us. "One man's cake is another man's poison." What's do you think makes a happy life?

Robert Denny
Bob.Denny8@gmail.com

Take some time to make a list of things that are most important to you. That list helps you find your purpose, and helps give your life meaning. Your life and time are two of the most valuable things you've got. What else is very important for you to have, to do with your life and time, and to become? This list can help give your life your own direction to pursue.

Dream big. Remember when you were a child, and wanted to be a fireman or an astronaut? Don't be afraid to dream about what you want out of life. Wanting it, seeing it or visualizing it motivates and guides you towards that dream.

We're choice makers. It's built into us. Make a decision to make your life the best it can be, the life you want it to be.

What are your strengths, capabilities, talents, and skills? What's unique and special about you? What are your special skills, talents, interests, knowledge, and characteristics that you have to work with? What do you love doing? What are you good at doing?

Take care of yourself. Build your health and fitness, by making your meals healthier, and including significant physical activities in your days. Health and fitness lay the groundwork for a happy life.

Attitude is so important. Research tells us that your thoughts influence your feelings, and that optimists live years longer, on the average, than pessimists. Look for the good side of everything. Expect success, not failure. But don't be afraid to make mistakes. Learning from our mistakes is a proven way to grow and to build better lives for ourselves. When you search for it, every cloud really does have a silver lining.

Believe in something. Try to do what's right. The "Serenity Prayer" advises us to "have the courage to change the things we can change, the patience to accept and adapt to the things we can't change, and the wisdom to know the difference."

Build that happier life for yourself, and it will also help bring more happiness to those close to you. They're worth it, and you're worth it.

Flood controls showing effects of age

Whether it's mankind-assisted global warming, long-term cyclical weather patterns or just plain bad luck, we seem to be in for an era of superstorms on the order of Hurricanes Sandy and Katrina, storms strong enough to overstress our precautions to prevent or mitigate their damage.

It's only a slight exaggeration to say that our infrastructure policy seems to consist of waiting for a bridge to collapse or a levee to fail before we get around to fixing it. If Congress is as sluggish as it was at coughing up the money to repair Sandy's devastation in the most densely populated region of the country, even that may no longer be our policy.

That's why an Associated Press report, based on Freedom of Information Act requests, on the state of the nation's flood-control levees makes for disturbing and — given a few bad breaks with the weather — potentially expensive reading.

As of early this month, the Army Corps of Engineers was almost 60

mcfeatters@shns.com

percent of the way through inspecting and cataloging federally overseen levees, the maintenance of many of them being the responsibility of the municipalities they protect. This is the first-ever such inventory.

Of the 1,451 flood barriers inspected and for which ratings were published, 326 were rated "unacceptable," 1,004 were "minimally acceptable" even though they had deficiencies in need of correcting, and only 121 were deemed "acceptable."

The AP said that the hundreds of structures at risk of failing endangered people and property in 37 states, meaning that it's hardly a problem confined to the better-publicized coastal regions.

The biggest culprit, of course, is a lack of money to maintain the systems. After Katrina, California approved $5 billion in bonds to upgrade the financially strapped state's flood-protection system, but the AP says the state still needs $12 billion to finish the job. Some smaller riverfront towns simply don't have the money to maintain the systems the Corps built for them.

There are other factors as well, such as design flaws, shoddy construction, inadequate maintenance; worn-out pumping stations relying on rusted-out pipes to handle flood overflows; and allowing trees, bushes and burrowing animals to take over vulnerable levees.

And in some places the municipalities are complicit, allowing construction on the levees and development on flood plains.

With this current weather cycle, or, if you prefer, run of bad luck, we're going to pay, one way or another. It would be a lot cheaper to begin paying for prevention now rather than pay for wholesale reconstruction and relocation later.

■ Dale McFeatters is editorial writer for Scripps Howard News Service.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

I would like to start by saying I, like most of the rest of Lake Citians, enjoy my guns. Right now however, there is a lot of finger-pointing as to who or what is to blame for gun violence.

Video games are an easy target because most that blame them have never played them. If a child believes that you can shoot someone and they will automatically "respawn," then I believe that the parents have dropped the ball and the kid needs more help than just no video games.

Gun ownership and video games are a lot alike in the sense that they both require common sense and responsibility, both by the parent and the child. Children need moderation and direction in all aspects of life. More focus should be put on mental health rather than "those dern video games."

Ex-Lt. Gov. Kottkamp leaves as CEO of health drink firm

By BRENDAN FARRINGTON
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Former Lt. Gov. Jeff Kottkamp has left his position as CEO of a health drink company that so far isn't fulfilling commitments to create jobs after taking a $5 million grant from Lee County.

The company, Bonita Springs-based VR Laboratories, accepted a $5 million economic incentive grant from Lee County with the promise of creating 40 full time jobs by the end of 2012 and 208 jobs by the end of 2016. But the money is nearly gone, few jobs have been created and the bottling plant that the company said it would open is in limbo. The company has blamed the delay on a dispute with a contractor and the county has given it a one-year extension to keep its promises.

"I decided to leave VR Laboratories last month. I am focusing my career on the law and the legislative process," Kottkamp said in an email to The Associated Press Wednesday night. "I wish VR well. Their success will be good for the community."

Kottkamp served under then-Governor Charlie Crist from 2007 to 2011. He sought the Republican nomination for attorney general in 2010.

Kottkamp took the position with VR Laboratories in late 2011, after it had received the grant. His salary was $240,000 a year, according to documents the company submitted to Lee County officials. He was one of nine full-time employees the company hired after receiving the grant, according to a document VR Laboratories submitted to the county.

"Mr. Kottkamp is a very talented person. The VR Labs team will miss him, but understands his desire to accept another opportunity," said Kay Gow, who runs the company with her husband, Robert Gow.

The company sells a dozen health drinks under the V!ah name brand; the company says its products help users with issues such as stomach acid, sleep problems, stress, lack of energy and more. The active ingredients listed on the products include a green tea extract and other botanical extracts. They are described as dietary supplements and their claims have not been evaluated by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

While numerous other companies sell similar products with the same ingredients, the company claims it has discovered a new way of extracting the health benefits from plants that makes them more effective.

FAITH & VALUES

We must love one another

I suppose in this past year I have heard the word "hate" used more than any other period of time I can remember.

Many times it comes from the lips of those who professed Christianity. Not only is it used toward sin or actions, it is used toward people.

Nowhere in God's word are we ever given the right to hate one another. However, over 20 times in the New Testament we are told to love one another. The first time we are told to love "one another" was spoken by the Lord Jesus Christ on His last night on earth; before the cross. He said, "A new commandment I give to you, that you love one another; as I have loved you, that you also love one another" (John 13:34 NKJ).

He said "as I have loved you." How did He love us? He loved us enough to give His life on the cross of Calvary for us, even when we were unlovable.

Now don't misunderstand me. He never loved sin; but He loved the sinner. In John 13:35 (NKJ) Jesus said: "By this all will know that you are My disciples, if you have love for one another".

There are several Greek words for love and they are all action words; that means even if the word is not used, love should be felt. Even if we disagree with the way some people live, if we disagree with their beliefs, we must do so in love; and if we are children of God,

BIBLE STUDIES

Hugh Sherrill
ems-hugh4.3@comcast.net

we must disagree in love.

The most carnal church in the Bible was the Church at Corinth. Paul pleaded with them to all "speak the same thing" (1 Cor. 1:10). Chapter one tells of their division and why. Chapters 12 and 14 tell of the other serious disagreement that they had over "spiritual gifts." Chapter 13 is placed between 12 and 14 for a good reason. It is known as the Great Love Chapter in the Bible.

Today the word love is tossed around all too freely. I wonder if many of the people who use it really know what it means to love. Paul says you've got to love one another. If we don't have love, then we can't be a witness for God.

He (Paul) says if one has all the ability to speak with all tongues, and though one has great gifts of discernment and great knowledge and great faith, even if one gives all he owns to the poor and gives his life, without love there is no profit (paraphrased). He goes on to say everything else will pass away but love will remain. We who are Christ's must love one another.

Just before going to the cross, Jesus made an emphatic statement in John 14:6: "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life. No one comes to the Father except through Me." Those of us who enter His way must have love in our hearts for the brethren.

Galatians 4:13 says: "For you, brethren, have been called to liberty: only do not use liberty as opportunity for the flesh, but through love serve one another". Hebrews 10:24 says: "And let us consider one another in order to stir up love and good works".

Decaying but being renovated

Paul talked to the Corinthians about his own personal situation. He has previously spoken to them about how God has comforted him even though he is and has endured a lot of afflictions. In a statement of optimism he says, "Therefore we do not lose heart, but though our outer man is decaying, yet our inner man is being renewed day by day" (2 Corinthians 4:16).

Another way of saying what Paul said is, "Even though we are getting older, we are getting renovated." With each January, we begin a new year. If we were alive last January, then we are one year older this January.

When we were younger, we did not think about "decaying" with each passing year. However, every senior citizen realizes that the body parts do not function this year like they did last year. They are beginning to "decay" or wear out; but what about our inner body?

We are not talking about our physical heart, lungs, eyes, legs or back. We are talking about our soul. We are talking about our mind and attitude concerning our "eternal weight of glory" (2 Corinthians 4:17). We are not talking about the "temporal" things, but the "things which are not seen" that "are eternal" (2 Corinthians 4:18).

As we get older, how much time do we think about going to heaven? Does it excite us that we are one more year closer to going to heaven? Does it renovate or energize our disposition when we think about being one year closer to being with God for eternity? When we feel all those aches and pains, do we think about that one

BIBLICAL MEDITATION

carlton_mc@msn.com

day when we are with the Lord we will not have those physical problems?

Thinking about heaven and being with God and all the faithful from all generations should inspire us to live more for God today than we did last year. It should help us to keep in perspective that all the problems that we go through in this life are really only "momentary, light afflictions" as compared to "an eternal weight of glory." This contrast by Paul really shows us how we should feel about all of our "problems" in this world. Really and truly they are only "momentary."

When we place our focus upon the things which we can see, then we tend to see all the negative things in the world. We see all the disappointments. We see all the failures.

But, if we will put our focus on the things which we cannot see then life becomes more enjoyable, or to say the least, much more tolerable.

If we will focus more on going to heaven, life becomes less difficult. If we will focus on loving the people around us, the more relationships we will have. If we will focus on helping other people go to heaven, then we will have a life full of purpose. We will have a job that will never be completed; a mission that never comes to an end.

So, what will be our focus this next year? That we are one year older and we are one year closer to dying or decaying? Or, will we be renovated or "renewed" because we realize that we are one year closer to reaching our goal of going to heaven and being with God, Jesus, the Holy Spirit and the faithful like Noah, Abraham, Moses, Joshua, Samuel, David, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezra, Nehemiah, the apostles, as well as the faithful brethren who were in Corinth, for all eternity?

Let's focus on being renovated.

Remembering that we 'know'

No doubt you have often heard the old saying: "What he/she doesn't know won't hurt them."

This vote in favor of ignorance was probably first spoken by someone who was either hoping to avoid conflict or had been devastated by news they wish could be erased from memory. Either way, I have to disagree. It seems the older I get, the more convinced I am that those things we don't know definitely do hurt. In fact, they often find a way to nearly beat us to death.

John's record of Jesus' conversation with the Samaritan woman provides a great example of what I mean:

"So he came to a town in Samaria called Sychar ... and Jesus, tired as he was from the journey, sat down by the well. It was about the sixth hour. When a Samaritan woman came to draw water, Jesus said to her, "Will you give me a drink? The Samaritan woman said to him, "You are a Jew and I am a Samaritan woman. How can you ask me for a drink?" Jesus answered her, "If you knew the gift of God and who it is that asks you for a drink, you would have asked him and he would have given you living water." John 4:5-10

Don't miss Jesus' first three words in response: "If you knew ..." What was it she didn't know? We discovered last week that she was all too aware of the prejudice between the Jews and Samaritans. It is also likely that she was aware of the way others looked down on her since she chose the hottest part of the day to collect water for her daily household needs. Indeed, it seems she was only too aware of her own shortcomings, past mistakes, and failures. What she didn't know was how to relieve these heavy burdens she continued to carry ... nor did she know that the One who could take those burdens stood right in front of her.

There are people all around us who "don't know" this same truth. Often, those who know the One who will take our burdens away decide to carry them on their own anyway. Recently, I saw one of those people in the mirror. For a lengthy season, a difficult family situation had me gripped, and a struggle of this kind can make it pretty easy to forget the gift of God. Through a series of events, no doubt orchestrated by God, I recently had one of those "well encounters" and clearly heard Him remind me: "If you knew..."

Indeed, I had forgotten His offer of living water and traded it instead for a stagnant repetition of half-truths. What we don't know ... and what we have forgotten, definitely can hurt, and rob us of the peace and joy God intends. It is so important that we know ... because every heart matters.

Blessings,
Angie

Acknowledging the danger of bitterness

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of six related columns. The others will be published over the next four weeks.)

Cornelia "Corrie" ten Boom, survived the holocaust of World War II. She witnessed many atrocities against her people (Jews) as well as her own family. Her sister has been raped and killed by a German officer who was a prison guard where they were.

The war ended, Corrie began a ministry, writing and sharing her story. While speaking one Sunday, she saw the guard who had taken so much pleasure in their pain sitting in the audience. She immediately recognized him and the feelings and memories immediately came back. Denial of the problem would not help. She could not ignore him nor her feelings. He came up to meet her, and with tears and deep remorse, he began to beg for her forgiveness. As the story goes, she forgave him. He still had to live with the memories, and sounds of screams from his victims. ... They had both done all they could do.

Forgiveness does not just help the offender, it especially helps the victim. To be able to go on with life, unchained, unburdened and able to release the poison of the past, and begin healing.

Corrie understood that bitterness and hate could destroy her by giving the devil a 'foothold'. Bitterness is the sour brackish stagnant water of 'life gone bad'. It gradually becomes the 'center' of a person's life and attitude - the controlling factor in dealing with life. It eventually will affect all other aspects of life, and relationships. Every conversation will trail back to the hurt and pain, being constantly relived.

Pills or alcohol simply serve to dull the problem for a period of time. It is visible in outward actions, words, and expressions, and is always felt in the heart.

We will not trivialize this problem, because it is trivial. This is a big deal! The suggestions made in this series are offered to help in the struggle of many to deal with 'the past'.

Paul says, "get rid of all bitterness", this includes the 'blood-kin' of bitterness, "rage and anger, brawling and slander, along with every form of (hate)". The critical question is, how? So we begin our re-study of an old problem, born in the heart of Satan.

Time alone will not heal, it will take time plus something else.

When we lived in Ireland, we had coal fire in the fireplace for heating the room. We would build a fire and then in the evening, dad would put bits of coal and coal dust on the fire. This seemed to smother the fire, but it didn't. During the night, this formed a "shell," which held in the fire and the heat.

In the morning, we would just poke it and the red-hot coals would appear. All we had to do is add more coal. It saved time on a cold morning. We would continue this for several days before cleaning it out and beginning again.

This simply illustrates what happens when we try and ignore bitterness and even worse deny or justify our problems, which lie hidden until 'poked' and the 'fires' again flame up and we re-live it all again. Bitterness doesn't go away on its own, you have to realize you have a problem and take definitive action.

Time alone won't do it. We must accept that we have a problem, and seek a real answer to heal.

Next time we will begin to look at the doorway to healing ... forgiveness.

Public school Bible classes 'problematic'

By WILL WEISSERT
Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas — Some 60 public school districts across Texas offer courses on the Bible, but at least a third aren't meeting state requirements to be unbiased and academically and legally sound, a study released Wednesday concluded.

Written by Mark Chancey, a professor of Religious Studies at Southern Methodist University, the study found that many districts' courses favor conservative Protestant interpretations of the Bible. Many also present "problematic treatment of Judaism" while "promoting pseudo-scholarship, particularly regarding science and American history."

"At a basic level, students are often being taught to experience Judaism only through Christian eyes," said Chancey, who completed the study for the Texas Freedom Network, which monitors the State Board of Education from a progressive perspective.

He said no courses in Texas were found to be favoring Jewish, Roman Catholic or mainstream Protestant views — only those held by conservative Protestants.

Statewide, 57 districts and three charter schools offered elective courses on the Bible during the 2011-12 school year. Chancey listed 11 of them as having the most successful classes, but concluded that 20 had the "most problematic courses."

The total overall number of districts offering Bible classes is more than double the 25 districts that taught them during the 2005-06 school year.

But Chancey further found that of the 25 that taught them back then, just nine districts still offered Bible classes last school year.

'Mary Poppins' coming to Jacksonville

National touring company bringing Broadway musical.

From staff reports

The deeds of the legendary nanny, "Mary Poppins," have been transferred from the silver screen and will be a musical production appearing in Jacksonville from Tuesday through Jan. 27.

With seven productions produced on three continents, "Mary Poppins" is one of the biggest stage musical successes to emerge from London or New York in recent years. Worldwide to date, the show has grossed more than $812 million and welcomed more than 11 million guests. The musical is the winner of 44 major theater awards around the globe, including Tony, Olivier, Helpmann and Evening Standard awards.

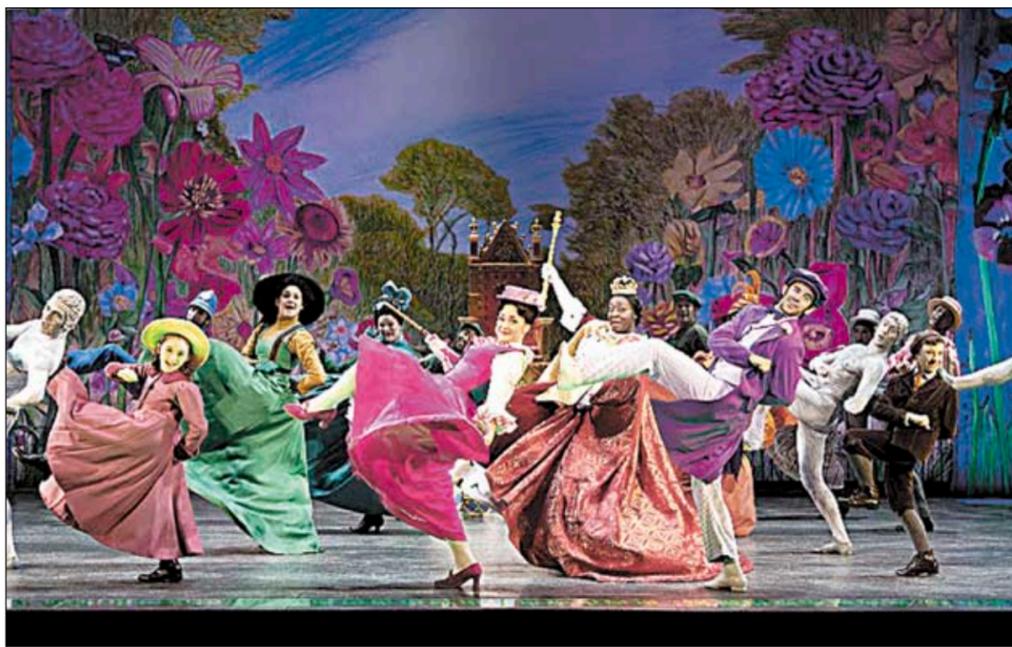

The entire original creative team has reunited to bring this story of the world's most famous nanny to audiences around North America.

The production will take place at the Times-Union Center's Moran Theater, 300 Water St., Jacksonville.

"We are thrilled that 'Mary Poppins' is making its Jacksonville premiere," said Sarah Roy, publicist for the Artist Series, the official presenter of the show. "This Broadway musical is a fun, exuberant, exciting and unexpected show that theatergoers of all ages can enjoy."

"Mary Poppins" will be performed evenings and matinees:

Ticket prices start at $27. Tickets are available 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Artist Series box office, at (904) 442-BWAY and online at www.artistseriesjax.org.

The "Mary Poppins" North American Tour began performances on March 25, 2009, and has played to more than 2.5 million theatergoers in more than 60 cities to date.

Madeline Trumble stars as "Mary Poppins," while Con O'Shea-Creal plays the role of "Bert."

Trumble is making her return to the national tour of "Mary Poppins" after recently appearing in the Broadway company of Disney's "Newsies — The Musical." She has also been seen in stage productions at the MUNY in St. Louis and Berkley Repertory Theatre.

Trumble will appear alongside O'Shea-Creal, who plays the affable chimney sweep, Bert. Creal recently performed with the Broadway and national touring companies of Irving Berlin's "White Christmas." Originally from Lincoln, Neb., Creal has also appeared in regional productions of "Singin' in the Rain," "42nd Street," "Annie Get Your Gun," "A Christmas Carol" and "Urinetown."

"Mary Poppins," a co-production of Disney and Cameron Mackintosh, opened on Broadway on Nov. 16, 2006. Based on P.L. Travers' cherished stories and classic 1964 Walt Disney film, "Mary Poppins" the stage play features the Academy Award-winning music and lyrics of Richard M. Sherman and Robert B. Sherman.

The production recouped its initial Broadway investment within 52 weeks of its premiere. "Mary Poppins" is the only show from the 2006-07 theatrical season still running.

The "Mary Poppins" North American Tour has garnered continuous critical praise and achieved box office success since its launch in Chicago in March 2009.

Con O'Shea-Creal living out his dream on the stage

By TONY BRITT

tbritt@lakecityreporter.com

Most people would consider it a dream to travel and work at their life's love — performing on stage.

Con O'Shea-Creal is no different, and for the past year he has been living his dream by performing on stage in the "Mary Poppins" musical production.

The musical will be performed at the Times-Union Center's Moran Theater, 300 Water St., Jacksonville, from Tuesday through Sunday, Jan. 27.

Creal, 26, is playing the role of Bert. Creal has been in the show since February 2011 and took over the role of Bert in September.

"We've pretty much been in a different city every week," he said. "By the end of this, we'll play 48 cities in 30 states. We've been in Florida for the last month, and we're headed north again. We'll end in Anchorage, Alaska, in June."

Creal, who studied musical theater in college, has been acting professionally for about four years. He said his role as Bert is the biggest in his career thus far.

Madeline Trumble as Mary Poppins and Con O'Shea-Creal as Bert the chimney sweep perform in the Broadway musical production of 'Mary Poppins.'

Creal became interested in performing when he was 7 years old and tap danced.

He said he played sports, as well, but the tap dancing stuck with him.

"Playing the role of Bert is definitely the biggest opportunity that I've been given, by far," he said. "The show is so fun to do, and what's fun about Bert is that he actually gets to talk to the audience at times. It's unlike anything that I've done before. It's really fun to get the feedback from the audience every night."

Creal said the cast has developed chemistry through its years of performing together and that has contributed to the production's success.

"This is a great group of people," Creal said. "This cast really does a good job of just coming into the theater and giving the best they've got for that day, and we really have a good time up there. You can't imagine traveling every week and staying in hotels and it definitely makes a huge difference when everybody believes in what we're doing and really give what they've got. It's really a treat to do every night."

Creal, a University of Oklahoma graduate, grew up in Lincoln, Neb. He said, the ensemble normally performs eight times a week, which adds to the group's chemistry.

"That's the other fun part of the road, every so often some people are leaving the show and new people are coming in," he said. "You're constantly having to accept new people into the flock and get them acquainted and really set the standard for how we connect ourselves out here on the road."

Creal said he was a "Mary Poppins" fan while growing up, and he vividly remembered his grandmother bringing the film over to his family's house to watch.

"A Step in Time" was always a favorite number to watch in that film, and I think it's part of the magic that belonged to the show — the first movie to have animation with live action," he said. "It was pretty ground-breaking at the time and fun for kids to watch."

However, Creal said this stage production of "Mary Poppins" has something for adults, as well.

"I think a lot of people when they see "Mary Poppins" coming to town, they may think that it's a kids show or frivolous entertainment for a kid," Creal said. "... (B)ut the show asks really pertinent questions about family, life and what's really important."

Steel Bridge performs tonight at FGC

From staff reports

Fans looking for a dose of Southern rock will undoubtedly find their fill tonight at Florida Gateway College, as Cross City-based Steel Bridge will perform as part of the FGC Entertainment series.

Steel Bridge, which opened for Easton Corbin during the inaugural season of FGC Entertainment, will perform at the Levy Performing Arts Center at 7:30 p.m. The show is sponsored by Potash Corp. of White Springs.

The band, consisting of Jamey King, Ryan Fulford, Steve Freman, Robbie Vanosdol, Jordan Davis and Tommy Slaughter, is one of the more well-known Southern rock groups in the area, performing nearly every weekend at venues across North Florida. Their unique blend of country and Southern rock has garnered them rave reviews from their fans — dubbed "rivets" — and allowed them to open for such acts as Chris Young, Kellie Pickler and Gary Allan.

Tickets for the show can be purchased by calling (386) 754-4340 or visiting www.fgcertainment.com. Tickets are $15 for general admission and $10 for FGC students, faculty and staff.

Different race for Walker

Local race car driver Devin Walker is in a different kind of competition.

The 16-year-old is entered in the Search for a Champion contest offered by the Champion spark plug folks.

A tally is kept of voting and the top 15 racers will become Champion sponsored drivers for the 2013 season. Those 15 will each receive $5,000 and compete for the grand prize sponsorship of $50,000.

Vote for Walker on the website www.alwaysachampion.com.

The voting began on Jan. 2 and runs through Feb. 3. Fans are asked to vote daily.

The top 15 finalists will be announced Feb. 21, and there will be another round of voting from Feb. 22 to March 24 to determine the grand prize sponsorship winner.

Walker ran a full slate in 2012 in the Street Stock Division at North Florida Speedway. He had three wins at the Lake City track and finished second to Sammy Hatcher by six points. Hatcher and Walker almost lapped the field. Third place in points was 505.

Walker drives the No. 55JR car. He had a couple of other wins away from Lake City, including one at Bubba Raceway Park in Mayo. World of Outlaws driver Danny Lasoski is a mentor for Walker, who also joined with sponsor Takedown Outdoors Show later last season.

Walker's website www.devwalker.com has a link to the Search for a Champion voting.

North Florida Speedway has a couple of special events coming up and Walker plans to run in both.

"We got the car ready last week," Walker said.

The Nationals for the Locals weekend at NFS is Jan. 25-26. Racing begins at 6 p.m. on that Friday and 4 p.m. on Saturday. Pits open at noon and grandstands at 4 p.m. both days.

In addition to Walker's Street Stock Division, there will be racing for late model, open wheel modified, pure stock, sportsman and box stock.

The UMP Modified Nationals event at NFS is Feb. 1-2 (racing 7 p.m. Friday, 5 p.m. Saturday).

In addition to the UMP Mods, there will be street stock, pure stock and box stock racing.

A UMP Super Late Model is planned by NFS on Feb. 10.

Tigers honor best

Timmons, Woods take home top honors for CHS.

By BRANDON FINLEY
bfinley@lakecityreporter.com

An 11-2 season that saw Columbia High finish as District 3-6A champions deserved a closing ceremony and the Tigers got one on Thursday.

Columbia's football program welcomed in Larry Vettel, host of the Larry Vettel show to speak with the team about what it meant to be a Tiger.

Vettel divided being a Tiger up into an acronym with Tigers standing for teamwork, improvement, goals, enthusiasm, resilience and success.

Vettel told the audience it is up to them to define success.

"A drug dealer may make more money than a school teacher who inspires 30 students to be better," Vettel said. "You tell me which one is more successful."

Vettel's speech led into honoring two teams that had a lot of success this season with the 11-2 varsity and 6-2 junior varsity squads.

For the junior varsity Dallon Washington and Will Bowen took home the top honors as Offensive and Defensive MVPs.

Other junior varsity award winners were: Dustin Carwile, Unsung Hero; Daylon Sheppard, Unsung Hero; Carwile, Academic Award; Jacob Strickland, Academic Award; Tim Dotson, Academic Award; and Nathan Taylor, Coaches Award.

Varsity head coach Brian Allen led into the varsity portion of the awards by thanking the coaching staff and family for the time they put in behind the scenes.

"This coaching staff is like a family," Allen said. "A lot of them don't get recognition or their names in the paper as much, but it's an honor to have these guys beside me."

Allen also spoke of the honor it was to have four players named to the all-state team this season in Class 6A.

Taking home the top awards for the varsity were Ronald Timmons and Felix Woods.

Timmons was named the Offensive MVP, while Woods took home the honor for the defense.

Columbia High's Ronald Timmons (left) and Felix Woods were honored as the Tigers' offensive and defensive MVPs for the 2012 season.

Offensive coordinator Mitch Shoup introduced Timmons by announcing the numbers he had during a record-breaking year.

Timmons rushed for 1,800 yards — the most in Tigers' history — scored 22 touchdowns and averaged 140 yards per game.

Allen closed the ceremony with a speech that brought the head coach to tears when talking about Woods.

"This kid leads by example and he reminds me so much of me that it's crazy," Allen said. "He doesn't always get all the accolades, but I can guarantee that he will be successful."

Zedrick Woods took home the game's third phase MVP by capturing the Special Teams Award.

Other award winners for the varsity were: Brayden Thomas, Academic Award; Caleb Carswell,

Falcons double up

Lake City Middle School sweeps conference titles.

By TIM KIRBY
tkirby@lakecityreporter.com

Lake City Middle School soccer doubled up on conference championships with a sweep of Suwannee Middle School at Columbia High Stadium on Thursday.

Lake City's boys polished off a perfect season with a 7-0 win, while the Lady Falcons went into the final minute before pulling off a 2-1 victory.

Both teams had the best regular-season records and earned the right to host the championship games.

After a scoreless 12 minutes, Lake City's Hunter Houston had a pair of goals in just over a minute. Brock Edge assisted on the first goal and Joseph Beach on the second.

Lake City took the 2-0 lead into halftime.

The second-half scoring began in the first minute. Chase Erickson centered a ball from the right side and Edge drilled it off the crossbar. Trent Morrison was there to put in the rebound.

In the 37th minute, Houston intercepted a goal kick and punched it in to complete a hat trick.

Morrison made his own hat trick with two goals less than two minutes apart at 13:50 and 12:29. Edge capped the scoring with a penalty kick in the 49th minute.

The Falcons had 20 shots on goal, while Suwannee had one.

In the girls game, Suwannee got on the board first with a goal by Savannah Jackson shortly after the first-half water break.

Lake City's Ashley Nobles answered with a run down the left side. She dribbled past two defenders and beat the keeper on the right side.

The game stayed tied until the final minute when Nobles was taken down in the box and Lake City was awarded a penalty kick. Ashton Lee was called in to take the kick and drilled it home.

Daytona tests reveal issues with Gen 6 cars

With three days of restrictor-plate-track testing at Daytona International Speedway behind them, NASCAR's Sprint Cup Series teams and drivers now head to Charlotte Motor Speedway this week for another round of testing of the Generation 6 race cars that will make their competitive debuts in next month's Daytona 500.

The Daytona test seemed to show that the superspeedway versions of the cars don't work as well in the two-car pushing tandems that dominated racing at Daytona and Talladega Superspeedway in recent years. The bodies aren't well suited for pushing, as evidenced by a multi-car crash on Friday at Daytona that damaged 12 cars and sent several teams headed home early as they had no backup cars prepared.

That incident also brought to light just how much work remains to be done to have fleets of race cars ready for the early months of the 2013 season. With the radical changes to the cars since last year, teams are just now getting some of the key NASCAR-issued parts like hoods and trunk lids to use on those cars.

With NASCAR's encouragement, teams tried drafting at Daytona on Friday, and it wasn't long before a big lesson was learned. Dale Earnhardt Jr. in his Chevy and Marcos Ambrose in his Ford were near the front of the pack when Earnhardt tried to give Ambrose a shove to see if the tactic of the recent past would work with the 2013 Generation 6 cars, so named because it's the sixth different car that has run in NASCAR, dating back to the strictly stock vehicles that were used when the sport was founded back in 1948.

"I was just going to give [Ambrose] a push down the back straightaway and see if he could get the lead," Earnhardt explained. "I was trying to eventually get the lead myself. We got off the back straightaway and were just kind of pushing him along there and our cars sort of just didn't match up very well. I got him hooked into the fence."

Earnhardt said that earlier he'd pushed Martin Truex Jr.'s Toyota and had good results.

The Fords, he said, are different, which is not surprising given that one of the key aspects of the Generation 6 cars is that each manufacturer's car is unique and designed to more closely resemble the passenger car versions of the vehicles.

"The roll bar of the front of my car is just at the right place where [Ambrose's] car sits right up on top of that," Earnhardt said. "I sort of had him going down the back straightaway like a forklift."

Earnhardt also said the Chevy front end isn't the best for pushing.

"Our bumpers on the Chevys have a little bit of a point," he said. "It makes it a little bit of a challenge to get into guys and kind of help them. We definitely weren't doing that in the corner at all because it was pretty hairy trying to do it on the straightaways."

Earnhardt's Hendrick Motorsports teammate Jeff Gordon said push drafting is a much riskier proposition, especially now that the superspeedway cars have less downforce, which means they're harder to control in some circumstances.

"The cars drive pretty well," Gordon said. "You can't push, which I think is a good

After the Sprint Cup Series Preseason Thunder testing at Daytona International Speedway last week, drivers take the Generation 6 race cars for further test runs in South Carolina. (NASCAR photos) thing.

"The bad thing is, you can still get to the guy's bumper, but the cars just don't line up very well. You really just shouldn't even be doing it. Unfortunately, that is kind of that last little bit of momentum that you need to sometimes make the pass or make your lane move.

"So, it's something that is going to have to be dealt with very carefully. You are going to have to be cautious when you do it and do it with the right guys, but most of the time you're going to need to stay away from it."

Carl Edwards, looking to put a miserable 2012 season behind him, said he's anxious to start racing with the new package, especially the reduction in downforce.

"The cars are stuck less, and they are looser," he said. "That is good for racing. It is good for the fans. It will make it more exciting and make pit strategy come into play."

"If you put [fresh] tires on you will be able to go faster. I think all of that is good. This is going to be a heck of a race. I like that the cars were sliding around and hard to drive. It will make it a fun race."

For many at the Daytona test, the most immediate concern was the lack of inventory of body parts like hoods and trunk lids in race shops with the start of the season just a little over a month away.

The issue is one being faced by teams large and small.

Donnie Wingo, crew chief of the Wood Brothers' No. 21 Ford driven by Trevor Bayne, said his team, which only plans to race a partial schedule, worked up to the last minute to get its Daytona test car finished. And he said there was still some work to be done on the downforce car it plans to test at Charlotte this week.

Jimmie Johnson said the situation is basically the same over at the giant Hendrick Motorsports complex.

"Generally speaking, we just don't have any cars," he said. "This is our only speedway car for the 48 car. We want to have that as a backup when we come back. We still need to go home and build our 500 car. We just don't have the inventory."

"I mean we have four deck lids for our cars that are legal and they are on the four Hendrick cars that are here now. We're playing a big game of catch-up right now."

NASCAR vice president Robin Pemberton addressed the parts shortage during a press conference at Daytona.

"It's just a fact that there's a lack of inventory," he said, adding that he's confident the parts soon will be flowing through the supply pipeline. "The only thing that is short is hoods from the manufacturers and deck lids that come from our supplier."

"We're on a pretty organized schedule for delivery dates on those. There are over 100 deck lids out there in service right now."

"We'll be on a shipping schedule that starts next Friday, 50 every Friday, so we should be pretty well handled by the time we head off to Vegas [for the third points-paying race of the season on March 10]."

Pemberton said that if necessary, teams could swap those parts from one car to the next among their fleets.

Gordon, Bowyer mum on party

After their high-profile run-in at Phoenix International Raceway last fall, Jeff Gordon and Clint Bowyer just can't seem to get away from each other. A week after the Phoenix incident, one that saw Gordon fined and placed on NASCAR probation for intentionally wrecking Bowyer, the two raced for the win – without issues – at Homestead-Miami Speedway.

Then they ended up at the same New Year's party on a yacht owned Sean "P. Diddy" Combs, the wealthy rapper and music executive.

During their media sessions at Daytona testing, both were asked about the party but neither offered much insight into what transpired or whether there are issues still to be resolved.

"The question is how [Bowyer] got on the yacht," Gordon said with a smile. "That needs to be the real question ..."

"We were just hanging out having a good time and on walks Bowyer and [Kevin] Harvick and a couple other folks ... It was a great New Year's. I enjoyed myself very much."

Said Bowyer: "I'm pretty sure [Gordon] was on there. It was pretty late. Put it that way."

Pressed on the issue, Bowyer indicated he was growing tired of the subject.

"Who cares? Really, who cares?" he said.

Waltrip aims for Daytona 500

Two-time Daytona 500 winner Michael Waltrip plans to come out of semi-retirement and try to qualify the No. 30 Swan Racing Toyota for the Daytona 500.

"We're looking forward to Daytona," Waltrip said. "It's my favorite time of the year every year, to come down here and get to participate in the greatest race in the world, in my opinion. To have won it before just makes coming back that much more special. This year is going to be particularly cool for me because ... it's going to be basically a reunion of when we won a few of these things."

In joining the relatively new Swan team, Waltrip will be reunited with crew chief Tony Eury Jr. and competition director Steve Hmiel, both of whom worked with him when he drove for Dale Earnhardt Inc.

"It's just an amazing team that they've started, and I'm hoping that my driving the car can help us get sponsors and can help them jumpstart what is going to be a very exciting year for the Swan Racing team," Waltrip said. He added that he felt it was a bad idea for his own team to prepare a fourth car for him given the work it's taking to get the team's three regular cars prepared.

He said he's fairly confident he can make the starting field in the car normally driven by David Stremme.

"[Stremme] had a lot to do with the direction and the build of the car that he came here and made the race with a year ago, and his hands are all over the cars that I will be driving this year," Waltrip said. "Plus, Tony [Eury] Jr.'s confidence."

"We rode down [to Daytona] together and talked about some of the fun times we've had in the past, but mainly focused on what we're going to have in 2013 when we get back here in a couple of weeks."

Son remembers Luther Carter, late short track driver

Back in the early 1970s, one of Georgia's tough-as-nails short track drivers was leading a race on a north Georgia bullring when a raw rookie wrecked him out of a sure win.

The kid felt so bad about the crash, which caused lingering hard feelings between the two drivers' families, that he abandoned for a time his plans to become a race driver.

It wasn't until a year later that the boy took the wheel again. The second time around, things went much smoother.

The veteran driver continued to race the short tracks for decades, and actually became a fan of the youngster who once robbed him of a victory.

That young driver's name: Bill Elliott. The veteran was Luther Carter, who died Jan. 4 at 75 of cancer.

A few years back, Elliott sought out Carter and told him how sorry he was about that wreck those many years ago.

"I wanted to quit that night," Elliott said. "I really felt bad about that."

Carter was deeply moved by the gesture.

"It meant a lot to me for a man of his stature to do something like that," Carter said at that time. Mark Carter, Luther's son, said his father, a bulldozer operator and grading company owner by trade who raced cars numbered 3 throughout his career, had a lot in common with the late Dale Earnhardt when it came to his driving style.

"He wouldn't put up with much, and he wasn't afraid to stand up for what he thought was right," Mark Carter said, adding that Carter chose that number because he was a fan of Junior Johnson, who raced a No. 3 back in the day. "He told me when I started racing that if you ever start taking abuse you'll have to take it for the rest of your life. And you had to be tough back when he raced.

"But he also spent a lot of his time riding kids in his race car, and he gave away most of his trophies."

DEAR ABBY

King of the whoppers doesn't fool wife's clear-eyed cousin

www.dearabby.com

DEAR ROYAL HIGHNESS: Yes, if you do it privately, and say you are speaking up only because you are worried about their welfare. Then explain why you think Tom's stories don't hold water and point out that if he should volunteer any financial advice to them they should first run it past an unbiased non-family member such as their banker, lawyer, CPA or pastor before making any investments.

From your description, Tom appears to be a con man or compulsive liar. But whether your uncle and aunt choose to accept your input is up to them.

DEAR ABBY: I work at home and use my computer. Everyone who lives here is over 35.

My step-grandchildren visit regularly, and I have told the children's mother that I have no parental restrictions on my computer. She assured me not to worry about it because she has reinforced the rules of responsible Internet usage with them and is confident her children won't break the rules. As far as I know, they haven't.

Today, one of my brothers-in-law visited and brought along his young teenage daughter. I let her play on the computer, and he caught her in a chat room with an older teenage boy. Instead of blaming her, he attacked ME for being too permissive with children and computers.

Do you think it is my responsibility to "protect" his teenager on my computer? - JUST A GEEK IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR JUST A GEEK: No, I do not. I suspect that you were attacked because of displaced anger. His daughter deserved the scolding, however, because he could not (for whatever reason) scold her, he directed his anger at you instead.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter was recently married. My niece - a talented artist - hand-painted flowers on wine glasses for the dinner reception following the ceremony. They were intended to be keepsakes for each of the adult guests.

The glasses turned out beautifully, and made each place setting extra special. I knew they'd be treasured by our family for years to come.

At the end of the evening, I gathered four glasses from our family's table, then glanced at the bridal table of eight - as some guests approached to offer thanks for a fabulous evening. When I turned around, the four glasses were gone. Not only had glasses disappeared from our table, but also from the head table and from my niece's (the artist). Those of us who had worked hardest on the wedding were left with nothing - and that includes the bride and groom.

The following day, someone mentioned to me that they had seen certain guests leave with four to six glasses each. One woman even had her child, who was loaded down with glasses, make several trips to her car.

We've figured out who the culprits were: some out-of-towners who stayed at the home of one of the groom's relatives. I heard that the glassware covered the entire top of their dining room table. My question: Should we ask these people to return the glasses? Thanks for your input, Abby. - MOTHER OF THE BRIDE IN MESA, ARIZ.

DEAR MOTHER: By all means ask - but there is no guarantee they'll be returned. People who take more than their share usually feel an inflated sense of entitlement. Although their manners were atrocious, please don't let this cause in-law problems before the marriage has even begun. Perhaps out of sympathy, the artist will be generous enough to craft another pair of goblets for the bride and groom.

DEAR ABBY: I am in a one-year relationship with a wonderful man who is divorced with two children. The kids and I get along great - or at least I thought we did. It turns out they are making up lies about me and telling their mother. My boyfriend and his ex have a strained relationship and fight about everything. I love his children, but I don't know how to handle this. What do you think I am doing wrong? - TELLING THE TRUTH IN DULUTH

DEAR TELLING THE TRUTH: You're not doing anything wrong. Either the kids are trying to cause a breakup with the idea their parents will reunite, or they are telling their mother things they think she wants to hear. There's nothing you can do about it. Your boyfriend will have to clear the air with his former spouse.

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman who was raised in the South by a very proper mother. She told me that a man should never give a woman "intimate" gifts like lingerie.

A friend and I have argued about whether this "rule" applies today. I still believe the practice is unacceptable, even if you are engaged. She thinks it is OK. Please settle this. - CONFUSED IN OREGON

DEAR CONFUSED: Perhaps the two of you should agree to disagree on this one. Your mother is part of the "hands off" generation, and the logic was that knowing lingerie sizes was "too intimate" for couples who weren't married. In today's world, however, such logic would put companies like La Perla and Victoria's Secret out of business.

Jaguars hire Seahawks' Bradley as head coach

By MARK LONG

Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE — The Jacksonville Jaguars hired Seattle defensive coordinator Gus Bradley as head coach Thursday, the latest move in the team's rebuilding project.

He joins general manager Dave Caldwell, who led the coaching search after being hired last week.

"It was just a matter of time before Gus Bradley became a head coach in the NFL, and the Jacksonville Jaguars are extremely fortunate that Gus will be on our sidelines for many years to come," Caldwell said in a statement. "Gus more than met every criteria we insisted on from our new head coach, and his intangibles and leadership abilities are exceptional. Gus is who the Jaguars need now and in the future."

Bradley spent the last four seasons in Seattle, where his defense improved each of the last three years and finished in the top 10 in points and yards the last two. This season, the Seahawks ranked first in the NFL in points allowed (15.3), fourth in yards (306.2) and tied for fourth in takeaways (31).

The Jaguars were 30th in the league in total defense in 2012.

Owner "Shad Khan and Dave Caldwell expect to win, and that's what I wanted to hear," Bradley said. "That's why I am coming to Jacksonville — to win a Super Bowl."

Bradley will be introduced at a news conference Friday.

He began his NFL coaching career with Tampa Bay as a defensive quality control coach in 2006. He was the Buccaneers' linebackers coach the next two seasons before going to Seattle. Bradley coached in college from 1990-2005, including two stints at his alma mater, North Dakota State, and four years at Fort Lewis College (1992-95).

But his rise through the NFL ranks had him on several teams' radar. He also interviewed for the head job in Philadelphia this week.

"He's got a brilliant football mind," Seahawks coach Peter Carroll said this week. "He's got a way of reaching people and touching people and getting the best out of them, coaches and players alike. He's got everything that you're looking for."

The Jaguars interviewed defensive coordinator Mel Tucker, St. Louis Rams offensive coordinator Brian Schottenheimer and Cincinnati Bengals offensive coordinator Jay Gruden before striking a deal with Bradley.

Bradley replaces Mike Mularkey, who went 2-14 in his only season in Jacksonville. Mularkey failed to make the team any better in his first season.

Khan fired general manager Gene Smith, the architect of the roster the last four years, and charged Caldwell with turning around one of the league's worst franchises. Caldwell's first move was ousting Mularkey, saying the team "needed a fresh start."

"I'm looking for a co-builder of our team," Caldwell said last week. "I felt like it was an atmosphere of change. I felt like that to do that, you've got to have a fresh start across the board."

Many believed Caldwell would target close friend and college roommate Greg Roman, San Francisco's offensive coordinator.

Instead, Caldwell and Bradley will team up in hope of getting the Jaguars back to the playoffs for the first time since 2007. Jacksonville has missed the postseason 11 times in the last 13 years.

"The relationship between the general manager and the coach is vital," Khan said last week. "It has to be a symbiotic relationship and they have to grow together and the coach has to be somebody that it's very, very important to win and very, very important for Jacksonville."

Bradley inherits a team with few playmakers on either side of the ball.

Durkin set to replace Quinn as Gators defensive coordinator

By MARK LONG

GAINESVILLE — Florida coach Will Muschamp wasted little time finding a replacement for departing defensive coordinator Dan Quinn.

He didn't have to search very far, either.

Muschamp promoted linebackers coach/special teams coordinator D.J. Durkin to the DC position Thursday, keeping some continuity during a hectic recruiting period. Durkin will continue to serve as linebacker coach.

"D.J. and I will run the defense, continuing the way that Dan and I did for the past two years," Muschamp said in a statement.

Quinn accepted an offer to return to the NFL as Seattle's defensive coordinator earlier Thursday, hours after Gus Bradley left to take the head-coaching job with the Jacksonville Jaguars.

Quinn served as Florida's coordinator the past two seasons, working closely with Muschamp as the Gators ranked in the top 10 nationally in total defense. He previously worked as Seattle's defensive line coach.

"I'm happy for Dan and this opportunity," Muschamp said. "I always encourage my staff, when opportunities arise, to take the next step in their career. Dan's background is in the NFL, and this is a great chance to go back to a place he's familiar with."

Muschamp plans to hire an assistant to fill out his coaching staff.

Durkin spent the last three seasons in Gainesville, one of the few holdovers from former coach Urban Meyer's staff.

Durkin began his coaching career as a graduate assistant under Meyer at Bowling Green in 2001 and later served stints as a defensive assistant at Notre Dame (2003-04), Bowling Green (2005-06) and Stanford (2007-09).

He was a four-year starter at defensive end/linebacker at Bowling Green (1997-2000) and was a team captain as a junior and senior.

Now, he becomes Florida's third defensive coordinator in the last four years. Charlie Strong left to become Louisville's head coach following the 2009 season. Teryl Austin replaced him for one season. Muschamp hired Quinn in 2011.

Durkin takes over a Florida defense that is losing seven starters. Defensive tackle Sharrif Floyd, safety Matt Elam and linebacker Jelani Jenkins left school early to enter the NFL. Four seniors — defensive tackle Omar Hunter, safety Josh Evans, linebacker Jon Bostic and defensive end Lerentee McCray — also are moving on.

But the Gators have plenty of talent on that side of the ball, with cornerbacks Loucheiz Purifoy and Marcus Roberson returning along with defensive linemen Dominique Easley, Jonathan Bullard and Dante Fowler. Florida also has young linebackers Antonio Morrison, Michael Taylor and Neiron Ball.
