Alcohol sales hours up for vote

Commission to consider ordinance amendment extending sales until 2 a.m.

By TONY BRITT
tbritt@lakecityreporter.com

Local bars could get an extra hour to sell alcoholic beverages if approved by county officials Thursday afternoon.

The county commission is considering an amendment that would allow bars and restaurants that sell alcoholic beverages to continue until 2 a.m. Mondays through Saturdays. Commissioners previously tabled their decision on the matter.

The county Alcoholic Beverages Ordinance currently only allows businesses where alcohol is consumed or sold to continue sales until 1 a.m.

Last month County Manager Dale

Williams said the county commission was petitioned by an attorney, who represents certain business interests, about making the change in the hours of alcohol sales. Williams did not provide the names of the businesses.

Harvey Campbell, county Tourist Development Council director, said he has mixed feelings about the proposal.

"Professionally, I think local businesses should be allowed to be competitive," he said. "If they are working at a disadvantage compared to Gainesville or Live Oak, I don't think it's good. Personally, I just don't think a lot of good things happen after 1 a.m."

Campbell said he is uncertain how the potential change could impact local establishments. He said some could make more money, but at what costs.

Water supply action planned

County officials look for ways to continue efforts.

Columbia County officials want to take a more proactive approach to protecting the area's water supply.

County commissioner Ron Williams is scheduled to lead a discussion on the next steps for the county's water protection efforts.

Ron Williams

The discussion will take place during the 5:30 p.m. county commission meeting at the Columbia County School Board Administrative Complex auditorium, 372 W. Duval St.

Earlier this year, the county withdrew its financial support from Florida Leaders Organized for Water. However, county officials say they are committed to protecting the area's water supply.

According to a memorandum written by David Kraus, county safety manager, discussions between Commissioner Williams and Dale Williams, county manager, have led to the realization that working with a

A half-inch hole in a water pipe can leak 60,900 gallons of water a day, according to city officials.

Less than nine months ago, Lake City customer services wouldn't notice the leak for 30 days. Now, that same gush of water can be caught in as little as a day, the city customer service manager said.

Jason Dumas said the city council authorized spending $2.9 million to upgrade the old water and gas meters to a new smart meter system in November. Dumas said the new system will save customers money and help preserve the city's water supply.

About 10,000 smart meters have been installed since. The new devices monitor gas lines and water lines, Dumas said, and provide electronic updates every four hours to City Hall.

"What it does is it pulls and reads from the meters," Dumas said. "... It reads your water consumption every hour, and every four hours the information is sent ... to us."

Before, a city employee would read the meter at the beginning of the service period and then at the end, he said. There was no way for the utility department to tell a cus-

A lightning strike during Monday night's thunderstorm ruptured a 12-inch water main, cutting the water supply to the Lake City Medical Center and residents near The Country Club at Lake City.

The lightning strike occurred around 10:30 p.m. Monday to a guard was doing a perimeter check and found the water main break, as thousands of gallons of water poured north towards the country club and filled a retention pond north of the hospital.

Hampton said city work crews were able to shut off the leak around 4 a.m. and restored water to residents in the area.

Broadway marks Stapleton's passing

NEW YORK

Broadway theaters will dim their marquee lights Wednesday night in memory of Jean Stapleton, the actress who played the sweetly naive Edith in TV's groundbreaking 1970s comedy "All in the Family."

The Broadway League said the lights were to be dimmed for one minute at exactly 8 p.m. EDT. Stapleton died Friday in New York at 90 of natural causes.

The theater was Stapleton's first love and she compiled a rich resume, starting in 1941 as a New England stock player and moving to Broadway in the 1950s and 60s.

In 1964, she originated the role of Mrs. Strakosh in "Funny Girl" with Barbra Streisand. Others musicals and plays included "Bells Are Ringing," "Rhinoceros" and "Damn Yankees."

Channing Tatum, wife have a baby girl

NEW YORK — Channing Tatum will be juggling acting with diaper duty: He and wife Jenna Dewan-Tatum have a daughter to dote on.

Everly Tatum was born last Friday in London, where her father is filming the movie "Jupiter Ascending." The birth was announced on separate websites for both parents with the message "Welcome to the World!"

This is the first child for the Tatums. They met on the set of the film "Step Up" and have been married since 2009. The couple co-starred in last year's "10 Years."

Tatum, who is People magazine's reigning "Sexiest Man Alive," is best known for films such as "Magic Mike" and "21 Jump Street." His next film, "White House Down," is

Gov. approves bank settlement

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Rick Scott is signing off on a plan to use $200 million the state received as a part of a national agreement reached between major banks and 49 states.

Scott on Tuesday signed into law (SB 1852) a measure that sets aside money for everything from domestic violence shelters to affordable housing programs and Habitat for Humanity.

The settlement was approved last year but Attorney General Pam Bondi and legislators quietly tussled for months over who would control the money.

House Speaker Will Weatherford in January said there was no intention to do a "bait and switch" and use the settlement money to replace programs already receiving state funding.

But the final state budget diverted money from trust funds set aside for affordable housing into other programs.

Kids jump from drunk dad's car

PALM COAST — Authorities said three children visiting from Ohio jumped out of a moving car with their drunken father behind the wheel.

Demitri Nicholas of Piqua, Ohio, was arrested Monday in Palm Coast and charged with felony child neglect. Jail records show he's been released from the Flagler County Jail after posting $2,500 bond. It's not immediately known if he has an attorney.

A charging affidavit shows the 41-year-old was driving erratically with his three children in the car. The children told deputies they jumped out while he was driving "relatively slow" because they were afraid.

The children walked to a neighbor's house, where they called for help. The charging affidavit states that Nicholas never went back to get them.

He showed up hours later and was arrested.

Students arrested for selling guns

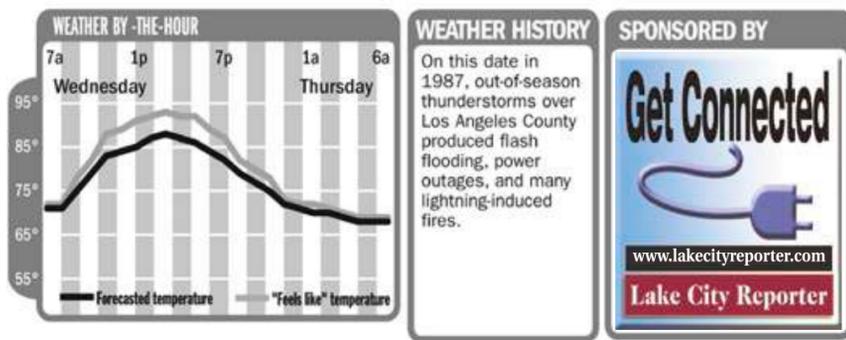

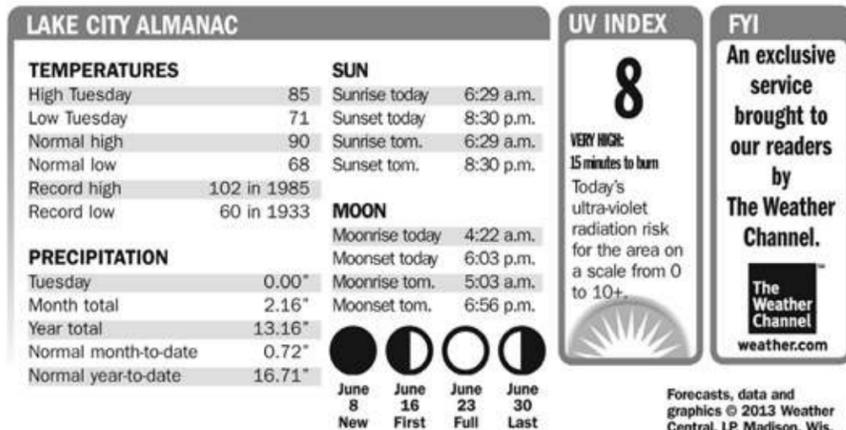

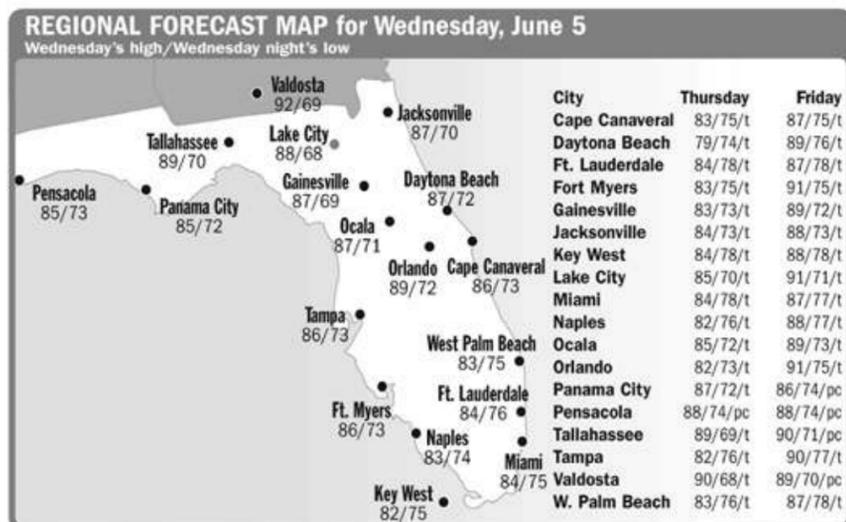

STUART — Five high school students were arrested in connection with selling guns on school property that had been stolen from a home, authorities said Tuesday.

The suspects attended Community Christian Academy in Stuart and range in age from 15 to 17, according to a sheriff's office statement.

School officials contacted authorities May 16 to report they had received information that two students may have brought guns on campus, the sheriff's office said. The school principal was acting on a tip from students.

Gainesville man arrested following high-speed chase

By DEREK GILLIAM

A Gainesville man led High Springs police on a high speed-chase before stopping his car and running into the woods off of County Road 18 in Columbia County, according to a Columbia County Sheriff's Office arrest report.

David Burdette McNeill, 40, faces charges of fleeing and attempting to elude, battery on a law enforcement officer, resisting arrest with violence, resisting arrest without violence and habitual driving with a suspended or revoked license, the report said.

The chase began Saturday in Alachua County after police were called to 24524 NW 204th Road in reference to a car speeding back and forth near a gas station, the report said.

Officer James Yakubsin, of the High Springs Police Department, spotted the car in High Springs and followed it, the report said.

"As I was behind the car, I got the tag and observed the vehicle swerving and running off the road several times," Yakubsin wrote in his report.

When Yakubsin turned on his emergency lights, the car took off down U.S. 441 toward Columbia County at about 90 mph, the report said. The car got off U.S. 441 at County Road 18.

McNeill got out of the vehicle and ran, the report said.

Yakubsin tackled McNeill and the two fought. Eventually, another HSPD officer arrived and they were able to subdue McNeill, the report said.

McNeill was taken to Shands Lake Shore Lake City, where he was treated. He was then taken to Columbia County Detention Facility and booked.

After being booked, McNeill was taken by Yakubsin to Alachua County jail. His bond was set at $20,000.

Fort White man faces drug charges

A Fort White man faces drug charges after Columbia County sheriff's deputies found him with a methamphetamine lab Monday, a sheriff's office news release said.

Jonathan Scott Keen, 27, faces charges of producing methamphetamine, trafficking in methamphetamine and possession of drug equipment, a sheriff's office arrest report said.

Deputies went to 168 SW Freedom Court in Fort White in search of Keen, for whom they had a felony warrant, the report said.

Keen was found lying on the floor inside the home, the report said.

While at the property, Deputy Patrick Smyth smelled a strong, distinctive chemical odor coming from a shed, which he wrote is consistent with the manufacture of methamphetamine.

Smyth found a clear 2-liter bottle with lithium battery strips and chemicals consistent with making methamphetamine inside the home, the report said. Members of the Multi Jurisdictional Task Force were sent to the home to help deputies document the drug activity, the news release said.

"(Task force) deputies contained the dangerous and noxious chemicals and collected evidence after a search warrant was obtained," the news release said.

According to the news release, the task force is composed of sheriff's office deputies, Florida Department of Law Enforcement officers and U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agents.

Keen was booked into Columbia County Detention Facility on no bond, the news release said.

MAIN: Lightning strike breaks pipe to hospital

"The lightning blew the chunks out the bottom of the pipe," he said. "The crews had to replace 30 feet of pipe."

Hampton said thousands of gallons of water poured through the break before it could be contained.

"My superintendent got swept away by the water because it was flowing down that hill so fast," he said, noting the worker was not injured.

Customers in the area had intermittent water service until crews diverted the water around 4 a.m.

"We were without running water for a few hours," said Mark Robinson, medical center CEO.

He said the hospital has contingency plans and water on site that is used to continue infection control practices and to make sure patients have water when requested.

"No services were impacted," Robinson said. "We just changed the way we provided water."

Robinson said normal water service was restored around 5 a.m.

"It was just the ebbs and flows of the hospital at the end of the day," he said. "The great thing about it is we have contingency plans for gaps in utilities, so we can act and take care of our patients."

Robinson it was the first time they used the water contingency plan in the year he's been there.

tomers when a leak started, he said. "We just had a read for a 30-day period," he said. "With this technology, we actually are able to go ahead and see every hour how much water you use."

Dumas said the technology has alarms that sound when water usage jumps to an abnormal level. When the customer service department receives a notification from a smart meter that a customer has what it terms a "high bill," Dumas checks with the customer and sends out a technician to see if there's anything wrong with city equipment.

"But most of the time it's toilet leaks," he said. "Sometimes consumers know about the leak, sometimes they don't."

Also, the system can tell customers how much water they use while irrigating their yards.

"What we are finding is that some customers have broken sprinkler heads that cause their irrigation system to use more water than it should," Dumas said.

Dumas said much of the time, people don't know about the broken sprinkler heads. If a user of city water consumes 2,000 gallons of water per month and a sprinkler head breaks, their water usage could jump to 10,000 gallons a month, he said.

The cost for the wasted water would only be about $15, he said.

"Money-wise that's not a lot of money, but water-wise it's a lot of water to us. We are trying to conserve the city's water supply," he said.

Dumas said the customer service department is still getting used to the new technology, and has only started to scratch the surface of what the system is capable of doing.

As the employees learn how the system works and understand what all the codes mean, more water will be conserved.

"More so than anything else, you want the water to be around for your kids when they get older," Dumas said.

County officials are proposing to meet with representatives from White Springs, Branford, Alachua County, Save Our Suwannee, Santa Fe Rivers

"Columbia County still believes that the clout of our local governments meeting, discussing and supporting protection efforts remains critical to making a difference," Kraus wrote. "However, a small committed group will be more effective in crafting our legislative agenda, monitoring water management activities and working with the water management districts. This core group will allow Columbia County to

Harassment policy infringes on speech

Free speech lies at the core of American democracy — but maybe not the American university. Recent guidance from the Obama administration on what constitutes sexual harassment at colleges is so broad it could trigger new campus speech codes that could punish even innocuous references to sexual topics. The administration should reconsider its directive, and universities should petition for clearer, more reasonable standards.

The Education and Justice departments, responding to allegations of mishandled sexual assault cases, wrote an open letter to the University of Montana in May that set new standards for defining sexual harassment. Its provisions are intended to act as guidance for colleges nationwide. But one part of the policy broadly defines sexual harassment as “any unwelcome conduct of a sexual nature,” including speech. That is far too broad.

Legal precedent now says that to show sexual harassment, a “reasonable person” must find an environment sufficiently hostile. The new Obama policy scraps that standard and means any individual — no matter how thin-skinned or reactionary — could condemn conduct as harassment. It would potentially shift campus administrators from presuming offensive speech is constitutionally protected to aggressively punishing it.

Universities cognizant of the stakes — federal funding in the form of Pell grants and Stafford loans, a costly investigation or image-damaging lawsuit — will likely feel bound by the letter. That will encourage self-censorship, or punishing people who flout the policy’s standards, rather than risking the image of being a campus tolerant of sexual harassment. And the overreaction of some college administrators to sexual themes is not theoretical. Just this spring, college administrators at a New Mexico community college shut down the journalism program after students released a sex-themed issue of the campus newspaper.

Suppressing speech deemed uncomfortable also will divert resources from rooting out real harassment and sexual assaults on college campuses. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimate that 20 percent to 25 percent of college women experience attempted or completed sexual assaults. Yet 54 percent of sexual assaults are never reported to police. Preventing assaults — not censoring speech — is where college campuses should focus their energy.

The Obama administration should revisit this policy’s general wording and make it consistent with the right to be free from government punishment pertaining to speech, even when it is offensive.

Honest conversations between strangers

On a recent flight — one of 20 that I’ve been on in the past two months — I wrestled my carry-on into the overhead bin and collapsed in a seat on the aisle.

I was hoping to get lucky and have an empty seat beside me to stretch out in. Apparently, a flight attendant read my mind.

“We have a full flight today,” she announced, “so please place smaller items under the seat in front of you and leave the overhead bin for larger items that won’t fit below.”

An image flashed in my brain: Me, curled up, sound asleep and grinning in the overhead bin.

The image was short-lived. “Excuse me,” said a young man, nodding at the window seat beside me. “That’s me.”

I climbed out and he climbed in, shoved a backpack under the seat and buckled his seat belt.

He was wearing a Miami Heat hat. I started to say I wanted the Pacers to beat the Heat in the playoffs. But before I could speak, he pulled his hat over his eyes and began to snore.

Fine. Some days I want to talk. Other days I don’t. This was definitely a “don’t talk” day. I’d done nothing but talk for weeks, it seemed, and I did not want to talk anymore. Not even about basketball. I just wanted to sit back and enjoy the ride.

An older woman — yes, slightly older than I am — took the seat across the aisle and started reading “Fifty Shades of Grey” on her Kindle. The print was big enough for me to read it, too. Not that I did. Or would.

www.sharonrandall.com

Finally, all the bins were shut, all seats were filled, all rules and regulations and instructions were recited. (Personally, I think anybody who has to be told more than once to buckle a seat belt or shut off a cellphone shouldn’t be allowed out in public, let alone on a plane.)

And once again the miracle began, as some 200 wingless, earth-bound creatures “slipped the surly bonds of Earth ... and touched the face of God.”

Those words are from “High Flight,” a poem by John Magee, an American who served in the Royal Canadian Air Force and died at the age of 19, in a midair collision in World War II.

I memorized that poem in high school, years before I ever boarded a flight, and I still think of it most every time I fly.

I was trying to recite it from memory, but got distracted and decided instead to eavesdrop.

The woman across the aisle had quit “Fifty Shades of Grey” to listen to a woman on her right describe a diet on which she hoped to lose 30 pounds.

One row up, two young men were discussing commitment. “She wants to get married and have a baby,” said one.

“Gonna do it?” said the other.

“I don’t want to lose her,” said the first. “But I don’t know if I’m ready to get married. And I’m not sure if I’ll ever want kids.”

And behind me, a young woman was pouring her heart out to the man beside her, and wondering if she should quit her boring job and go back to school to become a teacher.

What struck me about those conversations is they all took place between total strangers who talked honestly, listened closely, offered good advice and actually seemed to care.

I hoped God was listening.

In a different seat, I might’ve asked for more details about “Fifty Shades of Grey” or the diet to lose 30 pounds.

I might have told the commitment-phobic guy that you can’t always be sure about everything in life, but you need to be dang sure about marriage and children.

Or I might’ve said to the young woman behind me that life is too precious to waste it being bored and the world surely needs more good teachers.

But they didn’t need me to say anything. They figured it all out together, without me.

Sometimes you don’t need to talk. You just need to listen.

Flying is not the only way to touch the face of God.

Deal with the deficit now

Optimists in the nation’s capital had hoped that congressional Democrats and Republicans and the White House would reach some sort of grand bargain on deficit reduction this summer — or at least before the end of the fiscal year Sept. 30.

Now it looks like that’s not going to happen. The sense of urgency is not there.

Thanks to shrinking federal deficits, an improving economy, a slowdown in the increase in health-care costs and political intransigence, the federal fiscal outlook is much less grim than when talk of the bargain began.

The federal government had been expected to reach its debt ceiling this spring, at which point the administration would have to ask Congress to raise the borrowing limit so the government could keep functioning.

But now the Congressional Budget Office says the government won’t hit the debt ceiling until October or November. The threat of a government shutdown has generally proved a great motivator for Congress, but long-range thinking — “long-range” meaning sometime after the August recess — has never been lawmakers’ strong suit.

mcfeattersd@shns.com

And by then there won’t be time to do much because of the press of other work.

Both the House and Senate are writing budget bills — the Senate for the first time in four years — but they are likely to be irreconcilable. The GOP-run House is inclined to stick with the spending caps in the sequester bill except for military and veterans spending. There will be allowances made for program cuts that seriously annoy the public. Congress restored money to the Federal Aviation Administration after sequestration-caused furloughs resulted in widespread flight delays.

The Senate is writing a $1.058 trillion spending bill that assumes — wrongly, in all likelihood — that some kind of deficit-reduction deal will be reached. The two sides might yet come to an agreement. Miracles do happen, and a miracle is what it would take.

What’s more likely come Oct. 1 is that Congress will pass temporary, short-term spending bills, which is too bad because the time to deal with the budget and the deficit is now, when the situation is improving, rather than wait for the inevitable crisis.

Music event raises $1,450 for Fla. Cancer Foundation

By AMANDA WILLIAMSON
awilliamson@lakecityreporter.com

A Branford festival raised $1,450 Saturday in support of the Florida Breast Cancer Foundation, delivering on the promise of food, fun and entertainment.

To celebrate the first anniversary of Ellie Ray's RV Resort and Lounge being owned by the Sturgeons, the family organized the Shades of Pink Outdoor Festival to raise money for the cancer foundation.

Not long after Tom and Michelle Sturgeon purchased the park, Michelle Sturgeon was diagnosed with breast cancer and is undergoing chemotherapy.

Lynnsey Sturgeon, their daughter, considered the first outdoor festival to be a success.

"This event is very near and dear to our hearts," she said before the event.

Dan Joyce RV Mobile Repair, Scorpion Airboats and Snow-biz Snow Cones all sponsored the festival. Other donations came from raffles and ticket sales.

Live entertainment lasted all day, including artists like Jamie Davis, Lost Southern Boys and DJ Nasty.

"The community support was really exciting to see,"

Lynnsey Sturgeon said. "We look forward to having more events like this in the future."

Since Michelle Sturgeon developed cancer, many people went to the resort office telling stories of how cancer affected their lives.

Cancer seems to be a major problem in North

Florida, Lynnsey Sturgeon said. But future events could support any cause, she said.

The park is selling raffle tickets for a motorcycle, with a winner to be announced on Labor Day. Proceeds will go to Tough Enough to Wear Pink, a campaign to fight breast cancer.

LAKE CITY AREA RESIDENTS CASH IN: Pictured above and protected by armed guards are the overstuffed Vault Bags that everyone is trying to get. It's hard to tell how much these Overstuffed bags containing 10 Vault Bags full of money could be worth someday. That's because each Vault Bag is known to contain over 100 U.S. Gov't issued coins some dating back to the early 1900s.

State zip codes determine who gets free Silver coins

Bags of U.S. Gov't issued coins loaded with a small fortune are up for grabs as thousands of U.S. residents stand to miss the deadline to claim the money; now any resident of Florida who finds their zip code listed below gets to claim the bags of money for themselves and keep all the valuable coins found inside by covering the Vault Bag fee within the next 2 days

FLORIDA - The phone lines are ringing off the hook.

That's because for the next 2 days Vault Bags containing valuable U.S. Gov't issued coins are actually being handed over to Lake City area residents who find their zip code listed in today's publication.

"It's hard to tell how much these Vault Bags could be worth. That's because after they were loaded with over 100 U.S. Gov't issued coins including: Silver, scarce, highly collectible and circulating coins the dates were unsearched and the bags were sealed for good. But, we do know that some of the coins date clear back to the early 1900s. Any one of these Vault Bags could be worth a small fortune," said Timothy J. Shissler, Chief Numismatist for the private World Reserve.

The only thing residents need to do is find their zip code on the Distribution List printed in today's publication. If their zip code is on the list, they need to immediately call the National Claim Hotline before the 2-day order deadline ends.

Everyone who does is being given the 90% pure Silver Walking Liberty coin for free just by covering the Vault Bags each loaded with over 100 U.S. Gov't issued coins for only $99 each as long as they call before the deadline ends.

Since this advertising announcement can't stop dealers and collectors from hoarding all the valuable coins they can get their hands on, the World Reserve had to set a strict limit of ten Vault Bags per resident.

"Coin values always fluctuate and there are never any guarantees, but those who get in on this now will be the really smart ones. Just think what some of these coins could be worth someday," said Shissler.

Each Vault Bag is loaded with a small fortune containing in part, highly sought after valuable collector coins dating clear back to the 1900s including a 90% pure Silver Walking Liberty Half Dollar, an Eisenhower Dollar, some of the last ever minted U.S. Dollars, Kennedy Half Dollars, Silver Mercury Dimes, rarely seen Liberty 'V' Nickels, nearly 100 year old Buffalo Nickels and circulating U.S. Gov't issued nickels, dimes and quarter dollars.

"We're bracing for all the calls because there are just hours left for residents to get the Silver coins free," he said.

So, Lake City area residents lucky enough to find their zip code listed in today's publication need to immediately call the National Claim Hotlines before the 2-day deadline ends to get the Silver coins free. If lines are busy keep trying, all calls will be answered. ■

LOADED WITH VALUABLE COINS: The phone lines are ringing off the hook. ► How to claim the bags of U.S. Gov't issued coins: Read the important information listed below about claiming the Vault Bags. Then call the National Claim Hotline before the 2-day deadline ends at: 1-888-282-6742

► Who gets to claim the bags of money: Thousands of U.S. residents stand to miss the deadline to claim the money. Now Lake City area residents who find the first two digits of their zip code listed in today's publication and beat the 2-day deadline get to claim the bags of money for themselves and keep all the U.S. Gov't issued coins found inside.

► I keep calling and can't get through: That's because each Vault Bag is guaranteed to contain a free Silver Walking Liberty coin and just that one coin alone could be worth up to $325 in collector value. So thousands of residents are calling to claim as many Vault Bags as they can get before they're all gone. In fact, since each Vault Bag fee has been reduced to just $99 nearly everyone is claiming at least three bags. So if lines are busy keep trying, all calls will be answered.

► How much are the Vault Bags worth: It's hard to tell how much these Vault Bags could be worth. That's because after they were loaded with over 100 U.S. Gov't issued coins including: Silver, scarce, highly collectible and circulating coins the dates were unsearched and the bags were sealed for good. But we do know that some of the coins date back to the early 1900s. That means any one of these Vault Bags could be worth a small fortune. So you better believe at just $99 the Vault Bag fee is a real steal since the free Silver Walking Liberty coin alone could be worth up to $325 in collector value.

► Are the Silver Walking Liberty coins really Free: Yes. All Lake City area residents who beat the 2-day deadline are instantly being awarded a Silver Walking Liberty coin free with each Vault Bag they claim.

► Why is the Vault Bag fee so low: Because thousands of U.S. residents have missed the deadline to claim the money it's being held in limbo at the vaults of the World Reserve and it has to be moved out in the next 2 days. That means the money is up for grabs and now any resident who finds the first two digits of their zip code on the Distribution List below gets to claim the bags of money for themselves and keep all the U.S. Gov't issued coins found inside. Each Vault Bag fee was set at $149, but residents who beat the 2-day deadline cover the reduced Vault Bag fee of just $99 as long as they call the National Claim Hotline before the deadline ends at: 1-888-282-6742.

FDA to probe added caffeine

Investigation to answer growing concerns about drug's health effects.

By MARY CLARE JALONICK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — For people seeking an energy boost, companies are increasing their offerings of foods with added caffeine. A new caffeinated gum may have gone too far.

The Food and Drug Administration said it will investigate the safety of added caffeine and its effects on children and adolescents. The agency made the announcement just as Wrigley was rolling out Alert Energy Gum, a new product that includes as much caffeine as a half a cup of coffee in one piece and promises "the right energy, right now."

Michael Taylor, FDA's deputy commissioner of foods, indicated that the proliferation of new foods with caffeine added — especially the gum, which he equates to "four cups of coffee in your pocket" — may even prompt the FDA to look closer at the way all food ingredients are regulated.

The agency is already investigating the safety of energy drinks and energy shots, prompted by consumer reports of illness and deaths.

Taylor said Monday that the only time FDA explicitly approved the added use of caffeine in a food or drink was in the 1950s for colas. The current proliferation of caffeine added to foods is "beyond anything FDA envisioned," Taylor said.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Wm. Wrigley Jr. Co.'s new Alert Energy Caffeine Gum and a proliferation of similar products have prompted the Food and Drug Administration to investigate caffeine added to foods.

"It is disturbing," Taylor told The Associated Press. "We're concerned about whether they have been adequately evaluated."

Caffeine has the regulatory classification of "generally recognized as safe," or GRAS, which means manufacturers can add it to products and then determine on their own whether the product is safe.

"This raises questions about how the GRAS concept is working and is it working adequately," Taylor said of the gum and other caffeine-added products.

As food companies have created more new ingredients to add health benefits, improve taste or help food stay fresh, there are at least 4,650 of these "generally recognized as safe" ingredients, according to the nonpartisan Pew Charitable Trusts. The bulk of them, at least 3,000, were determined GRAS by companies and trade associations.

Caffeine is not a new ingredient, but Taylor says the FDA is concerned about all of the new ways it is being delivered to consumers. He said the agency will look at the potential impact these "new and easy sources" of caffeine will have on children's health and will take action if necessary. He said that he and other FDA officials have held meetings with some of the large food companies that have ventured into caffeinated products, including Mars Inc., of which Wrigley is a subsidiary.

Wrigley and other companies adding caffeine to their products have labeled them as for adult use only. A spokeswoman for Wrigley, Denise M. Young, said the gum is for "adults who are looking for foods with caffeine for energy" and each piece contains about 40 milligrams, or the equivalent amount found in half a cup of coffee. She said the company will work with FDA.

"Millions of Americans consume caffeine responsibly and in moderation as part of their daily routines," Young said.

Obesity surgery study indicates diabetes benefits

By LINDSEY TANNER
AP Medical Writer

CHICAGO — Obesity surgery worked much better at reducing and even reversing diabetes than medication and lifestyle changes in one of the most rigorous studies of its kind. But the researchers and others warn that possible serious complications need to be considered.

The yearlong study indicates that the most common weight-loss surgery, gastric bypass, can effectively treat diabetes in patients with mild to moderate obesity — about 50 to 70 pounds overweight, the researchers reported Tuesday in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Other studies have shown the operation can reverse diabetes in severely obese patients, although sometimes the disease comes back.

About a third of the 60 adults who got bypass surgery in the new study developed serious problems within a year of the operation, though some cases were not clearly linked with the surgery. That rate is similar to what's been seen in previous studies.

But for the most serious complications — infections, intestinal blockages and bleeding — the rate was 6 percent, slightly higher than in earlier research.

The most dangerous complication occurred in one patient when stomach contents leaked from the surgery site, leading to an overwhelming infection, leg amputation and brain injury. Lead author Dr. Saeed Ikramuddin, an obesity surgeon at the University of Minnesota, called that case "a fluke."

A journal editorial says such devastating complications are rare, but that "the frequency and severity of complications ... is problematic" in the study and that the best way to treat patients with both obesity and diabetes "remains unknown."

Studies prove how exercise boosts your cognitive function and memory recall, improves mitochondrial function, spreads healthier DNA and improves mood... makes your jeans look good too! But one misplaced step can result in an injury that hurts for days, or longer!

A sprain refers to a stretched or torn ligament, for example, in the wrist or ankle. Ligaments connect bones to other bones at a joint. Some of you feel a 'pop' when it happens. A strain refers to a stretched or torn muscle/tendon. Strains cause pain, swelling, and sometimes muscle spasms. No fun! Medicines usually treat the smoke, not the fire. To quickly improve your level of comfort consider RICE.

The RICE acronym will help you remember essential steps to relieve a strained ankle, wrist, or other area. "R" is for rest. It's important to minimize use of the affected area while it heals. Also important immediately after a strain is the "I" for ice. Ice reduces swelling that occurs while your body sends blood to bring white blood cells and nutrients to the hurt area. The "C" is for compression, which also helps with inflammation. Finally, "E" is for elevation. Keeping the strained joint elevated sometimes decreases inflammation but a physician should be consulted. Certain supplements may provide natural relief for pain and swelling, thus treating the "fire." Here goes:

■ Arnica — Arnica montana can be taken as homeopathic pellets, or applied directly to your skin. I like Traumeel

DEAR PHARMACIST

Suzy Cohen

made by Heel, because it has arnica plus other ingredients that reduce pain and inflammation.

■ Astaxanthin — A super nutrient and protective antioxidant, science shows it is remarkable at suppressing NF-kappaB, a chemical pathway in your body that spits out compounds, that when produced in excess, create pain: Prostaglandins, TNFa, IL-1B, iNOS and others. Twelve milligrams of this one is my go-to supplement after excessive boogying at Zumba!

■ Comfrey — This herb has been shown to decrease swelling from sprains and strains. It contains allantoin which reduces inflammation. When applied to the skin, Comfrey ointments can help with bruising, pulled muscles and ligaments, sprains, strains, and osteoarthritis. Comfrey is sold at health food stores.

■ Magnesium malate — A specific type of magnesium bound to an apple extract (malic acid) which helps muscle spasm and pain, even fibromyalgia. Epsom salt baths are great, toss in a few drops of eucalyptus essential oil.

■ Turmeric and garlic — Cooking with these ingredients (or supplementing) improves muscle recovery and reduces inflammation by suppressing pain-causing cytokines all over the body.

■ Zinc — After a trauma or injury, your body requires extra minerals to expedite the healing process. Zinc is particularly supportive for wound healing (and prostate health). Supplementing your zinc and vitamin C may shorten your healing time and rebuild soft tissue connections.

GOLF: Relay for Life event Saturday

Richard Francis and Shead divided the skins pot. Both pot holes carried over.

Dottie Rogers scored on the right holes to take first place in the LGA "blind nine" match. Her net 32.5 was good for a two-stroke win over Natalie Bryant and 2.5 better than Katrina Counts.

Chip-in money went to Cathy Steen for No. 16 and Nancy Edgar for No. 9.

The Good Old Boys had two close, low-scoring, three-way matches.

Match one went to the team of Marc Risk, Larry Ward, Jim Bell and Paul Davis with 4 points. The team of Don Christensen, Merle Hibbard, Ed Snow and Jim McGriff, and the team of Don Howard, Paul Sedelmeyer, Dave Cannon and Jim Stevens tied for second with 3 points.

Jonathan Allen won the birdie count with two. Greg Lyons and Ford had the others.

Joe Paul and Barney Hart, both at +4, topped a short list of players with plus numbers in the A flight of Wednesday's blitz.

Mickey Wilcox (+3) and Jordan Hale (+1) were in the money.

Brian Shead (+11) had no trouble posting points in the B flight, but barely outran George Burnham (+10) for first place. Bob Wheary (+7) and Keith Shaw (+6) rounded out the top finishers.

Jonathan Allen (2), Terry Hunter, Jerry West, Dennis Crawford, Mike Gough,

The team of Monty Montgomery, Stan Woolbert, Bill Rogers, Bill Wheeler and Dan Stephens posted a meager 3 points in the second match, but it was enough for a one-point edge over the team of Rob Brown, Tom Elmore, Howard Whitaker, Hugh Sherrill and Mike Spencer, and the team of Rhea Hart, Eli Witt, Joe Persons, Bobby Simmons and Emerson Darst.

Woolbert (38-37-75) edged Christensen (39-37-76) for medalist honors. Risk (76), Snow and Howard (both 77) and Montgomery (79) had the other scores of note.

The annual Relay for Life tournament is Saturday, beginning at 8 a.m.

The LCMS football team will host its annual tournament at 8 a.m. on June 22.

FOR BETTER OR WORSE

DEAR ABBY

Son experiencing puberty needs a word to the wise

Abigail Van Buren www.dearabby.com

DEAR ABBY: I'm a single mother of two amazing boys, 16 and 12. While my older son has been private about coming into puberty, my younger son is very open about it, and we have had many conversations about it. Abby, I'll be honest. The subject makes me uncomfortable.

Last night I walked into my 12-year-old's room and interrupted him pleasuring himself. I was shocked, and I started to laugh because I was embarrassed. I did tell him he needed to be more private about his curiosity, to close the door and have a blanket over himself. But I was laughing when I was talking to him and literally could not stop.

I'm unsure what is the right course of action at this point. Where do I go from here? - EMBARRASSED MOM

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Masturbation is natural. Every healthy, normal person has done it. It is not depraved, a crime or harmful to one's health.

Your son is now at an age when it is appropriate for Mom to knock before entering his room out of respect for his privacy. So: Apologize to your son for laughing. Explain that it was because you were embarrassed.

If your children's father is in the picture (or another male relative), a man-to-man talk about this could be helpful. If there isn't one, consult your sons' pediatrician for suggestions on how to discuss sexuality with both of your boys. If you haven't already done so, the time has arrived.

DEAR ABBY: My brother, three sisters and their husbands and children and I go to our parents' house for holiday dinners. My youngest sister's husband refuses to go because he doesn't get along with our family. (He also does not get along with his own family.)

Before my youngest sister leaves, she insists on taking a plate of food home for her husband who was "unable to be there." I feel if he doesn't want to be with our family, he shouldn't be allowed to have takeout. Our mother is 82, and it upsets her that he doesn't want to be there. What do you think? - RESENTFUL

DEAR RESENTFUL: If your brother-in-law can't get along with the family, he is doing everyone a favor by not attending those family dinners. Because your mother finds his absence upsetting, it is up to her to put her foot down and tell your sister she doesn't want food taken to him. Until she does, food deliveries will continue.

DEAR ABBY: I, too, am disgusted with people who answer their cellphones wherever and whenever.

I was at a funeral last week where this twit answered her cellphone while viewing the deceased in his casket. She was literally kneeling beside the casket when her phone rang, and she carried on a conversation with the caller for a full three minutes. I timed it! - MICHAEL IN ROCHESTER, N.Y.

DEAR MICHAEL: I agree. When attending a funeral or a memorial, cellphones should be TURNED OFF out of respect not only for the deceased, but for the others around you.

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Offer help and you will be

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Face facts and say what's on your mind. Once you make it clear what you like and don't like, you will be able to continue down a path that suits you better. A simple change can make a difference to your future. ★★★

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Talk about the way you feel and how you see partnerships and your personal life moving forward. Focus on what counts and being with people you love. Network with influential people and you will make a lasting impression. ★★★★★

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Socialize, mingle and share your thoughts. Exploring new venues and pastimes will result in new opportunities that can change the way you do things in the future. A change in the way you present your skills will pay off. ★★

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Contemplate your next move and make behind-the-scenes plans, but don't upset what's already working in your favor. Problems with someone who is counting on you will develop if you make unexpected changes that have not been well thought-out. ★★★★★
