Testimony in the Richard Franklin capital murder trial continued Thursday with a string of witnesses for the prosecution telling what they saw on the night Columbia County corrections officer Sgt. Ruben Thomas III was killed.

The state attorney's office called 13 witnesses to the stand Thursday, many of them inmates and corrections officers who witnessed the incident or played a role in taking Franklin into cus-today following the attack. Samuel Selig, an inmate who is wheelchair-bound and has a portion of his left arm amputated, gave the most in-depth account of the attack. Selig said he saw Thomas twice on the night he was attacked. The first time Thomas was conducting an inmate count and the second time Thomas was running as Franklin chased him.

"I was sitting on the first steel bench," Selig said. "Franklin was maybe a step behind him. He was on him."

100 endure heat, discomfort to win sandwiches for a year.

For 24 hours, Lake City's newest restaurant — Chick-fil-A on U.S. 90 West near Interstate 75 — turned its parking lot into a contest arena — part "Survivor," part game show giveaway.

From 6 a.m. Wednesday until 6 a.m. Thursday, 100 people camped in the parking lot in a quest for free chicken. The rules were simple. Last the full 24 hours without leaving and win free Chick-fil-A sandwiches for a year.

Tents and chairs and blow-up mattresses covered the concrete, which was roped off with red and white flags. At 5 a.m. Thursday, a member of the Chick-Fil-A marketing team stepped around sleeping people, and said "Good morning. It's time to wake up."

Slowly, men, women and children rolled over, batted the sleep from their eyes and struggled

Police: Motorcycle hit car at Baya Avenue intersection.

By AMANDA WILLIAMSON

A traffic accident at the intersection of Baya Avenue and Perry Avenue Wednesday claimed the life of a Lake City man.

At approximately 9:15 p.m., Ernest Creel, 68, was ejected from his 2013 Suzuki "cruiser-style" motorcycle after it struck a 1994 Toyota Camry making a right-hand turn onto Baya. Creel had been traveling east down Baya Avenue, according to city police.

The driver of the Camry, Michael Pate, 33, of Live Oak, violated Creel's right of way when he attempted the turn from Perry Avenue onto Baya, city police said.

Fire and emergency medical personnel transported Creel to Shand's Lake Shore Regional Medical Center, where he passed away shortly after due to head trauma. He had not been wearing a helmet at the time of the accident.

Police are still investigating. Citations or charges are pending, police said.

City clerk selected for state award

As the Florida Association of City Clerks' announcer read the biography of the Clerk of the Year award winner, Audrey Sikes never suspected it was her.

As the award recipient's accomplishments piled up, it suddenly dawned on Sikes. She had earned one of the most prestigious awards presented to city clerks, and became the first Lake City clerk to earn the title of Clerk of the Year.

Awards were presented on Monday at the Florida Association of City Clerks summer training academy in Orlando.

"It was totally unexpected," she said. "Words can not even express how I felt. ... I'm truly honored to be recognized in this capacity. I'm so fortunate to have a city council that believes in me."

Mayor Stephen Witt nominated Sikes on behalf of the city she has served since 2000. Originally

Travolta to treat his Ocala neighbors

OCALA

Actor John Travolta wants to take some of his Marion County neighbors to the movies.

The Ocala Star-Banner reports that the actor, who lives in the Ocala area, plans to buy 1,000 tickets to his movie "Killing Season," which opens in select theaters on July 12. Travolta, who has lived with his family in the Ocala area for 10 years, said he arranged to have the film open in Ocala that day as well.

Travolta said he plans to provide 1,000 tickets to the general public and to local donors who have supported his causes.

"We've tapped the community quite a bit," Travolta said. "It's a way of giving back without asking for something back."

He's giving 300 tickets to donors who've supported his causes through the years. And, starting Thursday, Marion County residents can go to Ocala.com/KillingSeason and answer three trivia questions. Winners will be randomly selected and each will receive two tickets to the movie. The winners will be selected randomly. The deadline to enter is June 30. Winners will be notified July 1.

The screening will take place at Regal's Hollywood 16 in Ocala.

The Travoltas — wife and actress Kelly Preston and children Ella and Ben — live in Jumbolair, a fly-in neighborhood that allows the actor to park his jets in his yard.

Swift not worried about connecting with fans

NEW YORK — Taylor Swift shares her feelings and personal experiences on her hit records, but the 23-year-old Grammy winner isn't worried about losing intimacy with her fans on a stadium tour.

"I find that you have to emote a little bigger, but you can reach all the way up to the top," she said. "Eye contact is important, even if it's from 500 yards away."

Swift said she's never worried about the sound being lost in a massive space. With a few shows already under her belt, she feels they've gone pretty well.

"Everyone who comes to these shows seems so engaged," she said. "They come to the show. They know the words. I'm singing the words. We're singing them at the same time, and therein lies the connection. It goes beyond what size the venue is."

She recently embarked on her RED tour of North America. Later this fall, she'll perform in Australia and New Zealand.

State has highest rate of seniors

ORLANDO — Florida has the largest share of residents over age 65 of any state, and Sumter County has the highest rate of seniors of any county in the United States.

New 2012 U.S. Census estimates released Thursday show that 18.2 percent of Floridians are over age 65, the highest rate of any state in the nation. Just under half of Sumter County's residents are over age 65, the highest share of any county in the nation. The county located about 40 miles northwest of Orlando is home to the retirement community, The Villages, and also is one of the fastest-growing regions of the state.

Man executed for guard's murder

STARKE, — A Florida man was executed Wednesday for the murder of a guard during a botched 1987 prison van ambush intended to free an imprisoned friend.

William Van Poyck, 58, was pronounced dead at 7:24 p.m., 23 minutes after the injection process began at Florida State Prison.

"Set me free," were his final words.

Van Poyck's case garnered international attention because he published three books and maintained a blog while on death row.

William Van Poyck and Frank Valdes ambushed a prison van outside a West Palm Beach doctor's office in a failed attempt to free James O'Brien — with whom they'd served time.

Free foreclosure defense program extended

From staff reports

Three Rivers Legal Services' foreclosure assistance program — which has assisted more than 200 homeowners with their housing issues since March — has been extended through the end of July.

The foreclosure assistance program — fully funded by the state Attorney General's Office through a settlement with the country's largest mortgage companies — was originally set to expire on June 30.

Attorneys at Three Rivers Legal Services are hopeful that the extension will enable them to serve more struggling homeowners of low-to-moderate income who would otherwise go without assistance.

"Three Rivers Legal Services is happy to have an opportunity to extend our services at this time to a greater number of homeowners in dire straits and those who are continuing to struggle during this economic downturn and recovery," said Allison Thompson, executive director. "We are grateful to be a part of the solution."

Free legal aid services are now available to any Florida resident who owns their primary home and meets certain income requirements (low to moderate income, within 275 percent of the federal poverty level). Eligible residents with questions or concerns about the foreclosure process should not hesitate to call to get advice, even if no formal action has been taken.

Lawyers and advocates at

Three Rivers are available Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. to address a wide range of housing-related issues, including foreclosure defenses, alternatives to foreclosure, and how to lower mortgage payments.

Three Rivers offers this assistance to qualified homeowners in 17 counties throughout North Florida. Individuals who could benefit from the services should contact the agency to schedule a consultation as soon as possible.

Funding is limited and expires on July 31.

Interested persons may apply for services by calling Three Rivers Legal Services Inc. Residents of Nassau, Duval, Baker, Clay, and St. Johns counties should call (904) 394-7450. Residents of Alachua, Bradford, Gilchrist, Levy and Union counties should call toll-free at (800) 372-0936. Residents of Columbia, Dixie, Hamilton, Lafayette, Madison, Taylor and Suwannee Counties may call (800) 495-0039.

Two charged in theft of metal

By AMANDA WILLIAMSON
awilliamson@lakecityreporter.com

Two Lake City men were arrested on Wednesday after they allegedly stole two trailer hitches and a ladder to sell as scrap metal.

Matthew Patrick Avallone, 29, of 1398 SW Dekle Road, and Bruce Lee Harper, 36, of 777 NW Pillsbury Drive, face charges of larceny and dealing in stolen property, according to a Columbia County Sheriff's Office arrest report.

Anthony Avallone, of 1398 SW Dekle Road, returned home on May 25 at about 5 p.m. after being gone for four days. He noticed tire marks on an unused driveway and evidence that someone had crawled under his house, the police report said.

According to the report, Anthony Avallone suspected his brother, Matthew Avallone took the items.

Detective Martin Lee found Harper outside The Recycling Center in a Jeep SUV. Harper told Lee that he had taken the metal to the scrap dealer with Avallone but believed that Avallone had received permission from his aunt to take the items.

Harper

Later, Matthew Avallone admitted to taking the hitches and selling the metal to The Recycling Center, the report said. He told officers Harper had nothing to do with the crime.

The report states that Harper did receive $34.40 for the hitches.

The men were booked into the Columbia County Detention Facility in lieu of a $10,000 bond each.

La. man faces drug charges

By AMANDA WILLIAMSON
awilliamson@lakecityreporter.com

A Louisiana man faces charges of drug possession after Columbia County Sheriff's deputies allegedly found him with prescription narcotics, eight grams of methamphetamine and a glass smoking pipe.

Peter Guarisco, 49, of Metairie, La., was arrested Wednesday on charges of operating a vehicle without a license, possession of a controlled substance, possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of methamphetamine.

Cpl. Rick Damon and Deputy Calvin Lee approached Guarisco in the Wal-Mart parking lot and asked him to produce identification. After Guarisco couldn't provide a valid driver's license, he was placed under arrest.

According to the police report, officers discovered $3,993 in Guarisco's pocket. A search of his vehicle revealed a glass pipe in the driver's seat and a small plastic container containing 8 grams of methamphetamine, along with two prescription bottles. The medication was not prescribed to Guarisco and contained a variety of pills, including hydrocodone.

Deputies learned that Guarisco also is wanted in Nevada County, Ark., for failure to appear to answer drug possession charges.

Officers booked Guarisco into the Columbia County Detention Facility without bond.

TRIAL: Details of attack recounted

Selig said he saw Franklin stab Thomas several times in the chest and neck area as he tried to get through a security doorway.

When Assistant State Attorney John Durrett asked for a description of the weapon, Selig described it as a "Conan" knife.

"I'd say it was a Conan blade, about 11 or 12 inches long," Selig said, estimating that Franklin allegedly stabbed Thomas about five times. "I seen it several times get buried in his (Thomas') neck. I was right there. When he fell down, he was on all fours... He got hit in the neck several times."

Although Selig said he saw Franklin hit Corrections Officer William Brewer, when cross-examined by Assistant Public Defender Jonathan Austin, Selig admitted to only hearing the blow and seeing Franklin walk away from Brewer.

Austin also noted other discrepancies in Selig's testimony from Florida Department of Law Enforcement reports detailing the incident. He gave a copy of the report to Selig so he could read the account of events he gave authorities back then.

"That was a long time ago. I was real nervous," Selig said after reading the report.

"Are you more nervous today than back then?" Austin asked.

"All I know is I saw what I saw," Selig responded.

Department of Corrections Sgt. Stacy Puttore, who attempted to aid Thomas, followed on the witness stand.

Puttore was one of the first two officers to enter the facility after Thomas was stabbed.

"I was entering and found some blood on the left hand side and began following the blood trail," she said. "I found Sgt. Thomas laying on his back in a puddle of blood. It's loud. All the inmates were screaming. I go straight to Sgt. Thomas ... I came across the wounds on his neck and applied pressure trying to stop the blood ... I recall his lips moving but I can't recall what he said."

The state then showed a picture of where Thomas' body lay before he was taken out on a stretcher.

Brewer, who was also attacked, said he saw Thomas on the floor and other corrections personnel trying to help him, so he and another officer tried to calm the inmates down and told them to go to their cells.

Brewer said he noticed an inmate on a stairwell looking past him and that was the last thing he saw because he was struck on the left side of his face by someone. Brewer was unable to identify his attacker.

"He was in and out of consciousness, so I drug him out," said Corrections Officer Stan Peterson, who went into the dorm with Brewer. He said Franklin had Brewer's pepper spray canister, but he didn't see a knife.

Capt. Michelle Nipper was responsible for overseeing the inmates the night of the attack.

She responded to the officer-in-distress calls and, after securing other areas, saw an inmate "fumbling" around a laundry bag. She later identified the man as Franklin. She said she told him it was lock down and to go to his cell, and when she returned to the area Franklin had a homemade knife and a can of pepper spray.

She said Franklin didn't say anything and when she told him to slide the items to her, he refused. She said she tried several times to talk Franklin into laying his weapons down.

"Bitch, you ain't taking me alive," she said Franklin told her as he started to violently shake the door.

With response teams headed to the annex where the incident occurred, she continued to try to calm Franklin down with no luck.

"He's going back and forth, back and forth. He's pacing. He's bowed up ... with this blank look," she said as she wiped away tears.

Christopher Minnich, then a CCI corrections officer, was a member of the Designated Armed Response Team (DART Team) tasked with regaining order. He said he too told Franklin to lie on the floor and put the weapons down, but Franklin continued to pace back and forth.

"He shakes the knife at me and does a cut-throat motion across his throat," Minnich said.

The assistant warden, Tony Anderson, arrived shortly after.

He said there was mix of water and blood coming out the T dormitory entrance when he spoke to Nipper and took command. He said he went inside and began talking to Franklin and told him to "cuff up."

Franklin wouldn't comply.

"He kept saying you wouldn't understand," Anderson said. He said response team members sprayed a chemical agent towards Franklin and he wiped his face and responded: "I'm going to get another one of y'all. Come on. I'm ready. Come on."

Anderson said he then gave the word for DART Team members to use a nonlethal approach to subdue Franklin. A shooter fired a nonlethal shotgun round with rubber pellets that struck Franklin "center mass."

Anderson said Franklin fell to the floor and the DART Team members went in and subdued him.

Although Anderson initially said Franklin picked the knife back up, Blair Payne, Third Circuit public defender, pointed out on cross-examination that Anderson closed his eyes because of the chemical agent and never actually saw Franklin retrieve the weapon. Anderson then said he assumed Franklin picked it back up.

DOC Lt. Terry Mobley responded to the incident as well when he heard radio calls for help. He went in immediately behind the response team that subdued Franklin and collected the knife and a padlock. He said he gave the knife and padlock to Nipper to preserve the chain of evidence and that ended his involvement in the case.

Rod Baker, assistant public defender, cross-examined Mobley and Mobley told him he collected the evidence, but didn't put gloves on.

"At the time, I didn't have time to put gloves on," he said. "I was just trying to get the knife out of there."

CLERK: Prestigious award received at the Lake City Police Department, Sikes became city clerk in 2005. She has since earned her Master Municipal Clerk certification, the only Lake City clerk to ever do so.

"Audrey Sikes is a true leader, constant innovator, community advocate and strong supporter of the FACC," Witt wrote in his letter. "Her ability to handle work relations with grace and sincerity shows her commitment to providing the best service our City has to offer. Her ability to motivate and lead is beyond compare."

Sikes balances her time between her professional career and family life. She has two sons, and both of them play travel baseball. She volunteers at a local elementary school, and travels around the state with FACC.

Deputy City Clerk Michele Greene prepared the nomination form, which included five letters of recommendation on Sikes' behalf. Including Witt, Sikes received recommendations from White Springs Clerk Shirley Heath, previous City of Bunnell clerk Daniel Davis, FACC president Lori McWilliams and Greene. Since March, Greene kept silent about the nomination.

"I can't imagine anyone else that is more dedicated to the city clerk profession than she is," Greene said.

Lake City Clerk Audrey Sikes (left) stands with Lakeland City Clerk Kelly Koos. Sikes was honored with the Clerk of the Year award by the Florida Association of City Clerks on Monday.

"[She] has been a mentor and a teacher to me for the last six years."

Daily, Sikes is responsible for handling records, attending meetings, compiling meeting minutes, preparing budgets, maintaining the city code and serving as a liaison between the public and the city council.

She works for all five of the city council members, providing them guidance on sunshine laws and other issues.

"I'm not afraid of hard work. I'm not afraid to go above and beyond the call of duty to get something done," she said. "I make the conscious effort to be a part of the solution. I just feel like this is what you do."

The previous clerk of Lake City, Mary Jane Woods, encouraged Sikes to apply for the position. Woods was retiring, and felt that Sikes would be the perfect replacement. Sikes said that at the time she had been happy working for the Lake City Police Department, but now loves her job.

"I just believe I make a difference," she said. "We have streamlined the processes in here."

Data mining is legal, necessary

The 29-year-old security contractor who claims to have leaked the details about the government's widespread surveillance program no doubt expects to be celebrated as a champion of civil liberties.

But Edward Snowden's duplicity likely puts at risk American lives and provides aid to the terrorists who are plotting against us.

His betrayal of his government and his employer merit disgust, not gratitude.

As former U.S. Attorney General Michael B. Mukasey wrote in The Wall Street Journal: "Every time we tell terrorists how we can detect them, we encourage them to find ways to avoid detection."

Snowden's revelations about the National Security Agency's widespread "data-mining" did not expose any illegal activity. The program monitors the time and duration of phone calls. It does not reveal the calls' content.

The process, which began seven years ago, is legal under the Patriot Act and is scrutinized by the special court created by Congress in the 2008 Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act.

Another National Security Agency program monitors foreign-to-foreign calls, which also is legal under FISA.

Without question, such an extensive surveillance program merits concern, but there is no evidence it has been abused.

There is, however, evidence data mining has helped the United States stop terrorism.

The New York Times on Saturday detailed how the computers' detection of an email sent to Pakistan enabled investigators to eventually detect a man's plot to plant backpack bombs in the New York subway.

[L]ives may have been saved by the surveillance program. The New York Times reports when Congress prepared to extend the law covering the data mining last December, cases were cited that included "plots to bomb the New York Federal Reserve Bank, the United States Capitol, locations in Tampa, Fla., and New York City and troops returning from combat overseas."

... Having the government determine where phone calls are coming or going - not what is being said - is hardly a gross invasion of privacy as Snowden claims. Indeed, the very scale of the surveillance makes it less of a threat to individuals. As the Wall Street Journal pointed out in an editorial Monday, the data collected is so massive that "only algorithms can understand them. The search is for trends, patterns, associations, networks. They are not in that sense invasions of individual privacy at all."

This is an encouraging case where President Barack Obama has reconsidered his views. Prior to his election, Obama was disdainful of President George W. Bush's anti-terrorism efforts.

But once in office, and entrusted with the nation's security, the president came to see the importance of such operations to detect terrorists and protect Americans.

He also came to understand that scrutinizing data is no threat to the public's privacy or civil liberties.

He correctly summed up the matter the other day: "Nobody is listening to your telephone calls. That is not what this program's about."

I want to thank you!

CNN anchor T.J. Holmes ended one of his recent Sunday morning news reports with this statement: "Thank you for what you do." This started me thinking. What a meaningful message. Could it be, that everyone contributes something that we should feel thankful for?

Robert Denny
Bob.Denny8@gmail.com

Pianist Roger Williams died this last year at age 87. Roger touched us with sentimental, easy listening songs like "Autumn Leaves" (1955, greatest piano hit yet), "Born Free," "Near You," "La Mer" (Beyond the Sea), "Wanting You," and many more. Thanks Roger, for what you did for those many years.

Also last year, Hecklers John Nichols and John Reynolds, leaders of the "Occupy Wall Street" movement, prevented Representative John Lewis and Representative John Reynolds from making speeches in Atlanta, by heckling them. Word for word, their message: "...the point of this general assembly is to kick start a democratic process, in which no singular human being is inherently more valuable than any other human being." Representatives Lewis and Charlie Rangel (New York) were interviewed after being shouted off the stage. They agreed with the protesters, and their right to be heard. They agreed that no one human being should be treated as more valuable than any other. It was a rough presentation, guys, but thanks, protesters, for helping us to hear opinions that might otherwise go unheard. All people are valuable. We could ask ourselves, should we continue to borrow money from other nations to bail out banks and Wall Street, while one of every four children in Georgia grows up in poverty?

What about fruits and vegetables dying on the vine in America's heartland, because of increased crackdown on migrant workers, who are often undocumented aliens, who do the picking? Farmers say they will fail this year, without the help of these workers. Yes, it's true that since they are not in the established legal system, they take advantage of many services paid for by American citizens. In the same circumstances, we might do the same thing as these workers in order to survive or keep our families from suffering poverty or hunger. Can't we find a better way? Could our laws be more humane? Could we develop a more reasonable system, with an opportunity for legalizing their labor, or for providing a pathway in which they could earn citizenship? Then we might be thanking them for getting food to our tables instead of deporting them. I'd include them in "Thanks for what you do." Law enforcement could still focus on catching the really "bad guys." We could also work on balancing the national budget, instead of borrowing money for stimulus plans we can't hope to pay back.

I don't know who you are. You may be a community leader, a volunteer, a single parent struggling to survive or raise your children, an American worker, in military service, a young person getting an education, a disabled person with special needs, a parent, a veteran, or a senior citizen who has contributed to your country for a lifetime. You're as valuable as everyone else. Whoever you are, I'd like to say thanks so much for what you do!

Stop outsourcing government secrets

Aside from questions about the legality, constitutionality, ethical propriety and necessity of the federal government's intrusion into the Internet and phone records of untold millions of Americans, two things about the recent National Security Agency controversy seem abundantly clear: The intelligence community - our first line of defense against faceless terrorists - needs less reliance on outside contractors and far better vetting of those it does hire.

It seems appropriate to ask how Edward Snowden, a 29-year-old high school dropout, has a resume that would allow him to make a reported $122,000 a year from Booz Allen Hamilton, a Virginia consulting firm, at a time when tens of thousands of college graduates with good academic records are either going back to school or waiting table to make ends meet.

Depending on one's point of view, Snowden either courageously blew the whistle or traitorously disclosed the scope of the nation's eavesdropping activities. Whether he was one of those unschooled geniuses who can bypass the normal path to fame and fortune is yet to be determined. To his apparent thinking, he chose to be a martyr for liberty - and I'm certain others think him so. There is, after all, a touch of messianic fervor in most who follow this road.

The electronic age has produced any number of billionaires who chose to skip the process of building their empires in the usual fashion - extensive education and experience. Normally, they are college dropouts who had a better idea. Bill Gates comes to mind, as does Mark Zuckerberg, although there are still questions about whether the idea for the social network Facebook was strictly his. And in the early 20th century, when relatively few Americans attended college and many didn't complete secondary education, there were mechanical geniuses like Henry Ford and the Wright brothers.

Snowden doesn't fall into that category - at least I don't think so. Where does he belong? His girlfriend, through her Internet ramblings, seems as baffled about his place in the social structure as anyone. According to The Washington Post, in one of her last postings, she told of having to scheme to get him on a hike with friends in Hawaii, where they lived. The picture of the girlfriend, painted by the newspaper, was one of confusion with a touch of despair over Snowden.

So it would seem prudent to start the investigation of this entire matter by delving into the reasons why Booz Allen Hamilton, owned by the Carlyle Group, a politically connected major government contractor, hired Snowden in the first place. What in his spotty resume convinced them to assign him to the National Security Agency?

The next question - for the FBI, the Justice Department and everyone else directly involved, all the way to the White House - is whether it is wise to depend on so many outside contractors in the first place, no matter how politically well connected. Obviously, security is always at risk when so many thousands of private and government employees are sanctioned to pry into our top-secret business. Consider Bradley Manning, on trial now and facing life in prison for leaking thousands of classified documents to a half-baked professional do-gooder.

That's just another example of putting someone with the judgment of a field mouse in a place he could do the most harm, although in Manning's case it was the military that messed up. Actually, it probably resulted from expanding access to satisfy demands for more transparency in government. That's something I've always favored, but with some restraint when it is obviously needed.

The other night while dining with friends, few if any of them showed much concern about the government's spying, an activity most Americans seem to take for granted. More worrisome may be the reliance on outside contractors to protect the government's secrets.

Three steps toward heathenism

The word "heathen" means a "non-believer" or a "non-Christian." The third Sunday in June is celebrated as Father's Day. It is a day set aside to honor fathers. In 1966, President Lyndon B. Johnson issued the first presidential proclamation honoring fathers, designating the third Sunday in June as Father's Day. Six years later the day was made a permanent national holiday when President Richard Nixon signed it into law in 1972.

As we study the Bible, we have the example of many good fathers. They were not perfect but were godly fathers like: Noah — a righteous man; Abraham — the father of the Jewish nation; Isaac — son of Abraham; Jacob — father of the 12 tribes of Israel; Moses — giver of the law; King David — a man after God's own heart; Joseph — earthly father of Jesus; and, of course, the best above all is "God the Father."

It is sad today that so many have failed as a father. For most part, the father has failed in the home, in the church and in the nation. If more fathers/men would uphold their responsibility, our country would be a lot better off.

When studying the first chapter of Romans this past week, I came across three areas that I believe are steps that America is taking toward heathenism. Please read the whole chapter. In verse 21, we read, "Because

BIBLE STUDIES

Hugh Sherrill
ems-hugh4.3@comcast.net

that, when they knew God, they glorified Him not as God; neither were thankful; but became vain in their thoughts, and their foolish heart was darkened." They demoted God to the level of man. This is happening in many liberal religious circles today. Christendom is rapidly losing its sin-consciousness. When God is not left on His throne as God, men become fools.

The second step is recorded in verses 25-27: "Who changed the truth of God into a lie?" Verses 26 and 27 tell how women and men were leaving the natural use of the body and doing that which is not natural. Does this look like homosexuals are born? The answer is no. It is a vile, ungodly act. Men today, even those in the highest office in the land, have changed the truth of God into a lie.

The third step to heathenism is found in verses 28-32: "They did not like to retain God in their knowledge." This was the true reason why they moved so far away from God. They chose not to acknowledge God. It was not because they could not, but they would not. Verse 32 says, "Who knowing the judgment of God, that they which commit such things are worthy of death, not only do the same but have pleasure in them that do them."

The last statement says we don't have to be involved with it, but just go along with it. If any one thinks that it is OK for a man to lie with a man and a woman with a woman, they are also guilty. We must speak out against the unnatural union between women and women and men and men. Homosexuality is a sin in the sight of God and sin it must be called.

God is watching us! We had better pay attention.

■ Hugh Sherrill, an ordained Baptist minister and Bible teacher, is available for special Bible studies and revivals.

Honoring fathers

The day that we honor fathers, as a nation, is not as celebratory as the day we honor mothers, but it should be. In our society, fathers, in many cases, are put down, made fun of, depicted as someone who is not very wise or smart, but they should be honored, held in high esteem, thought of as someone very special, because of what they do for their children.

The father has a lot to do with the social and emotional behavior of his children. He is the one who provides stability to his children. He is their leader, their security blanket.

There are numerous accounts of people who wished that their father had been more active in their lives. Those who study children's behavior are finding out more and more that the children's misbehavior is coming from a lack of a father's positive, righteous influence.

Most of the time the immediate response by a child to a father's discipline is anger, but the child should not stay angry with the father very long. When discipline is done correctly by a father, it brings about a change of action or thinking in the child. The child realizes that the reason for the father's discipline is because the father loves them and wants what is best for them, not to cause them pain and heartache. This is the meaning of Paul's instructions to the Ephesians (6:4).

When a child is very young, the loving father spends time with the child holding him, playing with him on the floor, taking him to the park, as well as other activities. As the child grows up, the father provides encourage-

BIBLICAL MEDITATION

carlton_mc@msn.com ment by attending the activities where the child is a participant. When the child leaves home, the father is still involved in their lives by encouraging them when times are tough. He congratulates them when they succeed in various parts of their life.

It has been said that once a man becomes a father, he is always a father. Most men think that once their children reach the age of 18, they are done with influencing their children. It has been observed that men who have great relationships with their adult children, even when these adult children have children of their own, are still influencing their children.

Men who have truly been fathers and not just the biological agent who united with a female to create another human being should truly be honored. They are men who have sacrificed themselves for the benefit of their children. Not only have they spent their money on their children but they have also spent their time. Not only was it time with them but it was also the time they spent away from their children thinking about what was best for their children.

Men who have truly been fathers should be honored and thanked! They are great men, regardless of their status in life.

They are strong people, regardless of what they can do in the weight room. The strength to carry the burdens of being a father is not for a weakling.

As we all think about how our fathers have influenced our lives for good, let us give thanks to them. If he has left this life, think about what he did for you. If he is still living, tell him thank you. Do not miss the opportunity. Take full advantage of the third Sunday in June, as well as every day to tell your father how thankful you are for his influence upon you.

It is a great privilege we can exercise by honoring fathers.

Some advice for readers

Here at Heart Matters, we love receiving questions from readers. No questions will be printed without permission. If you have questions that you would like to see answered in the Heart Matters column, please send them to angieland3@windstream.net

Dear Heart Matters,

Being a mother has always been one of the biggest joys of my life. My husband and I have only one child, son who is now 20 years old. We have devoted our life to him, giving him everything he could ever need or want. Over the past year or two, we have watched him become increasingly angry and resentful toward us. He still lives at home, but doesn't understand why we are not okay with him staying out till all hours of the night. We helped him buy a new vehicle with the understanding that he would make payments to us for his part. I constantly have to ask him for the payment. It is always late (if at all), and he gets angry because I ask for it. If we question where he is going, he explodes and says that he is tired of us always nagging him. A few months ago, he dropped out of college and has yet to find a full-time job. We suspect that he is taking drugs, but we can't get a straight answer from him. We are so frustrated with his behavior that we end up constantly arguing with him, but then we feel guilty because we really do love our son. Is there anything we can do to keep from losing him?

Dear Reader,

Having four children myself, it is obvious to me how much you love your son. I know the struggle you and your husband are having with your son is heartbreaking, but it is not all bad. The frustration that he feels is a natural desire to grow up and separate from his parents in order to stand on his own two feet. It is understandable that he wants to be his own boss and live by his own rules — a rite of passage for young adults.

The problem lies in wanting

the benefits of freedom without accepting the responsibility for it. The way to become the boss of your home is to have your own home. As long as you live under someone else's roof, they get to make the rules.

In light of this, I would encourage you and your husband to come to some decisions on the rules of your home. Communicate these rules to your son, and begin to enforce them. For example, if you decide that drug use is not okay in your home, then don't allow it. Period.

The only way to know the truth about whether or not it is taking place is to drug-test your son. Let him know that is a condition for the room and board you are providing. If he refuses to take the test, give him the ultimatum to find somewhere else to live.

Before you protest that this is too harsh, be aware that in refusing to find out the truth, you could actually be helping your son do drugs.

The same thing applies to his vehicle. The agreement he made with you was to make payments for his part. Parenting is all about teaching and training our children. By not making the payments, what he is learning is that he doesn't have to honor his word. This pattern of behavior also results in the belief that when someone does hold him accountable, they are just being bad-tempered and difficult to deal with.

In the Old Testament book of 1 Samuel, the Bible gives the account of Eli, the high priest at Shiloh and the father of two sons. According to the story found in chapters 2 and 3, Eli's sons were wicked men. However, they were also priests who served in the temple. After hearing of the sinful behavior of his sons, Eli did nothing. If you read the rest of the story, you will find that Eli was allowing his sons to operate by their own rules, rather than God's. This caused God to pose a question to Eli, "Why do your honor your sons more than me?"

For failing to restrain his sons, Eli would end up losing both of them on the same day. If our fear of losing our children causes us to help them sin, the loss will be at their expense.

I have always said that parenting is the toughest job on the planet. But our children need us to honor God, hold fast to the truth and love them as they find their way ... because every heart matters.

How does the Holy Spirit work in the Christian life?

On the Day of Pentecost (A.D. 33), some 3,000 were redeemed by the grace of God when they repented and were immersed "for the remission (forgiveness) of sins" as Peter commanded, but that wasn't and isn't all that is promised! There was a gift, a gift from God which is for all Christians, the indwelling Holy Spirit, (Acts 2:38-29).

This is a special, "what I believe" article. So, if you do not agree, just open your Bible and read the references that are there, and make your own decisions. (One old preacher told me, "Jack, it's alright to write about the Holy Spirit as long as you don't try to explain Him." Maybe he was right.)

That all Christians receive the Holy Spirit is beyond a doubt (to me), (Acts 2:39; 5:32). Jesus had promised the coming of the Spirit (John 7:37-39), a Comforter, an Advocate for his disciples (John 16:6-11; Acts 1:1-11).

When speaking with Nicodemus, Jesus said, "Very truly I tell you, no one can enter the kingdom of God unless they are born of water and the Spirit" (John 3:1-8). Thus, Jesus brings both water (immersion) and Spirit together into the picture of a new birth. Keep in mind: A waterless spirit birth is no more biblical than a spiritless water

jackexumjr@yahoo.com

birth. Jesus said this birth is composed of "water" and "Spirit."

It is the Holy Spirit, our reality, our guide, who protects and nourishes and keeps the body of Christ until He returns. The gift of the Spirit is different from gifts from the Spirit. Some of these gifts were temporary and some permanent. All gifts have a special purpose within the body of Christ. Study carefully the following passages, I Corinthians 12:1-12; Romans 12:4-8; Ephesians 4:11-14.

Today, we have the written word, and while some gifts do not seem to be with us today, others definitely are, but all as the Spirit wills and proposes. We also have the Spirit's help in guiding, protecting and opening doors for the spread of the Good News.

Other things that the Spirit still does today:

- (1) Provides spiritual judgment (1 Corinthians 2:14-15),
- (2) Works in salvation, (1 Corinthians 6:11; Titus 3:4-7; 1 Corinthians 12:13),
- (3) Fruits of the Spirit in the Christian's life, (Galatians 5:22-24),
- (4) He strengthens the

Christian's heart (spirit), (Ephesians 3:16-17),

(5) He unifies the body of Christ, (Ephesians 4:3-6),

(6) He helps in worship, (Ephesians 5:18-21), by encouraging worship in song, thanksgiving, submission, and reverence, and prayer (Ephesians 6:18),

(7) He brings joy, (I Thessalonians 1:6),

(8) He sanctifies the Christian throughout life, (Romans 15:15-16; II Thessalonians 2:13),

(9) He is evidence of salvation to the Christian, (I John 3:24).

If these are not enough to make the Christian rejoice, then consider that the Spirit gives life, satisfies spiritual thirst, enables service in a new and deeper way, sets us free from the law of sin and death, makes us God's children, helps us pray, makes us God's temple, and fills our lives completely, and ... just as God raised His Son, by the power of the Spirit ... he will one day raise us (Romans 8:9-11; I John 3:1). Physical death is only the door to an eternal resurrection. Praise God!

Southern Baptists address prisoners, trafficking

JUAN A. LOZANO and TRAVIS LOLLER

Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Southern Baptist Convention tackled topics at its annual meeting this week that seemed to show a concern for a broadening array of social issues, including human trafficking and the country's high rate of incarceration.

While a resolution expressing opposition to the Boy Scouts of America's new policy allowing gay Scouts was expected, some other resolutions were not. And even the Boy Scout resolution took a softer tone than many had expected by not urging Southern Baptists to drop all ties with the Boy Scouts.

In the past, the nation's largest Protestant denomination has often been more heavy-handed in its condemnation of homosexuality.

In 1997, the Southern Baptist Convention asked its members to boycott The Walt Disney Co., in part because it provided benefits for same-sex partners of employees and hosted gay theme nights at its amusement parks. The SBC dropped the boycott in 2005.

For many years, Southern Baptists have been identified primarily with opposition to abortion and opposition to gay marriage and the general normalization of homosexuality.

This year's bad array of concerns could be a reflection, in part, of a growing ethnic diversity within the Southern Baptist Convention and

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Rev. Fred Luter, Jr., president of the Southern Baptist Convention and senior pastor of the Franklin Ave Baptist Church in New Orleans, speaks to members Wednesday in Houston. The convention approved a resolution Wednesday expressing its opposition to the Boy Scouts of America's new policy allowing gay Scouts, though it doesn't explicitly call for churches to drop all ties with the organization.

new leadership in some key positions.

The Nashville-based denomination has been trying to expand its appeal beyond its traditional white, Southern base amid declining membership.

Last year, the convention elected an African-American president for the first time in its history. The Rev. Fred Luter was re-elected without opposition Tuesday.

The convention also recently appointed Russell Moore to replace Richard Land as head of its public policy arm, the Ethics and Religious Liberty Committee.

The Director of the Baptist House of Studies at Duke Divinity School, Curtis Freeman, said Moore brings a more moderate tone to the convention and a more conciliatory attitude toward working with other groups.

"The new generation is less ideologically motivated," he said.

Delegates on Wednesday also passed a resolution calling on all Southern Baptists to report allegations of child abuse to authorities and one urging Southern Baptists to work to support people with mental health issues.

That latter issue has been on the minds of many Southern Baptists this year after the son of hugely popular Pastor Rick Warren committed suicide. And earlier this month, Southern Baptist Convention Executive Committee President and CEO Frank Page released a book about his daughter's suicide.

Aussie singer performs here

By DEREK GILLIAM
dgilliam@lakecityreporter.com

The wail of electric guitar, the crash of drums and the soulful voice of an Australian blues singer played through the night at the Rockstar Lounge, 723 E. Duval St., Monday.

Anni Piper sang and played bass guitar for four hours while about 35 people swayed to the music and enjoyed American blues performed by an Australian.

While she sings, it's all American blues, but when she stops, the Aussie accent appears. Piper has toured Australia since 2004 after she released her first album.

American blues music has a niche following in the southernmost populated continent, but the distances between venues makes it hard to play multiple nights in a row, Piper said.

tour in America have Piper and her two bandmates playing in a different town every night for 13 straight nights.

Still, even with the grueling tour schedule ahead, Piper didn't hold back anything for the Lake City crowd. In a tight red dress with a bass guitar slung across her shoulder, Piper would play for 45 minutes at a time - water bottle fastened to the microphone stand. A 10 minute break, and the next set began.

Piper still remembers the first time she heard the blues. The song was "Born in Chicago" by Paul Butterfield's Blues Band. After hearing the song, she said she was hooked.

"It's the honesty in the music and the passion," she said. "Everybody has had the blues, so everybody can relate to it."

from management. It's just something we want to be a part of," said Judy Foskey, who was at her second grand opening.

Ken Hill, of Macon, Ga., stood near the boundary marker Thursday morning, just waking up. This was the 19th time he's been to a grand opening, 12 where he won the free chicken.

"Regardless of whether I'm chosen, I stay and camp out," he said.

Hill said the prize is worth about $300 dollars, but that's not the real reason he attends grand openings.

He enjoys camping out, but wants a nice facility to use the rest room and enjoys meeting new people.

"It's the ultimate camping experience," he said. "... You are surrounded by nice people and it's secure."

Chick-fil-A allowed campers to use the rest rooms in the restaurant while the contest was under way.

Blaine Wheeler, of Lake City, was there with his family and said they enjoyed the experience. "We had a blast, a lot of fun. Met a lot of people from a lot of places. Learned a lot, but had a great time," he said. "It was great to do it in our home town."

At about 5:50 a.m., Chick-fil-A employees had the winners line up outside the door. Inside, Michael Sexton, owner and operator of the restaurant, and his wife waited at the end of a red carpet, passing out the prizes.

In white Chick-fil-A shirts with white hats, the 100 winners streamed through the doors, shook Sexton's hand and walked out triumphant. Sexton had part of his immediate family at the grand opening. He's owned and operated a Chick-fil-A before, but had never opened one.

After the last of the 100 winners left the store to tear down tents and pack up, Sexton's older brother Matt pulled the family into the play area to pray. They all joined hands and Matt Sexton asked God to bless the business, Michael Sexton said.

Sexton said he's going to work hard to make Chick-fil-A Lake City's number one restaurant.

"Everyone we come into contact with we want it to be a remarkable experience," he said. "... We want everyone to have a wonderful, great experience."

Steps for success

Tigers' summer workouts began on Wednesday.

By BRANDON FINLEY
bfinley@lakecityreporter.com

It is said that championships are won during the summer and Columbia High began its first step toward the 2013 FHSAA 6A Championship with the opening of summer conditioning on Wednesday.

For the Tigers, the key is finding playmakers while getting in shape for a team that lost 23 seniors. Coach Brian Allen said this will be a pivotal few months for the Tigers.

"I think (the summer) has been a deciding factor in my first couple of seasons," Allen said. "The commitment put in is a big reason for our success. Not only are we getting bigger, stronger and faster, but we're learning the system without being on a platform where we have to perform. Its time to learn, learn, learn."

But as the Tigers learn, it's also a chance to earn.

"We're looking for guys to emerge. It's an opportunity to continue what we saw in the spring. They've got to show their worth and this is their chance to get a lot better."

—Brian Allen,
CHS head coach

"It's a chance for our young players to earn a spot," Allen said. "For our seniors, it's a chance to establish leadership. You can establish yourself as the guy right now. You can gain respect and make people listen."

But the summer may be the most important for the younger players trying to break into a role.

"We're looking for guys to emerge," Allen said. "It's an opportunity to continue what we saw in the spring. They've got to show their worth and this is their chance to get a lot better. It'll also be a chance for us to see who we keep up on varsity."

And Allen hopes to see more of the younger Tigers showing up in coming weeks so that he has a chance to see that development.

"We probably are looking at around 75 guys today," Allen said. "The goal is to have the 110 that we expected. We had that many in the spring, so we're looking for that many this time of year. We know that we'll have some kids at camp, and that's something we'll battle with. It's important for them to know that this is the most important camp they can be at however."

Besides the basic conditioning involved with the camp, Allen said there are more things that the Tigers can gain.

"It's an opportunity for us to bond," Allen said. "It's an opportunity for us to come together as a team. A lot of

The Lake City Rookie Qualifier put 20 games in the books on Thursday and has 19 more scheduled for today and Saturday at the Southside Sports Complex.

The machine-pitch tournament has a field of 36 teams divided into A, B, and Small League divisions. Each division has three pool groupings with the winners advancing to the state tournament. Wild-card teams also may be selected.

Columbia County teams had mixed results on day one.

The Columbia All-Stars opened with a 10-0 win over Hiland Park in the first set of games. The Lake City All-Stars later fell to Ponte Vedra, 15-2, while the Fort White All-Stars lost to the Normandy Rage, 17-0.

Columbia All-Stars manager Jason Dumas said before the tournament that the team concentrated on defense and a shutout filled the bill. Columbia also hit. Despite only three at-bat innings because of the mercy rule, Columbia players pounded out 12 hits.

Hayden Gustavson, Zane Starling, Camdon Frier and Grant Bowers each had two hits, and the latter three scored two runs apiece.

Dylon Hendry (double), Jeffery Hardin and Mickey Lee Johnson each had a hit and scored a run. Luke Dotson had a hit and Braydon Thomas scored a run.

Columbia plays Union County at 3 p.m. today and Ponte Vedra at 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

For the Lake City All-Stars, Jake Priest and Brad Sullivan had hits and both scored on a ground ball by JD Dumas that was mishandled by the first baseman. Josh Bass, Luke Wehinger and Branson Mann also had hits.

Lake City plays Sans Souci at 9 a.m. today and the Atlantic Beach Cyclones at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Fort White All-Stars had one scoring threat when Daniel Gonzalez and Dylon Holderfield singled with two outs in the first inning. The other hit was an infield single by Weston Crews.

Fort White plays North Florida at 9 a.m. today and Clay County PAL at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Mickelson 3 under at Open

Associated Press

ARDMORE, Pa. — Phil Mickelson arrived at Merion Golf Club about four hours before his 7:11 a.m. tee time and still managed to shoot a 3-under 67 at Thursday's opening round of the U.S. Open.

Mickelson flew overnight from San Diego after watching his oldest daughter's eighth-grade graduation, where she was one of the featured speakers. At first, he was a little shaky. But after rolling a birdie putt 8 feet past his first hole and putting his tee shot in the rough at his second, he settled himself.

It was his lowest opening round since 1999 in a championship he's never won, even though he keeps coming close. He's been runner-up a record five times.

Drenching storms caused a 3½-hour delay, halting play less than two hours after it began.

The rains returned while the marquee group of Tiger Woods, Adam Scott and Rory McIlroy were on the front nine, and play was stopped again at 6:11 p.m. for about 45 minutes.

The horn sounded before the three-time Open champion could finish the 5th hole, and he returned after the delay to complete a bogey and drop to 2 over.

Both Scott and McIlroy were 1 under through five.

teams when they're done for the spring don't come back together until two weeks before the fall."

It's also a way to make sure that the Tigers don't run into any problems off the field during the long summer months when school is out.

"We can make sure that they're not getting into any trouble," Allen said. "It's setting good habits with them, because they have to be here by 8 a.m., so they have to be out of bed early. They have to be prepared to go. They don't get in that lazy mode. They're out here working in a 2- or 3-hour session.

"They're eating breakfast and lunch with the team, so they get a good meal, but we're here early making sure we get in, get our work and get out."

Columbia will only condition this week, but the intensity turns up a little next week when the Tigers participate in their first 7-on-7 scrimmage of the summer. The Tigers will travel to Palatka High on Thursday for the scrimmage.

Columbia also has scrimmages set up against Buchholz and Trenton high schools. Columbia will host its own scrimmage on July 25.

"It's important for us with our young quarterbacks to develop confidence," Allen said. "They can go out there and perform against good competition. These camps are all good things for us. Last year we didn't have many, and that's the best team I had. This is another opportunity for them to grow into a team that will only help us be better down the road."

Lockaby steals show
at Memorial Mud Bog

Special to the Reporter

Danny Lockaby of Jacksonville stole the show with his 2000 Chevy S-10 at the Woodpecker Mud Bog and Dirt Drags on Memorial Day weekend.

Lockaby now holds the official track record by covering the 200-foot, two-lane track with a blistering 3-second run. He is planning on bringing his second truck, also a new 2004 Chevy with a 573-ci. motor, to the event this Saturday.

Race Director Steve Raulerson said the fans could well understand Lockaby's reason for a "wheelie bar" after seeing the 588-ci., 1000-hp truck make its first pass.

The 4 wheeler consistency class saw several fast passes with Phillip Rossin making the quickest run of the day in 4.437 seconds and setting the official track record.

There was a good 4 wheeler turnout and it should be one of the biggest and most popular classes in the future.

The mud bog arena provided all day freestyle boggin' action as monster-style, tractor-tired trucks performed throughout the day. However the 4 wheeler 'bog pit' had a little extra water and completely submerged some ATVs.

Some of the local people responsible for taming the pit were Mark Geiger, Shelton Feagle, Hoyle Crowder Jr., David Banks and Fuzzy Raulerson. The pits stayed full with more than 100 trucks all day for spectators to look at and meet the drivers.

Racing starts at 3 p.m. Saturday.

For information, call 292-4720 or go to woodpeckermudbog.com.

Jimmie Johnson dominates from the pole at Pocono

A week after a penalty for jumping a restart cost him a likely win at Dover International Speedway, Jimmie Johnson responded with a flawless, dominating performance at Pocono Raceway.

As the Sprint Cup Series points leader, he started on the pole when qualifying was rained out. He then proceeded to lead 128 of 160 laps, including the final 31, to score his third win of the season and extend his points lead over second-place Carl Edwards to 51.

Although some suspected that Johnson's thorough thrashing of the rest of the field — Ryan Newman was second in laps led with just 19 — was in response to his disappointment from Dover, he and his crew chief, Chad Knaus, insisted otherwise.

"I don't really think so," Knaus said. "It would have been very easy to come in here with a chip on your shoulder or a grudge, and Jimmie is not that kind of guy. ... "He doesn't carry a grudge. He is very laid back — the pinnacle Californian — and he just lets it go and come and go as it pleases."

Knaus said the entire No. 48 team at Hendrick Motorsports tries not to let what happened in the past affect their performance in the future, and he said that's one of the keys to their success.

"We always try to keep eyes forward, and I think that gives us always a little bit clearer view," he said. "Sometimes it's pretty easy to get clouded."

However, Johnson said he didn't have Dover completely out of his mind at Pocono.

"There was a little lingering for me," he said, adding that he would have liked to prove a point about gamesmanship in the restart zone, but doing so could have cost teammate Dale Earnhardt Jr., who was second to Johnson on several late-race restarts.

"I guess if things stay the way they do, I'll save that for another day and prove my point even more," he said.

Earnhardt, who lost second place to Greg Biffle on the final restart at Pocono and finished third, said the bottom-line story from Dover and Pocono is the strength and speed showed by Johnson's team, which operates under the same roof at Hendrick as Earnhardt's team.

"They had good cars two weeks in a row," Earnhardt said. "They won one race and didn't win the other one. They win championships. They win a lot of races."

"He's going to have his opportunities all year long. Fortunate enough for me I get to be in the same shop as those guys. I get to lean on them, and I get to know exactly what's happening under the hood, and I can learn and use that to my advantage."

Jimmie Johnson leaves the pack far behind as he crosses the finish line at Pocono.

Cecil Wilson, a fixture at Wood Brothers Racing, dies at 77

The rigors of racing at the Sprint Cup level can make for some tough times for drivers, team owners and crew members. But there always seem to be a few people around who have a knack for making things more enjoyable.

In the case of the Wood Brothers race team, for the past 40-something years, that person was Cecil Wilson.

Wilson, who died last week of cancer at age 77, grew up in the same Patrick County, Va., community as the Woods, and began working on their race cars in the late 1960s, while also working second shift at the local Fieldcrest Mills.

When he retired from the mill, he joined the Woods full time and stayed on the job until his failing health wouldn't allow him to do so.

He was fourth on the team's seniority list, trailing only Glen Wood and his wife, Bernece, and Leonard Wood.

"He was working here when I started," said Eddie Wood, Glen and Bernece's oldest son and one of the team's current owners. "My brother Len and I were young, and Cecil was in his 30s. He was very street-smart, and we sort of learned the ropes of life from him."

Wood said that Wilson drove high-performance Ford street cars back in the day and brought them to Leonard Wood to have them tuned. He hung around the shop so much that the team finally put him on the payroll.

"He was one of those people that always had your back," Wood said. "If you needed somebody to pick you up at the airport at 3 o'clock in the morning, he's the one you would call."

Wood said that for many years, he, his brother Len and Wilson ate breakfast together and discussed the upcoming workday.

"He was one of those people that everybody wanted to be around," Wood said. "Racing's not always fun. It's a lot of hard work and it can be really disappointing, but Cecil made it fun, especially for Len and me."

"Big C" worked at Wood Brothers Racing for over four decades.

Kyle Petty has his eye on several storylines as TNT ramps up its Sprint Cup coverage

Now that the TNT network has begun its six-race turn in the Sprint Cup Series broadcast rotation, Kyle Petty, the eight-time Sprint Cup Series race winner and a third-generation member of one of racing's most famous families, has stepped to center stage when it comes to the race-day broadcast.

For many race fans, Petty's commentary is refreshingly unbridled. Although it tends to confound the powers that be in NASCAR, as he can be critical of their decision-making, NASCAR officials ought to be pleased with Petty's outlook for the next few weeks.

"I'm looking forward to Michigan because I thought [the race at Auto Club Speedway] was a really good race for this new car," he said, referring to the Gen-6 design. "It was one of the better races we've had at California ever. Michigan, which is a similar two-mile track, can be a good race."

He's also upbeat about the circuit's first trip to a road course with the Gen-6 car.

"Sonoma I'm really looking forward to because NASCAR has finally gotten a new qualifying format where they turn four or five cars loose at the same time, which will be pretty interesting to watch," he said. "And the car itself has a lot more downforce and it's 150 pounds lighter. That'll show up even more on the road course than it's shown up even on the short tracks so far."

Petty also is optimistic about the return trip to Daytona, TNT's final race before turning the broadcast duties over to ESPN/ABC for the remainder of the season.

"I'm not a big fan of that kind of racing, but the restrictor-plate races at Daytona and Talladega have been incredible to watch over the last few years," he said.

He said the big-picture story in the upcoming weeks will be about Denny Hamlin, who is trying to grab a wild-card Chase berth after missing several races because of back injury.

"Can he get in the top 20 in points and can he win at least two races?" Petty said. "I believe that's what it's going to take to make the wild card."

He's not expecting NASCAR's most popular driver, Dale Earnhardt Jr., to be a headline-grabber for the remainder of the season.

"You can look at the last four or five years and figure he'll do the same thing he always does," Petty said. "He starts strong, has mechanical troubles, has bad luck, falls off the face of the Earth, makes the Chase, then that's the last we ever hear of him because nobody ever talks about him in the Chase races."

"Everybody wants to see him win a championship, if you listen to the fans, but you can't run like he's run and not be in contention to win races, and expect to win a championship. That's just not going to happen."

Petty also will be watching to see whether defending Cup champion Brad Keselowski and his No. 2 Ford team can recover from the setback that came when crew chief Paul Wolfe and other key crew members were suspended for two races for rules violations.

"Paul being at home hurt Brad and that team a lot more than they thought it was going to hurt them," Petty said.

He also disagreed with the six-point, $25,000 penalty assessed to the No. 2 team after the car was too low in a post-race inspection at Dover in Wolfe's first race back.

Petty said that although the penalties were the same as the ones imposed on Martin Truex Jr.'s team for a similar infraction earlier in the year, Wolfe's should have been more severe, since he was on NASCAR probation for the earlier violation.

"Being on probation means nothing in this sport," he said. "If you go out and have another violation, all they do is extend your probation."

"I would have been more pleased if they'd penalized [Wolfe] 12 points and $50,000."

Nationwide win at Iowa caps busy week for Trevor Bayne

Austin Dillon appeared to be cruising to victory late in Sunday's rain-delayed Nationwide Series race at Iowa Speedway. But as the laps wound down, Trevor Bayne's No. 6 Ford began picking up speed and he took the checkered flag to deliver Ford Motor Co. its 200th series victory.

Bayne also got Ford's 600th Sprint Cup win driving for the Wood Brothers in the 2011 Daytona 500. He has two chances this week to get Ford's 1,000th overall victory, as he'll run both the Nationwide and Cup races at Michigan International Speedway.

Bayne's victory, his second ever in Nationwide, also was special because it came in the same week that he got married to his long-time girlfriend, Ashton Clapp.

"I was teared up on the altar on Tuesday, and I about teared up in victory lane on Sunday," Bayne said. "It is such a great week and to have her here supporting me. Not many women would be willing to get married on a Tuesday and come to Iowa as part of their honeymoon."

Trevor Bayne and Ashton Clapp dance following their wedding on Tuesday.

As a Guard Horizontal Construction Engineer, you will use heavy machinery to level earth for runways and roadbeds; clear, excavate, dig, and backfill areas of construction sites; spread fill material;
transport heavy construction equipment with a tractor-trailer;
move heavy building materials with cranes; and assist in performance of combat engineer missions.
Instead of paying to learn these skills, get paid to train. Job training for Horizontal Construction
Engineers consists of nine weeks of Basic Training, where you'll learn basic Soldiering skills, and eight weeks of Advanced Individual Training. Applicants must meet minimum qualifications. Contact
