Ambulance service to pay rent

Commission OKs contract extension, with new provision.

By DEREK GILLIAM
dgilliam@lakecityreporter.com

Lifeguard Ambulance Service soon will have to pay market value rent on buildings it now leases from the county for $1 per year.

The county commission on Tuesday night approved a short-term lease extension with Lifeguard until county staff can calculate the fair market value on the properties Lifeguard rents. The vote was 5-0.

Lifeguard Ambulance regional executive Jason Kimbrell sent a letter Tuesday to County Manager Dale Williams requesting the current lease agreement be rejected. The company had requested in a June 17 letter that the current contract be extended.

Asked the reason for the sudden change, Kimbrell said, "We want to be good public citizens."

The agreement approved by the commission two years ago allowed Lifeguard use of three county buildings for $1 a year, and the company was allowed to lease six county-owned ambulances for $1 a year, in exchange for a performance contract that "ultimately eliminat(ed) the financial risk (to the county) of what was estimated to be $1.2 million annually," Kimbrell said in the letters.

During the public comment period, John Glover, CEO of Century Ambulance Service, requested the commission to reject the Lifeguard contract extension. He said in 2012, Lifeguard had revenue of $8 million from its Columbia County operations.

"My reasons are simple: Lifeguard is making money — in fact, good money it appears," Glover said. "They should be expected to pay rent just like any Rain has ruined most outdoor activities for the past week, but local chamber officials say the annual Lake City Fourth of July Celebration and its fireworks display will take place as scheduled.

The event will take place Thursday at the Columbia County Fairgrounds. Entertainment will begin at 4:30 p.m., and the fireworks are set to start at 9:20 p.m. or whenever it's dark enough to see them well.

There is no admission fee, and vendors will be selling beverages and concessions. No coolers will be allowed in the event area.

"The Lake City Reporter is our title sponsor, TD Bank is our entertainment sponsor and Stop N' Go is our kid sponsor. We're going to move forward with the event," said Dennille Decker, Lake City-Columbia County Chamber of Commerce executive director.

"Even if it rains in the afternoon, that has no bearing on the fireworks that evening," she said. "Unless there are torrential thunderstorms and lightning at the 9 p.m. hour, we're still

Depp, at 50, 'happy to still be around'

SANTA FE, N.M.

It may be difficult to separate Johnny Depp from his "Pirates" character Jack Sparrow, but the actor recalls a time before the boozy buccaneer became a household name.

"The films that I did prior to 'Pirates,' ... not everything but a lot of it, was sort of by industry standards, not blockbuster stuff. So I wasn't ever blockbuster material," said Depp in a recent interview.

But that's not to say he didn't have fun during those years.

"I've been lucky enough to be involved in some very small and different independent films throughout my career and I've been able to be involved in, you know, a couple of films that shocked everybody, especially me," he said.

Since 2003, Depp has played the flamboyant captain in four hugely successful "Pirates of the Caribbean" films, with a fifth installment slated for 2015.

At age 50, he is still one the hottest names in Hollywood and about ready to launch another big-budget summer flick, "The Lone Ranger."

"The only thing I can equate it with is luck. There's no other reason," he said of his career longevity. "The fact that I was able to survive through that 15 years of just bouncing around doing (indie) movies and now still to end up here is amazing."

Brosnan's daughter dies of ovarian cancer

NEW YORK — Pierce Brosnan's daughter has died from ovarian cancer, his publicist confirms.

Charlotte Smith was 41 years old when she passed away in London on June 28, after battling the disease for three years.

Brosnan's first wife Cassandra Harris, Charlotte's mother, also died from ovarian cancer in 1991. Harris' mother died from the disease, too.

People.com was first to report the story. In a statement to People, Brosnan said his daughter "fought her cancer with grace and humanity, courage and dignity." He went on to say "we pray for her and that the cure for this wretched disease will be close at hand soon."

Zimmerman's injuries described

SANFORD — A medical examiner from Jacksonville has testified for prosecutors that George Zimmerman's injuries were insignificant.

Medical examiner Valerie Rao took the witness stand Tuesday after prosecutors played a video recording of an interview Zimmerman gave to conservative talk show host Sean Hannity last year. Rao didn't perform the autopsy on Martin and is only being called as a prosecution witness.

Zimmerman is charged with second-degree murder for fatally shooting Trayvon Martin. He is claiming self-defense.

Prosecutors are trying to show Zimmerman's life wasn't in danger when he shot Martin.

Rao says the injuries to Zimmerman's head don't reflect that his head was being slammed with great force into a sidewalk as he claims.

Deputy's killer believed dead

POMPANO BEACH — Nearly six years after a South Florida deputy was gunned down in a drugstore parking lot, authorities say they have compelling evidence about a possible suspect.

The Broward Sheriff's Office reports that Shawn Labeet may have been involved in the murder of Sgt. Christopher Reyka. Authorities said Tuesday they could not discuss most of the evidence, but did say Labeet was involved in drug rip-offs while he posed as an officer. Authorities also said two witnesses placed Labeet in the area of the drugstore the night Reyka was murdered.

Labeet was killed in a shootout with police in 2007 after authorities said he shot four Miami-Dade police officers. Officer Jose Somohano was killed.

Police eventually tracked Labeet to an apartment complex, where he was fatally shot by the Miami-Dade SWAT team.

BRADENTON — A man is in jail after authorities say he crashed head-on into a parked Manatee County Sheriff's cruiser with a deputy inside.

The deputy had responded to a call Monday night when 43-year-old Israel Lara-Contreras crossed the center line and hit the deputy's car.

The Bradenton Herald reports the deputy wasn't injured, but the car sustained about $3,000 in damages.

Lara-Contreras is charged with driving while intoxicated. He remained in the Manatee County Jail.

planning on going ahead with the event. We may have to shut down some of the bounce houses, vendors and entertainment for the safety of spectators, but as far as the fireworks go, we're going to do our best to shoot them off that evening."

Decker said the contract with the fireworks vendor has a rain-delay date if the show can't go forward Thursday.

The rain date is Friday. "At that point and time, we would have to re-evaluate..." she said. "On July 5, it would more than likely be just the fireworks show."

The fireworks display is expected to last 22 minutes.

Just Maybe, a Gainesville-area band, will perform at the event in two sets. The group will perform a 45-minute set at 5:50 p.m. and a second set at 8:25 p.m.

Just Maybe plays a wide selection of songs from all styles for all tastes, including a rich variety of soulful R&B selections, along with some blues, contemporary rock, rock and pop classics and even a few country selections.

"We have an action-packed lineup full of quality entertainment, and we'll also have some activities to get the audience engaged," Decker said. "We're going to play 'Simon Says' with the adults as well as the children."

This year's event will feature a children's area that will be double the size of last year's. The area will have four water slides, six bounce houses, a slip and slide and a misting tent for adults.

Event organizers are offering VIP parking for $5.

Traffic tie-ups are expected during and after the event, and a portion of Bascom Norris near Mary Ethel Lane will be closed from 4 p.m. through the duration of the event. At 9 p.m., Windsong Loop to the intersection of Real Road will be closed, as well as the intersection of Commerce Drive and Real Road.

BLOOD: Plea made for donations

summer, so we are struggling right now to meet the hospital demands."

Mimbs said blood supply normally drops during the summer because schools aren't in session and people are on vacation, which reduces attendance at blood donor events. He said the need for blood is sometimes escalated during the summer because people often schedule medical procedures then.

"Our blood usage goes up, but our blood donations go down," he said.

To address the shortage, LifeSouth has initiated new programs to entice potential donors. They are giving away a flat-screen television, T-shirts and an eight-day vacation to Hawaii as part of a promotion.

"We're just trying to get a little bit more community awareness about summer-time needs," Mimbs said. "We're just getting out there — waving on the side of the road everyday trying to get people to come on."

Thus far the campaign has generated a small response. Mimbs said three flat-screen TVs will be given away at the end of the summer. He said the mobile blood collection vehicles are out in the community seven days a week.

Mimbs said the "O" blood type is most in demand.

"O" blood types are the universal donors, and that's the one we always kind of struggle with," he said. "It's also the most common blood type. It's just a matter of getting people in the door, but just about every blood type we can always use."

Scott Carroll, of Lake City, was at the center preparing to give blood Tuesday. He said he has been donating blood for about 10 years.

"I feel it's important to donate blood because you are giving back," he said. "You are giving back life to someone who needs it."

Carroll said he hopes donating his blood during the shortage will help save someone's life.

"It's just that they (LifeSouth) are in critical need of blood right now," he said. "I feel that with myself coming in donating now, hopefully, that will help other people get out to donate as well."

Mimbs said LifeSouth tries to get 38 blood donors per day.

"Some days, we hit it and some days we don't even come close," he said. "It's the days that we don't come close that we really struggle because we have to make it up another day."

Blood donors have to be at least 16 years old (and have written parental consent), in good health and not be receiving any kind of medical treatment. Diabetics can also donate.

Blood donated to LifeSouth in Columbia County is used in Lake City and at Shands North Florida Regional Medical Center.

"That's mainly because most people go down there for some medical treatment and some stay here," Mimbs said.

To give blood, go to the LifeSouth Community Blood Center at 833 SW State Road 47.

Theft from thrift store alleged

By DEREK GILLIAM
dgilliam@lakecityreporter.com

A Lake City man tricked employees of a local thrift shop into allowing him to walk out of the store with a home theater system he didn't buy, according to a Lake City Police Department arrest report. Edward Lee Lyttle, 46, 332 SW Magical Terrace, faces a charge of grand theft.

Lyttle bought items at Hospice of Nature Coast Thrift Shoppe, 945 SW Main Blvd., around noon Monday. Lyttle asked store manager Sherry Peters if he could leave the items behind the counter while he shopped at other stores, the report said.

Lyttle returned later and told store clerk that he had bought the theater system along with his other items, the report said. He loaded it in a taxicab and left, the report said.

Lyttle was booked into the Columbia County Detention Facility in lieu of $5,000.

third party."

Glover said the subsidy Lifeguard receives from the county creates an unfair advantage. Century Ambulance operates in Columbia County, also.

"Make no mistake, we welcome competition, and the county benefits by such," Glover said.

Before the commission voted on the matter, Commissioner Bucky Nash asked questions about the value of the six ambulances the county leases. He also wants to see county staff to annually inspect the ambulances.

In a related matter about extending the contract of county medical director Dr. Kim Landry, Nash said he was concerned with how the county negotiates contracts and the communication among county emergency services.

"There is so many moving parts to what you are doing, it's not (working)," he said. "The only reason we are here today is because (County Fire Chief) David Boozer said, 'Oh, we don't have a contract,' and that's a fact," Nash said.

Nash also said he had to hunt down the renewal contract for the medical director before the meeting, and that he doesn't want that to happen again.

"The next time this comes up, I'm going to come unglued," Nash said. "... Every time a contract comes up, it's a opportunity to renegotiate that contract and get what you want for the citizens of Columbia County, and that is not happening."

The commissioners voted 4-1, with Nash voting against the motion, to renew Landry's contract for $45,000 a year.

WATER: SRWMD head quizzed

River Water Management District, since both districts have authority over the water in North Florida.

"They're using a lot of water that flows into Columbia County," Williams said.

Shortelle said if the state Department of Environmental Protection accepts the minimum flows and levels the SRWMD has proposed, then, yes, both districts would have to accept the restrictions imposed by recovery and prevention plans from either district.

"So, the most important thing in the short run for us is hearing back from DEP in the affirmative that they will take that body of science and do the adoption," she said. "... If DEP does the adoption, we will be A-OK."

Shortelle said there is no question that ground water is affected across water management district boundaries.

"Even though these rivers and these springs are in the Suwannee District, they have cross-boundary effects," Shortelle said. "Our science clearly demonstrates that, and St. Johns, frankly, has worked with us and sees the same thing we see."

Williams said it's important that any restrictions placed on the county because minimum flows drop below acceptable levels, be also placed on counties in the St. Johns management district, since those counties affect area water bodies.

"All we are asking for is for the playing field to be level," Williams said. "Don't put restrictions Columbia County that you don't put on the St. Johns Water Management District."

DePratter asked specifically about the plans to bring the lower Santa Fe River above its minimum flows and levels.

Shortelle said water management is working on the recovery plan for the Santa Fe River to bring the MFLs back to normal.

"We are actively working on them," Shortelle said.

For 18-year-olds, a helpful foster care option

Rare is the high school senior who is ready at 18 years old to live on his or her own with no financial or emotional support. That is the abrupt deadline for exiting Florida foster care. But starting next year, a new state law that Gov. Rick Scott signed last month will bring some commonsense flexibility that will allow foster children to have a more normal transition to independence. That's good for the children and for society, which has an interest in them becoming productive adults.

Under SB 1036, 18-year-olds who stay in school, start college or begin a job can stay with foster families or transition to some other kind of assistance through age 21. Just as significantly, the state won't shut the door on those who opt to move on. They can return to foster care at any time up until 21 if they find they still need some help.

In April, Scott also signed into law HB 215, which gives greater discretion to foster parents to decide which extracurricular or social activities a child can participate in, rather than requiring approval from a caseworker. That will normalize foster care a bit as children no longer will have to wait for government approval before they attend a sleepover or play a sport.

Sen. Nancy Detert, R-Venice, has called these efforts the most important she's ever sponsored. Foster children, including the 1,000-plus who turn 18 each year, will undoubtedly agree.

Senate immigration bill borders on reckless

Explain to me, please, why I should be enthusiastic about the Republicans coming up with a way to spend $46.3 billion on border security that will gain us very little while helping the Senate pass an inane immigration bill they mainly favor for political reasons.

Supporting this fraud will supposedly help them win Hispanic votes, but it almost surely won't. Despite some people strangely calling immigrants conservatives, most have not been and their mostly liberal voting patterns aren't likely to flip-flop because of blatant GOP opportunism.

If enacted in its current 1,200-page, loophole-ridden indefiniteness, the Senate bill would likely flatten the party while walloping the country. You might say the party deserved it if it were not for some House Republicans harboring workable ideas that could come to fruition.

Yes, we need to find a way gradually to legalize and ultimately make citizens out of the most deserving of the 11 million or so illegal immigrants here now. I grant the move rewards law-breaking. Then there is the Heritage Foundation's estimate that, over the next half-century, governmental expenditures would be trillions more than if they were not legalized. While a precise figure is debatable, the cost would assuredly be huge.

But the problem needs to be resolved, some systems of deportation would be ugly beyond us carrying them out, and I am not sure officialdom will ever get behind anything effective. I do think that, before anyone is legalized, we need a definitively proven system of identifying illegal immigrants in the workplace to make sure the illegal inflow from here on out is tiny. And to offset costs, we also need to go to work skills and education as the chief criteria for being allowed in.

Jay Ambrose
Speaktojay@aol.com

So what did the Senate cough up?

For one thing, we got this GOP-inspired plan to hire another 20,000 border agents, invest in fancy new technology and build a 700-mile fence that still leaves plenty of crossing space on the 1,954-mile U.S.-Mexican dividing line. Put it all together and you have tens of billions dedicated to further aggravating a monster debt — and an estimate by the Congressional Budget Office that this and other efforts will reduce the expected illegal inflow by no more than 25 percent as workers with temporary work visas stay past their expiration.

That's hardly the worst of it. The rest of the Senate bill has an immigration inundation scheme that is going to drown our society with an estimated 38 million new Americans over the next 20 years. It's a number we cannot begin to accommodate, even though it does not count the illegal immigrants granted amnesty or the 8 million new illegal immigrants thought likely to arrive over that stretch of time.

The Congressional Budget Office said the gross domestic product will go up. Of course it will. That many more people means a lot more workers producing a lot more services and products, but, as some experts note, many of those jobs are going to pay so little that the workers will receive more in government services than they will pay in taxes. And what the cheerleaders don't tell us about the CBO calculation is that it says per-person income will be lower in this country over the next 18 years than it would be under the law as it now stands.

If we would mainly admit highly skilled workers instead of bumping that percentage up just a bit, and if we would further de-emphasize family unification that leads to more unskilled workers, we would suffer far fewer of the negatives outlined by such experts as Heather McDonald, a Manhattan Institute fellow. She points out how struggling newcomers too often raise high school dropouts in one-parent homes and boost our poverty and welfare rates.

We can hope House Republicans will follow those who want to avoid a do-it-all-at-once measure as they figure out ways to achieve reform one small, smart step at a time.

GOP errs in attacking Hillary on age

The GOP has all kinds of high-priced political consultants, but the average Republican is justified in asking what the party is getting for its money.

This past week, the party's professional pols began rolling out an attack on Hillary Rodham Clinton, the presumptive Democratic front-runner for president in 2016, revolving around the theme that at age 69 she would be too old for the job.

Sometimes, this tactic works. Age worked against both Bob Dole and John McCain, but, despite Democrats' best efforts, Ronald Reagan's age appeared to be a non-starter. In a 1984 presidential debate with Democratic candidate Walter Mondale, Reagan, then 73, famously quipped that he would not "make age an issue of this campaign. I am not going to exploit, for political purposes, my opponent's youth and inexperience."

Republican consultant Karl Rove, who was spectacularly wrong about the outcome of the 2012 election and, at 62, hardly an advertisement for the party's youth movement, told The New York Times that it was time for

mcfeattersd@shns.com

Clinton's generation to get off the stage.

"The idea that we're at the end of her generation and that it's time for another to step forward is certainly compelling," Rove said. Three of the party's rising stars are of a different generation: Marco Rubio is 42, Paul Ryan is 43 and Rand Paul is 50.

Unfortunately, Rove probably represents the high road. Taking the low road, Rush Limbaugh managed to combine both sexism and ageism, asking if Americans were ready to "watch a woman get older before their eyes on a daily basis."

That prompted Newsweek/Daily Beast columnist Michael Tomasky to observe: "If he has the reach we're told he has, he creates 10 new Clinton voters every time he opens his fat mouth."

The question, for someone watching from the sidelines, is why the Republicans would pick this fight at all.

Republicans did better than Democrats with voters 65 and older in the last presidential election: 56 percent voted for Republican Mitt Romney. But among women voters as a whole, 56 percent supported President Barack Obama.

Even given some Republicans' teeth-grinding detestation of Hillary Clinton, the stakes are a lot higher for Republicans than merely venting their political pique. The census says there are 17 million men age 65 and older, most of them reliably Republican voters. But there are 22 million women in that age group, an edge of 56.4 to 43.6 percent. It hardly seems worth gratuitously alienating a bloc that large — and one that's growing rapidly.

Overdose deaths spike among women

Prescription painkillers cause the most deaths.

By MIKE STOBBE
AP Medical Writer

ATLANTA — Overdose deaths in the U.S. are rising fastest among middle-aged women, and their drug of choice is usually prescription painkillers, the government reported Tuesday.

“Mothers, wives, sisters and daughters are dying at rates that we have never seen before,” said Dr. Thomas Frieden, director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, which compiled the data.

The problem is one of the few health issues the CDC is working on that are clearly getting worse, he added.

For many decades, the overwhelming majority of U.S. overdose deaths were men killed by heroin or cocaine. But by 2010, 40 percent were women — most of them middle-aged women who took prescription painkillers.

Skyrocketing female overdose death rates are closely tied to a boom in the overall use of prescribed painkillers. The new report is the CDC's first to spotlight how the death trend has been more dramatic among women.

The CDC found that the number and rate of prescription painkiller overdose deaths among females increased about fivefold 1999 to 2010. Among men, such deaths rose about 3-5 times.

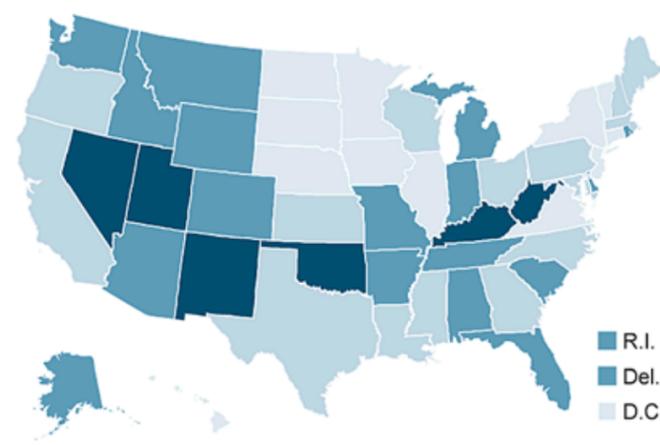

Overall, more men still die from overdoses of painkillers and other drugs; there were about 23,000 such deaths in 2010, compared with about 15,300

Female overdose problem

The rate of overdose deaths has risen rapidly among women, with opioids the biggest killer.

Deaths per 100,000 women for women. Men tend to take more risks with drugs than women, and often are more prone to the kind of workplace injuries that lead to their being prescribed painkillers in the first place, experts say.

But the gap has been narrowing dramatically.

Studies suggest that women are more likely to have chronic pain, to be prescribed higher doses, and to use pain drugs longer than men. Some research suggests women may be more likely than men to “doctor shop” and get pain pills from several physicians, CDC officials said.

But many doctors may not recognize these facts about women, said John Eadie, director of a Brandeis University program that tracks prescription-drug monitoring efforts across the United States.

The report highlights the need for “a mindset change” by doctors, who have traditionally thought of drug abuse as a men’s problem, he said. That means doctors should consider the possibility of addiction in female patients, think of alternative treatments for chronic pain, and consult state drug monitoring programs to find out if a patient has a worrisome history with painkillers.

The CDC report focuses on prescription opioids like Vicodin and OxyContin and their generic forms, methadone, and a powerful newer drug called Opana, or oxycodone.

“These are dangerous medications and they should be reserved for situations like severe cancer pain,” Frieden said. He added that there has not been a comparable increase in documented pain conditions in the U.S. public that would explain the boom in painkiller prescriptions in the last 10 or 15 years.

Some experts said the increase in prescriptions can be traced to pharmaceutical marketing campaigns.

CDC researchers reviewed death certificates, which are sometimes incomplete. Specific drugs were not identified in every death. In others, a combination of drugs was involved, such as painkillers taken with tranquilizers.

CDC officials think more than 70 percent of the overdose deaths were unintentional.

One striking finding:

The greatest increases in drug overdose deaths were in women ages 45 through 54, and 55 through 64. The rate for each of those groups more than tripled between 1999 and 2010.

In 2010, overdose deaths in those two groups of middle-aged women added up to about 7,400 — or nearly half the female total, according to CDC statistics.

It’s an age group in which more women are dealing with chronic pain and seeking help for it, some experts suggested.

Many of these women probably were introduced to painkillers through a doctor’s prescriptions for real pain, such as persistent aches in the lower back or other parts of the body. Then some no doubt became addicted, said Dr. Andrew Kolodny, a psychiatrist who specializes in addiction at Maimonides Medical Center in New York City.

There aren’t “two distinct populations of people being helped by opioid painkillers and addicts being harmed. There’s overlap,” said Kolodny, president of a 700-member organization Physicians for Responsible Opioid Prescribing.

Alternative bug bite remedies

Dear Pharmacist,

I use hydrocortisone cream for my bug bites. It works, but is there something else to manage this or the pain and itch? Me and my kids get bit frequently and I don’t like the idea of ‘taking a bath’ in chemical creams.

— K.K.,
Tulsa, Okla.

Answer:

I have other “bath” ideas to share with you.

What you do for a bug bite depends on the type of critter. For example, bites from bees, wasps, yellow jackets and fire ants are the most common. Unless you’re highly allergic, these bites can be treated at home. Bites from scorpions and certain spiders often require medical attention. Bites from ticks (if you’re lucky enough to see it, because you won’t feel it) should be treated with prescribed antibiotics for at least four weeks.

Let me keep it simple

DEAR PHARMACIST

today. Pharmacists like hydrocortisone cream because it works quickly, controls the itch, pain, swelling and redness. Benadryl (diphenhydramine) cream may help in this regard, too. Lidocaine, or numbing sprays provide yet another option to minimize pain. Here are other potential solutions:

■ Ice pack — The cold takes down swelling and pain.

■ Baking soda — Right after you get bit, make a paste using baking soda and water, add in meat tenderizer if you have it. Wash the paste and reapply every 15 minutes for about an hour. It helps with pain, itch and redness. The meat tenderizer neutralizes venom injected into you by the bug.

■ Ibuprofen or acetaminophen — Over-the-counter medications that temporarily control pain.

■ Oral antihistamines — Benadryl (diphenhydramine) is often used to control full-body itching. Don’t say I didn’t warn you (yawn) — this stuff can knock you out. No driving!

■ Toothpaste — Fluoride in toothpaste seems to calm the sting.

■ Essential oils — Lavender oil is soothing and acts as a natural anti-inflammatory and anti-venom aid. Peppermint oil and lavender both reduce risk of infection. Tea tree oil may disinfect the area. These oils may sting if you apply undiluted. For some, a 50/50 mix with a carrier oil, like olive or coconut, might be better. You can put essential oils in your bath. Speaking of baths...

■ Peroxide and epsom salts — Dump a whole 4-pound bag of epsom salts in warm (not hot) water, along with a pint (or two) of hydrogen peroxide. This home remedy has anecdotal evidence; it’s a very strong detoxifying bath and might cause an unpleasant Herxheimer reaction the first few times, so get your doctor’s blessings. It’s not right for everyone.

■ Aveeno oatmeal — This is 100 percent colloidal oatmeal that helps to control itching; you pour the flakes under the faucet of your bath and soak in it. Think that’s weird? It’s not compared to what I say next.

■ Preparation H Hemorrhoidal Cream — It contains pramoxine which controls pain.

■ Chiggerex — Chiggers are immature mites and not easily seen. Their itch is diabolic, compared to their microscopic size! Chiggerex is sold at pharmacies and brings quick relief.

Dozens charged in Alzheimer’s home abuse

Associated Press

COMMERCE, Ga. — Almost two dozen former employees of a Georgia facility for people with Alzheimer’s disease are facing more than 70 charges alleging cruel treatment, such as staff members striking patients and throwing water on them.

The charges stem from a three-month investigation of Alzheimer’s

Care of Commerce, the Georgia Bureau of Investigation said.

Agents used a search warrant on Tuesday morning to search for evidence at the center, about 65 miles northeast of Atlanta.

Warrants for the arrests of 21 former and present employees were issued. Charges include cruelty to people 65 or older and involve accusations of abuse, neglect and financial exploitation.

“Information obtained through the investigation indicated that patients were restrained with bed sheets and subjected to inhumane and undignified conditions to include ‘double diapering,’ which is a practice whereby multiple diapers were placed on the patients at once to keep the staff from changing soiled diapers as often,” the GBI said in a statement.

Local teams ousted from small league tournament Tuesday

Fort White, Lake City won't see championship.

By BRANDON FINLEY
bfinley@lakecityreporter.com

FORT WHITE — Conditions haven't been ideal and the participants in today's final round of the Babe Ruth Baseball Small League Invitational won't have the ideal competitors, either.

All local teams have been eliminated from the Babe Ruth Baseball Small League Invitational in Fort White.

Play was expected to enter the championship rounds and conclude on Tuesday, but weather delays have plagued the tournament since the beginning on Saturday.

Games were delayed each day, and Monday's slate of games were almost completely wiped out due to weather.

The plan, weather permitting, is to start the championship rounds at 9 a.m. today, with four teams remaining in each bracket.

At the conclusion of the semifinals, the championship games will begin with no set time announced.

Lake City's 15U team finished just outside of the semifinals with a 3-1 record during the tournament, while Fort White's 15U team finished at 2-2 for the week.

Fort White also just missed the 10U semifinals with a 3-1 record for the tournament.

"The weather has hit us pretty hard, but with the great help of the volunteers and the county, we were able to get it back up and running," Fort White Babe Ruth Baseball President Chris Sharpe said. "We had about a 12-hour delay, which was discouraging to some teams, causing them to forfeit early, so we're going to finish a day behind."

Despite all the weather delays, Sharpe still feels that the tournament continues to grow into a success.

"It was absolutely a big success," Sharpe said. "We aren't able to help mother nature as we are all at her mercy."

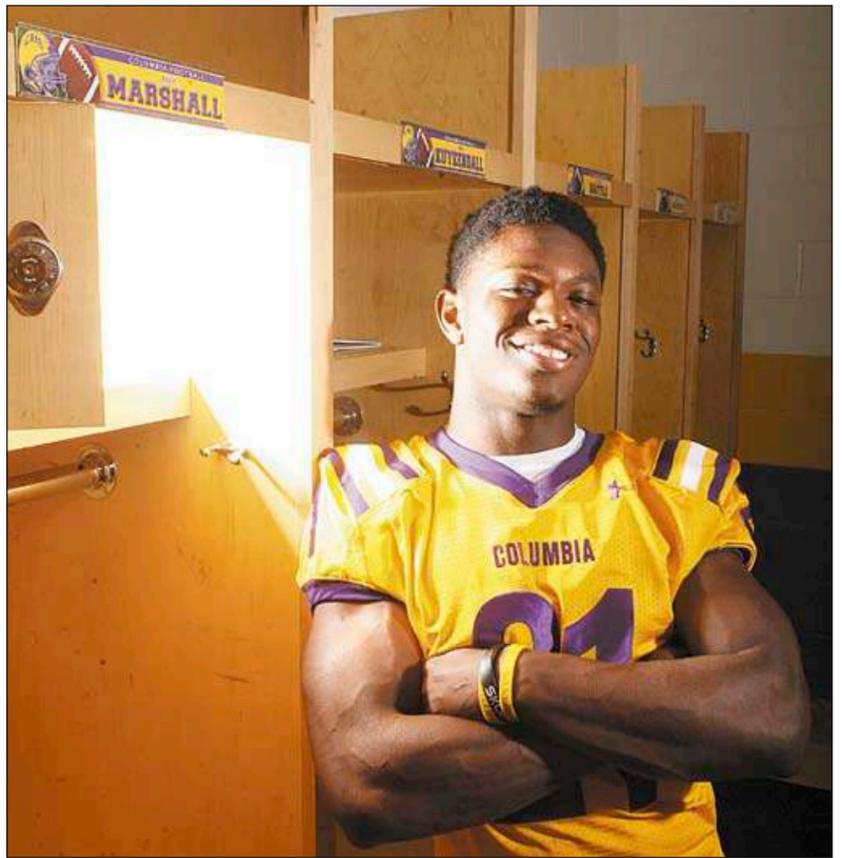

Melrose will take on Sarasota at 9 a.m. today in the 15U bracket to begin the games, while Southside will take on Longwood.

No other game times were announced, as delays forced games into the evening.

Columbia High's Trey Marshall shined this week at The Opening at Oregon.

Opening up

Marshall shining at Nike football camp in Oregon.

By BRANDON FINLEY
bfinley@lakecityreporter.com

The Opening at Oregon is a football camp intended only for the nation's elite high school football athletes.

Columbia High's Trey Marshall is making sure his name sticks after finishing fourth in the nation on the 40-yard dash with a time of 4.34 at the camp.

"What stands out to me is that he hasn't been training specifically for these events like some of the other kids," Columbia head coach Brian Allen said. "He's just training with our normal weight room workouts. To me, that shows that we are doing something right."

Today, Marshall could make a legion of fans happy when he is expected to make his commitment to play college football. His choices are narrowed down to Florida State and Ole Miss according to ESPN.

"I've heard that as well, but he didn't say anything to me about announcing," Allen said. "Getting it out of the way is something that's good either way. It limits the distractions for the season."

While Columbia is already on the national map, Marshall is bringing more attention to the Tigers, and that can only be a good thing for the program.

"CHS has been on the map with elite players in the past," Allen said. "Usually, if you have one or two players go pro, you're doing pretty good. We've had seven or eight. What it does is show that we are back nationally. It's a credit to the kids (Marshall is) working with and the coaching staff."

DEAR ABBY

Brother-in-law's kisses leave sister in a fury

www.dearabby.com

DEAR ABBY: My brother-in-law, "Dave," has twice kissed me passionately when my sister was not around. I made light of it and pushed him away. The third time it happened was when he came to my house to do a little repair job for me. That time he also grabbed my breast. I exploded and told him off.

Later on, Dave called and said he was going to come back to do some other things that needed attention. I told him he was not welcome in my house and that I'm furious he would do such a thing. He apologized and said he hoped I could forgive him.

I am so angry! I no longer want to be in his company. I also don't like that I have to keep his behavior a secret from my sister. Please help. - FUMING IN FLORIDA

DEAR FUMING: Your mistake was in not setting your amorous brother-in-law straight the first time he made a pass at you.

Now that you have made plain to him that you're not interested, you will probably have nothing more to worry about. But don't have him over unless your sister is with him.

After you cool off, the question then will be whether to tell Sis that her husband behaves inappist, let her air her concerns, and let the therapist explain to her why it is important that you work this through. This must be very uncomfortable for you, and you have my sympathy.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a teenage girl living with my mom, who is a single parent, and my younger sister. We have struggled financially, but we mostly live a relatively comfortable life, and Mom owns her own home.

However, she constantly says things to me and my sister like, "We're so poor," or, "We're going to live under a bridge," even in public! We have asked her to stop several times, but she doesn't care that we are upset and embarrassed. How can I get her to stop? - EMBARRASSED IN THE SOUTH

DEAR EMBARRASSED: You should approach your mother privately and ask why she is saying it. She may be joking, but her concerns could also be a holdover from when her financial situation was less secure. Please do it. Her response might be educational.

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

appropriately and how you know.

DEAR ABBY: I recently moved back to my home state and in with my grandmother to get away from my abusive husband. I have also filed for divorce. I love my grandmother dearly, but when it comes to the divorce or the therapy I go to weekly, she is not understanding and constantly brings up what he did to me.

I believe she's frustrated because I'm in therapy and she doesn't see a reason for it. How can I make her understand that I'm trying to heal wounds that aren't visible from the outside? - TRYING TO HEAL ON THE INSIDE

DEAR TRYING TO HEAL: Your grandmother may come from a generation in which therapy was something to be ashamed of. A way to help her understand the importance of what you are doing would be to invite her to a session with your therapist.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't rely on someone else. Take care of whatever is expected of you quickly so that you can get on to more pleasurable pastimes. Staying active will make you feel good about your future. Good fortune, love and romance are doable. ★★

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Take care of any personal matters before someone complains or questions what you are doing. Don't let love stand between you and your success. Look at anyone interfering in your progress as a liability. Voice your creative ideas. ★★

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Use your imagination when it comes to your professional goals. The more diverse you are, the better. You want to show others what you are capable of doing. Precision and clarity along with honesty and integrity will guide you in the right direction. ★★

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Check out the possibilities and do whatever you can to help a cause or someone you respect. Develop a plan that will open up new opportunities for you to use your skills. Don't fight change. You will benefit from what unfolds. ★★ stop you from taking part in something enjoyable. Don't cave under pressure. Make your intentions clear. Love is in the stars, and a change of location or routine will enhance a connection that brings you pleasure. ★★

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Travel for business or pleasure. Meeting new people or visiting old friends or colleagues will lead to an interesting proposal. Share information, and it will lead to greater opportunities. Express your thoughts with emotion and sincerity and you will get good results. ★★

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You'll face complaints if you don't live up to a promise you made. Problems at home concerning where or how you live will develop if you haven't handled money matters wisely. A change will be necessary if you want to stabilize your situation. ★★

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Go where the action is. Travel and sharing ideas will lead to opportunities. Don't let an emotional relationship ruin your chance to get ahead. Speak up and take care of a problem that surfaces before it spins out of control. ★★

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Easy come, easy go. Love is on the rise, and making an impulsive move to impress someone will have the opposite effect. Use your creative imagination and you will come up with interesting, cost-efficient ways to grab positive attention. ★★

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Put greater emphasis on home, family and your relationships with others. Both personal and professional opportunities will be directly linked to the way you treat others. Pay close attention to the way others interpret what you are offering. ★★

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emotions will be difficult to control. Listen carefully to what others ask of you and determine whether you should accommodate or back away. Make decisions based on how it will influence your future, both personally and professionally. ★★

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't get angry, get moving. Deal with any problem that arises with compassion, honesty and integrity. You can benefit if you think matters through and offer alternatives to those looking for answers or help. Personal improvements will fetch compliments. ★★

Lisicki wins again as women's semis set

By EDDIE PELLIS
Associated Press

LONDON — If Sabine Lisicki had a letdown after defeating Serena Williams, it didn't show.

If Lisicki is penciling herself into the Wimbledon final, she isn't saying.

Showing no drop-off after her dramatic victory over Williams, the 23rd-seeded Lisicki returned Tuesday and made quick work of a much less intimidating opponent, 46th-ranked Kaia Kanepi, dispatching her 6-3, 6-3 in 65 minutes to advance to her second career Wimbledon semifinal.

"I was ready today," Lisicki said. "I knew from the past, out of experience, that I needed to make the switch quickly to be ready, and that's what I did."

Indeed, Lisicki opened the match by breaking Kanepi's serve in the first game and didn't look back in that set. In the second, she had one hiccup a game in which she double-faulted three times to drop a break and fall behind 2-1. She broke back right away, however, and won four of the next five games to close out the match.

Now, the 23-year-old German finds herself in the Wimbledon semifinals for the second time in three years. Her win against Williams made her the new, odds-on favorite to win the title and even pushed Britain's favorite tennis player, Andy Murray, off the back pages of a couple London tabloids.

All of which means almost nothing at least to hear Lisicki tell it.

"Match by match," she said. "Did that from the start and will continue to do that."

Her next opponent is No. 4 Agnieszka Radwanska, who defeated No. 6 Li Na 7-6 (5), 4-6, 6-2 in a match that took more than 3 hours to complete and included two rain delays, an injury timeout and a final game that lasted more than 10 minutes.

The other semifinal will pit No. 15 Marion Bartoli of France against No. 20 Kirsten Flipkens of Belgium.

Flipkens beat eighth-seeded Petra Kvitova 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 to knock the last remaining Grand Slam tournament winner out of the draw. Flipkens won her first career Grand Slam quarterfinal, continuing quite a comeback from health problems that dropped her to No. 262 last year.

"The people believing in me, I can count on one hand," said Flipkens, who was sidelined with blood clots in her legs. "It's amazing."

Bartoli eliminated the last remaining

Sabine Lisicki of Germany reacts after winning a singles quarterfinal match against Kaia Kanepi of Estonia at the All England Lawn Tennis Championships in Wimbledon, London, on Tuesday.

American singles player, beating Sloane Stephens 6-4, 7-5 in a match that included a 2-hour rain delay.

This is her deepest trip at a Grand Slam since the 2011 French Open and her deepest trip at Wimbledon since 2007, when she lost to Venus Williams in what remains her only Grand Slam final.

Radwanska moved one win from her second straight Wimbledon final, putting Li away on the eighth match point. Radwanska called for a medical timeout after the second set so a trainer could work on her right thigh. Up 5-2 in the third set, she called for the trainer again for a quick treatment on both legs.

"If it's the end of a Grand Slam you don't really think about the pain or anything else," Radwanska said. "You just fight until the end. That's what I was doing today."
