Leaves from an array of Florida trees covered an outdoor table at Florida Gateway College Tuesday morning. Pines, sweet bay and oak — each tiny branch sample was numbered and waiting for nearby students of Future Farmers of America to jot down its name for the Florida Forest Service's annual forestry contest.

FFA members from seven counties participated in hopes of gaining the prized spot offered by District III at the statewide competition in Perry next month. Cedar Key FFA chapter took the title, with Fort White High School chapter coming in second. The students competed in a written test and five different field events, which included dendrology, map interpretation, timber volume estimation, equipment identification and forest disorders.

"These kids are our future," said Jay Tucker, coordinator of the event and senior forester for Approximately 115 students gathered at FGC for the event, with Columbia High School being the closest chapter and Cedar Key FFA Chapter being the farthest. And even though there's only one winner, each child acquires knowledge they can carry with them into the future, Tucker added. For instance, knowing the forest diseases and identification of North Florida foliage can help young adults when they purchase their own property in the future.

NEW ORLEANS — From a tiny, vulnerable island off the Louisiana coast to the beaches of the Florida Panhandle, Gulf Coast residents prepared Thursday for a possible hit from Tropical Storm Karen, which threatened to become the first named tropical system to menace the United States this year.

Karen was forecast to lash the northern Gulf Coast over the weekend as a weak hurricane or tropical storm. A hurricane watch was in effect from Grand Isle, La., to west of Destin. A tropical storm warning was issued for the Louisiana coast from Grand Isle to the mouth of the Pearl River, including the New Orleans area.

In Columbia County the net result will likely be showers, according to Emergency Management Director Shayne Morgan.

Santa Fe River seeking a song

By AMANDA WILLIAMSON

Suwannee River has Stephen Foster's "Old Folks at Home," the Ichetucknee River has the "Ichetucknee Riversong" by local artist Cathy DeWitt, but the Santa Fe River has yet to have a famous jingle to inspire protection of its waters.

Local environmental group Our Santa Fe River, Inc. hopes to change that with its Fourth Annual Song Contest and Art Show on Sunday at their headquarters in the Rum 138 building. The building is located at 2070 SW CR 138 in Fort White.

"We have such a wonderful resource right here in our own backyard," OSFR president Merrilee Malwitz-Jipson said. "I thought let's generate some excitement for musicians to create original music about the Santa Fe."

When she first started the contest, she couldn't find any songs about the river she protects. But now, the organization has 21 songs to its credit — all of which can be found in video format on the OSFR website. The group wants everyone to be able to hear the songs, even if they can't

'Punt for a Pickup' at Homecoming

From staff reports

In front of a stadium of Columbia High Tiger football fans, one lucky onlooker will get the chance to win a new truck tonight at the Homecoming game.

The Lake City Reporter will hold its Punt for a Pickup contest during halftime. One lucky fan who attends the game will be selected randomly to come on the field at Tiger Stadium and punt a football 35 yards into the back of a pickup. Jackson loses last-chance damage suit

LOS ANGELES
 With the jury's refusal to hold a concert promoter responsible for Michael Jackson's death, the late singer's mother lost perhaps her last best chance to collect millions in damages and place blame for her son's untimely demise. "I'm OK," was all that the Jackson family matriarch said as she moved slowly out of a courtroom after hearing Wednesday's stunning verdict denying her claim for as much as $1.5 billion and giving her nothing. Some called it the Jackson family's last stand in court, a longshot effort that may have been doomed by the singer's own history of addiction struggles and headstrong decision-making when it came to his medical care. Jurors said they believed Dr. Conrad Murray, who went to prison for giving Jackson an overdose of the drug propofol, was hired by AEG Live LLC at Jackson's behest, but they found that he was competent to do the job for which he was hired — to act as a general practitioner. "Michael Jackson was a big star," said juror Kevin Smith. "He wanted this doctor and if anyone said no they were out of the mix."

From Kanye to Pharrell, rap stars embrace Cyrus

NEW YORK — While Miley Cyrus has a batch of critics, there is a group rallying behind her and praising her as a vital talent: rappers. Pharrell produced several songs on Cyrus' new album. Big Sean requested her as the star of his "Fire" music video. And to top it off, Kanye West invited her to appear on the remix to "Black Skinhead," his anti-racism rant from his eerie and dark "Yeezus" album. The idea of the former "Hannah Montana" star becoming a muse for rap stars seems odd to some, but Mike WiLL Made-It, who executive produced "Bangerz," said the singer has struck a chord with rappers because she isn't following in the footsteps of pop stars like Katy Perry but creating her own bold path.

At 80, Wayne Shorter performs 'without a net'

NEW YORK — At age 80, Wayne Shorter isn't ready to rest on his reputation as one of the greatest composers in jazz history. Instead, whenever he performs the saxophonist can't resist the urge to "de-compose" his works and create something anew. "Jazz to me is something that doesn't have to sound like jazz," said Shorter, speaking by telephone from his home in the Hollywood Hills. "The word 'jazz' means I dare you. I dare you to go beyond what you are. You have to go beyond your comfort zone, to break out of the box. ... You're talking about not just music, you're talking about life." Shorter, who celebrated his birthday with several concerts in August, is still going strong. He was a quadruple winner in this year's Downbeat magazine critics poll.

'Big Tony' sought businessman hit

FORT LAUDERDALE — A key witness has testified that a man with alleged New York mob ties called for a hit on a prominent South Florida businessman in a dispute over a profitable gambling cruise line. Dwayne Nicholson said Thursday he was initially involved in the alleged plot to kill Konstantinos "Gus" Boulis but refused to carry it out. Nicholson says defendants Anthony "Big Tony" Moscatiello and Anthony "Little Tony" Ferrari wanted Boulis dead. Both could get the death penalty if convicted of first-degree murder. Nicholson says he was involved in surveillance of Boulis for weeks but eventually dropped out of sight. Investigators say Boulis was fatally shot by a mob hit man in February 2001 shortly after selling SunCruz Casinos, which led to the power struggle.

Teen accepts plea deal in sex case

VERO BEACH — A Florida teen accused of having sex with her underage girlfriend accepted a plea deal Thursday that her attorney says is in her best interest. Kaitlyn Hunt, 19, pleaded no contest to battery, interference with child custody and contributing to the dependency of a child. Hunt was charged in February with having sex with a 14-year-old female schoolmate. Hunt was 18 at the time. A previous plea deal was withdrawn in August following allegations that Hunt exchanged thousands of texts with the girl and sent her nude photos. A judge revoked her bond, sending her to jail. Prosecutors added a charge of transmitting material harmful to a minor. Under the terms of Thursday's deal, Hunt will stay in jail until mid-December but won't have to register as a sex offender. She is prohibited from having contact with her girlfriend, faces probation and and West Palm Beach. must perform 150 hours of community service. Her attorney, A. Julia Graves, said in a letter to Scripps Treasure Coast Newspapers that Hunt's goal after completing the conditions of her deal would be to work toward changing the law so that teens attending the same school can't be prosecuted for having sexual relationships, regardless of sexual orientation. "Kaitlyn, her family, friends and supporters never want to see another teenager in this kind of situation," Graves said.

Man dies in mobile home fire

WINTER HAVEN — A man is dead following a fire at his mobile home in Winter Haven. The Tampa Tribune (bit.ly/172XsBf) reports neighbors saw smoke coming from the home and called 911 late Wednesday. Some neighbors broke a window to get 68-year-old Ellis Samuel Allison Jr. out of the burning home while others tried to put out the fire until firefighters arrived. Allison was pronounced dead at the scene.

Branford FFA Chapter member Andrew Meyer calculates the total volume of a tree during the Florida Forest Service's Forestry Contest at Florida Gateway College on Thursday.

White High School, wanted to compete in the Forestry Contest because she thought it would be really fun. This year was her third time representing a Fort White school.

"I want to be a veterinarian," she said. "But if I come across an animal that has gotten in one of these bugs or an animal that lives in a certain ecosystem, I can use the information I learned through this contest."

Outside of Fort White's four-day practice schedule, Laidig studies on her own by reading through her forestry book and studying scientific terms for dendrology.

"There are 20 different trees here, representative of conifers and hardwoods in the United States," said Stan Shepard, the Columbia County Forester. "If you're preparing a management plan for a landowner, it helps to be able to identify the trees. Different trees have different values and different products that can be made from them."

According to Shepard, more than 5,000 products can be created from trees.

Fort White student and District III president Rebecca Bailey represented her district at the Forest Service career development event. She felt the dendrology section was the most helpful part of the contest.

"Every FFA contest, you learn something that you can take with you after you graduate," Bailey said. "You learn it for life."

Competing against the nine other chapters, Columbia High School had six students volunteer for Thursday's competition. One of the students, 17-year-old James Foster, wanted a chance to show everyone he actually learned something while sitting in the classroom. While he plans to enlist in the Army after graduation, he believes the skills learned through forestry lessons can help him in the military. Foster said he can use the map interpretation and compass reading — two skills tested at the FFS contest this year and in the past, respectively.

"Say you're stuck in the middle of nowhere, and you need to find a tree," he said. "You need to pick one that isn't rotten. You'll know which one not to pick because you'll know the diseases."

Columbia High School FFA advisor appreciates the partnership between FFA and the Florida Forest Service. The statewide organization helps teach her students teamwork, memorization skills and test-taking skills.

Land use change would allow home for the aged and adopt a living wage and wage theft ordinance.

County Commissioners adopted an amendment to land development regulations and turned down a proposed living wage ordinance Thursday evening.

Commissioners voted unanimously to approve an amendment to the land development regulations proposed by Mountaintop Ministries Worldwide, Inc. The amendment will allow for the construction of residential facilities for the aged as a special exemption in agriculture-1, agriculture-2 and agriculture-3 zoning districts.

Making his second appearance before commissioners, local resident Kyle Rasmussen requested commissioners review

After Rasmussen struggled to make clear the county's role in achieving that goal, commissioners unanimously denied his request.

Toward the close of the meeting, Commissioner Ron Williams expressed his discontent with the city's decision to dispatch their own fire services, pulling further away from a truly combined communication center.

"I'm frustrated, but I will accept the decision," Williams said. "At this time, we will not have a combined dispatch for Lake City and Columbia County. I gave it my last shot. I'm disappointed but accept the outcome. I guess it's just not to be at this time."

winds below hurricane force and a few severe storms that could produce isolated tornados. Rain will be the big impact," Morgan said. "Based on rainfall estimates, with where the rains are, it could be an inch to 2 inches, maybe a little bit more unless it takes a significant turn to the east. The highest would be 3 to 4 inches, which is what we're seeing around the eye."

attend on Sunday, Malwitz-Jipson said, so the website gives the public a place to look.

The weekend event will run from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m., and include 11 different local artists. The genres range from traditional country, gospel and bluegrass to rock and pop music. Three different judges will score song performance and the lyrics. They include Nate Biscoe, the Santa Fe High School band director; Robert McClellan, a local music producer and Mutlu Citim-Kepic, the director of music admissions for the University of Florida.

"Hopefully, one day, we will have a song well known as 'Way Down on the Suwannee River," Malwitz-Jipson said.

Last year, Don Austin won first place. The year before that, it was John Sterpe. All the songs have to be about the Santa Fe River. The event also serves as a fundraiser and membership drive for Our Santa Fe River, Inc. with raffle prizes and a silent auction. The highlight of the auction is the "Learn to Play Madolin" package, which includes a new mandolin, case, DVD, book, extra strings and a wall mount. The evening also includes a fine art show, featuring various artworks featuring the river. Barbecue meals, cooked by the Lion's Club of High Springs, will be available for $8, as well as soft drinks, lemonade and tea.

"I believe this river is important to everyone," Malwitz-Jipson said. "It grounds us. It roots us. It is worthy of our interest, our protection and — ultimately — our love."

Malwitz-Jipson decided to do a music contest because she believes music has the ability to cross barriers. She knows the Suwannee River's famous song, "Old Folks at Home," has inspired many people and enriched their love for the nearby river. She wants people to develop that same connection to the Santa Fe.

"I'd love to see a play," Malwitz-Jipson said. "It's love to see an opera. I'd like to see all kinds of art enhancing our incredible natural resources in Florida."

Shutdown: What's the big deal?

Hours after a congressional stalemate over Obamacare — the House wanted to delay or defund it, the Senate refused — resulted Tuesday in a partial shutdown of the federal government, the health reform law's insurance exchanges were up and running anyway, more or less on schedule. Makes you wonder what all the fuss was about.

This will give you an idea: The shutdown is a big deal because choices made in Washington affect our lives in countless ways. The shutdown will furlough hundreds of thousands of government-affiliated workers, some of them right here in our community. National parks are closed, including campsites in Northwest Florida. First-time home buyers will have a harder time getting loans. The economy will take a hit. And difficulties will multiply as the shutdown continues.

All politics are local, the saying goes. But D.C. gridlock can effectively lock up policies and politics at the local level. We're seeing that today.

The shutdown is a big deal also because it highlights the extraordinarily bad decision-making of people who were elected to make good decisions. ...

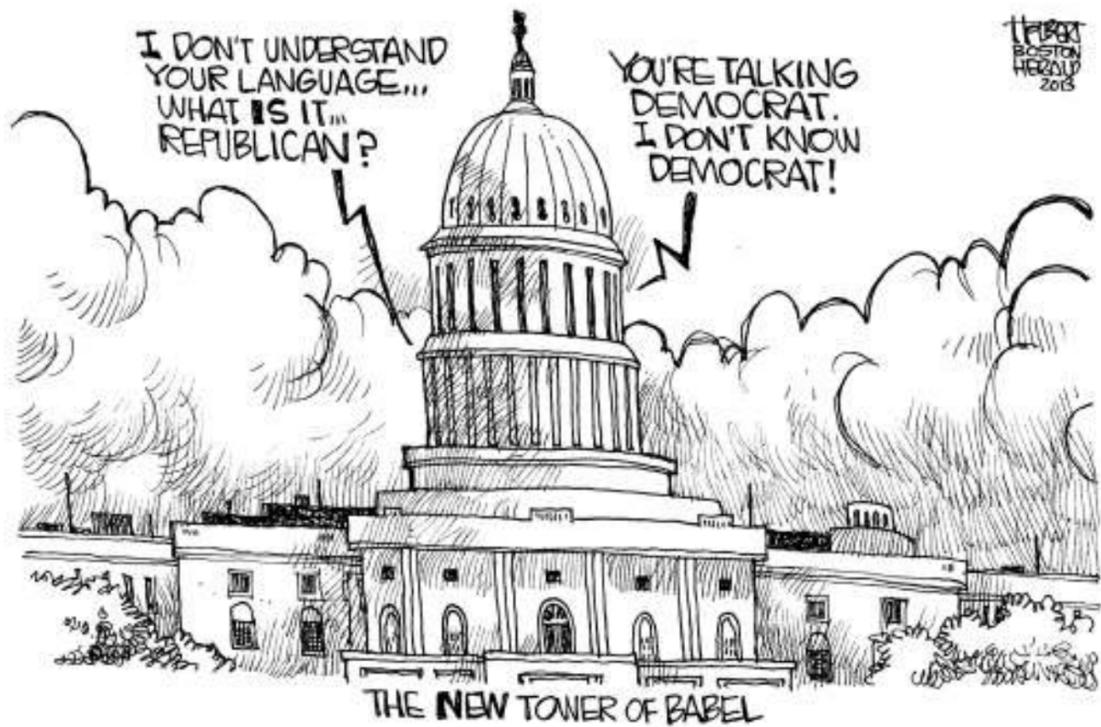

Like it or not (and we don't), Obamacare is the law of the land. The Affordable Care Act was OK'd by Congress, affirmed by the Supreme Court and, in the Obama administration's view, endorsed last fall with the president's re-election. Republicans knew that Democrats in the Senate would never agree to hobble it or postpone it. Yet they pressed ahead, to the brink and over.

But we're still optimists. We expect Republicans and Democrats soon will discover a reason to compromise, end the shutdown and put furloughed folks back to work.

At least for a couple of weeks. In mid-October, all of this will be replayed as Congress debates whether to raise the debt ceiling.

That'll be an even bigger deal.

A gift from psychology

Here's a free gift from psychology! It could help you build that happier and more successful life for yourself. It's called "visualization," and it's easy and natural. Here's how it works.

My best friends enjoyed playing golf, and watching professional golf on television. I'd never played golf. But when I watched a tournament with them, I became fascinated. The image was pleasant, and wouldn't go away. I would occasionally picture myself, or imagine, playing golf. One day I saw a listing for a beginning golf class in a community college schedule. I enjoyed the class, and it led to three years of fun weekly golf since then. It's been a great addition to my life, for so many reasons!

My beautiful and creative wife visits art shows, and arts and crafts fairs, to get inspiration and ideas for creating her own art projects. It takes only a quick glance to trigger an idea, then the ball starts rolling. Research shows that just picturing something in your mind can take us 90 percent of the way towards making it real. The powerful process of "visualization" has begun.

We already use visualization often, like when we look in the mirror visualizing how we will look in that new outfit.

My parents used to tell me stories about my ancestors, a history of sailing and ships. I was given a painting of an old three-mast sailing ship from the 18th century, in an old oak frame. I've always been interested. One day I found a sailing ship like the picture, in the port of Los Angeles. I met the captain, and he let me volunteer as a crew member. On my very first trip, I met a wonderful girl who also loves the ocean. Recently we celebrated our 20th wedding anniversary! The old picture of the ship still hangs on the wall in our home.

Robert Denny
Bob.Denny8@gmail.com

One weekend we rented a cabin in the mountains. The picture of that cabin stayed in my mind long after the vacation! We eventually bought the cabin, and moved to the mountains I begin a new career in real estate, and took a job at Snow Summit ski lodge and rentals at Big Bear Lake.

Do professional marketers know how to use this? You bet they do. They constantly give us TV ads showing athletes and movie stars we'd like to look like, adventures we'd like to be a part of, places we'd like to be, and things we'd like to own (and of course buy from them.) They spend big bucks on these ads because they know that visualization works.

How can you use visualization to make your own life even better?

- First, choose something you'd like to be, do, or have: learn a new language, take up running marathons, chart your ancestry, or maybe take up sailing.

- Talk about your ideas or dreams with someone close to you.

- Find a picture that best represents what you'd like: Tear a page out of an old magazine, or download pictures from the Internet.

- You may want to create a poster, taping pictures of those things you'd like on it. Hang it where you'll notice it often, like over your desk. Even if that's all you do, with so little effort, your mind starts unconsciously taking steps to make it real and bring it into your life.

Do you believe in your dreams enough to take that first step? Watch for that visual image of what you want in your life, and keep it where you'll see it often. You can make the life of your dreams unfold for you.

Global warming alarmists at it again

After the United Nations climate panel issued a highly dubious report about the sad, ever more sizzling, calamity-nudging state of the world in 2007, an organization of 106 national science academies reviewed the review, finding it significantly amiss in "each major step" of its assessment.

We need to get these critics who put science above politics back on the job again.

They would seem to have plenty of revelatory work to do following the September release of a 36-page summary of the U.N. panel's 2013 report that tells all of us to shudder. Yes, shudder, because as one spokesman said in describing its findings, it shows that "climate change threatens our planet, our only home."

The scary warming will keep coming at us for centuries, the summary says, but needs action soon in the form of major international restrictions that will slow down and ultimately put a halt to carbon dioxide emissions.

Some warn the fuel changes undertaken to attempt that end could be a major hit on prosperity, especially thwarting hopes in the world's least-developed nations. In the United States, where President Barack Obama is threatening a war on coal, it could mean we'd be singing the recessionary blues for many a moon.

Given what the report seeks, you'd think it would deal at length with a major fact in conflict with its tone of certainty, admonition and fright. It's that there has been no global, atmospheric warming for 15 years. The report belittles the issue, saying 15 years isn't so long in the time span we're discussing, and, besides, all that additional warmth may be hiding in the depths of the ocean.

Jay Ambrose
Speaktoljay@aol.com

Here's the thing. The computer models that predicted something more accelerated than what has actually happened since 1998 are the same ones predicting disaster in the long run. If they were wrong about the past 15 years, it is a good sign they are wrong about the long run, too.

From the start, skeptics have pointed out that the science of climate has huge problems because of all the factors that cannot conceivably be calculated in trying to figure out what might happen. There are many possible reasons that the average temperature did not go up in the past decade and a half, some of them suggesting we have a lot less to worry about than the report says. One possibility is that carbon dioxide actually has less impact on climate than supposed.

Oh, wait, say the alarmists. People indulging in that kind of talk are "deniers." By that intended slur, they mean these seekers of more convincing evidence are really just turning their back on the obvious, scientifically demonstrated truth.

Sorry, but it's the alarmists who are most suspect. Not everyone involved in putting out the U.N. report has impressive scientific credentials. As one writer recently underlined, many of them have close ties with extremist environmental groups, meaning they could well have fallen prey to that which makes fanatics of far too many: overreaching ideology. ...

In the meantime, many reputable scientists are among those who say scare talk is unjustified and should be toned down. And there are any number of reputable scientists — including members of the national academies mentioned earlier — who ask tough questions of those who want us all to tremble as we endorse public policies that could be economically ruinous.

Judith Curry, a climate scientist at the Georgia Institute of Technology, is a voice of reason in all of this. For scientists to miss telling us of a coming catastrophe would be wrong, she says, adding it is equally wrong when scientists advocate dramatic political action while simplifying or hiding scientific uncertainties.

Two men, two ways, two destinies – Part 2

Last week we talked about the things the blessed man does not do and the things that he does. These first three verses of Psalm one are so direct that no one should miss their importance. Everyone should want “whatever they do to prosper” (verse 3).

The next three verses of Psalm one are warnings for those who do not do the things in verses one – three. Psalm 1:4-6 “The ungodly are not so, But are like the chaff which the wind drives away. Therefore the ungodly shall not stand in the judgment, Nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous. For the Lord knows the way of the righteous, But the way of the ungodly shall perish” (NKJ).

First of all we see the insecurity of the ungodly. Many times when we hear the word ungodly, we think of it meaning such as “blasphemous, corrupt, immoral, irreligious, sinful, vile, or wicked.” But that is not always the case. There are those who are good

Many times when we hear the word ungodly, we think of it meaning such as ‘blasphemous, corrupt, immoral, irreligious, sinful, vile, or wicked.’ But that is not always the case. There are those who are good moral people who even go to church.

moral people who even go to church. Members of some cults try to live a Godly life, but many have left God out of their lives and their religion.

Verse three says whatever the Godly man does will prosper. Verse 4 tells us this is not so with the ungodly. That should be enough to get our attention. God says that the things spoken of in verse three will not happen to those who are ungodly. They are those who maybe do not do some of the sinful things that is so much a part of our society today; but they condone them and support much of the ungodly things that go on in our world today. They are, as verse 4 says, like chaff that are carried any which way the wind blows. Remember the blessed man is like a tree planted. His life is steadfast not like, verse five says “the ungodly will not stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous.” One day at the end of this age we will all stand before God for judgment. The Godly will stand before Him at the “Judgment Seat of Christ” (II Cor. 5:10). No ungodly will be there; but the judgment of the ungodly is recorded in Revelation 20:11-15, known as “The Great White Throne Judgment.” As it says in verse 5, the ungodly will not be in the congregation of the righteous. Is it not sad to note that the time is coming when those who reject our Lord Jesus will forever be separated from all that is good and Godly; even from loved ones who did not reject Jesus as Savior.

Verse six says “The Lord knows the way of the righteous” and He is waiting to reward them. “But the way of the ungodly shall perish.” Perish is a word of finality. The very word perish should get our attention; to be lost forever without any hope.

My prayer is that each of us would study more the teaching of Psalms one. Only six little verses with such powerful messages to those who choose the Godly life and to those who do not. God is the God of and re-warder of all that is good.

Traditional versus Contemporary

Some churches advertise two types of worship services; namely, traditional and contemporary. As best as can be determined, the purpose for these alternative worship styles is to appeal to the mature in age while at the same time appealing to the young.

Usually when we put “traditional” up against “contemporary” we intend to convey the idea that one is out of date while the other is what is current. The traditional is out of style while the contemporary is the current style. The traditional is for the “legalistic” while the contemporary is for the more “free” thinking.

Let’s spend a few min-

BIBLICAL MEDITATION

Carlton McPeak
carlton_mc@msn.com

utes meditating about this concept of traditional versus contemporary as it relates to our worship services. Should they be opposites? Should there be two alternatives to worship? Should one be for the young while the other is for the “senior citizens”? It is understood that as one grows older they want to keep things like they have always done them. It is also understood that the younger want to change what the older have done. But, why should there be a division when it comes to worship? Why would a congregation want to segregate its membership over a very important reason for their very existence?

One of the things which we might want to consider is, “is the traditional worship service, contemporary?” By that it is meant, is it relevant to the purpose for the worship? Is it stimulating to those in attendance? Does it cause us to worship God in the manner which He desires?

Another thing to consider is, “is the contemporary service, traditional?” By that it is meant, is the things which God wants in our worship to Him included in the service? While the service must appeal to the younger minds, have we left out what God wants left in?

Our worship service should not be “dry” and have no emotion. However, our worship should not be all emotional and full of “feeling” and not have any time to think and reflect upon whom it is that we are assembled to worship. There must be balance struck between the two.

The New Testament is very definitive in what God wants during the worship service. Luke tells us what the church in its infancy did when they assembled; namely, they “continued in the apostles teaching, and to fellowship, to the breaking of bread and prayer” (Acts 2:42). These items of worship seem very simple; we might even say that they are traditional. However, when we give the proper thoughts and reflection upon what is being done with these elements of worship, they can be done in a very contemporary way.

Something else for us to meditate upon is how are we going to worship God when we get to Heaven? Are we still going to be segregated? Are we going to be debating what we should do for eternity when we are in the presence of God? Or, are we going to be united and worshipping God according to His directions?

We should not be discussing whether our worship service should be traditional or contemporary. We should be working together so that we can all worship in the tradition of the apostles with the contemporariness of our modern day, just like it was in the New Testament.

Overcoming bitterness

HEART MATTERS

Angie Land

angieland3@windstream.net

accent, a dose of bitterness will always quench sweetness... and bitter is exactly the condition we find Naomi in our portion of scripture this week. Recalling her recent family tragedy, the death of her husband and two sons, we can certainly sympathize with Naomi, and agree that life gives us no few opportunities to become bitter.

I find it so interesting that Naomi (whose name means "pleasant") quickly rebuked the women of Bethlehem for calling her by name. Instead, she confessed her state of bitterness by asking to be called "Mara," which means "bitter." This is remarkable, because we normally put so much effort into hiding our bitterness...so much, that we often won't even recognize it in ourselves, let alone point it out to others! Honestly, have you ever told anyone to call you bitter?

Because we may not always be able to distinguish bitterness in ourselves, let's take advantage of this passage to assemble a quick checklist of identifiers: You might be bitter if...

■ You are convinced that you have the worst plight of anyone you know...

Hear Naomi's words in Ruth 1:13 "It is more bitter for me than for you..."

I wonder if Naomi forgot that Orpah and Ruth had just lost their husbands too?

■ You are sure that your pain is someone else's fault...

Bitterness always blames, and Naomi is blatantly blaming God for her misfortune. Before we get too offended, I'm convinced that blaming God may be a better option than blaming another person. God is longsuffering and more than able to defend Himself. One thing is certain; Naomi believed that God is all-powerful and that her life was in His hands. We just don't always know what His plan for our life will involve, and sometimes, that is just plain hard.

■ You suffer from a "selective memory"...

In verse 21, Naomi complains that she left Bethlehem "full, but the Lord has brought me back empty." It is true that she left with her husband and sons, but don't you find her choice of words interesting, that she left "full," when their reason for going to Moab in the first place was to escape the famine in Bethlehem? Were the "good old days" really that good, or have we just forgotten there was trouble then, too?

■ Your identity has been overtaken by bitterness...

I'm convinced that the reason the Bible compares bitterness to a root is because unless we intentionally dig it up, it continues to grow unseen under the surface and wraps itself around every area of our lives. Once it does, it is easily spotted...our face reveals it, our speech exposes it, and our attitudes and behavior display it. I suppose that Naomi's bitter root had consumed her to the point that she just decided to admit it..."Call me bitter!"

So, if we have identified ourselves as bitter...now what? An applicable story is found in Exodus 15:22-27, as the children of Israel are just beginning their journey out of Egypt and have gone several days without water when they come to a place called "Marah." (Sound familiar?) Just as you would expect, the water at Marah was bitter and not fit to drink, but what happened next is fascinating! "Moses cried out to the Lord, and the Lord showed him a piece of wood. He threw it into the water, and the water became sweet."

What in the world was in the wood? Could it be the promise of an old rugged cross in the distant future? Only through that cross are we able to release our bitterness, and offer forgiveness to others, even as we receive it ourselves...and finally, let sweetness overcome the bitter...because every heart matters.

income. Save when you are young, spend when you are old. Never run into debt unless you can see your way out again. Good company and good conversation are sinews of virtue. If anyone speaks evil of you, let your life be such that no one believes him.

When you retire at night, think about what you have been doing during the day. Never be idle. If your hands cannot be employed usefully, then attend to the culture of your mind. Read the above carefully and thoughtfully each week."

James A. Garfield, later to be the 20th President and the 2nd President to be assassinated, recognized in this simple piece of paper, something he could use as a guide to a good life.

These are just some good rules for life. Solomon give more in Proverbs, his book on "How to have a good life." Take a look, mark the proverbs which are special to you, and start living with purpose... Short wise sayings, may just save you from making some critical mistakes, along with suffering the bad consequences which follow.

As Solomon says, "Out in the open wisdom calls aloud, she raises her voice in the public square; on top of the wall she cries out, at the city gate she makes her speech: "How long will you who are simple love your simple ways? How long will mockers delight in mockery and fools hate knowledge? Repent at my rebuke!

Then I will pour out my thoughts to you, I will make known to you my teachings. But since you refuse to listen when I call and no one pays attention when I stretch out my hand, since you disregard all my advice and do not accept my rebuke, I in turn will laugh when disaster strikes you; I will mock when calamity overtakes you" (Proverbs 1:20-26).

Someone said, "Life is simply the result of a few major decisions with the consequences played out over time." Think of the big decisions you will make... "Who will I date and eventually marry?" "Shall I get married before going to or finishing college?" "What will I do for a living?" "Where will I live?" "Who will be my real friends?" You say, "What difference does it make?" You will see it makes ALL THE DIFFERENCE IN THIS WORLD, and perhaps in the next, it surely did for Solomon.

Visiting mission team efforts reach sky-high

Berea Baptist Church welcomes a missionary team from Tennessee

From staff reports

What could a retired Air National Guard Refueling Pilot, teacher, and retired employees from ALCOA aluminum have in common? They are all members of the combined mission team from East Maryville Baptist Church and Immanuel Baptist Church from Maryville, Tennessee. The ten member team brought their construction skills and willing hearts to partner with Berea Baptist Church here in Lake City during the week of Sept. 29 - Oct. 4.

This is not a novice team. They have been ministering together for 4 years and have traveled throughout Tennessee and to Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, and now Florida. While they are here, the mission team will help remodel the sanctuary to make it lighter and brighter, repair and upgrade the church through some exterior projects, and do some electrical work in the Fellowship Hall. The team will be camping at the church for the week. First Korean Baptist Church, who share the Berea Church campus, will provide an evening meal for the team.

Pastor Andy Jordan came to Berea in January and says that "Berea is a Christ centered church that genuinely cares about the community. We want to be a community partner." Putting feet on their faith, beginning on October 16, Berea will begin offering Wednesday night meals and Tutoring in Reading Comprehension for Kindergarten through the 5th Grade.

And while they are here, the mission team will spend Wednesday evening helping the church pass out flyers announcing their Fall Family Festival on Saturday, Oct. 19 from 5 p.m. - 7 p.m. The Festival will feature a blue grass concert by The Andrews Family Band. There will be free food, bounce houses, games and door prizes. The community is encouraged to bring their lawn chairs and enjoy a great evening with their family, meet their neighbors and make some new friends.

Beau Vann, a local musician, is also scheduled to sing a few songs during the event.

"Among the things that will make this year's homecoming special include the presence of God and the family of the Nazarenes coming together to have a very special time and very special homecoming," Henderson said.

Henderson, who has been the church pastor for six years, said it's a special time at the church during the annual homecoming celebration.

"We don't want to forget where we came from, and we don't want to forget who we are and who got us here," Henderson said. "We try to take some time every year to remember all three of those things — the people who put us here, where we came from as well as where we're going."

Fort White High's Tavaris Williams finds an open path as he drives down the field against Chiles High on Sept. 20.

Sweet start for Indians

Fort White looking for 4-0 start at Pirates.

By TIM KIRBY
tkirby@lakecityreporter.com

FORT WHITE — At 3-0 Fort White High football is off to a sweet start, but the real season begins today with district play.

Fort White travels to Fernandina Beach High for the first game in District 2-4A. Kickoff is 7 p.m.

In the other 2-4A game, Taylor County High hosts Madison County High.

Fort White had an open date to prepare — and wait — for today.

“We stressed district last week and this week,” Indians head coach Demetric Jackson said. “Our first three games were all big, but this is where you get paid. Our ultimate goal is to get to the playoffs and you have to care of your district opponents.”

Jackson said a couple of days off last week allowed all the bumps and bruises to heal, and a team with several both-ways players to get rested.

“We can’t wait,” Jackson said. “Kind of the scary part is we were playing so good. We had the momentum and we hope to keep it going.”

The Pirates will come with the ground game.

“They pound it right at you,” Jackson said. “We have just got to be physical and tackle well. If we can stop them on first and second down and force a third-and-long, they are pretty predictable.”

Menendez High quarterback Stefan Carter had a field day (129 yards rushing, 177 yards passing) last week in a 38-3 win over Fernandina Beach.

Fort White’s Andrew Baker has that dual-threat ability, which could lead to a breakout game for the senior.

“We have been awful in our passing, but it is a combination of things,” Jackson said. “We will look to see what they give us. We have been running the ball so well (406 yard-per-game average), you have to decide if you want to shore up your weakness or do what you do well.”

With five appearances in six years, making the state playoffs is what Fort White does well and trip No. 6 starts today.

Directions: Take Interstate 10 to the U.S. 301 exit; continue to Yulee and turn left on State Road 200; go to Fernandina Beach and the intersection of Sadler Road and 8th Street (Applebee’s on right); move to the left lane at second stop light and tune left onto Will Hardy, which becomes Citrona Drive; go straight at four-way stop and school and field is two blocks on the left.

More than homecoming

Tigers looking to punch playoff ticket with win.

By BRANDON FINLEY
bfinley@lakecityreporter.com

This won’t be the normal homecoming for Columbia High. It will be a somber gathering of floats at 3 p.m. today with no class competitions.

With the death of Czarrah Howard, Columbia High head coach Brian Allen said the team will be playing for the senior who died in a car crash earlier this week.

Her initials will be painted on the field in her honor.

But there’s also a game with playoff implications on the line as the Tigers take on Orange Park High in the homecoming game at 7:30 p.m.

A win puts the Tigers in position to enter the playoffs for a third year in a row under Allen with a chance to lock up the district championship next week at Ed White.

“That’s the ultimate goal, to put ourselves in positions to play for one,” Allen said. “You look back at year one and we had a chance to play for one and then in year two, we should have been there. This was supposed to be a rebuilding year, but we’re looking at the potential to go win one.”

That’s not to say that Allen or the coaching staff believe the Tigers are where they need to be at to win the Class 6A championship.

“Our staff knows where we are weak at,” Allen said. “We’re still rebuilding, but we’ve been able to step up to the next level so that we could compete for a championship.”

Allen said that each year is a building block for the Tigers where they look to be a little better than the year before.

BRENT KUYKENDALL/Lake City Reporter

Columbia High’s Terry Calloway makes a tackle against Englewood High in the Tigers’ 59-0 win last week. The Tigers host Orange Park High for homecoming at 7:30 p.m. tonight in Lake City.

“Each year is a stepping stone,” Allen said. “Every year we want to be playing for a championship. The staff has everyone buying in and we want to continue to do that.”

The Tigers look to lock themselves into the playoffs, but will have to knock off Orange Park (2-2, District 3-6A) to do so.

The Raiders are coming off of a 48-13 loss against Ed White High last week. The Tigers will travel to Ed White next week in what could be a game for the district championship.

Running back Eddie Fuller ran for 116 yards in the contest, but leading receiver Raekwon Fuller, who was averaging 88 yards a contest, was held under 20 yards against Ed White.

The Raiders went from a Wing-T attack last year under Danny Green to a spread offense under Craig Nosse in his first season.

“They’re going to show us spread looks with dual backs,” Allen said. “They’re going to run strong and weak sets out of the gun and they look to pass the ball at a higher percentage than they have in previous seasons. They’ll throw some zone read stuff at us, just like any team that runs out of the shotgun. They’ll have some stretch and dive plays, but the majority of the time, they will look to throw.”

Allen said one thing that

Orange Park possesses that will help prepare the Tigers for the playoffs is a strong offensive line.

“They have a better offensive line than we’ve seen all year,” Allen said. “That will be a challenge for us at the midway point of the season. It might allow us to showcase what we can do on defense.”

The Tigers will go up against a defense that is very similar to theirs as well.

“They’ll throw a 3-4 look at us,” Allen said. “They’ll also throw some 3-3 stack on us where they have an extra defensive back playing in a hybrid look. Either way, they’re still going to be presenting us with four-man fronts, because they will be blitzing four or five guys looking to confuse our linemen.”

Allen said no matter what Orange Park throws at the Tigers, they’re at the point in the season they have to be ready for any kind of look.

“We’re in week five and I don’t expect us to be 100 percent flawless, but we should be able to line up and make plays,” Allen said. “We have to continue to do what we’ve been able to do in the last few weeks. One thing that will be interesting is that we won’t be seeing the nine-man fronts we’ve seen the last couple of weeks. We should be able to find some success.”

Allen said that one crucial component to the game will be what adjustments are made coming out of halftime.

Ed White trailed until 12 seconds remained in the first half against Orange Park, but took a 19-13 lead into the half before running away with the game.

“We will have to make adjustments to be successful,” Allen said. “It’s how well we’ll be able to adjust at the half and capitalize on things we’ve been successful with and fix things that we haven’t been.”

So far this season the Tigers haven’t had to make a lot of adjustments on their way to a 5-0 start and 6-0 could mean the playoffs.

Jimmie Johnson wins AAA 400; becomes all-time Sprint Cup win leader at Dover

Critics of NASCAR's Chase for the Sprint Cup have complained for years that the 10-race, season-ending run to the championship leads to a lack of attention paid to the drivers who are not in the running for the title.

But this year, like many others, when it comes to the final 10 races, the main reason the also-rans get shuffled out of the spotlight is because the cream of NASCAR's crop — that group of drivers who have made the Chase — rises to the top.

On Sunday at Dover International Speedway, the top 10 in the finishing order were all Chase contenders. At New Hampshire the week before, fifth-finishing Jamie McMurray became the only non-Chase driver in the first three races to score a top-five finish.

And in the Chase opener at Chicagoland, the only non-Chase drivers in the top 10 were Brad Keselowski in seventh and Ricky Stenhouse Jr. in eighth.

And there's the fact that non-Chase drivers rarely make it to Victory Lane in the final 10 races.

In the 93 Chase races run since the format was adopted in 2004, only 15 have been won by drivers not in the Chase that year. Greg Biffle and Tony Stewart, who usually are in the Chase, have had the most success of non-Chase drivers, winning three races each in years they were not among the elite running for the title.

Most weeks, the stepped-up performance of the championship contenders commands the most attention.

At Dover International Speedway on Sunday, points leader Matt Kenseth finished seventh and had what would have been a good points day if not for the fact that the drivers ahead of him were all in the Chase.

Jimmie Johnson won at Dover, leading the most laps and scoring maximum points in his eighth triumph there, which gave him the track's all-time win leader record, which he had shared with Hall of Famers Richard Petty and Bobby Allison.

And the five-time series champion extended his Chase-race win total to 23, more than double that of the next closest driver, Tony Stewart, who has 11 Chase-race wins, but is out of the running for the title this year because of a broken leg suffered in a sprint car race.

Johnson's crew chief, Chad Knaus, said it really is a matter of the cream rising to the top when Johnson drives to the head of the pack in Chase races like the one on Sunday at Dover.

"The man's got a lot of skills," Knaus said in the winner's interview on Sunday. "I think he's able to pull out some things that are pretty spectacular. He's able to dig deeper, pull out his cape, make things happen in winning moments of these races that other people cannot do. It's pretty spectacular."

At Dover, Johnson held off his teammate and pole-sitter Dale Earnhardt Jr. over the final 29 laps even though Earnhardt had four fresh tires to Johnson's two.

"I've seen a lot of great drivers; worked with a lot of great drivers," Knaus said. "Knowing what we've got sitting behind the seat is always a little bit of confidence, knowing if you get close, if you make the right call at the right time, he's going to be able to carry the ball."

"Once again, I think Jimmie is probably the most underrated champion we have in this industry. He is by far and above the most powerful driver over the course of the last 25, 35 years in this sport."

Johnson said that when he's on the track, racing with drivers like Matt Kenseth and Kyle Busch, with the championship in mind, he goes all out.

Jimmie Johnson became the all-time win leader at Dover with his eighth victory in Sunday's AAA 400.

Johnson gives the fans a burnout after his record-breaking Dover victory.

"I was thinking about it when I was in the car," he said. "My whole thought process was just how tough this championship's going to be. They're bringing their best and doing their best. "You've got to deliver."

New Goodyear tire to make its second appearance in the Hollywood Casino 400 at Kansas Speedway

This weekend's Hollywood Casino 400 at Kansas Speedway will mark the second appearance this season of Goodyear's new multiple-compound racing tire.

The tires were used on Labor Day weekend at Atlanta Motor Speedway and drew praise from drivers and crew members.

Goodyear, the exclusive supplier of tires for NASCAR's top three series, is using technology that has been applied to passenger-car tires for years, and it combines one compound that offers traction and another for endurance.

While the tire composition is similar, the tracks are much different. Atlanta's asphalt is old, worn and abrasive, while the pavement at Kansas is nearly new and is much smoother. At Kansas, the challenge for Goodyear is to find a tire soft enough to wear, but hard enough to withstand the high speeds and heat generated by new pavement.

Tire wear usually leads to side-by-side racing, which is a challenge on tracks with new, smooth asphalt.

As with the tires offered at Atlanta, the left-side tires at Kansas will be the same used in earlier races, with the multiple compound on the right-side tires.

Development of the Kansas tire was done at a tire test track in July with drivers Greg Biffle, Kurt Busch, Kyle Busch and Ryan Newman doing the testing.

Nationwide Series cars at Kansas will use the same tire compounds run at the track in April.

Hamlin honored by March of Dimes

Denny Hamlin has had a rough year on the Sprint Cup circuit, but he had lots to celebrate after being honored as a March of Dimes "Champion For Babies" during a dinner last week in Washington, D.C.

Hamlin and his sponsor FedEx have collaborated to run a special March of Dimes paint scheme on his No. 11 car during each of the past six seasons, and they've worked together to bring the March of Dimes message to NASCAR and its fan base.

"It's an honor to accept this award tonight, and to play a small role in raising the visibility of the great work done by the March of Dimes," Hamlin said in his acceptance speech. "Their mission hits closer to home, as I became a first-time father earlier this year, and I'm grateful that with the help of FedEx, our team has been able to meet and host many families that have been positively impacted by this great organization."

Previous recipients of the award include golf's Arnold Palmer, football's Joe Namath and broadcasting's Greg Gumbel.

March of Dimes president Dr. Jennifer L. Howse said Hamlin is a worthy recipient of the honor. "Denny's heartfelt and genuine desire to help families less fortunate than him always shines through," she said. "He gives us more than his time. He gives us his heart. Denny is a true champion for babies."

Top 10 in finishing order in AAA 400 at Dover all 2013 Chase contenders

Points standings and race results following the AAA 400 at Dover International Speedway:

1. MATT KENSETH

(finished seventh) 2,149 points; leader
 After winning the first two races of the Chase, he had a so-so day at Dover. "Overall, for how bad I felt like we struggled with the car, that was a decent finish."

2. JIMMIE JOHNSON

(finished first) 2,141 points; behind -8
 He came to his best track third in the standings and got maximum points by leading the most laps and winning, which moved him up one spot in the standings and gave him optimism for the remainder of the Chase. "I know that [Kenseth] is going to be awfully strong for the rest of the stretch, and I look forward to racing with him."

3. KYLE BUSCH

(finished fifth) 2,137 points; behind -12
 He salvaged his third straight top-5 finish by overcoming handling issues that made his car extremely loose at times. "We were about a fifth- to seventh-place car much of the day, and we ended up fifth."

4. KEVIN HARVICK

(finished sixth) 2,110 points; behind -39
 His Chevy was fast, but not fast enough to suit him. "We didn't have a great car, but we still have some work to do to get the performance a little bit better," he said, adding this his crew needed some improvement too. "We have got to fix pit road."

5. JEFF GORDON

(finished fourth) 2,110 points; behind -39
 Once again, he had a fast car at times and wound up with a strong finish. "I'm very excited and motivated by how well this team has stepped up ever since the Chase has come around. I can't wait to get to the next race."

6. GREG BIFFLE

(finished ninth) 2,108 points; behind -41
 The 400 was a learning experience for the No. 16 crew. "We're learning stuff as we go, so we'll just keep trying to get better every week. I think we learned something as to why we've run so bad [at Dover] the last two or three years."

7. RYAN NEWMAN

(finished eighth) 2,101 points; behind -48

After qualifying third, he slipped back as the race went on. "Our day started out really well; the car was great for the first 100 laps or so. It got tight after that and we never could make the right adjustment to get it handling like I needed it to."

8. CLINT BOWYER

(finished 10th) 2,098 points; behind -51

He was poised to stretch his final tank of fuel to the finish and possibly win the race, but a late caution for debris took away that chance. "Unfortunately, that caution there at the end ruined our plan, but we were good enough and smart enough to get a win."

9. KURT BUSCH

(finished 21st) 2,094 points; behind -55

A change in pit crews, replacing his crew with that of the No. 2 Nationwide Series team, didn't solve his problems on pit road. "Once again, we had an issue with a loose wheel and that put us a couple of laps down, and with the lack of cautions, we couldn't make it up."

10. DALE EARNHARDT JR.

(finished second) 2,092 points; behind -57

His best run in months was hampered by a mistake entering the pits under the green flag. "That track position is really important, and I gave that up early in the race with that mistake coming on to pit road. It cost us a shot at the win there."

11. CARL EDWARDS

(finished 35th) 2,084 points; behind -65

A broken part under the rear of his No. 99 Ford sent him to the garage for repairs and left him with the worst finish of the Chase drivers. "We just weren't fast. We needed to hang on for a solid finish and something broke, so that's tough."

12. JOEY LOGANO

(finished third) 2,083 points; behind -66

He's trying to bounce back from a blown engine in the Chase opener. "If we had that Chicago race back, we'd be in the mix for this championship. Unfortunately, those things happen, but we're slowly but surely making up from that right now."

13. KASEY KAHNE

(finished 13th) 2,071 points; behind -78

Undetermined mechanical problems left him limping home at the end. "Something was wrong and we lost a lot of power. Didn't seem like the engine, maybe it was something else, like tail pipes or something."

NUMERICALLY SPEAKING

536 Laps led by Jimmie Johnson in the past 11 races at Kansas Speedway, the most of all drivers.

0 Laps led by Joey Logano at Kansas Speedway, the fewest of any driver in the Chase for the Sprint Cup.

4 Points separating Nationwide Series points leader Sam Hornish Jr. and second-place Austin Dillon.

1 Drivers in the Nationwide Series with at least $1 million in winnings so far this season — Sam Hornish Jr., with $1,005,747.

NOTEBOOK

5-Hour Energy returns as sponsor of Bowyer's No. 15 Toyota at MWR

After weeks of bad news, including the booting of driver Martin Truex Jr. from the Chase for the Sprint Cup and the loss of sponsor NAPA, Michael Waltrip Racing finally got some good news.

5-Hour Energy, the primary sponsor of Clint Bowyer's No. 15 Toyota at MWR, announced last week that it would return in 2014.

There were some doubts about the company's intentions in the wake of the penalties imposed by NASCAR on MWR for manipulating the results of the regular-season finale at Richmond in an attempt to get Truex in the Chase.

But 5-Hour Energy said in a statement on its Facebook page that it was sticking with MWR and Bowyer.

"While our original plan was to announce the status of our sponsorship at the end of the year, this timeframe left many concerned about their future. There are scores of passionate fans, numerous charitable organizations, and hundreds of hard-working MWR employees and their families who are directly impacted by 5-Hour Energy's NASCAR sponsorship. After several internal discussions and meetings with MWR, we are prepared to announce our decision ahead of schedule. 5-Hour Energy will be back as a sponsor of MWR and Clint Bowyer for 2014."

New restart rule benefits Peters in Smith's 350

Timothy Peters won the Smith's 350 at Las Vegas Speedway.

The numbers all lined up for Timothy Peters in Saturday's Camping World Truck Series race at Las Vegas Motor Speedway. The driver of the No. 17 Toyota beat NASCAR's king of restarts, Ron Hornaday Jr., on the race's final restart to win the circuit's 17th race of the season.

It was the first win on a 1.5-mile track for both Peters and his Red Horse Racing team. Peters' previous six victories came at either Daytona, a 2.5-mile track, or shorter venues like Nashville, Bristol, Indianapolis Raceway Park and Iowa Speedway, where he's won twice.

His win was made possible in part by NASCAR's new restart rules that allow the second-place driver to take the lead before the start/finish line as long as the leader takes off first.

"Thank goodness for the new rule change," Peters said. "It played into our favor tonight. We got a good bite, and it isn't too many times that you catch the restart king sleeping, and we caught him sleeping."

Points leader Matt Crafton finished 11th, his first time outside the top 10 this season, but he still holds a 41-point edge over second-place James Buescher.
