Addition helps separate healthy cats from sick

Cats at the Lake City Humane Society have a special place in their hearts for Steven Davis.

The 18-year-old constructed a 168 square foot outdoor enclosure for the felines as his Eagle Scout project. The project took 173 hours.

It was completed April 30, days before Davis' 18th birthday deadline.

The expansion helps to separate the sick and healthy cats and gives them much-needed fresh air.

Sickness is a major issue for shelter animals. It spreads quickly because of the close quarters, and many of the animals brought in are already sick, said Operations Manager Teena Ruffo.

"When sickness comes in there it wipes them all out," Ruffo said.

The expansion is helping save the lives of the 30-40 cats on average at the Humane Society shelters.

Davis always loved animals, and over the years he volunteered periodically at the Humane Society. Each time he noticed things that needed fixing or updating. That inspired him to make the enclosure his Eagle Scout project.

Most prospective Eagle Scouts do not choose to take on a project of this magnitude, especially with such a limited amount of time, but Davis was up to the challenge.

The exhibit is sponsored by the Columbia County Friends of the Library and the Art League of North Florida. Winners will be announced on June 17 and will be awarded cash prizes totaling $1,000.

3% raise on table for school workers

Non-instructional employees haven't yet ratified pact.

By SARAH LOFTUS

The Columbia County School District and the bargaining unit for non-instructional personnel tentatively agreed to a three-percent pay raise beginning July 1, said Bonnie Penner, finance director for the district.

However, the union hasn't formally ratified the agreement, Penner said.

Penner said the school board wanted to give non-instructional staff members raises since they didn't receive salary hikes earlier this year when instructional staff did.

"Our priority was to help non-instructional staff," she said. "It had been a few years for them (since they received raises)."

The non-instructional pay raise follows the raise for instructional staff, which was passed by the school board in February.

The raises came about from a special allocation by Gov. Rick

Water bill could aid Jaxport

From staff and wire reports

Florida could see up to $1.4 billion from the federal government for Everglades restoration and port improvements under a bipartisan water resources bill that President Barack Obama signed into law Tuesday.

The Water Resources Reform and Development Act, the first since 2007 and the first to be signed by a president in 14 years, authorizes the future spending of federal dollars for eight U.S. Army Corps of Engineers projects in the Sunshine State, from the deepening of the Jacksonville harbor to improving the water quality in the Everglades. "This bipartisan bill will provide the needed funding to ensure the safety of our ports and the competitiveness of our shipping industry," U.S. Rep. Dennis Ross, R-Fla., said in a statement.

Boy, 13, faces weapons charges

LCPD: Was caught with 4 guns, including a sawed-off shotgun.

By EMILY STANTON
estanton@lakecityreporter.com

A 13-year-old Lake City boy faces weapons charges after he was arrested early Tuesday with four guns, including a sawed-off shotgun, LCPD reports.

Vincent M. Westphal was bicycling through the Home Depot parking lot at 215 SW Home Depot Drive at 2:08 a.m. when an officer doing a business check stopped him because he did not have proper lighting on the bike, the report said.

During a pat-down, the officer discovered a loaded .22-caliber revolver in the front pocket of Westphal's shorts, according to LCPD. A sawed-off shotgun, two other guns and two knives were found in the backpack he was carrying, the report said.

Westphal was then arrested, transported and booked into the Columbia County Detention Center.

Westphal faces charges of carrying a concealed firearm, possession of a firearm by a person under 21, and possession of a short-barrelled shotgun.

Person hit by train, seriously injured in Tampa

TAMPA

Authorities say a person was seriously injured after being hit by a train in Tampa.

Police say the victim was hit by a CSX train Monday night. Details about the victim weren't immediately available.

No other injuries were reported.

CSX officials were investigating.

Police officer shot during confrontation in Lakeland

LAKELAND — A Lakeland police officer is in critical condition after being shot during a confrontation with a possible wanted suspect.

The suspect was also shot multiple times, leaving him in critical condition.

Police spokesman Sgt. Gary Gross says Officer Doug Mills and Sgt. Jeff Gary confronted the suspect Tuesday morning. The man shot at the officers.

The Lakeland Ledger reports that Mills was shot at least once and was taken to Lakeland Regional Medical Center.

Gross says the officers shot back at the man. He was hit multiple times and was also taken to the hospital.

Police say the man was carrying four handguns at the time.

Girl injured by swing set dies after 7 years in coma

PALMETTO — A Manatee County girl who was critically injured when a swing set fell on her has died.

Eight-year-old Lexi Antorino has lived in a semi-coma since the accident happened in 2007. She died Monday.

The Palmetto girl was only 2 when the swing set came crashing down on her.

The community has rallied around the family over the years. Her family had no health insurance.

Lexi was playing on a swing set at a neighborhood civic association when it collapsed. The top bar landed on the girl crushing her head and neck. A neighbor used CPR to revive her but the trauma and blood loss left Lexi struggling to breathe and unable to communicate.

Cab driver repeatedly stabbed in Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE — Police say two men repeatedly stabbed a cab driver near downtown Jacksonville.

The incident took place around 2 a.m. Tuesday shortly after the cab driver picked up the two men. Police say he was attacked while in his cab, which crashed into a guardrail.

The suspects fled and police believe one of them may have been injured.

The cab driver was taken to the hospital in what was described at life-threatening condition. But police say his condition has been upgraded.

On Saturday, 43-year-old cab driver Stuart Carson was fatally shot in a robbery about two miles away. The newspaper reports the father of four had picked up his last fare and was planning on heading home when he was killed.

Inmate hangs himself in Panhandle jail cell

CRAWFORDVILLE — Authorities say an inmate at a Florida Panhandle jail hanged himself in his cell over the weekend.

The Wakulla County Sheriff's Office reports that 39-year-old Jerry Jackie Kitchens of Seminary, Mississippi, was found dead Saturday evening by a corrections officer making a routine hourly inmate check. Officials say Kitchens was alone in the cell when he hanged himself with a bed sheet.

Authorities say Kitchens was arrested in April after the vehicle he was driving was loaded with a two stolen handguns, prescription pills and $5,000.

He had been set to go to prison in Mississippi when he fled to Florida.

Jury convicts suspect in Sean Taylor slaying

MIAMI — A man identified by prosecutors as the greedy organizer of a bungled 2007 Miami-area burglary that ended with the fatal shooting of Washington Redskins star Sean Taylor was convicted Tuesday of murder and burglary, and immediately sentenced to life in prison without parole.

A 12-person jury deliberated nearly four hours before finding Jason Mitchell, 25, guilty of first-degree felony murder and armed burglary. Miami-Dade Circuit Judge Dennis Murphy swiftly imposed the mandatory life sentence for murder, plus 40 more years for the burglary conviction.

Although trial testimony showed Mitchell did not fire the fatal shot, prosecutors say he is equally responsible for the slaying under the law.

Report: Woman beat man with giant pencil

Victim said he was hit after telling Walters not to take their child, deputies said.

By SARAH LOFTUS
sloftus@lakecityreporter.com

Walters

A Lake City woman was arrested Monday after beating the father of her child with a "very large wooden pencil," according to a Columbia County Sheriff's Office arrest report.

Terri Rae Walters, 41, of 390 NW Parrish Court, was booked into jail on charges of aggravated assault with a weapon without intent to kill and battery.

The victim told deputies Walters tried to take their child away but that he wouldn't let her. He said that when he told her she couldn't take the child, she struck him several times with the pencil.

Walters told CCSO that when she tried to take the child, he started screaming and slammed her into the side of her car. She said she was defending herself with the pencil.

The child told CCSO she was in the car during the dispute, as per her mother's instructions, and didn't see the fight.

When CCSO arrived, Walters was "wielding the large pencil as a weapon" and screaming at the father to get away from the child, the report said.

The man's shirt was ripped, and he had bruises and scratches on his arms, chest and head, the report said. Walters' leg was bleeding, and her left ear was hurt.

CCSO determined Walters was responsible for the violence because of the extent of the man's injuries, the report said.

The state Department of Children and Families was notified due to the child's presence during the fight.

Walters is being held in jail on a $7,000 bond.

School Board honors GET SMART robotics team

The Columbia High School robotics team, GET SMART, was honored at Tuesday's school board meeting for placing fourth out of 150 teams worldwide for the Comcast 2014 Media and Technology Innovation Award. Team coach Celena Crews said a large part of why the team placed fourth for the award was because of how well it used social media. Social media isn't going anywhere, and she hopes her students are role models for other teens on how to use social media in a positive way, she said.

added in his own statement that the Florida projects are "important for either the environment or the economy." For example, port projects in the act include the deepening of the Jacksonville harbor; deepening the Canaveral harbor; and widening and deepening the Lake Worth Inlet.

The harbor-deepening project is of interest to Lake City because it is hoped that increased traffic at Jaxport will lead to creation of an inland port at the North Florida Intermodal Park east of town on US 90.

A project's inclusion in the act does not guarantee federal funding, but it improves the odds of being included in future spending bills. "Congressional authorization is the first step," said Col. Alan Dodd, the Army Corps' Jacksonville District commander, in a release. "It now makes these projects eligible for funding during the appropriations process. After receiving appropriations, we can then finalize designs, partnership agreements and contract actions that will enable us to start construction."

Still, Doug Wheeler, president of the Florida Ports Council, said in a release that the act will improve the Corps' approval process and the "long-overdue release" of funds, which will "assist Florida ports' efforts in creating jobs, growing the economy and continuing to position Florida as a global hub for business." Julie Hill-Gabriel, Audubon's director of Everglades policy, said in a release that "for the first time in seven years, federal and state restoration partners can start work on new Everglades projects" while continuing work to increase wetland habitat, protect the fragile coastal estuaries, and secure the drinking water for more than 7 million Floridians.

Scott for salary increases for teachers.

Local teachers were given a raise of $1,250-$2,150 per year depending on their experience. That equates to a 3.78 percent – 6.46 percent pay increase for instructional staff.

New teachers now get paid $1,250 extra, making the starting teacher's salary $34,000 a year.

Staff with one-two years of experience got a $1,400 pay raise. Those with three-four years of experience earned an extra $1,700, and instructional employees with five or more years of experience got a pay increase of $2,150.

The school board began paying out the raises in March, but the raise was retroactive, beginning July 1, 2013.

Teachers' salaries for the 2014-15 school year were approved at the school board meeting Tuesday night.

Also, at the meeting, Jay Poole, the father of a child at Pinemount Elementary School, asked the district to rethink its decision not to renew the contract of Pinemount Principal Donna McAdams.

Huddleston decided to remove her in May after she didn't report an 8-year-old female student's claim of sexual assault by her stepfather.

Poole said Pinemount has received A ratings under McAdams' leadership. He also said that while McAdams was at Melrose Elementary School, the school got an A rating.

He's concerned about who will take McAdams' place at Pinemount because there are not enough experienced administrators to take on the role of principal at Columbia County schools, he said.

Poole asked Huddleston to consider keeping McAdams for one more year to train a less-experienced assistant principal who could then become a principal.

After he spoke, other parents stood up and cheered in response.

In other business, the school board honored Columbia High School's robotics team for placing fourth out of 150 teams worldwide for the Comcast 2014 Media and Technology Innovation Award.

And Keith Hatcher, the director of adult education, truancy and charter schools, talked about how the school district is working toward better attendance for all students at all schools. He honored two students for improved attendance during the 2013-14 school year and two for perfect attendance this school year. He also honored principals at schools with good and improved attendance.

SARAH LOFTUS/Lake City Reporter

In an effort to lower truancy, the district held a contest for students and schools to raise attendance. Four students were honored at Tuesday's school board meeting for improved attendance and perfect attendance. Students with either perfect attendance or a 10-percent improved attendance this school year were put into a drawing for flat-screen TVs. Five schools were also honored for high attendance in the district, lower truancy rates and improved attendance, and all five schools will receive $250 or $500 checks in September. From left: Board chairman Keith Hudson, Superintendent Terry Huddleston, Tyler Albritton, a fourth-grader at Westside Elementary School with improved attendance, Marynna Register, a ninth-grader at Columbia High School with perfect attendance, Lily Waelbroeck, a fourth-grader at Columbia City Elementary School with perfect attendance, Dylan Privetter, an eighth-grader at Lake City Middle School with improved attendance, Challenged Learning Center Principal Deborah Hill, Eastside Elementary School Principal Trey Hosford, Lake City Middle School Principal Sonya Knight-Judkins, Richardson Middle School Principal Angela Coppock, Westside Elementary School Cherie Hill and Keith Hatcher.

Amendment 2 opponents speak out

By MARGIE MENZEL
The News Service of Florida

TALLAHASSEE — Opponents of a proposed constitutional amendment that would legalize medical marijuana launched the "Don't Let Florida Go to Pot" campaign Tuesday, warning that passing the measure would lead to widespread abuse.

"It's a wolf in sheep's clothing," said Polk County Sheriff Grady Judd, president of the Florida Sheriffs Association. "It's wrought with loopholes. It's very cleverly written so that there can be use and abuse."

Judd and other members of the group said they want to educate voters about the dangers of the amendment, which they consider to be so loosely written that Floridians of all ages will be able to obtain marijuana if it passes in November.

"We are literally looking at an unleashing of a Wild, Wild West of potent marijuana products," said Calvina Faye, executive director of Drug Free America.

A ballot summary that voters will see when they go to the polls says, in part, the medical use of marijuana would be allowed for people with "debilitating diseases as determined by a licensed Florida physician."

The constitutional amendment requires approval from 60 percent of voters to pass, and polling has been inconsistent.

OUR OPINION

Former judge ensures jet will stay put

Lake City almost lost a landmark a few weeks back, but thanks to one former jurist, the decommissioned Vietnam War-era fighter jet that welcomes folks to town on I-75 won't be going anywhere.

Former Third Circuit Judge E. Vernon Douglas made a couple of phone calls, as he put it, and settled a vexing problem that could have caused county officials to send the A-7E Corsair back to the National Naval Aviation Museum in Pensacola, where it's from.

Following the death of the man who'd donated use of the land for display of the jet just off the interstate's northbound lanes, confusion arose over access to the property for care and maintenance of this symbol of America's military might.

All options were on the table, from moving the plane to another location, to just giving it back to the Navy.

Enter Douglas.

An avid supporter of the former Lake City Air Show and a licensed pilot himself since the 1970s, the former judge took matters into his own hands and saved the day.

He drafted and got signed a perpetual easement agreement giving continual access to the plane, and has promised he'll personally see that all necessary maintenance is done on a timely basis.

There are a couple of wrinkles still to iron out – in exchange for loan of the plane, a plaque commemorating its history and service is required, as well as proper illumination, county officials believe – but Douglas says he will handle those details as well.

Good work, Judge.

Thanks are in order as well to the folks of Cannon Creek Airpark, who have labored over the years to keep the plane presentable. One of them, project manager Craig Walters, spent part of his Memorial Day weekend pressure-washing the jet along with Douglas.

It's now sparkling clean once again, and a testament to the deep pride and patriotism of the area.

Just in time to show it off for the Independence Day traffic on I-75.

TODAY IN HISTORY

In 1770, Captain James Cook, commander of the British ship Endeavour, discovered the Great Barrier Reef off Australia by running onto it.

In 1776, the Continental Congress formed a committee to draft a Declaration of Independence calling for freedom from Britain.

In 1919, Sir Barton won the Belmont Stakes, becoming horse racing's first Triple Crown winner.

In 1942, the United States and the Soviet Union signed a lend-lease agreement to aid the Soviet war effort in World War II.

Everybody has a story

Sharon Randall
www.sharonrandall.com

What's the first line of your story? Have you taken the time to write it down?

Stepping off the treadmill after 30 minutes at a slightly brisker pace than my usual, I winced in pain, mumbled something under my breath that sounded like "ackk!" and looked up to meet a pair of empathetic eyes.

An older gentleman dressed in proper gym attire and sensible shoes, sat on a sofa, taking a break from the action or maybe waiting for a ride home.

"It's the knees," I said, rolling my eyes up to heaven. "They'll be the death of me yet."

He nodded and smiled.

I hobbled over to the hand sanitizer dispenser, grabbed a fistful of wet tissues and went back, as directed by the sign on the treadmill, to "sanitize" any critters I might've left behind.

"When did they start to bother you?" he asked.

"Excuse me?" I said.

"Your knees. How long have they been hurting?"

"Oh," I said, "Twenty years, give or take. I used to run. I don't any more. Now I'm glad just to be able to walk."

"Keep it up," he said. "It might give you a few more years."

That's how the conversation began, slowly, just skimming the water. But it quickly gained both speed and depth as we began to play an old game that I love, one my kids like to call, "Mom Asks Too Many Questions."

I started with my standard: "Where are you from?" The answer often says a lot.

"Well," he said, pausing to think, "I was born in Africa. . . ."

Within minutes, he recapped the bare bones of his life story.

His parents were French, but his father's business took them to live in Africa. He recalled how he'd loved, as a child, taking rides out into the countryside on the backs of his African nurses.

He grew up, went to medical school in the United States, became a cardiologist and practiced for years back East before retiring to Las Vegas.

"Now I'm here (in the gym) most every day. I walk 30 minutes and lift weights. I think it helps. I'm pushing 90."

"What a wonderful story," I said. "I can only imagine all the lives you have touched. Have you written it all down?"

He shook his head and smiled dismissively, as if surprised by the question. It's a common reaction. I've seen it a lot.

For years, as a reporter and feature writer, I interviewed and profiled people from fascinating backgrounds in all walks of life.

When I asked if they'd ever written their stories, they often seemed surprised, as if it never occurred to them to do so.

Occasionally, they would tell me things they had never told to anyone – not even in their own families. The reason for this was simple: Apparently, no one else had ever seemed interested.

Too often, the people who are closest to us – spouses, children, grandchildren – assume they know our stories, so they don't bother to ask. Or they mean to ask, but wait until it's too late, and the stories are lost forever.

"You need to write that story," I said to my new gym buddy. "Don't worry about getting it published. Just do it for yourself and for your children and your grandchildren. They may not seem especially interested now, but they will be one day."

He looked away, out the window, across the wide Las Vegas Valley to a long-ago, faraway place in Africa.

Finally, he said, mostly to himself, "I miss riding on the backs of my nurses."

"That's it," I said. "That's your first line. Go home and write it down. Then just keep at it. The others lines will follow."

He laughed and nodded.

"Promise?" I said.

"I promise," he said. "And you keep using those knees."

Fair enough. But between you and me? I think he got the better end of the deal.

Central planning failure and the Great Recession

With the U.S. unemployment rate still over 6 percent and the labor force participation rate at its lowest level since 1978, the Great Recession hardly seems a thing of the past. That calls for a look back at how it came about in the first place, and how another might be avoided.

According the National Bureau of Economic Research, the worst recession since the Great Depression officially started in December 2007. But its roots actually go back to the Community Reinvestment Act (CRA) of 1977.

The CRA sought to correct discrimination in the mortgage market by ensuring that all people, regardless of race or neighborhood of residence, would have equal access to bank loans. Few citizens would think this unreasonable, but the CRA also scored banks on their performance. This made increased subprime lending a virtual necessity for any bank looking to expand. This took on increased importance in 1994 when Washington opened to door to bank expansions across state lines.

Enter the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) and the Federal Home Mortgage Association (Freddie Mac). Fannie and Freddie's federally mandated mission was to increase the flow of funds going into mortgages by buying mortgages originated by banks, enabling the banks to make more loans.

A 1992 law, the Federal Housing Enterprises Financial Safety and Soundness Act, established goals for Fannie and Freddie to purchase subprime mortgages from banks and other lenders.

From 1993 through 1995, 30 percent of the mortgages purchased were to be from low- and moderate-income households and 30 percent from "underserved" areas. The percentages were to rise yearly and by 2006 the mandate was 53 percent from low- and moderate-income families, and 38 percent from underserved areas.

This provided an outlet for mortgage originators to make and unload risky mortgages, helping to fuel the housing bubble of 1997-2006. But all bubbles eventually break, and this one had disastrous consequences.

On Oct. 9, 2007, 18 months after real-estate prices peaked, the Dow Jones Industrial Average began a torturous fall. While wealth dissolved, household debt didn't, and many homeowners found their homes "under water," worth less than the amount of their mortgage.

... Accordingly, Americans have every right to pose some tough questions.

Does the nation really need Fannie and Freddie to redirect credit in the economy? Should the Federal Reserve also have taken on that role with its mortgage-buying "quantitative-easing" program? Is it appropriate for government to set percentages of lending that should go to lower-income people? Should legislators and regulators be allowed to escape responsibility for an economic disaster that lingers to this day?

Legislators need to face the music and avoid the blunders of the past. If they make long overdue pro-growth reforms and abstain from misallocating credit in the financial markets, they may spare the nation another major recession.

Otherwise, the United States is likely to underperform economically for decades to comes, just like most of Europe, with slow growth and high unemployment.

Heart burn? My gut feeling is that you may need more acid

DEAR PHARMACIST

Suzy Cohen
jostery@comcast.net

Dear Pharmacist,

In a previous column on apple cider vinegar (ACV), you stated that "heartburn and reflux can sometimes be related to insufficient levels of stomach acid, not high levels like many of you who take acid blockers assume." Really Suzy? I've been on Omeprazole for years for heartburn. My doctor says you're nuts and got angry when I questioned him.

— T.B. Ft. Lauderdale, Florida

Answer: Doctors who thoroughly understand gastrointestinal function know this basic principle of physiology. A simple blood test evaluates stomach acid levels. Most physicians don't test your "gastrin" level, they just hand you a prescription for medication. This bothers me.

Judging from the millions of pills that are dispensed from American pharmacies on a daily basis, the business of convincing you that "stomach acid is bad" is working. Don't misunderstand, acid blocking drugs are effective and necessary for certain individuals, but they are way overprescribed. As a nation, we should spend more money educating the public on how to eat healthier, rather than drugging people up each day, and advertising double-bacon triple-bypass cheeseburgers. I'm just saying…

Anyway, the signs of low acid (termed hypochlorhydria) may be heartburn, irritable bowel syndrome, burping, cramps, food sensitivities and a higher risk for autoimmune disorders, gallbladder disease, pancreatitis and cancer. Hypochlorhydria is a huge problem in this country and it's getting more widespread, especially since the advent of acid blocking meds. Insufficient acid (whether it is drug-induced or not) can also cause:

- Hashimoto's thyroiditis
- Osteoporosis
- Elevated homocysteine
- Rosacea and acne
- Rheumatoid arthritis
- Eczema and psoriasis
- Yeast infections
- Adrenal exhaustion
- Vitiligo

Why does acid help? Many reasons, and one of them is that it keeps the tiny trap door shut between your stomach and esophagus. This sphincter is pH sensitive and in a healthy person, it stays shut because of the natural stomach acid. With acid deficiency, the stomach pH increases and this may cause the trap door to swing open, causing that familiar burn. Many people swear by the vinegar trick because it provides various acids including "acetic" acid, but gulping ACV forever is not my preference because it may be too caustic.

Digestive acids are sold at health food stores by names such as "betaine hydrochloride," "betaine with pepsin" or "trimethylglycine." Begin supplementation slowly and increase your dosage upward based on symptom relief. Take acid supplements at the end of each meal, not the beginning. Ask a knowledgeable physician if acid supplements are appropriate for you, especially if you take medications of any sort. Acid supplements aren't right for everyone and should be approached with caution.

Betaine supplements work best when you eat healthy foods; you may also need to be gluten and casein free. Depending on your condition, you could also greatly benefit from probiotics, digestive enzymes, ginger, cayenne pepper, glutamine, bile salts and/or DGL (deglycyrrhizinated licorice).

FDA: Pregnant women should eat seafood with low mercury levels

By MARY CLARE JALONICK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Pregnant women are being advised by the government to eat more fish, but there won't be any labels or signs to let them know which fish have low mercury levels and are safest for dinner.

Without a labeling requirement, the draft advice issued Tuesday by the Food and Drug Administration and the Environmental Protection Agency is unlikely to clear up confusion among shoppers about what seafood pregnant women, young children and other vulnerable groups should avoid. Rather they'll have to rely on memory — should they avoid swordfish? Yes. What about salmon? That's OK.

For most people, accumulating mercury from eating seafood isn't a health risk. But for a decade, the FDA has warned that pregnant or breastfeeding women, those who may become pregnant, and young children avoid certain types of high-mercury fish because of concern that too much could harm a developing brain. Fish can absorb small amounts of mercury, a neurotoxin, from streams and oceans — and some varieties of seafood harbor higher levels.

The FDA says the update is an attempt to get pregnant women to eat more fish, since many types of low-mercury seafood are good sources of omega-3 fatty acids important for brain development. The benefits of seafood are greater than the risks, said Stephen Ostroff, the FDA's acting chief scientist.

DAVIS

"I chose it because it was really needed," Davis said.

With help from Troop 299 Scout Master Mark Cook and donations from New Millennium Building Systems, Anderson Columbia Company and the Lake City Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Davis was able to complete the project within three months.

Though the initial planning and organizing was tough, it was worth it, Davis said.

This project was just one component of Davis' path to becoming an Eagle Scout.

The requirements to become an Eagle Scout are rigid. Candidates must:

- Earn a total of 21 merit badges.
- Be active for at least six months after achieving the rank of Life Scout.
- Receive recommendations to demonstrate that you live by the principles of the scout oath and scout law in daily life.
- Serve in a leadership position while a Life Scout and take part in a unit leader conference.
- Plan, develop and execute a project benefiting the community.
- Successfully complete an Eagle Scout board of review.

Davis is now finishing up the paperwork for his Eagle Scout application and is attending Florida Gateway College.

For Ruffo, the staff and all the cats, Davis' hard work means the world to them.

"We love it," she said.

Columbia High players pitch in at softball camp

By BRANDON FINLEY
bfinley@lakecityreporter.com

In only its second year, Columbia High's softball camp is making an impression on the next batch of Lady Tigers.

Columbia head coach Jimmy Williams and the 2014 softball team took time out for personalized training of 14 girls this week in hopes of keeping the tradition alive.

"Some camps you go to and it's like herding cows," Williams said. "You have 20 girls and one instructor. This is personalized. Our older girls get to exchange stories with the young kids. They're listening with big eyes. They talk about riding the busses, show them their rings and they're just loving the attention. The attention that these girls get when they come to the camp from experienced players gives the younger girls something to look forward to. The whole camp is just designed to keep the enthusiasm of softball going."

While the younger players learn what it means to be a Lady Tiger, they're also picking up on some of the fundamentals of the game.

"The majority of it is hitting and bunting," Williams said. "We'll cover things like grip, stance, and stride. It's the basics. We spent one session on outfield play, drop-stepping and catching balls on a line. Hitting is the common thing we do every day and then we do some other thing."

Williams said that part of what makes it fun is that he gets to sit back and watch his current and former players become the coaches at times.

"We pretty much had every position covered," Williams said. "They got a lot of one-on-one coaching. I just told Caleigh McCauley that it was so cool to see them, graduated and the year over, but willing to come back and pass the torch. I just think it's the coolest thing. It's their last summer before college, but they're willing to give up their morning to come. The girls look up to them. The biggest reason to do it again is the response from them. They enjoy it and they feel like they are getting their money's worth. They're building relationships. Down the road, we'll be able to watch them play and return the favor."

Williams said he wouldn't be surprised if many of them were back again next year even after they go away to college.

"It kind of goes along with the type of kids that they are," Williams said. "They're just so giving. They give back to the community any way they can."

Given the performances in the camp, Williams feels that the future will be bright at Columbia.

"From what I'm seeing, we have a lot of talent coming down the pipe," Williams said. "They're some that have a chance to do something special."

The current players seemed to think that the future Lady Tigers were in good shape as well.

"They're doing super good," pitcher Erin Anderson said. "They are taking my instructions and doing well. I like coaching the little girls. They're in the position that I was before. It's good to be on this side of things and pass on what I know to others."

McCauley said it feels good to know that the girls are looking up to them.

"It obviously feels good helping people,"

McCauley said. "We're almost like a role model. It's just the giving back and helping to teach what we learned."

But she wasn't quite sure if she was ready to step into Williams' shoes.

"They listen really well and comprehend what we are telling them," McCauley said. "If they don't hit a ball, they listen and they hit it the next time. It's different being on this side. I don't feel like I should be coaching yet, but I always like to help out in anyway I can. It's a good feeling."

Marathon trip

Michelle Richards and family traveled to Buffalo, N.Y., the weekend of May 25 for the Buffalo Marathon. It was Michelle's sixth marathon since December 2013. She finished in 3:44 and placed in the top 10 percent. Tony Richards and Alex McCollum ran in the Buffalo 5k, placing in the top 5 percent in their races. Michelle qualified to run the 2015 Boston Marathon at both the Buffalo Marathon and the Five Points of Life Marathon in Gainesville.
If accepted by the Boston Athletic Association, the 2015 race will be her sixth running of the Boston Marathon. Michelle's next marathon is Saturday. In Buffalo are Michelle Richards (from left), Tony Richards, Skye McCollum, Alex McCollum, Sandra Haas and Rane Richards.

DEAR ABBY

Woman's texts to her ex threaten her marriage

DEAR ABBY: I'm a twice-divorced woman who found my present husband late in life. I'm in my early 60s, and my husband is in his 70s. We married quickly because I didn't want to be alone in life and I thought I loved him.

My husband works while I stay at home because of a medical condition. Because I get bored, I spend some of my time communicating with and texting male friends from the past and one of my ex-husbands.

We have fun texting and sometimes it goes a little beyond that. I realize I am married and my ex is engaged, but how harmful can this be? I don't think I'm hurting anyone, and it helps the day go by.

Is this considered cheating? I don't think it is because my ex and I live in different states and the chances of us ever getting together again are slim to none. — PASSING TIME

DEAR PASSING TIME: This isn't harmless fun; it's a threat to your marriage. Whether I consider it cheating is beside the point. Whether your husband and your ex's fiancee would consider it cheating is the question. If they got wind of your "pastime," I suspect both would be hurt, angry and feel violated. Not only that, you could lose Husband No. 3.

DEAR ABBY: My 2-year-old daughter has recently become boob-obsessed. The first thing she does in the morning is point at my chest and say, "Boobs!" If she hugs me, she tries to grab them. Sometimes I catch her staring at my chest in fascination. I scold her when she grabs at them, but it's disturbing.

I never taught her the word "boob" and feel annoyed that she probably learned it from our sitter. When I spoke to the sitter about it, she laughed and said it's perfectly normal and that a lot of kids are boob-obsessed. But it doesn't seem normal to me, and I'm creeped out.

I have started wearing sweatshirts to keep covered up. My little girl has also started grabbing my butt and lifting up my shirt, and I'm nervous about how she's acting around the sitter and other women in the family. Is this behavior normal? — CREEPED OUT IN VALENCIA, CALIF.

DEAR CREEPED OUT: Children have been known to act out to get attention. If a parent acts shocked at something the child does or says, the child will repeat the action for its shock value. Because you are concerned that your daughter's behavior isn't normal, the person to discuss this with would be her pediatrician. The doctor can put your fears to rest or alert you if there is something to worry about.

Another thought: Ask your baby sitter to be more circumspect in the language she uses around your child if the word "boob" offends you, because children build their vocabularies repeating the words they hear.

HOROSCOPES

THE LAST WORD
Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Size up your situation and do your best to avoid arguments. Listen carefully and be thoughtful in how you respond. You can save money if you look for a way to cut corners at home. Use your attributes to get ahead. ★★★

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do whatever you can to take care of responsibilities. This is not a day of rest, but one that can determine advancement based on your accomplishments. A moneymaking venture is apparent, but you will have to restrain your spending habits. ★★★

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't make promises you cannot keep. You'll have to use your time wisely if you want to avoid damaging your reputation. Someone you work with is waiting for a chance to make you look bad. Proceed with caution, integrity and truthfulness. ★★★

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Share your creative ideas. You have plenty to offer and will stir up some interest in a project you want to pursue. A proposition will grab your interest, but before you take part, check the fine print and details. ★★★★★

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Make plans with people you enjoy spending time with. A group of motivated people will help you excel. Step into the spotlight and let your leadership ability take over, but make sure you have a workable plan before you get started. ★★

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Follow your intuition when it comes to trust issues within an important relationship. Unnecessary worry could end up being costly. Protect your heart and your reputation. Ask questions and demand answers. ★★

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You will make a good impression if you offer solutions with a positive attitude. Avoid a rift with someone who is jealous of your insight and vision. Do your thing and finish what you start. Emotional deception is apparent. ★★★★

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be open to suggestions, but when it comes to making a final decision, let your intuition guide you. An unusual change at home will help bring you closer to someone special. Don't donate or pay for someone's way. Offer solutions, not cash. ★★★

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Keep everything out in the open and be upfront about your likes and dislikes. You can build a strong and stable personal life if you stick to the truth and only offer what's reasonable. A domestic change will be beneficial. ★★★

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take one step at a time. Don't reveal too much about your personal life or what you want to pursue. Be cautious in what you say. Minor mishaps or accidents are apparent if you are preoccupied with something that is bothering you. ★★★

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Sign up for a course or interact with people who can offer you information regarding a project you want to pursue. Invest your time and money in something that can bring you money and satisfaction. Home improvement will add to your comfort. ★★

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Take a closer look at an investment or moneymaking opportunity. You can negotiate a good deal and improve your financial situation. Expand your interests and your peer group. Network and be ready to offer and ask for favors. ★★★★★

A person whose substantial interests are or will be affected by the Intent to Issue may petition for an administrative determination (hearing) under Sections 120.569 and 120.57, F.S. The petition must contain the information set forth below and must be filed (received) in FDEP's Office of General Counsel, Agency Clerk, 3900 Commonwealth Boulevard, Mail Station #35, Tallahassee, Florida 32399-3000 or agency.clerk@dep.state.fl.us. Petitions filed by the permit applicant and any parties entitled to written notice under Section 120.60(3), F.S. must be filed within 45 days of the receipt of the Intent. Petitions filed by any other persons must be filed within 45 days of publication of this notice or receipt of the Intent, whichever occurs first. A petitioner shall mail a copy of the petition to the applicant at the address indicated above at the time of filing. The failure of any person to file a petition within this time period shall constitute a waiver of that person's right to request a hearing under Sections 120.569 and 120.57, F.S. Any subsequent intervention (in a proceeding initiated by another party) will be only at the discretion of the presiding officer upon the filing of a motion in compliance with Rule 28-106.205, F.A.C.
A petition that disputes the material facts on which the Department's action is based must contain the following information:
(a) The name, address, any email address, telephone number, and any facsimile number of each petitioner, the applicant's name, address and any email address, the Department Permit File Number and the county in which the project is proposed; (b) A statement of how and when each petitioner received notice of the Department's action or proposed action; (c) A statement of how each petitioner's substantial interests are affected by the Department's action or proposed action; (d) A statement of all material facts disputed by petitioner, or a statement that there are no disputed facts; (e) A statement of facts which petitioner contends warrant reversal or modification of the Department's action or proposed action; (f) A statement of which rules or statutes the petitioner contends require reversal or modification of the Department's action or proposed action; and (g) A statement of the relief sought by petitioner, stating precisely the action petitioner wants the Department to take with respect to the Department's action or proposed action.
A petition that does not dispute the material facts on which the Department's action is based shall state that no such facts are in dispute and otherwise shall contain the same information as set forth above, as required by Rule 28-106.301, F.A.C.
Because the administrative hearing process is designed to formulate final agency action, the filing of a petition means that the Department's final action may be different from the position taken by it in this notice. Persons whose substantial interests will be affected by any such final decision of the Department have the right to petition to become a party to the proceeding, in accordance with the requirements set forth above.
Any person may request a public meeting regarding the proposed permitting decision pursuant to Section 403.722(10), F.S. A request for a public meeting is not equivalent to a request for a formal or informal administrative hearing. Public meetings are not evidentiary in nature, and information submitted at a public meeting is for non-binding consideration only. A public meeting is not subject to court of appellate review. A request for a public meeting must be filed (received) in the Office of General Counsel, Agency Clerk, within 45 days of publication of this notice. Failure to file a request for a public meeting within this time period shall constitute a waiver of any right such a person may have to request a meeting under Section 403.722(10), F.S.
Mediation is not available in this proceeding.
