Cop's DUI charges tossed

Staci Brownfield cleared after 2013 crash; seeks reinstatement to LCPD.

By TONY BRITT

DUI charges against former

Lake City Police Officer Staci Brownfield, who was fired by LCPD following an off-duty traffic crash in November, were thrown out Tuesday. Brownfield pleaded no contest to reckless driving but adjudication of guilt on that charge was withheld.

Proceedings took place Tuesday morning at the Columbia County Courthouse with Judge Andrew Decker III presiding.

Now that she's been cleared, Brownfield says she wants her job back.

However, she may have to go to court to get it.

Brownfield, 37, was originally facing DUI charges stemming from a November 2013 single vehicle crash. She was fired from the Lake City Police Department in June after being on paid adminis-

Legionella bacteria found at local VA

Hospital taking precautions; says danger minimal.

By SARAH LOFTUS
sloftus@lakecityreporter.com

Legionella bacteria was found in the water at the Lake City Veterans Affairs Medical Center Monday evening, VA spokeswoman Cindy Snook said. Patients and staff are all drinking bottled water because of it, and patients aren't allowed to shower. The water system is getting treated and is expected to be fixed by today, she said.

Legionella bacteria can cause Legionnaires' disease, which is a type of pneumonia. But there have been no reports of anyone contracting Legionnaire's disease at the Lake City VA due to the bacteria, and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention says it's unlikely that someone will.

Dr. Bradley Bender, the chief of staff of the North Florida/South Georgia Health System, which runs the Lake City VA, said legionella bacteria is often found in water systems, particularly in hot areas like Florida.

Bender said there were 2-160 colony-forming units per millimeter found in different parts of the Lake City VA's water system. When a legionella case is bad, there can be thousands of colony-forming units in the water system, he said.

Snook wrote in an email that that amount of legionella is not harmful.

"Treatment of the water was due to our zero tolerance to even a non-harmful amount of the bacteria," she said.

Right now, patients and staff aren't allowed to drink the water, and all water fountains have been turned off, Snook said. Patients can use sinks to wash their hands. They're also allowed to take baths but aren't allowed to take showers.

NEW FORMAT FOR FGC FORUM

Candidates will have chance to rebut their opponents' claims.

By EMILY BUCHANAN
ebuchanan@lakecityreporter.com

A new twist in this year's political forum at the Florida Gateway College will have candidates ready to refute their challengers for the upcoming November election.

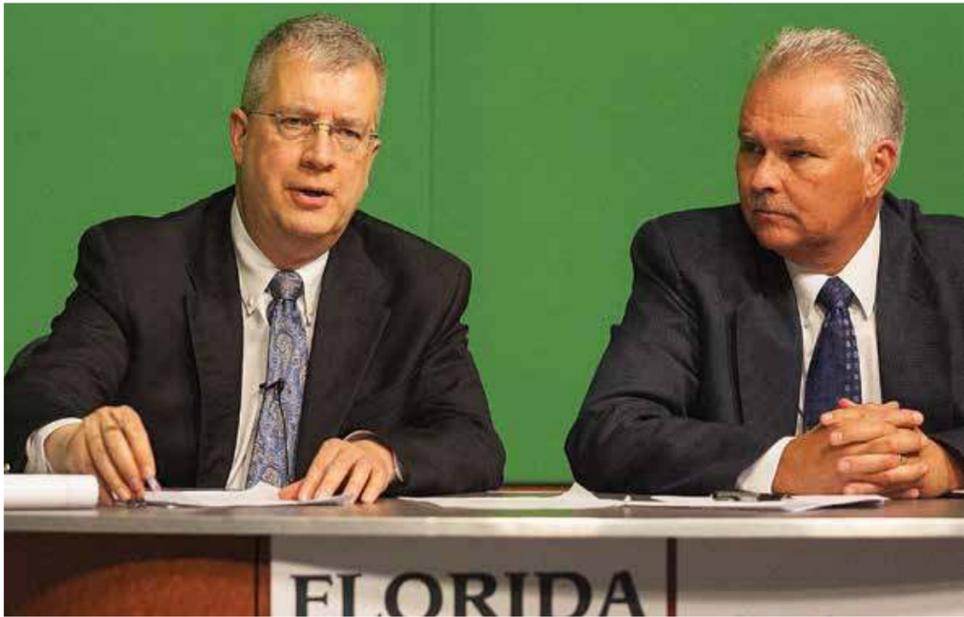

Not only will candidates participating in the political forum on Oct. 20 have one minute to respond to questions, but they will also have a chance for a 30-second rebuttal once the question is answered, said Mike McKee, forum host and FGC executive director.

"Once the candidate has answered a question, other candidates racing for the same seat will have a chance for rebuttal," he said. "This gives each of the candidates a chance to distinguish themselves and to further discuss their disagreements."

The candidates will be questioned by Lake City Reporter Editor Robert Bridges.

"Adding rebuttals is a nice

Wrong man jailed in credit card fraud case

CCSO confused him with real culprit, seen on store video 43 seconds later.

By SARAH LOFTUS
sloftus@lakecityreporter.com

A Lake City man was wrongfully arrested Friday morning after being falsely accused of using a stolen credit card to buy a smart phone and phone card at Walmart on U.S. Highway 90 in late June, Columbia County Sheriff's Office public information officer Murray Smith said. By Friday evening, CCSO had determined that Nelson Ernest Ward wasn't the man who used the stolen credit card.

Ward, 60, heard on Thursday that he was wanted by the Columbia County Sheriff's Office, so on Friday, he called and asked if he should come in.

He said the investigator began asking him if he had bought a smart phone at Walmart at the end of June. He said that he had, and then the investigator asked him if he used a stolen credit card to buy it and he said he hadn't.

Ward said the investigator told him she didn't believe him and that they had him on video using a stolen credit card to buy a Samsung Galaxy 3 and phone card at Walmart at 5:48 p.m. on

Health Dept. confirms first enterovirus case

The state Department of Health has confirmed the first Florida case of a severe respiratory illness affecting children around the country. Officials said a 10-year-old girl in Hillsborough County was recovering Tuesday from enterovirus 68. The virus causes cold and flu-like symptoms and is considered highly contagious. In infants and young children, the virus can cause difficulty breathing. The Health Department is advising parents, childcare workers and health care professionals to be vigilant and practice good hygiene by washing hands frequently. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has said four people infected with the virus have died, but it's unknown what role the virus played in their deaths.

Jurors award homeowners $20 million for lost trees

ORLANDO — Florida's agriculture department must pay Orlando area homeowners more than $20 million in compensation for cutting down healthy citrus trees during an effort to eradicate citrus canker. An Orange County jury on Monday determined that more than 60,000 citrus trees cut down were worth almost $345 each. A spokeswoman for the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services didn't immediately respond to a request for comment. The trees were destroyed between 2002 and 2006 in an effort to eradicate citrus canker. The bacterial infection damages all kinds of citrus, causing a gradual decline until the tree stops producing any fruit. Earlier this year, a Lee County jury awarded $9.8 million to homeowners for lost trees. The department is appealing.

Attorneys ask feds to investigate prison death

TALLAHASSEE — The attorneys who represented Travon Martin's family have called on the U.S. Department of Justice to investigate the death of a Florida inmate who had told relatives she feared for her life in prisons. Thirty-six-year-old Latandra Ellington, a mother of four, was found dead last Wednesday at Lowell Correctional Institution in Ocala. Attorneys Daryl Parks and Benjamin Crump say a major at the prison told Ellington's aunt she would be looked after during a phone call shortly before her death. Ellington was serving one year and 10 months for fraud charges after she filed fake tax returns.

J. Lawrence says photo hacking was 'sex crime'

NEW YORK — The people who chose to look at nude celebrity photos that hackers posted committed "a sexual offense," actress Jennifer Lawrence says in an exclusive interview with Vanity Fair in its November issue. The Oscar winner, who was among dozens of celebrities whose photos were posted beginning on Aug. 31, attacked both the hackers and those who sought out the photos in the interview, which marked the first time she had publicly commented. "It is not a scandal. It is a sex crime," she said about the hackers. "It is a sexual violation. It's disgusting. The law needs to be changed, and we need to change." Of those who looked at the photos, she said, "Anybody who looked at those pictures, you're perpetuating a sexual offense. You should cower with shame." The 24-year-old said the photos were taken for her boyfriend of four years, actor Nicholas Hoult, adding that the hardest phone call she had to make was to her father, telling him that the photos were stolen and posted on the Web. She said she considered writing a statement, but each time would "cry or get angry." Apple acknowledged computer hackers targeted and then broke into the accounts of Lawrence and several other stars whose revealing photos were posted on sites like Imgur.com, Reddit and Twitter, among others, during the Labor Day weekend; the FBI previously confirmed it was investigating. Earlier this month, Apple announced plans to tighten its online security and also urged users to use stronger passwords and enable a two-step authentication feature to prevent data thefts. The November issue of Vanity Fair goes on sale Oct. 14. 'Housewives' stars shocked to be facing prison NEW YORK — Not all was revealed in Bravo's joint interview with Teresa and Joe Giudice, the married stars of "The Real Housewives of New Jersey" who now are facing jail time on conspiracy and bankruptcy charges. In fact, as the couple articulated (if that wasn't too grand a term) their dual plight, their responses were largely a thicket of stammers, sentence fragments, whatevers and y'knows. "I feel like I'm numb. Like surreal. All's I keep thinking about is my daughters," said the glum Teresa, who was seated beside Joe in matching wingchairs, holding his hand, as they were questioned by Bravo host Andy Cohen in the interview special that aired Monday night after being taped last Friday. Appearing in federal court in Newark, New Jersey, Teresa had been sentenced to 15 months while her husband was handed 41 months. In a nod to the couple's four young daughters, the judge staggered the sentences so Teresa will serve first.

BROWNFIELD

trative leave for more than seven months.

Brownfield has completed DUI school and her driver's license was suspended six months.

She had to take the DUI class, even though not convicted, in order to petition for a work-only driver's license. The suspension is automatic following an arrest for DUI.

Last month breath test results slated to be used as evidence in Brownfield's DUI case were thrown out of court because she had chewing gum in her mouth during the test.

According to Florida Administrative Code, a breath test operator must ensure that the subject has not taken anything by mouth for at least 20 minutes before administering the breath test. Two state troopers on the scene testified that neither of them inspected Brownfield's mouth before, during or after the observation period began.

Brownfield says she was not intoxicated but did suffer injuries to her head and knee in the crash.

The accident

On November 12, 2013, Brownfield was involved in a single vehicle crash on Country Club Road. Brownfield was off duty and driving her personal vehicle.

During the crash, which occurred around 9:30 p.m., Brownfield's car hit a guardrail, which penetrated the vehicle and struck her in the head, causing her to lose consciousness, she said.

Brownfield said the crash occurred when she took her eyes off the road to grab her ringing cell phone, which was in her purse on the floorboard.

Brownfield said she told the investigating officers on the scene that she had a head injury, but the officers continued with the field sobriety exercises.

"I complied with everything that the trooper and investigating officer requested of me," she said. "Whenever I went to do the walk and turn, I couldn't make my body physically do what I wanted it to do. The reason why is because I had so much trauma to my body and I didn't even realize because I had so much adrenaline flowing through my body that I had a torn ligament in my knee."

When Brownfield was released from jail more than eight hours later, she said she went to the hospital where she learned she had a concussion and head trauma. She said her head was swollen in her booking photograph.

"The seatbelt grabbed me back and apparently I got struck by the guardrail and knocked out," she said, noting she is uncertain how long and how many times she lost consciousness after briefly coming to.

A witness at the scene would not allow Brownfield to exit her vehicle and Brownfield contends that while she was sitting in the crashed vehicle she was exposed to harmful chemicals released by her vehicle's airbag.

Sodium azide, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, is a rapidly acting, potentially deadly chemical

'I plan to fight for my job. I'm going to right what's wrong. I don't care if it's with my dying breath, it's going to happen.'

— Staci Brownfield, former LCPD officer used in automobile airbags. An electrical charge triggered by impact causes sodium azide to explode and convert to nitrogen gas inside the airbag.

Brownfield said she inhaled sodium azide for more than 10 minutes before she was administered her field sobriety tests and that adversely impacted test results.

Brownfield also noted that she had gum in her mouth when investigating officers administered the breath test and said that could lead to a false positive result in the testing.

Criminal defense attorneys sometimes advise clients not to chew gum when pulled over for possible DUI, according to legal websites surveyed by the Lake City Reporter.

The future

Eleven months and three weeks after the crash, Brownfield has had her day in court. Now she wants to be reinstated at LCPD. She said her Fraternal Order of Police representative, Gary Evans, is writing a letter to LCPD requesting immediate reinstatement.

"I felt they (LCPD) should have waited for the court results and for me to be vindicated in courts, at least give me a chance, before termination," she said. "It's an integrity thing as far as I'm concerned. They should have allowed me to prove myself. I would have gladly taken leave without pay. That was an option but they choose to terminate me instead."

Brownfield was terminated after an Internal Affairs Investigation sustained charges against her of "conduct unbecoming of an officer."

Brownfield said she waived her right to a speedy trial so her attorney could have time to work on her case and noted she was always confident the breath test results would be thrown out.

"I knew this was wrong," she said. "I was not DUI and I held firm on that. I had a head injury and a leg injury. I pleaded 'no contest' but I admit I was distracted that night and I would caution anybody, 'don't touch your phone while driving'."

Brownfield said she took the plea deal because she was ready for the case to be over.

"I took the plea deal basically because I'm not guilty and I'm not being found guilty," she said. "I wanted to go ahead and move on with my life, get my job back and regain my name in the community. I served this community and did a good job of being a police officer and I am not going to go down with my record tarnished. I've always held myself up to a higher standard but I want to let the citizens of Lake City know I'm not a bad cop nor did I drive under the influence. I just want a chance to regain my name. I want go back to do what I do best — being an officer, protecting and serving the community."

Brownfield worked as a LCPD officer for 13 years.

"I always believe in doing the right thing," she said. "As long as you do the right thing and tell the truth, the truth will set you free. It might take 10 months like me, but ultimately, it's going to come out. Today I feel vindicated."

Brownfield said she was told by LCPD Chief Argatha Gilmore upon her termination that she could be hired back "in a heartbeat," but only when a judge ordered it.

"So in a way I presume that means I'm going to have to fight for my job," Brownfield said. "I plan to fight for my job. I'm going to right what's wrong. I don't care if it's with my dying breath, it's going to happen. I hope the city would do the right thing and see where I have already suffered enough and there has been injustices done to me... After everything was brought to light, I would hope they would make the right decision, reinstate me and give me my job back, which I believe was taken from me wrongfully. Even the city policy says a conviction must be obtained and there was never a conviction. My record is as clean as it has ever been."

Gilmore did not return calls seeking comment.

BACTERIA

"Showering is believed to have a higher risk of exposure to water aerosols," Snook said.

Legionnaires' disease can be spread through aerosols, according to the CDC.

Bender said no one should be concerned by the outbreak.

Darlene Foote, a CDC public affairs specialist, wrote in an email that finding legionella bacteria in a water system doesn't mean that people will get Legionnaire's disease. But when the bacteria is found in a hospital water system, remediation, which includes superheating or superchlorinating the water system, is recommended, she said.

Bender said the VA is using superchlorinating to eliminate the bacteria, and the water should be clear by tonight.

touch," Bridges said. "It will help keep the conversation going."

Candidates in the race for U.S. Congress in Florida's third district with U.S. Rep Ted Yoho (Republican), Marihelen Wheeler (Democrat) and Howard Lawson (Independent), are expected to begin the political forum at 7 p.m., McKee said.

They will be followed at 7:30 p.m. by candidates in the run-off for the school board District 1 seat, which includes three-term incumbent Linard Johnson and challenger Daniel "Danny" Green. Johnson received 713 votes (45.62 percent), while former CHS football coach Green received 586 votes (37.49 percent) during the primary election in August.

McKee said the political forum will conclude the evening with candidates Toby Witt and Everett Phillips at 8 p.m., who are in the run-off for the county commission district 4 seat. Witt received 459 votes (27 percent), while Everett Phillips received 439 votes (25.82 percent) during the election in August.

The political forum will be aired live on Comcast Channel 8 television and streamed online on FGC's website, McKee said.

WRONG

June 23.

Smith said Ward bought a Samsung Galaxy 3 and phone card with his own debit card 43 seconds before the real criminal used the victim's card to buy those same items. When CCSO watched Walmart's security cameras, it saw Ward buying the phone and phone card and thought he was the one using the stolen credit card. Smith said CCSO hasn't caught the real perpetrator.

Ward said on Friday evening after he was arrested, his bank sent his financial records to CCSO and investigators realized that he was in fact telling the truth.

Ward said he's an honest man and it's ridiculous the he was falsely accused. "If that's Columbia County's finest, that's not very good," he said.

Ward said he doesn't steal and never has. One time he found a dead iPhone 5 in a parking lot, so he brought it home, charged it and called someone from the phone's contacts list to return it to. That's the kind of person he is, he said.

"I don't steal. I don't like it. I don't want to be a part of it," he said.

Ward has lived in Columbia County his whole life and knows everyone, but now, he has to fight the stigma of people thinking he's a criminal, he said.

"It's unfair," he said. Ward's name and mugshot were still on the CCSO website Tuesday night, so he said he hired an attorney to make sure he's not formally charged, he said.

Applications for SRWMD grants due by end of October

From staff reports

The Suwannee River Water Management District is currently accepting applications for its High School Grant Program.

Funding of up to $2,000 is available per high school for implementing water resource projects. The District's Governing Board has designated $20,000 to assist STEM (Science Technology, Engineering and Mathematics), agricultural, and other high school classes to fund the projects.

All high schools within the district's 15-county boundary are encouraged to apply.

Grant applications are due October 31.

OUR OPINION

Library funding? Find it.

County officials are in search of a way to fund our public libraries without dipping into reserves, as they did this time around.

We suggest they tighten their belts and get on with it.

Our libraries saw more than a quarter million visits during the 2012-13 fiscal year (the last for which figures are available).

These days the library is more than a place to read books — as important as that is. It is an electronic lifeline for those who can't afford computers or Internet access, and in today's world that can mean everything, especially for school-age children or adults seeking a job or to better themselves. The public library is the cornerstone of any society with an educated, in-touch electorate and workforce.

One thing we don't want to see is the possible creation of a new taxing district to fund our library system. That idea has been floated but ought not be pursued one step further.

County officials seem hopeful they will find a way to keep our libraries up and running at full speed.

Considering their track record of late — having spent enough on high school football fields and locker rooms in recent months to keep our publicly-funded libraries going a good long time — they had better be.

Life is messy, even when you mean well

Today — not for the first time and probably not the last — I was reminded of the epitaph I want engraved on my headstone:

"Here lies Sharon. God bless her, she meant well."

The morning started quietly. I was sitting on the sofa, deleting junk mail from my laptop and trying hard to wake up.

My husband sat at the table doing the daily crossword puzzle in ink. It's a habit he picked up from his father, who was one of the smartest, dearest men I ever met, and a major factor in my decision to marry his son.

"OK," said Mr. Crossword Wizard, "here's one for you."

That's what he says when he's stumped by a clue and is hoping it will stump me, too.

Come to think of it, he says that a lot.

I looked up from my laptop and tried to focus my eyes.

"What's a six-letter word," he said, "for 'almost perfect'?"

Instantly, I shouted, "Sharon!"

Coffee snorted out his nose.

"Yes," he said, "you are almost perfect. But, sorry, that's not it."

"What do you mean 'almost'?"

It turned out to be "A-minus," which isn't one word, but two, or one and a half, with no blank for a hyphen, all of which struck me as far too sneaky and should not have been allowed as a clue.

That may explain why doing crossword puzzles is not what you'd call one of my "gifts." I'm not gifted at much of anything. Except maybe making a mess.

When my children were small, I'd find spills on the floor, smears

Sharon Randall

www.sharonrandall.com

on the walls or stains all over my clothing. And I'd think to myself, be patient, someday they'll leave home and take their messes with them. Imagine my surprise after they left, and the messes kept showing up. The kids didn't make them. I did.

Sometimes I'm busy doing something and I'll hear a voice that says, "You'd better quit that right now or you'll be sorry."

I know that voice well. It sounds like my mother. I never listened to her much, either.

So I'll drop a stack of dishes that I knew was too heavy. Or give a nail an extra tap that shatters the wall. Or burn my fingers on a pot and nearly lose my religion because I didn't want to find a hot pad. You get the picture. It's not pretty.

After my husband left for work, I got busy. We were leaving the next day to drive to the Grand Canyon. The trip was his idea. Growing up in the Carolinas, fall was my favorite season. We live in Las Vegas, where fall is a display in the gardens at the Bellagio. He knew I was missing the real deal. So he said, let's go find it. Yes, he is a lot like his dad.

I don't know about you, but I hate coming home from a trip to a fridge full of slimy produce. So I started cleaning it out. Which would've been fine, but there was a lot of it — lettuce, spinach, celery and beets — and I didn't want to waste it. I know, I thought, I'll juice it and we can drink it before we hit the road!

Yes. That's where I should've heeded the voice saying, "Stop now, or you'll be sorry later!"

Instead, I crawled under the counter, pulled out a juicer I hadn't used in years, dusted it off, set it up and went to work.

Never mind how it happened. Suffice it to say I ended up with several million slimy green blobs on the counter. And the floor. And the ceiling. And me. And my favorite pink sweater.

In the two hours it took to clean it up, I thought of other messes I have made. The worst aren't splattered juice or broken glass or burnt fingers.

They're words I shouldn't have said. Promises I should've kept. Hearts I never meant to break.

We all make a mess of things once in a while. We can only try to clean it up, make amends if we can, and hope to be forgiven.

The best thing about knowing you aren't perfect is it makes you more forgiving. Trust me. It's hard to be judgmental of others when you've been covered in slimy green blobs. Even if you meant well.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Same-sex marriage on the way

To the Editor:

Oh, you better watch out, you better not cry, better not pout, I'm telling you why; homosexual/gay marriage is coming to town.

There is a domino effect coming down the pike. On October 6, the Supreme Court decided to let stand rulings that allow homosexual/gay/same-sex marriages in five additional states. That means nearly two-thirds of same-sex couples in the United States will soon live in states where they can marry, according to the Williams Institute at the University of California, Los Angeles, School of Law.

Now you might say NIMBY (Not In My Back Yard), it will never legally happen in Lake City, Florida! Think again. Some conservative organizations, such as the Florida Family Policy Council, argue against gay/homosexual marriage based on the grounds that it goes against "natural law, rule of law, legal reasons, the ballot box, biology, logic, anthropology, social science and the collective wisdom of human history." But their efforts will probably fall on deaf ears.

U.S. District Judge Robert Hinkle in August struck down Florida's ban on same-sex marriages, but he also placed a stay on the ruling while cases from Virginia, Oklahoma and Utah were pending at the U.S. Supreme Court. The American Civil Liberties Union of Florida, which represents plaintiffs in the challenge to Florida's ban, quickly said after the October 6 Supreme Court ruling that it will ask Judge Hinkle to lift the stay on his August decision. In a prepared statement, ACLU attorney Daniel Tilley said "we are now one step closer to the day when every Florida family can have the respect, protection and responsibilities that come with marriage."

So how will this possibly effect our neck of the woods? Well, for one thing, local schools will need to update their history books and their social studies courses when it comes to discussing the updated meaning of the word, "marriage." Oh, you better watch out...

Outrage over outcome of voter fraud case

To the Editor:

In re: Voter fraud case
We the people have all been cheated by this underhanded justice dealt out in this case.

We try to vote, and find out that someone is changing the ballots.

I hope that higher-ups can step in and prosecute these ladies to the full extent of the law.

What a joke. Spank their hands and low fines.

Twenty-four counts of felonies should get you 120 years of free rent in a cage.

American Legion, Auxiliary sponsor local candidates at Girls & Boys State

From staff reports

The American Legion Post 57 and American Legion Auxiliary Unit 57 sponsored 15 young adults attending Boys and Girls State this year.

Those individuals had the opportunity to step into the shoes of our state legislatures and perform the same duties, sit in the same seats and participate in the same buildings that run our Florida state government.

They were given issues to debate and even had the opportunity to participate in a conceptual crisis management exercise. They experienced first hand what it takes to run a state the size of Florida.

This opportunity was provided through the efforts of George and Irma Wehri and fundraising held by the local American Legion Post members.

Several of those young adults attended a dinner held in their honor at the American Legion Post Saturday. During the dinner meeting, they were given the opportunity to provide feedback on their experience and what it meant to them.

Although all of the candidates could not attend due to previous commitments, those that were able provided details of their experience and the foundation it has provided to carry them through whatever direction they decide to pursue.

It is through the efforts of George and Irma Wehri that give these students the opportunity to participate in such an event as they have been doing this for the local Post for many years.

Candidates for Girls State are: Prianka Patel, Jocelin Bal, Abigail Blizzard, Rykice Jackson, Baylee Tammerman, Sadie Wilburn, Caroline Cribbs, Savannah Thomas, Hanna Baker and Alexes Hatcher.

Candidates for Boys State are: Caleb Carswell, Jackson Horne, Tristall Nelson, Cody Bass and Brason Caleg.

Encouraging students to show 'Tiwahe Pride'

FWHS Student Success Center implements incentives to help students reach their goals.

By AVALYN HUNTER
Special to the Reporter

FORT WHITE

Sometimes it seems that students who break the rules get all the attention. With one of the lowest referral rates for disciplinary actions in the county, Fort White High School seems to be on the road to changing that. But principal Keith Couey and Student Success Center staff member DeShay Harris want to push the change even further. To do that, they have revived and expanded an old system for rewarding outstanding students.

"We used to have a quarterly breakfast for students who made all A's, B's and C's," Harris said. "Mr. Couey and I felt it wasn't a bad idea, but it set the bar too low. We wanted to inspire our kids to keep their grades up and stay out of trouble. We also wanted to incorporate our school theme of 'Tiwahe' — the idea that FWHS is a family bound together by respect for each other, for our community, and for the world we live in."

The new incentive system

includes the old idea of a quarterly breakfast or celebration, but it is now limited to students earning all A's and B's. There is a level beyond that as well. Students who demonstrate "Tiwahe Pride" during a quarter by making the A or A/B honor rolls, having no more than three absences and receiving no referrals to discipline are eligible to enter a drawing for prizes at the end of the quarter and a drawing for a grand prize at the end of the school year.

Students have other opportunities for recognition as well. Teachers can nominate students for a "Student of the Month" award at each grade level; the recipients get a certificate and Fort White gear. During football season, students demonstrating outstanding character and school pride can also win free tickets to home varsity football games.

"We gave out 15 tickets for the first home game," Harris said.

Much of Harris' enthusiasm for the new incentive program comes from his love for the community he grew up in.

"I'm Fort White all the way,"

'It's not just about grades, it's to encourage them to master the skills they'll need in a larger world!'

— DeShay Harris, FWHS Student Success Center staff member

AVALYN HUNTER/Special to the Reporter

he said. "I graduated from here in 2005. After I got a bachelor's in family, youth and community science from the University of Florida, I came back. I can't think of anywhere else I'd want to be. This is my family."

Taking care of his "family" requires a lot of work. Aside from overseeing the incentive program, Harris is the go-to person for issues dealing with standardized testing. Although the FCAT will no longer be used to measure students' progress, he is overseeing retesting for students who failed to achieve satisfactory scores during the 2013-14 school year and need to earn better scores for promotion. He is also involved with retesting students who failed end-of-course exams last year.

In addition to helping struggling students pass barriers to graduation, Harris also works with the bright and promising, overseeing sign-ups for the ACT and SAT and helping students access scholarships. He is also the junior class sponsor. His responsibilities make for busy days, but Harris smiles as he talks about his work.

"Wherever FWHS needs me, wherever I can fit in and help the kids, that's where I want to be," he said.

In spite of his busy present schedule, Harris keeps one eye fixed on the future.

"We are really working at teaching better critical thinking skills," he said. "Not only will those skills help our kids pass end-of-course exams, but they're skills they need for life as informed citizens. That's why we're putting these incentives in place. It's not just about grades, it's to encourage them to master the skills they'll need in a larger world."

LCFD raised $7,328 during 'Fill the Boot'

By TONY BRITT
tbritt@lakecityreporter.com

Lake City Fire Department firefighters raised $7,328 during the annual "Fill the Boot" drive to benefit children and adults affected by muscle disease throughout the Lake City area.

There were an estimated 20 LCFD firefighters, including both department chiefs, who collected funds for Muscular Dystrophy Association during this year's "Fill the Boot" fundraising drive.

The firefighters collected MDA contributions from Sept. 6 - Sept. 12 at the intersection of Bascom Norris Drive and U.S. Highway 90 as well as in front of Walmart.

"For six decades, firefighters have fueled MDA's mission to find treatments and cures for lifethreatening muscle diseases, and this year's Lake City Fill the Boot results are a perfect example of the true dedication Lake City Fire Department has

In this September file photo, a passing motorist gives a donation to Lake City Fire Department driver/engineer Adam Brannon for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. 'So far, so good,' Brannon said. 'We've had a few people who don't know what MDA is, but are still giving.'

toward supporting families we serve," said MDA executive director Lauren Herringdine in a prepared statement. "We're grateful for the support of these inspiring, selfless individuals who provide life-saving help that will fund research, advocate for children and adults affected by muscle disease and rally our community to fight back."

Funds raised through the 2014 Lake City Fire Department Fill the Boot event will help support MDA's programs of worldwide research, specialized health care services and day-to-day support — which includes sending children affected by muscular dystrophy and related muscle diseases to a weeklong, barrier-free MDA summer camp at Camp Suwannee in Dowling Park.

The LCFD has participated in the MDA collection drives for more than three decades.

"Raising funds for MDA has always been a tradition for firefighters around the country and here in Lake City it's really no different," said Trey Beauchamp, Lake City Fire Department MDA coordinator. "The kids get to interact with other kids with the same deficiency that they have and they form lifelong bonds (at camp) and are inseparable."

From staff reports

The Wellborn United Methodist Church, 12005 County Road 137, will have its quarterly free spaghetti supper and movie night Friday.

The meal will begin at 5:30 p.m., and will include spaghetti and sauce, salad, bread, dessert and beverage. Chef Roy VanSise and crew will be preparing the "secret sauce" that has been raved about at past suppers, and everyone is invited.

Immediately following supper, the movie "Hidden Places," starring Sydney Penny, Jason Gedrick and Shirley Jones, will be shown.

Widowed with two children and beginning to lose her faith, Eliza Wyatt must bring in the harvest before the bank forecloses on her family's home. Just when things couldn't get any worse, fate brings along hope in the form of Gabe Harper, a down-on-his-luck veteran. Together Eliza and Gabe overcome the odds to save Wyatt Orchard with the help of stubborn but lovable Aunt Batty and a few generous townspeople.

Hidden Places is a triumphant tale of faith, family and commitment without all the violence and language found in some movies.

There is no charge for the supper or movie, and plenty of parking is available.

From staff reports

October is national Domestic Violence Awareness Month. Join Another Way, Inc. and support "Purple Light Nights" by letting a light shine on your porch or business now until October 31. The goal of Purple Light Nights is to provide a greater awareness of domestic violence issues, while we remember the victims and continue to spread the message that "Domestic Violence Has No Place In Our Community."

The campaign was launched in 2007 in partnership with the City of Covington, WA and has developed into an international campaign. This year, Lake City is excited to be participating. The simple idea of shining a purple light on every porch, every business, and on our streets, will help us remember those who lost their lives to domestic violence, support the survivors and bring hope to those still abused.

Effects of plastic and the Pill

Drinking from plastic water bottles, or taking "The Pill" can cause hypothyroidism by raising levels of estrogen hormone in your body. The same can be said about menopause drugs which contain the same synthetic estrogen ingredients or commercial cattle injected with estrogen hormones to make animals heavier at the point of sale. In humans, these hormones raise estrogen, and estrogen holds fat. This sounds counterintuitive, but men frequently have high levels of estrogen, especially if they have prostate problems but that's another article. My point is excess estrogen causes too many transporters, or taxis which bind up your active thyroid hormone. When bound like that, thyroid hormone is completely unavailable to your cells which is where you need it.

Scientifically termed "thyroid binding globulin" or TBG, these transporters drive your thyroid hormone around your blood and drop it off at your cells to wake you up and burn off that foot-long sub you had last night.

When TBG is high, free thyroid hormone (Free T3) is low and you will have symptoms of hypothyroidism, more specifically you are what I call "thyroid sick." I talked about this in my Thyroid Healthy book. Ladies,

DEAR PHARMACIST

Suzy Cohen
suzycohen24@gmail.com, www.SuzyCohen.com

please note that hypothyroidism is a risk factor for premature birth, low birth weight, miscarriage and poor fetal neurological development. Since the popular (relatively useless) TSH blood test doesn't mirror how you really feel, and fails to reflect intracellular thyroid levels, I suggest two special blood tests which paint a better picture:

Sex Hormone Binding Globulin

Suggested Level: Women < 70 and Men < 30

What does "sex hormone" have to do with thyroid hormone? A lot, at least in women. It doesn't correlate well in men though so I wouldn't track SHBG in men. This biomarker goes up in response to 3 things, estrogen, insulin or thyroid hormone. They correlate directly. If SHBG is low, it means you have either low estrogen, high insulin (diabetes to follow) or low thyroid hormone.

Thyroid Binding Globulin

Suggested Level: 13 - 39 mcg/ml

This is a blood test to evaluate how many "taxis" or transporters you have in your blood stream. The Pill increases your TBG that's why you feel more tired on those drugs. They latch onto your thyroid hormone and that makes you tired. Progesterone medication or creams may help, ask your doctor.

There are a few simple things that help. For one, you can switch out your plastic water bottles for glass bottles. You can buy grass-fed, organic free-range meats more frequently. You can find an alternate form of hormone replacement or contraception. You can ask doc about natural over-the-counter aromatase inhibitors like chrysin or DIM. You should try different thyroid medicine or higher levels of T3. Most of all, don't resign yourself to "this is just my life" or "my doctor is really nice so I can't speak up for myself." I believe you can get well. Never resign yourself to symptoms that leave you feeling less than healthy, sexy and energetic.

Talk ends Friday

Columbia's Kamario Bell tries to get outside against Ed White in a 34-17 loss in Jacksonville. The two teams meet again at 7:30 p.m. on Friday in Lake City.

District, home field on the line

By BRANDON FINLEY

bfinley@lakecityreporter.com

Columbia's 34-17 loss against Ed White in Jacksonville has been talked about since last year.

The importance of the two district rivals winning this game can't be overstated. While the loser will almost certainly make the playoffs, there's still a big reason to win Friday other than the District 3-6A Championship. The loser goes on the road and that could mean long days of travel for the loser as the playoffs progress.

"It's tremendously important (to get home-field advantage)," Columbia head coach Brian Allen said. "You look at every level of ball and it's a playoff system all the way throughout now. Being able to have home-field advantage changes postseason play."

Allen noted Columbia's history as another reason to have home field during the playoffs. The last time the Tigers had home field, they were playing for a shot at the semifinals at home.

"Whether you're able to win those games in the playoffs isn't determined by home-field advantage, but it helps out," Allen said. "This type of game, the magnitude of this game impacts postseason."

Allen said it was important for the Tigers to handle business to get to this point, but this game holds all the marbles. It's for the District 3-6A Championship.

"You look back at all the other ones and you had to have the past three," Allen said. "It dictates a lot. It plays a tremendous role. You look at the four years, the one time that we had home-field advantage, we moved on in the playoffs to round three. We had a good football team, but it allowed us at the end of the day to be home round one and two. We went on the road in three and potentially host round four. The opportunity is there."

Allen said the situation is similar to what they faced a couple of years back against Ridgeview after taking a loss on the road a year before.

"You look at the game two years ago and they're a very good team and we were able to win a big game at home," Allen said. "It was against a good football team in Ridgeview. It enabled us to be in a good spot."

Columbia's Gillian Norris tees off against Buchholz and Fleming Island.

Strong scores for CHS despite defeat in tri-meet

By BRANDON FINLEY

bfinley@lakecityreporter.com

Columbia High's Lady Tigers golf team had one of its best rounds of the season, but also ran into its toughest competition.

The Lady Tigers shot a 176, for their best round of the year, but Fleming Island shot a 154 and Buchholz shot a 160 in a tri-meet on Monday.

Gillian Norris and Brooke

Russell had matching 41s, with Shaylynn Barber shooting a 45 and Abby Blizzard rounding out the scores at 49.

"I am very proud of my girls," Columbia head coach Todd Carter said. "They are getting better and better. We could have taken this match and we might just do that Thursday in the Jill Darr Invitational. We are looking forward to districts and regionals."

Uncertainty for LSU at QB heading into Florida

By BRYAN LAZARE
Associated Press

BATON ROUGE, La. — Which LSU quarterback holds the title of starter is uncertain again.

LSU coach Les Miles, who named Brandon Harris the starter a week ago, now wants to observe Harris and season-opening starter Anthony Jennings in the practices leading up to Saturday's game at Florida before assigning one of them to take the first snaps.

"We'll let them both compete at practice and make a decision later in the week," Miles said Monday. "Both can play better than they played last week."

Harris was productive in relief outings against Mississippi State and New Mexico State, leading the Tigers to touchdowns on nine of ten possessions. So, Harris got the nod at Auburn, but by his own admission, he was awful. He completed three of 14 passes for 58 yards and compared his outing to "a nightmare."

Indeed, with a final score of 41-7, it was LSU's worst loss in 15 years.

Now the Tigers (4-2, 0-2 Southeastern Conference) are unranked for the first time in six seasons and head into the Swamp looking to avoid their first 0-3 start in league play for the first time since 1999 — the season before Nick Saban arrived in Baton Rouge.

"We are disappointed in how we played," Miles said. Coaches "met all day Sunday to come up with a plan on how we are going to go about improvement. There is a lot of football to play. There is a need for the guys to understand the direction we're going in."

Miles has indicated that LSU's direction at quarterback would require contributions from both Jennings and Harris until one QB demonstrates clearly that he gives the Tigers a greater advantage. That hasn't happened.

Jennings, a sophomore who started the first five games, turned the ball over three times against New Mexico State two Saturday's ago before being pulled in favor of Harris, a freshman, in the second quarter.

Harris, who sprained an ankle late in the first half against Auburn, was then replaced by Jennings in the third quarter of that game. Jennings was 5-of-10 for 84 yards, but LSU failed to score with him at quarterback. Miles said Harris was healthy enough to practice Monday.

The offense has struggled in the losses to SEC West foes Mississippi State and Auburn. LSU trailed Mississippi State 31-10 through three quarters, at which point the Tigers' lone TD had been scored by the defense on a fumble return. After three quarters at Auburn, LSU trailed 34-7.

Meanwhile, LSU's defense has been porous in those two defeats. Mississippi State gained 570 yards, while Auburn gained 566. Quarterbacks Dak Prescott and Nick Marshall each passed for more than 200 yards and each ran for more than 100 yards.

Miles believes an improved offense will help the defense.

"The reality is we have to get the offense to move the ball," Miles said. "The defense is giving quality effort. We have quality personnel here. If the offense gets on fire, the defense will click right in."

"The offensive and defensive lines played so much better last week. There are other pieces to attack now. If we do that, we can play best next Saturday," Miles said. "We haven't done that yet."

Florida State's Jameis Winston throws a pass against Wake Forest. Winston and the Seminoles may be without three starters at Syracuse noon on Saturday.

Top-ranked FSU could be without three starters

By KAREEM COPELAND
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Top-ranked Florida State could be missing three starters when the Seminoles play at Syracuse on Saturday.

Coach Jimbo Fisher announced Monday center Austin Barron is out with an arm injury and will be replaced by redshirt freshman Ryan Hoefeld. Leading receiver Rashad Greene suffered a concussion in last weekend's 43-3 win against Wake Forest and has not been cleared to return. Running back Karlos Williams injured his ankle during the game and is in a walking boot.

Redshirt sophomore Mario Pender would replace Williams if he is unable to play and freshman Dalvin Cook would be the primary backup. Pender and Cook have run for a combined 382 yards and five touchdowns.

"If I had to give a percentage, I would say yes" Williams will miss the game, Fisher said. "But it's how guys heal and where they're at."

Sophomore Jesus "Bobo" Wilson could start in place of Greene, but freshman Travis Rudolph is also a candidate. Greene is four receptions from setting the school record for career catches.

The Seminoles could also be a play away from an emergency situation at quarterback. Backup Sean Maguire is out after injuring his hand against Wake Forest. Fisher said Jameis Winston's backup would either be redshirt freshman John Franklin or walk-on redshirt freshman Troy Cook.

Neither has ever thrown a collegiate pass and Franklin has spent much of the season working as a receiver.

The Seminoles have had a variety of short-term ailments keep players out of games this season after being relatively-injury free during the title run.

Starting defensive end and Pender both missed the N.C. State game with concussions. Nose tackle Niles Lawrence-Stample is out for the season with a torn pectoral muscle. His replacement, Derrick Mitchell, Jr., missed last week with a knee problem and cornerback P.J. Williams has missed a game with a hamstring issue.

"You're always concerned, but ... they're not pulls and tears," Fisher said. "When you run a bunch of big guys into each other, things break sometimes."

"That's just ball. You get a bunch of bodies falling around out there, that happens. ... Sometimes the gods smile on you, sometimes they don't. That doesn't mean you still can't have success. You've got to have a plan."

Florida reserve players fighting over missing cleats

By MARK LONG
Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — Florida coach Will Muschamp has another issue to deal with this week.

According to the University Police Department, reserve quarterback Skyler Mornhinweg, son of New York Jets offensive coordinator Marty Mornhinweg, and teammate Gerald Willis got into a fight over a pair of missing cleats Monday night.

Mornhinweg sustained "small lacerations on his lower lip" and was taken to a nearby hospital for treatment, according to the police report. Willis had a "small cut on his chin" but did not get medical attention.

Mornhinweg told police the fight started Monday night after his missing cleats were located in Willis' locker. Mornhinweg said he asked Willis about the cleats outside Florida Field following practice, and their discussion escalated into a physical altercation.

Willis was no longer at the scene when police arrived, so an officer met with Willis at the football facility Tuesday. Willis told the officer he couldn't locate his cleats recently, and grabbed the nearest pair to him.

Willis said the two exchanged words, adding that he felt threatened by Mornhinweg standing over him. Willis said he pushed Mornhinweg, who responded by striking Willis with a closed fist. Willis then struck Mornhinweg in the mouth. Both players declined to press charges, closing the case.

The scuffle came hours after the team suspended quarterback Treon Harris. Authorities are investigating sexual assault allegations against him in an early Sunday incident.

With Harris out and third-string quarterback Will Grier recovering from back spasms, Mornhinweg could be the backup heading into Saturday night's game against LSU.

Mornhinweg, a third-year sophomore from Philadelphia, played in three games late last season after starter Jeff Driskel and backup Tyler Murphy were injured. The 6-foot-3, 212-pound Mornhinweg completed 70 percent of his passes for 344 yards, with three touchdowns and an interception.

Willis, a 6-foot-3, 255-pound freshman defensive lineman from New Orleans, has four tackles and half a sack in two games.

Dolphins may get back 6 starters against Green Bay

By STEVEN WINE
Associated Press

DAVIE — Healthier than they've been since the season began, the Miami Dolphins should benefit from a wave of reinforcements Sunday against Green Bay.

As many as six players might rejoin the starting lineup, and all practiced Monday when the Dolphins reconvened following their bye week.

Running back Knowshon Moreno practiced for the first time since he was sidelined by an elbow injury in Week 2. Also back are two starters expected to play Sunday for the first time this season, safety Reshad Jones and Pro Bowl center Mike Pouncey, whose comeback could involve a switch to guard.

Others returning from injuries are middle linebacker Koa Misi (ankle), defensive tackle Randy Starks (back) and guard Shelley Smith (knee).

"The bye came at a pretty good time," receiver Mike Wallace said. "It's going to be good for our team. We haven't seen these guys together like this in a long time. I'm excited; I know our whole team is excited."

Absent on Monday was reserve defensive lineman Derrick Shelby, suspended indefinitely in the wake of his weekend arrest on misdemeanor charges of resisting arrest and trespassing at a nightclub. Cornerback Cortland Finnegan and receiver Brandon Gibson also sat out.

Even so, there was a dramatic net gain in manpower, which is especially welcome as the Dolphins (2-2) prepare for perhaps their toughest opponent so far. Green Bay (3-2) has won its past two games by a combined score of 80-27.

The reinforcements mean lots of depth-chart reshuffling this week. "You want to get these guys up to speed as quickly as you possibly can," coach Joe Philbin said. "Some look great, some not so much. We've got to see where they are and how much they can be used in a game."

Moreno practiced with an elbow brace and said he'll wear it in a game if necessary. His return buoys a ground game that has been a strength even in his absence.

"It felt good to get out there on the field and work out a little of the rust," he said.

Moreno led the NFL with 134 yards rushing in Week 1.

Pouncey, returning from hip surgery in June, should help an offensive line that is much improved over last season. His replacement, Samson Satele, has played well enough to prompt speculation he'll remain at center while Pouncey moves into the lineup at guard.

"Whatever position I'm playing, it's going to be for the better of the team," Pouncey said. "We'll see. It's coach Philbin's decision."

Pouncey played mostly guard for the Florida Gators but has been at center since being drafted by the Dolphins in 2011.

"Guard is my position," Pouncey said. "I was kind of forced to play center when I got drafted here."

The defense is getting a boost with the return of Misi, Starks and Jones, who was suspended for the first four games for violating the NFL policy on performance-enhancing substances. Jones further strengthens a secondary that had three interceptions in its most recent game against Oakland.

"I'm going to be running around out there with my hair on fire," Jones said. "That's what I do. I'm a ball hawk. That's what they look for me to do."

Jaguars apologize for Ebola sign

Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE — The Jacksonville Jaguars have apologized for their mascot using the Ebola epidemic to mock the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Jaxson de Ville held one of Pittsburgh's famed yellow "Terrible Towels" next to a homemade sign that read "TOWELS CARRY EBOLA" on Sunday.

Team president Mark Lamping said the Jaguars had no prior knowledge of the sign and will handle the matter internally.

Lamping says "improvisation and humor have both been key elements to the character of Jaxson de Ville, especially when he performs at home games. On Sunday, the person who has played Jaxson de Ville over the past 20 seasons made an extremely poor decision in that regard."

DEAR ABBY: When I was 10, I faked an injury so I could quit playing soccer. I couldn't articulate why the coach, who was clean-cut, friendly and fair, made me uneasy. After he died a few years ago, it came out that he had molested dozens of girls.

Over the subsequent 20 years, those same instincts have screamed at me three more times – and twice I was proven correct. The third man to set off this alarm is in my social circle, along with his wife. Several of the couples in our group are starting families.

I feel like I'm in a terrible position. Should I say something and risk destroying an innocent man's reputation and the group dynamic, or remain silent and risk the kids being around a predator? I don't have a shred of evidence, just a gut-punch feeling.

I never said anything about the prior abusers, but I don't sleep well wondering if I should have – even if it was based solely on a sixth sense. What should I do? — NOSE LIKE A BLOODHOUND

DEAR NOSE: Child molesters belong to every race, both sexes, and come in various age ranges. The problem with criminals of every sort – child abusers and con men included – is they look like the rest of us. I'm sorry you're having sleep problems, but the solution to them is NOT to accuse someone about whom you have no proof. To falsely accuse him could destroy both of you, and I don't recommend it.

DEAR ABBY: I'm struggling in my marriage. I have asked my husband to treat me as an equal, but it falls on deaf ears. I work part-time, attend school full-time and care for our two children, basically on my own. I pay for almost everything. If I'm broke, he'll pay one of the smaller bills.

He refuses to help with any of the housework, and he has the freedom to go when and where he pleases. I'm only allowed to go to school or work; otherwise I must take the kids with me. He's very controlling and, in the past, when I have threatened to leave, he said he would kill himself. He is verbally and emotionally abusive.

I no longer love him and want a divorce, but I'm scared of what he'll do if I ask for one. I don't know what he is capable of. The stress has taken a toll on me. I'm depressed, angry and bitter. I wish the kids and I could simply disappear, but that's not an option, nor healthy.

Is there an easy way to ask for a divorce, or somewhere I could turn for help? Is there financial help where someone could help pay for a divorce? — WANTS TO DISAPPEAR

DEAR WANTS TO DISAPPEAR: There is no easy way to ask a spouse for a divorce, particularly one who is controlling and verbally abusive. If you are worried about him killing himself, please don't. From your description, he is too selfish and self-centered ever to do that.

Because I know of no individuals or organizations that pay for people's divorces, talk to your family and see if one or more of your close relatives is willing to help. However, if you are afraid that your husband might harm you, contact the National Domestic Violence Hotline. The phone number is 800-799-7233.
