Wild ride ends in 2 wrecks

Two crash scenes saw multiple vehicles mangled, as a rogue driver slammed into a car stopped at a stoplight, fled the scene in her severely damaged SUV, flipped it two blocks away and took out a traffic light on Lake City's north side Tuesday evening.

Several motorists suffered minor injuries in the collisions and two were transported to hospitals by ambulance. Others had minor scrapes and bruises and sought medical attention on their own, according to reports from the scene.

Numerous officers from both Florida Highway Patrol and the Lake City Police Department directed traffic and investigated the damaged vehicles at both scenes, working around crippled traffic utilities and congested traffic, taking details from the several occupants involved.

Florida Highway Patrol said trouble ensued with a hit-and-run crash called in at the North Marion Street and Gum Swamp Road/County Road 25A intersection around 6:10 p.m. Tuesday.

Loneshia Underwood, was sitting still at a red light in her 2015 black Honda Accord, with her 9-year-old son, Jaylen, in the backseat, when her car was rear-ended by a gold SUV driven by an unknown black woman and traveling at a high rate of speed.

"I was stopped at the red light and she just hit me, full throttle, and pushed me into the middle of the road," Underwood said. "Luckily, the light was red and no

Local residents look back at April 4, 1968.

Fifty years ago they were teachers, soldiers and students living through one of the most infamous chapters in American history: the murder of Martin Luther King Jr.

Some are retired, while others remain prominent local figures, community activists, organizers and top city officials.

They recalled their experiences of April 4, 1968, the personal impact of the shooting, and tried to summarize a city and a country's collective response.

NWS meteorologist to speak at UWSV

From staff reports

Cindy Eisenheimer, National Weather Service meteorologist, will be the featured speaker for United Way of Suwannee Valley's 2017-2018 fiftieth anniversary annual meeting and awards banquet Friday, April 13, at The Country Club at Lake City. The event will begin with a social time from 6 to 6:30 p.m. followed by dinner and the annual meeting from 6:30 to 8 p.m. The event concludes the local United Way's annual community fundraising campaign season theme of "Celebrating 50 Years of Our UNITED Community."

Eisenheimer is a lead forecaster at the National Weather Service Office in Jacksonville. In addition to issuing forecasts and warnings, Eisenheimer works closely with local broadcast meteorologists and emergency managers to ensure communities are prepared when hazardous weather threatens. Before joining the National Weather Service she was an air quality forecaster for the State of Alaska. She will provide an overview of services the National Weather Service provides to help local communities, such as on-scene support of emergency management and professional and college football games; discuss seasonal predictions, particularly relevant to the upcoming hurricane season and current drought conditions; share how the National Weather Service partnership with emergency management helps during events; and highlight recent advances in weather tracking science.

Occasion is UWSV's 50th annual meeting on April 13.

All individual contributors as well as organizational contributors are invited to attend this annual membership meeting. Contact the United Way office at 752-5604 x 102 or via email to jayne@unitedwsv.org by April 5 to make reservations at $30 per person. Tables may be reserved for groups of eight.

KING

Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated at the age of 39 at the Lorraine Motel in Memphis, there in support of a sanitation workers strike.

On that day Glynnell Presley was 37, Glenel Bowden was 19, and Blondell Johnson and Stephen Witt were 16.

Presley, once a teacher at Richardson High School, has remained an active figure in education and local politics.

Now 87, he's still seen as pivotal.

Witt, a high school junior at the time, is the current Lake City mayor.

Bowden, a new Army recruit on his way to Vietnam out of Fort Tacoma, Washington, was leaving "the world" as the U.S. was commonly referred to by soldiers, for the small Southeast Asian peninsula.

At 68, he held a career in the local and state political scene, and is known locally as an authority on matters affecting the county's African American community.

Johnson, 66, lived King's "dream," which she said was sometimes a nightmare during the early days of integration at Columbia High School. Johnson is retired now and was a minority student at CHS at the time.

"I cried, I was overwhelmed," said Johnson of hearing King had been slain. "I lived with my great grandmother during that time. Younger people moved north. They didn't stay in this area."

Presley said the day was "emotional," and described scenes of those openly crying at the news.

"All African Americans were affected by that. It was a feeling of sadness, remorse more than anything," said Presley. "I supported him 100 percent, because, you know, I came up when it was real rough. I saw things a lot of people did not see."

Bowden's account was more remote, but grounded with thoughts of home.

"I was getting on a plane, getting ready to go to Vietnam," Bowden said. On that day you know there was riots, demonstrations and everything was going on, so a lot of us got on the plane not knowing, not in Lake City of course, but the the bigger cities. That was during the civil rights movement and anti-Vietnam movement so all that was in the back of our mind."

Witt said the series of shootings that decade left a lasting impression, starting with John F. Kennedy, then King, followed by Robert Kennedy.

"It was just a time that a lot of that was going on," said Witt. "People talk about violence today, there was a lot of it back then."

Both Presley and Johnson described an overwhelming sense of loss among the African American community in Lake City at the time.

"The entire school was just disturbed, upset – maybe the teachers, all the teachers stopped at that point it was sort of a sad thing a grieving thing all those emotions came through," Presley said.

Johnson said learning of King's death created a void, and left an unease over who, if anyone, would pick up King's mantle.

"We were a part of that dream that Dr. King had. That's why other minority students, we were all concerned, because that meant that we would have additional problems if he wasn't there," Johnson said. "It was horrible just to think that he was gone and there was nothing that we could do about it. It was overwhelming because we had to go to school the next day and cope with it."

Bowden said in the absence of the internet he carried the news with him to Vietnam.

"So when we landed and was camping around base people said, 'Man what's happening back in the world?' I said, 'Man, King was killed,'" he said. "So we actually took, except the people who got it over the [radio], we actually took the news of King's assassination with us to Vietnam."

Witt said he doesn't remember it being a "black and white issue" and said the consequences of the shooting then could not be imagined.

"What's this going to do to our country or where are we at in our country when things like that can happen," Witt said.

He likened the event to Sept. 11, 2001.

"I don't think any of us really realized the ramifications down the road," Witt said. "It [9/11] happened but you didn't know 15 years, look at the effect that had on airline travel."

Johnson said through the despair, she and the students at CHS kept on through their own civil rights struggles.

"We were there to keep the dream alive... [we] had to pick up where he left off because nobody knew who was going to do it," Johnson said.

OUR OPINION

An outpouring for Vietnam vet

We've gotten call after call from folks wanting to help pay for a headstone for Private First Class Eugene McCray, the Lake City man who died in Vietnam some 51 years ago and was somehow forgotten.

It started as a quest to find a photo of PFC McCray so that he could be properly represented on the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund Wall of Faces (http://www.vvmf.org/Wall-of-Faces/).

That part is over, thanks to the efforts of some dedicated individuals.

Now what's needed is a gravestone so that his burial place at Garden of Rest Cemetery will no longer be unmarked.

The VA will most likely take care of this matter and has already been contacted.

But if they don't, the list of those willing to step in and help is long. American Legion Post 57 commander Art Lowes is at the top of that list. He said the post will not only pay for a headstone, but make sure PFC McCray has a full military service, as he deserves.

We wrote about Lowes' offer on Sunday.

On Monday, the phone started ringing with offers to help, should Post 57 need assistance or, somehow, not be able to deliver.

These folks knew full well that wasn't likely to happen, but they wanted to make clear their intentions anyway. They just needed to be part of this noble, community-wide effort.

We thank every one of them.

It is a pleasure to live in a town that cares so deeply for one of its own, a man sent to die long ago in a foreign land but now — finally — getting the heartfelt welcome he has so long been due.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date

In 1818, Congress decided the flag of the United States would consist of 13 red and white stripes and 20 stars, with a new star to be added for every new state of the Union.

In 1841, President William Henry Harrison succumbed to pneumonia one month after his inaugural, becoming the first U.S. chief executive to die in office.

In 1917, the U.S. Senate voted 82-6 in favor of declaring war against Germany (the House followed suit two days later by a vote of 373-50).

In 1968, civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., 39, was shot and killed on a balcony of the Lorraine Motel in Memphis, Tennessee.

In 1975, more than 130 people, most of them children, were killed when a U.S. Air Force transport plane evacuating Vietnamese orphans crash-landed shortly after takeoff from Saigon. Microsoft was founded by Bill Gates and Paul Allen in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

1968 comes roaring back

I started following the news in the late 60s in part because I had an uncle we figured would be sent to Vietnam sooner or later and it worried me sick.

The daily casualty rates — wounded and dead for U.S., Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops — would flash up on the screen like baseball scores, and I, maybe 8 at the time, would register quiet relief if our numbers came in lower than those of our foes.

It wasn't just the war that was worrisome, though.

Our country was tearing itself apart, city by city, starting with Detroit and LA as racial strife gained steam too.

I saw buses and cars burning in the streets on television during what I later learned was the "Summer of Love" and wondered how bad it would get — and what could be coming next.

What came next was an event that would merit front-page coverage 50 years later: the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr.

Robert Bridges
rbridges@lakecityreporter.com

The immediate aftermath (as seen on TV through the eyes of a kid) was a whirlwind of violence and death, right up through the murder of Bobby Kennedy just two months later.

On the afternoon of April 4, 1968, things changed in ways nobody could have imagined, long term, and I will not attempt to critique them.

But I do know this. The madness I saw unfold before me in those years has not abated in any real way since, and the fissures we see tearing at the seams of America now were there before, papered over perhaps by a strong economy, at times, or the need to address a common foe (think 9/11 or World War II).

We've been separate tribes, really, since the Pilgrims got off course and landed at Plymouth rather than Jamestown.

Yet we have always made a virtue of the internal strife that sometimes threatens to tear the body politic apart but never does. We even coined a phrase for it: e pluribus unum ("out of many, one").

Maybe this is how America is supposed to work. Free people fight it out — preferably in the marketplace of ideas rather than the streets — and however rough it gets, we are still one nation in the end and stronger for it.

Then again, that may just be the hopeful 8-year-old kid in me talking.

What about it? Is America more divided now than in 1968? I'd like to hear what you have to say.

Write me at rbridges@lakecityreporter.com or send a note to 180 E. Duval St., Lake City, FL 32055.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Why won't city support college?

To the Editor:

Florida Gateway College should never have been built on a cypress swamp! But now it is what it is. I have a very long history with our local college known under a number of different names. I graduated from the University of Florida Forest Ranger School in the early 1960's. We never had any problems with flooding at that time. I graduated from the Junior College and Forest Ranger School in 1966. During those years we did not have problems with flooding.

It was after it became necessary to harvest trees to allow building space for our growing college did we really see the onset of water problems. I proudly worked at Lake City Community College for over 30 years. Over the years as the college continued to expand, water became an escalating problem. I could not even guess how many times on rainy days or in stormy weather I would be required to conduct business in another building; I would take off my shoes and socks, roll up my pants and wade to another building.

Our local college is one of this area of the state's greatest resources. If we were not blessed to have our college many young people, as well as older adults, would never have the opportunity to earn a college degree. Many of our graduates spend their entire lives working in our local area. I hope that we can all agree on the importance of keeping our college safe. If the city cuts down the trees near the airport, Florida Gateway College will be in constant danger of standing underwater.

Why isn't the City Council supporting our college? Wendell Johnson, City Manager, is intent on raining chaos on the college, possibly due to his dislike for President Barrett? Johnson is not from Lake City, and will probably be moving away soon, so why should he even care if we have a college! Johnson and the City Council are ready to spend over $200,000 to fence a few acres of land. Does anybody except me think this is a ridiculous amount of money for this project? We are told that this is not local money, but money from the government … our tax dollars, so we should not care what it costs. I would like to know where the excess money from this "fencing" project is going.

Edward Hunter
Lake City

City manager's 'heavy hand' at work

To the Editor:

In reading the newspaper reports on the trees bordering the airport, the deer coming through the fence, the hole(s) in the fence, the recorded statements, the denials of statements and the responses and non-responses to phone calls, I have come to a conclusion. The city manager decided he wanted the trees cut down (not the first time he has wanted trees cut down I understand!). "Someone" lied about the FAA was requiring the trees be cut. The airport manager first said the hole was fixed and the problem with the deer on the runway was solved; then he was told by the city manager that that was the wrong thing to say — so he denied saying it.

I hope the college gets the injunction to stop the cutting of the trees until the current city manager is gone. Then the problem can be resolved when the issue can be discussed without the city manager's heavy hand on the process.

Great Easter editorials; overhaul needed at City Hall

To the Editor:

Good morning, and thank you for the very appropriate editorial, "The Easter Story" (Sunday, April 1). Thanks for printing the truth from the Bible scripture rather than some person to give their opinion.

Thanks, also, for your remarks about visitors thinking of moving here, it was well said & true (Todd Wilson, "Visitors, ever think of moving here?").

Then on another matter: We sure need a new and really qualified person for our city leadership, and dedicated city board members. Have a great Easter.

OBITUARIES

Julia Lee (Jubie) Tyre

Julia Lee (Jubie) Tyre, 97, of Tallahassee passed away Friday, March 30, 2018. She was born in Columbia County, FL on March 18, 1921 to the late Perry L. Smith and Nancy Harper. She was the oldest of three sisters and two brothers who all preceded her in death.

Julia was happily married for 56 years to the late Jerome V. Tyre, Sr.

Julia and her husband were founding members of the Thomasville Road Baptist Church. She enjoyed helping with the children at the Light House Children's Home. She had a wonderful spirit, never meeting a stranger. Julia was blessed with a "green thumb" and a passion for gardening and flowers. She was a loving and devoted homemaker, raising three sons. During her last years, Julia was lovingly cared for by her son, Paul, his fiancée, Gale, and Gale's son, Gus.

Julia is survived by her sons, Danny (Debbie), Van and Paul (Gale); grandchildren, Shelly, Kelley and Jaydyn; and great-grandson, Landon.

Visitation will be held Friday, April 6 at 1pm at Culley's MeadowWood Memorial Park, 700 Timberlane Rd, Tallahassee, FL with funeral services beginning at 2pm.

While able, Julia enjoyed going to the senior center and visiting with friends. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to Tallahassee Senior Center Foundation, 1400 N. Monroe St., Tallahassee, FL 32303.

Obituaries are paid advertisements. For details, call the Lake City Reporter's classified department at 752-1293.

FDA might be feeding you foolishness

DEAR PHARMACIST

Suzy Cohen
info@dearpharmacist.com
www.SuzyCohen.com

Who should decide if your food is healthy? Do you think that the Food & Drug Administration should? Reason I ask is because this year, the FDA is going to become more involved in considering what "healthy" means. They will also have input about the claims that food companies make.

On the surface, this sounds absolutely reasonable. The "FDA" name itself implies that it should have some say about food, but I've noticed their track record and it's awful. Have you noticed that their interventions to fortify food don't work that well? When they fortify cereal with folic acid, that's a synthetic form of vitamin B9. When they fortify milk with calcium, it's not a very good form and can cause stomach upset.

Furthermore, I think that an agency that's in charge of drugs, should not simultaneously be in charge of food! Unless perhaps you want to look forward to Prozac Popsicles and Requip Rice Krispies!

If it wasn't so sad, it would be hilarious! Scott Gottlieb, who is the Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, was speaking at the CNBC Healthy Returns Conference in New York a few days ago, and he looks like a nice, reasonable guy. I wish I could get a meeting with him! I'd tell him that his prior attempts to help out with obesity are failing pathetically. His changes to the food industry intended to reduce the incidence of heart disease, diabetes and chronic illness aren't working. They won't ever work … not until his agency stops the genetic modification of our food and the spraying of it with hundreds of hormone-disrupting pesticides.

Why don't you start prioritizing that, hmm?!

The FDA's intention is noble, but do we want to let the same people who sanction margarine dictate what's "healthy" now?!

They're working towards making food manufacturers create an icon or symbol on all their labeling in order to meet new definitions of "healthy." But food makers cheat, not all of them, but for sure some of them are failing to disclose additives, MSG and bug parts. The industry is not the most ethical sort, and some will just stamp the new icon on their labels without doing anything to make it "healthier." And you'll pay more for the pretty (but meaningless) badge on the label. As the expression goes, "You can't put lipstick on a pig."

If you sense my frustration it's because I've worked very hard my entire life, not just to purchase real food, but to cook authentically healthy meals, the kind that automatically come with nutrition. No icon needed!

If you want "healthy" food, don't look for boxes with an icon! Shop around the perimeter of the grocery store or go to a farmers market and buy organic when possible. Don't rip open a box that has an ingredient list of 45 things you can't even pronounce, and then shove it in the oven just because some agency stuck an icon it.

Dog hit by golf cart cheats death — three times

From UF Health

SARAH CAREY/Special to the Reporter
Members of the UF emergency and critical care team are shown with Jamie McCallister, her daughter, Elle, and Rupert on the day of his discharge from the UF Small Animal Hospital.

GAINESVILLE — A young dachshund named Rupert, run over by a golf cart in Ocala in February, is now living a charmed life after being resuscitated three times by University of Florida veterinarians.

Rupert was discharged Feb. 27 from UF's Small Animal Hospital after being treated for eight days in the hospital's intensive care unit. His owner, Jamie McAllister, who lives in Michigan but travels back and forth to Ocala during the winter months, could not be happier.

"To say Rupert is a miracle is an understatement," McAllister said. "If it weren't for the doctors and staff at UF, I don't know where we would be."

McAllister said Rupert had jumped off a friend's golf cart while she was driving and rolled under one of the vehicle's tires. She immediately took him to her veterinarian, who advised her that Rupert should be taken to the UF Small Animal Hospital due to the severity of his injuries.

"His veterinarian called me in Gainesville to say Rupert's family wanted to bring him to UF for treatment of severe pulmonary contusions, but he was not stable enough for transport," said Ashley Allen, D.V.M., a clinical assistant professor of emergency and critical care at the UF College of Veterinary Medicine.

"So we teamed up: Dr. Gareth Buckley took over the intensive care unit, and Dr. Jennifer Martinez, student Denae Campanele and I loaded up the van we use to transport patients on oxygen, and drove to Ocala to get Rupert," she explained.

The group stopped at the UF Pet Emergency Treatment Services clinic in Ocala to pick up a ventilator and additional supplies. They then headed to the Town and Country Animal Hospital, where Rupert went into cardiac arrest soon after they arrived. His heart had stopped beating due to internal bleeding and depletion of oxygen, the doctors said.

"We performed CPR and got him back, but he proceeded to code two more times in the hour we spent there trying to get him stable enough for transport," Allen said. "We brought him to UF by using the transport ventilator, as he was unable to maintain oxygenation on his own, and he stayed on a ventilator for five days."

other traffic was coming at the time.

"My son and I panicked and took off our seatbelts because her car was dripping fluids and smoking a little bit," Underwood continued. "We didn't know if it was going to blow up or what ... Even before we could go over there to get her information — other people were trying to help her because she looked pretty bad — she literally cranked the car up and took off. Cars were trying to get out of her way because she took off with no remorse."

Jaylen Underwood was sitting in the vehicle's backseat when the crash occurred but he and his mother appeared to avoid any major injuries, yet, both were headed to the hospital for observation.

"He was in the backseat, so he probably felt the brunt of it. He just said the back of his left arm was sore," she said. "I have a scrape on my back and I'm going to get it checked out just in case. I'm just happy to be alive and that God watched over us. It could be a lot worse, but thank God we're still here."

The SUV that struck Underwood's vehicle fled the scene quickly – with its driver's airbag inflated, according to witnesses – and darted two blocks west on Long Street before causing more chaos in a matter of minutes, police said.

The wild ride came to an end where Northwest Long Street intersects with U.S. Highway 41 North, in front of Scaff's Market.

The SUV, believed to be an Isuzu, sideswiped a Ford Explorer then destroyed a large utility box before overturning, spinning around and stopping upside down on the southeast corner of U.S. 41.

A crowd of bystanders gathered quickly from the nearby neighborhood and from across the street at Scaff's Market and began to line the sidewalks near the crash scene.

The female driver of the flipped SUV was questioned by LCPD and administered sobriety testing after the crash was cleared. She was handcuffed, sat on a stretcher and placed in ambulance. LCPD did not release the woman's name by press time Tuesday night and it was unclear if she was charged.

Another vehicle arrived at the scene while first responders were directing traffic, treating victims and taking statements from those involved. Occupants of the vehicle, a man and woman, said by witnesses at the scene to be people involved with the occupants of the flipped, alleged hit-and-run SUV, got out and became unruly toward officers working the scene.

Several struggles arose between crowd members who attempted to restrain a male occupant who emerged from the vehicle, removed his shirt and moved aggressively toward the scene, shouting at LCPD officers. He was not arrested.

It took nearly an hour before both scenes were clear and traffic was full restored to normal. The traffic light at U.S. 41 and Northwest Long Street was energized later in the evening, but placed on flashing yellow caution facing U.S. 41 and flashing red facing Northwest Long Street.

Which new head coach is most likely to succeed?

Will Mullen, Taggert, put the Sunshine State back on top?

By RALPH D. RUSSO
Associated Press

Among the many emails former Tennessee athletic director John Currie received when he began to search for a coach to replace Butch Jones was one from an Alabama athletic department staffer with the subject "Head Coaching Analysis."

It included six pages of charts, graphs, numbers and pictures that told the story of every head coach hired since 2000 by the "Top 25 historic football programs," determined by using decades of The Associated Press rankings .

Using a weighted formula that combined winning percentage, percentage of top-10 finishes in the AP poll and percentage of seasons winning a national championship, and putting extra emphasis on the most recent five seasons, each coach's stint at a school was given an efficiency rating.

What the numbers revealed was mostly what we already know: Nick Saban is doing great at Alabama; Urban Meyer's tenure at Ohio State has been excellent; and hiring Pete Carroll worked out really well for Southern California.

The numbers also showed that coaches most likely to succeed at those schools had previous Power Five head

FGC signs seven recruits, 2018-19 class almost completed.

By ERIC JACKSON
ejackson@lakecityreporter.com

The grind for new players doesn't stop at Florida Gateway College.

Since the season ended over five months ago, FGC has made its presence felt on the recruiting trail with seven high school players already committed to play this fall.

Area volleyball standouts Rebecca Stone (First Christian Academy), Alexis Weeks (Bell), Jaylin Roberts (Suwannee), Autumn Smith (Lafayette), Kaitlann Knudson (Oakleaf), Nataleigh Nieuwenhuis (Fleming Island) and Kaitlyn Clines (Keystone Heights) have all pledged their allegiances to FGC.

The school is poised to bring in the versatile yet unfinished 2018 recruiting class that will fill in the gaps of losing a handful of solid players from last year's squad.

After resurrecting the program this past fall, competing for the first time in 36 years, the Lady Timberwolves (participating as independents) went 7-11 in 18 games.

FGC volleyball looks to improve on its debut season after getting a slow start on recruitment last year. The new additions are slated to bolster the fledgling team.

ROUNDUP

Gators grab midweek contest vs. FGCU

GAINESVILLE — No. 1 Florida grabbed an 8-4 over Florida Gulf Coast on Tuesday to claim its fourth consecutive midweek win.

The Gators have now won seven consecutive games, matching their longest win streak of the season. They now move to 124-54 (.697) against in-state opponents under head coach Kevin O'Sullivan.

After a Nick Horvath jump at the wall saved a two-run home run in the top of the sixth, Horvath and Florida exploded for five runs in the bottom half.

The Gators had already scored twice in the frame when Horvath came up to plate. With runners at the corners, he blasted a 2-2 fastball over the left field stands to push the Florida lead to 8-2.

On the mound, Andrew Baker gave the Gators three strong innings out of the pen. He allowed just one hit while striking out three Eagle batters. Baker helped serve as a bridge to Michael Byrne who closed out the final 1 2/3 innings.

Jonathan India extended his hit streak to 16 games when he doubled down the left field line in the third inning. Two batters later, India would score off a JJ Schwarz liner up the middle.

With his two RBIs, Schwartz now sits alone in second in program history with 216 for his career.

"That is a really good offensive club that came in top 10 in the nation in hitting," Florida head coach Kevin O'Sullivan said. "I think it was a good start for him against an older club and some meaningful points when he had second and third with no outs and only gave up one run. I thought Andrew (Baker) was great out of the pen, three scoreless innings on 34 pitches. Michael (Byrne) did his thing getting five outs on 13 pitches. We had a lot of production up and down the lineup. Brady Smith had a chance to start behind the plate and had three hits. And Nick Horvath had a big three-run homer and obviously saved a two-run homer making an unbelievable play there in left center field. All and all it was a really nice night for us"

Firefighter-to-Masters golfer: Talk about a Hollywood story!

Parziale is taking a break from his regular job in Massachusetts.

By PAUL NEWBERRY
Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. — When Matt Parziale steps outside of this moment he's living, a firefighter-turned-Masters golfer, he can understand why everyone finds it so compelling.

This is the sort of over-the-top script they usually come up with in Hollywood.

"It's incredible," Parziale said with a chuckle Monday, having just finished a practice round at Augusta National. "But," he quickly added, turning serious, "I don't see it that way. Because I've obviously lived it."

Yep, the 30-year-old from Station 1 in Brockton, Massachusetts is taking a break from his regular job, the one where he might put his life on the line most any day against some fearsome inferno, to tee off at the Masters.

Amen Corner can't seem all that intimidating to someone whose real life involves wading through thick smoke, unable to see what's right in front of their face, unsure if their next breath might be their last.

Not even Hollywood can do it justice.

"We're pulling walls, ceilings, cutting holes in roofs," Parziale said, talking about firefighting instead of his short game. "Because you're trying to find the fire. It gets in the walls and the attic. You have stuff flying everywhere, people swinging tools everywhere. A lot of things can happen. You can't see a thing, so might as well close your eyes. Yeah, it's pitch black. It's not like the movies."

About five years ago, Parziale gave up on his dream of being a professional golfer, having failed to make his mark on various mini-tours. He reclaimed his amateur status and became a firefighter in his hardscrabble hometown, which has certainly produced its share of top sports figures, from Rocky Marciano to Marvin Hagler to Al Davis.

It was a logical step. Parziale's dad, Vic, spent more than three decades as Noel, Sefolosha get 5-game drug bans

NEW YORK (AP) — Dallas Mavericks center Nerlens Noel and Utah Jazz forward Thabo Sefolosha have been suspended five games for violating the NBA's anti-drug program.

Noel's ban will cover the final five games of the season for the lottery-bound Mavericks, starting Tuesday night against Portland.

Sefolosha had surgery on the MCL in his right knee in January and hasn't returned. His suspension will begin in the next regular-season or playoff game when he is eligible and physically able to play.

Patriots trade Cooks to Rams for 1st-rounder

BOSTON (AP) — The New England Patriots have traded deep threat receiver Brandin Cooks to the Rams for Los Angeles' first-round draft pick, 23rd overall.

New England also sends a fourth-round choice to the Rams, who give the Patriots a sixth-rounder.

Cooks, 24, was New Orleans' first-round selection in 2014 and played three seasons for the Saints. He was acquired 13 months ago by New England for a first-rounder and other picks, and made 65 receptions for 1,082 yards and seven touchdowns in his lone season with the Patriots.

Cooks is entering the fifth year of his rookie contract and could become a free agent after the 2018 season.

Alvarez withdraws from Canelo-Triple G rematch

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Canelo Alvarez has withdrawn from next month's middleweight title bout with Gennady Golovkin, two months after Alvarez twice tested positive for a banned substance.

The May 5 fight in Las Vegas was to have been a rematch of the draw they fought last September. But on March 5, Alvarez's promoters, Golden Boy Promotions, announced he twice tested positive for the steroid in February.

MASTERS

a Brockton firefighter. Matt had been around the station pretty much his entire life. He liked the life, knew what he was getting himself into.

"You don't make a lot of money," said Vic Parziale, who retired last November. "But it's steady."

During his down time, Matt continued to play golf, though those long, cold New England winters meant putting away his clubs for months at a time. For three years running, he entered the Mid-Amateur Championship, the top tournament for post-college golfers who aren't professionals, but he failed to win even a single match.

Then, last fall at a club outside of Atlanta, Parziale's fortunes suddenly turned.

After making it through two days of stroke play as one of the top 64 players, Parziale won a match for the first time. Then another. And another. And another. And another.

Finally, in a 36-hole final that didn't go nearly that far, Parziale won going away, beating Josh Nichols 8 and 6.

The firefighter was headed to the Masters .

"I'll bet no other firefighter had played the Masters, have they?" his proud father asked a small group of reporters.

He didn't even wait for the answer.

"Yeah, I'll take that bet," Vic Parziale said.

Matt will have his dad on the bag at Augusta National, just as he handled looping duties during the Mid-Amateur. He's mainly there to keep his son relaxed, to make it seem like another day at the firehouse, just waiting for the next call.

"We talk about the fire department, the house he's building, his dogs," Vic Parziale said. "Anything to change the pace."

There's one important task Vic doesn't do, which is why he suggested that his son hook with a caddie who has some experience navigating Augusta National's treacherous greens.

"I can't read the putts," Vic conceded.

His son found that thoroughly amusing.

"He hasn't read a putt for me in 12 years," Matt deadpanned, "so I don't know why he thought he would start now."

After a bit of a stumble sizing up his caddie gear — Vic didn't know his size, apparently, for a white coverall — father and son are ready to carry on with this improbable journey.

Matt is taking a leave from his firefighting job, giving him a chance to focus on his golf while he plays the Masters and, come June, the U.S. Open at Shinnecock Hills, another perk of winning the Mid-Amateur. He's also planning to get married, so it's a busy time indeed.

But when everything settles down again, he plans to return to a life fighting fires.

And playing some golf, too.

"I enjoy where I am," Parziale said. "I'm very fortunate to be able to do two things that I love doing — playing competitive golf and then having a career that I really do enjoy."

Sounds like a story that might make a good movie someday.

Any thoughts on who should play the lead role?

"Me," Parziale said, breaking into a big smile.

Why not?

That hardly seems more farfetched than the moment he's living now.

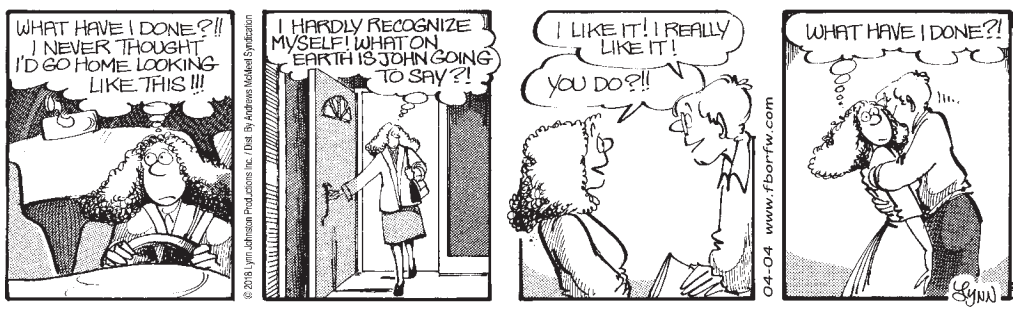
FOR BETTER OR WORSE



DEAR ABBY

Marriage threatened by wife's online relationship with ex

DEAR ABBY: My wife of 20 years has been electronically unfaithful. There have been covert telephone calls and late-night text messages to a boyfriend from long ago. He's divorced and found her on Facebook, telling her he needed "advice on dating."

She admits to the phone calls and messages and nothing more. I believe her. They haven't met -- just these covert exchanges, which are frequent and sometimes lengthy, over the course of several months. The "whys" behind her behavior are not important. We know our marriage is damaged, and we will work on that. She says she knows she was wrong to let it go on as long as it did, and further communication will stop. Should it include unfriending him on Facebook? I'm perplexed by the new paradigm of relationships. -- COVERT EXCHANGES IN THE SOUTH

DEAR COVERT: I disagree that the reasons that led to your wife's behavior aren't important. I hope you two will work out your disconnect with licensed professional help, because it will make the process faster. As to whether she should unfriend her old boyfriend on Facebook, the answer is an unequivocal "yes."

DEAR ABBY: I tutor a 16-year-old boy. His family moved to our city five months ago. They live in a crowded apartment with other relatives. One day, he told me a 20-year-old girl was obsessed with him, and he didn't like her that much. I told him it was unusual and said it was a good thing he had moved.

A month later she showed up, uninvited, to visit him. I think she came here to get pregnant, which she did. Her family now expects him to move back to Oklahoma, quit school and work to support the family. He's a smart kid with the potential to do well in college. His father is dead, the mother is clueless, and I am concerned about this boy. The girl's father and brother are in prison. How can I advise him? -- CARING TUTOR IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR TUTOR: Your student is a minor. The "girl" is an adult. The young man should not move ANYwhere without first insisting that a paternity test be taken to be certain he is the father of the child she's expecting -- if she is, indeed, pregnant. Because of the difference in their ages, she may be guilty of statutory rape, and he may be a victim.

DEAR ABBY: After decades of sucking it up, should I send a letter to the individuals who bullied me incessantly and made my life a living hell in high school? Should I let them know all has not been forgiven or forgotten? -- FORMER VICTIM IN MONTANA

DEAR FORMER VICTIM: No. Why would you want more contact with the cruel and thoughtless individuals who made you miserable? Live your life fully and happily in the present and don't look back. THAT is the best revenge.

HOROSCOPES | THE LAST WORD BY EUGENIA LAST

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your intuition will not let you down. However, your ability to keep the peace will. Avoid an altercation with someone who can affect your reputation or who you work alongside. Finding a solution will make you the hero instead of the villain. ★★★★★

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): When you should be keeping personal matters a secret, someone will attempt to charm you into opening up. Don't offer information regarding your finances, medical history or any passwords that could leave you compromised. Concentrate on health and physical improvements. ★★★

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emotions will surface when dealing with people you are indebted to or vice versa. Trying to sort through the past in order to bring matters up to date will turn out to be more difficult and invasive than anticipated. ★★★

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emotional situations will fester. Look for a reasonable way to deal with people without letting your temper take over. Initiating diplomacy will impress someone who can help you excel. A kind gesture and a firm attitude are your best defenses. ★★★

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Step up. If you take control, you will be able to manipulate whatever situation you face with confidence. Use your intelligence, intuition and skills to help you make good choices regarding the people you let into your inner circle. ★★★★★

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): If you make changes at home, don't expect everyone to like what you do. Emotional deception will filter into conversations when asking for a second opinion. Put yourself in someone else's shoes before you make a decision that will affect others. ★★

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Pay close attention to your relationships. Show concern and empathy for others, and offer unique solutions. Listen attentively, but don't take on responsibilities that will leave you too stretched to do a good job. Offer suggestions, not hands-on help. ★★★★

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Self-realization and being honest about who you are, what you can do and what you want will come to mind. Take a long, hard look at your options and make choices based on what makes the most sense. ★★★

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoiding a situation that needs to be addressed doesn't mean it will go away on its own. Take the initiative to start a conversation that will help solve any issues that are pending or bothering you or someone you love. ★★★

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Consider volunteering for something or joining an organization that is working toward changes you want to see enforced. Your input will be appreciated if you offer suggestions, but when it comes to physical contributions, only promise to do what's feasible. ★★★

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Listen and observe what others are saying or offering, but when it comes down to making a decision or taking part, you are best to be reserved about what you are willing to do or offer in return. ★★★★

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Know what you are up against before you take on a cause or responsibility that can lead to emotional stress. Ask questions and consider who and what are involved before making a commitment. Emotional deception will turn out to be costly. ★★

THE STATE OF WISCONSIN
To each person named above as a defendant:
You are hereby notified that the plaintiff named above has filed a lawsuit or other legal action against you.
Within 40 days after April 4, 2018 you must respond with a written demand for a copy of the complaint. The demand must be sent or delivered to the court, whose address is 402 Main Street, Friendship, WI 53934-8014 and to Gray & Associates, L.L.P., plaintiff's attorney, whose address is 16345 West Glendale Drive, New Berlin, WI 53151-2841. You may have an attorney help or represent you.
If you do not demand a copy of the complaint within 40 days, the court may grant judgment against you for the award of money or other legal action requested in the complaint, and you may lose your right to object to anything that is or may be incorrect in the complaint. A judgment may be enforced as provided by law. A judgment awarding money may become a lien against any real estate you own now or in the future, and may also be enforced by garnishment or seizure of property.

COACHES

coaching experience. Also, coaches who were previously a Power Five assistant had higher efficiency ratings than coaches who were previously a head coach at a Group of Five school.

While far from scientific, the research is interesting and probably useful.

Instead of grading the newly hired head coaches in college football —a truly flawed and impossible exercise— here is another approach: A most-likely-to-succeed list that takes into account program expectations and recent history, along with that coach's potential and fit for the job. Remember that this is a long play; last year's most likely to succeed was Purdue's Jeff Brohm , which looks pretty good right now but is still to be determined.

With that, the most likely to succeed list among the head coaches starting new jobs in 2018:

1. Chip Kelly, UCLA

UCLA is one of the nation's most confounding programs. With all that talent around them, the Bruins are rarely relevant nationally, and haven't played in a Rose Bowl game since 1999. It is fair to question whether Kelly can recreate his Oregon success (46-7), but it's not as if he returns to a Pac-12 with imposing obstacles.

2. Willie Taggart, Florida State

Sky-high expectations and Taggart's .485 winning percentage make for some skepticism about this marriage. But at every place Taggart has worked, the team was bad before he took over and got better during his tenure. The native Floridian has already showed he is capable of recruiting at an elite level.

3. Dan Mullen, Florida

Mullen benefits from taking over a program that has been underwhelming since Urban Meyer and Tim Tebow flirted with repeat national titles. At Mississippi State, Mullen consistently maxed out a program that lags behind the rest of its division competition in tradition, history and resources. Now he moves toward the front of the pecking order in the SEC East.

4. Joe Moorhead, Mississippi State

Moorhead comes to Starkville from Penn State, where he was offensive coordinator for two seasons, but he also has been a head coach at FCS Fordham — a tough place to win where he went 38-13 in four seasons. In the SEC West, Mississippi State fans generally have the most realistic expectations for their favorite team. Mullen raised the standards. Moorhead seems well-situated to continue to meet them.

5. Scott Frost, Nebraska

Few topics fuel the college football content machine like the question: How can Nebraska be fixed? It has been nearly 20 years since the Cornhuskers won a conference title. The Bo Pelini era was the peak of the last 15 years. All that is to say, Frost is taking over a program with adjusted expectations. The job is challenging, but Frost has the highest upside of any coach Nebraska has had since Tom Osborne and what qualifies as success in Lincoln has never been lower.

6. Jimbo Fisher, Texas A&M

Texas A&M last won a national championship in 1939. Aggies fans expect Fisher, who won a title with Florida State, to do the same with A&M. He also has the craziest contract in college football at 10 years, $75 million guaranteed. Unless Fisher goes on a Saban- or Meyer-like run, it's hard to envision this deal ending well, but there should be some good times before the fall.

7. Kevin Sumlin, Arizona

Sumlin had a nice run at Texas A&M and if he can duplicate it at Arizona, which has never played in a Rose Bowl, the folks in Tucson would be content. Here's the question: What's the conversion rate on SEC West success in the Pac-12 South?

8. Mario Cristobal, Oregon

Cristobal did a pretty solid job at FIU in his first turn as a head coach. He then spent four seasons at Saban's career rehabilitation center and launching pad in Tuscaloosa before landing in Eugene as Taggart's offensive coordinator. Cristobal faces the same challenges as Taggart, who bailed for his dream job after just one season. Oregon became one of the rarest things in college football, a pop-up superpower. It remains to be seen if any coach can repeat Kelly's success, but that's what Ducks fans want.

9. Chad Morris, Arkansas

Morris' deep ties to Texas high school football should pay dividends for the Razorbacks, and a return to a more pass-oriented attack should appease those Hogs fans who miss Bobby Petrino. What success looks like at Arkansas is hard to pin down. Would something like Sumlin's record at Texas A&M or Mullen's at Mississippi State do? It should.

10. Jeremy Pruitt, Tennessee

By virtue of not being Greg Schiano, Pruitt has Vols fans fired up about possibly having their own Kirby Smart — a Saban assistant who can implement the process. Or maybe Pruitt will be Will Muschamp? Unlike Nebraska, it does not seem as if expectations have been adjusted in Knoxville. And Alabama is still on Tennessee's schedule every year.

11. Josh Heupel, UCF

Point: There could not be a better time to become head coach at UCF. The roster is loaded and the program has "national championship" momentum. Counterpoint: UCF fans think last year is the new normal. For a first-time head coach, this looks like a boom-or-bust deal.

12. Chad Lunsford, Georgia Southern

Georgia Southern lost its triple-option way for a couple years, and Lunsford, a longtime assistant in Statesboro, is tasked with getting things back to normal. Competing in the FBS could lower the Eagles' ceiling permanently, but just getting the offense right shouldn't be too tough.

13. Sonny Dykes, SMU

Talk about terrible first impressions: Dykes gave coaching SMU's bowl on short notice a try and the Mustangs tanked. Really, though, this looks like a good match if Dykes can just do what he did at Louisiana Tech (22-17 overall and 14-7 in conference).

14. Matt Luke, Mississippi

Luke got the job, in part, because it is going to be a tough one. He will have to deal with the fallout from NCAA sanctions while competing in the toughest division in college football with a program that has traditionally resided in the lower half of the standings. Luke could be successful by simply owning the Egg Bowl rivalry with Mississippi State, which has never been more heated.

15. Steve Campbell, South Alabama

Campbell has had great success outside of FBS as a head coach, but will it translate? South Alabama is still a relatively new FBS program so it's hard to know what the ceiling is. Perhaps Campbell's time in Division II (Delta State) and junior (Mississippi Gulf Coast) prepared him for some of the challenges of a program still in its infancy.

16. Mike Bloomgren, Rice

One of the ideas behind hiring Bloomgren is that Rice, a small private school with high academic standards, could use some version of Stanford's blueprint to be successful in Conference USA. Sure, why not?

17. Billy Napier, Louisiana-Lafayette

Another school hoping to get a taste of what Alabama is cooking by hiring one of Saban's sous chefs.

18. Jonathan Smith, Oregon State

Oregon State is traditionally the most difficult job in the Pac-12. The 39-year-old first-time head coach brings with him the credibility that comes from having been a star player at the place where he will be coaching and six years as an assistant to Chris Petersen. Smith's low position in these rankings is more about how tough it is to win in Corvallis than his potential.

19. Dana Dimel, UTEP

The 55-year-old Dimel did stints as head coach at Wyoming (pretty good) and Houston (not so good), but has been an assistant for the last 15 years. It doesn't look like a big-upside hire, but you can understand why UTEP would go the veteran coach route. The Miners' last run of respectability came under Mike Price and there is hope that Dimel can keep UTEP out of the Conference USA basement.

20. Herm Edwards, Arizona State

Arizona State's grand experiment with a 63-year-old former NFL head coach who has been out of the business for 10 years is impossible to forecast. Much of the fan base is skeptical, but maybe the lowered expectations work in Edwards' favor.

but it's nice we actually have a chance to recruit, and girls want to come here which is great," FGC coach Richie Tang. "I think it makes us a bit more competitive. And I'm excited, we're going to be a lot more competitive than we were last year. Our kids did a great job last year, but we're going move up a little bit. That's what we wanted to do, move that needle in the right direction. "

FGC enters the newly-formed Sun-Lakes Conference this fall. Last year the Lady Timberwolves were ineligible for postseason play, but now will be able to take the floor as a member of Division II (Region 8) in hopes of a national junior college title.

"That's exciting, we have somebody to go against," Tang said. "We have real standings to look at and you get to see where you are among other D-II teams. We're the only D-II conference in Florida so it'll be neat to see where we fit. I think that's a really exciting part, we have an opportunity to see how well we've recruited and see how well we've coached. I think that's the cool part."

FGC will join the conference which includes St. Johns River State College, Lake Sumter State College, Pasco-Hernando State College, South Florida State College and Gulf Coast State College. The Lady Timberwolves have their work cut out for them though, striving to win the conference and earn a national tournament bid.

The squad must make up some ground after losing key setters Hanna Baker and Tristyn Southerland to graduation. Coach Tang believes the need additions, like Stone and Smith, will help fill the void at that position and others.

"We'll have three setters coming in, which is great," Tang said of added depth. "That's something I wanted to get to, [having] a really good second setter but also another setter that we can put in there in case of injury. I think that's our strongest depth position, three setters that are pretty strong."

With some scholarship money remaining, Tang says he will continue recruiting with club volleyball season underway and says he plans to complete the class soon, adding perhaps one or two players before the summertime.

"We'll wrap up pretty shortly with this class," Tang added. "It's actually pretty exciting to have a class committed early and signed. That's the exciting part for us."

EARLY LOOK: FGC has unveiled its 2018 volleyball schedule. The Lady Timberwolves open the regular season at Johnson University on Aug. 13. and host their conference opener (Lake Sumter) on Sept. 14. FGC is slated for eight tri-matches and 10 conferences games. The region tournament begins on Oct. 24.

SUMMER FUN: FGC volleyball holds its summer camp July 16-19. Campers ages 12-18 are welcomed to sign up. The camp will focus on fundamentals and skill development in passing, attacking, setting in other areas. For more information, contact athletic coordinator Rebecca Golden at (386)754-4271.
