Sand pit discussion causes stir

VIDEO ONLINE

For full video of Sasser's presentation, visit www.chipleypaper.com.

EBRO — Jesse Sasser's presentation on the Lamar Sikes Pit caused a stir when he went over his 15-minute time limit during the Washington County Board of County Commissioners' last rotational meeting in Ebro on July 28, causing Washington County Sheriff Bobby Haddock to call for order.

Sikes mines a 200-acre sand pit just off of State Highway 77 and is able to do so because his property is zoned agriculture/silvaculture and mining is allowed as a special exemption.

The county has turned down numerous proposals from Sikes to expand mining operations by 50 acres to the north of his existing pit.

Residents have fought adamantly against Sikes' mining for many years with complaints of incompatibility with surrounding residential use, such as a high amount of dust caused by the operations, high noise levels and the falling level of Crystal Lake.

Sikes is involved in a lawsuit against the county for denying the expansion of his mining operation. Before the July 28 presentation began, board chairman Joel Pate told the audience no questions would be accepted and no answers given about the sand pit because of the ongoing lawsuit.

Washington County resident Sasser said Sikes' attorney had promised residents a 6-foot berm and the required 22-foot buffer, as well as a 100-foot buffer along Amethyst Road.

"We all know that residents, property owners and concerned citizens showed up in mass to the public hearing on his special exemption request and (were) overjoyed when the county denied his request," Sasser said. "We all know afterwards, Sikes filed a lawsuit against the county for their denial of the special exemption, asserting that an angry mob of citizens had swayed their decision."

Sasser said Sikes is violating environmental regulations, such as the construction and operation of an entrance on State 77 and the mining of a shell-based material.

County millage rate to remain unchanged

By Steve Liner
Managing Editor
sliner@chipleypaper.com

Both Holmes and Washington counties have moved in the last week to establish millage rates. Already taking action were the Holmes County Commission, the Washington County Commission and the Holmes County School Board.

In each case, millage represents a direct continuation of the tax rate charged to property owners for the current fiscal year.

Holmes and Washington county governments are continuing at the same millage rate, though county commissioners in each county have warned that this action means county budgets will be leaner and could even lead to reductions in county personnel.

"I got to tell you, we're down to bologna at the County Jail," Washington County Sheriff Bobby Haddock told commissioners as they set that county's rate. "I don't want to tax people more either, but just know I have the responsibility to provide for the public safety, so there is little or nothing I can cut."

In Washington County, commissioners said the continued millage could mean more than $1 million in budget reductions in the

Kiwanis Club hears from Hearts of Promise

Special to the News

The Chipley Kiwanis Club met for its weekly luncheon at Pattillo's Restaurant at the Washington - Holmes County Technical Center. Lunch was provided by the staff of the Washington-Homes County Technical Center. The guest speaker was Carolyn Saunders, speaking about Hearts of Promise.

Kiwanis President David Corbin reminded the members that the District Kiwanis Club Annual Meeting will be Aug. 25-28 at Marco Island. Any member interested in attending needs to contact Laura Joiner.

The next fundraising project will be the Kiwanis Dinner Theatre, to be held Sept. 15 at the Washington County Agricultural Center in Chipley. This year, the event will feature local performers in a talent show format. Tickets are $25 per person or $45 per couple and are available from any Kiwanis member.

Kiwanis Member Wayne Saunders opened the meeting presentation with the statement: "We go through life for granted; we need to count our blessings!" He introduced his wife, Carolyn, who has been actively involved with the Hearts of Promise program.

Carolyn Saunders said they have been blessed in their life with a family and grandchildren. When their granddaughter Holly was born, daughter of Candy and Tracy, she had a severe heart defect. She is 9 years old now, and her life was only made possible by God's divine providence, prayer, remarkable medical staff and the support of family, friends and assistance through Hearts of Promise.

Holly underwent several operations locally and at Children's Hospital in Boston. Holly's doctor, at the Children's Hospital in Boston, Dr. John Mayer, conducts heart research at Children's Hospital, which will directly affect the lives of thousands of children born with congenital heart defects. His research involves growing a heart valve from a child's own tissue.

Mayer established Hearts of Promise in 2003 to raise funds for this research, which has the potential of eliminating the need for multiple surgeries. This research also will benefit adults in need of heart bypass surgery.

The Saunders are locally sponsoring fundraisers for Hearts of Promise. It is a non-profit organization, and 100 percent of all donations and proceeds go to the program. For further information, contact Wayne and Carolyn Saunders, 847 Candy Lane, Chipley, FL. 32428, 638-4640, wesaunders@bellsouth.net, or visit www.heartsopromise.org.

The Kiwanis club meets at noon Tuesdays at Patillo's restaurant in the middle of the WHTC campus. For an invitation, contact any Kiwanian or David Solger, membership chairperson, at 638-1276.

For more information about the Kiwanis Club of Chipley, visit www.ChipleyKiwanis.com.

Coast Guard seizes cocaine off Honduras

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Roughly 7.5 tons of cocaine seized from a submarine-like craft off the Caribbean coast of Honduras is being unloaded in South Florida.

Crew members aboard a U.S. Coast Guard cutter will unload the drugs Tuesday at the Coast Guard's Miami Beach base.

Officials say the cocaine is worth about $180 million.

Coast Guard and U.S. Customs and Border Protection crews located the semi-submersible vessel July 13 near Honduras' border with Nicaragua.

The sub sank during the interdiction. An FBI dive team recovered the drugs on board after the Coast Guard found the sunken vessel last week.

Five crew members aboard the sub were taken into custody before it sank.

Semi-submersible crafts are regularly used to smuggle drugs along Central America's Pacific Coast.

U.S. law enforcement official confiscated these drugs off Honduras.

depth of his excavation is getting perilously close to the limerock formations that make up the Floridan Aquifer," Sasser said. "An excerpt from a letter NWFWM (Northwest Florida Water Management District) wrote to Sikes notifying him that he is digging in the Intermediate Confining Aquifer. They are telling him he's no longer mining 'sand.' They go on to tell him that it's not their job, but he should be careful with petroleum products used within the pit because a spill could affect the Floridan Aquifer."

Sasser had several presentations of aerial views of the property and various studies he conducted into the matter.

"We all knew the wheels of justice move slow and that we were going to have to wait until the new judge settled in," Sasser said. Sikes' lawsuit originally was brought before Circuit Judge Allen Register but was put on hold when Register transferred to Bay County. The case is now being handled by Judge Chris Patterson.

"For those of you present tonight, that's the case that the commissioners have been telling us all this time that they can't talk about. Commissioners, that was a year ago that you reached impasse. What is so secretive about the negotiations that have caused you to act covertly for the last 12 months? Are you afraid that the public is going to find out your individual positions on the issue? You don't need to worry about that. We already know and will be working just as hard against you in the next elections as we have on this sand pit issue."

Other business

Director of the Northwest Florida Community Hospital Pat Schlenker announced plans to build two more facilities on the hospital's property to replace the two portable structures, one being a Health and Wellness facility and the other the DeVita Dialysis Center.

Schlenker said both buildings would bring in 15 new physicians at no risk to the county.

"Washington County has a health care shortage," Schlenker said. "We don't have enough health care responders to support a population of this area."

Schlenker assured the county that there would be no requests for financial help of any shape or form.

"We found that under our lease agreement, we can build new facilities on the county property, as long as costs do not exceed $2 million, without permission from the county," Schlenker said. "So this is just a presentation for your information, and that is all."

The county approved of their agreement concerning a property acquisition by the Florida Department of Transportation to acquire a right-of-way or other real property to replace the bridge on River Road over Gum Creek Roadway and the bridge on Duncan Community Road over Flat Creek Roadway, with a vote of 3 to 1, with Commissioner Charles Brock voting "no."

"I just don't like it," Brock said. "I think it's ridiculous to spend $2 million for a 30-foot wooden bridge."

The county approved of the Consent Agenda that included the request for the Clerk of Court to pay vouchers for June 2011 in the amount of $1,780,074.14; Washington County's SHIP "Local Housing Assistance Plan" (LHAP) for the purpose of meeting the housing needs of the very low, low and moderate income households, to expand production of and preserve affordable housing; and Washington County Public Library State Aid for Libraries Grant Agreement allowing the Washington County Public Library to make an application and certify eligibility for the State Aid to the Libraries Grant Program.

The county approved of moving the next meeting from Aug. 25 to Aug. 24 because of a conflict of schedules.

The county approved to recess the meeting until 9 a.m. Aug. 5 at the Washington County Annex.

See video of the commission meeting online at www.chipleypaper.com.

Tech center offers EMT class

From Staff Reports

The Public Safety Division of the Washington Holmes Technical Center will offer an emergency medical technician (EMT) basic certification course in August. The EMT course covers both basic health care worker and EMT basic training, and the student is eligible to become a certified EMT upon program completion. The training program consists of classroom learning and field clinicals, working at local emergency rooms and ambulance services. The course meets Monday and Tuesday nights from 5-10 p.m., is 250 hours in length and takes about four months to complete.

For more information, visit the technical center or call Greg Hutching, Brandon Stevenson or Brandi Curry at 638-1180, ext. 361.

Orientation will be at 5 p.m. Aug. 15, and registration deadline is Aug. 19.

Class begins Aug. 22.

At its meeting Monday, the Holmes County School Board passed a millage rate only fractionally over the state's required local effort. The total millage will be 6.226, 5.478 of which is required by state funding formula.

The Holmes County rate is set at 9.665 while the Washington County rate was established at 8.9195.

The counties will set a round of public hearings on their budgets following a series of workshops to hammer out details.

Millage is the base rate on which property taxes are based and represent taxes of $1 per $1,000 in property value, according to Washington County Property Appraiser Gil Carter.

Emergency Management conducts mass casualty exercise

Staff report

The year 2011 has proven to be quite a year for emergencies and disasters. More than 1,100 tornadoes have touched down across the United States, with Joplin, Mo., experiencing the deadliest twister in the United States since 1947.

Torrential downpours in the Midwest have resulted in devastating floods and more than 25,000 wildfires have scorched over 2 1/2 million acres of U.S. soil.

An attempted assassination in Tucson, Arizona left six people dead and many wounded including Congressional Representative Gabrielle Giffords.

Transportation accidents, including school buses, have been numerous, resulting in many injuries and several fatalities. And...we are only halfway through the year.

These disasters reveal a need for emergency response agencies to have plans already in place for handling a wide variety of emergencies and disasters.

"We cannot predict when emergency situations or disasters will happen but we can prepare for our response to them when they occur," says Lynne Abel, Emergency Management Coordinator for Washington County.

Towards that end, Washington County Emergency Management is sponsoring a field exercise on Tuesday, August 9th. Designated as the "Charles Bode MCI Exercise", it will take place at Vernon High School, and will feature a simulated school bus accident resulting in multiple patients receiving care on the scene. Patient transportation will be simulated to allow ambulances, rescue squads, and helicopters to work in a coordinated effort. Concurrently, simulated patients will also present at Northwest Florida Community Hospital where personnel will exercise their plans for a mass casualty incident.

Multiple agencies will be participating in the exercise including

Washington County Emergency Management, Washington County EMS, Washington County Sheriff's Office, Washington County School District, Washington County 911 Center, Vernon High School, Vernon Fire Department, Northwest Florida Community Hospital, American Red Cross, and AIR-Heart air ambulance service.

A mass casualty exercise provides for a wide range of skills to be tested. While all of the participants are evaluated on their response capabilities, each agency is assessed on their specific area of expertise, such as the transportation of patients, scene security, and hospital treatment. Effective communication and coordination between the emergency response agencies is always a crucial part of any incident and will be a main focus during the event.

"Our entire community would be impacted by an accident such as this," says Roger Hagan, Public Safety Director for Washington County, "and when we're coordinating efforts on an emergency like this, it helps tremendously that we know each agency's capabilities as well as knowing each other on a first name basis. I'm confident in the abilities of our various response agencies and this exercise will only enhance those abilities through valuable training. It's a great learning opportunity."

The goal of the exercise is to evaluate current methods and practices in response to a mass casualty incident and find areas for improvement. An evaluation team from Disasters, Strategies, and Ideas Group (DSI), the organization designing and running the exercise, will assess the response with the goal of developing an "after action report and improvement plan" to be used by the participants in enhancing their response capabilities. Abel and Hagan explained that the purpose of bringing in an evaluation team is to find strengths and weaknesses and use these findings as a learning tool for improvement.

Terry Schenk, the Exercise Coordinator for DSI, praised Washington County for being proactive on this front. "Washington County is planning now for the future instead of being blindsided by an event to which they are not ready to respond," Schenk said, "When everyone is working together as a cohesive team, it lays the groundwork to being better prepared for future emergencies. That commitment to teamwork translates into lives being saved."

The exercise will begin at 9am and will run for approximately three hours.

Further information about the exercise is available by contacting Roger Hagan, Washington County Public Safety Director or Lynne Abel, Washington County Emergency Management Coordinator at 850-638-6302.

Medicine costs to plummet

(AP)—The cost of prescription medicines used by millions of people every day is about to plummet.

The next 14 months will bring generic versions of seven of the world's 20 best-selling drugs, including the top two: Cholesterol fighter Lipitor and blood thinner Plavix.

The magnitude of this wave of expiring drugs patents is unprecedented. Between now and 2016, blockbuster drugs with about $255 billion in global annual sales will go off patent, notes EvaluatePharma Ltd., a London research firm. Generic competition will decimate sales of the brand-name drugs and slash the cost to patients and companies that provide health benefits.

Top drugs getting generic competition by September 2012 are taken by millions every day: Lipitor alone is taken by about 4.3 million Americans and Plavix by 1.4 million. Generic versions of big-selling drugs for blood pressure, asthma, diabetes, depression, high triglycerides, HIV and bipolar disorder also are coming by then.

The flood of generics will continue for the next decade or so, as about 120 brand-name prescription drugs lose market exclusivity, according to prescription benefits manager Medco Health Solutions Inc.

"My estimation is at least 15 percent of the population is currently using one of the drugs whose patents will expire in 2011 or 2012," says Joel Owerbach, chief pharmacy officer for Excellus Blue Cross Blue Shield, which serves most of upstate New York.

Those patients, along with businesses and taxpayers who help pay for prescription drugs through corporate and government prescription plans, collectively will save a fortune. That's because generic drugs typically cost 20 percent to 80 percent less than the brand names.

Doctors hope the lower prices will significantly reduce the number of people jeopardizing their health because they can't afford medicines they need.

Hotter temperatures on the way

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — The state meteorologist is warning Florida residents and visitors that hotter temperatures may be on the way.

Meteorologist Amy Godsey said Monday that afternoon temperatures could soar well above normal with heat indices reaching as high as 115 degrees.

The highest temperatures and heat index values are currently forecasted across most of North Florida between Jacksonville and Pensacola.

When the heat index reaches more than 105 degrees, conditions become dangerous for the general population.

The National Weather Service will issue heat advisories and warnings when the combination of heat and humidity causes the heat index to reach extreme levels.

A heat advisory is in effect for Franklin, Liberty, Gulf, Calhoun, Jackson, Bay, Washington, Holmes and Walton counties in the Florida Panhandle through the week.

More counties could be added later in the week.

How Well You Feel

Results of study show effect of hearing loss on anxiety, depression, self-esteem and well-being.

New research connects hearing loss with the development of mood disorders and declines in key aspects of mental function, including interaction with surroundings, relationships, activities and feelings of self-worth. Hearing impairment can lead to depression, anxiety, social isolation and many other problems.

The good news is: there is help.

95% of all hearing loss cases can be successfully treated. Beltone has been a leader in innovative hearing care for over 70 years. We recommend a FREE Hearing Evaluation by a Beltone licensed hearing care professional.

Test Yourself Today

This simple quiz will help determine if you show signs of hearing loss.

1. Do people you talk to seem to mumble (or not speak clearly)?
2. Do you have a problem hearing on the telephone?
3. Do people complain that you turn the TV volume up too high?
4. Have you ever experienced ringing in your ears?
5. Are conversations in restaurants or crowded places difficult?

If you answered yes to two or more of these questions, you may have a hearing loss.

Send some of our resolve to Washington!

Last week was a stellar, if painful, one for county government in this area. Both Holmes and Washington County commissions quietly, calmly and with sadness did something the Speaker of the U.S. House, Majority Leader of the U.S. Senate and President of the United States cannot seem to do: come to terms with money.

It didn't take much discussion, and it didn't make big news

STEVE LINER
Managing Editor

— even in this paper. But the county commissions took the first step toward creating difficult budgets by setting the millage rates (the basis point for county taxes).

Both counties determined they would continue the same rate. In effect, though, this will become rather significant cuts when the counties set budgets because, in the current economy, property values are slipping. Washington County Commission Chair Joel Pate said at the commission's meeting last Thursday that this would set up a year-to-year reduction of more than $1 million for his county. Though probably a bit smaller, the same thing will happen in Holmes County.

In both cases there was no fanfare, no huge discussion, no accusations, no recriminations — just reality and civility.

And, of course, there was courage, the reason I am writing about the topic this week. These men are our neighbors.

They are businessmen and people who have cared enough about their counties to offer themselves for public service. There is little glory in what they do week in and week out to manage local affairs.

But these men have been able to do what Washington cannot seem to do: take care of what's most important to be done in a timely and seemly way.

Do we agree with their decisions all the time? Certainly not! You should have been with me last week in Ebro when Sheriff Bobby Haddock felt he had to speak to ensure order at the commission meeting (over the sand pit issue you see covered on the front page).

Do they always do the smartest thing or take the wisest action? Probably not.

But the reality is last week they quietly, civilly and courageously started the budget process by making the best decision: live within our means.

Thank you, gentlemen, for having the resolve they lack in the nation's capital!

Historic vote brings Giffords to Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — The total number of votes on the historic debt-limit bill was 430. One vote was more memorable than any of the others.

Seven months after she was shot in the head, Rep. Gabrielle Giffords returned to the House on Monday to cast her vote. Thunderous applause and emotional hugs from her Republican and Democratic colleagues greeted her.

Giffords' entrance, with just minutes remaining in the vote, surprised lawmakers and added even more drama to a high-stakes day. The Arizona Democrat responded to the attention with a smile, and she mouthed "thank you" several times.

Giffords used one hand to greet some, the other by her side. Her hair was dark and closely cropped, and she wore glasses. Her image was quite different from the one Americans saw seven months ago when she was sworn in for a third term by House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio.

"It was one of the most thrilling moments for all of us to see this real heroine return to the House," said Democratic leader Nancy Pelosi, "and to do so at such a dramatic time."

Giffords cast her vote for the bill, which passed 269-161.

"I strongly believe that crossing the aisle for the good of the American people is more important than party politics. I had to be here for this vote. I could not take the chance that my absence could crash our economy," she said.

What is guano, anyway?

A few days ago, while waiting in the doctor's office for my B-12 injection, a conversation was enjoyed with a lady who told me she was Wanda Carter, of the Wausau Carters, and that her dad was Neal Carter, brother to Roy, father of friendly, former banker Roy Lee Carter.

PERRY'S PRATTLE
Perry Wells

The appreciation of the recent rain brought on the topic of gardening when I told Wanda that I had just put guano to my young okra plants just in time for them to benefit from the rain that was then coming down. She seized on the word "guano," saying she had recently used the term and her listener did not know what she was talking about.

My father's term for fertilizing crops was always expressed with "putting out guanner." Without going into full details of the many ill fated ventures and experiences my dad constantly found himself involved in, I did relate one to the lady in Mark Garney's office.

My readers will possibly remember the "prattler" writing previously of the varied undertakings our dad engaged in as he attempted to provide for the large family. Most of them fell on hard times or had a bad ending. One of these included growing cucumbers for a market that was established in Bonifay. Most of his were rejected as being too large for the intended use. He also tried scrounging scrap, abandoned automobile bodies from the briars and bramble of swamps and woodlands, which he ended up dumping in a scrap yard in Dothan, Ala., with no remuneration as the demand for such items had totally "bottomed out" days earlier.

Another effort to supplement the farm income came when Hugh Wells, the enterprising aspiring young man with an overload of responsibility, tried his hand at selling commercial guano to neighboring farmers, distributed by R.H. Cartledge Fertilizer Company of Cottondale. Mr. Cartledge was an uncle to Ann Cartledge Christmas, wife of Dr. Bruce Christmas. This venture went sour when daddy let his credit sales on the fertilizer get out of hand.

Those of my age with a farm background will probably recall Cartledge Fertilize, especially the colorful sacks containing the fertilizer. I vividly recall the red lettering identifying the manufacturer and the chemical content (3-8-5, or other designations). The slogan at the bottom of each bag pictured a fish in red, with the caption in red letters, "The Fish is in the Bag."

Now, let's rewind back to the story that came to mind in the doctor's office that was related to Wanda Carter, concerning another Hugh Wells sad experience.

In his weekly peddling trips to Panama City, he picked up a half-barrel of fresh mullet each Friday for a Saturday peddling route in Caryville. One late Friday afternoon, the entrepreneur proudly came driving in with his usual mullet supply; however, the bed of the pickup truck was completely filled with red snapper fish, which was already in a high state of decay. He explained that the boat bringing in the "catch" broke down at sea, with the ice protecting the fish soon melting, and the whole cargo began to spoil.

Obviously, my father remembered his fourth grade history and recalled reading that the Native Americans, as well as our pilgrim fathers, used fish to fertilize their corn crops. He immediately accepted the free offer of the rotting fish, which the owner was eager to get rid of.

He had rows already plowed for planting corn and had just enough daylight left to proceed with getting his prized "fertilizer" into the furrows with a minimum of dirt covering the smelly fish. The following morning when he planned to proceed with corn planting, he found the entire field looking like a black cloud as every crow and buzzard from miles around hovered overhead awaiting their "fill" of fish. The racoons, possums, rabbits and other varmints came out from Cook's Mill pond to enjoy a fill of the treat which had been delivered to them. The proposed corn planting was delayed a few days, but our brother, Jim, recalls the plot did produce a good yield that year. Disappointed dad took his "licks" and soon recovered from his hard luck.

My brother Max, who operated the FRM farm store in Chipley for 28 years, sold guano. He had 3-8-5 and moved up to 8-8-8, 4-10-7 and later to 5-10-15. The numbers represent content of nitrogen-phosphate-potash. He remembers brand names of I. N. C., which he purchased through Chipley agent, Bosie Grimes, and hauled from the plant in Hartford. He also sold Red Fox, distributed in Dothan, which required out-of-town merchants to haul their purchases. Max and wife, Joyce, recall Fish Emulsion, a popular organic plant food, which had a strong unpleasant odor and had to be kept out of reach of invading wild animals.

Max reports that when customer H.L. Patterson came for purchases, he would always say "now give me some of that go yonder."

In my early years, guano came to the farmer in 200-pound sacks. They were unloaded throughout the plot to be planted with a younger person, such as your writer, serving as "guano boy." That job required keeping the mule-drawn guano distributor filled with the product as it was fast spread ahead of the planting operation. Those bags, after thorough washing and bleaching, became excellent fabric for making men's work shirts, often with the lettering of the fertilizer markings still shining on the finished wearing apparel.

E.W. Carswell's Book "Washington, Florida's Twelfth County" (still for sale in the Chipley museum) reports "Chipley's A. D. Campbell Fertilizer Factory was a busy place in 1911." He continues, "About 700 tons on the new well-known fertilizers had been made and delivered prior to April 1."

The Public Safety Division of the Washington Holmes Technical Center will be offering open enrollment for the fall semester in the following programs:

Law enforcement officer: The LEO course is offered both full and part-time. The full-time class meets from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and the part-time class meets from either 8 a.m. to noon or 5:30-9:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday. The part-time morning and evening classes offer the same training each day so students can chose to come either day or night and not miss any classes. The course is 457 hours long.

Crossover from corrections to law enforcement: We now offer both a full-time and part-time crossover to law enforcement class. The full-time class meets from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and the part-time class meets from either 8 a.m. to noon or 5:30-9:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday. The part-time morning and evening classes offer the same training each day so students can chose to come either day or night and not miss any classes. The course is 457 hours long.

Corrections officer: The corrections officer course is offered both day and night Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and 5:30-9:30 p.m. The course is 552 hours in length, and there is financial aid available.

Dual certification: Those interested in obtaining dual certification in both corrections and law enforcement can enroll and receive financial assistance through the Federal Pell Grant program for both corrections and law enforcement officer training (if eligible contact us for more details).

High School CJ operations/corrections: High school seniors can chose to enroll in the CJ Operations program and can take training for two periods a day during their senior year. Students can choose to take the "certified officer" course, and they will receive not only high school credit but will become eligible to become a certified corrections officer. Students that enroll in the certified officer course are not required to pay for tuition or supply fees while in high school and will only have to pay for a physical, background check, CJBAT exam and the firearms course that is taken the summer after graduation. Students who enroll in the CJ operations non-certified course are not required to pay anything or attend after high school graduation.

Orientation/registration for all programs will be at 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Aug. 15. Registration deadline is Aug. 19, and classes begin Aug. 22.

Generation Brady Bunch caught in the middle

By Jill Pertler
Special to the Times-Advertiser

I grew up watching Greg, Marsha, Peter, Jan, Bobby and Cindy. Like the rest of the Brady Bunch generation, I now find I myself at an awkward age: too old to be young and too young to be old. I guess you could say I'm stuck somewhere in the middle. The middle of what I'm not sure. It can't be middle age. Can it?

Jan Brady would be the first to tell us that the middle is not the most desirable place to be. She was sandwiched between ever-popular Marsha and cute-as-a-bug Cindy, leaving her in the awkward role of middle sister. Poor Jan.

I don't have to worry about being flanked by Marsha and Cindy. My concerns are much more expansive: I am surrounded by air. It's air that's getting heavier all the time as the gravity of gravity kicks in and my body responds accordingly. Sagging and slumping are doing their best to sneak into my everyday persona. The threats of the upper arm jiggles become more real with each passing year.

I'm hearing creaks and groans — and they're not coming from the furniture. When I bend over, someone in the room lets out a sigh. If I didn't know better, I'd swear the noise was coming from my mouth, but that can't be possible.

Even my skin is stuck in the middle. Around my eyes, I see the start of drooping and bagging worthy of a moisturizer, while other spots on my face show themselves in dire need of an acne solution. I've heard of combination skin, but I don't think this is what the creators of the term meant.

Sometimes growing older feels as awkward as when Peter Brady's voice changed on national TV or when Marsha had that thing with her nose. Perhaps it's even as uncomfortable as Greg dating his mother (Florence Henderson) in real life — which they did, but only once. Thank goodness. Some awkward moments need no repeating.

Like the rest of us Brady-watchers, I've seen the world (and my waistline) evolve during my lifetime. I've witnessed new inventions like microwave ovens and curling irons. I used to think Twinkies and Wonder Bread were a food group. I remember when telephones were tethered to the wall and when you wanted to change the TV channel from The Partridge Family to Wonder Woman you had to get up off your chair to do so. The idea of a remote was, well, remote.

As was the idea of growing older. It still doesn't come easy — at least not for me. I'd rather be thirty-something than an F-word. After you leave your thirties, you stare down the throat of being an F-word for a long time — at least a couple of decades — if you're lucky.

Because awkward or not, there's definitely one thing worse than being in this particular stage of life: the alternative. These are wise words straight from my dad. He's a smart guy who manages to make 80 look young. He gives good advice.

It's advice I should probably heed. I guess I'll pour some more water into my half-full glass and recognize the benefits of being in the middle. For instance, there's experience, insight and knowledge of awkward mistakes I don't want to repeat. And then, there's the obvious choice: Twinkies. Everyone knows the creamy middle is the best part. I think even Jan Brady would have to agree with me there.

Sinkhole insurance coverage stirs controversy

By Randal Yakey
Florida Freedom Newspapers

PANAMA CITY — There might be a sinkhole debate coming to an auditorium near you.

After Florida's largest property insurance company, Citizens Property Insurance Group, proposed an average increase of nearly 430 percent, state Sen. Mike Fasano, R-New Port Richey, called the rate hike a "kick in the gut" to citizens and called for statewide hearings.

Fasano wrote a letter to Insurance Commissioner Kevin McCarty of the Office of Insurance Regulation (OIR) requesting statewide customer hearings be held before Citizens' recent application for increased sinkhole premiums are approved.

On July 25, Citizens released its list of proposed rate hikes for its customers who carry sinkhole coverage. The average increase amounts to 443 percent statewide, but some counties will see increases of between 1,500 and 2,000 percent.

"In light of these almost incomprehensible rate increases, I respectfully expect that all Floridians be given the chance to have their voices heard on this issue before the Office of Insurance Regulation rules on the application," Fasano wrote to McCarty. "Hearings held throughout the state, especially in those areas which will receive the highest rate increases, must be held before the application is given consideration."

Now that Citizens has made its intentions known, Fasano believes private insurers will not be far behind. "If private insurers follow Citizens' lead, then Floridians will have few affordable options left if they need or want sinkhole coverage," Fasano said. "It is my hope that Commissioner McCarty allows hearings to be scheduled so that those impacted will have the opportunity to say, in their own words, just how devastating these proposed premium hikes will be."

The OIR has identified increased sinkhole claims as one of the factors driving up the cost of homeowners insurance rates. Insurance industry officials said there has been a substantial increase in the frequency of claims, and that these claims are being filed outside the traditional sinkhole alley in Hernando and Pasco counties.

A 2010 study showed that 11 counties in the central and southern part of Florida accounted for about 90 percent of all sinkhole claims, but, although they are rare in the Panhandle, sinkholes do occasionally occur here.

A woman who drowned in Washington County's Crystal Lake in 2004 might have slipped into a sinkhole, according to a News Herald report from the time. In 2002, a 4-foot-deep sinkhole opened in a westbound lane of U.S. 98 between Panama City Beach and Destin, closing the highway to traffic for hours.

A court case in 1992 centered on a Marianna couple's quest to convince their insurance company that their house was perched on a sinkhole. A jury agreed, awarding the couple $50,000 to make repairs. According to a News Herald report at the time, they weren't the first Marianna residents to complain about sinkholes.

"We get them every so often," John Mader, Jackson County's emergency management director, told The News Herald in 1992. "It (damage) is usually very small. It doesn't even get reported in a lot of cases. The road department will occasionally patch a hole in the road that was caused by a minor sinkhole."

CANOE TRIP BENEFITS HOSPICE

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

Mrs. Sheila Hayes presents Covenant Hospice with a donation from the third annual Canoe for Cancer Benefit. The June 4 canoe trip was another success this year. "We had 50 participants donate and canoe for the fight against cancer," Hayes said. She made the decision to keep the proceeds local, giving half to a local family fighting cancer and the other to Covenant Hospice. "Covenant Hospice is honored to be one of the recipients of the proceeds," said Jennifer Griffin, development manager with Covenant.

Hooked on Outdoors

If you got up early enough on weekends a few years back, you will surely remember a television show on Fox 28 called "Bottom Time." It featured Capt. Laney T. Rinehart and his sidekick.

Capt. Laney and his guest host would spin some pretty tall yarns that people who never had dived would have a hard time believing. They also would show some fine underwater footage shot on actual film, instead of video as is done today.

Scott Lindsey
Outdoor Writer
captainslindsey@knology.net

I had heard of Capt. Laney for some time before we met. After seeing him on Fox, I made it an emphasis to meet this man I had heard so much about for years. Capt. Laney and I had a lot in common, and we became friends almost immediately.

Capt. Laney gave me a copy of his diving book, "The Captain's Guide to Wrecks and Reefs," which I will cherish forever. If you are new to diving or fishing, I would recommend picking up this book, because I guarantee it will come in handy. It is loaded with diving and fishing spots that aren't readily available elsewhere.

I hadn't seen Capt. Laney very much of late, but when I did, we talked diving. He even invited me to go along on a treasure hunt for gold here in Bay County. I suppose that gold never will be found, and we won't be able to make that trip because Capt. Laney died recently in a local hospital.

Laney Rinehart was one of those people I wished I had met years ago. The next time you go by Captain Anderson's Restaurant, take a good look at the giant ship propeller at the entrance. Capt. Laney is responsible for it being there. There is a great story that goes along with that propeller, and you can read about it in his "Wrecks and Reefs."

If you ever met Capt. Laney, you would probably agree with me that he was an interesting man. I will miss him, and I'm sure many others will, too. On the last page of his book he ended it this way:

OH, GOD.

Grant us a safe journey and let us enjoy each and others company.

Shorten the nights and lengthen the days of our lives.

Please give us dominion over all living things,

Calm the seas and allow our vessel to be afloat every morning.

Our vessel is so small and thy sea is so great.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Shipwreck trail might lure divers into the water

By Felicia Kitzmiller
News Herald Writer
522-5114 | fkitzmiller@pcnh.com

PANAMA CITY — Millions have enjoyed the sugar sand beaches and clear waters of the Emerald Coast, but far fewer have seen the attractions that wait off the coast, below the surface of the inviting waters.

The Panhandle is the No. 2 most popular drive-to recreational diving location in the country, only behind the Florida Keys, dive instructor and enthusiast Danny Grizzard said.

In the months following the Deepwater Horizon oil spill disaster that devastated the economy of the Florida Panhandle, Roger Smith, an archeologist with the Florida Department of State's Division of Historical Resources, said he found himself contemplating ways to help boost tourism in the struggling region. Smith decided to hone in on the region's already successful diving industry.

After contacting friends in the region, an idea has begun to take shape for an interactive map and trail of Panhandle shipwrecks that will hopefully pique the public's interest and bring people back to the Panhandle.

The trail likely will consist of about a dozen shipwrecks spread from Mexico Beach to Pensacola. Smith and his team are meeting with people in the dive community to take suggestions for sites and put together a list. Some of Panama City's attractions in consideration for the trail include the SS Tarpon, a steamer used in the Spanish American War to bring troops and supplies to Cuba; the Black Bart, the Grey Ghost, and the Red Sea, all tugboats; and the Chippewa, a coastal freighter.

"The history of each one of these sites is very interesting," Smith said.

The trail will be designed to accommodate divers with different levels of experience and will have ships at varying depths, Grizzard said.

The trail will be branded as a cohesive unit, and "passports," similar to those produced by the National Parks Service, will be produced to encourage people to visit each of the dive sites and check them off on their passport. Brochures and an interactive website map that can be linked to by dive shops and tourism websites hopefully will spread the word about the trail and what it has to offer, Smith said.

"When people think about coming to the Panhandle, they can see that there's a shipwreck trail, and hopefully it'll keep them there a day or two longer," he said.

So far, the response to the project has been very positive and energetic, Smith said. He wants the project to be community-based and is looking for people now who or are interested in shooting underwater video and photos of the wrecks for the project. Such contributions will enhance the quality of the marketing of the trail and will speed the project along. Smith said he wants to have the trail and its supporting materials completed by spring 2012.

People interested in helping with the project can contact Smith by email at rsmith@dos.state.fl.us or Grizzard at dgrizzard@aol.com.

AMIkids play basketball at Ponce de Leon

Special to the News

AMIkids West Florida hosted a basketball game with AMIkids Emerald Coast last week at the old gym in Ponce de Leon. The event was the start of what is being projected as an ongoing attraction everyone is invited to enjoy.

AMIkids is a nonprofit organization that offers experiential challenges to troubled teens. This phase of the program is only one of the challenges available that gives a youth the opportunity to be part of a program that could ultimately change his or her life.

AMIkids West Florida focuses on the advancement of every youth, incorporating secondary education, mental health groups and behavior modification. Youth are also engaged in activities such as SCUBA diving, high and low ropes challenge courses, canoeing, swimming, mountain climbing, white water rafting, various educational fieldtrips and community service projects. Other teams include the Reptile Wranglers and Dog Team.

According to AMIkids West Florida coach Drew Galloway, the addition of a basketball program has spurred an interest among the students to excel, academically and individually, in order to be eligible to participate. Galloway holds his team to the fundamental aspects of the game and said he believes that will provide the youth with the tools to work with so that individual improvement will come throughout their lives.

"The only quality I'm looking for is the desire to play basketball," Galloway said. "From there, the sky's the limit."

"We would like to thank Ricky Byrd, Ponce de Leon city manager, for giving us access to the old gym, which in turn affords us the opportunity to work with these guys and establish some structure that they can use later in life," Galloway said. "We would also like to express our deepest appreciation to the Holmes County School System for their continued support and donations of outdated uniforms and equipment."

Any individual or group interested in donating their time or funds to a worthwhile program for troubled teens is encouraged to contact Ron Boyce, executive director of AMIkids West Florida, at 813-887-3300. Find more information at 548-5524 or the AMIkids Corporate Office in Tampa at 813-887-3300. Find more information at www.amikids.org.

Roman Quinn gets a look-over by the Phillies

By Tim Croft

Florida Freedom Newspapers

The Philadelphia Phillies provided something of a recruiting trip last week for Port St. Joe's Roman Quinn.

Quinn, the Phillies' second-round pick in June's Major League Baseball amateur draft, spent three days in Philadelphia courtesy of the team.

He is the highest-drafted player ever to come out of Gulf County. Brian Jenkins from Port St. Joe and Brandon Jones of Wewahitchka were fifth- and sixth-round picks, respectively.

"It still hasn't really sunk in yet, not really," said Quinn, projected to become a shortstop.

Quinn said during his trip to Philadelphia he got to meet and mingle with the players, meet Manager Charlie Manuel and even get on the field for some batting practice and to field a few ground balls.

"It's was the greatest experience," Quinn said. "It just made me want to get to where they were. The players and everybody treated me real well."

"I got to take batting practice at (Citizens Bank Ballpark) and hit two out, one from each side (of the plate). That felt really good."

Quinn, who also signed a letter of intent to play baseball at Florida State University, said he's been busy working out this summer while negotiating with the Phillies.

He wakes each day at 6 a.m. for a morning run and returns to the field with a trainer each evening for fielding drills and batting practice, he said.

"I've been working real hard all summer," Quinn said. "The Phillies gave me tips on the right things to eat and about my workouts. I've been hard at it."

Much of the Phillies' focus this summer, he said, has been on coming to terms with their first-round pick, who was asking more than the Phillies were willing to pay.

Quinn added that he is slotted into a position where his contract would be well into six figures, likely in the range of $600,000.

Part of any deal, he added, would be a provision by which if Quinn chooses in three or four years not to continue his baseball career, the Phillies will pay for his schooling at the college of his choice.

"It's a win-win for me," Quinn said. "I'm very excited. It is a real blessing."

There is an Aug. 15 deadline set by the Phillies for Quinn to sign a contract.

"We should be getting something going in the next couple of days or the next week or so," Quinn said. "Right now I am leaning toward signing with the Phillies."

If and when he signs, Quinn would report to Clearwater and the Gulf Coast League Phillies for fall rookie ball.

He said the Phillies have provided him a goal and the trip to Philadelphia served as reinforcement.

"It all depends on me, but they see me replacing (current shortstop) Jimmy Rollins in a few years," Quinn said with a chuckle. "It's all been a blessing."

"I'm very proud. I'm proud because I think I've worked hard for what I've got."

FSU, Miami dominate All-ACC team roster

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Florida State and Miami each have four players selected to the preseason all-Atlantic Coast Conference team.

The ACC announced the team July 27 following a vote of media members at the league's preseason media days earlier in the week.

Quarterback E.J. Manuel, cornerback Greg Reid, defensive end Brandon Jenkins and offensive tackle Andrew Datko represented the Seminoles, the preseason favorite to win their first ACC title since 2005.

Miami landed linebacker Sean Spence, safety Ray-Ray Armstrong, guard Brandon Washington and center Tyler Horn on the team.

Virginia Tech, Clemson and North Carolina each had three players picked.

Boston College running back Montel Harris, the preseason player of the year, was mentioned on 49 of 51 ballots cast. He enters the season 1,002 yards shy of the league's career rushing record.

Lucky Puppy to participate in Pet Appreciation Week

Special to the News

The Lucky Puppy Dog Rescue is a nonprofit organization that helps homeless and abandoned animals in this area.

“Our rescue is located on our family farm, where we typically work with 20 to 25 dogs at a time,” said rescue owners. “These dogs are socialized with our dogs and cats, and we teach them basic manners to make them into good family pets. All of our dogs that are old enough and healthy will be vaccinated, heartworm tested and spayed or neutered before they are adopted. Our adoption fees are $125 for adult dogs, $200 for puppies and $75 for cats. You can see our available pets and find information on our website at TheLuckyPuppy.org, or call Teri at 814-6500.

The Lucky Puppy Dog Rescue will participate in the Tractor Supply Pet Appreciation Week by holding an adopt-a-thon and fundraising event at their Chipley location this month.

“On Saturday, August 6, we will be bringing in some of our available pets for adoption. Come meet our dogs and see if your next family pet is here waiting for you! We will be at the store from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m., if weather permits,” the rescue wrote in a statement released last week.

“We will be accepting donations of food, treats, vaccinations and pet supplies while on location. We hope that shoppers will consider adding a bag of dog or cat food to their own purchases and donating them to the rescue dogs and cats living at the Lucky Puppy. Also, to help pay for vet care and spays/neuters, cash donations are always appreciated. Because we are a 501(c)(3) charity, all monetary donations are tax deductible. We hope to see you there.”

Woman aims to rescue horses

Eternal Freedom ranch and rescue helps 40 horses in 1st year

By Meridith Kaufman
Florida Freedom Newspapers

GREENHEAD — Rescued and abandoned horses line the 18 acres of pasture at Eternal Freedom Youth Ranch and Horse Rescue in Greenhead.

Stephanie Lynn, 23, the owner and operator, has worked with horses since she was 10 and created the horse rescue a year ago, but she started rescuing horses in college.

“I worked at a poorly run ranch, and they called one day and said that I was either going to take the horses, or the slaughter houses were,” Lynn said. “So it was me and another volunteer, we rented a semi trailer and we took 15 horses, literally pulling the reins out of the slaughterhouse’s hands, but in the end they got 10.”

At the time, Lynn was only 20. She spent that entire summer off from college paying for, feeding and adopting out those 15 horses. By the start of her junior year at the University of South Florida, all of the horses had been adopted, and Lynn had gained a passion in her life; rescuing, rehabilitating and adopting out horses.

“Right now we specialize in thoroughbreds and mustang horses because no one else really does those,” Lynn said. “Mustang rescue is difficult because they are hard to get through to, but it just takes a lot of time and a lot of patience.”

This 23-year-old is determined to make this work and save more horses. The entire operation is Lynn, her boyfriend Damon Smitherman and four volunteers. She survives on sheer determination and her love of horses.

But with horse abandonment on the rise and adoptions declining, rescues are wrought with financial woes. It costs Lynn $350 for feed and $250 for hay weekly, costing Lynn $1,500 per horse yearly, not including medical fees. Lynn works multiple jobs to support the horses.

“We feed our horses high-protein quality feed because it keeps the weight on them, and you could buy $6 feed bags but it just isn’t quality food,” Lynn said. “So this way we don’t have to worry about bringing out the vet because the horses aren’t eating the right food.”

Feed is very important for the rescued horses. The majority of them are abandoned by owners who had not been able to feed them. One mare brought in a week and a half ago weighs only 560 pounds, when she should weigh 1,000 pounds.

“The guy brought her in, said he couldn’t get her to gain any weight,” Lynn said. “So we always get a history about the horse, and it came out that he actually hadn’t fed her in two months because he couldn’t afford it. Now, that she’s here she’s gaining weight, her bowels movements are getting back to normal, but it’s a slow process.”

Sadly, emaciated and abused horses are what Lynn is getting used to seeing more and more. When those horses come to Eternal Freedom, the medical bills are high, medical issues are inevitable and the rescue ranch does not have 501(c)(3) categorization yet, so it’s hard to find funding. “We do get some donations here and there,” Lynn said. “Most people don’t like to donate to something that isn’t a 501(c)(3) because they don’t get the tax write-off or because they think I’m just an individual. If they actually come out here, see the horses and walk around the ranch, they see we don’t have fat horses, we have the skinny, the hurt and we’re working to get them better.”

Lynn’s proudest moment at Eternal Freedom is looking on the website at the 40 horses they have rehabilitated and adopted out in only a year and a half, including the first 15 horses that got her started.

“It doesn’t feel like we’ve helped 40 horses because we’re constantly working, but when you can actually look on there and see a whole page full of horses you’ve helped, it’s like, ‘Wow, we really did that,’” Lynn said.

Eternal Freedom Youth Ranch and Horse Rescue is having an open house from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 6, at 2407 Pinewood Drive in Greenhead, which is on State 77 just north of the Bay-Washington County line.

Entry is free, and there will be free carnival games and activities including a dunk tank and pony-horse walks. Concessions and donation jars will be set up throughout the ranch.

“The money raised will hopefully be enough to file for our 501(c)(3) papers and cover some medical expenses, but if not, it will all go to the horses,” Lynn said. “And that would be a great thing.”

Spotlight turns on Gospel group Skillet

By Cecilia Spears
Staff Writer
cspears@chipleypaper.com

Christian rock band Skillet is set to perform at Wild Adventures Theme park in Valdosta, Ga., on 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 13.

Skillet originated in Memphis, Tenn., in 1996 and have since released eight albums, receiving two Grammy nominations for Collide and Comatose.

The band first formed with two members, John Cooper, former vocalist for the Tennessee progressive rock band Seraph, and Ken Steorts, former guitarist for Urgent Cry.

The bands toured together and after they were dissolved, Cooper and Steorts decided to get together and form an experimental band called Skillet.

Trey McClurkin joined the band as a temporary drummer. They were together only a month before gaining interest from Christian record label ForeFront Records, landing their first self-titled debut album, Skillet.

Cooper explained that the band name, Skillet, started off as a joke between band members. Since each were from a different band, with a different sound and a different style, they were said "to be like putting all of those styles in a big skillet to come up with something unique." Thus the band name "Skillet" was born. Cooper claims to still not like the band's name.

The next album was released in 1997 and titled "Hey You, I Love Your Soul" and Cooper's wife, Corey, joined soon after to play the keyboard.

They released albums Invin- cible, Arden Worship and Alien Youth from 2000 to 2002.

Steorts left shortly before the band began recording Invincible to be with his family, and that's when Kevin Haaland joined as their new guitarist.

Trey McClurkin eventually parted ways with Skillet and Lori Peters filled the drummer's position shortly before the release of "Invincible," which ended up being their number one selling album to date.

Before Cooper took on production duties on the album Alien Youth, Another new addition, Ben Kasica, took over on guitar.

Skillet's album, Comatose, released in 2006, featured singles "Rebirthing," "Whispers in the Dark," "Comatose," "The Older I Get," "These Nights," and "The Last Night."

In 2008, Skillet announced that Peters was retiring from the band and during the Christmas season of 2007 they took on Jen Ledger as their new drummer.

Comatose was certified gold in sales by the RIAA in 2009 and Skillet announced that they would be in the studio in 2010 to finalize their newest record, Awake, with Grammy-nominated producer Howard Benson, adding two songs, "Hero" and "Monster."

Skillet was nominated for six Dove Awards for the 41 Annual GMA Dove Awards and Awake was certified gold by sales in July 2010.

In November of 2010, Skillet released an iTunes sessions EP with songs from Comatose and Awake and the next day "Monster" became certified gold by sales.

In February 2011, Skillet

PET TALK

Warm weather calls for cool care of your horse

Special to Extra

Florida summers are just plain hot. For equestrian riding enthusiasts this may necessitate paying extra attention to your horse's physical needs and changing your riding habits.

"Heat related illness such as heat stress can quickly become heat exhaustion if preventive measures are not taken," said Dr. Glennon Mays, clinical associate professor at the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences.

Hot humid weather combined with over exertion and fluid loss can lead to heat stress. Signs of heat stress include dehydration, elevated body temperature, excessive sweating or no sweating, accelerated heart and respiratory rates, and sluggishness, Mays said.

"To check for dehydration, use your forefinger and thumb to pinch and pull the skin on the side of your horse's neck; it should snap back in place when released. If the skin is slow to form to the neck again your horse is dehydrated," explains Mays.

A horse's normal body temperature range is 99 to 101 degrees F; body temperature above 103 F is cause for concern since 104 F and greater generally require medical attention. Additionally, you should be aware of your horse's pulse and respiration rates. Normal equine resting pulse rate is 32-44 beats per minute and respiration rate is usually 8-16 breaths per minute, Mays said.

In addition to checking vital signs, you can help your horse avoid heat stress this summer by providing clean fresh water, good ventilation and shade. Also, ride in the early morning or late evening when outdoor temperatures are cooler, Mays said.

"Adequate water intake is critical. An average size horse needs about 10 gallons of fresh water per day. In the summertime, a physically active adult horse may consume more than 20 gallons of water daily," Mays said. "Water loss from sweating also means that electrolytes (sodium, potassium, and calcium) are lost and these need to be replaced after exercising. Free access to minerals and salt will help your horse maintain its electrolyte balance. Your veterinarian can advise you with instructions on ways to mix electrolytes into your horse's water or feed."

Your horse's stall should be well ventilated with good air circulation. Regular fans help circulate air inside the building. Be sure that fans and electrical cords are out of your horse's reach and safely distanced from water sources, Mays said. For pastured horses, provide shade under trees or loafing sheds.

During and after physical activity, your horse moves warm interior blood through veins and into capillaries at the skin's surface, Mays said. When the skin of your horse is cooled this surface blood is cooled also and thus the body temperature of your horse decreases. A cool water bath will help your overheated horse dissipate excess heat faster. The water conducts the heat from the surface of the horse and water evaporation from the skin cools your horse's body. Standing the horse in cool water also helps to dissipate heat through the hooves.

Heat related illness can be a very serious condition for your horse and should not be taken casually, cautions Mays. A well-informed horse owner is capable of preventing overheating from occurring when he/she knows the signs of heat stress and what care to provide.

Continue to ride your horse in the summer months, but be aware of the signs of heat stress. Tailor your riding time to humidity and temperature conditions. Provide ample fresh, clean water and additional sources of electrolytes. Set up fans to help circulate air around your horse. Also, remember the rider is also exposed to potential heat-related issues. Take appropriate precautions for yourself as well!

Grit and Grace to present 'The Way It Was'

Grit and Grace, Walton County's Official Folk Life Production, is proud to present its 2011 performance, "The Way It Was."

This year's story journeys through nearly 100 years of county history, covering controversial subjects such as segregation and the education the county learned from diversity in culture, race and demographics.

This is a show for the entire family. This show is written and directed by Jeanne Danielle Jackson. It will feature a variety of songs by local musicians that will bring to life the characters from nearly a century ago, coupled with elaborate costumes, stage design, sound and lighting.

Evening performances begin at 7 p.m. Aug. 4, 5 and 6. A Sunday matinee will be at 2 p.m. Aug. 7. All performances will take place at the Walton Senior High School auditorium in DeFuniak Springs.

Tickets are $10 and can be purchased in advance at Sundog Books in Seaside; Sanford and Sisters, DeFuniak Herald, Nook and Cranny, Stella's Flowers and Gifts, and McLean's Florist in DeFuniak Springs; and the Walton County Chambers of Commerce offices in DeFuniak Springs and Santa Rosa Beach. You may also purchase at www.gritandgrace.org. Tickets will be available at the door.

Washington County Teen Court yard sale

Washington County Teen Court will be holding a yard sale Saturday, Aug. 6, the day of the Possum Festival. The yard sale will be at 3487 Washington St. Signs will be posted to lead the way. The yard sale will begin at 7 a.m., continuing throughout the day, given that the weather conditions are clear. All money raised on-site will benefit Washington County Teen Court. To make donations, call Teen Court at 850-415-5021 or 850-326-4032.

Eternal Freedom Youth Ranch & Horse Rescue open house

Eternal Freedom Youth Ranch & Horse Rescue is having a carnival-themed open house on Saturday, Aug. 6, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The event will be at the rescue, 2407 Pinewood Drive in Greenhead. There will be signs from Walmart on State Road 77 going north all the way to our location. The open house is free, with free games and pony walks for kids and youths. There will be two local bands performing and food/drinks for a full day of family fun. The event is planned to raise donations for the rescue and show people the ranch and the work they do.

Forehand Family Reunion

The annual Forehand Family Reunion will be held Sunday, Aug. 7, at Bethlehem Methodist Church. All friends and relatives are invited; bring a well-filled basket. Drinks and paper goods will be furnished. For more information, call 547-21-57 or 547-3293.

Throw away your walking stick

By Paul F. Joyner, Ph. D.

It was found in the vestibule of the church and the owner never reclaimed it.

People leave a lot of things at church – umbrellas, handkerchiefs, scarf's, pocketbooks, hats, etc. But this was the first time I had ever known of anyone forgetting his walking stick.

It was a strong heavy stick capable of supporting a big man.

As I thought about it, I decided maybe it had not been forgotten. Maybe it had been discarded – the user felt he would not need it any longer. The fact that it was never reclaimed seemed to indicate as much.

Could it be possible that perhaps something happened to the owner that night while he was a church similar to what happened to the man sitting at the pool of Bethesda. This story is recorded in John Chapter 5.

At a certain season an angel would trouble the water of Bethesda and whoever got into the pool first was healed. This man complained that for 38 years he had been waiting around the pool and it was not his fault that others had someone to help them and he did not.

Jesus asked the man, "Do you really want to be made well?" There is an implication that the man might not really want to be made well. If he were well, he would have to assume some responsibility for his own welfare. There are many people even today who prefer to have someone else take care of them than to care for themselves.

Laugh at yourself, but get wiser

Sometimes I just have to look at myself – and my foolishness – and laugh. The trick, though, is regarding yourself and getting wiser. It is a lesson I am still learning and with which I still struggle.

I'm not sure why we are this way, or maybe it's just me (please let me know!), but I can be in the midst of living a miracle and doubt God's blessing and watchcare. My job and life here are examples of miracle, blessing AND watchcare. Still I cling to doubt the way someone who can't swim grabs a life preserver:

STEVE LINER
Living the Editor's Life

Life is so much better when we take a moment of perspective to recognize God's care, but that is sometimes really hard to do.

What started me thinking about this, of course, is an episode from the Bible.

Now, one of the most inspiring men to me is Peter. After all, it was Peter who first said to Jesus, "You are the Son of God." And it was Peter in the garden who fought back, cutting off the ear of a servant of the chief priest.

And it was Peter who, when all others were afraid Jesus was a ghost walking on water in Matthew 14 who said, "Tell me to come to you." So, out of the boat he jumps, walking on water like Jesus.

So far, so good, right? Nope. Right in the middle of living this miracle, Peter loses faith. The winds picks up. No doubt the waves were rolling, and Peter loses heart. In fear, instead for looking for the Savior, he looks elsewhere. And he begins to sink. And, just like me, he decides then to call for help. And, as always, the Lord's hand is right there.

But why can't we just trust the miracle? Why don't we keep our eyes on our salvation, trusting in God's goodness and grace?

Honestly, I don't know. Some would say the evil one catches hold to us, and they may be right. Some would say our own weakness and natural faithlessness catches hold to us, and they may be right.

In any event, there is one solution that always, always, always works for me. I pray for help (always getting it!) and then laugh at my own foolishness. Hopefully, this laughter signifies a growth in wisdom too. Remember, it was Peter in Acts who speaks to the 5,000 not long after the crucifixion. And it was Peter who was a prime leader of the early church. And it was Peter who, thanks be to God, got the message the Gospel could go to the gentiles too.

Yep, that's the kind of wisdom I want.

Cultivating Patience

Our modern world makes instant gratification a virtue. Instant food, instant success, and money at the push of a button are all hallmarks of our society's need to give us what we want with little or no waiting. Our needs and desires may thereby be satisfied more easily, but the discipline of patience suffers in the bargain. We can hardly imagine working on a project that might last a few years, let alone a few decades. Centuries ago, the people who started work on the great medieval cathedrals of Europe knew that they would not live to see them completed, but they had the patience and steadfastness to continue their work, nonetheless. Jacob worked patiently for his future father-in-law for 14 years to win the hand of his beloved Rachel. The greatest achievements in life are usually difficult and require patience and discipline. Cultivate patience in the small things in your life, such as your relationships and in your work, and it will reward you in the big things as well.

††††††††

And let steadfastness have its full effect, that you may be perfect and complete, lacking in nothing.

R.S.V. James 1:4

Skillet performs during their 2010 "Awake" Tour.

officially announced that Kasica was leaving the band and was recognized for contributing to albums Alien Youth, Collide, Comatose, Awake and live album Comatose Come Alive.

Collide went on to become their best-selling project to date, with over 200,000 units sold, while the band played some 200 dates a year, including tours with bands such as Saliva, Shinedown, Finger Eleven and Three Days Grace.

"We're proud of where we've been in the past, but I feel like this is our strongest record," Cooper said about their record Collide. "There are so many different influences that it won't just be about rock audiences or metal audiences; I think there's something here for everybody."

Cooper explained that the band is always trying to raise the bar as far as quality of music they play an example being "Rebirthing" being "a complex but accessible amalgamation of piercing strings and humongous power chords sure to be a concert staple."

"I just love rock ballads and the old days of Motley Crue, Aerosmith and Bon Jovi," Cooper said. "They always help you remember where you were, what you were doing, and who you were dating. They represent more of the pop side of what we do, which might have been hinted at in other records, but was never fully realized or matured."

In April 2011 Kasica was replaced by Seth Morrison as lead guitarist.

Awake won the "Top Christian Album" Award at the Billboard Music Awards 2011 and their song "Awake and Alive" was announced to be on the Transformers: Dark of the Moon soundtrack in May 2011.

Skillet is still "flexing its experimental muscles" adding "piano-based and progressive-influenced pieces."

"It's a new era for both Atlantic and Skillet," said Andy Karp, Head of A&R for Atlantic Records. "It's the first record where we've really been one on one with the band, and it's the latest step in our unique journey together. I've been at the label seven years and we're known for having so many great rock n' roll bands: Led Zeppelin, Genesis, Yes, Bad Company. There really aren't a lot of labels that have that kind of pedigree for rock acts, and Skillet is yet another

"We're proud of where we've been in the past, but I feel like this is our strongest record. There are so many different influences that it won't just be about rock audiences or metal audiences; I think there's something here for everybody."

John Cooper
Skillet lead vocalist

er in a long line of great bands."

Cooper and company can certainly relate, citing several from the label's lineage as influencers since its infancy.

"Growing up, I was a prog freak and loved bands like Yes and Dream Theater," Cooper said. "I also grew up with my mom as a classical piano teacher and took lessons for eight years, along with playing in the marching band and symphony. It's funny because every once in a while there was a touch of that on Collide, but until recently, I didn't see what that background had to do with rock music. On this record, we were able to make it work structurally with the piano and strings, plus there's enough prog to make me happy."

Cooper explained that his songwriting has "expanded to cover a vast range of topical territories, some of which follow socially conscious ideals, while others vulnerably mirror his personal life and struggles."

"Take, for instance, the aforementioned 'The Last Night,' which talks about someone considering suicide after living life in despair and not having support from their parents," Cooper said. "Rather than calling it quits, the track suggests life is worth living and through the help of a supportive friend, they're eventually talked down from that ledge." A song even closer home for Cooper is "The Older I Get," which picks up after his mom passed away and follows the rocky relationship he had with his dad and new stepmother.

"My dad got remarried two months after my mom died, and my stepmother's husband had also passed away a few months earlier," Cooper said. "It was a really bizarre situation and they didn't get along, which was also the point when my dad and I started fighting. From the time I was 14 or 15, I don't remember having a single conversation with him for about four years that didn't have to do with fighting. But a lot has mended since then and we've been able to move on. You can only go through life so long living in regret, and while those situations certainly affected me, I don't hold onto the anger anymore."

Cooper said that those introspective visions "tie in with the group's overall goals of promoting positive messages that will give fans something to digest beyond pre-conceived clichés or trite topics."

In naming the record Comatose they said it would "further cements those expressions, hoping to rev up listeners to break beyond the mundane, get on track with their relationships, and charge forward with hope."

"John has written the best songs he's ever written and there's been such an evolution on all levels for the band," Karp said. "Sonically we set out to create a combination of electronic elements, orchestration, and a melodic approach. Skillet has managed to hit all of those three exactly on target, raising its game to yet another level of excellence."

Mildred Jean Cole Shumate, 73, of Waynesboro, Virginia, passed into the presence of her Savior on July 18, 2011, following a courageous 2-year battle with cancer. Mildred was the daughter of Garnett K. Cole, formerly of Bonifay, and Elva Lawson Cole McNiel. She is survived by her husband of 53 years, Robert H. Shumate, three children and their spouses, and 12 grandchildren. She is also survived by her stepmother, Jean Sowers Cole of Bonifay. Services were held on July 23 at Grace Lutheran Church in Waynesboro. Reynolds Hamrick Funeral Home was in charge.

Ralph O. Wells

Major Ralph O. Wells, USAF (Ret) was born in Chipley, Florida. He lived in Warner Robins, Georgia, since 1970. Major Wells spent over forty years in military aviation as an active flyer and in avionics support. During World War II, he served in the U.S. Army Air Forces as a flight engineer-gunner on the B-17. Wells graduated from Carlisle Military School, attended the Citadel, obtained a degree in Electrical Engineering from the University of South Carolina, received an MSA degree from Georgia College, and was a graduate of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces and the Air War College. Major Wells was commissioned directly from civilian life as a Second Lieutenant and called to active duty. He served as the first Electronic Warfare Officer (EWO) on the 20th AF Staff and flew combat support missions into Korea. He flew the B-47 and the B-52 aircraft for SAC. Wells was the first lead navigator-bombardier on B-47s to successfully make an RBS run against Marrakech, Morocco, from Homestead Air Force Base in 1957. He was awarded one of the first "Shacks" for a perfect bomb score from 40,000 feet in a B-52. Major Wells was pulled from crew duty for duty in the USAF Security Daniels of the 432 Royal Engineering Regiment, for whom he wrote a pipe tune, the "Captain Ralph Wells." Ralph was the President of the only Square and Compass Club in the United Kingdom. He served in the Ground Electronic Engineering Installation Agency (GEEIA) as the Deputy Director of Engineering Project Phyllis Ann (for all communications for USAFSS in Vietnam) and the first secure voice facility support of the space program at Cape Canaveral. He flew one hundred sixty eight unarmed electronic reconnaissance combat missions in Vietnam frequently as an air instructor with a price on his head, and served as a ground instructor in the 362 TEW Squadron. As the Deputy Director of Operations in the Western GEEIA Region, he was also the project officer for the poplar satellite (spy) orbit communications program. As a civilian engineer in the Air Force Logistics Command, he was the first Automatic Test Equipment Engineer for the first Foreign Military Sales Laboratory (for the Egyptian Government), where he developed the first multi-system flight test system. He was known as "The Daddy of the STEMS," a simulation test emitter station, which evaluated EW system prior to installation in the aircraft, the first EW Engineer to visit Egypt, and was on the systems evaluation team for EW systems used in Desert Storm. Major Wells received numerous military decorations: Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medals (8), AF Commendation Medals (2), Presidential Unit Citation, Outstanding Unit Award (4), Combat Readiness Medal, Good Conduct Medal, American Campaign Medal, WWII Victory Medal, National Defense Service Medal, Korean Service Medal with 201c, Small Arms Expert Marksmanship Ribbon, RVN Medal, United Nations Service Medal, Republic of Vietnam Campaign Medal, and a GEEIA Certificate of Merit.

His parents, Lester and Ophelia Wells, preceded him in death.

His memory will forever be treasured by his sister, Dorothy Wells Shepard, Monticello, Florida; and numerous nieces and nephews.

Visitation was held Friday, July 29, 2011, from 10 to 11 a.m. at McCullough Funeral Home. Funeral services were held at 11 a.m. on Friday, July 29, 2011, in the chapel of McCullough Funeral Home with interment following in Magnolia Park Cemetery. NEWSPAPERS • INTERACTIVE
Market Research Analyst

Freedom Communications, a national leader in print and interactive media, has an exciting new opening for a Market Research Analyst. This individual will play a key role across many departments in this highly visible position. This is a newly-created role which means that the successful candidate will have the opportunity to make significant contributions toward, and have a considerable impact on, the future success of the organization.
This individual will be responsible for providing data analysis, reports, presentations, and training for our sales, content and circulation employees in order to drive revenue, better understand our audience, and increase circulation. Additionally, this individual will contribute to the creation of a centralized market intelligence hosting site that will be accessible to all Freedom properties across the country.
The successful candidate will have verifiable experience working with media research. Experience with market research tools, particularly media-related databases, is a plus. Any primary research experience (survey development, focus group facilitation, qualitative studies management, etc.) would be very helpful as well.
This is a very hands-on position. This individual must be extremely detail-oriented, have a strong drive for accuracy, and have the ability to effectively manage a number of projects simultaneously. Additionally, this individual must possess excellent communication skills (including being comfortable with making presentations to large groups), strong organizational and prioritization skills, and the ability to work effectively across many departments within the organization to share knowledge, assist in analysis, and solve problems. Excellent PowerPoint and Excel skills are a must.
This person will be able to work out of either our Ft. Walton Beach or Panama City properties but travel to our other Florida properties, as well as to our properties located in North Carolina, will be required. A clean MVR and the ability to travel up to 25% (with occasional overnight) are necessary.
Interested, qualified applicants should send their resume along with salary requirements to shewitt@freedom.com.
