Christmas Reflections 2011

DeFUNIAK SPRINGS — 'Tis the season of lights, and historic DeFuniak Springs is aglow with more than 3 million. Traditionally, our lights go on the day after Thanksgiving and continue to glow each night until Dec. 31. We invite you to enjoy this wonderful display for the first time or for your annual trip to DeFuniak Springs.

The trip is more than worth it as you drive around our placid lake and view the reflection of millions of lights. It's a photographer's dream, and many come to capture the sights and scenes on display. Trees laden with thousands of lights illuminate hand-painted figures for the young and the young at heart. Enjoy again the serenity and beauty of our nativity that reminds us of the true reason for the season. The Victorian silhouette figures throughout the display remind us of a simpler time in our history and recall our historic heritage. Other displays show Santa's elves working hard to prepare toys for all good girls and boys. Animals romp through the trees, and penguins skate on the grassy slopes in our cool night air.

The display opens each evening from 5-9 p.m., and admission is $3 per person, with children 6 and under free.

Recognizing if your pet has pancreatitis

If your cat or dog is suffering from vomiting and diarrhea, it might be that Fido or Fluffy are spending too much time at the all-you-can-eat buffet. But vomiting and abdominal pain might also indicate pancreatitis, a fairly common condition among cats and dogs that can lead to severe complications and even death.

"Pancreatitis is an inflammation of the exocrine portion of the pancreas, which produces the body's digestive enzymes", says Dr. Jörg Steiner, professor at the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences.

"This inflammation actually causes the pancreas to digest itself," adds Steiner. "The most common signs are vomiting and abdominal pain, but symptoms may also include diarrhea, fever, loss of appetite and behavioral changes."

Pancreatitis is more difficult to detect in cats because the symptoms are milder.

Steiner says there are two types of pancreatitis: acute and chronic. Acute cases of pancreatitis are more commonly severe and chronic cases are more commonly mild.

Supportive care, including aggressive fluid therapy to treat imbalances, is given to stabilize the patient, he adds, and pain medications are used to make the patient as comfortable as possible.

Steiner estimates that about 50 percent of acute cases result in death.

In cases of chronic pancreatitis, your veterinarian will begin to treat the underlying disease process while administering symptomatic treatment, including fluid therapy and pain relief.

While these patients tend to have a better outcome than those with acute pancreatitis, chronic pancreatitis may eventually cause diabetes and/or other diseases that can greatly affect the animal's quality of life. In some cases, this condition may go undiagnosed and untreated.

"There are some conditions that may be found concurrent with pancreatitis, including hepatic inflammation and intestinal inflammation," said Steiner. "To give the most accurate diagnosis possible, your veterinarian will also test for diseases that mimic pancreatitis, such as kidney disease and liver disease."

Steiner recommends giving pets with pancreatitis a low fat diet. This includes restricting animals from treats.

"Pancreatitis is a fairly common disease among cats and dogs," says Steiner. "There is no way to cure or prevent pancreatitis, and there is no evidence to suggest that pancreatitis is more common among any particular age or breed of pet."

Since vomiting and abdominal pain are symptoms common to many illnesses in pets, it is crucial that an ailing pet be thoroughly examined by your veterinarian, Steiner adds.

"It may just be an upset tummy, but seeking your veterinarian's advice early could actually preserve and improve your pet's life and health," Steiner says. "New diagnostic tests are now available that can help your veterinarian diagnose pancreatitis early, making successful therapy more likely."

Johnny Cash knew the meaning of Christmas

The writer has taken time to listen to "Christmas with Johnny Cash," which is among the last of his recordings, if not the very last. The last number on this CD is entitled "Christmas as I Knew It" and is a heart-rending recitation by Johnny of his memory of Christmas as he was growing up in a large family of siblings in Dyess, Ark. Those of my age group, who may think of having a meager and rough Christmas time, would possibly have a different thought after hearing the Johnny Cash rendition of his experiences.

For food, Cash spoke the line of "Dad killing a squirrel and Louise made the bread" in a heart-warming manner. The older boys cut and decorated a Christmas tree and whittled wooden toys for the younger children. His statement, "The babies must have a few things" really got my attention. The real clincher was delivering "coal oil" and a "bag of hickory nuts" to a large sharecropper neighboring family who had neither at Christmas time.

After many more attention getting lines in the presentation, Cash concludes the story with the most profound statement of all: "Christmas came and Christmas went, But Christmas that year was surely Heaven sent."

In the past few days, it has been reported in the television news of many acts of kindness where anonymous benefactors have gone into department stores and paid off layaways for purchasers who were having difficulty in redeeming their items in time for Christmas. Destin, Fort Walton, Crestview, Dothan, Ala., and possibly other nearby by towns, were included in these acts of kindness. Some of the joyous recipients were shown trying to say "thanks" amid being overcome by tears of emotionalism.

One of my favorite national news commentators, Brian Williams, carried the story of some organization whose purpose it is to arrange for delivery of food for pets to those unable to provide for their dogs, cats and other animals that have been their constant companions for many years. Again, pictures were shown with the actual deliveries being made to real people who displayed their appreciation with much contriteness.

Although not a dog owner myself, it has been my privilege to add some food items to Scioto, the dog of neighbors Cindy and Matthew. He is a well-fed and properly cared for pet who appreciates what I label a "little dessert" at Christmas time. He is most friendly, loving and appreciative of the special attention to the point of actually "bowing down" to the one presenting the extra treats. According to the owners, the name, Scioto, is Indian, meaning "running like a deer."

Sending and receiving Christmas cards at this time of the year has been a joy for Hester and me for many years. We still have two of my Army buddies, Billy Ward of Niceville and Julian B. Singleton of Sumter, S.C., on our mailing list. It is my delight to hear from them at Christmas time.

From the University of Florida days, I am still in communication with friends Sammie Young and wife, Jeanne, of Silver Spring, Md.; Randall Roberts, a Bonifay native now living in Valparaiso who lost his wife, Florence, in death Dec. 20, 2005; and Jeral Smithgall, a Ponce De Leon boy, and his wife, the former Delores

"Christmas came and Christmas went, But Christmas that year was surely Heaven sent."

Johnny Cash
"Christmas As I Know It"

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

Hicks, who claims Westville as her hometown. They live in Mobile, Ala. Year-round contact is maintained with these three, with all being furnished "prattle" frequently.

Both Hester and I have a host of kinsmen, some newly found, mine in Covington and Butler County and hers in Henry and Barbour County, all in Alabama. For the past several years, we have attended family reunions among our kin and enjoy exchanging Christmas cards also.

Before my last "report card" article went to press, I encountered my friend Lavon Pettis in Piggly-Wiggly, who again thanked me for my efforts in writing the "prattle."

"My first reading is Perry's Prattle and the obituaries," reported the smiling reader.

Another expression of approval of the column came from the Rev. Malcolm Roberts, who was one year ahead of me in graduating from Vernon High School. Malcolm lost his wife, M.E. Brock Roberts, in death earlier this year. He continues to reside in Mobile.

"I read and enjoy your writing in the Washington County News and believe the best was the one about Thomas Ray and Bessie," Roberts writes. He continued by mentioning his association with the two in Vernon School as well as seeing them at class reunions down through the years. He commented on his joy in thinking of their lifelong commitment, devotion and love for each other with this admission: "I plead guilty to shedding a few tears."

Our Wells family get-together, involving all the offspring of parents Hugh and Marie Wells held in Bonfiay on Christmas night, will be history when this is being read.

My thought right now is that I want to witness with songwriter Johnny Cash and repeat the famous line of his song, "This year, Christmas came and Christmas went, but surely this one was Heaven sent."

See you all next week and next year. HAPPY NEW YEAR EVERYBODY.

Happy holidays from Sen. Bill Nelson

Dear Friends,
As the year comes to a close, I can't help but look back and reflect on all that has happened, doing so with appreciation for the friendship, support and suggestions of so many of you.

At this special time of year, my wife Grace and I would like to wish you and your family a very Merry Christmas, Happy Hanukkah and the best of the Holiday Season – and, a wonderful New Year. We hope the blessings of the season will allow you to share time with your family and closest friends.

With that said, it's important to keep in mind there are many folks in Florida, and all over, who aren't as fortunate. Whether suffering from economic hardship or being separated from their family and loved ones, like our thousands of men and women in uniform and our civilian public servants abroad, all of them shall be in our thoughts and prayers.

And let us all remember the greeting that has rung throughout the ages: "...on earth peace, good will toward men."

Sincerely,
Sen. Bill Nelson

The happiest time of the year?

Tips for surviving less than perfect holidays

By Ginny Grimsley
Special to The News

For all the promise of joy, peace and harmony that comes with the holiday season, the reality for millions of people is that the season is anything but a celebration. For many, it's a reminder of lost loved ones, personal disappointments and dreams left unfulfilled.

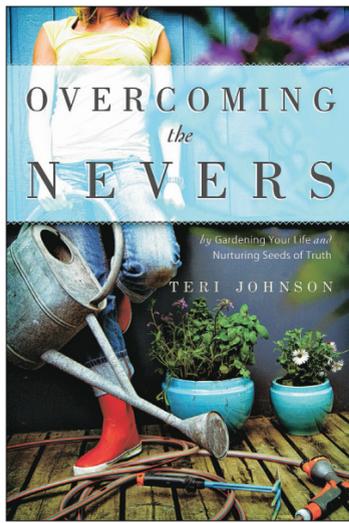

But for life coach Teri Johnson, whose personal journey through an imperfect life now inspires others to reach for the lives they've always wanted, the negative "nevers" of the disappointing hand life might have dealt you are where the healing starts. By confronting a never-ending and unproductive cycle of negativity, the elusive joy of the holiday season can be found not just now but every day of the year, said Johnson, author of the newly released book "Overcoming the Nevers."

"You never thought you'd get divorced, but you did. You never dreamed you would find yourself in an abusive relationship, but you are. You never thought you would need to lose 200 pounds, but you do. And you never thought you'd be 45 years old without a job, losing your home and drowning in debt, but you are," Johnson said.

"We start to believe lies about ourselves, such as 'I'm not good enough' or 'I'm undeserving.' We escape our pain and these toxic feelings into unhealthy behaviors and addictions. There is freedom from the struggle; there is hope in discovering the truth; there is a way to fall in love with who we are to experience a joy-filled season, and more importantly a joy-filled life."

Johnson's tools for overcoming the "nevers" that drag many down during the holiday season are:

* Acceptance: Do you have the strength to make the changes necessary to turn a situation special and what makes you feel good about yourself.

* Discovery: Confronting the truth about who we are deep inside helps us overcome our painful past and discover the basis for those "nevers."

* Faith: Until we accept love for ourselves from God, from others and towards others, the healing will not begin. Embracing love is an ongoing process that starts with learning to like yourself and with a willingness to accept your imperfections.

Johnson advises that the process of confronting internal struggles and the "nevers" of life isn't easy, but no treatment program, no diet and no New Year's resolution can be successful without breaking down the essence of individual struggles and making the necessary adjustments to attain the life you deserve.

"If the life you are living is full of unacceptable and disappointing things and you don't want to spend another year like this, the only thing holding you back right now is your own confusion, self-doubt and anger," she said.

"You don't have to keep doing what you're doing or feeling what you're feeling, but you do need to come to terms with yourself and surrender yourself to faith that there is a better way."

around through an attitude of acceptance? Or will you remain powerless, remain in the state of non-acceptance and let everything around you dictate how you feel? The journey starts with accepting that you can't change others, but you do have power over your own life.

* Surrender: What we surrender ourselves to ultimately becomes our god, what we turn to or upon which we rely. The question then is: What are we surrendered to? Is it something firm, solid and long lasting or something that hurts us in the end?

* Joyfulness: Hold tight to your unique gifts and talents to enrich your own life and affect the lives of those around you. Build on what you're good at, what makes you

Hooked on Outdoors

During Christmas vacation, most of the boys I ran around with duck hunted during the holidays. Unlike today, when every kid has a pickup truck, we had to borrow one or go in our own cars.

On one of those Christmases it was extremely cold. Sometimes the temperature would get into the teens during the winter in South Alabama; this was one of those times.

On this particular day, Jimmy Martin, Doug Easters and myself piled into Doug's 56 T-Bird and away we went. Back then, we were bulletproof, fool proof and did not fear the cold. Today is a different matter. Just listening to the wind blow on a cold morning keeps me in bed.

After we got to the spot we were to hunt, we still had to cross a field and walk down a beaver dam — all in the dark. Of course,

I fell through the dam getting water in my chest waders. We had arrived an hour early and I had to stand around wet and cold.

The ducks we were going to shoot were mallards, the only ducks I knew of in Coffee County. When the ducks arrived they only came in one time so you had better do your best. We usually unplugged our guns to give us five shots.

On this particular dammed up beaver pond, you had two options — to shoot these ducks early in the morning or in the middle of the day. In the middle of the day, they had settled down and were feeding, so we needed something to get them airborne. Lighting a cherry bomb usually did the trick.

Up they would come, and again you only had one chance for a few shots. On this particular morning, after we killed all we could in one pass, we made our way back to the car only to find that Doug had lost the keys. Before all was said and done I actually thought I would lose my toes. We all almost froze to death before we flagged down a car.

So another Christmas has arrived and some kid will do something that he will remember for the rest of his life. There is one thing I almost can guarantee — it won't include nearly freezing to death while duck hunting.

Antlerless deer season at hand

By Stan Kirkland
Florida Fish and Wildlife
Conservation Commission

Back in the 1960s and 1970s, the idea of an antlerless deer season in Florida would have been met with skepticism. After all, it was during that time when deer were being released in different areas around the state in an effort to rebuild populations.

Hunters know this better than anyone, but the recovery is long since complete, and antlerless deer hunting is now an accepted and necessary deer management practice.

Beginning Monday, Dec. 26, and extending through Jan. 1, 2012, gun hunters who hunt private lands can take deer of either sex, except spotted fawns, in Zones B and D. The seven-day antlerless deer season comes on the heels of a month-long archery and cross-bow season, when both bucks and does were legal.

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) divides Florida into Zones A-D for setting deer seasons. Zone D includes most of the Florida Panhandle. Zone B is a multicounty swath of land in west-central Florida near Tampa.

"The antlerless deer season gives people with small pieces of land the opportunity to hunt deer of either sex on their property, and manage their deer, just like landowners with abundant acreage who qualify for antlerless deer permits," said Cory Morea, the FWC's deer management program coordinator.

He said that when deer become too plentiful, there can be problems. Most often, deer numbers exceed the social carrying capacity — the number of deer people will tolerate — long before they exceed the biological carrying capacity of the land, Morea said.

Like most states, he said, Florida estimates how many deer are killed each season. For the 2010-11 hunting season, Florida hunters reported taking approximately 103,000 bucks and 75,700 does.

While accurate numbers of Florida's deer population aren't known, Morea said, "It's fair to say the population is healthy and in good shape."

The antlerless deer season is a good time to introduce a young hunter to deer hunting. A few years ago, my friend, John, invited Sarah, my 16-year-old daughter, and me to his place in north Bay County for a hunt, in the hopes Sarah could get a doe. He and the other owner like to remove 20-25 does each year off their tract.

The morning of our hunt, it was 18 degrees when we pulled into the property. Thankfully, there was no wind. Sarah and I positioned ourselves in a small, elevated, enclosed stand, about midway on a green food plot.

We saw five beautifully antlered bucks before a doe ever made her way into the plot. When the "doe" got within 40 yards, Sarah made a perfect shot with her .45-caliber muzzleloader.

It wasn't until we got a close look at her deer that we discovered her doe was actually a 6-month-old buck without antlers. Her buck weighed 100 pounds and became sausage, hamburger and steak.

Even though her deer wasn't a doe, the landowners were happy for her. Also, her deer, which falls under the antlerless deer category, helped them accomplish their management goals.

Like many kids, Sarah had a good experience and still hunts with me today.

Texas drought takes cow numbers down by 600K

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — The worst drought in Texas' history has led to the largest-ever one-year decline in the leading cattle-state's cow herd, raising the likelihood of increased beef prices as the number of animals decline and demand remains strong.

Since Jan. 1, the number of cows in Texas has dropped by about 600,000, a 12 percent decline from the roughly 5 million cows the state had at the beginning of the year, said David Anderson, who monitors beef markets for the Texas AgriLife Extension Service. That's likely the largest drop in the number of cows any state has ever seen, though Texas had a larger percentage decline from 1934 to 1935, when ranchers were reeling from the Great Depression and Dust Bowl, Anderson said.

Anderson said many cows were moved "somewhere there's grass," but lots of others were slaughtered. He said that in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Louisiana and Arkansas, about 200,000 more cattle were slaughtered this year, a 20 percent increase over last year.

An Angus/Brahman crossed cow eats mesquite tree beans, higher in protein than grass because of the drought, on Pete Bonds' ranch in Saginaw, Texas.

That extra supply could help meet increased demand from China and other countries, but the loss of cows likely will mean fewer cattle in future years.

"Consumers are going to pay more because we're going to have less beef," Anderson said. "Fewer cows, calves, less beef production and increasing exports."

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates that beef prices will increase up to 5.5 in 2012, in part because the number of cattle has declined. That follows a 9 percent increase in beef prices in the past year.

Oklahoma, the nation's second-largest cattle producer, also saw about a 12-percent drop in cows, Oklahoma State University agriculture economist Derrell Peel said.

Anderson said beef production nationally will be down 4 percent next year.

In Texas, the problem is primarily due to the worst single-year drought in the state's history. From January through November the state got just 46 percent of its normal rainfall of about 26 inches.

The drought was the result of a La Niña weather pattern, which brings drier than normal conditions to the southwestern states. Forecasters have said La Niña is back, meaning another dry year for Texas, Oklahoma and other nearby states.

The lack of rain coupled with blistering summer heat caused pastures to wither, leaving rancher with the choice of buying feed for the cattle or selling them.

Betsy Ross, a 75-year-old rancher from the small central Texas community of Granger, said she sold all but 80 of the 225 grass-fed animals she had in January. With feed costs up 40 percent and her pasture parched, Ross said she didn't have any other option.

"It's not a profitable year, heavens no," she said. "If you can't keep them on grass when they're grass fed you're not going to make any money."

About 200 miles north in Sulphur Springs, Texas, part-time rancher Dwyatt Bell said producers in his part of the state sold off up to half their herds. Bell said high prices for cattle have helped offset increases expenses, but many ranchers still are struggling to stay afloat.

"It's been a rough year," he said.

Across Texas, the drought has caused an estimated $5.2 billion in losses to farmers and livestock producers, and that figure is expected to rise.

Nationally, the number of cows has dropped by an estimated 617,000 this year, a 2 percent decline from the 30.9 million animals on Jan. 1. That number would be larger, but states in northern plains such as North Dakota, South Dakota and Nebraska, increased their cow herd.

Anderson said it's unclear whether high beef prices would hurt U.S. sales or limit exports. The U.S. is the world third largest consumer of beef per capita at 85.5 pounds per year. Uruguay is first at 137 pounds per capita.

"Exports have been the strongest part of beef demand all year and they're expected to remain so but higher prices should constrain their growth," he said.

JANUARY

January 13: Bonifay's Honky Tonk promises 'sexy dancers'

BONIFAY — A sign at the Honky Tonk Bar in downtown Bonifay in mid-January promised, "Sexy Dancers Coming Soon." The promise was discussed at that week's Bonifay City Council meeting.

Just how sexy the dancers could be was open to question. Mayor

James Sims said the city has an ordinance dating from 1996 that calls for any such dancers to be "fully clothed." Sims said the ordinance was passed to handle a bar next to Interstate 10 that was drawing a considerable amount of public disapproval.

"There would be no official action against the Honky Tonk unless the law is broken," Sims said.

Sexy dancers never made their way to the Honky Tonk, but the bar's sign did inspire a "Here Now Sexy Bagboys" sign at Doc's Market.

January 19: Rep. Drake applauds Rick Scott's delay of septic tank bill DeFUNIAK SPRINGS — State Rep. Brad Drake, R-Eucheeanna, thanked Gov. Rick Scott on Jan. 19 for allowing Senate Bill 2A, which delays implementation of the septic tank inspection program, to become law.

"Governor Scott called me today to inform me that he would be allowing the legislation regarding the delay of implementation of septic tank regulations, passed during Special Session 2010A, to become law. I told him 'Thank You,' and that the Legislature would be working on a permanent resolution to correct this over-burdensome regulation that I voted against when it passed the first time," the release read.

Drake was a co-sponsor of House Bill 13, which was filed to repeal the septic tank inspection program.

On Dec. 15, another bill was filed in the Florida House that would repeal the state requirement but allow counties to utilize their own inspection programs.

January 17: Bethlehem mourns the loss of Mia Chay Brown

BETHLEHEM — Hundreds filled the large sanctuary at Carmel Assembly of God the evening of Jan. 17 as family, friends and the community gathered to celebrate the life of Mia Chay Brown.

The celebration came the same day the Holmes County Sheriff's Office and the Geneva County, Ala., District Attorney's Office announced that murder charges were expected to be filed against the prime suspect Brown's disappearance and death, Johnny Mack Skeeto Calhoun of Esto.

Mia Brown's older sister, Megan, told everyone that, "The memories I have of Mia are the sweet, everyday memories." Brother Chuck Biddle, one of the game wardens that found Mia Brown's missing car and her body, expressed his thanks and surprise at the amount of effort shown by hundreds of volunteers that came forward to help the search across two states.

Brown was declared missing after leaving her job in Esto on Dec. 16. Her body was found the following Monday, Dec. 20, in her burned automobile in Geneva County. Calhoun, 33, was charged with an open count of murder by 14th District State Attorney Glenn Hess and was held in the Holmes County Jail on a $1 million bond.

But Calhoun was not the primary subject of discussion at the memorial service. Rather, Mia's life and her happy, friendly spirit were shared by several speakers.

Nancy Williams said in an earlier interview that she taught her children to live their faith and help others, and there were testimonies of how Mia and her family to help those in time of need.

February 3: WestPoint Home promises 100 jobs in Chipley

CHIPLEY — New jobs were on their way to Chipley as WestPoint Home consolidated its domestic operations. Chipley Plant Manager Terry Ellis confirmed in early February that with the closing of WestPoint's Greenville, Ala., plant, many positions would be shifted to Chipley.

"We will easily add at least 100 jobs," Ellis said, "and they will be across the board in both manufacturing and distribution."

The news came several months after the corporation announced that it would keep its Chipley plant open, saving more than 400 jobs in a county with an unemployment rate of more than 12 percent.

"As things evolved, the decision was made to consolidate in Chipley, where we could produce the most volume with the most cost-effectiveness," Ellis said.

Ellis said the Chipley plant has steadily increased its number of employees since the decision was made in November 2010 to keep the plant open. WPH originally planned to close the Chipley plant in 2009 and later decided to keep it open into 2010 before a long-range review led to the decision to keep the Chipley plant operating.

APRIL

April 5: WestPoint Home named Business of the Year

CHIPLEY — WestPoint Home Inc. was awarded Washington County Business of the Year during the Washington County Chamber of Commerce's annual banquet on April 5.

"Even when facing the threat of outsourcing to China, WestPoint took their capable staff, stepped up to the challenge and held on even in the darkest of economic times," said Darrin Wall, from the Chipola Regional Workforce Development Board.

February 5: Town mourns fallen officer Greg Malloy

DeFUNIAK SPRINGS — Col. Greg Malloy was not supposed to be in the woods the day he died tracking a double-murder suspect; he was filling in for an injured team member.

When a call came in that Wade Williams, the subject of a weeklong manhunt and a suspect in the slaying of his parents, had been spotted, Malloy came and picked up Sgt. Tim Harris' vest and radio and took the injured Harris' place in the field.

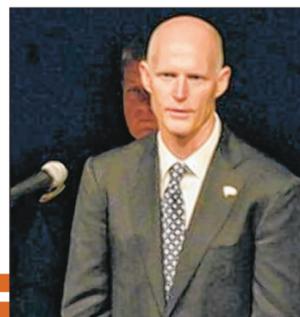

COL. GREG MALLOY

As Gov. Rick Scott addressed the family and friends of Malloy, the 17th officer killed in the country this year and the fifth in Florida, he seemed to struggle for words to say and seemed to understand the inadequacy of any he might find.

"There is nothing we can say but thank you," Scott said. "Thank you for sharing him with us. I hope by the time I die, I'm as well thought of as he was ... I wish there was something I could say that would bring Greg back."

McNeil called on his fellow law enforcement officers to keep the officer's memory alive by living his example and grounding themselves in service, sacrifice, honor, leadership and faith in God.

MAY

May 12: 16-month-old found; Amber Alert canceled

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — An Amber Alert was canceled for a 16-month-old boy who went missing from Chipley in early May. Police located Waylan Snipes on May 12 in Bowling Green, Ky.

His grandfather, 36-year-old William Snipes, was taken into custody. Kentucky State Police said Snipes was charged with possession of a firearm by a convicted felon and being a fugitive from another state and was lodged in the Warren County jail in Bowling Green.

Waylan Alexander Snipes, 18 months, was taken from his home at about 3 a.m. May 11. In Florida, the Washington County Sheriff's Office said Snipes took the baby and drove away in a truck.

Kentucky police said the child was located in the vehicle and was not injured. He was taken into protective custody.

JUNE

June 15: Hope remains for crops even as drought continues

"A little rain could save some of our crops," said Washington County agriculture and livestock director Andy Andreasen. "We got a little rain, but it's been isolated; unless you were in the direct path of the cloud you didn't get any moisture at all."

Andreasen said another issue farmers are facing is the competition between crops and weeds.

"Herbicides do not work in droughts," he said. "As the weeds get bigger, the plants have to compete with the weeds for moisture, fertilizer and sunshine."

Andreasen said some crops have survived the heat, but it's too soon to tell if they'll produce.

"All irrigated corn has survived, but it's too soon to tell if the corn has pollinated," he said. "The corn grows, and the silk at the top is what pollinates the plant to produce corn kernels; if the silk dries out too fast before pollination, there will be no kernels."

Andreasen said farmers already have lost a lot of cotton.

"Our cotton growers are concerned that they may not make enough production to fulfill their contracts, which means they'll have to make up the difference," he said. "Hopefully they didn't contract out all of their fields.

That way, the chances of them fulfilling their contract go up exceedingly."

Andreasen said this year would be "especially challenging" because the price of fertilizing rose to almost $200 a ton, and fuel prices rose as well.

"Many planters have waited as long as they can to plant, skipping the May planting for planting in June to plant their crops," he said. "They were waiting for at least some moisture to plant. Now they have Andreasen said he wouldn't know the exact toll the drought had on area crops until after local farmers reported their claims.

June 20: Drought declared for Washington, Holmes

Officials declared a drought disaster for Holmes and Washington counties on June 20.

"We held a meeting with the Farm Agency, Forestry and a few other organizations to come up with a number of concerned crops," said Washington County agriculture and livestock director Andy Andreasen. "We then sent a Drought Disaster Declaration to Gainesville for approval."

Andreasen said once the declaration was approved, there were several options the state could take to help aid farmers in disaster.

"They may offer low-interest loans to farmers experiencing financial hardships," Andreasen said. "We're 10 inches below the average rain fall for the last 65 to 70 days, which is 20 percent of the year's average rainfall."

"Fifty to sixty percent of plants have come up, but there are a lot of skips in the rows and a very low plant population," he said. "The majority of these crops are where the crops have died and the farmers had replant them three or four times."

The sheriff's office led a multi-agency effort to destroy the 6-foot-tall plants, shown below, that included the use of a helicopter provided by the Jackson County Sheriff's Department and assistance from the Florida Highway Patrol Interdiction Team, Brown said in a statement thanking the other agencies for their assistance.

TOP STORY CANDIDATE: WILLIAMS GETS 5 YEARS

On Oct. 21, former greyhound trainer Ronnie Williams pleaded not guilty and was convicted of 39 counts of felony cruelty after the 2010 starvation deaths of greyhounds in his care at Ebro Greyhound park.

Circuit Court Judge Christopher Patterson accepted the plea and sentenced Williams to five years in prison for each count, the maximum under state law, to be served concurrently, the same penalty as was recommended in Williams' plea. He did not ask for and was not granted any credit for the nearly one year he has already spent behind bars at the Washington County Jail.

NOVEMBER

November 21: Commissioners approve slot machine vote

CHIPLEY — A large crowd gathered as Washington County Commissioners voted unanimously to allow a county-wide voter referendum on slot machines be placed on the Jan. 31 Republican Presidential Primary ballot. The Washington County Kennel Club of DBA Ebro Greyhound Park requested the referendum, which, if approved, would authorize the use of slot machines exclusively at Ebro Greyhound Park. Without slot machines, the facility provides the county with $270,850 in taxes. Park owner Stockton Hess said a favorable vote on the nonpartisan ballot also would allow the park to move forward on creating a full-scale family resort and entertainment complex and bring more than 1,200 jobs to the county.

DECEMBER

December 4: CHS Tigers play for 1st state title

Neither a bus fire nor a tough Northview team could stop the Chipley football team this season.

The Tigers arrived late to the Rural Class 1A state semifinal after the team bus was destroyed by fire, but that did little to impede their playoff surge as they defeated homestanding Northview 25-21. Chipley, which overcame a 14-0 deficit, advanced to the state championship game in Orlando against Jefferson County, which defeated top-ranked Union County in the other semifinal.

Chipley finished 11-3 and defeated three district champions in advancing to its first state title game but couldn't pull off a fourth win over a dis-

Jefferson County broke open a close game to win the inaugural Rural Class 1A crown 47-13.

Christmas greetings from Christian Family Coalition

We wish you a very blessed and Merry Christmas. Along with many others, I am praying that God will continue to shower His protection and provision upon our land.

As a nation, we have drifted very far from the principles upon which our country was founded. I doubt that Washington and Jefferson would even recognize what their posterity has done to what was once a constitutional republic.

At its inception, America was a nation created by Christian men and women upon Judeo-Christian principles. Christian thought, Christian virtue and Christian revival laid America's foundation as surely as there is a sun in the sky. America has never been perfect. Nothing that man touches is. However, America was and still is the greatest experiment in limited government and individual freedom that the world has ever known. While a sizeable percentage of the American people have lost touch with their heritage and no longer seem capable of distinguishing between good and bad government, there are still enough righteous men and women that God is using every day to restore our nation to greatness.

The year of truth?

As we enter 2012 A.D. ("In The Year Of Our Lord") we realize it is a presidential election year here in these Great United States of America. One thing each of us is sure of in an election year is that we will hear people make promises they not only don't intend on keeping, but promises they will never have the power or means to keep. But most of all, we know we will hear a lot of mud slinging, as each participant in the election, aided by the media, will drag out every skeleton from their opponents' closet they can find, and even create some, if they feel they can get by with it.

FROM THE HEART

have to report on real news, or continue what they do best, stir up trouble and cause conflict against a people of Judeo-Christian standards (people with moral convictions as our great forefathers had, that made this nation the great nation it is). But we don't live in a perfect world, do we?

This past month, I was privileged to meet with some influential people of our country, which included Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich; Dr. James Dobson; Congressman Bob McEwen; Historian David Burton; Congressman Dan Webster; Attorney John Stemberger and others. In one of our one-on-one conversation times, Congressman Bob McEwen said something that I never thought I would hear a politician say. McEwen said, "Politicians say what they think the people want to hear." Which means, if we truly desire politicians to become people of truth and morality, we the people must first become people of the truth and morality.

If we became a People of truth, we would begin the year by telling our children the truth. Just think what a great place this would be if, parents began telling their children the truth about Santa Claus, the Easter bunny, the tooth fairy, ghosts and monsters and superheroes. What if parents told their children the truth about sex, life and where we actually came from before the television, schools and kids at school told the lies that are destroying the core of American and the world? What if we began to teach them at home the truth of God's Word, the Bible and what it says about sex, one man, one woman for life and sex is only after marriage (Genesis 2:18-25), communications, respect and love others as yourself (Ephesians 5:22-27), work ethics such as, if you don't work you don't eat (2 Thessalonians 3:10), and loyalty to God (Luke 14:25-27)? Would not our children grow up to have great integrity if we began to tell them the truth, that there is One God Who created all things including the human race, thus we did not evolve from a tadpole or a monkey?

This I know for sure: We will never live in a perfect world on this earth, and there will not be peace on earth until Christ reigns supreme in the new Heaven and earth. But until that day, what a wonderful year 2012 would be if only those who claim to be Christians, lived like Christ (Romans 6:11; 12:9) and always told the truth in love. Happy New Year!

UNCONDITIONAL LOVE

To love someone unconditionally means that one's love is absolute and is without limits. Human emotions are such that we usually distance ourselves from those with unpleasant attitudes or behaviors, so at times loving someone regardless of their actions or feelings toward us is extremely difficult. An example of this could be a married couple - they may be so much in love on their wedding day, but later get a divorce because they no longer care for each other. Unconditional love is a blessing from our Heavenly Father and involves forgiveness, understanding, wisdom, and praying for our loved ones. A parent's love for their children, or a child's love for their parents can be unconditional, and God's love for His chosen people is also unconditional. The Bible tells us that there is nothing in all creation that will ever be able to separate us from the love of God, which is ours through Christ Jesus our Lord.

Live a life of love, just as Christ loved us and gave Himself up for us as a fragrant offering and sacrifice to God.

Health NEWS

USDA launches nutrition SuperTracker

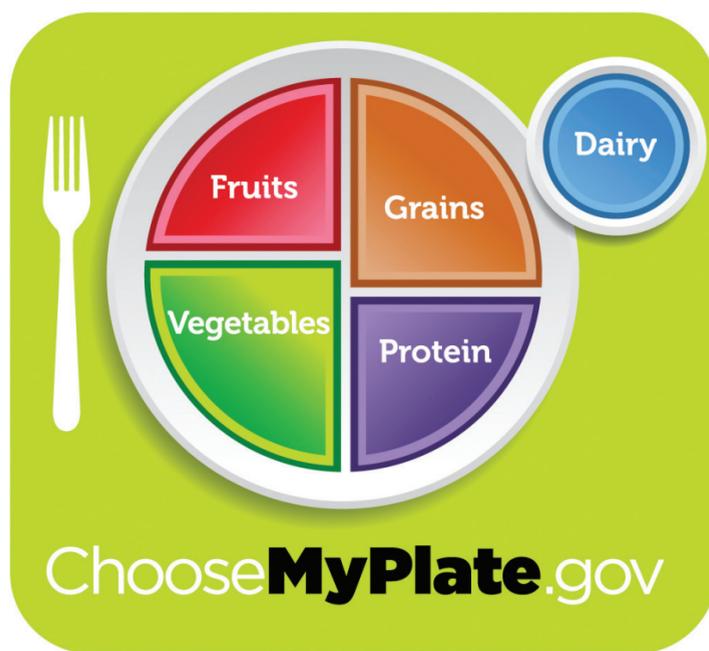

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Just in time to help Americans keep their New Year's resolutions by making healthy food and physical activity choices, Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack recently released USDA's new nutrition SuperTracker. The SuperTracker is a comprehensive, state-of-the-art resource available at ChooseMyPlate.gov designed to assist individuals as they make changes in their life to reduce their risk of chronic disease and maintain a healthy weight. Release of this new web tool comes as USDA highlights the second in a series of themed consumer messages supporting the MyPlate icon — Enjoy Your Food, But Eat Less — that USDA is promoting the next three months in conjunction with more than 5,000 organizations participating in the MyPlate Nutrition Communicators Network.

"Overcoming the health and nutrition challenges we face as a nation is critical and the SuperTracker provides consumers with an assortment of tools to do just that," Vilsack said. "This easy-to-use website will help Americans at all stages of life improve their overall health and well-being as they input dietary and physical activity choices into the tool. During the holiday season, we are surrounded by good food, and this is a perfect time to Enjoy Your Food, But Eat Less."

How to use it

The SuperTracker is a comprehensive resource available at ChooseMyPlate.gov. It is designed to assist individuals as they make changes in their life to reduce their risk of chronic disease and maintain a healthy weight. Consumers can access this free, online tool at anytime and can choose a variety of features to support nutrition and physical activity goals. SuperTracker offers consumers the ability to:

- Personalize recommendations for what and how much to eat and amount of physical activity.
- Track foods and physical activity from an expanded database of foods and physical activities.
- Customize features such as goal setting, virtual coaching, weight

- tracking and journaling.
- Measure progress with comprehensive reports ranging from a simple meal summary to in-depth analysis of food groups and nutrient intake over time.
- Operationalize the 2008 Physical Activity Guidelines.
- Support family and friends by adding their individual profiles.

The SuperTracker complements First Lady Michelle Obama's Let's Move! initiative and provides practical information to help individuals, health professionals, nutrition educators and consumers build healthier diets. As Americans are experiencing epidemic rates of overweight and obesity, the online resources and tools available at ChooseMyPlate.gov can empower people to make healthier food and physical activity choices for themselves, their families, and their children.

Additional new consumer messages in the months to come will include Drink Water Instead of Sugary Drinks; Make at Least Half Your Grains Whole Grains; and Avoid Oversized Portions. USDA and its MyPlate Nutrition Communicators Network partners will find innovative ways to deliver the easy-to-adopt how-tos for these messages to empower consumers to make healthier food choices.

Originally identified in the Child Obesity Task Force report which noted that simple, actionable advice for consumers is needed, MyPlate replaced the MyPyramid image as the government's primary food group symbol as an easy-to-understand visual cue to help consumers adopt healthy eating habits consistent with the 2010 Dietary Guidelines for Americans.

ChooseMyPlate.gov provides practical information to individuals, health professionals, nutrition educators, and the food industry to help consumers build healthier diets with resources and tools for dietary assessment, nutrition education, and other user-friendly nutrition information. As Americans are experiencing epidemic rates of overweight and obesity, the online resources and tools can empower people to make healthier food choices for themselves, their families and their children.

Playhouse Season 5 sponsorships on sale

Special to The News

The Spanish Trail Playhouse Board of Directors would like to thank the community for supporting the playhouse through production attendance and sponsorships over the past year. It is impossible to fully convey our appreciation for your faith in this organization. Through the support of our sponsors and this community, the playhouse has been able to quickly establish the reputation of providing quality live theater to Washington County and the surrounding communities.

Thanks to your financial support, the Spanish Trail Playhouse produced two nearly sold-out productions and one soldout production during the 2011 season. In addition to this, our "Evening of Southern Gospel" and "A Chipley Country Christmas" fundraisers also were successful in entertaining sold-out audiences.

Season 5 will reaffirm our continued mission to promote and increase the public knowledge and appreciation of the arts in Washington County through live theater. The Season 5 lineup includes the Arthur Miller drama "All My Sons," a tribute to one of country music's leading ladies in "Always, Patsy Cline," and a story of the value of friendships in "The Cemetery Club." In addition, we also have planned another "Evening of Southern Gospel" and the third annual "Chipley Country Christmas" to capture your attention.

To ensure the success of Season 5, we encourage you to become a Spanish Trail Playhouse sponsor.
