CHIPLEY — When Washington County voters turn out for the 2012 Primary Election, they won't be settling much in the way of county elections — in fact, only the District 3 School Board race appears on Democratic and Non-Partisan ballots on Aug. 14.

Republican voters will get a little more variety on their ballots, as far as countywide races go — four Republicans are vying for the County Commissioner District 1 seat and two Superintendent of Schools candidates face off on the GOP ticket.

Starting with the County Commissioner races, the field for the District 1 seat includes Republicans Alan T. Bush, Travis Hall, Hilton Kelly and Randy Wilson. The winner of the Republican contest will go on to face Democrat Ross Pritchard in November.

County Commissioner District 3 has Republican Tray Hawkins challenging incumbent Charles Brock, a Democrat, in November.

And in the race for County Commissioner, District 5, Republican Lynn West

EARLY VOTING

Early voting for the 2012 Primary Election begins Saturday, Aug. 4, from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. at the Supervisor of Elections office, in the basement of the Holmes County Courthouse. Early voting also will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 5. For the rest of the week, Aug. 6-11, ballots may be cast from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Gothard will face Democrat John Harmon and James E. Guy (no party affiliation) in a three-way race in November.

Incumbents Donnie Strickland (District 1) and Hulan Carter (District 5) are not seeking re-election to the Board of County Commissioners.

In the Washington County Sheriff's race, incumbent Bobby Haddock, a Democrat, will face Republican Chris Ellis and John Phillip VERNON — Over a year later, the city of Vernon is prepared to move forward with the long-awaited water and sewer project.

The city council approved the engineering agreements for both the Community Development Block Grant Water system improvement and the State Revolving Fund Sewer line project on Monday.

The city has been in need of replacing and expanding their sewer and water system for quite some time and with the widening of State Road 79 the project has been delayed that much more.

"Steps are being taken to insure that this project proceeds at a steady pace," said Grant Writer Nolan Baker.

The CDBG Water system improvement engineering agreement is allowing Baker to set out the bid for the project and the SRF Sewer line project engineering agreement is to go forward with designing the project.

Before the meeting began there was a moment of silence for the recently departed City Council Member Oscar Ward.

"He will be greatly missed by both the city hall and in the city of Vernon," said Mayor Michelle Cook. "He will be missed by all."

The council approved allowing a basketball tournament to be held on Aug. 11 at the Vernon City Hall gym.

The council also approved of writer Brent Heard's request to become an "honorary citizen of Vernon, Fla."

His request stated that he has many fond memories of Vernon and that his newest book would be entitled "Postcards from Vernon."

Pettis announces candidacy for sheriff

From Staff Reports

CHIPLEY — John Pettis announced his candidacy for the office of Washington County Sheriff.

Pettis said in a news release that he believes in active leadership in the sheriff's office. He also wants the sheriff's office to provide honest, fair, consistent enforcement of the law, and display professionalism all of the time; not just after a major crime devastates the community or during an election year.

Over the last seven years, in his career as a professional law enforcement officer, Pettis said he has answered thousands of calls and held more than a couple of titles. He's served as a deputy sheriff, city police officer, K-9 officer, a school resource officer, a correctional officer, a field training officer, and performed many untitled duties along the way.

He is dual-certified in Corrections and Law Enforcement and has worked in both of these areas within the state of Florida. Along the way, Pettis said he has received countless hours of community-based training and is always on the lookout for more ways of enhancing his skills and establishing professional relationships with others in the national, state, and local law enforcement communities to better serve our county.

"I grew up here, my family is here, my roots are here.

I went to school, church and found my first job here, then I got lucky enough to marry a girl from close by and we agreed to live here," Pettis said. "I love America and I know it is not too late for us to change; to be more realistic about our lives, our government and our future. I like and respect the people of our community.

"I enjoy talking and listening to people. I still believe in the creed of 'To Protect and Serve.' With everything going on today, sometimes we forget our job as law enforcement officers is to protect and serve the people; to make them feel safe at work, in their school, raising their children, shopping in our community and going to church in safety."

Pettis said he also believes in customer service. "Like you, I want to be treated with respect; regardless if I am a Democrat, a Republican, whether I am rich or poor; black or white, I simply want fair and equal treatment. This is one of the main reasons I chose to run as a 'No Party Affiliate' candidate, to take the politics out of the sheriff's department; to bring back a time where anyone, at anytime, could express their concerns and issues knowing there would not be any kind of political pressure or repercussions."

Pettis said he has not had the privilege to serve his country in the Armed Forces, but said he "is dedicated to supporting the men and women of the Armed Forces and knows he owes his freedom to those who have served."

"Every county has weaknesses in its government, but these are weaknesses we can turn into strengths. Unfortunately, we are living in a time where our economy has suffered and so has our county," Pettis said. "We see it in every phase of our daily lives. With continual cuts in funding, balancing the administrative and operational budgets with less money has become a huge challenge. One thing I fully understand it is not the Sheriff's money; it's our money and I'll tell you right now every dollar I spend will be spent wisely and only after all other options have been reviewed."

Pettis said he is committed to Washington County.

"I want a true open door and open mind policy for every citizen. I'll keep the public informed on the actions of the Washington County Sheriff's Office and be held accountable for my actions as well as the actions of my deputies," Pettis said. "Looking forward, my biggest goal is to make every citizen of Washington County proud of their Sheriff's Office. Because after all is said and done, it's not about making promises, it's about producing results."

Mourning the loss of another country singer

Once again, it becomes the Prattler's self-assigned duty to report the death of another well known female country music celebrity, Kitty Wells, The Queen of Country Music.

A thanks is extended to Robert K. Oermann, a longtime contributor to Music Row in Nashville and a respected music critic, author and historian. The death of Kitty Wells came on July 16.

The Country Music Hall of Fame inductee, best known for her classic "It Wasn't God Who Made Honky Tonk Angels," died peacefully at her Nashville home. Death was attributed to "complications from a stroke."

Johnnie Wright, age 97, who died on Sept. 27 following a lengthy illness, was the husband of Kitty Wells. My Prattle on October 12 combined the death of Wright along with that of country music legend, Wilma Lee Cooper, who passed away just days prior to Johnnie Wright.

Since those deaths were reported, it has been the sad responsibility for the "Prattler" to inform readers in a full article of the passing of Earl Scruggs and Doc Watson. Only last week, mention was made of the death of Andy Griffith.

Kitty Wells was born Muriel Ellen Deason in Nashville on Aug. 30, 1919. Her father was a guitarist, her uncle a fiddler and her mother a gospel singer. She grew up hearing folk songs in her Nashville living room, learned guitar chords from a neighbor, sang hymns in church and listened to broadcasts of country music on the Grand Ole Opry.

She left school at age 15 and went to work at the Washington Manufacturing Company, ironing new shirts for $9 a week. She formed a duo with her cousin, Bessie Choate. As the Deason Sisters, they had their own 15-minute morning radio show on WSIX in 1936.

She married Johnny Wright in 1937 when he was 23 and she was 18. They became acquainted through a sister of Johnny's, who lived next door to the Deasons. The two musical neighbors soon began swapping songs. Johnny maintained his musical career, along with singing partner, Jack Anglin, while his wife continued her climb to success in music under her stage name of Kitty Wells.

Johnnie dubbed her Kitty Wells from an Opry song done by the Pickard Family titled "I Could Marry Kitty Wells."

When first married, the two formed a trio by adding Kitty's sister, Louise, to the group and billed themselves as Johnnie Wright and the Harmony Girls. Louise later married Jack Anglin, Johnnie's duo partner. Kitty Wells also sang with Johnnie & Jack in the early 1940s.

They landed at KWKH and the Louisiana Haryride after World War II, and this is when she began singing again, using her new stage name, Kitty Wells. She also worked as a disc jockey billed as "Rag Doll," because she sold quilting supplies on her show Between 1952 and 1966, Wells ruled the country popularity charts with a string of hits that defined female country music of that era. She introduced "Release Me," "I Can't Stop Loving You," "Makin' Believe" and "It Wasn't God Who Made Honky Tonk Angels."

This first Nashville female country superstar influenced a generation of stylists, including Loretta Lynn, Dolly Parton, Emmylou Harris, Jan Howard, Norma Jean, Pam Tillis, Connie Smith and Patty Loveless.

In 1952, Johnnie and Jack's hit "Poison Love," brought them to the Opry cast. Kitty had decided to retire from music when she was persuaded to record an "answer" song to the Hank Thompson hit "The Wild Side of Life." By the fall of 1952, "It Wasn't God Who Made Honky Tonk Angels" was a sensation. It was considered controversial at the time because it spoke up for wronged women.

Kitty Wells followed the blockbuster with a string of hit songs sung from a female point of view: "Paying For That Back Street Affair" (1953) ("Cheatin's a sin" 1954), "There's Poison in Your Heart" (1955) ("Searching" 1956), "Repenting" (1957) ("Jealousy" 1958), "Your Wild Life's Gonna Get You Down" (1959) ("Heartbreak U.S.A." 1961), "Will Your Lawyer Talk To God" (1962) and more. She sang memorable duets with fellow superstars Red Foley, Roy Acuff and Webb Pierce, as well as her husband.

During her career,

Kitty Wells placed 81 titles on the county popularity charts and 35 Top 10 hits. She won a Pioneer Award from the Academy of Country Music in 1986. In 1989, she was nominated for a Grammy Award for "Honky Tonk Medley," recorded with Loretta Lynn, K.D. Lang and Brenda Lee. She was presented with a Lifetime Achievement Grammy in 1991. She retired from the road after a performance on New Year's Eve, 2000.

My thanks to cousin Kathleen Wells, a country music enthusiast, who first informed me of Kitty's death. Cousin Ron Taylor of Red Level, an authority in the country music field, and "Prattler" reader Vernon Lewis, a Chipley native now living in Virginia, also emailed me of Kitty's passing. Vernon Lewis wrote that he and his Chipley "picking buddies" had completed a "gig" on a Dothan radio station in 1952 and had stopped for gasoline when Kitty Wells came on the car radio with her hit record "It Wasn't God Who Made Honky Tonk Angels."

Hester and I saw Kitty Wells with the Johnny and Jack show at Ocean Opry, which may have been her last performance. We were able to wish her happy birthday as the date was only a few days away. She was warm and friendly to us, and we cherish that one visit.

The services for Kitty Wells consisted of visitation on Thursday, July 19, from 2-8 p.m. and a funeral on Friday, July 20 at 1 p.m. My personal condolences to her family.

See you all next week.

Study shows it really does 'take a village'

Although the official back to school date is still a few weeks away, I heard an interesting talk Sunday about children and their development, based on research by the Search Institute.

The Rev. Darby Neptune was speaking at Unity of Panama City on the 40 developmental assets for adolescents and how these metrics can predict the success, or lack of success, in youth.

I am not a real big believer in, well, anything... much less sociological mumbo-jumbo mixed in with a bunch of statistics, but the survey from the Search Institute was interesting in that the assets it surveyed included eight basic topics, broken down into two groups — internal assets and external assets.

The external assets were identified as support, empowerment, boundaries and expectations and constructive use of time. The Internal Assets were commitment to learning, positive Values, social competencies and positive identity.

RANDAL SEYLER
Editor

The eight assets are further divided into 20 internal and 20 external subcategories.

"On one level, the 40 developmental assets represent everyday wisdom about positive experiences and characteristics for young people," states on the website, search-institute.org.

For example, under the external assets' support heading, students were asked to rate topics such as family support, positive family communication, other adult relationships, caring neighborhood, caring school climate and parent involvement in schooling.

Children responded on a survey indicating how much, or how little, of these influences were in their lives.

"In addition, Search Institute research has found that these assets are powerful influences on adolescent behavior—both protecting young people from many different problem behaviors and promoting positive attitudes and behaviors. This power is evident across all cultural and socioeconomic groups of youth. There is also evidence from other research that assets have the same kind of power for younger children."

Nearly 150,000 youth, grades six to 12, from 202 different communities across the U.S. were surveyed in 2003, and it was found that more of the assets that the children said they had in their lives, the less likely they were to engage in high-risk behavior, such as problem alcohol use, violence, illicit drug use or sexual activity.

According to the website, the same kind of impact is evident with many other problem behaviors, including tobacco use, depression and attempted suicide, antisocial behavior, school problems, driving and alcohol and gambling.

The Rev. Darby said she was living in Winter Park, Fla., when she first heard of the Search Institute research and the community's dismay when their affluent children barely scored higher than the national average of 18.3 assets.

Neptune said 18 was the national average, and Winter Park scored 18.6.

The number 18 was important, because, according to the research, students who scored 21 or high were dramatically less likely to get into trouble or drop out of school.

Having more assets, according to the report, also mean the chances increased that the young people would have positive attitudes and behaviors.

Many of the external assets deal not just with the children's immediate family, but with their whole community — schools, churches, neighbors and adults. Children who find their community respects them and treats them as valued community members become valued community members. Those who do not feel connected to their communities suffer; and as a result, the community suffers.

The Rev. Darby's advice was simple. Treat children with respect, and communicate with them.

Typically adults shun children — sometimes even their own children — but the more engaged and accepted a child is by his community, the more he wants to be a part of the community, not a problem.

In the end, it seems, at least according to the Search Institute's research, it really may take a village to raise a child.

Who'd have think it?

Former State Attorney talks judicial system to Kiwanis

CHIPLEY — The Chipley Kiwanis Club met for its weekly luncheon at Pattillo's Restaurant at the Washington-Holmes County Technical Center.

JIM APPLEMAN

The guest speaker for the lunch was Jim Appleman, former State Attorney for the 14th Judicial Circuit. Appleman was the state attorney for our area for 16 years. His remarks were non-political as he explained how the judicial system in Florida operates. Following is a summary of Appleman's explanation.

The judicial process is initiated when a complaint is filed, which can be filed by either law enforcement personnel or a resident. Once filed, law enforcement will investigate and try to determine if there is probable cause to believe that a crime has been committed and who committed the crime. Once probable cause has been determined, law enforcement will arrest the individual or individuals suspected of a crime. One notable exception to probable cause is in the case of domestic violence. If investigating domestic violence, law enforcement is compelled to remove at least one of the parties to the violence, even if unable to determine probable cause. The reason for this is that if one of the parties is not removed, the domestic violence usually begins anew upon the departure of law enforcement. Removal of at least one party protects both parties.

When arrested a suspect is confined to a jail. His first appearance before a judge, appropriately called "First Appearance," is simply to determine if the suspect is a risk for flight or will show in court when required. To determine this, the judge considers the charges, the defendant, the defendant's past history and whether or not the defendant can afford an attorney. Depending upon the circumstances, a suspect may be released, may be released after posting bail or may be ordered held in jail. First Appearance makes no attempt to evaluate the validity of the charges, but simply to assess the risk of flight of the defendant.

Only after First Appearance does the state attorney's office become involved. The state attorney, or one of his deputies, will meet with law enforcement to evaluate the case. If there appears insufficient evidence to go forward with a trial, the state attorney's office has the discretion to dismiss the charges. If the state attorney's office and law enforcement find there is sufficient reason and evidence to proceed, the state attorney "files for information," the formal document that may result in a trial. The defendant is then arraigned and given the information the state has against him or her, and the judge makes a determination (again) as to whether or not the defendant can afford an attorney or should be assigned a public defender (lawyer).

Both the State Attorney's Office and the Public Defender's Office are funded through tax revenue.

Once a defense lawyer has been hired or assigned the process of "Discovery" begins. The state attorney's office must turn over to the defense any evidence that they possess concerning the case. The defense lawyer(s) and the state attorney meet to discuss the case to see if it should be resolved without going to trial. In Florida, the victim of the crime is also involved in this process. Depending upon the suspected crime, the evidence, and the defendant, the state attorney and defense may agree to a plea deal which avoids a timely and costly trial. In a plea deal, the defendant agrees to plead guilty in exchange for any one or combination of reduced charges, probation or a reduced sentence. The presiding judge has the final approval authority over any plea deal.

Of note, in "Discovery" the state must turn over to the defense all information it has pertaining to the case. The defense does not need to give the state all information it possesses, but it must inform the state of all witnesses it intends to call and the state has the right to depose (question) all potential defense witnesses before the trial. As opposed to the federal system, the Florida system seeks to avoid any surprises by either the state or the defense during the trial.

In Florida, as in all of the United States, a defendant has a right to a trial by a jury composed of peers; the right to cross examine all witnesses; and the right to not testify against oneself.

Appleman informed the club that most cases are resolved through some sort of plea bargain. A small percentage go to trial. This saves the state time and money. It costs Florida about $50 per day in operating costs to keep a person in jail. This does not include the cost of building the jail or prison.

Commission releases report on jobs for those with disabilities

Special To The News

TALLAHASSEE — In conjunction with the 22nd anniversary of the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Governor's Commission on Jobs for Floridians with Disabilities released its premier 2012 annual report recently.

"As we work to make Florida the best place for businesses to create private-sector jobs, we must also be sure that those persons with disabilities who want to work have the opportunity to do so," Gov. Rick Scott said. "Having a job adds to any person's dignity and purpose and opens doors to independence, which is especially important for Floridians with disabilities."

Gov. Scott created the Commission through Executive Order 11-161 to study and find ways to address the disparity in employment for persons with disabilities relative to the general population. Charged by the executive order "to provide public policy solutions and strategies to the Governor and state policymakers," the Commission provides three primary recommendations to serve as initial steps for advancing job and employment opportunities for Floridians with disabilities:

The Commission recommends streamlining information and identifying a single-point of contact for employers so they can easily navigate the disability system and expand their pool of qualified candidates.

"Having a job adds to any person's dignity and purpose and opens doors to independence, which is especially important for Floridians with disabilities."

Gov. Rick Scott

The Commission recommends the development of a long-term communications plan for the state to promote awareness among employers in order to address misperceptions of persons with disabilities.

The Commission determined persons with disabilities need to be given as many firsthand experiences as possible to participate and compete in the workforce. The Commission recommends state policymakers, business leaders, and community partners promote and utilize internship and work experience opportunities for individuals with disabilities as a key tool to improving perceptions and addressing the employment disparity confronting these individuals.

The Commission will continue to hold periodic meetings around the state to seek input from employers in order to better understand how the state can assist businesses in establishing a corporate culture that is enthusiastic about hiring persons with disabilities.

The goal is to fulfill Governor Scott's top priority to ensure all Floridians are able to gain employment.

Hooked on Outdoors

There is a king mackerel tournament coming in August that I'm sure many will want to enter. This is not one of those costly life-or-death tournaments. I've fished tournaments that offer large sums of money and they can bring out the worst in people.

The tournament is hosted by the Mexico Beach Artificial Reef Association. The 16th annual MBARA Kingfish Tournament will be Aug. 25 in Mexico Beach. The Captains Party is on Friday night Aug. 24.

The prize money certainly is enough to warrant the entry fee, but not large enough to stay up late into night trying to figure out a way to cheat. Entry is $150 per boat and you can fish as many anglers as you can safely put on a boat. You can leave from anywhere and dock anywhere, but you must weigh your fish at Mexico Beach Marina from 1-5 p.m. CDT. You can bring your fish to the scales by boat, car, horse or truck. Fishing will begin at 5 a.m. and end at 5 p.m. This is a one-day boat tournament.

Prizes for the fish are as follows: King Mackerel, 1. $3,000, 2. $2,000, 3. $1,000; Spanish Mackerel, 1. $500, 2. $300, 3. $200; Wahoo, 1. $1,000, only one fish eligible.

Since 1997 the MBARA has raised and spent more than $1 million on more than 200 artificial reefs off Mexico Beach, Panama City and Port St. Joe. All reefs are public numbers and are posted on the organization's website. You also can see underwater video of these reefs on the website as well. This is an all-volunteer organization.

You can preregister online at www.mbara.org or you can preregister at Mexico Beach Marina or at Half Hitch Tackle in Port St. Joe. You can read a detailed explanation of the rules at www.mbara.org and read a question and answer section for your information.

If you own a small boat like mine, this is the tournament to enter. You would never have to leave the buoy line to catch either a king or Spanish mackerel. As a matter of fact, a Spanish would be what I would be fishing for. Bring the family and have a good time.

THE GREAT Pollinators

By STAN KIRKLAND
FWC

There's a growing movement in Florida, and the rest of the country, for that matter, to recognize the crucial value of pollinators and the role they play in agriculture and forestry.

Pollinators include insects such as bees, beetles, flies, butterflies and moths, and other wildlife species such as birds and bats.

"Pollinators are absolutely crucial to the things we eat and, in some cases, what we wear," said Arlo Kane, a wildlife biologist with the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC). "Pollinators move pollen between flowers and this annually accounts for the production of $20 billion worth of vegetables, fruits and nuts."

Kane was one of seven speakers at a recent pollinator short course in Marianna. In addition to the FWC's presence, the 150 participants who attended were hosted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture — Natural Resources Conservation Service, National Wild Turkey Federation, University of Florida — IFAS, and The Xerces Society for Invertebrate Conservation.

Unfortunately, pollinators, and particularly species of insects, are in decline across the country, according to Kane. There are 4,000 species of bees alone that are native to the United States and most have disappeared or are only a fraction of their original number.

A National Academy of Sciences report says the decline in pollinators is due to habitat loss, diseases and widespread pesticide use.

To stem the loss of pollinators, there's an emphasis to get gardeners, homeowners and landowners to help by planting wildflowers and plants that are good for native bees and other insects.

"The plants should be native to our area, which means they'll likely require less fertilizer or water than plants from other parts of the country," Kane said. "You also need a variety of plants so you have flowering plants from the spring into the fall."

Suggested areas for planting native wildflowers include the borders or edges of farm fields, in between the rows of planted pines; roadsides, and gardens.

Kane said native wildflowers and the insects they attract are also great habitat and feeding areas for wildlife such as bobwhite quail, wild turkeys, mourning doves and gopher tortoises.

Information about Florida's native wildflowers is available at local plant nurseries and online at flwildflowers.org or xerces.org.

The green anole is no chameleon

By JESSICA BASHAM
Special to the News/

Green anoles, a type of American lizard, are often called American chameleons because they can change color, but they are not chameleons at all.

These anoles are the only native lizard in the southeastern United States that changes color, but it is only from bright green to brown or gray. Usually their change in color is due to stress, but also to temperature and mating. Males extend a bright pink dewlap (a piece of skin that unfolds from its throat) when looking for a mate or when warning other males to back off. Their head-bobs are like pushups and show the female and other males that they are strong.

Mating season starts in the beginning of April and continues throughout the summer months. In south Florida, the mating season is a little longer. If you see a green anole bobbing up and down and showing his dewlap, look around: there may be a female nearby. A female lays one or sometimes two eggs every two weeks, usually in dirt or debris at the base of a plant.

The green anole is the only native anole in the Southeast and is found from North Carolina west to Texas and throughout Florida.

True chameleons, however, live in Africa, Madagascar, Portugal, Spain and parts of Asia. At least two species have been introduced into Florida. They can change to every color of the rainbow because of mood, temperature, habitat, stress, anger and defense. They often blend easily into their surroundings by changing color. Chameleons hold on to branches with their feet and coiled tails. Their long, curled tongues shoot out like arrows to catch prey.

Anoles are small, long and slender. Like the chameleon, they have the ability to cling to objects but only

Special to the NEWS/TIMES ADVERTISER

Green anoles are mistakenly called American chameleons because they change color. However, green anoles only turn shades of green, brown or gray.

because of a sticky pad on the underside of their toes. Their tails are not coiled but long and thin and can break easily. This is so they can escape predators. When caught by the tail, the lizard squirms until its tail breaks and it can escape to freedom. The confused predator is left with only the tail and wondering where its lunch has gone. Lizard tails will grow back a little.

Watching green anoles is easy. Around homes, they hang from walls, scurry across sidewalks and driveways and climb shrubs, branches and trees. A little anole visits me daily. He perches on a railing outside my office window and bobs his head up and down, showing off his bright pink dewlap. Anoles generally have a territory, so chances are you'll see one in the same place, day after day.

Panama City softball team wins division title

Special to the News

Completed last weekend was the United States Fastpitch Association 2012 Softball World Series at Frank Brown Park in Panama and local girls are on a team out of Panama, which won their division.

This team was put together for the first time this year and represents seven area high school teams. Rutherford, Bay, Arnold, Mosley, North Bay Haven, Chipley, and Holmes County.

They have played in seven tournaments this summer and plan to stay together to continue into the fall. Highlights for the World Series include Pitchers and catchers — Cheyenne Berry (HC), Emily Kent (CH), and Kayla Whitaker (R) and MacKenzie Wolffer (B) and Carley Mead (CH) combined for 33 out of 51 of the outs at the plate in strikeouts.

Kayla Whitaker had 33 strikeouts in the tournament despite fighting off fevers of 105 the night before bracket games started. Her team carried her with an awesome display of hitting to allow her the rest she needed to do her job.

They were backed up by an awesome defensive stance that allowed only 2 runs in pool play. There were no runs scored on the Power in bracket play. Kinzie Harrington (Mosley) led the team hitting for the tournament hitting .571. Kaylyn Julian (R) led the team in RBI's. Others who hit above .500 were Jessie Powell (R), Shelby Ramsey (Arnold).

These girls have come a long way from the first tournament they played in May. They have played A and B class tournaments all summer to prepare for this World Series Trophy.

Candidates discuss challenges, goals

Hilton Kelly Vernon Board of County Commissioners District 1

What made you decide to run for this office?

To make Washington County a better place to live for everyone.

What qualities and experiences do you have which make you qualified for the office?

I have worked in Washington County as a public servant most of my working career. Now that I am retired I still have a strong desire to continue helping my fellow Washington Countians. I retired from the Xerox Corporation after 35 years as a customer engineer and field service manager. I am a moral, Christian man with many life experiences working with people.

What other political ex-

periences have you had? I am a member of the Washington County Planning Commission. I ran for District 1 County Commissioner in 2008 and lost by only 192 votes.

Are you a veteran? If so, list branch of service.

I am a proud veteran of the United States Navy. I served honorably aboard the USS Ingraham DD 694.

What challenges do you think the office you are seeking will face in the near future and what would you do to meet those challenges?

With the failing US economy, I think Washington County's revenues will fall short in reaching its goal to adequately provide proper services to its residents. I feel strongly about my number one goal, to attract jobs for this great county.

Tell our readers whatever you want them to know about you before they head to the polls.

I am a hard working, honest and moral Christian. If I tell you I'll do something, then you can take it to the bank. I am a fourth-generation Washington Countian. I have a successful work record in management and customer service. You the people will be my customers when I am on the board! I will work hard to see that our tax dollars are used effectively and help the board to work as a team in bringing industry to this county. I am retired and the only candidate in District 1 that can serve you full time. I was raised right, I lived right and I will do right by Washington County.

John Pettis Cottondale Washington County Sheriff No party affiliation

JOHN PETTIS

What made you decide to run for this office?

I like and respect the people of our community. I enjoy talking and listening to people. I still believe in the Law Enforcement creed of "To Protect and Serve". With everything going on today, sometimes we forget our job as Law Enforcement Officer's is to protect and serve the people; to make them feel safe at work, in their school, raising their children, and going to church in safety. I will give it my all to rekindle the relationship between Law Enforcement and the community. I will give the community a chance to be involved in their Sheriff's Office.

What qualities and experience do you have which make you qualified for this office?

Over the last seven years, in my career as a professional law enforcement officer, I have answered thousands of calls for service and held more than a couple of titles. I have served as a Deputy Sheriff, City Police Officer, K-9 Officer, a School Resource Officer, a Correctional Officer, a Field Training Officer, and performed many untitled duties along the way. I am dual-certified in Corrections and Law Enforcement and I have worked in both of these areas within the State of Florida. Along the way I have received countless hours of community based training and I am always on the lookout for more ways of enhancing my skills and establishing professional relationships with others in the national, state, and local law enforcement communities to better serve our county.

What other political experience have you had?

I have never been involved in any kind of Political Campaign, but I have truly enjoyed the experience I have had during this campaign

Are you a veteran? If so, list branch of service.

I have not had the privilege to serve my country in the Armed Forces, but I am dedicated to supporting the men and women of the Armed Forces and I know I owe my freedom to those who have served.

What challenges do you think the office you are seeking will face in the near future and what would you do to meet those challenges?

Unfortunately, we are living in a time where our economy has suffered and so has our county. We see it in every phase of our daily lives. With continual cuts in funding, balancing the administrative and operational budgets with less money has become a huge challenge. One thing I fully understand, it is not the Sheriff's money; it's our money and I'll tell you right now every dollar I spend will be spent wisely and only after all other options have been reviewed.

Tell our readers whatever you want them to know about you before they head to the polls.

If ever you need me, I will make the time, I'll be there! I am committed to Washington County. I want a true open door and open mind policy for every citizen. I'll keep the public informed on the actions of the Washington County Sheriff's Office and be held accountable for my actions as well as the actions of my deputies. Looking forward, my biggest goal is to make every citizens of Washington County proud of their Sheriff's Office! Because after all is said and done; it's not about making promises, it's about producing results.

Bonifay Postmaster Roger Brooks retires

From Staff Reports
BONIFAY — After 43 years of service, Bonifay Postmaster Roger Brooks has announced his retirement as of July 31.

According to Brooks, he began his career as a custodian at the Bonifay office during the summer shortly after graduating high school.

Two years later he was appointed as a letter carrier and then was promoted to Supervisor of Customer Service shortly after.

Brooks said that during his time as Supervisor he had the privilege to work in many post offices in the panhandle of Florida, including Blountstown, Caryville, Graceville, Panama City and included many offices in both North and South Florida and South Georgia.

In 1985 he was appointed Postmaster of Bonifay.

"I will miss the employees and the customers of the local office," said Brooks. "Serving the public has been an honor and I have always tried to give back to the community. The entire opportunity has been a blessing."

The retiring Postmaster acknowledged former Postmaster Ed Williams for his support during those early years of Brooks' career.

"I will continue to live in the Bonifay area, but I will be spending time with my daughter, her husband and a couple of special granddaughters who live in South Carolina," said Brooks.

Human treats, poison to pets

There are a number of things around your house that can be deadly to your cats and dogs, some you may know, and some may be surprising. Some are even in your kitchen cabinets and refrigerator. Dr. Dorothy Black, clinical assistant professor at the Texas A&M University College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences (CVM), shares some enlightening information about common food items that may be toxic to your pet.

According to Dr. Black, the following foods can be particularly dangerous to cats and dogs.

"These foods may not necessarily cause toxic reactions in every case of ingestion, but it's just a good 'rule of thumb' to keep these items off your kitchen counters and under no circumstances feed these foods to your pet," Black said.

Grapes and raisins possess an unknown toxic substance that can lead to renal failure by an unknown mechanism. Toxic doses have been reported after ingesting just one to two grapes or raisins. Not all animals suffer kidney failure after grape/raisin ingestion and it appears to be an idiosyncratic reaction. Nevertheless, it is best to avoid this food for your dogs and cats. There is no known antidote, only supportive care and renal dialysis to support kidney recovery.

"Grapes can be particularly tricky for dogs, because many actually like to eat grapes, so you have to be especially aware," Black said. "Our pets are amazing creatures, but they can really get into dangerous situations with human food very quickly."

Chocolate is commonly known to be bad for pets. It contains two ingredients known to be toxic to dogs and cats, caffeine and theobromine. Dark chocolate is particularly harmful because it has a higher concentration of toxic metabolites than milk or white chocolate. Clinical signs of distress seen after chocolate ingestion include: anxiety/anxiousness, hyperactivity, urination, elevated body temperature, seizures, and irregular heart rhythms. There is no antidote, but supportive care is usually successful for recovery.

Xylitol is a common sugar substitute now used in many home kitchens.

It is associated with a severe decline in blood sugar levels and liver failure if ingested by pets. The exact mechanism of the toxicity is unknown and there is no antidote. Supportive care is typically successful for treatment of hypoglycemia, however, liver failure may still occur and prognosis is guarded.

"It is important to remember that if you cook or use xylitol in your foods, that those foods should not be fed to pets," Black said. "It is still toxic if used in cooking or baking."

Onions, garlic, and chives are also toxic to pets. They contain the toxin allicin, which is released upon crushing or chewing the plant. Allicin damages the hemoglobin in red blood cells leading to anemia (such as Heinz body anemia and methemoglobinemia). Cats are especially susceptible to this toxin. There is no antidote, however, supportive care is typically successful.

While cats are particularly affected by onions and garlic, dogs are especially susceptible to macadamia nut toxicity. An unknown toxin in the nut leads to difficulty walking, high body temperatures, depression, and vomiting within one to two hours after ingestion. While no deaths have been reported to date, supportive care in the hospital is often required.

"Supportive care, which is the usual treatment for food toxicity, often works to recover pets who ingest these foods," Black said. "But these supportive treatments to get pets back on their feet are often very costly for the owner, and difficult for the patient. In cases that require dialysis, pets have a difficult road to recovery."

The foods mentioned here should be kept off countertops and out of reach of pets, and under no circumstances fed to dogs and cats. Preventing your pet from ingesting these items is the best way to keep them safe. But if they do ingest these foods, Dr. Black recommends contacting your veterinarian immediately.

Learning Religion by Heart

In many cultures children are taught prayers and creeds shortly after they have begun to speak. Without understanding them, young children memorize their prayers and creeds. As these children grow in understanding, their parents may explain bits and pieces of the prayers if their children are curious and bold enough to ask. But, as a general rule, most children accept whatever their parents tell them, and parents assume wrongly, that because the children have learned their prayers that they also understand them. The prayers are reinforced by regular recitations, at church and at home, but there is often little effort to explain or interpret them. When these children are old enough to be on their own, they will remember their prayers in the same way that they remember nursery rhymes; there will be a strong resonance and perhaps even a feeling of comfort and safety associated with these prayers, but no deep understanding, and no live connection with one's faith. Are we attempting to instill faith in a way that is more appropriate to learning poetry or multiplication tables rather than having a genuine experience of God?

"Fix these words of mine in your hearts and minds; tie them as symbols on your hands and bind them on your foreheads. Teach them to your children, talking about them when you sit at home and when you walk along the road, when you lie down and when you get up."
Deuteronomy 11:19

So, this is summer, is it?

Rev. James L. Snyder

It was just another day, and I was indulging a carefree moment of complaining about the weather. "I can't believe it's so hot today," I muttered. I thought I was talking to myself, but obviously, I had an audience.

Have you ever said or did something not realizing somebody was watching you?

Every time I am in a restaurant eating, I endeavor to remember there is an audience and try my very best not to spill the soup on my lap. Although, I must admit that that kind of lap dance always gets a vigorous round of applause from the audience. Don't ask me how I know.

I thought in my own special way of thinking that I was alone only to find out the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage was within earshot of my remarks. I must say she is rather remarkable. Those "earshot moments" are quite extensive. I will not go as far as to say that she can read my mind, although I think she can, but she seems to know what I am thinking even before I go through the effort and labor of thinking.

I do not know why I even spend the energy thinking on my own. Even when I do think up a thought of my own and go so far as to express it I am always challenged. The challenge is to not think that way. The challenger is my wife.

Life would be so much easier, not to mention less stressful, if I just would quit thinking my own thoughts. It is when I am thinking my own thoughts that I get into trouble. Life would be so much easier if I allowed someone else to think my thoughts for me. After all, isn't that why men get married? Why women get married still baffles me.

Getting back to my moment of complaining: "I can't believe," I muttered, "it's so hot today." To which, my wife said, "Don't you know it's summer? And don't you know that it's supposed to be hot during the summer?"

I did know that, but it did not make the heat any more bearable. Then she said something that rather confused me. I have been confused before. Confusion is a familiar territory to me. But this confusion was different.

"If," my wife said rather sternly, "you can't stand the heat get out of the kitchen."

What the kitchen had to do with it being hot outside is way beyond my pay scale. There was a brief moment when I almost threw caution to the wind and asked my wife what she meant by that comment. Boy, am I glad I didn't.

I make it a practice to stay as far away from the kitchen as possible, especially when my wife is present. There is something about a kitchen that makes me rather nervous to the point of dropping her favorite cup and having it break all over the floor. I stay out of the kitchen, heat or no heat.

"If I remember correctly," my wife said as she stared at me rather intently, "a few months ago you were complaining about how cold it was." She was right. It was not but a few months ago, I was complaining that it was so cold outside that I just could not bear it.

"You're going to have to make up your mind." That was a serious admonition from her. For her to tell me to make up my mind sends some very contradictory messages to me. After all, she is forever making up my mind for me. She seems to know exactly what I want at the restaurant and before I can get a word in edgewise or otherwise, she has ordered for me. I'm not complaining. She knows exactly what I want.

"Either," she continued, "it's too hot or it's too cold. Now make up your mind."

I smiled demurely in her direction and nodded in the affirmative. Not wanting to further the conversation I whispered very gently, "Yes, dear." It concluded our tête-à-tête.

Later on in the evening, we were watching television. It was the local news, and the special report of the day had to do with the record heat wave across our country. "It's been a long time," the weatherman said, "since we've seen temperatures this high. Boy, is it hot out there."

I glanced in her direction as covertly as possible and noticed she was staring at me, just daring me to say something.

There is a time to say something, and then sometimes something should not be said at all. I concealed my infectious grin as much as possible knowing that someone was watching me.

Under my breath I whispered, "I can't believe it's so hot today." After all, it is summer and it is supposed to be hot. I just believe that everybody has the right to complain about the weather. I also believe that some people have the right not to hear me complain about the weather.

It is a well-noted mark of wisdom to know when to speak and when not to speak.

Solomon in the Old Testament had it right when he said, "Even a fool, when he holdeth his peace, is counted wise: and he that shutteth his lips is esteemed a man of understanding" (Proverbs 17:28 KJV).

So, this is summer, but you did not hear it from me.

Arts group plans for future

Special to Extra

Planning ahead for the future is a great idea and a key ingredient in most successful businesses but is a daunting task, as the Board of Trustees and Officers of The Artists Guild of Northwest Florida Inc. discovered this year. The nine-member board and officers of the not-for-profit 501(c)(3) Florida corporation based in Jackson County have been wrestling with the strategic planning for the organization since January. They completed the task in July and developed goals and objectives for the organization over the next three years.

Getting started on such an arduous task takes creative leadership. TAG called upon Paul Smith, Kevin Yoder and Juanice Wengert of Rivertown Community Church, who volunteered their time in two separate workshops to get the process started. Then Nancy Zurenda, TAG president, took the reins and guided the board and other interested members through the goal setting and planning process. Much of the work was hammered out in the conference room at the Jackson County Public Library and by individual board members.

Strategic planning is especially challenging in the context of a not-for-profit organization with a diverse membership. The initial meeting outlined numerous objectives for the organization. Then the TAG membership was asked what they believed to be the most important goals for the group. Under Zurenda's direction, the participating members honed the goals and established objectives.

"Our plan includes 17 Strategic Objectives with goals that will serve to accomplish TAG's mission to enrich the cultural and artistic life of Northwest Florida and the surrounding areas through educational programs and opportunities in the visual, performing, and literary arts. Several committees have been formed to focus on the areas of growing membership, searching for a TAG home, expanding art sales opportunities, as well as advertising/marketing and fundraising," stated Zurenda.

"TAG is not an organization just for 2 and 3 dimensional artists," Zurenda said. "Our goal is to reach out to writers, and performing artists as well as art patrons and art lovers and to include them in our programming."

In order to enrich the cultural and artistic life of Northwest Florida TAG has a long range goal of finding and supporting a permanent location for the organization to host workshops, seminars, and meetings. The facility could also support a gallery and a small shop featuring the work of local and regional artists. "The arts can help fuel the local economy and promote small businesses as well by attracting visitors to our communities," said TAG Founding President Judy Brooten.
