Lock change questioned at Sportsplex

By RANDAL SEYLER
638-0212 | @WCN_HCT
rseyler@chipleypaper.com

CHIPLEY — A town resident and peewee football coach asked the Vernon City Council why the council had approved changing the locks on the city's Sportsplex — only to be told that the council had no knowledge of the lock change.

Jason Bullard asked the council why his Washington County youth football squad was being denied use of the city park to practice in preparation for the upcoming Snapper Bowl, which will be held in Panama City Beach beginning on Nov. 27.

"We've been practicing in Wausau, and that's okay, but I don't understand why we can't practice here at the city park," Bullard said. "We're just doing this for the kids, and it doesn't cost the city anything for us to practice there."

Bullard said his group of kids is an all-star group that is preparing to compete in the Snapper Bowl, and has students from both Washington and Holmes Counties participating. This year the town of Ponce de Leon is providing insurance for the team, but last year Vernon provided that coverage, Bullard said.

"Your name was not brought up at the workshop," said Councilman Tray Hawkins. "We have discussed not having practices at night at the parks where you have to use the lights, but other than that, I don't think we can tell you not to use the parks."

Hawkins said the park was built for public use with grant money, so it was open to use by the public.

City Attorney Michelle Tagert

asked Bullard to make sure the city of Vernon is listed as a payee on the insurance.

Bullard said he had been told that Mayor Michelle Cook had ordered keys to the Sportsplex collected and all the locks changed at the order of the city council. "Scotty Corbin was told the city council wanted his keys back because the council wanted to change the locks," Bullard said.

"We never discussed that," said Councilman Shawn Sanders.

letters from well-wishers, including Florida Governor Rick Scott and State Senator Don Gaetz, and Malcolm Nelson joked

In his closing address, Reverend Wilson joked that he has already starting to make plans for his 100th birthday party.

"We appreciate all you do for the kids, and anything that we can do to help build up the football program in Vernon we want to do," Hawkins said. "We want to make it enjoyable for the kids."

City Clerk Dian Hendrix said a locksmith had indeed shown up last week to change locks in the city.

"Were the locks changed?" Hawkins asked.

"As far as I know," Hendrix said.

"Well, the city council didn't approve it," Hawkins said.

If the city is going to change locks, Hendrix suggested the city look into electronic locks, where pass codes can be reset instead of replacing the hardware each time.

"The Sportsplex locks are the same keys as the bathrooms at Shady Grove Park," Hawkins said. "If you have thrown away all those keys, then now we need to go change the locks at Shady Grove, too."

Sanders asked what was the purpose of the recreation board and when it met. No one on the council seemed to know when and if the recreation board did meet.

Kathy Foster, publisher of the Foster Folly News website, pointed out to the council that the recreation board falls under Florida Sunshine Law requirements and meetings must be advertised so the public may attend.

Hendrix said she would look into the recreation board meeting schedule.

"I think we need to discuss this further at the Nov. 12 workshop," Chairperson Tina Sloan said.

"We need to get this fixed," Hawkins said. "We've opened a can of worms, here."

Sometimes being in hot water is a good thing.

When we hear the words "you're in hot water now," it's usually not a good thing. But with the H2O Plus program from your local electric cooperative, those words take on a whole new meaning. When you sign up for H2O Plus, we'll equip your water heater (at no cost to you) with a special device that allows us to cycle the unit for short periods of time. The more water heaters we have in the H2O Plus program, the bigger the impact. Our members still have plenty of hot water and our co-ops are better equipped to handle energy demand & control wholesale power costs. It's a win-win situation.

Career in a year with Washington-Holmes Technical Center

By CECILIA SPEARS

cspears@chipleypaper.com

BONIFAY — Sherri Skipper with Washington-Holmes Technical Center's Information Technology program said the technical center is proud to say it provides a career in a year and informed the Bonifay Kiwanis Club at its Oct. 23 meeting it offers two new courses, Applied Information Technology and Applied Cybersecurity.

"We are trying to get the word out as to what we provide at the Washington-Holmes Technical Center, and we are also trying to change stigma of 'The Votech,'" Skipper said. "We don't want to be 'The Votech' anymore. We want to be The Technical Center, and we're trying really hard to hopefully, within the next year or so, become the Technical College."

She said when it does become a college there might be a name change involved. "That's just the kind of changes we're taking with the technical center, and with that we have many programs at the technical center that have been there for ages and are very successful programs that will never go away because they train people to work in our prison systems, in our police department, our local law enforcement, our nurses at our local hospitals and local nursing homes," Skipper said. "We've got our welding program that trains our welders around our area. So there are a lot of successful programs that have been there a long time, however the technical center is starting to incorporate some new programs. One program that started about the same time I did is the Digital Audio Program, and they're working on hopefully getting a radio station out at the technical center sometime in the near future."

She said the technical center has been working on establishing a radio station for the past year, describing it as a "work in progress."

She said on her advisory board, she has someone from the Washington-Holmes Health Department, a computer consultant business owner, someone from the Department of Transportation, a representative in the IT field from West Point Home and someone from the Washington County School Board Office.

"These people have all been involved in IT and have contributed some very valuable knowledge and information as to what they consider the appropriate industry certifications so that the students we put through these programs will be marketable and will be able to find jobs," Skipper said. "The first program is the Applied Information Technology, which is a total of 600 hours with three courses. The first course is 150 hours and is just the basic computer knowledge; the second course is 600 hours and it gets a little more in depth into the software, the hardware, how to troubleshoot things, the meat and the bones of what a computer is inside and out; and then the last course in that program is web development fundamentals, and we learn HTML5 and CCS3, and that is 150 hours, and students should be able to go in and webpage using those two computer languages and design web pages with those."

She said from there they would be able to apply for an entry-level job working for a company that has someone on call for technology support.

"They can work for computer repair shops, consulting firms that will send them out to troubleshoot," Skipper said. "At that point they are employable."

She said after the Applied Information Technology course, students can then choose to move on to Applied Cybersecurity.

"In the Applied Cybersecurity Program, there are two courses, and the first course is 600 hours, and this is where we prepare to take and pass the security pro certifications," she said. "This course work teaches the student everything they need to know about securing computers, firewalls, about setting policies for group management, about setting network security or a network you might be on, about Internet security; security from top to bottom. The last course is 150 hours; it's what we call Information Security Administrator; and basically what we teach the students is how to be ethical hackers so that they can go in and do penetration testing to see where the weaknesses are in different security environments and try to break into those ethically to see what needs to be fixed so that the real hackers can't get into those areas and steal information and steal identities."

Skipper introduced Kim Shaw, head of the Digital Media and Multimedia

Design Programs that will officially be taking students in January.

"She is responsible for the pamphlets that go out and tells all about the programs that we offer," Skipper said. "She's also responsible for putting together our webpage for the technical center and help promote what we offer at the technical center."

Shaw said that she'd be teaching everything from the basics, such as cropping and Photoshop, photography, website design and how to do graphics for print.

"We used to have a print class, but the old style of print has pretty much gone away except for the printing industries," Shaw said. "We revamped it so that it's based more on design and how you can set it up for a print shop for the best cost for businesses. There's just so much that this school has to offer that people just don't know the long list of things that we can do."

Pricey Fix

The governor's mansion in Tallahassee is known as "the People's House." We bet there are plenty of people in Florida who wish they could spend as much on fixing up their homes as Gov. Rick Scott did on his.

The AP reported that Scott, in three years on the job, has spent $800,000 for "substantial improvements" to the mansion.

These include cleaning oriental rugs and refinishing oak flooring.

About $600,000 of that sum was taxpayer money and went toward upkeep of the grounds and the "public side" of the mansion, which includes the garden and rooms where public receptions are held.

But $200,000 was spent on both public rooms and on the first couple's personal quarters.

That money came from private donors, such as U.S. Sugar, Florida Crystals and Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Florida, large corporations that have business before the state government.

In addition, gifts came from a lobbyist and the CEO of private company that runs two Florida penitentiaries.

The amount spent on the governor's mansion so far in Scott's term far exceeds what was spent on his predecessor Charlie Crist's four years in office, $27,000. Nearly $3 million was spent on the mansion during Jeb Bush's eight years in office, but a chunk of that included expensive post-9/11 security upgrades, such as spending $1 million to acquire property near the mansion and close a street.

The governor's office said that neither the governor nor the first lady requested any renovations. The state's Department of Management Services said the repairs were undertaken after it performed an assessment.

Nevertheless, Scott recently advocated cutting $100 million from the state budget for 2014-15. He could have requested that the state postpone spending all or some of the $600,000 of taxpayer funds to help meet that goal. Practice that frugality that he preaches.

Furthermore, using private money from donors who conduct business with the state is a potential conflict of interest.

Scott's net worth is estimated to be $83 million.

He can afford to foot the bill for the renovations.

Call it a personal donation to the upkeep of "the People's House" to defray the cost from the people.

A little history that is not recorded

This week's theme continues to highlight the families, stories and histories of those Washington County citizens who, for unknown reasons, did not have an entry in the "Heritage of Washington County" book published in 2006.

An effort is being made to formulate a story of the three major property owners who previously held title to the land where the Dollar General Store was recently built and is now open for business. Last week's prattle featured the three lots facing U. S. 90 East in Chipley, the home place of Cora Lee Hicks Kent for many years.

PERRY'S PRATTLE

Today's writing is a tribute to former property owners, Wilburn N. Gainey and wife, Erma Lee Linton Gainey. The Gaineys owned and operated Wilburn's Motel as well as Wilburn's Drive-Inn Restaurant at 700 East Jackson Ave. This was Chipley's first Drive-In. The Gaineys lived in the restaurant and later in a home behind the motel. This location is now Budget Inn and Uncle Billy's Restaurant.

Wilburn N. Gainey was born in Washington County on Nov. 28, 1922. He died on July 1, 1963 at the age of 40. His parents were Neal Gainey, father, and Cora Lee Wilson Gainey, mother. The Gainey family owned and lived on a farm in the Peel Community south of Chipley, where the seven girls and two boys were reared. Later the family moved into Chipley where, among other things, Neal Gainey operated stables where work mules were sold or traded.

Wilburn's sisters were Thelma Gainey Broom (Willie) and Ilene Gainey

Baxter (Cecil), both with Chipley addresses. Others were Orene Gainey Parker (George) of Pensacola and Sybil Gainey Jenkins (Gene) of Panama City. Mildred Gainey (Robert) Minter, and Fleda Gainey Barrow (Robert) lived in Macon, Georgia. Betty Jewel Mussow (Clint) resided in Fort Benning, Georgia. The only brother, V. C. (Shorty) Gainey lived on a rural route in Chipley.

In Joan Prescott Chance's book "Through the Years," Jan Morris submitted a story on the life of M. R. Coggin entitled: "True Pillar of Community." In an interview with Jan, Mr. Coggin made this statement regarding his days in early construction in Washington County regarding Neal Gainey: "We were doing construction work on Highway 90 over Holmes Creek," he said. "We used a home-made pile driver for the bridge pilings. Neal Gainey would haul them out to us from the railroad in a little two-wheel cart he had rigged up."

Upon reaching adulthood, Wilburn Gainey entered the U. S. Army during World War II as a paratrooper. Upon the war's end, he returned to Washington County, married Erma Lee Linton and established the two businesses, Wilburn's Motel and Wilburn's Drive-Inn. Youngster in Bonifay and Chipley of that era, recall the thrill and excitement of a visit to Wilburn's Drive-Inn for a Hamburger and Coke, especially on a first date. After 16 years of operating both ventures, Wilburn Gainey died at the young age of 40. His funeral was held on Thursday following his death and the service was in the Blackburn Funeral Home with Rev. Auburn Brannon officiating. Burial followed in the Glenwood Cemetery. Honorable and Active Pallbearers included Sam Fowler, Phil Scarlett, Bill Pinckard, Junior Spivey, Doyle Gainey, Lambert Meeks, Broward Wood, Basil Woodman, Desmond Adams, Bill Greer, William Johnson, Hollis Toole and Henry Pitts.

Surviving Mr. Gainey at the time were his wife, Erma Lee Linton Gainey, his son, Harold Eugene Gainey mother, Cora Lee Gainey and all of the eight siblings listed above.

Erma Lee Linton Gainey died May 15, 1995 and is buried in Glenwood Cemetery in Chipley.

Harold, the only child, was 19 years old when his father died. He became even more active in all facets of the family businesses, especially the operation of the motel. As a teenager, he also worked in construction for Mr. Hoyt Armstrong, a job that he learned much about building and an experience he still enjoys telling, even in his retirement years.

Upon competing high school at Marion Military Institute, Marion, Ala., Harold worked for Tillman Pippin in the vending business. Later he handled a similar job for Virgil and Billy Jackson. His wares included a variety of crackers and cookies selling to grocery stores.

Harold Gainey married

Elsie Taylor Gainey from Holmes County. Her parents were Ernest Taylor and Pearl Skipper Taylor. Elsie retired from Gulf Power Company. They have one daughter, Melody, who married Joel Hughes of Grand Ridge. They live in DeFuniak Springs where Joel works for Gulf Power and Melody is employed with USDA.

The one son, Chad, married Gena Enfinger of Chipley. They have four children and reside in Washington County. Chad is a career employee of CSX Railroad. He is a member of Chipley's Florida National Guard and his unit was among the first in this area to be deployed to the Iraq War in 2003. Further military service has been required of him resulting in continuous active duty assignment for the past 10 years.

Later in Harold's life, he was Building Inspector for Washington County. He taught night classes in Carpentry at the Washington-Holmes Area Vocational School, and retired from the Florida Department of Transportation in architectural work.

The sale of the property for the Dollar General Store to Terramore Developers of Thomasville, Ga., was a lengthy, but interesting experience. The transaction remained under contract for a total of fourteen months in order for all facets of the "Due Diligence" clause of the agreement to be fulfilled. Two extensions had to be granted by the sellers, the Patels and the Welles. The developer began to refer to the parcel as "that creek property", according to the Real Estate Broker, Max Wells, of Progressive Realty, who worked the deal through to full fruition.

See you all next week with the third segment of the three part coverage promised.

What happened to the 6th grade garden?

For the past two years, several of us Bonifay Garden Club ladies have gone to Bonifay Middle School and done programs for Intermediate Gardeners.

These were sixth grade students enrolled in Mrs.

Dawn Barone's science classes. It was such a pleasure to share simple ideas about gardening, protecting the environment, recycling, and so on with these enthusiastic students. Their innovative teacher turned each thing we presented into a science teaching opportunity. The thing, though, that those middle school students were most enthusiastic about was their gardens. They and Mrs. Barone had gone to great lengths with the donation of concrete blocks by Jerkins, Inc., potting soil and other donations from others, to build a small garden space for each class where pairs of students had an assigned plot to grow vegetables or flowers of their choice. They had accumulated a good supply of trowels and other gardening tools.

The highlight of our visit each month was when we got out into their gardens and they so proudly showed their plants or the produce such as a carrot or salad greens. Mrs. Barone would let them collect enough greens to prepare and eat salads. They also harvested and cooked and ate winter greens as well as potatoes which they grew as a result of one of our Garden Club programs. They were learning not only where food comes from, what is required for things to grow, but also to eat the fruits of their labors.

With the emphasis on healthy eating and with the obesity epidemic among our young people, something that encourages children to try new things is very worthwhile.

Over the summer, I had heard that Mrs. Barone, the best teacher I've been associated with, was being placed as curriculum coordinator for the middle school. Imagine my chagrin when I arrived in her former classroom and saw that the garden plots had not only been cleaned out, but the block enclosures were hauled away.

Mrs. Eileen Gardener Mork, a former student of mine, is now the 6th grade science teacher. She couldn't tell me what plans for future gardens there are nor who was responsible for clearing them away. I learned, however, that the decision was handed down from the top administrator where I suppose all decisions stop. I am not sure of the rationale. Were they messy? Gardens go through all stages. Gardens employ dirt and weeds are a fact of life. Were they a health or safety hazard? Were they too much work for the custodial staff?

With foot traffic, that area required very little mowing. Was the administration so bent on making a good impression on the team visiting to evaluate the need for a new building? Was anyone involved with the gardening project consulted or informed of a decision?

Many towns and schools are starting community gardens. The sight of gardens at Bonifay Middle School should and probably would have impressed any visiting "educators" of the effectiveness of the science department.

Are our school officials ashamed of our agricultural background? Was a garden reflective of an inferior complex due to our agricultural roots? I think that the ones who ordered the blocks to be removed should go out and replace them along with the potting soil and fertilizer. It was a wonderful teaching tool and most timely. If you could have seen the enthusiasm with which the sixth grade students showed their plots, ask questions about growing, and shared a bloom or a baby carrot to us as we went each month to do some presentation, you'd realize that the garden was a very worthwhile endeavor.

Growing a garden teaches so many things: appreciation for sun and rain, need for discipline of controlling weeds, the difference between a weed and a useful plant, that we can produce a lot of what we eat, teamwork as two students share a plot, mathematics as the plots are divided among the students, patience as they wait for the harvest.

When I visited Mrs. Mork's class the other day to arrange to begin Garden Club programs, the students were anxious to know if we would help them rebuild the gardens. One sixth grade boy said, "I could bring my tiller." We the Garden Club would help. I'm sure some parents or grandparents would help. Not only do I think the gardens at the present site should be restored I think space at the proposed new building should be designated for gardening.

Am I proud of my agricultural background? You bet! An introduction to agriculture starts in elementary school and should go on through life. As long as America was an agrarian society, we prospered. If people want to continue to eat, we had better be promoting agriculture. After all, it is the biggest employer in the state of Florida.

"Agriculture needs to do a better job of telling it's story," said editor of "Citrus and Vegetable Grower" magazine Vicky Boyd. Said Bob Atchley, grower/manager of Texas and Florida Citrus and Produce grower and distributor, A. Duda & Sons Inc. of Labelle, Fla., "Schools are the gateway to improving Ag education. We should be proud of what we do."

What better place than a sixth grade garden to excite students about growing our own food?

RETT SYNDROME AWARENESS

Bull Run 2013 was held recently by the Bethlehem Cheerleaders to help raise money for Rett Syndrome in honor of Taylor Elmore, center, a student at Bethlehem School who has Rett Syndrome. Taylor was presented a certificate by teachers Carol Gillespies, left, and Nikki Ellenburge, who put on the presentation.

School raises $800 in honor of student

BETHLEHEM — In honor of Taylor Elmore, a student at Bethlehem School who has Rett Syndrome, all of the school came together, both student and staff, to raise awareness and money towards the research of Rett Syndrome.

The Bethlehem Cheerleaders held a presentation on Oct. 24 for the students on what Rett Syndrome is and presented Elmore with a certificate of the amount of money they raised at the Bull Run they held on Oct. 5.

The Bull Run raised $400 and the school raised $400 more for a total of $800 being sent to Rett Syndrome research.

“On the weekend of the Northwest Florida Championship Rodeo we had runners to come out and run three miles for Rett Syndrome Awareness,” said Carol Gillespies, teacher at Bethlehem School. “We raised money to go to Rett Syndrome Awareness so that they can continue looking for a cure. At the race we had a total of 38 runners and we also has sponsors because without sponsors we could not have been as successful.”

She explained to the students that Rett Syndrome is a rare genetic disorder that affects the way the brain grows and develops and it is found mostly in females.

“Most babies with Rett syndrome show no signs of having it at first but after six months of age they start showing symptoms, which can often be mistaken for autism and over time children will have trouble moving and communicating,” said Gillespies. “It is degenerative and there is no cure yet but we’re going to keep on fighting. The whole school wants to thank Taylor for giving us a reason to fight for a cure.”

Bethlehem High School Students Walk for a Cure

Special to The News

BETHLEHEM — The Bethlehem High School FCCLA sponsored their first annual “Walk for a Cure” on Friday, Oct. 25.

Students were encouraged to wear pink to show their support for breast cancer patients and survivors. For a small donation, students could also get out of class to walk around the circle drive in front of the campus.

Because October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month, the some of the club members, who had experienced the pains of losing loved ones to this deadly disease, wanted to do something to help the cause behind finding a cure.

“One of my students has experienced losing someone from breast cancer, and another knew of someone suffering with it now. They came to me a few weeks ago with the idea of raising money to donate to the Susan G. Komen Foundation, and I thought it was a wonderful idea,” said Sheila Richards, club sponsor.

The school also has its own breast cancer survivor, Mrs. Sue Mitchell. In January, Mrs. Sue will be celebrating her fourth year of being cancer free.

“It is an awesome blessing and work of God that I am still here today,” Mitchell stated. The club raised $363, which will be donated to the Susan G. Komen Foundation to help further the research of breast cancer.

Trunk OR Treat

Chris McBlain hands out candy for the Washington County Chamber of Commerce on Saturday at the annual Trunk Or Treat event, held at Pals Park in Chipley. Area Trick-Or-Treaters got a head start on Halloween, which is Thursday.

The Shiloh Baptist Church booth at Trunk Or Treat was a popular destination during Saturday's event. Hundreds of children and parents turned out to enjoy the nice Fall weather and gather lots of candy from churches, merchants and organizations who were set up around Pals Park distributing treats.

The First Presbyterian Church of Chipley's booth was visited by ninjas, pint-sized soldiers and a princess, and a score of superheroes.

Spiderman was a popular costume at Saturday's Trunk Or Treat, but there seemed to be more Iron Man uniforms than any other hero out looking for candy at Pals Park.

The Washington County Supervisor of Elections Carol Finch Rudd had representatives on hand distributing treats at Trunk Or Treat.

Bonifay Taekwondo U.S.A. was on hand with their ATA Martial Arts booth and students distributing candy.

Chipley drubs Bozeman to keep playoff hopes alive

By BRAD MILNER

SAND HILLS — Chipley treated Bozeman rudely on Friday. Next week, the Tigers will be the Bucks' biggest fans.

Darren Stewart accounted for four touchdowns to help Chipley defeat Bozeman 50-0 in a must-win District 3-1A football game. The Tigers earned their first district win in three tries, while the Bucks dipped to 1-1. Chipley will force a three-way tiebreaker for second place with a win over Holmes County coupled with a Bozeman triumph over surging South Walton.

Chipley (5-3) was fresh off a 14-13 loss to top-ranked Blountstown and lost another district game to South Walton by seven points in a shootout.

"We've answered losses with good performances every time," Chipley coach Chip Harris said. "We caught the momentum early."

Chipley took over the game after only seven offensive plays on its opening three drives. Jordan Finch found Bradley Hall for 47 yards on the Tigers' first play and it didn't get much easier for the Bucks.

Stewart scored from 37 yards on Chipley's second possession. He went on a 73-yard jaunt on the third drive to give the Tigers a 21-0 lead with 2:58 to play in the first quarter.

Stewart had a 5-yard scoring run and passed for a 21-yard TD to Jacob Wilson in the second quarter. Chipley added a safety when a Bozeman punt snap trickled out of the end zone for a 37-0 advantage at the half.

Bozeman mounted only 27 yards in the first half and crossed the 50-yard line twice. Chipley amassed 244 total yards in the first half with Stewart accounting for 171 of those before retiring for the last 24 minutes played under the running clock.

David McKee led Bozeman (1-7) with 48 yards rushing on seven carries. The Bucks drove deep into Tiger territory late in the game with a chance to salvage a score but Adrian Sims intercepted Homecoming King Bubba Thompson in the end zone. Thompson was 4 of 17 for 33 yards.

Despite the loss, Bozeman coach Loren Tillman said Bozeman is a better team than it was two weeks ago.

"We're gonna have to play good football next week," Tillman said. "Chipley is a much better team than they were at the beginning of the season and it says a lot that South Walton beat them."

"We can still get into a shootout. We just have to execute."

Chipley players were overheard telling Bozeman to "put one on South Walton" next week. However, there won't be any hope without a win over Holmes County.

"We're going to control what we can control," Harris said. "And that's to get ready for Holmes County."

Tips for Halloween Safety

Test your safety smarts by taking this HALLOWEEN SAFETY QUIZ

1. True or False: It doesn't matter whether a house you're visiting or trick-or-treating is well lit if you're carrying a flashlight.
Answer: FALSE – Only go to places that are well lit. Danger and darkness often go hand in hand.
2. If a stranger asks you to help find his or her child who has gotten lost, you should...
A. Agree to help the stranger
B. Say no and stay with your friends trick treating.
Answer: B – Adults can ask other adults for help. A stranger asking a child for help may be ill-intentioned.
3. You should go trick-or-treating...
A. With an adult
B. Alone
C. With a group of 2 or more friends
D. A & C
Answer: D – Very young children should be accompanied by an adult. Older children can usually trick-or-treat safely in a group of 3 or more people. Watch out for your friends and use a buddy system.
4. Where should you accept candy when trick-or-treating?
A. Outside the house you are visiting.
B. Inside of the house you are visiting.
Answer: A – Always remain outside of a stranger's house. Stand outside of the front door and allow the homeowner to come to you to place candy in your bag.
5. What should you attach to your costume to make yourself more visible to drivers and other pedestrians?
A. Nothing, I don't want to ruin my costume.
B. More scary accessories.
C. Reflective tape, like the kind on bicycles.
Answer: C – Reflective tape, which is sold in many stores, can make you stand out in the darkness.
6. Yes or No: If you see some cool decorations on a house that is not on your planned trick-or-treating route, you should go see them anyway?
Answer: No – Always stick to your route so that your parent or guardian knows where you are. It's easy to get lost or off track while trick-or-treating.
7. Trick or treating is hard work. You're getting hungry from all the walking. What do you do?
A. Wait until you get home to eat.
B. Reach in and grab some candy.
C. Ask your friend what to do.
Answer: A – It's best to wait until you get home to eat. Although most Halloween candy is safe to eat, an adult should check it for tampering before any is enjoyed.

CHIPLEY — Face painting, cake walks, hay rides, bonfires and countless other fall activities is just the tip of the iceberg that bring thousands of visitors from around the world to Seacrest Wolf Preserves' annual Howl-O-Ween event.

"It is a very unique event where humans can come and spend time with wolves and other species and have a great time and support wildlife conservation," said Cynthia Watkins, co-owner and co-founder of Seacrest Wolf Preserve.

Watkins said she received thousands of visitors every year to go on the wolf tours and enjoy the festivities.

"The Howl-O-Ween event is our biggest fundraiser for the year," she said. "We are a non-profit organization, and we do not get major grants from major entities, so it's through sponsorships and donations. Our Howl-O-Ween event is the most important fundraiser of the year. I don't know of any other Halloween event that is like Seacrest Wolf Preserve's Howl-O-Ween event in the whole country."

For more information on Seacrest Wolf Preserve, visit www.seacrestwolfpreserve.org. For more photos of Seacrest Wolf Preserve's Howl-O-Ween 2013, visit www.chippypaper.com.

Face painting was one of the many activities provided for children at this year's Howl-O-Ween event.

Pastoral Care Week celebrated at Covenant Hospice

Special to Extra

CHIPLEY — Covenant Hospice honored the contributions of its dedicated chaplains during Pastoral Care Week, Oct. 20-26.

Each day pastoral care givers are invited into the life experiences of women, men, children, and organizations. Faith can be tested and many questions arise about the meaning of suffering and pain near the end-of-life. Pastoral caregivers bring many gifts to the process of healing and wholeness. They are trained to help individuals draw on their own faith traditions and teachings for comfort and guidance as they walk through dark valleys.

In 2012, Covenant Hospice chaplains made over 13,000 calls and visits to patients facing life-limiting illnesses and their families, and were asked to officiate at over 450 funerals. "Our chaplains are often referred to as 'angels among us' by the patients and families we serve," said Dale O. Knee, Covenant Hospice President & CEO. "We are truly humbled by the work they do as part of our team and appreciate the opportunity to honor them each year."

Held first in 1984, Pastoral Care Week is sponsored by the Coalition on Ministry in Specialized Settings Network (COMISS) a national organization of pastoral care providers, pastoral care professionals, and faith group endorsers. Now in its 28th year, the week-long observance promotes spiritual values as a part of the healing process and invites us to celebrate the work of caregivers in such settings as hospitals, hospices and nursing homes.

Celebrating its 30th Anniversary, Covenant Hospice is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to providing comprehensive, compassionate

Bonifay Garden Club 'Plant it PINK' at Doctors Memorial Hospital

Special to Extra

BONIFAY — Bonifay Garden Club is supporting 'Plant It PINK,' a partnership between the National Garden Club and the Susan G. Komen for the Cure by planting a pink garden at Doctors Memorial Hospital.

"Planting a stunning pink garden in the courtyard will bring joy and a love of gardening to both residents and visitors," said Adonna Bartlett, President of the Bonifay Garden Club. "The garden will host an array of breath-taking pink flowers and shrubs. Pretty pink ribbons and pink butterflies designed by the Bonifay Florist were placed in the garden courtyard in honor of breast cancer awareness."

Bartlett explained the PINK in 'Plant it PINK' stands for Protection Is IN

CECILIA SPEARS | Extra

Doctor's Memorial Hospital was chosen by the Bonifay Garden Club to promote awareness of the fight against breast cancer by planting pink garden in the courtyard consisting of pink flowers, shrubs, ribbons and butterflies designed by the Bonifay Florist in honor of breast cancer awareness.

Knowledge.

"The Plant it PINK initiative is an outgrowth of our commitment to community service, which historically includes everything from conservation and beautification to therapeutic horticulture,"

Bartlett said. "One reason that October was chosen as the month for the health awareness campaign, the annual Race for the Cure, a running event, was held in October. The first of these cancer awareness runs was held in October of 1983 in Dallas, Texas, and since then the practice has spread to many different major cities and even to smaller towns and communities."

She added everyone has someone they know who has been touched by cancer, and the club is in full support in finding a cure.

"We're praying for the day when breast cancer will be extinct and will no longer threaten the lives of those we love," Bartlett said. "The Plant It PINK program has several components. To encourage participation among National Garden Club members as well as the general public, the organization has set up a system for accepting donations via mail through their website at www.gardenclub.org or by phone at 314-776-7574."

She said donors receive complimentary packets of pink dianthus flower seeds and educational materials on breast cancer provided by Komen.

"As a special thank-you, the seeds donated by W. Atlee Burpee & Co. are enclosed in a suitable-for-framing card designed and donated by noted St. Louis artist Linda Solovic, whose work includes children's books and a variety of licensed products sold all over the world," Bartlett said. "Designer birdhouse sales also benefit effort. Jon Carloffis, noted garden designer, author, HGTV guest and 'rooftop garden designer to the New York stars' has designed a custom ceramic birdhouse with Louisville Stoneware Co. especially for the Plant It PINK program."

She said for every birdhouse sold, Louisville Stoneware will donate 10 percent of the selling price to Susan G. Komen for the Cure and five percent to NGC garden therapy programs that introduce horticultural therapy into various health care settings. The Plant it PINK birdhouses can be purchased at www.louisvillestoneware.com or www.joncarloftis.com.

For more information on Linda Solovic, visit www.lindasolovic.com.

The Bonifay Garden Club meets at 11:30 a.m. on the second Friday of every month at the Holmes County Chamber of Commerce.

Howl-O-Ween safety tips

Cobweb covered doorways, porches lined with glowing pumpkins and miniature visitors draped in white sheets can only mean one thing: Halloween is right around the corner. With the holiday rapidly approaching, it is time to start planning your favorite traditions. In addition to the pumpkin carving and costume parties, keeping your pets safe during this holiday is an importation tradition to uphold.

Whether they are your child's faithful trick-or-treating companion, or the Toto to your Dorothy costume from the Wizard of Oz, pets can be an integral part of your Halloween celebrations. "It is more than okay to dress your pet up in a Halloween costume, as long as the costume fits them appropriately and isn't too tight," says Dr. Mark Stickney, Clinical Associate Professor at the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences. "A good rule of thumb is to make sure that you can easily slip two fingers underneath whatever bands are in the costume and to not leave the costume on them when they are unsupervised." Just keep in mind that while a costume may be cute and funny to you, your pet may disagree.

When your pet is accompanying you on your trick-or-treating route, or helping to welcome your sweet-toothed visitors, make sure they are constantly under close supervision and on a leash. "There is definitely some mischief that goes on during Halloween, and it is highly recommended that you keep your pets inside the house," said Stickney. "If they are indoor/outdoor animals, this is the night to keep them indoors."

Stickney also recommends that outdoor-only pets be kept in a safe and secure location, such as a fenced-in backyard with the lights on, so you can routinely monitor their whereabouts. People with black cats should be extra certain to keep them safe and indoors, as they are, unfortunately, the target for many pranks on Halloween night.

You should also make sure that your pet has proper identification, such as a microchip or a collar with detailed contact information. It isn't unusual for pets to slip through the frequently opened front door, and if spooked by noisy groups of small goblins, run too far to find their way back. If Scruffy is helping you greet trick-or-treaters at the door, make sure he is comfortable with the intrusion of strangers. Some animals can become overwhelmed with all of the chaos, and growl or even snap at the overzealous guests.

There is nothing like an emergency trip to the veterinary hospital to spoil your Halloween fun, so be certain to keep the candy bowl as far away from your pet as possible. "Candy, especially dark chocolate, is extremely toxic to dogs," said Stickney. "If they do get a hold of it, call your veterinarian immediately and tell them what exactly they ate and how much of it they consumed." There are plenty of pet-approved treats to give them other than the leftover Kit-Kat bars they keep eyeing.

There are a few tips for decorating your haunted house as well. "One thing to potentially watch out for are any decorations with streamers or artificial spider webs," said Stickney. "If cats try to catch and eat these, they could contract a linear foreign body which would require emergency surgery to remove." Keeping open flames, like a candle inside a carved pumpkin, out of reach is recommended as well. Curious puppies or kittens can easily knock them over, getting burned or inadvertently setting your house on fire. Opt for a battery-operated candle instead.

Parents take extra precautions so that their children's Halloween experience is safe and enjoyable, but it is important to extend the same care to your beloved pets. As long as you follow these general safety guidelines, Scruffy and Fluffy are sure to be in for a howlin' good Halloween.

Thumbs up, thumbs down, now everybody turn around

Flying in an airplane is not my preferred style of transportation. However, flying without an airplane is quite disastrous, if you know what I mean!

I am not quite sure the Wright brothers would be too happy with some of the things passing as an airplane these days. It seems to me that psychotic midgets have designed modern day airplanes. Nothing in an airplane is designed for the normal person, and I might as well say it, I consider myself normal. I may be a shade taller than normal but I am normal in every other respect.

The one plane I took from Detroit to Dayton Ohio was about as small as I have ever been on. Walking down the aisle, I could not even stand up but had to bend over in order to walk down the aisle. I heard a noise behind me that startled me and I stood up only to dash my head against the ceiling. That was not the worst headache of my flight.

One of these days, I would like to meet the person who designed the seats in those planes. I will admit to being a little post thin, but after all shouldn't you be able to sit down in a seat when you are flying?

I truly do not understand what a seatbelt is for with individuals like me. I can barely squeeze myself into that seat and then it takes me about 15 minutes to extract myself from the seat. I suppose a seatbelt is for the comfort of the pilot who believes that somehow I will not bounce out of my seat while he is flying. I could not bounce out if my life depended upon it.

My seat was so tight and I fit so snugly in it that when I sneezed it felt like I did some damage to my inner organs. Somewhere in the Constitution there has to be something to the effect that an individual has the right to sneeze without hurting himself.

What I want to know is why do I always have to sneeze when I am in certain situations like this?

Then, comes the time when you need to go to the bathroom. The flight attendant will bring you all the free beverages you can consume. They know, and I guess they are snickering behind our back, that everybody is going to have to go to the bathroom at the same time.

Coordinating the bathroom run is one of the trying exploits of flying the friendly skies.

For one, by the time I realize I have to go to the bathroom there is a line for the bathroom. Fortunately, but the time I extradiate myself from my seat the line has dwindled dramatically. Then again, I have to go to the bathroom so bad I am dancing up the aisle to the bathroom to the great applause of the people sitting there.

Once I fasten myself into the seat, I try to get comfortable enough to do a little reading. Since I am sitting in the aisle seat, everybody is bumping into me as they go up and down the aisle.

Now that I am situated so that I cannot move, they come again with beverages. Why is it I forget there is a link between drinking a beverage and going to the bathroom? I know there is a link but when I am up in the air so high my tiny little grey cells are working in slow motion. So why take a free beverage? Well, it is free!

I am at the age in my development where going to the bathroom is a frequent activity, even when not drinking any beverages. When consuming a beverage, this activity kicks into high gear. Once again, I need to extricate myself from my seat and find my way to the bathroom.

I am not quite sure about this, but I believe in mid air the airplane pilot switches the bathroom from the front to the rear. I am dancing up the aisle, which I believe is in the direction of the bathroom, only to discover I am going in the wrong direction.

A few of the people in the seats are smiling at me and one person gives me a thumbs-up as I turn around and dance in the direction of the actual bathroom facility. With a forced grin, I give a thumbs-up back at him and proceed in the direction of the bathroom.

It is at this point that I run into a line. Wouldn't you know it; the line is for the bathroom?

This is a real thumbs-down for me. It is at this point that I really wish I was not a gentleman. After all, a gentleman has to let the ladies go first. I think if some of these ladies would know the actual situation, they would insist I go first and I certainly would give them a wonderful thumbs-up.

As I was standing in line, a verse of Scripture popped into my head.

"And thine ears shall hear a word behind thee, saying, This is the way, walk ye in it, when ye turn to the right hand, and when ye turn to the left" (Isaiah 30:21 KJV).

Many things in life have us going in circles to which there is no end. God, however, puts us on the straight and narrow path that ends with Jesus Christ.

BONIFAY — Bonifay Kiwanis Club made several donations during their meeting on Oct. 23, which included the Bethlehem Culinary Academy, PINK Program, Future Farmers of America, Carmel Church and the Bonifay Garden Club.

Sheila Richards, Culinary teacher for the Bethlehem Culinary Academy, said that the academy is steadily growing.

"We've now got 60 kids in the culinary academy," said Richards. "They do all of the cooking and serving; we're only there as supervision and guidance. Without the support of organizations like you we wouldn't have made it this far, so thank you."

Karen Johnson with the Holmes County Health Department received a check for $2,400 on behalf of the PINK (Protection Is in Knowledge) Program.

"All together we've been able to provide 220 mammograms with 15 in the last year," said Johnson. "We'd also like to thank Doctors Memorial Hospital for discounting those mammograms. Without that discount we wouldn't have been able to have quite as many mammograms done for what we have."
