Wausau Town Council member resigns

By RANDAL SEYLER
638-0212 | @WCN_HCT
rseyler@chipleypaper.com

WAUSAU — The Wausau Town Council accepted the resignation of Council Member Kerry Collins during Thursday's council meeting.

Mayor B.J. Phillips read a letter from Collins that cited "personal choices and health reasons" as his decision to resign from the council.

The resignation letter was dated Dec. 30 and stated that Collins would resign immediately.

"We hate to see him go," Phillips said. "He knows what he has got to do, and hopefully we will see him back here someday."

Phillips asked the council for suggestions as to who could fill Collins' seat until the city election in December.

"I have to make a replacement, but looking at the city policy, I don't see a time sequence on the process," Phillips said, adding he would like to have a nominee in place for the February meeting so the council could vote on the nominee and swear them into office at that meeting.

"I would like to see if Roger Hagan would be interested," Council Member Dallas Carter said. "He has the experience and he could fill in, if he would be willing."

Hagan was formerly the mayor of Wausau but retired in 2012. Phillips said that in February, Hagan would have been retired for 13 months, which would be long enough for him to be eligible to serve on the council again.

Council Member Marlene Blount also suggested John Earl Walsingham as a possible interim council member. "He has also done it in the past," she said.

Public hearing on cell tower, CBDG grant held

CHIPLEY — The Washington County Planning Commission held a public hearing Tuesday to consider a new cell tower for Wausau and to begin the process of seeking a $750,000 Community Block Development Grant for the county.

Roger Simpson, representing AT&T, presented the plans for a 195-foot cell tower in Wausau that will improve AT&T's coverage along Highway 77 between Wausau and Bay County.

"AT&T approached the town of Wausau to consider where a tower could be placed," Simpson said, "because we had no coverage in that area."

Simpson said the situation will be a win-win for the company and the town of Wausau. "The town will receive the financial benefit from leasing out part of the park for the tower, and it will improve our coverage along this important highway."

Vernon High receives 'A' grade

From Staff Reports

VERNON — When the Department of Education released the high school scores in December, Vernon High School received an A grade for the 2013 school year; while Chipley High School received a B.

"This has never happened before in any Washington District high school and consequently (Vernon is) the only school in our district to earn an 'A' school grade," VHS Principal Brian Riviere wrote in a letter to the Washington County News.

Vernon High School improved from a C in 2012 to earn its A grade in 2013, while Chipley High School received a B in 2012 and 2013.

Vernon also posted a four-year graduation rate of 83 percent, according to the state DOE reports, while Chipley High had a graduation rate of 75 percent.

Almost half of Florida high schools — 48 percent — earned an A on the state's report card, according to a report Florida Department of Education released Dec. 18.

That's up from 31 percent of high schools earning a top grade two years ago. More than 80 percent of Florida high schools earned an A or B, according to the website stateimpact.npr.org.

That performance triggered automatic changes to the school grading system next year, raising the number of points required to earn each grade. This is the first time the 2011 State Board of Education rule has been required.

Sheriff's Office IDs man found dead in the cold

From Staff Reports

GRACEVILLE — Authorities have released the identity of a man found dead in a plowed field off Spruce Road on Monday.

Benjamin Jed Taylor, a 37-year-old who lived near the Holmes County line, was found dead in the cold Monday. The Jackson County Sheriff's Office released a statement saying his death doesn't appear to be criminal in nature.

An autopsy has been conducted to determine how Taylor died, but an investigator with the Medical Examiner's Office said Wednesday the case is pending further study.

Deputies had been involved in a car chase in which a suspect escaped on foot in the same area the day before Taylor was found, but there's no evidence of any connection between the chase and Taylor's death.

Deputies also responded to a report of a suspicious person in the area earlier Monday.

The man left the area on foot and deputies searched the area but couldn't find him. The description of the man, who was described as disoriented and wearing weathered clothes, matched Taylor.

Three arrested in connection with drug charges

From Staff Reports

CHIPLEY — Three people were arrested following a drug investigation that was part of an ongoing marijuana eradication initiative, according to a news release issued Thursday by the Washington County Drug Task Force.

The task force consists of the Washington County Sheriff's Office and Chipley Police Department.

Police were able to identify and apprehend three suspects following the execution of a search warrant at 2800 Chesser Road in Washington County.

Arrested were Thomas Ray Chesser, 53, of 2800 Chesser Road, in connection with charges of cultivation of marijuana, possession of marijuana over 20 grams, manufacturing of Methamphetamine and possession of narcotic equipment;

Mason Casey Williams, 39, of Chipley in connection with charges of cultivation of marijuana, possession of narcotic equipment and possession of methamphetamines;

Jessie Victoria Matlock, 29, of Clarksville, in connection with a charge of possession of narcotic equipment.

The suspects were apprehended at the residence in the process of caring for 30 marijuana plants, according to police. During a search of the property, officers found an elaborate indoor grow operation located behind a false wall accessed by a bookcase.

The operation consisted of several marijuana plants in pots and a custom lighting system. The operation employed an active carbon dioxide tank, timers, heaters, and fans to cultivate thousands of dollars worth of marijuana, according to police.

In a separate part of the residence, officers found an active shake and bake style methamphetamine lab in the process of manufacturing methamphetamines.

Washington County Drug Task Force asks that anyone with information on illegal drug activity contact us at 638-TIPS (8477) or by email at tips@wco.us.

the area will look like once the tower is built. "Due to the tree mass and the distance from the highway, I don't believe it will be very visible," he said.

Commissioner James Ussery asked if AT&T couldn't use an existing tower to get the same coverage, and Simpson explained that due to the amount of data that is being handled by cell towers today, the effective range of towers has decreased from 2 miles to about 1/2 a mile.

"We have to have more structures to be able to provide our customers the service they expect," Simpson said.

County Engineer Cliff Knauer was also on hand to inform the commissioners of an upcoming CBDG grant the county will be seeking with the intention of completing the paving of Orange Hill Road.

"It's been five years since we had a CBDG grant, and we're eligible," Knauer said. The proposed project includes paving about 1.6 miles of road, of which the county already has right-of-way easements.

"In the past, they expected the county to have $200,000 cash, and as you know, Washington County doesn't have $200,000 cash laying around," Knauer said. This year, the grant program is considering projects that have plans and easements in place and that are ready to begin and they are considering that preparedness as a substitute for the $200,000.

Commissioner Nan Thompson pointed out that part of the paving was supposed to be performed by the developers of the Rhythm DRI subdivision project as a condition of their agreements with the county. "Is there something else we could hold them to?" she asked.

"We'd have to get with the county attorney on that," Knauer said.

change is appropriate, according to the website.

"We are very proud of the work our high schools have done," she is quoted as saying.

The requirement does not change the point scale for elementary and middle school grades.

The number of high schools earning an F grade also increased to eight from three a year ago. A "safety net" approved by the State Board of Education prevented seven schools from losing more than a letter grade this year. Two of those schools would have earned an F grade without the safety net rule.

The high school grades added three new criteria this year: growth in test scores of the lowest-scoring 25 percent of students at each school; requiring at least 25 percent of students score 3 or higher on the FCAT reading test; and biology end-of-course test results.

Gardening and yard birds go hand-in-hand

Special to the News

CHIPLEY — The guest speaker at Chipley Garden Club's Wednesday, Jan. 8, 2014, monthly meeting was Cindy Wolf, a Wild Birds Unlimited Certified Bird Feeding Specialist from Wild Bird Unlimited Nature Store in Panama City, Florida. Cindy provided the group with information on how easy it brings life into the backyard by creating a bird-feeding habitat.

"Hobbies like gardening and backyard bird feeding go hand-in-hand," Cindy stated. "The birds keep you company while you're gardening and can provide hours of bird watching enjoyment."

Cindy discussed the four requirements for creating a successful bird-feeding site. First, clean water should always be available. Yard birds don't swim, so shallow is better.

Second, use quality feed appropriate for birds you want to attract. Most birds don't eat oats, milo, wheat or rye seeds, but love sunflower seeds, millet, nuts, and safflower seeds. Feeders should be clean — if it looks like a chia-pet, birds won't eat there.

Third, a place to raise young such as bird houses, thick bushes, and trees. Birds begin nesting in the Spring so avoid burning and trimming during that time.

Fourth, safety. Critters like rats, snakes, cats and squirrels can terrorize yard birds. Pole baffles, hot pepper flakes, pepper oil and traps are excellent deterrents.

Cindy ended her presentation by saying, "Backyard bird feeding is relaxing, fulfilling, and educational. It's an exciting hobby that anyone, young or old, can enjoy."

Prior to the program, Club President Karen Roland conducted the monthly business meeting. Items up for discussion were the 2014 FFGC Fall District II Meeting to be held in Chipley, landscaping grants, wildflowers, upcoming projects at Kate Smith Elementary, scholarships, and the English Tea & Garden Walk in May.

The next meeting will be on Wednesday, Feb. 5 at NWN Nursery on Watford Circle in Chipley. The program will be "Identifying Native & Exotic Plants."

"Both of these are excellent candidates," Phillips said. He asked the council members to contact the nominees and see if they would be willing to serve.

Phillips also asked the council if the town hall could be used as an emergency shelter in the future.

The Washington County Office of Emergency Management contacted Phillips and asked if it could add the town hall to its list of potential shelters.

"We'd never be a place where you could set up cots and a kitchen, and if we had someone stay here, I'd be willing to stay here with them," Phillips said. "It wouldn't be one of those situations where you just open up the building and turn them loose."

John Foster invited the council members to the Washington County Emergency Management Office for an Arbor Day observance at 10 a.m. Jan. 17.

ACA Forum: Confusion reigns

By CHRIS OLWELL

colwell@pcnh.com

PANAMA CITY — Confusion over the Affordable Care Act, the sweeping new law aimed at reforming American health care, was evident Wednesday night at a community forum hosted by Bay Medical Center Sacred Heart Health System.

Roughly 50 people attended the forum, one of several such events the hospital plans to host before the end of the open enrollment period on March 31. The Affordable Care Act (ACA), which requires individuals to have health insurance or pay a fine, is complicated and politically divisive, but the purpose of the forums is to inform rather than inflame, said Bay Medical spokeswoman Christa Hild.

"In general, nobody's here to pick a political fight," Hild said. "They're just here to find out what's going on."

An estimated 38,000 Bay County residents are eligible for some level of subsidy, Hild said, and everyone in the region who buys an ACA plan will be insured by Florida Blue.

Steve Macomber, a representative of Florida Blue, delivered a brief presentation and spent much of an hour answering questions, many of which were very specific to the interrogators' situation. For those specific questions, Macomber recommended contacting an agent with Florida Health Connector.

Regina Cummings didn't want anything to do with the ACA. She showed up because she hoped Florida Blue was Blue Cross Blue Shield. She'd done research on the Internet but was still very confused about the new law. Her biggest takeaway from Macomber's presentation was the contact information for Florida Health Connectors.

"It's great to know there's an agent you can sit down with and will help you," Cummings said.

Macomber went over the broad strokes of what the ACA offers, but because each individual's circumstances are different, he urged audience members to contact an agent who can understand what someone needs from a plan and help get the appropriate subsidy for those who qualify.

Because of that, agent Connie LeVasseur expected to be busy on the phone Thursday morning.

"This usually starts the conversation," she said after the forum. "It heats up around 6 tomorrow morning."

DOT unveils I-10 study area

By BRIAN HUGHES

CRESTVIEW — Residents and local officials offered suggestions for Interstate 10 improvements during a Thursday meeting hosted by the Florida Department of Transportation.

Attendees were offered an overview of the FDOT I-10 Master Plan Middle Section, which encompasses Okaloosa, Walton, Holmes, Washington and Jackson counties.

Though turnout at the Crestview Community Center was light, attendees voiced concerns including access and traffic problems.

A Jan. 7 wreck near the single Crestview exit caused eastbound traffic to back up for many miles, underscoring the value of a suggested second interchange at the Okaloosa County seat.

"We certainly help the study will result in a new interchange at Antioch Road," Mayor David Cadle said. "We sure need it."

Okaloosa County Commissioner Nathan Boyles recently called for the interchange in a letter to the DOT.

"I'm just glad we're talking about it," Boyles said during Thursday's meeting. "We've acknowledged we have a problem and now we can move to figuring out ways to fix the problem."

WANT TO COMMENT?

Residents wishing to suggest improvements or comment on the Interstate 10 study area between Okaloosa and Jackson Counties may contact consultant project manager Sarah Walker, 1725 Capital Circle NE, Suite 201, Tallahassee FL 32308, 878-977, SaWalker@HNTB.com; or FDOT District 3 project manager Virgie Bowen, Highway 90 E, Chipley FL 32428-0607, 888-638-0250, ext. 1530, Virgie.Bowen@dot.state.fl.us.

Ponce De Leon property owner Harold Puderer would like to develop his land that straddles both sides of the interstate. However, lack of highway access to the property has stymied his plans for an RV park.

"We can't very well develop it without access," Puderer's business partner Carol Cumber said.

DOT public information officer Tanya Branton said the current phase of the study is gathering public comments before starting in March to develop a master plan for the study section.

The plan is expected to be completed by the end of June.

Don't let fear rule your life

Everybody's afraid of something. Even the toughest, strongest people in the world have secret fears. And that's not necessarily a bad thing.

Having no fear whatsoever is a sure sign of a fool. I remember speaking with a World War II veteran who admitted to being terrified by the sound of bullets flying overhead during combat. He credited that fear with saving his life. It made him more alert and aware of his surroundings, which enabled him to survive.

Some fears are obvious, like the fear of physical harm or death. Other phobias might seem trivial, unless you're the one trying to cope with them. I've met people with intense fears of escalators, clowns, moths, cats and ventriloquist dummies. The strongest and most outwardly confident person I know is secretly terrified of mice. I had an elementary school teacher with such an intense phobia of ticking clocks that the classroom wall clock had to be removed. To her, the sound of a clock was unbearable because it reminded her of the minutes of her life ticking away.

SHANNON SEYLER
Faithfully Yours

Any student who dared to click a ballpoint pen in class was hastily ejected from the room for daring to make the forbidden ticking sound.

Among my personal hang-ups is a fear of heights. For me, a simple act like riding a Ferris wheel can turn into a nightmare. During our last vacation, my husband wanted to climb to the top of a lighthouse.

I agreed, despite my anxiety. We ascended a stifling, narrow stairway on creaking iron steps. As I wound my way increasingly higher, I began trembling. Gripping the thin banister with sweating palms, I tried to mentally assure myself that I'd be fine, despite the frantic pounding of my heart. Upon finally reaching the top, I was treated to a magnificent view. The height initially made me recoil in terror, but it was undeniably beautiful. My husband took a photo of me up there. While I'm smiling for the camera, I'm also clutching the guard rail with a white-knuckled death grip.

Despite my fear of heights, I've made trips to the top of the St. Louis Arch, dined atop the Space Needle in Seattle, ridden in a rotating high-rise observation tower in Texas, and gazed down from the dizzying heights of the Empire State Building.

To get the clearest views in life, sometimes you've just got to push ahead until you reach the top. It doesn't matter if you have a literal fear of heights or not. Fear of any sort can prevent people from reaching the high points in life.

Some individuals allow a fear of failure to keep them from trying new things, which can negatively affect careers, relationships, education and even spiritual development. The term "leap of faith" is appropriate. There are times when we have to release our fears, summon our faith, and boldly step out into unfamiliar territory.

It's tough to face fears, but it's even tougher to let them rule your life. Work on clearing worry, self-doubt and anxiety from your mind. You'll be amazed at the new heights that can be reached when you stop allowing fear to obstruct your path.
