Officials seek courthouse solution

Washington County courthouse condemned after summer floods

By CHRIS OLWELL

colwell@pcnh.com

CHIPLEY — The floods of the past summer caused of millions of dollars of damage to Washington County infrastructure, and when rainwater leaked into the county courthouse, it alerted officials to problems that led to the building's condemnation.

Not long after officials noticed the standing water in the basement, they also began to notice problems with the exterior of the building. Then, a roughly 800-pound chunk of stone fell from the top of the courthouse. Then they found rotten wood, water damage, peeling paint and mold.

"We got back at least a dozen different strains of mold, five of which were deemed to be immediate health risks," said Circuit Judge Christopher Patterson, who spearheads a committee tasked with solving the courthouse dilemma.

When air quality tests of the Washington County Courthouse came back in December, officials shut it down and moved into temporary locations at an annex next door that also houses the Sheriff's Office and the county building a few blocks away.

The move resolved health concerns, but it created a raft of new problems. Evidence in criminal cases had to be relocated, as did tens of thousands of official records, some of which were coated with a visible layer of mold and will need to be cleaned.

CHIPLEY — The Washington County Tourist Development Council heard a promotion proposal from Walton Outdoors creator Lori Ceier when they met in regular session Monday, Feb. 24.

The promotion partnership would include an advertising package and a dedicated web page featuring Washington County outdoor recreation, including photos, videos and articles written by Ceier.

"I get more than 50,000 page views a month during the summer," Ceier said. "I'd like to use the power of Walton Outdoors to promote Washington County. The demographic is ages 25-45, mainly women who are planning activities for their families."

In addition to the dedicated page and articles by Ceier, she said she will provide a banner ad for Washington County, which comprises the package's $140 monthly cost.

CAROL KENT | The News

Lori Ceier, publisher of WaltonOutdoors.com, presented members of the TDC board with a slideshow example of how Washington County would be promoted on a dedicated webpage linked from the Walton Outdoors site.

TDC members decided to table the decision on the matter until more information could be obtained from other advertisers regarding satisfaction and results from similar advertising packages.

In other action, the TDC awarded Regina Wolfgang of Auto Graphics the opportunity to design the new TDC logo. Wolfgang said she plans to

Vernon City Council looks to repair roads

VERNON — Engineer Nolan Baker of CDG Engineering of Dothan presented Vernon City Council members with bids to begin repairs in wake of road damages caused by last summer's flooding. The flooding also affected City Hall and the old high school.

The presentation, given at the Monday, Feb. 24, regular meeting, includes a $460,000 six-phase infrastructure repair project, funded primarily by FEMA.

"FEMA will fund 75 percent of the cost, and the state will fund 12.5 percent," Baker said. "The city of Vernon is responsible for the other 12.5 percent, but they will be able to apply to have that cost waived at the end of the project."

The project, set to begin in coming weeks, will include work on Pincrest Street, Jackson Street (by City Hall), Pompey Street, at the Pincrest and Spoonmill intersection, the north and south sections of Church Street, Dalton Street, McFatter Street, Ferris Circle, and on Cook Circle.

Work will also be done to replace submersible pumps, bypass pumping and control modifications at the Spoonmill lift station and multiple repairs will be made at the Wastewater Treatment Plant in Phase 6 of the project.

In other action, council members accepted the retirement of Public Works manager Gerald Ward. Ward has served the City of Vernon since April 2002.

Gaming bill sets table for slots

TALLAHASSEE — It's official: Slots are on the table in the upcoming state legislative session.

A measure to allow the six Florida counties that already approved the Las Vegas-style games is part of a three-bill package that the state Senate Gaming Committee unveiled Monday. The likelihood of passage, however, is unclear as the Legislature heads into session March 4.

The 453-page primary bill (SPB 7052) contains a veritable catchall of gaming recommendations made in the past year after the Senate panel went barnstorming

Chipley receives $440K grant for infrastructure improvements

CHIPLEY — The city of Chipley hopes to use a $440,000 Northwest Florida Water Management District (NWFWD) grant to encourage economic development in Washington County.

The funding is part of about $10 million recently approved by the NWFWD and will be used mainly for the planning and engineering of utility expansion south of Interstate 10.

"Our goal is to provide water, sewer and gas south of the interstate to help promote job growth out there," said

"People are safe. We don't have any immediate risk, except for people who may walk by that courthouse and things fall on their head," Patterson said. "And I'm not being facetious."

SECURITY CONCERNS

The move also created security concerns because the new digs were never intended for holding court, at least not felony criminal court. Judges wait outside in their cars before taking the bench because there are no chambers. Prisoners wait for their hearings locked in the back of squad cars because there are no holding cells.

"We are in a wonderfully more secure place than we were a month ago," Patterson said. "We're making good progress."

Court workers have scrambled to install locks, cameras and other security measures to at least reduce the risk, but Patterson, who earlier this month locked himself in a bathroom because he had nowhere else to wait for attorneys and a defendant in a criminal case to enter the courtroom, said in an interview that, under the current circumstances, it's not a matter of if security will be breached; it's a matter of when.

Certain aspects of the transition to what officials hope is a temporary courtroom next door in the Sheriff's Office have been relatively simple. Transferring computers, phones, metal detectors and other equipment was accomplished quickly, but moving a holding cell to secure prisoners waiting to see a judge? That's not happening, and it's causing security risks for everyone involved.

"Most everyone who's in custody is appearing via video from the jail with their attorney there at the jail with them," said County Judge Colby Peel. But, he said, eventually a trial requires the defendant to be "present in the courtroom, so that's what we're struggling with right now."

'SKIN IN THE GAME'

That's not the only struggle Washington County leaders are having. The Board of County Commissioners has decided that demolishing the old courthouse and rebuilding in the same location is the best solution.

An architect estimated it would cost more than $4.75 million to renovate the old courthouse and more than $8.8 million to build a new, 30,000-square-foot facility with two courtrooms. Washington County doesn't have $4.75 million, let alone $8.8 million. Officials are looking to Tallahassee for help and trying to scrape together what money they can.

"I believe that the county is going to have to put some skin in this game," said County Attorney Jeff Goodman. "We're not going to walk with our hat to Tallahassee, and they're going to give us $8.5 million and tell us to have a good time."

That will be a problem for Washington County, which is already more than $6 million in debt and has operated at a deficit for the past two years. Goodman said he's hopeful the county might be able to refinance that loan, but he was not optimistic about securing another loan to pay for a courthouse.

"Our initial plan was to pay for this ourselves, but it just exploded on us," Goodman said.

Washington County had set aside about $700,000 to repair the courthouse, but that was before officials learned the extent of the problems with the building. They thought it was just rainwater getting into the building, but the water spawned mold that got into the building's air-handling units, particularly the one that feeds the courtroom on the second floor.

Officials are discussing increasing the surcharge on traffic citations by $30, but even that would generate only about $115,000 a year, said interim Clerk of Courts Harold Bazzel.

Bazzel said he thinks the only way the county could raise the money would be to increase property taxes, but he didn't expect that idea to be popular with county commissioners, especially in an election year.

'NO GUARANTEES'

Republican State Rep. Marti Coley, whose district includes Washington County, is one of many who have toured the courthouse and seen the standing water in the basement. And discarded surgical masks blew in the wind across the courthouse parking lot earlier this month. She's even attended county commission meetings to get a feel for the discussions.

"They are exploring different ways to help themselves, and we are going to explore different ways that we can help them," Coley said.

She said her staff is exploring potential funding sources from the state for the project, but there is no guarantee the funding will be included in an appropriations bill this year.

Members of the steering committee also have met with Rep. Matt Gaetz, R-Fort Walton Beach, and Rep. Jimmy Patronis, R-Panama City, and Chief Justice Ricky Polston and Jack Reed, Gov. Rick Scott's representative in the region, toured the courthouse after it was condemned.

"I think they fully understand all the issues," said Jan Shadburn, trial court administrator for the 14th Judicial Circuit.

Patterson said the committee needed to have its ducks in row by the opening of the Legislative session in early March. For now, only one thing is certain.

"We can't go back to that courthouse, based on what we now know," Patterson said during the steering committee's most recent meeting. "It is such a health risk that there's nobody in this room that would want to put the general public back in there."

"When the economy was rolling pretty good a few years ago, we had a lot of interest in that area (from potential industry), but (lack of infrastructure) was one of the snags, and we just didn't have the funding to make that happen."

Miner said the city's request to the agency was "a little different" than simply a list of why the grant was needed.

"We approached it like the movie 'Field of Dreams,'" said Miner. "We told them, 'If we have (the infrastructure) out there, they will come.'" Miner also pointed out new industry would mean new jobs for Washington County and surrounding areas.

Miner also stressed the $440,000 grant is just the beginning of a larger project.

"Ultimately, this will be about a $5.9 million project, and the (NWFWD) grant won't fund everything we're wanting to do," he said. "We've also applied for a $1.5 million Community Block Issue Request (CBIR) grant and plan to just phase the project out and do what we can."

The next step for the project is for the city to advertise for planners, engineers and designers who can help develop a strategy.

"It could be about five years worth of work, but we hope to go to work on it by the end of the year," he said.

Chipola Holds Welding Open House and Ribbon Cutting

Special to the News

MARIANNA—Chipola College officials held an Open House and Ribbon-Cutting, Tuesday, Feb. 18, to celebrate the opening of the college's new welding program. Members of the Chipola District Board of Trustees, welding students and college personnel were on hand for tours of the lab.

Chipola has a full class of 20 students currently enrolled in the 1,170 clock-hour course which can be completed in approximately one year.

Byron Ward, the Welding Career Coach who helped establish the program, says, "We have an excellent training facility and a great first class of students. The program features state-of-the-art welding equipment in a clean lab environment. Hybrid learning, simulation technologies, and open education resources are used in the curriculum."

Chipola welding instructor Patrick Kennedy holds multiple certifications as a Pipe Welder and is a Certified Welding Inspector. He has worked in the nuclear power and gas pipeline industry for more than 20 years.

Dr. Jason Hurst, Chipola executive vice president, said, "We are excited about the opportunities this new welding program will provide for the citizens in our district. Welding is a targeted occupation that offers high wages and excellent benefits."

The welding program is made possible through a grant awarded to the Alabama/Florida Technical Employment Network (AF-TEN). Chipola, L. B. Wallace, Northwest Florida State, Pensacola State, and Wallace Community College formed the consortium that was awarded a $10 million grant by the U.S. Department of Labor's Employment and Training Administration. The grant supports colleges that provide training for advanced manufacturing jobs. Each college shares a portion of the grant. Chipola's share is $1.6 million.

Southerland urges putting partnership above partisanship

With partisan gridlock all too prevalent in today's Washington, I have worked hard to break through those barriers and join with Republicans and Democrats who are as interested as I am in growing jobs and restoring certainty for hardworking families. The recently-passed Farm Bill is an example of what can be accomplished by putting partnership above partisanship.

For more than a year, Congress debated the latest reauthorization of the Farm Bill, which sets national agriculture and food policy for the next five years. With Florida being a national leader in agricultural production and the second largest specialty crop-producing state in America, I was committed to doing all I could to advance a common sense Farm Bill that restored certainty for North and Northwest Florida farmers and strengthened our rural communities.

I was honored to be the only Floridian in Congress appointed to the bipartisan conference committee tasked with ironing out the final Farm Bill agreement. It was a tremendous, hard-earned victory when both parties and both chambers came together for the good of the American people and passed a five-year Farm Bill that provides much-needed relief to our hardworking farming families and saves taxpayers $23 billion – while allowing us to finally move past the costly, big government policies passed under then-Speaker Nancy Pelosi's Farm Bill six years ago.

I am also pleased Republicans and Democrats came together to support a provision in the Farm Bill I introduced to empower vulnerable families with a renewed opportunity for earned success. By including a 10-state pilot program for work, job training, and community volunteerism for healthy, working age food stamp beneficiaries, we've now put nutrition assistance on the same proven path of success that helped change a culture for the better during welfare reform in the 1990s. As the first reforms to the food stamp program since the successful welfare reforms of 1996, the Farm Bill takes important steps to empower families in need with a renewed opportunity at earned success.

Additionally, the Farm Bill includes several provisions I crafted to sustain the economies of our rural communities. The bipartisan Building Rural Communities Act ensures that small, rural areas have access to the technical assistance and training necessary to enhance vital infrastructure – including police and fire stations and community health clinics – all at no additional cost to America's taxpayers. Another provision I advanced strengthens our forestry communities by ensuring that wood products qualify under the USDA's Biobased Marketing Program. I also fought to guarantee the long-term viability of citrus production in Florida by helping secure $125 million to research remedies for citrus greening, a disease decimating citrus groves in Florida and nationwide.

Updating the Farm Bill is never easy, but this bill represents the good that can come out of both parties and both chambers rising above politics to do what is right for the American people. Our farmers and rural families deserve real solutions – not political mud fights – and this bipartisan Farm Bill is a big step in the right direction.

Charles Whitehead gave of himself to local residents and beyond

Readers of the Panama City News-Herald and viewers of other news outlets, possibly know of the recent death of Charles Whitehead, noted business man, political leader and a laundry list of civic service and a recognized life long philanthropist for worthwhile causes.

PERRY'S PRATTLE
Perry Wells

Charles Whitehead died at his home on Feb. 1, 2014, surrounded by his family. An early news release of his death listed his date of birth as Jan. 19, 1931, in Caryville, Fla. His parents were listed as James J. Whitehead and Pally (Polly) Hodges Whitehead.

The passing of this extremely well known and highly respected individual can not slip by without some mention of his humble roots in Washington County with parents emerging from pioneer families on both sides.

James J. (Jimmy) Whitehead was born in the Hartford, Ala. He came to Washington County in the early 1920's probably seeking a job in the Caryville saw mill, a source of employment in the booming area. He may have come here to be near his brother, Ivan I. Whitehead, who moved from Alabama to Florida after being released from military service at the end of World War I. Ivan met and married Perry Lee Collins here. He was the Chevrolet Agent in Bonifay from 1927-30, before establishing a home near Pate Lake. This couple reared two daughters, Ivalee and Reba.

Marriage Records in Washington County show the marriage of James J. Whitehead and Polly Hodges as April 3, 1927. Jimmy and Ivan Whitehead also had a sister, Mamie Whitehead, who was in Florida when she met and married C.Y. Johns on Aug. 18, 1925. Their children were Clara Johns Roberts, Ruth Johns Givens, and Sonny, who died in early childhood.

Charles Whitehead's mother, Polly Hodges Whitehead, was the offspring of a large family who settled in Caryville and followed the lumber industry of the 1930s and 40s. Her brother, Early A. Hodges, established a general mercantile business in Caryville. He also became heavily involved in the buying and selling of livestock. He married Dora Somers and their only child, Earl Hodges, reached adulthood, before passing away. A second brother, Spurgeon Hodges, settled in Vernon and married Dora Dean Taylor and developed a successful business in his livestock venture. Their only son, Gary Hodges, married Mary Eleanor Hudson and reared Patricia and Stephen, before his death.

A third brother, Crawford Hodges, chose DeFuniak Springs to establish his Lumber producing business and reared a family there. Henry Hodges, a fourth brother became a cattleman in Graceville and also established a lumber supply business. A fifth brother, established Hodges Lumber and Supply Company in Panama City. His two sons, Paul and Silas, started the first outdoor storage building, the Handi-House, in the area.

Polly Hodges Whitehead's sisters include Cumi Hodges Williams who married Valery Williams. Their only child, Edna Francis Williams, married Jeff Webb of Chipley. After her untimely death, the grandparents moved to Chipley and provided a home for Penny, Jebby, Dilly and the twins, John Cole and Corey, the Webb's children.

Sister Alma Hodges Johnson married Otley S. Johnson of Chipley. He served on the Washington County Commission. Their only child, O'Neil Johnson (now deceased) and wife, Ann reared their family in Chipley. Dutchie Hodges Brown, a third sister, married Herman Brown. They remained in Caryville. Herman had an automotive repair business. Larry and Diane, were reared in Caryville.

Many of the ancestors of Charles Whitehead were known personally by the Prattler. Other knowledge of them came from my dad, Hugh Wells, who knew the family well as he did much of his produce and mullet peddling in the thriving town of Caryville during the sawmill era. It was the writer's privilege to accompany my father when he moved the Jimmy Whitehead family from Auburndale, Fla., to Panama City on Dec. 31, 1949, to accept the position of Shop Foreman with Cook Motor Company. This is the same firm that Charles Whitehead later became a partner as Cook-Whitehead Ford and, in it's last years, was fully owned by him.

A more recent source of background information on the Hodges Family came from Jewett Harris Tadlock, who has lived in Chipley since flooding forced her and husband, Cleston William Tadlock, to vacate Caryville after the 1994 devastating flood. Jewett Harris went to work in the Early Hodges store in Caryville at the age of 18 in 1947. After her marriage, she left for two years. Upon returning, she continued to operate the business after Mr. Hodges' death. At the death of Mrs. Hodges, she inherited the business, later selling the property in 1994. She accepted the job of Clerk in Caryville City Hall and continues her employment there.

She told me of having Bay County Sheriff Frank McKeithen, a Vernon native, and Charles Whitehead, drop in for an unexpected visit at the City Hall just before Christmas in 2013. She commented that the two Washington County Native Sons were happy to visit Caryville. Upon Charles seeing an old photograph on the wall at City Hall of Caryville's Ball Team back in the depression years, he immediately identified his dad, Jimmy Whitehead, as one of the players.

My last time of seeing and visiting Charles was at the Bay County Fair ten years ago. Hester and I encountered him as he came in for the Senior Citizens Day. We sat with him as a group from a nearby church sang Hymns of the past in honor to the Seniors.

It has been my privilege to add this short narrative of a Washington County

Favorite Son, who made his positive mark in life in adjoining Bay County. I join Mayor Greg Brudnicki and a host of dignitaries, who paid a much deserved tribute to the life of this extra-ordinary Washington County Native during his funeral service in Panama City.

See you all next week.

Old teaching certificates tell story of 100 years of education

Since Jack and I live on the Tison Family home place which was part of the Meeker Homestead Land, we are the custodians of family records. And Pearl Meeker Tison as well as her mother Mary Young Meeker were keepers. Nothing is in any kind of order, but over the years I have tried to put together a list of all the schools where Pearl taught. In the process I learned that Mary Young Meeker also taught. I thought I remembered my grandmother Hannah Brock Wells going to school to Mary Young. After finding her Long Bay contract, I confirmed that. I wrote about that last week.

I had always known that my mother-in-law taught my parents. In fact, I said once four generations of my family were taught by four generations of Jack's family. In addition to my grandma and my parents, Ruth Helms, Jack's sister, taught Kenneth Harris, my first cousin, and Hiram our son taught Jonathon Harris, my cousin Howard's son.

When I mentioned the Harcus name last week, I was planning to write about another school, New Prospect, which I suspected the Harcus children attended. However if they did it was not when Pearl taught there. New Prospect was located south of what we always called Wilcox Crossing on Highway 90 west before Caryville. I have a picture and a printed program of all the students in New Prospect School in 1913. These pictures and teaching certificates tell a lot about how the educational system has changed in one hundred years.

Pearl finished 8th grade at Bonifay and passed the teaching exam with a third grade certificate in June of 1909. She would have been 15. I am not sure what she was certified to teach, but she had to score no lower than 40 percent on the following subjects: agriculture, orthography, reading, arithmetic, English grammar, composition, history, geography, physiology, theory and practice of teaching. She achieved an overall average of 65 percent (60 percent was required.) a year later, she took the exam again and raised her overall average to 74 percent. There were first, second and third grade certificates but I can't find the requirements for each. GOOD MORAL CHARACTER is emphasized above all. Mr. C.A. Fulford was Superintendent of Public Instruction in Holmes County. The certificate is good for two years and was issued by the county in which the person taught. However, New Prospect was in Washington County. She began her teaching career at age 16 and I believe it was in Jackson County. Teachers usually lived in the home of some of the school patrons.

New Prospect went from grades one through 8 as did most, if not all, of the country (rural) schools of that day. Even though we lived no more than 3 or 4 miles from New Prospect, I don't recall ever having seen the building. We went to Caryville frequently, but usually went by St. Mary's the black school, as we often had produce or mullet to peddle on the way. I do remember that Elder Carlton Todd was the teacher there at least one year and engaged our Mama Marie Wells to teach one day. How excited she was to be a substitute teacher! We heard a lot about her experiences that day.

I have pieced together Pearl's teaching career from photos she took and labeled with her Kodak Brownie Box camera. The souvenir program which I found listing all the students must have been done by a professional, however, because Pearl is pictured on the front. I can't identify the ones in the picture, but perhaps family members can identify some of them. They are Maggie, Lizzie, & Katie Burke, Bessie & Nellie Daniels, Maxie, Lucinda, & Anna Sims, Lola & Arbell Crosby, Laura Wilcox, Perlia & Minnie Anderson, Willie, Evie & Allie Jones. Vera Elliot, Esther, John, & Letcher Wilcox, Carl Marshall, Alto Anderson, Bertilee Crosby, Alice Elliot, Columbus Burke, Albert & Hubberd Crosby, George Daniel, Mallie Elliott, Laury Wilcox, and Harvey Jones. I believe "Miss Pearl" as her students knew her lived with the Elliot family when she taught at New Prospect, although I know she lived with the Cleatus Bush family for a time. I know who some of the people in the picture are or were and perhaps you will be able to recognize some of them. I hope family members and relatives can enjoy this glimpse of the past.

They know the drill

Chipley High School hosts Pre-Area 11 Drill Meet

By C/2LT Michelle Fuston

The Chipley High School JROTC program hosted and competed in the Pre-Area 11 Drill Meet Saturday, Feb. 15. The "Pre-Area 11" competition is a warm up for the Area 11 (Regional) event.

This competition gives cadets the opportunity to test themselves and improve before competing for a position on the state level. Unfortunately, due to funding, the state level competition was cancelled, and the Area 11 competition will serve in its place.

This event shows teams and cadets how far they've come since the previous competition, as well as what they need to improve before the next competition.

Competing teams were Male Unarmed Squad in 1st place, Female Unarmed Squad in 2nd place, Male-Mixed Unarmed Platoon in 2nd place, Female Color Guard in 1st place, Male Color Guard in 3rd place, Cadet Thomas Hallman earned 3rd place in Male Individual Exhibition, and Cadet Harley Whitman earned 3rd place in Female Individual Exhibition.

Although this was a competition for improvement, all teams and cadets put their best foot forward, and are said to have competed as if they were at a state level drill meet.

The CHS ROTC program said it congratulates and thanks all teams and cadets who participated, as well as those who helped prepare and set up for the competition.

The Area 11 competition will be held at Chipley High School Saturday, March 15, and the community is encouraged to come out and watch the competition, as well as give out cadets your support.

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

Those earning recognition at the Area 11 Drill Team Competition were the Male Unarmed Squad for 1st place, Female Unarmed Squad in 2nd place, Male-Mixed Unarmed Platoon in 2nd place, Female Color Guard in 1st place, and the Male Color Guard in 3rd place. Cadet Thomas Hallman also earned 3rd place in Male Individual Exhibition, and Cadet Harley Whitman earned 3rd place in Female Individual Exhibition.

Tigers overcome Panthers' pressure

By JASON SHOOT

747-5069 | @PCNHJasonShoot
jshoot@pcnh.com

CHIPLEY — If Chipley's victory over West Gadsden could be summarized in two words, they would be preparation and composure.

The Tigers shrugged off West Gadsden's concerted efforts to create a chaotic environment on the basketball court Friday night and pulled away for a 73-53 victory in the Region 2-1A finals.

Chipley will play Hamilton County, a 79-69 winner over Hawthorne on Friday night, in the Class 1A state semifinals on Wednesday at The Lakeland Center. The game tips off at 11 a.m. CST.

Chipley, 22-2, and West Gadsden, 19-4, operated at a frenetic pace early on, but the Tigers assumed control with six straight points to close the first quarter and another 12 points to start the second.

Trent Forrest capped the run with a 3-pointer to put Chipley on top 30-14 four minutes before halftime.

Chipley remained composed in the face of the Panthers' full-court press and halfcourt traps, and the Tigers maintained a double-digit lead for the rest of the game. Chipley ultimately led by as many as 22 points and held a comfortable 60-38 cushion going into the final quarter.

Chipley's Tyrome Sharpe, who scored 18 points to complement Forrest's game-high 24, said coach Joel Orlando had the Tigers ready to counter the Panthers' aggressive defense.

"Coach talked about them at practice and he said it was going to be like that," Sharpe said. "He let us go at it. Coach had the whistle. There were no fouls.

None." West Gadsden ran into foul trouble early and had difficulty keeping Chipley corralled. The Panthers clawed within 60-46 in the fourth quarter, but West Gadsden coach Andrew Moten was assessed with a technical foul with 5½ minutes left. Sharpe made both free throws to push the lead back to 16 and ultimately put the outcome out of reach.

Lajarious Davis and Archie Albritton scored 12 points apiece for the Panthers.

Adrian Sims, a Chipley freshman who scored 10 points, echoed Sharpe's thoughts that the practice leading up to the game was crucial. Now the Tigers are returning to state in the hunt for their second state championship in three years.

"We played with heart," Sims said.

Logan Justice is a senior who is one of only two holdovers — Sharpe is the other — from the team that collected a state title in 2012. Justice said the Tigers have played with "a target on our back" and have work ahead of them to bring home a state championship next week.

"We can't go down there big-headed," Justice said. "We have to feel like everyone is at our level and our competition."

VHS victorious at first weightlifting meet

Special to the News

The 2014 Vernon Yellow Jackets boy's weightlifting team competed in its first meet of the year Feb. 11 against Bozeman and walked away with a 70-10 victory. This is the first full season of Vernon having a competitive team since Coach Johns arrived last spring. With several lifters who have a great opportunity to qualify for the State Weightlifting Finals in April, this looks to be an exciting year for the Jacket lifters.

Competitive weightlifting is the cornerstone for the progression the Jacket Football program is hoping to continue building into the future.

The next meet for the Jackets will be at Rutherford on Thursday, Feb. 27. The Jackets also will host one of the sectional state qualifiers at 11:30 a.m. March 24.

This past week also marked another step for the Yellow Jacket athletic department as they competed in the first boy's track meet on many years at Chipley High School. Austin Brown took top honors in the long jump with a 19 feet 2 inch jump and Tristan Porter took first place in the discus. Runners also competed well in the running events for the Jackets.

Coach Johns is coaching the track team as well, and a girl's team is in the works as well. Many people are not aware but VHS fielded its first girl's weightlifting team this year as well, coached by Coach Chaz Johns.

Five girls competed the entire season as well as the state qualifier. By this time next year VHS will field both boy's and girls' track and boys' and girl's weightlifting teams.

Vernon High School reps would like to congratulate all the athletes who are dedicating their time to building these programs.

Whitson solid in University of Florida victory

By ERIC JORGENSEN
Halifax Media Group

CORAL GABLES — Chipley graduate Karsten Whitson — returning to the mound for the Florida Gators this season after missing all of last year with an injury — had a four-run lead before threw his first pitch Sunday.

Combined with a two-run fourth inning, it turned out to be enough, as the 20th-ranked Gators beat the 17th-ranked Miami Hurricanes 6-4 in the series finale on Sunday afternoon.

Whitson, making his second start of the season, allowed two runs in three hits and one walk in three innings. He struck out one in an outing where he threw 54 pitches.

"Every time he goes out there he needs to learn something new and obviously, he needs to be good for us to be good," said Florida head coach Kevin O'Sullivan. "And he will. But, to expect him to come out and throw seven shutout innings in his second start after missing almost two years is unrealistic, so we'll build on that and get better for the next outing."

Whitson's outing Sunday was an improvement over his first one this year, when he allowed three runs on four hits in two innings.

Whitson could be a key to Florida's success this year. In 2011, he was named national freshman pitcher of the year by Perfect Game, and was named a freshman all-American by Baseball America, Louisville Slugger and the National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association. He was also on the Southeastern Conference's all-freshman team, having finished 8-1 with a 2.40 ERA as a regular member of Florida's weekend rotation.

In 2012, he appeared in 14 games and was 4-0 with a 3.51 ERA.

Sunday, the Gators scored four runs on six hits in the first inning, and added two more in the fourth inning, giving Florida a 6-2 lead when Whitson gave way to the first six relief pitchers. The first of those, A.J. Puk, was awarded the win, since Whitson did not pitch enough innings as the starter to qualify for the victory.

"I told the players before the game to be a gritty team and get out with a win no matter how we have to do it," O'Sullivan said. "Our strength is our depth. We've got a lot of young guys to work in: We started four freshmen in the lineup. John Sternagel got his first start and got a couple of hits. A.J. Puk came in and did a nice job. Logan Shore did a nice job. Kirby Snead came in and did a nice job."

"This is a different environment. It's one thing to pitch at this level, but now you have to pitch on the road against a quality team. We're young. We're not nearly a finished product yet and we've got a lot of work to do, but I liked the fight we showed today and hopefully we'll look back down the road and think, 'that's kind of what got us going.'"

Florida tied its Saturday night output of six hits in the first inning alone

Sunday after batting through the order and putting up four runs, courtesy of three singles, two doubles and a triple.

The Gators return home to McKethan Stadium to face Florida Gulf Coast on Thursday with the first pitch slated for 7 p.m. local time.

CHIPOLA TEACHER EDUCATION WORKSHOP

across the state to collect public comment.

In addition to putting slots at six pari-mutuel facilities, including Ebro Greyhound Park, the bill would create a gaming commission, pave the way for two South Florida destination casinos, require greyhound injury reporting and cut down on overall greyhound races.

Slot machines would be allowed at pari-mutuel facilities that held a countywide referendum after July 6, 2010. Washington County approved slots for Ebro Greyhound Park in 2012, when residents passed the measure by 57 percent.

The state attorney general blocked their installation, however, a move that long has vexed Ebro president and general manager Stockton Hess, who said the voters should be "outraged" if this bill doesn't pass.

"It was a binding referendum; it was not a straw ballot," Hess said Monday. "The voters should not be ignored or disenfranchised."

Hess said he has no crystal ball and wouldn't handicap the likelihood of the bill passage, but he gave assurances it would be a "very political" process.

He pointed out it's no secret the pari-mutuel failities need other options to lure in players, particularly now that dog racing is a losing venture.

One surprise in the bill package, though, is the absence of a decoupling provision. Decoupling is the effort to remove the requirement for tracks to run a minimum number of greyhound races to operate a card room.

Many were confident decoupling was a shoe-in, but the bill only includes a provision that would cut tracks' required races down to 100 performances a year. (A performance is eight races.)

Ebro currently is required to run 167 performances annually.

Committee Chairman Garrett Richter, R-Naples, who decided what went into the bill, pushed hard for the idea in committee but faced opposition from influential state Sen. Jack Latvala, R-Clearwater, who said such a move would mean picking winners and losers.

The current proposal would reduce greyhound races overall, but it likely will disappoint tracks and animal-welfare advocates who sought to break the ties between dog races and card rooms altogether.

The other two bills in the package are significantly smaller. One would create a list of public records exemptions, mostly for the proposed gaming commission, and would require further gambling expansion be put to a vote by state constitutional amendment.

The Senate panel will discuss the bills at its March 3 meeting but will not vote to introduce them. Richter said in a memo that he wants a thorough, deliberate process so members can fully vet the legislation.

Richter said plenty of good measures failed to make the initial draft, but the committee can consider such proposals as amendments.

"That way, any proposed substantive changes will be transparent, and committee members will have ample opportunities to debate policy implications," he said.

Meanwhile, the anti-gaming group No Casinos trashed the bill package, calling it "Christmas in February for out-of-state gambling interests."

"This legislation reeks of gambling interest influence," said John Sowinski, No Casinos' president. "I have yet to find any major provision that isn't there at the request of somebody in the gambling industry."

"Why do they want to come?" Wolfgang asked. "We're known for our outdoor activities such as canoeing, hunting and fishing. I think we should build around that."

The council also approved TDC Administrative Assistant Heather Lopez to continue research on purchasing a car to be used by the TDC for trade shows and other promotional travel. At present, the vehicle will fall under the county's insurance and tax exempt status, but the TDC will pay the insurance premium and all other costs associated with the vehicle. Lopez is expected to report her findings to the council when they meet again in regular session next month.

Lopez also reported extra filming cost for the county's promotional video, bringing the total to $615 — $415 more than anticipated.

"We had an unanticipated extra day of filming," Lopez said. "We couldn't fit everything in one day like we planned." The council approved paying the extra cost, and the first segment of the video, featuring spring in Washington County, is expected to be released by the TDC next week.

ChIPLEY Garden Club keeps floral arts 'growing' in Washington County

By CAROL KENT

ckent@chipleypaper.com

Members of the Chipley Garden Club are investing their time to ensure activities like gardening, floral design and landscape design don't become a lost art here.

Through classroom demonstrations to annual scholarships, members want today's youth to get excited about the various disciplines within the study of plants and flowers.

"We're glad to see the students excited and hope to one day see some of those same faces as Chipley Garden Club members," Garden Club Public Relations Officer Gweneth Collins said.

Club members recently visited Kate Smith Elementary School to teach the art of creating dried floral arrangements and are expected to return soon to teach a class on live arrangements.

"I continue to be amazed at the creativity and imagination of the children," said Second Vice President and Youth Fair Chairperson Linda Pigott after the class. "The arrangements the fourth graders created this year are just wonderful! The judges will have their work cut out for them this year at the Washington County 4-H Youth Fair on Feb. 28 and March 1."

Later this month, Chipley Garden Club members will return to Kate Smith Elementary to teach live floral design.

In other efforts to encourage today's youth in this area, club Scholarship Chairman Gail Exum, announced several scholarships for high school seniors and college students are now available through the Florida Federation of Garden Clubs Inc.

"Scholarship applicants are required to be a resident of Florida, a citizen of the United States of America, be a full-time student in a Florida high school/college and have a grade point average of 3.0 or higher," Exum said. "The applicant's field of study must be in agriculture, biology, botany, city planning, public sanitation, conservation, ecology, forestry, horticulture, landscape design/architecture or related fields, such as environmental studies, nature photography, etc."

FFGC scholarships of $2,000 each must be received by FFGC before May 1. Complete information and forms are available online at www.ffgc.org.

In addition to the FFGC scholarships, the National Garden Club also offers scholarships for the same fields of study. Information from NGC can be obtained at www.gardenclub.org. Application deadline for receipt at NGC is March 1.

Meanwhile, the ladies of the Garden Club keep themselves educated and excited about the art as well.

Most recently, the club took a guided tour of the Natural Decorations Inc. (NDI) in Brewton, Ala. For more than 49 years, NDI has been known for exceptional designs for excelling in the art of fabric floral design. NDI designs are featured in department stores, movie and TV sets, palaces, mansions and celebrity homes. Their designs have also been featured at the Oscars, the Rose Parade and even the White House.

The tour included the production room where designs were being assembled, one of two giant warehouses, a tree construction area where leaves are individually applied to real wood and a container zone. In the packing/shipping area, an employee demonstrated how designs are packed.

Anyone interested in Chipley Garden Club's activities or projects is asked to contact Club President Karen Roland at 638-9968.

Questions regarding scholarship information can be directed to Gail Exum by emailing gexum@bellsouth.net.

Florida's top performing STEM students were recently recognized as Sunshine State Scholars and given the opportunity to attend a two-day event in Orlando Feb. 13-14. It was an event that could possibly change the course of their future as they learned why Florida is the best place to learn and pursue an exciting career.

Each school district throughout Florida selected their top 11th-grade student based on their academic achievement in science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM). These students, along with their parents and a teacher chosen by each student, were invited to participate in the annual Sunshine State Scholars program.

The Sunshine State Scholars program is sponsored by the Florida Education Foundation in collaboration with the State University System of Florida, the Florida College System and the Florida Department of Education. It began in 1997 to recognize excellence in mathematics and science.

On bringing back the King

A reporter from the New York Journal once tried to pin A. B. Simpson down on the matter of Christ's return. The reporter asked him, "Do you know when the Lord is coming?"

"Yes," he replied, "and I will tell you if you promise to print just what I say, references and all."

The reporter's poised notebook gave the ready promise. "Then put this down: This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto the nations and then shall the end come." Matthew 24:14.

Have you written the reference?" "Yes, what more?" "Nothing more."

The reporter lowered his pencil and said, "Do you mean to say that you believe that when the Gospel is preached in all the nations Jesus will return?"

"Just that."

"I think I begin to see the daylight," answered the reporter. "I see the motivation and the motive power in the movement."

"Then," Simpson said, "You see more than some of the doctors of divinity." It is so easy to get caught up in the minutia of eschatology we forget the real reason of it. To have something as precious as the coming of the Lord dividing believers has to be something hatched in the boiling cauldron of Hell.

I am wondering if this is what our Lord had in mind when he encouraged us to look for his coming. Does all of this religious rhetoric passing for eschatology today really please the Lord?

Take a picture of a father going away on a trip. He sits his young family down and tells them he is soon going on a trip. He does not tell them when he is coming back; it is to be a surprise for them. But when he does return he will have special gifts for each one of them. Then he leaves for his trip.

After he is gone, the children begin arguing. "Father's coming back before lunch," one insists. "No, no, no," another argues. "He's coming after lunch." And the squabbling goes on and on and on. Soon the only thing that really matters to these children is which one has the right view on the returning father. Each one holds his view of their returning father, as the correct one and the others are all wrong. They have exchanged the joy of their returning father for the smug satisfaction in their own minds that their view of his return is the correct one. They had forgotten that the real joy is the returning father.

Out to Pastor

I believe this carries over into the church life. We hear doctrinal debates on this view and that view of eschatology. And in it all, we have lost the simple joy that Jesus is coming.

Many people are going to be disappointed when Jesus does not come, according to their schedule. Some have mapped out the return of the Lord in such minute detail that if Jesus should come contrary to their expectations they will be rather disappointed. Even Jesus said, "But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but my Father only" (Matthew 24:36 KJV).

When Jesus said this, I think one of the things he had in his mind was that we should not get all caught up with the day or the hour. The most significant part is the personal return of Jesus Christ.

The early church believed in the imminent return of Christ. That is, they believed Christ would come at any moment. They lived their lives so as to conform to this wonderful expectation. Now, some have called into doubt the word "imminent," because all the early church believers have died and Christ has not returned yet.

Enter the professional doctrinal slicing and dicing. And boy, have they gone to work on this. But very simply, imminent means that I should so live my life as to expect the Lord to return now. He may come today, or it may be another thousand years. The time element is not the significant aspect here. What is significant is the fact that I am living a life totally in harmony with the imminent return of Christ.

Some have made it their full-time job to talk about prophecy and eschatology, which might not be so bad except for the fact that they make it an end in itself. The thing that permeated Dr. Simpson's teaching on the second coming of Christ was its relationship to world evangelism. It might be noted here, Simpson did not differentiate between home-field or foreign field. The world was his parish, and the world needed to be reached with the gospel of Jesus Christ. His teaching on the second coming spurred his passion to reach this world for Jesus Christ.

In a magazine article Dr. Simpson wrote, "Instead of looking for Christ, multitudes are looking for the millennium, the conversion of the world, the regeneration of the nations... His charge was, 'Watch not for the millennium, but for the Lord.'" (A. B. Simpson, "That Blessed Hope," WWW, 1, no. 4, May 1882).

When Jesus ascended into heaven, the Angel gave this instruction to the wondering disciples. "Which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven" (Acts 1:11 KJV).

It is this "same Jesus," that we are to be watching for.

I suppose it would be impossible to tell how many commentaries there are on the book of Revelation. Most miss the first five words of this book, "The Revelation of Jesus Christ." It is not a book simply of last day events and personalities. It is a book exclusively of Jesus Christ and the unfolding of him in these last days. Everything else is immaterial.

Why not just concentrate on bringing back the King?

Wondering Why You're Wandering?
In the Israelites' disobedience, they had wandered from God, and He allowed them to go. When they returned thirsty, tired, and repentant, He quenched their thirst and gave them rest. God forgives all sins when approached with repentance. His forgiveness is a gift one cannot earn, but you may receive it.

An angel with a bright personality to help light the skies. You wanted an angel with laughter that was simply sweet. You wanted an angel that would dance on your golden streets; one with the love and compassion that only a mother could possess. Her halo will always hang somewhat different than the rest. Wound Care among specialized services offered at NWFCH

Over the past few years, Northwest Florida Community Hospital has enjoyed many successes in bringing healthcare opportunities to this community, one being the Wound Healing Institute.

“The Wound Healing Institute at Northwest Florida Community Hospital offers the patient the best of both worlds: quality care with excellent outcomes – close to home,” said NWFCH Chief Operating Officer Janet Kinney.

“This program uses the most current approaches to healing stubborn wounds, staying up-to-date with the latest scientific advances in wound care,” she added. “The specialized team uses a multidisciplinary approach when evaluating each specific patient, and customizes a healing program specifically designed to maximize the healing process for that patient.”

Kinney also explained the program treats persistent wounds that may be caused by diabetes, radiation burns, surgical wounds, crush injuries, and animal or insect wounds, to name a few. Typical therapy may include advanced dressing applications, compression therapy, nutritional counseling, non-invasive arterial surveys, Bio-engineered cell therapy and growth factor applications (skin grafts). If a more comprehensive approach is needed, Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy is available.

Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy is a painless, noninvasive treatment that delivers natural healing qualities of 100% oxygen under pressure. This process helps the body fight infection and promotes formation of healthy tissue. At NWFCH, a skilled physician and certified hyperbaric technologists supervise and monitor the entire therapy to ensure the patient’s safety and comfort. The wound heal rate for patients who participate in the hyperbaric program is 98%.

NFCH is one of only two hyperbaric programs in the Florida panhandle that have received accreditation certification by the Undersea and Hyperbaric Medical Society. After Chipley, patients would have to travel to Lakeland to receive treatment at an accredited program.

“With only ten certified programs in the state, you can be assured that the Wound Healing Institute goes above and beyond to bring the most skilled and safe hyperbaric program to you,” said Kinney. “There’s hope for even the most difficult wounds using hyperbaric oxygen therapy.”

Doctors Memorial Hospital, hometown feel and service with a smile

Doctors Memorial Hospital is known as a local hospital built by the community, for the community, one that strives for patient satisfaction and continual involvement in the community, according to Administrator JoAnn Baker.

“At Doctors Memorial Hospital, you can have the same services done in your hometown hospital that you can have done at the larger facilities in Panama City and Dothan,” said Baker. “Doctors Memorial Hospital provides a wide variety of services right here in Bonifay. These services range from surgical to swing bed and radiology to respiratory.”

The Radiology Department has a new service this year that can detect Peripheral Artery Disease (PAD). PADnet Arterial testing (ABI) is a non-invasive exam to detect blockages in extremity arteries and the quality of blood flow using Pulse Volume Recordings (PVRs) and segmental blood pressure measurements. Who is at risk for P.A.D.? The risk of developing PAD increases with age. People over 50 years of age have a higher risk. Other factors that increase your risk are smoking, diabetes, high blood pressure, abnormal cholesterol levels, heart disease, heart attack, stroke, and a family history of PAD, heart attack or stroke.

In addition, the Radiology department at Doctors Memorial Hospital offers a wide range of other tests, including Full Field Digital Mammography, which features a filmless system that reduces patient wait times, total exposures, and discomfort.

The facility’s laboratory is also on the cutting edge of today’s medical technology. Doctors Memorial Hospital has the only laboratory in the local area that is certified to perform high-complexity testing. The hospital has a modern, exceptionally well-equipped, fully computerized laboratory featuring Beckman instruments.

Other outstanding services at Doctors Memorial Hospital include both inpatient and outpatient surgical procedures, Cardiopulmonary, a Swing Bed Program for patients in the rehabilitation phase of their recovery, and other rehabilitation services, such as Physical Therapy, Occupational Therapy, Speech Therapy, and Aquatic Therapy.

The Doctors Memorial Hospital Foundation is a nonprofit charitable 501(c)3 organization that is governed by a five-member Board of Directors consisting of local resident volunteers representing the community to make advanced strides for the hospital, their patients and their efforts in the community. Through monetary support by memberships, donations, and fundraisers, the foundation assists the hospital in purchasing necessary equipment and providing new services to better the community. If you are interested in learning more about the Doctors Memorial Hospital Foundation, visit their website at www.doctorsmemorial.org/foundation/index.php.

Campbellton-Graceville Hospital bridges gap with transitional care unit

The Campbellton-Graceville Hospital, once simply known as the Graceville Hospital, was located where the Jackson County Tax Collector's Office and the Graceville News now sit on Cliff Street, until August of 1963, when it opened in its current location on College Drive.

The Campbellton-Graceville Hospital offers a 25-bed transitional care unit. This unit helps patients bridge the gap from inpatient care to being able to go home and take care of themselves.

The Rehabilitative Services Department

at the hospital offers Physical, Occupational, and Speech therapies. Respiratory Therapy is also offered to those patients who are suffering from a wide range of breathing problems.

The Rehabilitative Services Mission Statement is as follows: Our mission is to motivate clients to reach their optimal physical potential. By providing one-on-one treatment using the latest techniques.

For an appointment with the Rehabilitative Department call 263-4431 ext: 2110.

The hospital also boasts Hospice Care, X-Ray Services, Laboratory Service, and a 24-hour Emergency Room.

The Emergency Room at Campbellton-Graceville Hospital guarantees that each patient who visits the ER will be seen by a medical professional within 30-minutes of arrival to the department or the visit is free of charge.

The Campbellton-Graceville Hospital invites the public to visit their website, c-ghospital.com, where patients may pre-register, former patients may pay their bills, and where anyone can make donations to the hospital to use for important needs of the hospital.

Did you know?

There are a host of ways fitness-minded folks can burn a few extra calories, even if they don't know they're doing it. For instance, those who can't sit still and tend to have a nervous personality may burn more calories than a person who is calm. That's because fidgeting can burn up to 350 calories a day. Laughing more can also burn extra calories. Scientists estimate that laughing 100 times is equivalent to a 10-minute workout on a rowing machine. Remember to get some shut-eye as well. Research has found that dieters who get adequate sleep can more easily shed weight. For those who are feeling amorous, engaging in intimate behavior can burn up to 360 calories an hour.

Students also learn medical terminology and become familiar with hospital, laboratory, and medical procedures as well as general office procedures.

WHTC's other health career programs include Practical Nursing, Patient Care Technician, Pharmacy Technician, Emergency Medical Technician and Medical Coder and Biller. All medical programs enroll new students at the beginning of the fall semester in August. The Patient Care Technician program and Practical Nursing also have second classes that begin in February. All programs lead to state licensure or industry certification and have an outstanding placement rates and high-wage salaries.

Nemours Children's Clinic to partner with Doctors Memorial Hospital

Nemours Children's Clinic will be joining with Doctors Memorial Hospital to provide specialized pediatric care to this area as a halfway point to their clinics in Tallahassee and Pensacola.

"We do pediatric subspecialty care," said Mary Mehta, Medical Director of Nemours Children's Clinic. "We have a clinic that was built in 1998 on the campus of Sacred Heart Hospital, the children's hospital in Pensacola. We (also) have a separate clinic that sits on (the Doctor's Memorial Hospital) property."

"We occupy about three and a half floors, have about 140 nurses and staff, and 24 physicians. We work in partnership with FSU, which is the residency program that does outreach in both the pediatric residents and internal medicine."

She explained the reason for choosing Bonifay is that due to the economy, one of the leading problems families face is a financial struggle to seek care because of the expense of traveling long distances to seek care.

"We are just starting our outreach program at Doctors Memorial Hospital," said Mehta.

"I feel very blessed and fortunate because I think that this is going to help us grow..."

JoAnn Baker

Administrator, Doctors Memorial Hospital

"You have just a great location just right off I-10 and easy to locate. We had our first clinic in January where we came out and seen patients, we did pediatric pulmonary last week and will start pediatric nephrology in another week with more subspecialties to come."

The subspecialties they currently specialize in are endocrinology, cardiology, hematology, nephrology, gastroenterology, orthopedics, ENT, rheumatology, pulmonology and urology.

"We want to grow, and one of the ways we can grow is for you all to help us ... the economics of pediatric care is that 55 to 65 percent of our children in this state have Medicaid, and Medicaid Florida is at the very bottom of the list across the country for reimbursement of services," she said.

Mehta also said while the clinic doesn't get reimbursed for the amount they spend, costs are augmented by the Alfred I. duPont trust, with 50 percent of yearly spin-off approved for Florida.

"We have an allotment that is fixed ... but it also allows us partner up for super specialty care that might have otherwise not have been able to be provided to the community," said Mehta. "We can be the advocates for your children to obtain that care."

She added the clinic eventually wants to "stretch across the panhandle."

Mehta also added that parents shouldn't be afraid to bring in their children due to financial restraints because the clinic will examine and treat children regardless of their ability to pay.

Administrator for Doctors Memorial Hospital JoAnn Baker said the hospital is "very excited" about the new clinic.

"I feel very blessed and fortunate because I think that this is going to help us grow and we're going to grow together," said Baker. "This is another service we want to help serve our community."

Physical therapy a vital part of treatment and recovery

Illnesses of the musculoskeletal system can result in temporary loss of mobility. But physical therapy can help to prevent those temporary problems from becoming permanent.

The American Physical Therapy Association says physical therapists diagnose and treat individuals of all ages who have conditions that limit their abilities to perform functional activities. Limitations in mobility may result from injury or illness or be present at birth. Many physical therapists develop a plan to reduce pain and restore function through various treatment techniques with the ultimate goal of restoring a patient's functional independence.

Physical therapists are licensed healthcare professionals who must receive a degree from an accredited physical therapist program before taking national licensure exams that enable them to open a practice or work in a facility. The Bureau of Labor Statistics predicts a 30 percent growth in physical therapy careers through 2018, which is a rate better than all other occupations. Unemployment rates for physical therapists are very low, and they are in high demand.

Physical therapists employ various physical modalities to help with certain conditions. For example, a patient may be asked to perform various range-of-motion exercises to restore function to an injured part of the body. Physical therapists also may use heat, cold and electrical impulses to reduce pain and stimulate muscle function. Physical therapy sessions frequently include some form of massage as well.

While athletes frequently rely on physical therapy as they recover from injuries, others can benefit from physical therapy as well. For example, physical therapy may work in conjunction with other treatments for cardiopulmonary disease. The cardiopulmonary system delivers oxygen to active tissues, which plays an important part in movement. When the cardiopulmonary system is compromised, muscles and other tissues may not function as they should, and certain exercises and mobility therapies may be needed. Physical therapists also aid in improving physical ailments related to neurological diseases, such as cerebral palsy, multiple sclerosis, spinal cord injuries, Parkinson's disease, and Alzheimer's disease. Physical therapists may also help treat poor vision, poor balance and paralysis.

Children who have learning disabilities related to a neurological or physical condition may benefit from certain forms of physical therapy. For example, vision problems can compromise academic performance, so physical therapy that aims to enhance visual tracking skills and strengthen the eyes in conjunction with corrective lenses may help youngsters, or even adult students, perform better in the classroom.

Very often physical therapy will be recommended by a general doctor or an orthopedic surgeon as part of recovery from a surgery or a condition. The therapist may work in conjunction with another doctor to provide a program that helps foster a faster and safe recovery. Physical therapy tends to begin gradually and resistance is slowly built up as the body strengthens. The length of physical therapy will depend on the condition and the recommendation of the therapist and doctors overseeing the treatments.

Are expired medications safe?

Many medicine cabinets are stocked with over-the-counter drugs as well as prescription medications that may be past their expiration dates. It is a good idea to routinely discard expired medicines, but if you happen to take a drug that has passed its expiration date, you will most likely suffer no ill effects.

According to the Harvard Medical School Family Health Guide, the expiration date on a medicine is not the dates when a drug becomes hazardous. Rather, it marks the period of time after which a drug company can no longer guarantee the efficacy of the medication. Expiration dates also may be a marketing ploy. Francis Flaherty, a retired FDA pharmacist, has said drug manufacturers put expiration dates on products for marketing purposes rather than scientific reasons. It doesn't make financial sense to a company to have products on the shelves for years. Therefore, most drug manufacturers will not do long-term testing on products to confirm if they will be effective 10 to 15 years after manufacture.

Although a pharmacist cannot legally advise consumers to use medication past an expiration date, most over-the-counter pain relievers and drugs in pill form should still be fine. Certain liquid antibiotics and drugs made up of organic materials can expire faster than others. For those who still want to err on the safe side, routinely clean out medications from cabinets once they expire. However, if an expired medication is taken by mistake, there's little need to worry about potentially adverse effects.

How to make flossing easier for kids

It is well known that a combination of brushing, flossing and periodic dental checkups are essential to oral health. Some parents teach their children to brush thoroughly early on, even taking them for dental visits at young ages so youngsters can become acclimated to the dentist's office. But flossing is one component of oral hygiene that may be overlooked because many kids simply don't enjoy it.

Children should be urged to floss regularly in addition to brushing. There are many products available and techniques that can be used to assist children with cleaning between their teeth. The following are some flossing tips for kids.

Begin the introduction to floss early. The younger children are introduced to floss, the more likely they are to embrace flossing as part of their oral hygiene routine.

Show visual proof of the benefits of flossing. Show pictures of dental decay and what occurs when proper oral hygiene is not followed. This may help make the concept of flossing more attractive.

Get the proper tools. Kids cannot floss unless they have floss products on hand. There are various age-appropriate flossers and types of dental floss available. Children may not be able to use dental floss properly because of a lack of dexterity. However, floss picks are much easier to hold and work between the teeth, particularly for kids with small hands.

Let kids choose. Take kids down the dental aisle at the store and let them pick and choose which products they want to use. They may be more excited to brush and floss if they're using something they picked out themselves.

Lead by example. Children will be more likely to floss if they see their parents flossing. That means adults should floss regularly and let their children watch and learn.

Benefits of flossing

Removing bacteria and trapped food from teeth has a number of benefits. Bacteria can cause bad breath, but flossing and brushing helps to keep breath smelling fresh.

Dirty teeth can lead to dental carries. Children may be more inclined to floss if they know they'll be preventing cavities and avoiding potentially painful trips to the dentist.

Plaque trapped between the teeth and along the gum line that leads to periodontal disease puts a person at a greater risk for heart disease. There are some studies that show bacteria from the mouth can end up in the bloodstream.

Flossing is a necessary component of good oral hygiene. Everyone should floss, no matter their age, and children should begin flossing as soon as their mouth starts to fill out with pearly whites.

Change your diet to include foods that provide energy

Winter weather produces more than just colder temperatures. The longer hours of darkness synonymous with winter can promote feelings of lethargy and fatigue. Changing your diet to include foods that provide energy may be just what you need to counter such fatigue.

Energy levels are often affected by what we eat. The key is to select menu items that will provide a gradual stream of energy through the day, eliminating those highs and lows that can lead to dips in energy. Here are some smart food choices to fight fatigue.

fiber-rich food provides a quick boost of energy from carbohydrates, but will not result in a sugar crash that is common with many breakfast cereals. The fiber in oatmeal will feed the beneficial bacteria in your digestive tract, helping to keep the digestion system healthy. This means you can easily absorb the nutrients in oatmeal and avoid constipation.

Pumpkin seeds: Snacking on magnesium-rich foods, such as pumpkin seeds, will provide the body with the recommended daily allowance of magnesium. Aim for 310 mg of magnesium for women and 400 mg for men.

Lean proteins: When enjoying proteins, opt for leaner meats and seafood that can be quickly digested by the body.

Yogurt: The soft texture of yogurt makes it easily digestible by the body, providing a quick source of energy. But unlike other foods, yogurt has a good ratio of protein to carbohydrates, making it a long-lasting energy source. Yogurt also contains a bevy of healthy probiotics that promote healthy bacteria in the digestive tract while eliminating harmful bacteria. Recent research from the University of Toronto suggests that probiotics can help ease symptoms of chronic fatigue syndrome, among other conditions. This makes yogurt a good meal or snack to enjoy any time of the day.

Whole grains: When choosing carbohydrates, opt for complex carbohydrates, which can be found in whole grains, instead of refined carbs. The body digests and releases complex carbohydrates slowly, moderating blood sugar levels and keeping your mood stable. This helps the body maintain adequate energy levels.

Spinach: Fatigue may be a byproduct of an iron deficiency, which is a common cause of anemia. Red blood cells use iron to carry oxygen to cells. Without adequate iron, the red blood cells cannot do their job well and mental and physical fatigue may ensue. Spinach is an excellent source of iron, magnesium and vitamin C.

Walnuts: Walnuts and other foods rich in omega-3 fatty acids can alleviate symptoms of fatigue. A study published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition suggests that alpha-linolenic acid found in walnuts can boost energy and relieve depression symptoms.

Dark chocolate: Every once in a while you may crave something a little sweet for a pick-me-up. But rather than selecting just any candy bar or snack, opt for something smart. Dark chocolate is rich in antioxidants and polyphenols. The chocolate helps boost the brain chemical serotonin, which can alleviate feelings of fatigue.

Winter doldrums do not have to get you down. Selecting an array of healthy foods that provide maximum energy and mood-boosting properties can help to banish fatigue.

How to make informed health care decisions

The typical healthcare patient has changed in recent years. No longer are individuals putting all of their healthcare decisions into the hands of nurses and doctors. Patients are more informed than ever before and are interested in taking a more active role in their own care.

Thanks to the Internet, people are able to access information that, in the past, was not easily available. A few decades ago, medical data may have been elusive and filled with confusing jargon the layperson might not have understood without a crash course in biology. However, today there are different Web sites that clearly spell out information about certain illnesses and diseases. This means that patients may no longer be walking blindly into appointments with doctors.

Patients who do not have all of the facts may have to rely solely on the expertise of caregivers and physicians when making important healthcare decisions. By knowing the avenues of information, a patient can find assistance with careful decision-making.

While learning about an ailment is important, there are some things to consider.

The Internet isn't foolproof. Many online medical sites are very reliable and offer a wealth of pertinent information. They can be good starting points when seeking out information on a particular condition. It is in your best interest to visit sites that are well-known and monitored by respected medical affiliations. Other sites may be peppered with exaggerated claims or misinformation.

Don't self-diagnose. It can be easy to use the Internet as a means to narrowing down symptoms and making assumptions about what ailments you may have. Instead of using the Internet to self-diagnose your condition, leave the diagnosis up to your doctor and rely on online information after you are diagnosed. This can improve your understanding of the condition and any potential treatment options.

Seek other avenues of information. You should never hesitate to seek a second opinion or go to a published medical journal to find out more about a condition. You have rights as a patient to be comfortable with the advice doctors give and be as involved in your treatment as you want to be.

Online forums could be more harm than help. Many people turn to online forums and blogs to gain more insight into particular diseases. While these forums may be good sources of support, information published on these sites could be misleading, inaccurate or unsafe. Before trying any proposed treatment, it is best to consult with your doctor.

Preparing for hospice care

Sometimes patients succumb to a disease, in spite of the best treatments and support. When the time comes for a family to confront a loved one's declining health, hospice care can be a dignified way to make that person's final days as comforting as possible.

Hospice is a type of care designed to make the final moments of a person's life as pain-free and manageable as possible. It can take place in a medical facility, but very often hospice care occurs at home or wherever the ill person feels most comfortable.

Hospice care is usually the last step when all other options have been exhausted. Making the decision to move a loved one to hospice care can be an emotionally wrenching time. Decisions such as these may be better made at a time in a person's life when he or she is not sick. That is why living wills that spell out details for end-of-life care can be quite valuable. Decisions are made with a level head and not wrought with emotions. Such living wills also can take the pressure off of family members who may not feel comfortable making such decisions on their own or in concert with relatives.

Hospice is a type of care and a philosophy that focuses on the palliative care of terminally ill patients. Rather than providing medication to try to treat the illness, medicine is offered to make a person more comfortable and remove any pain. Although hospice is a concept that has gradually evolved since the 11th century, the principles of modern hospice care can trace their roots to the 1950s and Dame Cicely Saunders, a nurse and social worker who is known as the creator of the hospice movement.

If hospice care is outlined in a dying person's living will or expressed wishes, there are some guidelines that can be followed by the sick individual. (See box at right.)

– Visit various medical care centers to see if away-from-home options provide the care and environment you desire. If Be sure to establish what type of hospice care you prefer. This may include care within a nursing home or hospital, or in the comfort of your own home.

– Sign a medical durable power of attorney. This signed document gives authority to an adult age 18 or older, who then has the right to make necessary medical and healthcare decisions for you in the event you become incapacitated.

– Clearly indicate your wishes regarding resuscitation. A signed document may alert emergency healthcare personnel or others of your wishes not to be resuscitated. This document must be signed by you and a doctor and witnessed by others.

– Decide on the duration of care. Hospice care generally lasts six months. This enables a long stretch of palliative care. Should you live beyond the time period, hospice care can continue. Studies have shown that patients who receive hospice care for at least 30 to 60 days gain greater benefit than those who are placed in hospice only in their final days.

– Investigate financial options for hospice. Medicare and Medicaid provide hospice coverage in 44 states. Many private insurance plans have a hospice benefit as well. Understand how payment is made to figure out if private funding will be necessary.

Eyes on health: What your eyes can tell doctor

People who have been putting off eye examinations may want to call their ophthalmologists to schedule an appointment. That's because vision checkups can do more than protect your eyes. By examining the eyes, doctors may have a window into health problems affecting other areas of the body.

Researchers recently discovered a link between detected retinal amyloid plaques and the onset of Alzheimer's disease. While evidence was found in lab mice, autopsies of at least eight Alzheimer's disease patients have also shown amyloid plaques, which are known to interfere with memory and other mental functions, present in the retinas.

Dementia is not the only thing that doctors may be able to detect through an eye exam. Jaundice in the whites of the eyes may indicate liver disease, and early warning signs of diabetes may be detectable in the eyes. The eye is the only place where doctors can see veins, arteries and a nerve without surgery, and eye exami-as xanthelasma palpebra, is a warning sign of high cholesterol, which is often initially diagnosed during a routine eye exam.

Cancer

Some cancer metastases can be detected during an eye exam. The presence of a bump or brown spot on the eyelid also may be indicative of skin cancer. Many malignant eyelid tumors are basal-cell carcinoma. If the spot is brown, it's more likely to be malignant melanoma.

Thyroid issues

When the outer one-third of the brow (the part closest to the ear) begins to disappear on its own, this is a common sign of thyroid disease. The thyroid helps regulate metabolism, and thyroid hormones are essential to hair production.

Hair loss may occur elsewhere, but is much more visible in the brows.

Clogged arteries

Blockages in the smaller veins in the retina may indicate clogs caused by arterial plaque. This will show up as a retinal occlusion in a visual exam. If blood vessels in the eyes are blocked, clogged arteries may be present elsewhere in the body, so a cardiology workup may be ordered.

Bell's Palsy

The inability to close one eye or to control tear production in that eye may be a sign of Bell's palsy. This is a condition of the nervous system that controls facial muscles, causing temporary paralysis in one side of the face. Sometimes Bell's palsy follows a viral or bacterial infection.
