CHIPLEY — Residents of Chestnut Hill St. came out in droves Tuesday night to protest the proposed entryway for a new 24-hour drive-thru convenience store.

Council members unanimously approved the recommendation from the Planning and Zoning Commissioner to issue a development order for the store when they met in regular session last month.

The property owner, Jamey Lane, plans to begin construction on the 2,400 square ft. building within the next 60 days.

City Manager Dan Miner reports all city requirements have been met - but it's not the store, rather the location of the access road - that residents are protesting.

Dixie World Series to stimulate economy

CHIPLEY — Washington County will soon host 11 states in the 2014 Dixie Pre-Majors World Series.

Chipley was the unanimous choice for the event after Chipley High School Head Baseball Coach and President of the Chipley Dixie Majors Andy Compton made a presentation to Dixie Boys Baseball Commissioner and CEO Sandy Jones.

"We are very excited about the opportunity to visit Chipley for our 2014 event," said Jones in a recent press release. "The entire community will embrace this event, and the hospitality will be second to none. I have personally visited Chipley High School and found the playing fields to be used for the tournament to be outstanding."

The Washington County Tourist Development Council (TDC) estimates the event, which is scheduled for July 26 to July 30, will generate about $300,000 for the local economy.

"The tournament will have a tremendous impact on our county," said TDC Director Heather Lopez. "Not only will it put heads in (hotel) beds, but it will create revenue for our local restaurants, shops, and attractions for the six days these teams will be in town."

"This will be an opportunity for the TDC to showcase what our county has to offer to 11 states in the southeast, and we welcome them here."

This is the first time Washington County has hosted the event, and the first time in recent history a Florida city has been selected as host.

A welcome banquet will be held for the players and their families at 6 p.m. at the Washington County Agricultural Center.

Participating states are: Florida, Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, and Texas.

All games will be held at the Chipley High School baseball fields. Admission is $7, and concessions will be available.

For more information, call Heather Lopez at 638-6013.

Audit declares Chipley in 'good shape'

CHIPLEY — Members of the Chipley City Council quickly wrapped up their regular meeting Tuesday night after hearing from residents of Chestnut Street who protest the location of the proposed driveway for a new convenience store (see separate story, Page A1).

Council members also heard from Chipley Redevelopment Agency President Ted Everett, who asked the council to give a formal vote regarding two improvement grants the CRA has available.

Everett pointed out the city had previously agreed to support the grants but had not actually voted on them.

The grants in question are a Special Improvement Grant intended to help cover facade improvements such as painting and awning and door replacements for residents within the CRA district, and a $6,000 commercial grant, geared to making electrical improvements for businesses within the CRA district.

Everett pointed out the city and CRA needs to consider bundling the grants due to lack of interest from local contractors, making it difficult for residents to receive two bids as required by grant guidelines.

Council members agreed to take Everett's suggestion allow the CRA to reopen the bid process.

In other action, council members heard audit results for the 2012 - 2013 fiscal year, conducted by Carr, Riggs, & Ingram.

"The city is in good shape," said the representative, whose only advice was for some existing debt to be refinanced at lower rates.

Council members also approved renewing the non-exclusive franchise to Waste Management, Inc. of Florida for the collection and disposal of residential and commercial solid waste collection. This contract is in effect until May 31, 2017.

Heat deters patrons from flea market

By CECILIA SPEARS

CARYVILLE — With the summer days heating up, Caryville Flea Market Supervisor Paron Beeco explained to the Caryville Town Council that extreme heat has been a deterrent for both vendors and visitors alike.

Beeco gave her report when the council met in regular session Tuesday.

"Most vendors leave between 12 p.m. and 3 p.m. due to the heat and health issues, and (the number of) customers have dropped off, too," said Beeco. "I'm hoping to get two large fans out there to get the air circulating. I just want to see the flea market grow for our city."

Alex Thompson, minister for the local men's ministry and rehabilitation, came before the council to inform them that they have started a farmer's market and to request the water be turned on at the facility. Several months ago, Thompson approached the council about his recent purchase of the old prison work camp in Caryville with the intentions of turning the facility into a men's ministry and rehabilitation center. He said there are strict guidelines for those who attend the center, and sex offenders of any kind are prohibited.

After much discussion, the Council agreed to charge Thompson a $100 connection fee and a flat rate fee of $200 a month for 12 months, with the rates increasing after that period of time.

Chair Henry Chambers also informed the council he may have found financing to replace the roof of the Caryville Civic Center.

"It is important that we replace that roof," said Chambers. "It is an asset to our community, and it is an income for our town."

Ebro track president: Racing to continue

National industry has seen revenue decline

By JOHN HENDERSON
522-5108 | @PCNHjohn
jhenderson@pcnh.com

EBRO — Greyhound racing will continue at the track here despite predictions from some racing experts that it is a dying industry, the track president said Wednesday.

“Our plan is to continue dog racing,” said Stocky Hess, Ebro Greyhound Park president.

Betting on live racing has fallen from almost $1 billion in 1990 to $258 million last year in Florida, home to 12 of the 21 U.S. tracks that regularly hold live dog races.

Hess said the track’s handle is up, and it is committed to offering live greyhound racing.

The owners of many tracks — along with ghost tracks that now offer only simulcast racing — are aiming to survive long enough for states to let them drop dog racing altogether and just run casinos.

Hess said if the state allows slot machines to go into the tracks, the Ebro track would “absolutely” still continue dog racing.

Marc Dunbar, a Tallahassee attorney whose practice focuses on gaming and government law, said there are several political factors at work that he believes eventually will lead to the end of dog racing in the state.

“If I was telling my kids an industry to get into for their future, it would not be breeding greyhounds,” he said.

Revenues from live greyhound racing have been declining over the years, but track officials say revenues from simulcast racing and poker have eased the sting somewhat. Track owners have long wanted to be allowed to install slot machines at the tracks to bolster their revenues.

Florida, which in 1931 was the first state to legalize wagering on greyhound racing, opted against a measure in its most recent legislative session that would have allowed tracks to keep poker and slots and ditch the racing, a prospect known as “decoupling.”

But the plan, which proponents hope to revive in the 2015 legislative session, is seen as an expansion of gambling and faces opposition from gambling opponents and other competitors.

Dunbar said the conservative leadership in the state Legislature is opposed to an expansion of gaming in the state, and they view allowing slot machines at dog tracks as just that.

“I think any gaming bill that passed will encourage some phase-out of greyhound racing,” he said.

And if the state allowed slot machines at dog tracks, it stands to lose $277 million a year, which was negotiated in a compact agreement between former Gov. Charlie Crist and the Seminole Tribe, Dunbar said.

If slot machines were allowed at dog tracks, it would not generate nearly as much for the state as the revenues from the Seminole compact, Dunbar said.

“We have eight facilities (with slot machines) operating in South Florida, and all eight of them don’t produce as much as the Seminole Tribe does,” he said. “The compact says any expansion outside of the eight existing facilities in Dade and Broward will shut off the Seminole’s payments.”

Senate President Don Gaetz said Wednesday he could not predict whether legislation will be introduced in the next legislative session to allow slot machines at dog tracks or decoupling.

“I have never been a supporter of expanded gambling, but I would support and have supported decoupling,” he said.

He said he wouldn’t mind if dog racing ended, as there are many instances of inhumane treatment of greyhound dogs at tracks throughout the state, including at Ebro.

Some dog owners and trainers say they favor slots going into the tracks as long as the law would require the tracks to continue to have dog races. In fact, they said the slot machines could bolster attendance at the track and the greyhound races.

Teresa Duncan, who owns several dogs that race at Ebro, said if more people watched greyhound racing, it would dispel the perception the animals are abused. Duncan, who adopts the dogs that she races, said the animals enjoy racing.

“They are born with a job to do, a job that they love to do,” she said.

Joe Watson, a trainer of dogs that run at Ebro, said he is concerned about the future of dog racing.

“I’ve got over 100 greyhounds,” he said. The concern could be quelled if a law were passed allowing slots at tracks but required live dog races, he said.

But Dunbar said he doesn’t envision legislation of that type passing.

Dunbar said some conservative legislators feel the best way for dog racing to go away is to not allow the tracks to have slot machines and let them keep operating as they now are.

Hess said he hopes after the next election the governor negotiates a new deal with the Seminole Indians that allows other games at tracks to bolster revenues, be it slot machines or blackjack or both.

In 2012, six counties voted to have slot machines, including Washington County where Ebro is located, but they have not been able to obtain permits from the state to open the slots.

Hess said that is a shame.

“If they were permitted for slot machines just in the six counties alone, we’d probably produce somewhere in the neighborhood of 6,000 new jobs and revenues of somewhere in the neighborhood of $50 million to $100 million,” he said.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

erty,” said Don Steverson. “This property has been in my wife’s family for 80 years. And for longer than that, the residents of this neighborhood have raised families there and participated in civic affairs. The traffic and trash problem is already bad, and this will ruin our street.”

Winona VanLandingham agreed, stating the entryway would lower property values and make it difficult to sell or lease any existing property. Although not required by law, VanLandingham and other residents also protested the lack of formal notification by the city and demanded the city resend the development order.

Residents suggested changing the access road to State Road 77, but Travis Howell of the project’s engineering firm, Alday-Howell Engineering, stated Florida Department of Transportation requirements prevented them from doing so.

notification.

“It would have cost less than $50 to send us all a letter as a courtesy,” said Steverson. “Whether it’s required or not, that would have been the right thing to do.”

City Attorney Michelle Taggart advised the council and residents the city is now bound to follow the order. “I don’t know that you have the authority to withdraw,” said Taggart.

Mayor Linda Cain reminded those in attendance the information about the project was advertised in the newspaper and reported by local media, but expressed her desire to listen to the residents’ concerns.

“I know we can’t do anything about it, but we still need to hear what they have to say,” said Cain, who also reminded residents all issues are discussed in council meetings, and citizens are invited to attend so they can stay informed.

Norma Jean Steverson, whose parents each served as city council members, became emotional when she addressed the council.

“We just had no chance for input,” she said. “It’s a moral thing at this point. It’s a terrible thing to do to a street of people who have lived there their whole lives.”

CHIPLEY — At press time, no new details were available in a Thursday incident in which a woman ran her car into the side of the McDonald's restaurant in Chipley.

The Chipley Police Department has not yet released the name of the driver, an 88 year old woman, involved in the incident early Thursday afternoon.

She is said to have completed dining inside the restaurant and was attempting to leave when the accident happened. Her sedan reportedly jumped the parking lot median, accelerating into the drive-thru lane and striking the side of the building.

She was taken to Northwest Florida Community Hospital but is reported to have no major injuries.

Commissioner Bush earns FAC certification

Special to The News

ORLANDO — The Florida Association of Counties presented Washington County Commissioner Alan T. Bush with the Certified County Commissioner designation following completion of a comprehensive study program developed by the association. Commissioner Bush received the designation with 41 other county commissioners during an awards ceremony at the FAC Annual Conference in Orange County.

“I’m very grateful for the Florida Association of Counties and the training opportunities they offer,” Bush said. “It is a great organization that singly offers a wide range of training programs to new and veteran Florida commissioners.”

CCC certification is not a requirement to serve as a county commissioner in Florida. However, county commissioners voluntarily can enroll in the program and complete a series of courses totaling 42 hours.

The coursework is designed to provide information and enhance skills relevant to a commissioner’s duties and responsibilities as an elected official.

“This certification allows our citizen electorate to become experts in county government improving their communities,” FAC Executive Director Chris Holley said. “The 380 graduates of this program is a testament to the importance of this curriculum to Florida’s public servants and our counties”

The CCC program

coursework covers a variety of topics, such as county government roles and responsibilities, county government structure and authority, financial management, ethics and sunshine law, negotiation skills, economic development, and effective communication. Completion of all coursework averages 12 to 18 months. The University of Florida/IFAS Extension sponsors this program.

State retains counsel over failed Digital Domain deal

From staff reports

Gov. Scott’s General Counsel Peter Antonacci announced Wednesday that outside legal counsel has been retained by the Department of Economic Opportunity to file suit against Digital Domain and related parties.

“The (Inspection General) investigation into the 2009 Digital Domain deal revealed that the usual state regulatory processes were circumvented to give Digital Domain tens of millions of dollars in taxpayer funds,” said General Counsel Peter Antonacci.

“The collapse of the Digital Domain project, which was promoted by the previous administration, then left Florida taxpayers on the hook. The state has hired outside counsel to identify any and all legal action available against the company and any other individuals involved in wrongdoing related to this bad deal.

We expect to announce specific legal action in the coming weeks.”

In March 2013, the Florida Chief Inspector General issued a report on the 2009 incident where Florida improperly provided $20 million in incentive funding to Digital Domain under the premise that 500 jobs would be created in St. Lucie County. Digital Domain ultimately created zero jobs and filed for bankruptcy in September 2012.

SHARING YOUR YARD WITH WILDLIFE

By LAUREN DELGADO
315-4406 | @LaurenDnwfdn
ldelgado@nwfdailynews.com

Mark and Luoma Franks admit their garden may not be everyone's cup of tea.

There's no sod, just dense, unmanicured plants along gravel pathways.

It isn't strange to see a snake slithering by. Bugs feast on fruit held in feeders.

"My back yard is not a place you want to be at night," Mark said with a laugh.

Although many locals already share their yards with wildlife, some design their gardens to be ideal wildlife habitats.

"There is a balance, however, between what I like aesthetically and then what I'm going to share with the creepy crawlies around me," Luoma said.

The National Wildlife Federation certifies gardens that meet certain criteria as wildlife habitats.

The program started in 1973 as a way to help wildlife in the wake of dwindling habitats as well as encourage people to get out and enjoy nature, said David Mizejewski of the National Wildlife Federation.

"People can take action and see results right outside their door," Mizejewski said.

For the Franks, the certification came easy. They were already avid gardeners who had done some research on attracting butterflies and other critters.

"There's such a decrease in certain types of wildlife because we're tearing up their home," Mark said. "If we can develop our own properties to give them more of a habitat, hopefully it will help them increase the numbers again."

Luoma and Mark Franks pose in their garden at their Fort Walton Beach home. The couple's garden is a certified wildlife garden.

Native Plants

Native plants are key in your garden, Mizejewski said.

He defined them as plants that have lived and evolved in a certain area for hundreds of years. They in turn are in sync with the area's other creatures.

Many ornamental plants simply have no habitat value for native organisms, Mizejewski said.

"Gardens are no longer just something pretty that you look at outside your window," Mizejewski said. "Gardens are being seen as a more important part of the urban and suburban ecosystem."

A milkweed plant, which attracts Monarch butterflies, blooms in the Franks' garden.

A squirrel eats a piece of an apple at Luoma and Mark Franks' garden.

Things to provide

There's an infinite number of ways to fulfill the four basic needs of wildlife: food, water, cover and a place to raise their young, Mizejewski said.

Taking stock of your garden is a good first step.

"Everybody is probably doing these things," Mizejewski said. "You probably don't even know it."

1. FOOD

Feeders are a simple way of providing a food source, but plants can be even better — and more sustainable, said Mizejewski ("there's no need to refill a berry bush").

More than 95 percent of birds rely on insects for food. Certain plants will attract those insects.

"What we really want people to do is think holistically," Mizejewski said.

2. WATER

Adding a pond or bird bath can serve as a water source if there isn't a natural one on your property.

3. COVER

Wildlife are just like people — they need cover from weather.

Both prey and predators also need cover to hide, Mizejewski said (for different purposes, of course).

Plants serve a purpose in this category as well. Mizejewski suggested creating a "living fence" along your property line by densely planting.

Roost boxes or brush piles are other examples of cover.

4. A PLACE TO RAISE THEIR YOUNG

Many places that provide cover also provide a place for animals to raise young.

Bird houses or nesting boxes are some common examples of places for animals to raise young.

Certain animals have different requirements than when they're older. Tadpoles need a pond; certain caterpillars can eat only from specific plants.

'It's an opportunity ...'

Dennis Curley and his wife don't see their back yard as a garden. They see it more as a natural area.

The Niceville couple have left it wooded and natural, but added a pool, fountains and some other features.

Dennis learned about the wildlife habitat certification program from a neighbor. It's not difficult as long as you have areas wildlife can breed and get water.

They've seen turtles, snakes, birds and squirrels. Even an alligator called their pool home — but was summarily sent back to the state park.

"If you enjoy nature and you enjoy wildlife, it's an opportunity to protect it and enhance it," Curley said.

DENNIS CURLEY | Special to The News

'We let nature take over ...'

Hanna Joensuu wanted to do her part to make a healthier environment for all living things right in her own back yard.

When she moved to her Shalimar home 15 years ago, there was only a lawn and a few trees.

"This evolved over the years," Joensuu said. "We let nature take over certain areas."

The natural areas of the garden are the easy parts, Joensuu said. Maintaining fruit trees and vegetables gets more involved.

Native plants make up much of the garden. They've seen coyote, butterflies, skinks, turtles, armadillo, possum, raccoon, squirrels, foxes, bears and even a bald eagle in their back yard. "There's so much diversity," she said.

Police say drug deal led to homicide

By JENNIFER HARWOOD

PANAMA CITY BEACH — A 20-year-old man was shot to death early Friday in what police said was a drug deal gone bad.

The victim was identified as Ryan Brooks.

Three people were in custody Thursday night, but had not been charged, police said.

Panama City Beach police responded to a call at 1 a.m. of reported gunshots at The Club apartment complex off Richard Jackson Boulevard.

When police arrived, they found Brooks on the ground in the parking lot with multiple gunshot wounds. EMS took Brooks to a local hospital, but he was pronounced dead 35 minutes later.

"This is the first homicide we've had in four or five years," said Panama City Beach Police Chief Drew Whitman.

The homicide is believed to be drug-related, since narcotics were recovered at the scene. Brooks was previously arrested in 2012 for possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, to which he pleaded no contest and was sentenced to probation last month.

"We have three people of interest we have detained that we are questioning," Whitman said. Police also have obtained warrants to search the residences where they were located. Identities of the three were not released.

J.R. Trotter, a Club resident, believes he may have crossed paths with the victim just moments before the shooting occurred.

"It's weird that I was right near it," he said.

Trotter had the night off from his job as an overnight stocker at Wal-Mart. He said he got bored and walked to the nearby Chevron to buy a Red Bull.

On the walk home, Trotter noticed a young male sitting in a vehicle parked in front of the gated complex's leasing office. He noticed the interior lights on inside the car, but thought nothing of it.

In the same moment, Trotter passed a male and female on foot headed in the direction of the parked car. He nodded "hello" to the couple and continued to walk to his apartment in the back of the complex.

PATTI BLAKE | The News Herald

The entrance to the apartment complex is seen Thursday.

"I never heard the gunshots," Trotter said. He was listening to music with earbuds as he walked home from the store.

He said he finally realized something had happened when he later heard a helicopter circling the vicinity.

Panama City Beach police were assisted by a Bay County Sheriff's Office helicopter and K-9 unit to search for suspects. Two men who are being questioned were picked up at two locations in Panama City, one on 17th Street and another on Arthur Avenue. Police also have a woman in custody.

A couple hours after his first trip, Trotter decided to walk to the store again. This time, he walked past the same parking lot barricaded with police cars and yellow tape. An officer approached Trotter as he passed to ask if he'd seen anything prior to the shooting. Trotter described his earlier encounter, unaware at the time that someone had died from the incident.

Trotter said he was asked by an investigator to identify a male suspect.

"It's one of them shockers," he said, seeming unfazed by what happened. He described The Club as a "calm and peaceful" place to live, but said he saw homicides "all the time" where he is originally from in Rome, Ga.

"I don't care what the situation was, I feel bad for whoever got shot," he said. "A couple more minutes, and it could have been me."

JCSO reports weekend arrests

From staff reports

The Jackson County Sheriff's Office reports three notable arrests made last weekend.

Deputies were dispatched to the Kindall Lanes bowling alley in Marianna on Saturday, July 5, in reference to a missing juvenile. Upon arrival, it was reported to responding deputies that the juvenile, a 15-year-old female, had run away from a fireworks display in neighboring Gadsden County and was present at the bowling alley with an adult male, identified as Joseph Mejia, 18, of Sneads. Upon arrival, deputies made contact with Mejia and the juvenile. During the course of the investigation, it was discovered that Mejia had taken the juvenile away from the event without the consent of her guardian. It was further discovered that Mejia had an ongoing relationship with the juvenile and had been warned multiple times in the past to stay away from her. As a result, Mejia was placed under arrest for interference with child custody.

The following day, July 6, about 7 p.m., deputies were dispatched to the Habitat for Humanity store at 4736 Highway 90 in Marianna, in reference to a suspicious vehicle. When deputies attempted to make contact with the occupants, the vehicle abruptly pulled onto Panhandle Road and traveled south, across Highway 90 in a careless manner, and into the parking lot of Beal's Outlet.

A traffic stop then was performed on the vehicle, and contact was made with the driver, Shon Marie Massey, 40, of Marianna. A narcotics detection K-9 unit responded and was deployed to perform a "free-air sniff" around the vehicle. The K-9 alerted to the odor of narcotics emitting from the interior of the vehicle, and a probable cause search was conducted. The search revealed a purse belonging to Massey containing cocaine, methamphetamine, and several paraphernalia items, including a metal paraphernalia pipe with residue. Massey was arrested and charged with two counts of possession of controlled substance and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Shortly after noon July 7, deputies arrived at an address on Lovewood Road in Jackson County in reference to information that a person wanted on a Washington County warrant was residing at the residence. Upon arrival, contact was made with Charles William Shumaker, 41, of Cottondale. It soon was confirmed Shumaker had an active violation of probation warrant in Washington County.

At the time of contact, Shumaker reportedly was behaving erratically and appeared to be under the influence of some type of substance. After being advised of his rights, Shumaker advised he had been using methamphetamine. Shumaker directed a K-9 deputy to the bedroom he occupied in the home and showed him the location of a zippered case containing suspected methamphetamine in liquid and solid form, syringes, and various other drug paraphernalia.

Shumaker was arrested pursuant to the Washington County warrant. He also is charged in Jackson County on felony drug charges for possession of paraphernalia and possession of a controlled substance. Shumaker was lodged in the Jackson County Correctional Facility to await first appearance.

Attorney General Pam Bondi names 4 to statewide council on human trafficking

Special to The News

Attorney General Pam Bondi announced the appointment of four members to the newly created Statewide Council on Human Trafficking. The appointees are State Attorney for the 11th Judicial Circuit of Florida Katherine Fernandez Rundle, Martin County Sheriff, William Snyder, FSU Center for the Advancement of Human Rights Executive Director, Terry Coonan and Community Campaign against Human Trafficking West Florida Chair, Dotti Groover Skipper.

"I am pleased to announce these appointees to Florida's new Statewide Council on Human Trafficking," Bondi said. "Their experience and expertise will help further our goal of ensuring Florida is a zero tolerance state for human trafficking, and will provide insight into improving care for victims of this horrific crime."

The 15 member Council will be chaired by Bondi and will build on existing state and local partnerships working to combat human trafficking.

"I am committed to an all-hands-on-deck approach to eradicating human trafficking. With the involvement of Florida's top leaders, the Council will work to identify much needed care for victims and provide support for the continued prosecution of traffickers," Bondi said. "I recently returned from a trip to Mexico City with a delegation of several U.S. Attorneys General. My colleagues and I are also working together on an international level to combat this abhorrent crime."

Human Trafficking touches every corner of our state and Florida continues to rank third in the number of calls received by the National Human Trafficking hotline.

"Florida's Human Trafficking victims would be invisible, if not for the commitment of advocacy groups and our law enforcement community. Awareness, and raising steps toward eliminating this modern sexual slavery. I am proud that our effort in Miami to create an innovative trauma informed prosecution model for Human Trafficking cases may become a model for the state and the country. I would like to thank the Attorney General for appointing me to this important statewide role on the Human Trafficking Council," State Attorney Fernandez Rundle said.

"The trafficking of human beings is an act so inhumane that no civilized society can rest until all vestiges of it are eradicated. As a member of the Statewide Council on Human Trafficking, I intend to advocate for the rescue and rehabilitation of victims, and for the strongest possible punishment for traffickers," Sheriff Snyder said. The Council will host its first meeting later this summer. Members will include law enforcement officers, prosecutors, legislators, as well as experts in the fields of health, education and social services. The Council was created through legislation passed and signed into law earlier this year.

4 GCEC employees achieve MOT certification

Special to The News

Four Gulf Coast Electric Cooperative employees — Cole Barfield, Chad Creamer, Mark Jones and Hal Walden — recently completed the Florida Department of Transportation's 16-hour maintenance of traffic course.

During the training, the employees gained knowledge and understanding of the equipment, techniques and procedures necessary to safely and correctly set up work zone traffic control devices, as well as how to maintain traffic on state and federal highways. By using visual and hands-on techniques, the employees learned how to set up a work area that complies with all state and federal laws, therefore creating a safe environment for the utility workers, as well as drivers approaching work crews along highways.

The training was conducted by the North Florida Safety Council, a community service organization that collaborates with several health and safety organizations to promote injury prevention and increase safety awareness.

Lasso Up Some Fun

Let's Go to the Rodeo!

Is going to a rodeo on your list of summer plans this year? Rodeos are lots of fun for kids and adults.

This week, The Mini Page goes to the rodeo to find out more about this entertaining sport.

Rodeo history

An ancestor of the horses we know today (Equus) lived on our continent millions of years ago. But at some point, those early horses crossed a land bridge into Asia and Europe. For many years, there were no horses at all in North America.

About 500 years ago, Spanish explorers brought horses back to the Americas. They also brought cattle. North American cowboys used horses to round up the wild cattle. ("Rodeo" means round-up in Spanish.)

American and Spanish cowboys, or vaqueros (vah-CAIR-ohs), learned to rope and tie the cattle as they were herding them. They had to break, or tame, wild horses to use them for work. Soon they began competing against each other in contests of cowboy skills.

An early cowboy

Bull rider Tate Stratton comes out of the chute at the 2012 Wrangler National Finals Rodeo.

Every bull has a different bucking pattern. Cowboys and rodeo clowns study the animals to get an idea of how they buck. Some may spin more than others, dart to the left or right, or jump straight up in the air.

Bulls weigh around 2,000 pounds, so bull riding is a dangerous and exciting event.

Rodeo livestock steal the show

Horses compete in nearly every rodeo event. The most popular type of horse for rodeo is the American quarter horse.

Rodeo horses require a lot of care. Their exercise includes trotting up and down hills to build their stamina. They must be fed healthy food and have plenty of water.

Some horses are bred especially for their events. For example, breeders raise and train some horses to be bucking broncos for bronc riding events.

Bulls are the biggest of the rodeo animals. They are used only in bull-riding events.

Steers, or male cattle that have been neutered, are used for timed steer wrestling, steer roping and team roping events.

Calves, or young cattle, are used for the tie-down roping event. This timed event originated with cowboys catching cattle to give them medicine.

Rookie Cookie's Recipe

Roasted Red Pepper Dip

You'll need:

- 1 cup chopped roasted red peppers
- 4 ounces light vegetable cream cheese, softened
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh basil
- salt and freshly ground black pepper

What to do:

1. In a food processor or blender, combine peppers, cream cheese and basil. Puree until smooth.
2. Season to taste with salt and pepper.
3. Serve with jicama or carrot sticks, or other cut-up vegetables.

You will need an adult's help with this recipe.

Meet Ella Linnea Wahlestedt

Ella Linnea Wahlestedt stars as Emma in the movie "Earth to Echo." She has acted in several movies, TV shows and commercials.

Ella, 15, was born in Stockholm, Sweden, and moved to the United States when she was 6. When she was 10, she became a skilled gymnast. One day, her gymnastics coach didn't show up, so she went to an acting class instead. She was excited by the idea of acting and entered a performing arts middle school.

She also enjoys singing, hiking, writing and photography. Ella speaks Swedish, Spanish and English. She supports charities that work to provide safe drinking water for people.

Meet a Rodeo Clown

Justin Rumford is a rodeo clown. He works from January through November, traveling around the country to entertain crowds and protect cowboys in the ring. He spoke with The Mini Page about his work.

MP: What does a rodeo clown do?

JR: The rodeo clown helps the announcer entertain the crowd and make sure they have a great time.

During the bull riding, the clown has a serious role. He is called a barrelman, and he works inside a barrel that he can move around.

The barrels we use are made of aircraft aluminum. They are padded inside and out and are almost impossible to get hurt in. I have only had minor injuries competing, and none clowning.

At each rodeo there is only one clown. There are two bullfighters who take the role of cowboy protection. The bullfighters distract the bull (after the rider has fallen off) until the cowboy can get to safety.

Rodeo clown Justin Rumford entertains fans at a rodeo in Colorado in 2013.

MP: How did you start clowning?

JR: I have been involved in rodeo my whole life. I went to college on a rodeo scholarship. I started clowning four years ago to try something new. I've always been a joker!

MP: What should kids know about rodeo?

JR: I want kids to know about the livestock. Some people say you have to hurt animals to make them buck, but that is not true at all. Horses and bulls have been bred to buck for the last 75 years. These animals are great athletes that their owners take great pride in!

Spurs, or metal attachments to cowboys' boots, must be dull.

What about the animals?

Some people protest that rodeos are cruel to animals.

According to the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, it and other rodeo organizations work together with breeders and trainers to make sure that rodeo animals are cared for humanely. A veterinarian, or animal doctor, must be at every rodeo event to examine animals before their events and to treat any injured animals.

Cowboys are not allowed to be overly rough with animals during their events. They will be disqualified if they break this rule.

Steers' horns are wrapped with a protective covering during their events. Straps for bulls and bucking broncos must be soft.

A Mini Guide to the Rodeo

Bareback Riding

In bareback riding, the cowboy has to keep his feet in a certain position while he hangs onto the rigging, a handhold made of leather and rawhide, for 8 seconds. He can't use his free hand at all. The score is based on the performance of both the horse and the rider.

Steven Peebles

Steer Wrestling

A cowboy called a bulldogger must chase a steer, then reach down and grab the steer's horns and dig in his own heels to stop the animal. Then he must lift the steer and lay it down on its side. Another cowboy, called a hazer, keeps the steer running in a straight line.

Luke Branquinho

Tie-Down Roping

This event depends on great teamwork between a cowboy and his horse. The cowboy must rope the calf from his horse, then jump off and tie three of its legs together. Meanwhile, the horse pulls back on the roping line to keep it tight so the calf can't escape.

Tuf Cooper

Saddle Bronc Riding

This event requires a cowboy to ride a bucking horse using a saddle. The cowboy gets points for spurring, or prodding, the horse. He must not use his free hand, and his feet must remain in the stirrups.

Sterling Crawley

Barrel Racing

Cowgirls are the stars of barrel racing. The cowgirl and her horse enter the arena at full speed. She must guide the horse around three barrels in a particular pattern, then speed back out of the arena. The cowgirl can touch the barrel, but if it falls over, there is a 5-second penalty. The fastest time wins.

Lisa Lockhart

Team Roping

In this timed event, two cowboys work together. One, the header, tries to rope a steer's horns or head. Then the other, the heeler, tries to rope its back feet. If he snags only one back foot, he gets a 5-second penalty.

Clay Tryan and Jade Corkill

Bull Riding

For this dangerous event, the cowboy must stay on a bucking, spinning bull for 8 seconds. He holds onto a rigging but must not touch anything with his free hand. The rider tries to lean forward over his hand to avoid being whipped around too much. Judging is based on the cowboy's good body position and on the efforts of the bull.

Look in your newspaper for rodeos coming up in your area. Which events would you like to compete in during a rodeo?

The Mini Page thanks Justin Shaw with the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association and rodeo clown Justin Rumsford for help with this issue.

Next week, The Mini Page is the first of two issues about architectural styles.

Mighty Funny's Mini Jokes

All the following jokes have something in common. Can you guess the common theme or category?

Honor: What kind of horse does a ghost like to ride?

Harry: Nightmares!

Hubert: Why is it hard to identify horses from the back?

Hilda: Because they keep switching their tails!

Harry: Why did the horse scold its colt?

Henry: For misbehaving!

HOT TOPICS: 3 ISSUES GENERATING A BUZZ

Sentimental journey

SPEED FREAKS

A couple questions we had to ask — ourselves

AP/PHELAN M. EBENHACK

Mike Helton has invested in an umbrella policy.

What's the most pleasant surprise of 2014's first half?

GODSPEAK: I'll go with David Gilliland's upset pole victory at Daytona. Spread the wealth.

KEN'S CALL: Junior's resurgence is an obvious call, but I'll say the spring in Jeff Gordon's step.

And the biggest downer?

GODSPEAK: The bad weather, which has chased NASCAR around the country.

KEN'S CALL: A tie — Danica's lack of noticeable improvement, stubborn TV ratings.

For those who have been around NASCAR for a long time, Daytona International Speedway has served up two sentimental journeys over the past four years.

The latest was Aric Almirola delivering Richard Petty's No. 43 Ford to Daytona Victory Lane on Sunday afternoon in the rain-postponed, then rain-shortened Coke Zero 400.

Petty ruled the 2.5-mile tri-oval for three decades in cars carrying that competition number. The "King of Stock Car Racing" won seven NASCAR Cup Series championships and seven Daytona 500s as the driver of the No. 43 car.

Since the mid-1980s, the wins rapidly decreased. Petty stayed on as driver until 1992, then turned car owner, but only saw three wins with Bobby Hamilton and John Andretti, the last driver to win in the No. 43 in 1999.

Aric Almirola, the 43rd driver of the No. 43 car, got the King's ride back to Victory Lane on Sunday at Daytona.

One of the biggest congratulations was given by Wood Brothers Racing co-owner Eddie Wood. The Woods' No. 21 Ford is another NASCAR team that carries a lot of Cup Series history.

Trevor Bayne captured the 2011 Daytona 500 in the No. 21 car in another highly sentimental moment for the longtime race fan.

"We're really happy for Richard, Dale (Inman), Aric and the rest of the team," Wood said. "It was a big day for the sport as a whole to have the No. 43 car on the 30th anniversary of Richard's 200th win and on the day that our good friend Barney Hall retired from the MRN broadcast booth."

It was a great day for NASCAR old-timers, but oddly, Petty wasn't feeling it.

"Well, 30 years ago is history, OK, and today is future," he said. "Today is today."

400 POSTPONEMENTS

The days of "Bill France weather" are apparently over as the Daytona 500 and Coke Zero 400 were dogged by rain this season. The 400 was postponed a day, but Daytona Beach residents don't want to think about the last time the race had to be rescheduled. The year was 1998, and the 400 was postponed from its July date to the middle of October because of wildfires due to extreme drought conditions. Daytona area residents have no problem with rain when compared with rampant wildfires.

KEEN OBSERVATION

TNT racing analyst Larry McReynolds made a keen observation following the 16-car melee on Lap 20 of the Coke Zero 400. He said: "When I look at the drivers involved in this wreck, we've had 10 different winners in 2014 and it's been a long time since we've had someone new win a race this year. When I look at the drivers involved, this opens the door to get our 11th winner." Bingo! Nailed it, Larry.

AP/JOHN RAOUX

It wasn't the traditional "Petty Blue" of generations past, and there was no checkered flag at the end, but Aric Almirola and Richard Petty Motorsports put the King's chariot back in Victory Lane.

QUESTIONS & ATTITUDE

Compelling questions ... and maybe a few actual answers

Associated Press/TERRY RENNA

A Coke and a smile ... he doesn't consider it watered-down.

Will Almirola's win jump-start him and the No. 43 to another level?

Perhaps indirectly, at best. Getting a victory, whether it comes via last-lap pass or timely rainstorm, can create a different vibe around a team, which in turn can possibly open doors with potential sponsors. Which, as you know, occasionally leads to more horsepower through the old "cubic dollars" formula.

Is that a yes?

Didn't you notice the interspersing of the words "perhaps," "possibly," "potential" and "occasionally"? Yes, Almirola's "win" might open some doors that will lead down a hallway to something helpful. But the 43 team came to Daytona last week 23rd in points for a reason. Working your way to the front at a plate race where nearly every high-rent team had been wrecked out, and being up front when the curtain-closing storm hit, doesn't suddenly make you a front-runner.

So Alex Bowman shouldn't be excited with his 13th-place finish?

Good one. Listen, someday Alex Bowman might overachieve to the point that he gets a shot with top-line equipment, and then he might produce and become a household name. But none of that will be due to a 13th-place finish in a rain-shortened plate race.

TONY STEWART RICKY STENHOUSE JR.

Tony Stewart vs. Ricky Stenhouse Jr.: Stewart got knocked around and blamed Stenhouse: "I guess Ricky thought it paid something to get to Lap 20."
Godwin Kelly gives his take: "This poses an interesting question: If those two got in a fight, who would Danica Patrick root for — Stewart, her boss, or Stenhouse, her boyfriend?"

DAYTONA REWIND

Junior's shot at double-dipping Daytona didn't go as hoped

The Coke Zero 400 didn't go the way Dale Earnhardt Jr. had hoped. Just before NASCAR called the race after 112 laps, Earnhardt spoke about his day at Daytona International Speedway.

You've had an eventful day?

"We are just trying to get out there and see if we can get a good finish. Anybody can still win this race. My car is pretty tore up. The left-front splitter looks a little high, and I think the balance of the car is real tight.

"When I get into the pack and get behind guys real close, I've got to use up a lot of race track on the exit of the corner. We've got to figure out what we can do to get better there. Hopefully the rain goes away and we get going."

Even with the damage, you think you have a car good enough to be able to win?

"Anybody can still win it. Anything can happen. There can still be another big wreck, but I just don't know. I don't know how it's going to stack up. Our car is at a pretty rough spot as far as speed and handling. If it thins out even more it's going to handle better."

You did a good job of avoiding that last wreck.

"It's easy to just come to a stop as long as nobody runs into you. We were going to be fine on that first wreck, but we got run over. I can't believe all of the cars we have wrecked today. It's kind of uncharacteristic, but it's just how it works sometimes."

Why has it been that way?

"Daytime race, it's a little bit slicker. The cars are moving around a little bit more, and guys are being a bit more aggressive here.

"You don't see us all lined up on the top running around there trying not to go to the back. Guys are running side by side. The package is really keeping the pack pretty tight, and guys are running side by side from the lead on back.

"If you're gonna run tight like that, you're gonna have mistakes, or cars just get moved around by the air."

"Heck, a guy could just be holding the wheel and the car will move three feet, depending on what is happening around him. Sometimes you just get yourself in a bad spot."

Have a blessed day; now fire me if you dare!

I must confess to a severe case of poverty. I never took a vow of poverty; it just seems to have worked out that way for me. I am so poor the church mice have packed their bags and moved on. If I knew where they moved to, I might join them.

DR. JAMES L. SNYDER
Out to Pastor

Being poor can have its advantages, but I have yet to run across any.

I am so poor I am not able to pay attention, especially when watching some television program with the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. This has caused no small problem with my wife. We love an evening of unwinding before the TV watching some of our favorite programs. I must confess those programs are getting less and less each year. Soon we are going to have to go back to reading books.

Together we will be watching a program, and when I say "we," I do it with certain modifications. My wife will get up and go to the kitchen for something and when she returns, she asks me a question, "What happened?" I look at her with one of my infamous quizzical looks and respond, "Where?"

She then explains she is talking about what happened on the TV program while she was away. I then tell her, "I'm sorry, I wasn't paying attention."

This seems to be a source of real frustration for her:

"If you can't afford to pay attention," she will say sarcastically while rolling her eyes, "couldn't you at least rent some attention some time?"

I tried explaining to her that old age is making me a little more forgetful. She, however, is not buying it, so there goes my income stream.

For me, watching television is not an obsession; it is more like a distraction. I do not follow every little bit on the television screen. For me it is not a matter of life or death, it is just a matter of recreation. I know that nothing on TV is real. We can be in the middle of the next program and I do not realize that the first program has ended. Talk about confusing!

Here is my dilemma. Why can you say curse words on TV, which everybody knows is scripted, but you cannot say, "Have a blessed day," without getting fired? If I was in business I would want my employees to greet my clients with a cheerful, "Have a blessed day" and not some awful curse words.

When something does catch my attention, boy does it have my attention.

"Did you," I ask my wife, "hear that?"

Then it is role reversal in prime time. I will not say she acts like me, just that it comes pretty close to it. Not quite Oscar material, but close.

"What?" She said with a very confused look on her face.

So I had to explain the news story that I just happened to catch. I do not know all of the details, I was not paying that much attention, just that someone was fired from their job for saying to a customer, "Have a blessed day."

I have met many customer service people that said things that I would want them to be fired from, but this has never been on my list.

My wife then asked the question I was thinking. "What is wrong with telling someone to have a blessed day?"

I could not figure it out. It is like at Christmas time some places do not want their employees to say to the customer, "Merry Christmas." The reasoning is, it might offend someone. What about us who are offended when somebody does not say Merry Christmas to us? This matter of being offended can go both ways. There should be an equal offended person law. There is a law for everything else.

I just would like to meet the person who is offended by somebody saying to them, "Have a blessed day."

Later that evening I was watching a new crime/detective story on TV and all of a sudden, I heard some words that were offensive. They were saying curse words that I have never heard on TV before. I have always believed that if you have to use curse words, it is because your vocabulary is drastically lacking in intellectual responses to the world around you.

Here is my dilemma. Why can you say curse words on TV, which everybody knows is scripted, but you cannot say, "Have a blessed day," without getting fired?

If I was in business I would want my employees to greet my clients with a cheerful, "Have a blessed day" and not some awful curse words.

I was complaining about this to a friend of mine who explained to me that curse words on television are considered "literary license." Who is paying for that license I am wondering.

All of this has to do with the PC syndrome in our country today. The problem is what was PC yesterday is no longer PC today. Who knows what tomorrow's PC will be.

What I cannot accept is the fact that being crude and rude is PC and saying something nice is not. Have we reverted to the caveman mentality? Is being nice is no longer acceptable behavior?

I like what David says, "Bless the LORD, O my soul: and all that is within me, bless his holy name" (Psalms 103:1).

Perhaps the reason people are offended by that phrase is because they know that only God has the power to bless. If I am being blessed by God, I am going to turn around and bless people around me.

MUSEUM OFFERS ANTIQUE SPOOL BASKETWEAVING CLASS

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

Washington County Historical Society's History Museum will open early on Saturday, July 19, and offer a beginning basketry class. Master Weaver Sharon Hynes will begin teaching at 9 a.m. The basket-of-the-day is simple, but very interesting, featuring an antique spool as the handle on a rectangle basket. The class fee will be $35 per person which includes all supplies required to weave the basket. Participants will need to bring a pair of shears and a towel. It will take about three hours to complete a basket. Call Museum Director Dorothy Odom at 638-0348 by July 16 to reserve your spot. The museum's regular hours are Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and the first Saturday of each month from 9 a.m. to noon.
