Fuel levy eyed to generate revenue

By CAROL KENT

CHIPLEY — Washington County officials are hoping a five cents gas tax will help generate the revenue needed to help pull the county out of staggering debt.

The tax, commonly called the ELMS Nickel, allows counties to levy a fuel tax of up to five cents and requires approval by a supermajority vote from the Board of County Commissioners.

The revenue — projected to be about $458,000 a year — would be distributed between the county and its municipalities through an interlocal agreement. Of that amount, the county would receive about $400,000, and the rest would be split between the cities.

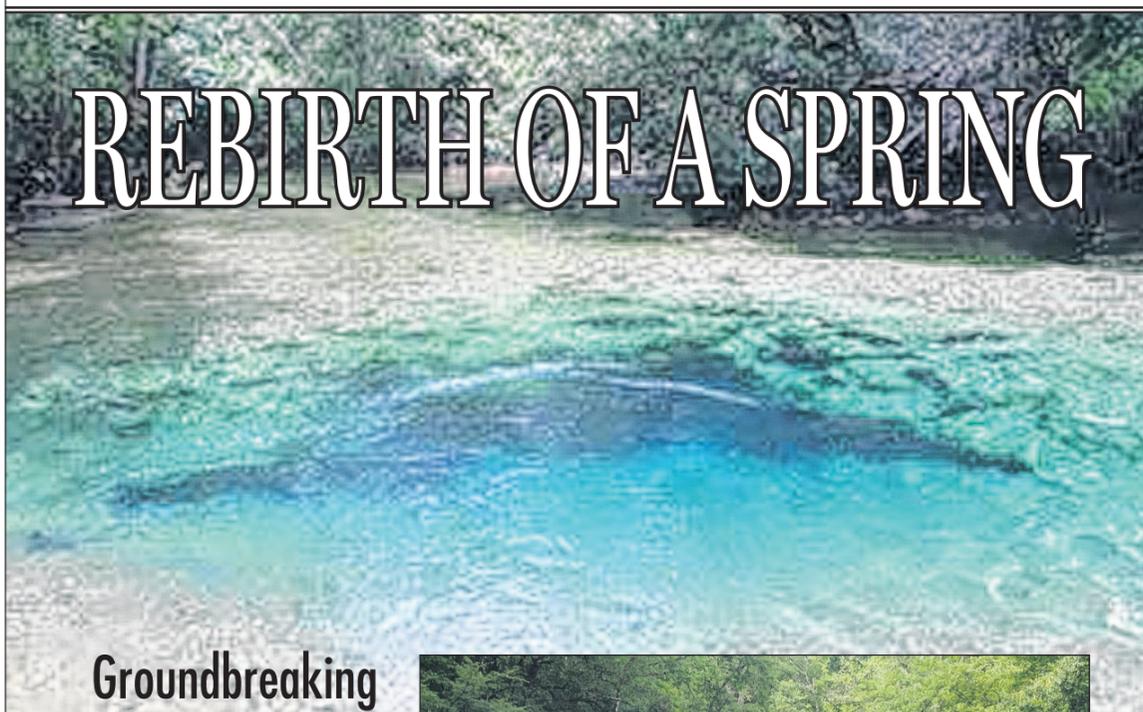

Interim Clerk of Court Harold Bazzel says the idea is to earmark revenue from the levy to fund road projects as allowed by the state, freeing other funds to be allocated to repay the county's debts.

"Washington County is in serious debt," said Bazzel. "It didn't get this way all at once, so our commissioners inherited a mess. There's been a cycle of spending and borrowing since sometime in the 90s, and it needs to stop."

Currently, notes owed by the county total more than $8.2 million.

REBIRTH OF A SPRING

Groundbreaking held for Williford Spring restoration

SAND HILLS — Groundbreaking ceremonies were held Thursday for the $1.5 million restoration project at Williford Spring in southern Washington County.

The spring, one of several found in the Econfina Creek Water Management Area, was closed in April so the Northwest Florida Water Management District (NFWMD) could prepare for the project, which will address shoreline erosion and improve recreation access to the area. Recreational improvements will include spring entry steps, a patio terrace, spring view deck, canoe dock, boardwalks, picnic pa-

NFWMD Governing Board Member Gary Clark says the enhancements will improve public access to the spring in a way that protects the health of the spring and surrounding habitats.

County addresses flooding issues

By CAROL KENT

CHIPLEY — The Washington County Board of County Commissioners were told there's "no long term solution" for flooding problems on Rolling Pines and Childress roads.

Both have properties that have been underwater since April, causing residents to use boats to reach their cars.

One Childress resident who receives her medication by mail reports her postal carrier said they can no longer deliver mail to her address until the water recedes.

The county has been pumping water off the roads with a pump on loan from the Florida Department of Transportation at a FEMA reimbursable cost of about $200 a day, and commissioners voted to look into acquiring another pump to use as well.

Don Fendley, a resident of Rolling Pines Rd. since 1997, says the pumping has helped.

"Before the county started pumping the water off, we were having to travel by boat," said Fendley. "The water was so high we could float over where we knew a four-foot fence separated property lines easily. I'm not please with the water, but I am not pleased with the way the county has responded."

Fendley says others have helped out, too, including local members of the Florida Baptist Convention Disaster Relief Team and members of Vernon's Abigail Baptist Church, who filled Fendley's truck with more than 22 cases of bottled water.

"My son and daughter both have homes here, too, and we're worried about

Legislation geared to protect 260 jobs here

Staff reports

WASHINGTON, D.C. — As promised in an April press conference at Chipley's WestPoint Home facility, U.S. Rep. Steve Southerland, II introduced legislation (H.R. 4955) Wednesday to extend for 10 years a free trade provision between the United States and Bahrain that is critical to keeping 260 Northwest Florida manufacturing jobs at WestPoint Home in Chipley. Southerland's bill would keep in place a Tariff Preference Level (TPL) set to expire in January 2016, ensuring WestPoint Home can continue accessing input materials imported from Bahrain.

"At a time when U.S. textile manufacturers are struggling to survive, WestPoint Home in Chipley, Florida represents one of the few remaining textile facilities in America," said Southerland. "Unfortunately, this facility and its 260 highly skilled Washington County workers are at risk due to an expiring trade provision. I am proud to introduce this legislation to ensure these jobs stay right here in Northwest Florida, while also extending much-needed relief to an industry that has moved predominately overseas."

"As the President and CEO of the last major U.S. based home textiles producer, this is an issue my team has been very focused on," said Normand Savaria, President and CEO of WestPoint Home. "The bottom line is that the proposed extension provides a mechanism to protect U.S. jobs. We appreciate the recognition and focus of Congressman Steve Southerland on this critical issue."

"The Northwest Florida Manufacturers Council supports the extension of the TPL program under the UBFTA in order to assist the domestic textile industry and to secure jobs in Florida," said Greg Britton, President of the the wells, which have been covered with water since April. Mine is fine, so my son cut his off and is using my water, but it's still a concern.”

County Engineer Cliff Knauer states there's no easy fix.

“There's just not a good long-term solution,” Knauer told commissioners when they met in regular session Thursday.

“These people will keep having the same problem as long as they keep getting rain. For the time being, if pumping the water helps get them to and from their house, that's what we should keep doing.”

In other board action,

commissioners:

- Reported work is now underway on Dorch Circle in Vernon

- Approved Karen Johnson's appointment as Washington County Health Department Director

- Requested a time extension for FEMA road projects

- Approved an ordinance which will hold individuals and companies liable for any damage caused to county roads. The ordinance will allow the county to repair the damage and seek reimbursement from those responsible for it.

- Agreed to sunset property impact fees for 12 months.

JUNE 28 WATERMELON FESTIVAL EVENTS

CHIPLEY — Day two of the 58th annual Panhandle Watermelon Festival already is in full swing. Here's a list of events for today, June 28:

The fun begins at 7 a.m. with the annual pancake breakfast taking place at the Panhandle Shrine Club at 1425 Brickyard Road and with the 5K Hot Trot, set to begin at 7:30 a.m. at Washington-Holmes Technical Center at 757 Hoyt St. The technical center also will host an all-day antique car show.

The Watermelon Parade kicks off at 10 a.m. in downtown Chipley, with line-up beginning at 9 a.m. at 1554 N. Railroad Ave.

The hub of the event's activity will then move to the Washington County Agricultural Center at 1424 W. Jackson Ave.

Musical group “Crossroads” will perform at 11 a.m., followed by the introductions of the 2014 Watermelon Queens at 11:45.

The Watermelon Auction begins at noon, and a performance by musical group Dailey & Vincent will close out the festivities for the day.

At 8 p.m., the Watermelon Dance will begin at the Panhandle Shrine Club, featuring music entertainment by Chad Street.

One of those debts, owed to SunTrust Bank, is on a $5.5 million sales tax promissory note used for various projects, such as renovations to the county offices on South Blvd. Washington County has only paid interest on that loan since 2009, an amount projected in this year's audit to be around $280,000. The terms of the loan state its principal is due October 1.

“Over the years, the county has been trying to borrow away the debt,” said Bazzel. “And come October, the bank could call that note.”

Bazzel contracted with former Leon County Financial Director Bill Bogan to help address the problem. Bogan assures residents the county is working to identify and address its budgetary issues, and the note won't be called. “We're not going to let it get to that point,” said Bogan. “We hope to renegotiate that note with the bank and begin to pay it down, as well as other debts, rather than just keep paying interest.”

County Attorney Jeff Goodman will draft the ELMS Nickel proposal, which will be presented to local municipalities for approval, as well as in a public hearing.

“This is really the best option,” said Bazzel. “Instead of through raising property taxes, revenue will be generated by all residents, as well as those just passing through, not just property owners.”

If the proposal passes, the new five cents fuel levy will become effective January 1, 2015.

“Through this restoration project, the district will improve water quality and clarity by removing sediment from the pool, restoring native vegetation along the spring bank that helps catch runoff and sediment, and by constructing areas to capture and treat storm water to improve water quality before it enters the spring,” said Clark.

“This will help protect one of Washington County's beautiful natural attractions long into the future. Not only is it a perfect spot for Washington County residents to spend time outdoors, it also attracts visitors to the area who rent canoes and kayaks, shop in our stores, and eat in our restaurants.”

Funding for the project includes more than $377,000 from the nearly $37 million in springs funding proposed by Governor Rick Scott and appropriated by the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). The project also includes nearly $70,000 in funding from a Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission grant.

DEP Secretary Herschel Vinyard called the project the “rebirth of a spring,” saying it was a result of local leadership and support.

“Nothing gets done without leadership,” said Vinyard. “There was record funding for the springs last year, and that funding was tripled this year.

There's a great passion for our springs right now, and the challenge has just begun. There will be other projects.”

Joe Petrich, the project's landscape architect, says restoration should be complete in a year, but there may be a period that the spring remains closed as the natural vegetation becomes re-established.

Nearby Pitt and Sylvan springs remain open to the public.

Residents urged to seek pertussis vaccine

Staff Report

CHIPLEY — The Florida Department of Health in Washington County has confirmed a case of pertussis, or whooping cough. The person's family and immediate friends have been contacted and are being treated. DOH-Washington advises parents, childcare workers and health-care providers to verify the children they care for are properly immunized against whooping cough (pertussis). It is advisable for new parents, grandparents and relatives to be fully immunized before being around a baby.

Whooping cough, known medically as pertussis, is a highly contagious bacterial infection of the respiratory tract that can be a serious health threat, especially for infants. Family members are most often the transmission source of pertussis to infants. Initial symptoms of pertussis are like those of a cold, including runny nose, sneezing, low-grade fever, and a mild cough.

Within two weeks, the cough can become much worse. Pertussis can infect people of all ages, yet most commonly affects infants and young children and can be fatal, especially in babies less than one year of age. Children and the elderly with pertussis often have episodes of rapid sporadic coughing followed by a characteristic intake of breath that sounds like a "whoop." These "whooping" coughing spells can make it hard for a child or older adult to eat, drink, or even breathe. Pertussis is contagious before severe coughing starts.

To schedule an immunization appointment, call 638-6240. Some fees may apply.

The best way to prevent whooping cough is through immunizations. Infants and children receive a series of four to five doses of DTaP, a diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus containing vaccine, with a booster at 10 to 11 years of age. However, protection provided by the childhood series fades over time. All persons age 11 to 64 can get a booster called Tdap, which protects against whooping cough, tetanus, and diphtheria. Adults 65 and older who expect to have close contact with a baby younger than 12 months of age should get a dose of Tdap to help protect the baby from pertussis.

Additional information about immunizations and whooping cough (pertussis) can be found at www.immunizeFlorida.com/ or www.cdc.gov/Features/Pertussis/.

Pertussis can infect people of all ages, yet most commonly affects infants and young children.

Man faces new charges in shooting

PANAMA CITY — Drug charges have been filed against a man authorities said shot and killed his neighbor while welcoming home his newborn son last week.

Charles Edward Shisler, 62, is already facing charges of manslaughter and felon in possession of a firearm for the shooting death of Steven Justin Ayers, 33. Ayers and his wife had gathered family members to celebrate the homecoming of their 3-day-old baby — born on Father's Day. But the celebration at 2502 Michigan Court ended shortly after 6 p.m. when a stray bullet entered the home from more than 200 feet away, struck Ayers in the back of the head and killed him instantly.

CHARLES E. SHISLER

Shisler had picked up a loaded 9mm pistol in his residence, adjacent to the Ayers' home, and the gun discharged, he told investigators. Shisler was in his backyard at 3708 W. 25th St. by the time Bay County Sheriff's Office deputies arrived minutes after the shooting, according to arrest reports.

During their investigation into the shooting, BCSO found a glass pipe and "shake and bake" kit in Shisler's residence, which both tested positive for methamphetamine residue, authorities said. Officers filed additional charges of methamphetamine and paraphernalia possession — felony offenses.

Shisler is scheduled for arraignment in August. Court records indicate he will represent himself.

FRESH CATCH

By JAN WADDY
747-5072 | @JanWaddy1
jwaddy@pcnh.com

PANAMA CITY — Whether you caught the fish yourself or purchased it from a seafood market, preparations should enhance the natural flavors.

Ferrucci Ristorante, 301 Harrison Ave., serves Pesce di Giorno, a fresh fish of the day served with the chef's own creation. "We have a fish of the day, but it's usually Snapper Piccata because that is what people want the most," said owner and chef Mike Ferrucci.

Gulf recreational red snapper season is open through July 14 in Gulf state waters, but Ferrucci gets his fresh fish daily from Tarpon Dock Seafood Market, 234 E. Beach Drive.

A native of Southern Italy, Mike Ferrucci was enjoying fresh snapper long before moving to the Gulf Coast, and it's still one of the first things he wants to eat when he returns to visit his Italian family. But, he said, the snapper tastes completely different in both places.

"It's due to the water itself and what the animals feed on," he said. "Both are good, but I grew up on the flavors of the Mediterranean, so to me that snapper has a richer flavor. The Mediterranean waters are saltier than the Gulf."

The saltiness of the Snapper Piccata recipe with lemon and capers complements the fish from both waters.

"I use extra virgin olive oil, only enough to cover the bottom of the pan," Ferrucci said. "Some people don't use it because it is tricky. It has a low boiling point, so you don't want it on a full blast burner, but it has a much better flavor. When the fish is completely cooked, add a little butter to the sauce, then pour on the fish and top with fresh basil."

Ferrucci also has served Grouper al Cartoccio — "grouper dropped in a foil pouch with basil, white wine, olive oil and garlic."

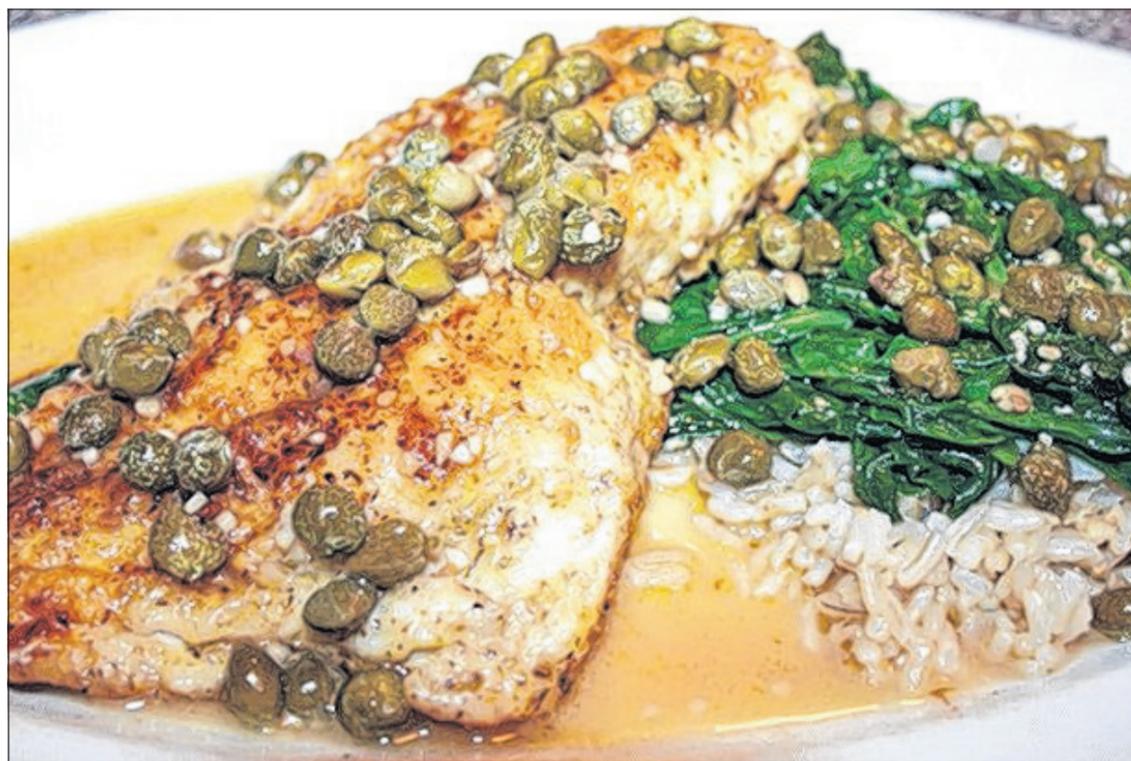

John Certo II, owner of Andy's Flour Power Cafe & Bakery in Panama City Beach, grew up in an Italian family in New York, but he usually turns to a Spanish influenced recipe for fish — Fish Veracruz.

"We put the fish and lime in tin foil. It's a really simple recipe we make at home once a week. We love it — simple and delicious," Certo said.

The recipe can be made with red snapper or grouper, another Gulf Coast favorite.

"We are slammed. We have so much fish coming in right now," said Sean Lyon, co-owner of Uncle Ernie's Bayfront Grill, 1151 Bayview Ave. "We sell about 1,000 pounds of grouper a week."

Richard Stewart, retired chairman of the Business and Technology Departments at Gulf Coast State College, supervised the college's award-winning culinary program. His recipe for Cedar-planked Salmon can be made with any firm-fleshed fish, such as grouper.

"These planks have been soaked in water, so I don't catch on fire — 30 minutes or over an hour and you can do it overnight," Stewart said during a recent cooking demonstration at Somethin's Cookin', 93 E. 11th St.

Thin cedar planks can be purchased from area stores, or Stewart said, "have them made for you at a home supply store. Make sure they are untreated wood. If you decided to have them made you will need to submerge them in water and soak for several days changing water as it gets tannic, when it is clear

I then soak the boards in Chardonnay and then freeze."

He seasons the fish with Capt. Anderson's House Seasoning.

"It's the best seasoning I've ever found," Stewart said. "I probably give 10 to 15 of these (bottles) away every Christmas."

Attorney General's office obtains $225 million settlement in business scam

Special to The News

Attorney General Pam Bondi, the Federal Trade Commission and the New York Attorney General's Office have obtained final judgments of $225 million in monetary relief against The Tax Club Inc., a telemarketing operation, and its owners. The judgments also permanently enjoin The Tax Club and its owners from continuing certain telemarketing activities. The settlement resolves allegations that The Tax Club enterprise took more than $200 million from thousands of consumers, including Florida consumers, through an elaborate small-business development telemarketing scheme that involved 12 interrelated corporate entities, using dozens of different business names, all controlled by a small group of four individuals.

"While work-at-home careers are an attractive opportunity for many people, it is imperative that Florida consumers do their research and report any possible scams to my office," Bondi said.

According to the complaint, The Tax Club enterprise relied on lead lists obtained from companies in the business of selling business development products and services to identify potential customers who may be susceptible to the telemarketing scheme. The Tax Club sales representatives then contacted consumers and gained their trust by falsely representing to the consumers that they were affiliated with the companies. The sales representatives used high pressure sales tactics and false claims to sell thousands of dollars of additional products and services to the consumers. The complaint further alleges that consumers who bought the products and sought refunds did not get their money back when requested due to unworkable refund policies and were pressured not to cancel.

"Before you put money into a work-at-home business opportunity, ask questions to determine if it is legitimate," said Jessica Rich, director of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection, adding, "We encourage consumers to read our consumer information to learn how to recognize schemes that promise more than they deliver."

The permanent injunctions prohibit certain telemarketing activities, require compliance with the FTC's telemarketing sales rule, and ban The Tax Club defendants from advertising, marketing, promoting, or offering for sale any business coaching services, credit development services or work-at-home opportunities. The final judgments require The Tax Club defendants to turn over various bank accounts and other assets, and liquidate and sell personal and real property to satisfy the monetary obligations of the judgments.

Bonifay Taekwondo USA students win state championships

Special to The News

Three students from Bonifay ATA won the American Taekwondo Association Florida State Championship Title. The Laurel family from Chipley traveled across the United States competing in regional, national and world events hosted by the American Taekwondo Association. Students must place first second or third to earn points towards state championship standings. The Laurel family traveled to eight states across the U.S., Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Tennessee and California earning points. Florida is one of the toughest states in America to win state championships due to the high level competition from areas like Miami, Orlando and Jacksonville. We are proud to have such dedicated students from this area that can compete on a national level. Bonifay Taekwondo USA had three students win state titles and nine others who finished in the top 10 for the State of Florida.

State championship winners were: Anzli Laurel, first in sparring; Kaliegh Laurel,

NWFWMD moves forward with MFL development

Special to The News

The Northwest Florida Water Management District recently completed an unprecedented work plan for the establishment of minimum flows and levels (MFLs) in Northwest Florida, a vital step for the long-term protection of three regional spring systems including the St. Marks River Rise, Sally Ward Spring and Wakulla Springs.

The work plan includes the data, technical information and assessments the District is now using to successfully establish realistic, science-based MFLs. The plan also includes a public involvement and peer review process, as well as a schedule and cost estimate for development of the MFLs.

"One of the district's top priorities is establishing a meaningful and realistic MFL program that will help us ensure the long-term protection and sustainability of our water resources," said District Executive Director Jon Steverson. "This work plan is our road map to achieving a successful MFL program by clearly laying out the steps the District is taking as we move forward with developing these three MFLs for our region."

Since 2012, the District has begun work to develop MFLs for five waterbodies in Northwest Florida: St. Marks River Rise, Wakulla Springs, Sally Ward Spring, the Florida Aquifer in Coastal Franklin County and Jackson Blue Spring. The District anticipates the technical assessment of its first MFL, St. Marks River Rise, to be completed in 2018.

"MFLs serve as an important tool in protecting Florida's water resources, including many of the state's treasured springs," said Drew Bartlett, Florida Department of Environmental Protection's Deputy Secretary of Water Policy and Ecosystem Restoration. "The Department appreciates the District's commitment to establishing MFLs throughout the region and commends District staff on the progress they've made over the past two years."

MFLs set water flows, levels and limits necessary to prevent significant harm to the water resources or ecology of an area from water withdrawals. Florida law (section 373.042(1), Florida Statutes,) requires each water management district to develop and set MFLs to protect the waterbodies, including springs, rivers and aquifers, within their region.

MFLs are calculated using the best available information and science, and the process of developing those MFLs includes a series of steps including identification of priority waterbodies and establishment of the District's ambitious but achievable schedule; technical analysis of data collection; and finally, the adoption of District rules establishing MFLs.

Emerald Coast Hospice praises hospice aides

Special to The News

Emerald Coast Hospice celebrated hospice aides the week of Thursday, June 12, through Thursday, June 19. Emerald Coast Hospice representatives state they appreciate, recognize, and honor these aides for their dedication, hard work, and passion they show to patients and families.

Hospice aides provide personal care to patients in their homes under the general direction of registered nurse. Most patients receive hospice care in their own home, although it can also be provided in other facilities as well. Many times, the hospice aide spends the most direct patient care time with the patient and the family and can contribute very beneficial information to the team during the development and update of the patient plan of care. For more information about Emerald Coast Hospice, call the Chipley office at 638-8787.

Chipola to offer computer networking, I.T. programs

Special to The News

Chipola College will offer several new programs of study in Computer Information Technology and Network Systems this fall.

Computer Information Technology Certificates are available in: Geographic Information Systems, Help Desk Support and IT Support Specialist.

Network Systems Technology Certificates include Digital Forensics, Network Support Technician, Network/Cyber Security and Server Administration.

Students holding current IT certifications may be awarded credit for selected courses based on certifications.

Programs emphasize various industry certifications including the CompTIA A+, Security+, and Network+ as well as various Microsoft network certifications. All courses taken may be counted towards an AS degree in Computer Information Technology. Students who plan to pursue an AS or AA degree will need additional credit hours. Students may complete general education requirements concurrently while completing the courses in these programs. July 30 is the deadline to have Financial Aid files complete to pay fall 2014 tuition and fees. The college application deadline for the fall semester is Wednesday, Aug. 6.

For information about these and other computer programs, visit www.chipola.edu or call 718-2441.

Chipola coaches and officials chill for charity

Special to The News

The weather is hot, but the latest trend is ice cold. Sports teams across the country are dousing their coaches and college officials in ice cold water for charity.

It's called #chillin'4 charity, a friendly challenge in which coaches are called out by their peers before passing on the favor and receiving their arctic bath. All proceeds go to the Kay Yow Foundation, helping raise awareness for breast cancer and funds for research.

The rules are simple. A coach calls out another coach before they receive an ice water shower. Called out people have 48 hours to respond by taking on the cold water challenge or paying up in donations. Those who fail to do so owe the Kay Yow Foundation $250. Assistants owe $100. To help the cause, those who take the ice bath are still asked to pony up a donation of $50 or $25 to the foundation.

Chipola women's basketball coach Greg Franklin was the first Chipola coach to take the challenge. He called out Chipola president Dr. Jason Hurst, athletic director Dr. Steve Givens, assistant athletic director Joc Calloway and cross country coach Rance Massengill.

Chipola personnel issued challenges to Northwest Florida State President Ty Handy, Chipola Workforce Dean Darwin Gilmore, local high school coaches Travis Blanton, Steven Welch, Matt Anderson, Chris Obert and Pensacola Ad Bill Hamilton.

The Chipola cheerleaders also recently raised $200 in the challenge.

QUESTIONS & ATTITUDE

Compelling questions ... and maybe a few actual answers

Associated Press/ERIC RISBERG

Carl chats with an old guy who, not long ago, was known as "The Kid."

What do we know about Carl's future?

Officially, nothing. But it's looking more and more like those late-spring rumors will hold: Edwards will drive a fourth entry for Joe Gibbs Racing next year. For better or worse, there are always all sorts of contractual issues that prevent — or at least discourage — the main players from giving more than a wink and a nod regarding their future plans. Actually, the nod has probably been deemed a breach of contract. We'll have to go with the wink, and the wink indicates Gibbs.

How crazy is all this?

By auto racing's historical standards, it's actually pretty civilized. Back in your dad's day, drivers and owners whipsawed back and forth. There were no contracts back then, so today's "Jack the Bear" might be tomorrow's unemployed hot-shoe looking for a wheel. Who knows, maybe that was better. But if you like some semblance of order and stability, today's way is probably better.

Is Carl playing mind games with Mr. Gordon?

Let's assume he didn't mean to do it, but if you're Jeff Gordon, pushing back, and pushing it with a cranky back, the last thing you need is a guy pushing 35 to act like you're Grandpa Jones. But there was Carl, glowing after winning Sunday and saying what a thrill it was to beat a guy (um, Jeff Gordon) whom ~~he watched as a kid~~ touch. FEUD OF THE WEEK

MATT KENSETH DALE EARNHARDT JR.

Matt Kenseth vs. Dale Earnhardt Jr.: Earnhardt's No. 88 Chevy got into Kenseth's No. 20 Toyota, which spun hard into a tire wall, taking him out of the race.

Godwin Kelly gives his take: "Earnhardt got out of his car and immediately started apologizing, but will that apology be accepted?"

HOT TOPICS: 3 ISSUES GENERATING A BUZZ

Ageless wonder

Carl Edwards had to fight off a last-lap nip by veteran Jeff Gordon to win at Sonoma Raceway on Sunday. Gordon was so impressed with Edwards' driving ability that he went to Victory Lane to shake the hand of the winning driver.

And then Edwards let it be known that when he was a little kid watching television at home in Missouri, he was enthralled by Gordon's skills on the Sonoma road course.

"I'm a fan of this sport, and I grew up watching Jeff Gordon go through those esses (turns) and watching how he drove his car, so to be able to hold him off like that means a lot," Edwards said.

Oops. That little bit of innocent nostalgia from Edwards made everybody realize Gordon, now in his 22nd year of service to Hendrick Motorsports in the NASCAR Sprint Cup Series, is hurtling toward his 43rd birthday in August.

The 20-year-old kid, who gave Dale Earnhardt fits as a rookie in 1993, is now old enough to be the father of a 20-year-old child.

Gordon, who leads the Cup Series points chart, has plenty of stock-car driving ability. He took the age questions in stride, like an old pro.

"Yeah, I'm starting to hear that a lot more where somebody was born when I won my first championship or was watching me as a kid," Gordon said.

"But I love racing here. I love being competitive and leading the points and having a shot at winning races at 22 years into my Cup career. It doesn't matter; we're having fun."

Gordon doesn't have much else to prove. He is third all-time in Cup victories behind Hall of Fame drivers Richard Petty and David Pearson, and has won four Cup championships.

Gordon said he's rejuvenated this season because of the equipment he gets every week. Gordon said he's clicking with his team "and that's making it a lot of fun for me."

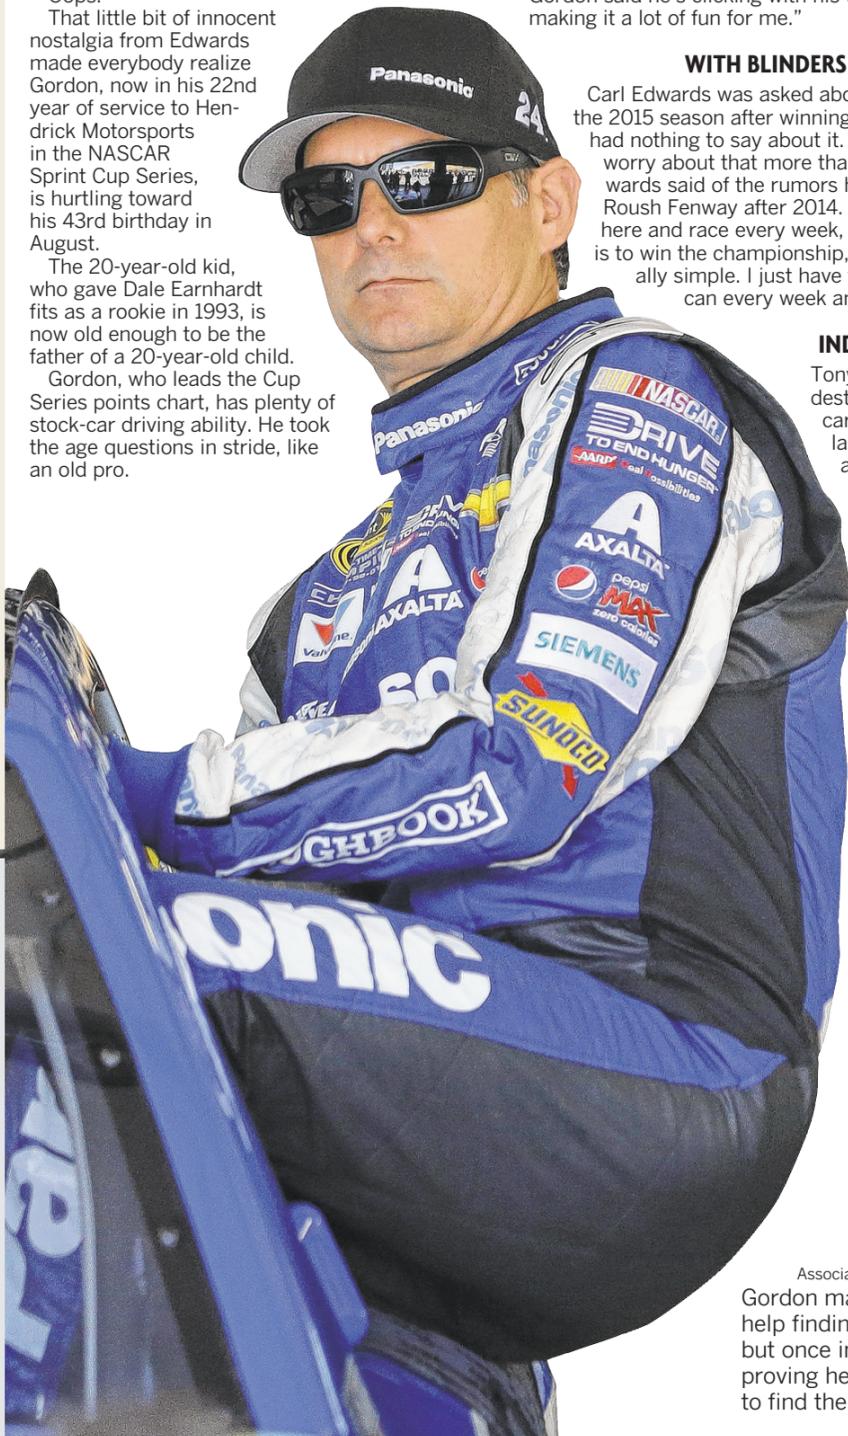

WITH BLINDERS ON

Carl Edwards was asked about his plans for the 2015 season after winning Sonoma. He had nothing to say about it. "I think you guys worry about that more than we do," Edwards said of the rumors he plans to leave Roush Fenway after 2014. "We come out here and race every week, and the mission is to win the championship, so for me it's really simple. I just have to give the best I can every week and that's it."

INDY WRECK

Tony Stewart destroyed a stock car at Indianapolis last week during a Goodyear tire test. Goodyear said: "On Day 2 of the test, the three-time NASCAR Sprint Cup champion had a right-front tire lose air 17 laps into a 20-lap run." Stewart said: "We blew a tire. It destroyed the car, so it was a good hit." Stewart added: "That's why you go to the test. I'm sure they'll learn something from it and go on."

Associated Press/ERIC RISBERG
 Gordon may soon need help finding his parked car, but once inside of it, he's proving he still knows how to find the fast lane.

SPEED FREAKS

A couple questions we had to ask — ourselves

AP/ERIC RISBERG

Junior has his sights set on Homestead.

Win at Sonoma? Big sign for Edwards' title hopes?

GODSPEAK: Don't get too giddy. This boils down to the last 10 races and surviving those knockout Chase rounds.

KEN'S CALL: We've learned to not start polishing Carl's trophy too soon. But this sure didn't hurt.

Can we say the same for Junior's third-place run?

GODSPEAK: Junior's Sonoma run tells me this could be the Year of the Earnhardt.

KEN'S CALL: Junior third at a road course? Somewhere today, cats and dogs are playing together.

SONOMA REWIND

Team Penske is ready to challenge for the championship

Travis Geisler, competition director for Team Penske, told reporters at Sonoma Raceway that the team is on track to challenge for the 2014 NASCAR Sprint Cup Series championship.

Brad Keselowski took the title in 2012. Penske switched from Dodge to Ford in 2013. The team, which includes driver Joey Logano, is well ahead of its 2013 performance.

Where do you feel your team is right now compared to the same point last season?

"Everybody is a whole lot more comfortable with everybody we're working with. We know our way around Ford a little bit better now and where the strengths are. Everybody has weaknesses, but the biggest thing is to figure out where the strengths are, and I think there are certainly a lot of those at Ford that early last year we didn't know how to tap into, and now we've been able to work together a little better on areas that they can help us a lot, and I feel like as a company we're a whole lot more stable. The relationship with the engine company (Roush Yates) was new for all of us. So I think overall everybody feels pretty good about it. We came out of the gates very strong compared to last year when we had some issues early in the season."

Where do you feel Team Penske is in terms of competing for the championship this year?

"I think you're gonna see about four or five cars. I think if you looked at today, and everything can change by the time we get to there because this deal really ebbs and flows a lot, but I think the No. 4 and the No. 48 are probably the two main targets."

"I think it will certainly be a difficult battle, but I think we're getting ourselves in position and we're focused on what we need to do for those last 10 races to be the best ones of the year."

The bottom line is you feel despite this Hendrick hot streak that you're right there with them?

"Yeah, I would say that week in and week out we're there. We're leading laps. We're qualifying and we're getting things done. I think being able to lead a lap in every race this season says that you're there."
