Rolling Pines residents worry as county prepares to shut down pumps

CHIPLEY — Just days after expressing his appreciation to county commissioners for running pumps to help alleviate flooding for property owners on Rolling Pines and Childress roads in Washington County, Don Fendley got a call from the county’s emergency operations center telling him the pumps will be shut down.

Properties adjacent to both roads have had flooding issues since April, and according to Fendley, the water only began visibly receding after the county began running the pumps. But at a daily diesel fuel cost of $200, Fendley was advised the county was running out of what money FEMA would give them as reimbursement.

“I got a call Friday afternoon saying they couldn’t keep running the pumps, that they would be shut down, and we should seek alternative housing,” said Fendley, whose property lies in the district of County Commis-

SAND HILLS — The Florida Highway Patrol reports no injuries resulted from a two-car accident that took place Saturday at the intersection of State Road 20 and State Road 79.

According to FHP reports, Margaret Crawley, 52, of Dayton, Tenn., was traveling north in the left turn lane of SR 79, approaching the intersection of SR 20 and failed to yield the right of way to Branton Bush, 20, of New Hope.

The right side of Crawley’s 2005 Hyundai SUV collided into the front of Bush’s 2005 Mazda sedan.

After impact, Crawley’s SUV overturned onto its side, coming to rest in the intersection, and Bush’s car came to rest a short distance from where impact was made.

Both drivers were wearing their seatbelts.

CRA to reopen grant applications

CHIPLEY — The Chipley Re-development Agency is reopening two grants for property improvement.

The CRA Special Improvement Grant reopened yesterday after residents reported having trouble finding two licensed contractors to submit bids as required by the application.

The grant, which provides 90 percent of funding, up to $1,000, for residential properties, is intended to help cover facade improvements such as painting and awning and door replacements for homes within the CRA district.

“Five people submitted documentation, but unfortunately, no one qualified because they couldn’t get two bids,” said CRA Administrative Assistant Chris MacBlain.

TDC logo back in limbo

CHIPLEY — The Washington County Tourist Development Council’s two-year quest to find a suitable logo to present local tourism won’t be coming to an end anytime soon.

After being dissatisfied with previous proposals, the board approved Director Heather Lopez’s suggestion to do more research into obtaining an acceptable logo.

The board reached a consensus they’d prefer to delay finding a logo until a quality one can be found to properly represent the county and the tourism it has to offer.

Agendaed items discussed in the board’s Monday, June 23 meeting also included:

- Approving the purchase of an iMac computer for the Director Heather Lopez’s office
- Discussion of a geo-caching trail which is being developed and is intended to attract tourism
- Heard an update on the Dixie World Series, set for July 26 through July 30 in Chipley.

Hooks in running for District 5 House seat

From staff reports

JAN HOOKS

Walton County Realtor Jan Hooks is hoping to win the District 5 seat in the House of Representatives, which will be vacated this year by Rep. Marti Coley because of term limits.

Hooks has lived in Northwest Florida for almost 35 years, starting a professional career as a bookkeeper and office manager in DeFuniak Springs.

Since 1999, Jan has worked as a Realtor, and today is serving many of the counties in Northwest Florida through her own real estate business. In the real estate industry, Jan was the 2013 President of the Emerald Coast Association of Realtors, a member of the Board of Directors of the National Association of Realtors and a Director of the Florida Realtors. Focusing much of her efforts on bettering her local community, Jan has volunteered in organizations like Habitat for Humanity, and chairs the Freeport Planning and Zoning Board.

Jan lives in Walton County with her husband, John. They have been married for 33 years and have two children.

“I’m a genuine conservative running to be State Representative because (voters) deserve someone in Tallahassee who is committed to serving them first and always, not the special interests and party bosses,” Hooks said. “We need servant leaders who are dedicated to upholding the constitutional principles that have made our country great, not thwarting them and looking to personally gain off of their power.”

Hooks will face off with fellow Republican Brad Drake in the Republican primary. The winner of that election will face Libertarian Karen Schoen and Democrat Travis W. Pitts in November.

sioner Lynn Gothard.

While the original proposal was to let the pumps run until all the diesel was used in their tanks, Commissioner Gothard stated there was more discussion about the issue, and the pumps will run a while longer.

“We will continue to run the pumps and discharge the water for another week, but then we will have to re-evaluate the situation,” said Gothard.

Meanwhile, Fendley says there are more concerns than just wells and septic tanks being underwater for such an extended period.

“There’s been a reported sighting of two alligators, one that’s 5 feet long,” he said. “I have to keep a lookout for them when I’m wading out in my yard.”

With summer coming, there are also concerns about an increased number of mosquitoes in the area, which affects about 7 families, including Fendley’s daughter and son, who live on adjacent properties.

One Childress resident, who receives her medication by mail, reported her postal carrier said they could no longer deliver mail to her address until the water recedes.

County Engineer Cliff Knauer states there is no easy fix.

“There’s just not a good long-term solution,” Knauer told commissioners when they met in regular session Thursday.

“These people will keep having the same problem as long as they keep getting rain. For the time being, if pumping the water helps get them to and from their house, that’s what we should keep doing.”

Fendley says he’ll wait for the county to re-evaluate the situation but is frustrated with the situation.

“Lynn Gothard has been responsive to our problem, but if we can’t keep using the pumps to give us a chance to dry out, I have no idea where that’s going to leave us.”

CAROL KENT | The News

Despite weeks of pumping and discharging water from the area, water still reaches the steps of April Powell’s Rolling Pines Road residence.

April Powell is frustrated with her property’s flooding but addresses the problem with a smile as she braves the water in rubber boots.

“What we’re hearing is that local contractors didn’t feel the amount of money was worth submitting a bid.”

CRA members are considering changing the program requirements to make the projects more attractive to licensed contractors.

Applications for the grant are being accepted now and will continue through August 31.

A $6,000 grant for commercial property is also up for grabs, but MacBlain reports she’s given a few applications out but hasn’t received any back.

The grant is geared toward making electrical improvements for businesses within the CRA district.

The CRA district runs through the core of downtown and in northeast

CRA members are also planning a trip to Mossy Head this month to visit a splash pad. Board members hope to place a similar attraction at Gilmore Park on Church Avenue for local children to enjoy.

Marianna teen killed in crash

WEWAHITCHKA — A 16-year-old boy is dead after a crash late Friday, according to the Florida Highway Patrol.

Tyler Austin Gray, 16, of Marianna, was driving a 2000 Ford F-150 pickup truck north on State Road 71 just north of Lower Dalkeith Road, County Road 281-A, in Wewahitchka about 11:10 p.m. when he lost control, the FHP reported.

Gray veered onto the northbound shoulder; over-corrected and traveled toward the southbound lane, according to the FHP. He over-corrected again, causing the truck to spin off the northbound shoulder and hit a tree.

Gray suffered fatal injuries. The FHP's investigation is continuing.

Guns coming to campus

Ruling allows firearms in vehicles at colleges

By JACQUELINE BOSTICK
747-5081 | @PCNHJBostick
jbostick@pcnh.com

PANAMA CITY — Imagine a campus where everyone is welcomed to carry firearms concealed in their vehicles. It's soon likely to be a local reality.

As a wave of shootings has swept school campuses at every level, a state appellate court ruling has freed up Second Amendment rights by ruling that university and college campuses are not school districts and therefore are not eligible to waive students' rights to carry weapons.

The ruling will change the way campuses across the state are approaching gun rights. Gulf Coast State College and Florida State University Panama City are already on the bandwagon.

At the last GCSC Board of Trustees meeting, the board approved the first reading of a policy that permits anyone of at least 18 years of age, including students, faculty, staff and guests, to carry a weapon on GCSC campuses.

The policy, which must be passed a second time to be officially approved, states the firearm or other weapon must be concealed and not readily accessible within a private vehicle.

"The law currently only allows for firearms and weapons to be carried inside a vehicle that is secured," director of campus safety and security David Thomasee wrote in an email Thursday.

Florida State University Panama City campus is soon to adopt a similar policy, according to campus police officer Lt. Steve Sellers.

When asked about the kind of impact the policy change will have on campus, Major Jim Russell, FSUPC deputy chief of police and spokesman, gave an impartial statement, saying the school's police department doesn't take an opinionated position, but "uphold laws."

Thomasee said active shooters are a possibility in Florida, but there are other things that will more likely cause death.

"There's hundreds of thousands of fires every year, storms, floods, tornadoes, hurricanes — all of those things are more likely to happen here than an active shooter," he said. "But, we want to be prepared for the unthinkable, or the unimaginable, so that's what we do."

And, for the most part, securing the campus is the same or similar for any emergency crisis situation, he said.

SAFE CAMPUSES

Since the Sandy Hook shooting, active shooter incidents have hit 35 college or university campuses across the country.

FSUPC and GCSC campuses have been relatively safe.

According to data from both schools, weapons violations are rare. Since 2010, FSUPC has reported only one incident involving an illegal weapon on campus; GCSC reported one weapon incident for 2012.

After Columbine in 1999, Maj. Russell wrote in an email, FSU Police Department changed how they prepared for and responded to emergencies.

"We understand disaster can strike anywhere and dedicate much time to intensive and realistic training," the email stated.

Both police agencies say they are committed to the mission of safe campuses and the policy will not affect the level of security.

"A lot of people are concerned about active shooters ... it's a situation that you can't control," Thomasee said.

"The people that are breaking the law already, don't care if you have a law that says they can't do it," he added. "But, law abiding citizens that are doing the right thing, keeping that firearm concealed in their vehicle, you would never know that they had a secured firearm."

Partisans debating over debates

By CHRIS OLWELL
747-5079 | @PCNHchriso
colwell@pcnh.com

GWEN GRAHAM

PANAMA CITY — As if to prove no common ground can possibly exist in partisan politics, candidates for the U.S. District 2 House race in Florida are debating over debates.

Democrat Gwen Graham's campaign delivered a letter Tuesday to Republican Rep. Steve Southerland's Panama City campaign headquarters challenging Southerland, her chief opponent in the November election, to a series of debates.

Graham already has accepted invitations from two groups that want to host debates, but at this point she doesn't have anyone to debate, campaign spokesman Eric Conrad said.

Southerland campaign manager Luke Strickland issued a statement in response, outlining the conditions under which the incumbent would agree to debate to his opponent.

"Steve certainly hopes the candidates will have a healthy debate of the issues this fall," Strickland said. "But if that dialogue is going to happen, it needs to start with Gwen Graham denouncing the liberal outside groups that are smearing Steve's record and misleading voters."

"Once Gwen Graham demands that (House Minority Leader) Nancy Pelosi and her special interest allies stop flooding North and Northwest Florida with negative attacks and false information, we will be happy to start the process of scheduling debates. Until that point, the ball remains in Gwen Graham's court."

As of the most recent disclosure period, which covers expenditures through March 31, the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee (DCCC) and the House Majority PAC have combined to spend almost $195,000 to unseat Southerland, according to Influence Explorer, a sort of data warehouse created by the Sunlight Foundation.

No groups have spent money targeting Graham during the same period, according to Influence Explorer's data.

However, Southerland has benefited in previous campaigns from attack ads, and almost certainly will again before the November election, Conrad said.

Southerland spokesman Matt McCullough said Graham was being disingenuous by saying she wants honest and open debate on issues while refusing to condemn third-party statements that could mislead voters.

Graham could speak out against the offending ads, but that's about it, Conrad said.

Her campaign is legally prohibited from coordinating with independent third-parties such as DCCC and the House Majority AC, and those groups are under no obligation to listen to a candidate, he said.

"No statement Gwen ever makes is going to change what an outside group says," Conrad said, "and the same goes for Southerland."

BE HEARING SAFE - THIS 4TH OF JULY

Just How Many Americans Experience Hearing Loss?

1 in 10 Americans have a hearing loss. That's more than 31,000,000 people.

About 40 percent of all hearing loss comes from overexposure to loud noise.

Immediate danger to hearing

Jet engine at take off
Gun shot: 140 decibels

Siren: 120 decibels

Stadium cheer: 110 decibels

Lawn mower: 88 decibels

Life is Loud! Protect your hearing!

Over time, exposure to sounds louder than 85 decibels can damage the tiny hairs inside the ear, resulting in a common form of hearing loss!

How Hearing Loss Occurs

A. Loud sound waves pass through your outer ear.
B. The eardrum, at the entrance to the middle ear, transmits sound through tiny vibrating bones.
C. Tiny hair cells convert the vibrations into electrical pulses in the inner ear, which are then transmitted to the brain.
D. Those tiny hair cells can be damaged by loud noises, causing hearing loss.

DON'T IGNORE the WARNING SIGNS

1. Difficulty hearing in noisy situations, like restaurants

WE ARE DEDICATED TO PATIENT SATISFACTION

How to save lives in less than 30 seconds

If you've been following local events, you know Holmes and Washington counties have had a rash of car accidents in the past month. In the majority of those accidents, seatbelts were not used. As a result of those accidents, at least three people had serious injuries, and two others have died.

Most of us have heard national safety statistics on seatbelt use. All of us know it's the law that we use them. So, why don't we?

I know, I know: I'm not your mother. But I do know the mother of the 20 year old who is currently spending his summer in Bay Medical Center's Intensive Care Unit instead of working or hanging out with his family and friends. I'm sure his summertime plans didn't include multiple surgeries following his June 5 car accident near Sunny Hills. That split second left him with severe head trauma, a broken sternum, a shattered shoulder, and broken ribs - and left his mother wondering if her son would make it to see his next birthday.

I'm sure that mother wouldn't have minded her child hearing someone speak about seatbelts from the proverbial soapbox if it meant a slight chance the outcome of that warm, June day could have been different.

As a mother of five, I know she would likely agree that we need to stress the importance of taking the extra few seconds to click our seatbelt before venturing onto roads which hold unknown dangers. We shouldn't justify our neglect to wear them based on our "great driving skills" or a short distance. In this young man's case, another driver ran a stop sign.

CAROL KENT
Editor

Seatbelts are like car insurance in that we can't count on others to always pay attention, or discount that an unexpected hazard could cause us to crash.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), seatbelts are the single most effective traffic safety device for preventing death and injury, and wearing a seat belt can reduce the risk of crash injuries by 50 percent. Still not convinced? Let's turn to a few statistics from the NHTSA:

- Seat belts saved more than 75,000 lives from 2004 to 2008.

- Forty-two percent of passenger vehicle occupants killed in 2007 were unbelted.

- A 2009 NHTSA study estimates more than 1,600 lives could be saved and 22,000 injuries prevented if seat belt use was 90 percent in every state.

The agency also reports those most likely to ignore their seatbelts are teens, commercial drivers, males in rural areas, pick-up truck drivers, people driving at night, and people who have been drinking.

We all have things we could work on to better manage health risks and to make our mothers worry a little less. Why not start with always wearing your seatbelt and help both causes at once?

AN UNCOMMON

ALLIANCE AGAINST A COMMON PROBLEM

By ROBBY SOAVE
Staff Editor, Reason.com

When Gov. Bobby Jindal (R-La.) announced last week that he would pull his state out of Common Core, he may have been sounding the death knell of the national education standards. Though a confluence of pushy and powerful interest groups have promised that they invented the solution to the American education crisis, people just aren't buying that more top-down standardization of America's education system is the answer.

The populist uprising against the national education standards is a dramatic and recent phenomenon, given that almost no one had even heard of Common Core until just two years ago. The standards were developed in 2009 by education policy bureaucrats at the National Governors Association and the Council of Chief State School Officers. President Obama's Department of Education took an immediate interest, and the federal government encouraged state governors and legislatures to sign on to the standards by bribing them with Race to the Top grant money. This led 45 state governments to commit to Common Core implementation, even though hardly anyone knew what that would cost (lots of money) or require (retraining teachers, purchasing new technology).

Since then, the American people have had ample time to learn about Common Core—and the more they hear, the less they like it.

Fierce opposition to the standards is remarkably nonpartisan. Both conservative grassroots organizations and teachers unions are urging state legislatures to resist Core implementation. Thousands of parents and teachers have shown up to town hall meetings to demand that their school boards don't hand over curriculum sovereignty to regional or federal education authorities.

The outrage among Tea Party groups is particularly problematic for Republican leaders and prospective candidates who signed on to the standards, including Jindal, New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie, and former Florida Gov. Jeb Bush, a major Core cheerleader. It is very likely that being pro-Common Core will be a toxic position in any conservative presidential primary. Jindal's denunciation of the standards last week is as good an indication as any that he wants to keep the base on his side.

Still, the Core is not without its supporters. A confluence of powerful interest groups — the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, the Thomas B. Fordham Institute, textbook giant Pearson, and standardized testing partnerships PARCC and Smarter Balanced — remain dedicated to the standards.

As a nominally conservative think tank, the Fordham Institute has led the way in arguing that concerns about Common Core being a federal takeover of education are unfounded. According to Fordham's Michael Brickman, "There are absolutely legitimate examples of federal overreach from the Obama administration. But I don't think Common Core is one of them because... it was something that was led by the governors and the state education chiefs."

People are unconvinced. While polling on Common Core varies wildly depending on how the questions are phrased, a recent poll release by pro-Core group Achieve, Inc. found that people who reported knowing something about the standards gave them an unfavorable review. Achieve, Inc. blamed Core "opponents who in the past year have made their opposition known through all media outlets, leaving a more negative 'impression' among voters."

The opponents are winning, and if Jindal's flip flop is any indication, the momentum seems to be shifting against Common Core. Libertarians should see this as a triumph.

Indeed, the populist uprising against Common Core is undeniably libertarian. It recognizes that there is no one answer to fixing education in America. It understands that a new wave of fancy government-enforced solutions is likely to fall short of solving anything. Instead, government needs to get out of the way, stop trapping kids in failing public schools based on where they were born, and stop using them as conscripted labor for standardized testing companies. Efforts that empower parents to fix their own local schools will always be more successful than cumbersome national initiatives.

After decades of politicians trying to solve the education problem by spending more money and proposing more standardization, people of all political stripes are simply unconvinced that there is one magic "fix" and that it will be invented in a federal laboratory. Instead, people are wising up to the demonstrable fact that more choice and local autonomy produce the conditions most favorable for students to discover and flourish in school environments that suit their individual needs.

CECILIA SPEARS
Cecilia's Sit Down

I don't remember much about my father, who passed away in 2007 after battling Multiple Sclerosis for decades. I think our distance was because he didn't have a father to teach him how to be a dad, but he used what he learned in the military to teach me how to live.

It was in 153rd Calvary Bonifay National Guard that my dad found his freedom. I remember visiting him in the main building, playing basketball and then he would show me the different vehicles they used in the military. I think it was there that I found my love of tanks, trucks, military vehicles and machinery. It was at the 153rd Calvary that I've never seen him happier.

I think it was there that he found pride in what he did because he would teach those same lessons when he returned home. He taught me how to shine shoes, keep the carpet clean and wash dishes, which showed the importance of taking care of what's mine. He taught me to fold the bed to where you could bounce a quarter off of it, which showed me to take pride in all I did, no matter how big or small the task. He showed me how he took care of his uniform, which showed me I should always take pride in myself. It was funny though because there was a few months that we lived off of nothing but military rations just so that we could empathize with soldiers overseas who only had rations to eat. He always wanted us to be grateful for what we had.

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

My mother, father and me shortly after my christening.

He had spent time at the Panama Canal and even in Grenada in 1983.

He loved how he was able to serve his country and even long after his honorable discharge because he was diagnosed with MS he loved the Fourth of July the most. He had his ups and downs with what the sickness deprived him of but his eyes always lit up seeking the fireworks, sometimes more brilliantly than the fireworks themselves. He loved the summer, I think, just for the Fourth of July.

He was also the one that taught me that "it wasn't summer until you had a watermelon." In a way, each Fourth of July, I remember the pride and excitement he had to be an American and I can't help but to feel it too. Sometimes I forget to live in a way that would've made the dad I remembered proud. Strength, honor, pride and love for God and country. I'm really looking forward to seeing those fireworks again because to me it's a reminder of just how big my God can be and how we're free to express our joy, triumphs and pride as Americans. I want to thank you again for another chance to sit down with you and chat. See you next time and let Freedom ring.

Thirty-one students represented electric cooperatives from around Florida on the National Rural Electric Cooperative Youth Tour June 14-19 in Washington, D.C.

Area students travel for rural electric co-op youth tour

Special to The News

Brad Pearson of Clarksville and Anthony Severson of Graceville were among almost 1,600 high school students from 43 states who participated in the National Rural Electric Cooperative Youth Tour held June 14-19 in Washington, D.C. Pearson and Severson were sponsored by West Florida Electric Cooperative (WFEC) and represented Altha School (Pearson) and Graceville High School (Severson).

While in Washington, the students learned firsthand what it is like to be involved in politics, how our government operates and about how and why electric co-ops were formed. One highlight of the trip included meeting their elected representatives in the U.S. House and Senate. They toured Arlington National Cemetery, the Capitol and Mount Vernon. Students also visited various monuments and memorials including the Vietnam, Jefferson, Lincoln, Roosevelt and more. While in D.C., they also enjoyed the U.S. Marine Corps Band Sunset Parade, a boat cruise and dance on the Potomac River, and ended their trip by seeing "The Lion King" musical at the Kennedy Center.

This year marked the Electric Cooperative Youth Tour's 50th anniversary. In 1964, the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association began coordinating joint activities among state delegations and suggested that co-op representatives from each state arrange to be in Washington, D.C., during Youth Tour week.

The first year of the coordinated tour included about 400 teens from 12 states.

As word spread, the program grew and grew and grew to what it is today. WFEC has participated in the Youth Tour program since 1979, sending two students to our nation's capital each year since.

The Youth Tour program is open to all high school juniors whose parents or guardians are members of West Florida Electric Cooperative. Each high school within WFEC's service area selects a representative for the State Youth Tour in the fall of each year. The selected representatives then go on to compete for the two slots available for the National Youth Tour. If you will be a junior during the 2014-2015 school year, see your school's guidance counselor for more information about the Youth Tour or contact WFEC Youth Tour Coordinator, Candace Croft at ccroft@westflorida.coop.

Chipola Healthy Start: Know the dangers of heat stroke

Special to The News

Heatstroke is the number one killer of children, outside of car crashes. That's why Chipola Healthy Start joins with the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) to attempt to reduce these deaths by reminding parents and caregivers about the dangers of heatstroke and leaving children in hot cars. Last year 44 children lost their lives nationwide.

"As outside temperatures rise, the risks of children dying from being left alone inside a hot vehicle also rise," said Missy Lee, Community Liaison and Fetal and Infant Mortality Review Coordinator for Chipola Healthy Start. "One child dies from heatstroke nearly every 10 days from being left in a hot vehicle, but what is most tragic is that the majority of these deaths could have been prevented."

Chipola Healthy Start urges all parents and caregivers to do these three things:

- 1) Never leave a child in a vehicle unattended;
- 2) Make it a habit to look in the backseat every time you exit the car;
- 3) Always lock the car and put the keys out of reach.

If you ever see a child left alone in a hot vehicle, call 911 right away.

Know the warning signs of heatstroke, which include red, hot, and moist or dry skin; no sweating; a strong, rapid pulse or a slow, weak pulse; nausea; confusion; or acting strangely. If a child exhibits any of these signs after being in a hot vehicle, cool the child rapidly by spraying them with cool water or with a garden hose, never an ice bath. Call 911 or your local emergency number immediately. Children's body temperatures can rise up to five times faster than that of an adult, and heatstroke can occur in temperatures as low as 57 degrees. On an 80-degree day, a car can reach deadly levels in just 10 minutes.

"More than half of all vehicle-related heatstroke deaths in children are caused by a child accidentally being left in the car, and 29 percent are from a child getting into a hot car on their own," Lee said. "We want to get the word out to parents and caregivers, please look before you lock."

She offered these tips:
 • Put your child's toy in the front seat with you as a reminder that your child is in the car with you.
 • Put your purse or work bag in the backseat next to your child so that you have to go to the backseat to retrieve both your items and your child.

- Stick a reminder note on your windshield or inside your window.
- Set a timer on your phone to go off just before you expect to arrive at your destination.

Simple steps like these could save a child's life. For more information, call Missy at Chipola Healthy Start Coalition at 482-1236, ext. 305 or toll free at 1-866-591-2852.

• Fire Chief: Child with paper, oven caused fire: Chipley Fire and Rescue members were looking forward to enjoying the opening night of the annual Watermelon Festival selling refreshments at the Darryl Singletary concert as a fundraiser when at about 8 p.m. they were reminded of why they were fundraising, as a call went out for a house fire at 813 Maple Street, just off South Boulevard.

• One arrested at WHTC on multiple charges: A newcomer from Detroit was arrested last week on grand theft and traffic charges after he allegedly tried to steal computer equipment from Washington Holmes Technical Center.

• Sweet Success Watermelon Festival 2009: Hot or not, the 53rd annual Watermelon Festival was its usual success. Festival Chairman Judge Colby Peel led off the parade that opened Saturday's festivities.

• County will fund legal aid: Many legal issues were considered during the June session of the Washington County Board of County Commissioners. Because of an Article 5 unfunded mandate, civil legal representation for the indigent population will be the responsibility of county government. Florida legislators, however, have given counties the option of adding a $65 surcharge to each and every criminal prosecution pursued in the courts. This charge will serve to pay for the extra expense.

• Vernon council approves controversial ordinance: If it is Vernon, the rule is council meetings must include a water issue or two. Monday night's meeting was no exception. A controversial ordinance dealing with water, sewer, and garbage deposits and subsequent bill collections was passed into law.

• Rahal honored by FDOE head: Education Commissioner Jim Horne today congratulated the recipients of Florida's Best Business and Education Partnerships 2004 awards. Florida's Best recognizes programs showing exemplary work in build partnerships between businesses and educational institutions to create job opportunities for students. In the Northwest Region, Rahal Chevrolet, Buick, Cadillac, Nissan was honored for their work on behalf of Chipola College.

• Inmate recaptured: An escaped inmate from Liberty County is back behind bars after being recaptured in Washington County. Curtis Lendell Dale, 37 of Quincy was apprehended at approximately 10:11 a.m. last Wednesday, one mile east of the Chipley exit on Interstate 10, according to Washington County Sheriff Danny Hasty.

• CVA to file suit against county: "This is it. This is crunch time. Put up or shut up." These were the words the Citizens' Voice Association President Aubrey Davis had for the fellow members Thursday at a meeting of the association. Davis told the members the CVA's attorney is prepared to file a suit against the county while warning that there were no guarantees except that the legal fight would require members to come up with a large sum of money.

• Local man survives shocking experience: Washington County resident Paul Croft considers himself a lucky man these days, after the adventure he had Saturday. The Department of Transportation employee was trying to take a tractor to shelter during the heavy rain that morning when he had a run-in with some power lines.

'Regular readers respond recently'

Your writer, author of the journalist piece, known as Perry's Prattle" a weekly column in the

PERRY'S PRATTLE
Perry Wells

Washington County News, has recently been on a "roll" for accolades, approving comments and an almost pleading to never stop writing the "prattle".

Leon Sexton and wife, Martha Jean Washington Sexton, are still selling his book, "Wagon Tracks", a project which was well under way during the assimilation of the Heritage of Washington Book. His book was finished and off the press in a short time after the publishing of the Heritage Book. "Wagon Tracks" has enjoyed excellent acceptance and is still available.

Hester and I have seen this couple twice in recent weeks at Dee's Restaurant in Vernon. Martha Jean continues to tell us how much she enjoyed accompanying Leon to our home to submit stories for the Heritage Book and for Leon to purchase copies of the book for friends and family. She still has high praise for this finished product of Washington County History.

Leon Sexton's purchases of the book may not have set a record, but they were right up there with the numbers bought by Laurence Cutts, Ted Everett, Lucille Cook, Floyd and Jean Cook, Bob and Faye Bush, Phyllis Varnum, James Guy, Ralph Odell Ward and others.

The two articles on Charles Whitehead, written several weeks ago, continue to bring forth approval from those who have read the writings. Brenda Taylor, longtime employee at the WCN, told me recently of having received a telephone call from a gentleman in Texas who gave a glowing report on the Whitehead columns and she believes he identified himself as a relative. I have waited for the person to call me, but nothing yet. Hopefully, he will now contact me upon seeing this mention.

Jimmy Baxley, a Washington County native, wrote the history of his Baxley family for the Heritage Book. He is the only son of the family with five sisters. Four of them, Delores, Gaynell, Wynell and Joann reside in the Baxley home on Highway 273. Vivid in my mind is when Jimmy Baxley, accompanied by his cousin, Nathan Sharron, retired Florida Highway Patrol Trooper, known from my Bay County years, came to our home in conjunction with the Baxley story.

Jimmy told me recently at a funeral service just how meaningful the Charles Whitehead story was to him.

Jimmy is one of the men chosen from the ranks of the Florida Highway Patrol to serve as Security Officer for Governor Bob Graham. He related one trip when he accompanied Governor Graham on a flight to Washington D. C. Charles Whitehead, Chairman of the Florida Democratic Party and then President, Jimmy Carter, were also on the airplane and all became "chatty" while en route to the nation's capital. He recalls Charles being warm and friendly to all those aboard the plane. At one point, the president stopped by Jimmy's seat, sat down on the arm of the chair and asked; "Where are you from Officer Baxley?" He replied; "Chipley, Florida—do you know where Chipley is?" The president replied: "Yes, I know where Chipley is and I know Buddy Neel, do you know him?" He well remembers their conversation about the well-known auctioneer who also had an affinity for political involvement as well.

Just days after that encounter, Mrs. Bell, who reared two sons along with our two younger boys, commented on how much she enjoys my writing and is always amazed at my ability to remember names and historical happenings of past years. Later that day, the lady we first knew as Mamie Berby, was seen in the post office. She, too, complimented by ability to remember facts of years gone by and put them in an interesting story easy to read and enjoy. Before that day ended, it was Pat Smith from High Plumbing whom I met up with at the check-out counter at Piggly-Wiggly, who had kind words for "Perry's Prattle". She, along with husband, Jim Smith, arrived in Chipley from the far-a-way place called South Florida, became our faithful customers at Sears, Roebuck and Company and soon began their plumbing business here which is still flourishing after more than forty years in business.

As recently as a week ago, it was John Robbins, retired AT&T Executive in Panama City, who told me that he read both writings on Charles Whitehead and thanked me warmly for giving the man the just honors he deserved for the service rendered to the people in Bay County and all of the State of Florida. This was at the conclusion of the Third Thursday Chamber of Commerce meeting where Harold Bazzel was featured speaker for the June meeting. Harold was hearing John's approval of the Whitehead story and he, too, joined in with his knowledge of the history of this uncommon man, mentioning that he knew Paul and Silas Hodges, Bay County business men and cousins of Charles, who were included in the writing.

The June annual Brock Reunion is always a good source for encouragement on "Perry's Prattle". Three of the four daughters of Corene Brock George and the late Rev. W. E. (Bill) George, Glenda, Frankie and Rhonda accompanied their mother to the June 14 event. They complimented my efforts stating they keep in touch with news of our extended family from the pen of Perry Wells. Corene, age 92, joined Mary L. Anderson Vaughn, age 94, as the only two grandchildren of the honoree, Thomas Jefferson Brock, to attend this year's gathering. The three surviving daughters of O. D. Brock Harrell, Francis, Janie and Myrtle, are granddaughters, but missed the reunion this year due to a misunderstanding of the date of the event.

As always, your writer appreciates every kind word of support as he continues this column, a source of personal satisfaction for him with each column written.

See you all next week.

Ebro: AJN Sweet Smoke readies for return

The News Herald

EBRO — Mega Morris Stakes winner AJN Sweet Smoke has returned to Ebro Greyhound Park to resume his racing career among the best dogs at the track.

AJN Sweet Smoke last appeared at Ebro on closing night in 2013 when he placed second to Randy Romero in the inaugural running of the Gold Collar.

Most recently Smoke raced at Southland where he won 10 races and reached AA status. He schooled at Ebro on Tuesday and won in a rather pedestrian time of 31.05 seconds, but is expected to regain form and assume a spot among the elite animals in the compound.

AJN produced three schooling winners with Gabby Dee impressing with a 30.64 clocking. Shir-run Kennel's SE's Bar Star shined with a 30.41 and is a good bet to far surpass his 2013 season where he had six starts in B and C. He recently competed in Grade A in Sarasota and could quickly assume that level at Ebro.

RCK Big Red schooled in 30.76 after running last in his first effort here. He will open in Grade D, and De N De Kennel's Pat C Soft Touch should get a lot of attention in her maiden opener after winning by 9½ in a schooling run of 31.56.

Thoroughbreds: Game On Dude, winner of the past two Hollywood Gold Cup races, seeks his third lifetime win in the 1¼-mile Grade I race today at Santa Anita.

The $500,000 event will be run for the 75th time. The 7-year-old gelding Game On Dude will break from the rail and face six rivals, including Imperative, who beat "Dude" by 1½ lengths in the Grade II Charles Town Classic on April 19. A heavy 3-5 favorite, Game On Dude will seek his 17th career win from 33 starts and 32-16-7-1 overall with earnings of $6,408,893.

Untapable, the easy winner of the Kentucky Oaks, will make her first start in New York when she competes in the Grade I, $300,000 Mother Goose at Belmont Park. The 1 1/16-mile Mother Goose is race 4.

Later today, the $100,000 Manila will be contested as race 8 and the Grade II, $200,000 New York will be race 9.

Untapable is unbeaten in three starts this year. She was installed as the 1-5 favorite on the morning line and drew post position 2. Untapable's primary challenger is Stopchargingmaria, who is entering off a victory in the Grade II Black-Eyed Susan on May 16 at Pimlico.

Whitson signs with Red Sox

By BRAD MILNER

Karsten Whitson took a longer route to the same destination.

The former Chipley standout signed with the Boston Red Sox on Tuesday. The right-handed pitcher joins the Red Sox organization after four years with the Florida Gators after he turned down more than $2 million out of high school.

San Diego selected Whitson ninth overall in 2010 and negotiations went on into late summer. The two sides were unable to agree on a contract and Whitson decided to pitch at Florida. He had a stellar freshman campaign for the Gators with eight victories before suffering a shoulder injury that erased his sophomore season.

Whitson went in the 37th round to Washington last year. He pitched one more season at Florida, finishing 1-1 with a 3.86 ERA, 21 strikeouts and 23 walks in 14 appearances. Boston drafted him earlier this month and signed him for $100,000.

"It didn't quite work out the way that I would have wanted to with the master plan, but it worked out the way it was supposed to for me," Whitson told Masslive.com. "I feel great where I'm at now and I've got the degree in pocket so if this doesn't work out here in pro ball I'll have that to fall on."

Whitson, who majored in family, youth and community services, has been assigned to Single-A Lowell, Mass., of the short-season New York-Penn League. He has yet to appear in a game.

Also in Lowell: Former Chipola star Danny Mars also is with Lowell after he signed with Boston as a sixth-round selection. Mars signed for $211,800 and also joined former teammate Palmer Betts in the pro ranks.

Former Chipley standout Karsten Whitson, who played collegiately for the Florida Gators, signed with the Boston Red Sox last week.

Betts signed with Pittsburgh as a 36th-round choice. The righty has made two relief appearances for the Rookie League Bristol (Va.) Pirates. He made his pro debut June 19.

Mars first played on Tuesday for the Spinners, with three hits in his first three at-bats. He had a double, triple, run scored and stolen base. He also played the following night and went 1 for 4.

Mader debuts: Marianna and Chipola product Michael Mader made his pro debut in the Miami Marlins' organization on Monday with Single-A Batavia, N.Y. The left-hander tossed two innings in a start with two strikeouts and three walks while not giving up any hits in a no-decision. He had one strikeout and no walks in one inning of a relief appearance on Wednesday.

End of the road: Casey Rasmus, who competed for Gulf Coast, has retired from baseball at age 24. The catcher was added to the voluntarily retired list on June 11 with no reason reported. The brother of major-leaguer Colby Rasmus last played with Single-A Palm Beach and advanced as high as Double-A since being taken in the 36th round by St. Louis in 2011.

Tommy Oliver also home to Top 10 series

Tommy Oliver Stadium has welcomed a number of compelling events since it opened in 1953.

Among them have been high-profile track and field meets, not to mention soccer games, high school graduations, band competitions and, of course, high school football regular season and playoff games.

Therefore the urge to finalize a list of the 10 most memorable events to take place at the stadium located adjacent to the Bay High School campus.

This is not intended to solicit nominations for what our readers might feel are shoe-ins for the "10 That Mattered" series soon to be unveiled. The list already is complete, and surprise, it all came out of my head.

So it isn't meant to be a rock-solid representation. Obviously there have been many more than 10 significant occasions. And what might appear deserving one week, in another month might not seem so compelling. In short, there was no scientific process used in distilling more than 60 years of athletic excellence.

Some of it represents individual brilliance, and other installments are more team specific. Yet others just seemed too damned important in retrospect to leave off the list.

While not tipping the hand as to what is forthcoming, a sampling of what did not make the cut possibly is more revealing. Among them is the 0-0 football tie played by Bay and Rutherford in the first meeting of the schools, which just happened to take place the evening of the day that JFK was assassinated in 1963.

Likewise, the 446-yard rushing performance by Escambia's Danikiee

Hollowell didn't make it, merely because Rutherford's defense was unable to force a third down conversion the entire game when the teams met last September. The Gators either achieved a first down or a touchdown on every first down or second down snap.

The lone exception was when Escambia spiked the ball on second down shortly before halftime so it could attempt a field goal. So in a sense, Hollowell was penalized by Rutherford's lack of defense that evening in a 70-54 defeat.

Neither did Derrick Brooks' terrific performance against Mosley in 1990 qualify. Nor did splendid sprinter T.J. Rush of Mosley in 1995, the year he won a national 200-meter title. Rush's greatest track and field achievements actually took place away from Tommy Oliver Stadium.

Also left off was Rutherford's shutout playoff performance against Merritt Island in 1997, the night the lights on the visitors' side of the field delayed the start of the game for more than an hour.

It could be argued that the most significant occasions at TOS came during high school graduations. Alas, don't expect to see them in this section.

To recap, it's just one man's opinion, and likely could be challenged for some of the memorable performances that took place prior to 1984, when a refugee from the Tundra first landed here.

They soon will appear daily starting with No. 10, until reaching a countdown to No. 1 more than a week later.

The intention is to entertain, not to diminish some events that weren't recognized.

Local athletes on recruiting radar

There hasn't been a large number of high-profile transfers of student-athletes from school to school in Bay County that sometimes punctuates the summer months here with rumor and innuendo.

That's not to say that everyone is staying put. But what has come under some scrutiny is a larger number than usual of local and area football talent showing up on major recruiters lists.

Among them, in particular, are some football players at Bay and Vernon.

Bay head football coach Jimmy Longerbeam said that five Tornadoes already have received offers and another expects to play on the next level via an academic scholarship.

A pair of rising juniors lead the way, with defensive end Janarius Robinson and offensive tackle Christian Gainer getting added attention off recent performances at summer camps.

Longerbeam said that Robinson, who currently is 6-foot-5 and weighs 231 pounds, has been offered by Florida State, North Carolina, North Carolina State, Tennessee, Michigan, Clemson, South Alabama and UAB.

Gainer, who is 6-5, 285 and expected to add a couple of inches and 20 pounds by the time he graduates in spring 2016, is being recruited heavily by North Carolina and Tennessee and has more offers pending, Longerbeam said.

Rising senior offensive lineman Steven Sain has North Carolina and West Florida on his radar, junior running back Raekwon Webb has been offered by Western Kentucky and senior running back Travion Turrell has committed to Alabama State.

Longerbeam said wide receiver/safety John Wallace will have an academic scholarship to Alabama State and is expected to play football there.

Bobby Johns at Vernon said that senior linebacker Austin Brown has had 12-15 offers from Division I schools. Johns said the 6-4, 190-pounder is being recruited as an athlete, but probably projects as an outside linebacker.

Junior middle linebacker Darrius Peterson, 6-1, 218, has been to camps in Kentucky and Georgia, and recently attended the USF camp. Johns expects quarterback Tristan Porter, 6-4½, 195 to get attention and a pair of beefy linemen, Malik Sheppard, 326, and Alex Rosa, 308, may need to go the junior college route to play at the next level.

Mosley coach Jeremy Brown said that Raekwon Jones, 6-2, 205, is getting a lot of attention as a hybrid linebacker or safety. His early list includes Florida Atlantic, Troy, South Alabama, Toledo and Buffalo.

Tight end Trey Trzaska and quarterback Dillon Brown, could wind up playing in the Ivy League. Trzaska, 6-3, 200, also is used as an H-back and been offered by FAMU. Brown has been getting some interest from Patriot League schools, and he could gain added attention if he adds a few inches on his 5-10 frame and has a solid senior season.

"He has the arm strength and doesn't make a lot of mistakes," Coach Brown said. "He can make all of the throws."

First-year Bozeman head coach Lyle Messer said that 6-3 quarterback David Elmore has been generating the most interest from colleges of Bucks' players.

This isn't intended as a complete list of local and area players gaining recruiting recognition, but merely reflective of the area head coaches who recently returned calls.

Vernon's Rosa played at Bozeman the past few years, but originally transferred there from Vernon so in a sense is returning home. Bay has added a pair of former Rutherford Rams, but otherwise the "transfer season" hasn't been especially busy thus far.

Justin Davis, the younger brother of Bay County Offensive Player of the Year Dallas Davis, could be the highest profile athlete moving to a new school. Expected by some to assume the No. 1 quarterback duties for Rutherford, Justin Davis now attends Bay and could battle for that role in the fall.

He has been joined at Bay by former Rams' offensive lineman Kekoa Haiana-Scott.

Liberty County coach Grant Grantham said his program has lost four players from families moving out of the area. Among them was starting guard Maze Holmes, but the other athletes were younger players, Grantham said.

Longerbeam said that Javylon Wilson, who played mostly junior varsity football at Bay as a freshman, but was a key member of the Tornadoes' basketball varsity as a ninth-grader, will attend Mosley in the fall.

Watermelon Fest draws record crowd

By CAROL KENT

CHIPLEY — The numbers are in, and they're proof positive the 58th annual Panhandle Watermelon Festival was bigger and better than ever before.

Chipley Police Chief Kevin Crews estimates more than 5,000 were in attendance for Friday night's concert event in Pal's Park, featuring country singers Ashton Sheperd, Jeff Bates and headliner John Anderson.

"We parked more cars than ever before," Crews said. "We parked them in areas that we've never had to use before."

Festival Chairman Judge Colby Peel said attendance isn't the only thing that's grown; local support has reached record numbers as well.

"The support of the community and local sponsors has been tremendous," Judge Peel said. "We have people from other festivals calling and asking how we're able to do this for free, and we tell them we just have great support. It's important to provide a quality free event for our community. There are many who can't afford to take their family to Panama City or Dothan for a day out. Giving them a family-oriented event like this at no charge is how we're able to measure our success."

Two of the largest draws this year were country legend John Anderson, who is celebrating the 30th anniversary of his classic hit "Swinging," and Grammy nominated Dailey & Vincent, who have been called the "rockstars of bluegrass."

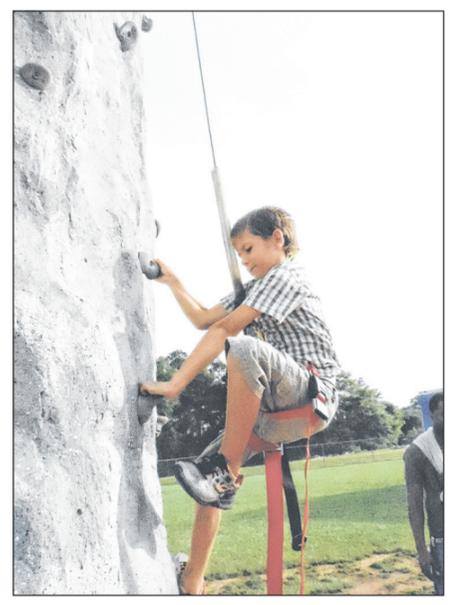

"Two weeks ago, Dailey & Vincent were playing at Carnegie Hall. Last week, they were at the Grand Ole Opry. This week, they were playing at the Ag Center in Chipley, Fla.," Peel said. "That's pretty neat to me."

The watermelon auction held Saturday is another crowd favorite. Though none of the melons matched last year's record watermelon that sold for a total of $12,000, the Grand Champion melon sold for $2,800.

All proceeds go to funding next year's festival, which the committee is already planning.

Several activities were available for children Saturday as well.

Chance Robinson tried his hand at the rock climbing wall in Pal's Park Friday.

Miss Watermelon Emily Clark assisted auctioneer David Corbin in Saturday's watermelon auction.

Northwest Florida Community Hospital conducted the popular "watermelon games" Friday night in Pal's Park.

The antique car show, held all day Saturday at Washington-Holmes Technical Center, was a popular attraction.

Current festival Chairman, Judge Colby Peel gives a wave to spectators at the annual watermelon parade.

Judge Perry Wells, who served as the festival chairman for 30 years, still shows his support for the event.

These children were just a few to enjoy games at Pal's Park Friday night while waiting for the concert to begin.

McKenna Kelly had her face painted by Shana Sloan at the face painting booth Friday night in Pal's Park.

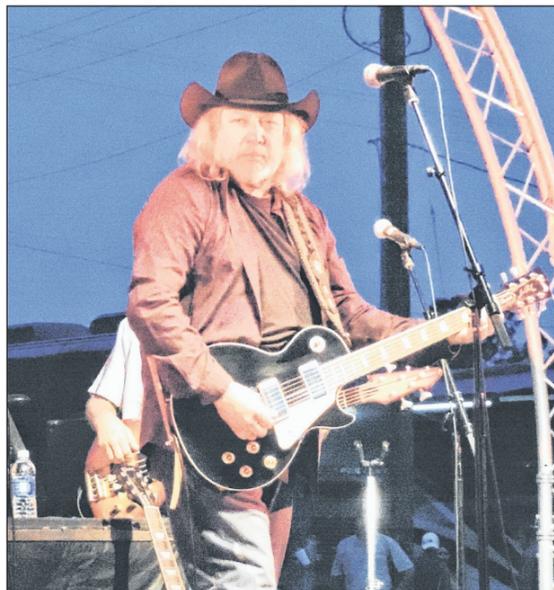

The Shriners were out in full, colorful force with entries like this one by the Shaddai Directors staff.

The Chipley Garden Club was one of many local organizations with watermelon themed parade entries.

Local gospel group "Crossroads" performed at the Ag Center Saturday.

John Anderson was the main attraction, performing his signature hits, "Swinging," "Seminoke Wind," and more.

Jim Dean was one of several to compete in the 5K Hot Trot.

JACKSON COUNTY

Commissioner arrested in Tallahassee in altercation

By KARL ETTERS
Tallahassee Democrat

JEREMY BRANCH

TALLAHASSEE — A Jackson County commissioner was arrested at a Tallahassee nightclub Tuesday after police say he abruptly punched another patron.

Jeremy Branch, 31, was arrested by Tallahassee police on a charge of misdemeanor battery. He was taken to the Leon County Jail and later released on $500 bail.

According to court records, two men accidentally bumped into Branch at Baja's Beach Club about 2 a.m. After they apologized, Branch punched one in the face without provocation.

The victim contacted police, who observed dried blood on the man's shirt and nose. He told police he wanted to press charges because he was punched for no reason. Witnesses corroborated the victim's story.

Court records show Baja's security staff escorted Branch out of the club.

When he was confronted by police, he refused to give details of the incident and repeatedly said, "I'm a county commissioner in Jackson County, don't you put your hands on me."

Branch said in an interview, "While I'm certainly not the first North Florida man to get caught up in a barroom tussle, I'm sorry it happened and I'm embarrassed I put myself in that situation."

Branch said he was at the bar for a birthday celebration and had drank

"I lost my temper and I shouldn't have. I understand that public officials are held to a higher standard than most. That's not an excuse. I don't believe it will hinder my ability serve Jackson County."

alcohol, but not to the point of intoxication.

His seat on the commission is up for re-election in November, but Branch announced prior to the incident he would not be running again. He has an August court date.

The victim, Kevonte Ford of Tallahassee, said in an interview his nose was broken and he was having corrective surgery today.

Branch is taking the incident seriously.

"I lost my temper and I shouldn't have," he said. "I understand that public officials are held to a higher standard than most. That's not an excuse.

"I don't believe it will hinder my ability serve Jackson County."

People gather in Paxton to honor fallen law officers

By TRISTA PRUETT

PAXTON — Lakewood Park was almost silent Saturday morning while the names of fallen law enforcement officers in Florida were read.

Blue Knights motorcycle riders, officers and deputies, family, friends and residents were gathered at the park for the 2014 Summit for Heroes, also known as "Cops on Top."

The annual summit is a nationwide event held the last Saturday in June.

Law officers and other participants climb to the highest point in the state and hold a memorial ceremony to recognize those who have lost their lives in the past year.

"As we read those names, we are reminded that the safety we provide sometimes comes at a devastating price," Walton County Sheriff's Maj. Brian Schultz said during the ceremony.

The names of the 11 men, women and K-9s killed in the line of duty in 2013 and so far this year were read.

Because Florida's highest point is in Walton County, the Sheriff's Office spearheads the ceremony. Sheriff's Lt. Artie Rodriguez is the team leader for Cops on Top Team Florida.

"I'd like to one day have a ceremony here where we don't have any names read," he said.

However, he said law officers always know that they might go to work one day and not return home.

He noted that Cops on Top often is confused with National Police Week in May.

"This is more of a memorial service," Rodriguez said. "That's more of appreciation."

He said when the event started in Florida in 2010 it drew about 10 people.

Now, thanks largely to the Blue Knights, who got involved in 2012, that number has more than quadrupled and continues to grow.

The Blue Knights are made up of current and former law officers. Bill Brandenburg, president of Florida Chapter 31, said the riders are just there to help.

"We want to make sure it doesn't get forgotten," Brandenburg said.

"It's very near and dear to me."

He said they hope to put some sort of monument at the park that recognizes the fallen officers year-round.

Pet Talk: Independence Day Safety

With the Fourth of July holiday come celebrations and outdoor activities that can be fun for people, but sometimes harmful for our pets. Here are some tips to keep this day an enjoyable and safe holiday for the whole family, Fido included.

PET TALK

"Fireworks can frighten dogs and cause them to escape and become injured," said Dr. James Barr, assistant professor at the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences. "Make sure your pet is supervised during the day and nighttime hours as well." The best idea is to keep dogs, particularly those with noise phobias, away from the commotion if at all possible.

Another factor that can cause anxiety and stress in dogs is being around large crowds of unfamiliar people. If you know ahead of time that your dogs do not do well with large groups, it is better to leave them at home or board them for the day. If you do decide to bring them to the festivities, it is recommended to have a safe, calm area where the dogs can relax.

"Being outdoors in the hot humid environment may cause those pets not used to the heat to have problems with heat," Barr said. "Allow the pets to be in a shaded area and have plenty of fresh water available at all times."

Additionally, it is imperative that you closely supervise Fido or Fluffy throughout the day and night so that they aren't tempted to indulge in the human food. July 4th celebrations bring with them many tasty human treats that might be toxic to animals, and with the large crowds of people, that can be easily and unnoticeably accessed by our pets.

"Accidental ingestion of rich foods and bones are common on July 4th," Barr said. "Be careful about what your pets have access to and make sure to keep a close eye on them to avoid sickness."

Another good rule of thumb is if you are going to be in a place where unvaccinated dogs might be, such as soccer fields, baseball fields, or parks; you want to make sure your dogs are up-to-date on their vaccinations. It isn't smart to take an unvaccinated puppy, or a dog that hasn't completed the whole vaccine series, to a place with potential transmittable diseases or threats.

Keeping these tips in mind, you and your whole family can enjoy Fido's presence while celebrating this fun-filled holiday.

These are just a couple animals looking for a good home. Animal Control of West Florida serves Washington, Holmes, and surrounding counties and has many more in need of adoption. For more information on how to adopt or volunteer, visit the shelter, located at 686 Highway 90 in Chipley, or call 638-2082. Hours of operation are from 9 a.m. to noon, Monday through Saturday.

LEFT: Buddy is a 1-year-old neutered male lab/bully cross, about 75 pounds. He loves people, is good with other dogs and good on a leash. Buddy greets you with an adorable smile while his whole big body wiggles. He's playful but gentle and knows basic commands. He recently helped save another dog's life by being a blood donor! Buddy is a big puppy at heart and will be a loyal and loving companion when he finds a new family to call his own. RIGHT: Sicily is a young adult female white with black short haired cat who arrived at the shelter with a 6-week-old kitten. Both mama and baby are very friendly and enjoy being petted and cuddled. These beautiful girls would make purr-fect pets and are hoping to find a fur-ever home to share their love with.
