County continues budget review

By CECILIA SPEARS

CHIPLEY — The Washington County Board of County Commissioners held a budget workshop Wed., Aug. 13, weighing the options of keeping the current millage rate of 8.9195, or choosing a roll back rate of 9.25, which would allow commissioners to keep revenues in proportion to the 3% drop in assessed property values over the last year.

The 8.9195 rate has an ad valorem total of $7,255,861. Revenues and expenditures would each equal $11,334,914, but the rate would exclude contingency, funds to cover a salary study, and potential raises. and includes a $75,000 deficit; the roll back rate 9.25 has an ad valorem of $7,526,344, total revenue and expenditure of $11,563,929 and includes the contingency of $229,000, funds to cover salary study and potential raises.

The board considered taking $10,000 from the Supervisor of Elections to put towards building a voting precinct/community center for Precinct 6, which would be added to the existing $71,000 from the Florida Department of Transportation when the board approved to designate an area for a new precinct.

Wausau PO to hear fate next week

WAUSAU — Almost a month after being stood up by the United States Postal Service to discuss possible changes to hours and service at the Wausau Post Office, residents could finally make their voices heard on the issue when USPS representative Todd Smith conducted an informational meeting Thursday. And there was no shortage of opinions expressed.

"The post office is a business," said local resident T.D. Smith. "Anytime you cut your service, you cut your revenue, too. My business depends on what kind of service I give."

Current weekday retail hours for the office are Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. The proposed new weekday hours are 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday with the office closed from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. for lunch.

There are no proposed changes for the office's Saturday hours, which are 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

The possible changes are part of the POST

Plan after Wausau post-office customers received a survey form from the USPS asking for input into the process, which is to make adjustments to reflect community's current use of postal services. 249 surveys were issued, with 124 being returned. The USPS re-

Wausau water rates might rise

WAUSAU — Town of Wausau residents could see a water rate increase - but only a slight one at less than a half cent per gallon for the average customer.

Bob Mearns of the Florida Rural Water Association made the recommendation to town council members when they met in regular session Thursday.

FRWA was asked to review the town's water rates to determine whether they were meeting expenses and creating reserves for emergencies and future capital needs. The water rate study found the answer was no, according to Mearns.

"The study recommended increasing the water rates to cover both debt and operating expenses," said Mearns, who reported the water system's revenue is $130,162 a year, and the expenses are $145,137, leaving a nearly $15,000 deficit.

Town to improve maintenance

CARYVILLE — Caryville Town Council faced several complaints during the Aug. 12 meeting about areas of the town that were in need of mowing.

Supervisor of Caryville Flea Market Paron Beeco said that the town "lost $45" due to the uncut grass, explaining that a health provider wanted to rent space for a free health screening event but canceled because the "grass was too high."

"There you lost not only $45 but free food, free medical screenings and the television station was coming to give us a plug for Flea Across Florida," said Beeco. "Not only are the vendors complaining but so are the customers. Flea Across Florida is 30 days away and we would like the entire flea market grounds mowed by Thursday, Sept. 11 as people

Walton County found in contempt of court

By TOM McLAUGHLIN

tmdaughlin@nwfdailynews.com

SANDESTIN — Walton County has until Aug. 20 to accept or deny developer Tom Becnel's application for a building permit at Osprey Pointe subdivision in Sandestin.

Circuit Court Judge Kelvin Wells declared the county in contempt of court for failing to process the application, as he had ordered May 9.

He said the county:

- Dragged its feet in providing legible

copies of the application to the Florida Department of Economic Activity for review.

• Refused to process the Osprey Pointe building permit application "in accordance with the procedures and policies" set at the May 9 hearing.

"The chief building official, Billy Bearden, testified that he was instructed not to process the application," Wells said in his Aug. 8 ruling.

County Attorney Mark Davis confirmed that he ordered Bearden not to process the Osprey Pointe application.

Davis said the decision was made following a June 6 Walton County Commission finding that Sandestin was not in compliance with its Development of Regional Impact order.

That finding put all future development at Sandestin in limbo.

Dana Matthews, Becnel's attorney, said the county has fought against the development of the 64-unit condominium complex since its inception.

He said county officials could have accepted Sandestin Investments' application for a development order as early as February.

Bearden testified at the contempt hearing that he could have completed the application review in two weeks — one if pressed, Matthews said.

Davis said the county will do as Wells has directed, but continues to struggle under the non-compliance ruling.

"We will finish the processing of the permit, meet the deadline and decide whether or not we can issue the permit based on the board's non-compliance finding," he said.

Davis said the county also will "attack" the contempt order.

Tourism marketing is creating more visitors, jobs

OCALA (AP) — Increased marketing of Florida tourism helped bring 94.3 million visitors to Florida in 2013 — 2.8 million more than in 2012 — and that increase created some 76,000 jobs statewide, according to a report issued this month by Florida TaxWatch.

The report indicates the state is moving toward its goal of welcoming 100 million visitors in 2015, which TaxWatch says would create more than 121,000 jobs across Florida, almost half in non-tourism related industries.

Florida TaxWatch is based in Tallahassee and bills itself as an "independent, nonpartisan, nonprofit taxpayer research institute and government watchdog."

The organization's report cited increased funding in recent years of Visit Florida, the state's public/private tourism marketing corporation, noting its budget increased from $24.7 million in fiscal year 2006-07 to $74 million for 2014-15.

"Policymakers commitment to investing in Florida's tourism industry through increased marketing capacity has made a significant difference for Florida's economy, and as more visitors come to the Sunshine State, the positive impacts will continue to be seen by all," the report concludes.

According to Florida TaxWatch, visitor increases in 2013 created more than 38,000 jobs in direct tourism employment categories — such as accommodation and food services and arts, entertainment and recreation — as well as more than 37,000 jobs in indirect employment categories, including retail trade, construction and transportation.

The organization used job data from the Bureau of Labor Statistics to create its estimates.

The BLS put average annual employment in Marion County in the leisure and hospitality category in 2013 at 10,520 jobs, with total annual wages of almost $174 million.

Laura Byrnes, communications manager for CareerSource Citrus Levy Marion, the regional workforce development agency, said that number generally squares with the state Department of Economic Opportunity's estimate of 11,000 leisure and hospitality jobs in Marion County in 2013.

Byrnes offered the following comparison of June nonfarm payroll numbers in leisure and hospitality for the Ocala/Marion metropolitan statistical from 2010 to 2014:

- 2010: 10,100 jobs
- 2011: 10,300 jobs (increase of 200 or 2.9 percent);
- 2012: 10,700 (increase of 400 or 3.9 percent)
- 2013: 11,000 (increase of 300 or 2.8 percent)
- 2014: 10,900 (decrease of 100 or .9 percent)

When asked if activity in the sector appeared unusual, Byrnes replied by e-mail "nothing jumps out as extraordinary."

Loretta Shaffer, executive director of the Ocala/Marion County Visitors & Convention Bureau, said her agency is conducting a "countywide and season-specific research study."

Shaffer said the county's 2 percent tourism tax collections showed a "healthy increase" last year, though she did not provide a specific number.

WAUSAU YARD OF THE MONTH

Wausau Town Councilman Roger Dale Hagan honored Cindy Hubbard on behalf of the Wausau Garden Club for having Wausau's Yard of the Month for August. Hubbard received the honor during the regular meeting of the Wausau Town Council Thursday.

Commissioner Lynn Gothard requested that they show her the money when addressing the Washington County Sheriff's Office budget, stating there was a lot of funds that weren't being used.

The answer was that a lot of the funds in various budgets were had restricted usage by law and agreed to go into further detail at the next workshop.

Board also discussed that there were additional funds accumulated through budgeting more than what was spent toward debt each year due to fluctuating interest rates from year to year.

Board is considering negotiating a fixed interest rate and using the additional funds to go toward the principle cost.

The next scheduled workshop is for 9 a.m. on Aug. 20; the scheduled meeting to adopt the tentative budget is at 5:05 p.m. on Sept. 4; and the scheduled meeting for the final adoption of the budget will be at 5:05 p.m. on Sept. 15.

ports 118 customers — about 95 percent — indicated they would like to see a realignment of hours, but some say that's simply because the other options, such as requiring customers to use post offices in Chipley, Vernon or Bonifay — were less appealing.

"No one wants to see a change at our post office," said Mickey

Ferguson. "We mail about 100 letters a month, and we're not going to be pleased with any changes."

USPS representative Todd Smith acknowledged that he was aware many customers drive to Wausau from Bay County and other locations to use the post office because of Postmaster Laurel Harvey's reputation for "superior customer service."

"It's apparent no one cares more about her customers and her community than Ms. Harvey," he said.

Commissioner Lynn Gothard was on hand for the meeting and advised Smith she didn't believe the 600 residents of Sunny Hills were considered in the USPS' demographic for the Wausau office.

"The post office issue isn't just about Wausau," said Gothard. "It's also about the outlying areas which is what I serve. There are several people these changes would put at a disadvantage and add strain to."

Gothard also gave Smith a petition bearing more than 150 signatures of people expressing their wishes to leave the Wausau Post Office hours and services unchanged and requested he present the petition with the rest of the office's file.

The final decision on the Wausau Post Office is expected to be made next week and posted at the office for public viewing.

"The water system doesn't appear to be accruing any reserves for future needs, such as capital improvements and contingencies," said Mearns.

The current average water bill using 6,500 gallons per month is $42.22. The proposed rate would increase that amount to $49.77

The increase is estimated to generate about $179,184 in revenue, up significantly from the current revenue to the town of $151,992.

"You have a responsibility to your customers," Mearns told the council. "They may not like a rate increase. Who does? But it's up to you to keep the system functioning, and you can't do that if you're borrowing from the general fund."

Mearns also recommended the council re-evaluate the rates annually.

Council members agreed to take the rate study under advisement but took no further action.

will start setting up that day for Friday's event."

Chair Henry Chambers asked that the town give Gene Forehand "another chance," explaining that on top of his regular duties as Caryville Volunteer Fire Department Chief, meter reader, dump truck operator and general maintenance, he was also taking on additional duties for maintaining State Road 90 under the new agreement between the Florida Department of Transportation and the town.

The agreement is that the town maintain the appearance of State Road 90 in the Caryville limits and the town would be paid.

After discussion the council agreed to provide Forehand with a duty roster to help maintain time and resources. Council also agreed to readdress the issue in three months to see if there are improvements made.

The next meeting of the Caryville Town Council will be at 6 p.m. on Sept. 9.

First Presbyterian presents Art Camp

From staff reports

CHIPLEY — Winkie VanLandingham and the First Presbyterian Church in Chipley recently presented an art camp for children attending Vacation Bible School.

"The idea of Art Day Camp VBS originated in 2003," VanLandingham said. "I was still teaching at KMS at the time and saw the need to do something for the few children who attended the church, plus those in the community whose lives might benefit."

VanLandingham came up with the idea of doing Fine Art Seminars, which the church held for several years. Limited to 20 students, the seminar consisted of drawing, painting, drama, music and theatre.

After several years, Florida Presbytery offered a grant, and the program changed to include a Bible-based curriculum.

"Fortunately, I had enough experience writing curriculum that it could be done in house without extra expense," the retired teacher said.

"Changing it to Art Day Camp VBS proved quite successful, and we felt comfortable with the change," VanLandingham said. "It is still limited to 20 students, the reason being that we are first of all, a small church family, and secondly, a small group is a more comfortable learning situation for the children involved. In addition to drawing and painting, we do crafts that are original designs, especially for a particular lesson. We do not use commercial crafts."

Fat cat? Portly pooch?

Workouts, watching waistlines important for pets, too

By TONY SIMMONS
 747-5080 | @PCTonyS
 tsimmons@pcnh.com

Whether your Pomeranian appears pleasantly plump or your Siamese eats anything it pleases, it's time to weigh in on your pet's health.

When pets are overweight, the condition is often associated with other serious diseases like diabetes and arthritis, and can severely affect the overall quality of a pet's life, experts say. It can also potentially become costly to manage.

Each year, the Portland, Ore.-based Banfield Pet Hospital aggregates treatment information from veterinarians across the nation to compile its annual "State of Pet Health Report." The report shows chronic conditions such as obesity in pets have increased at an alarming rate since 2007. Overweight conditions and obesity have increased by 37 percent in dogs and 90 percent in cats, affecting approximately 1 in 5 pets, the report shows.

As with many things, there is no one-size-fits-all answer, according to information supplied by the Humane Society of Bay County. Each pet is an individual, and when making decisions about what type of diet to feed or what kinds of exercise to employ, owners need to consider the pet's age, size, breed and any existing medical problems, as well as the nutrient content of the diet.

It is important for pet owners to understand proper pet nutrition, as the right food can significantly enhance a pet's development and wellness. Nutritional needs vary depending on size, breed, lifestyle, age and health status, according to Banfield, so it is important for owners to take their pets to the veterinarian for routine exams, especially before beginning a weight loss or exercise program.

"Just like with humans, restricting a pet's caloric intake and increasing exercise are the keys to successful weight loss, but it's not as simple as just reducing serving size," said Dr. Ari Zabell, director of client advocate support for Banfield Pet Hospital. "Because pets have specific nutritional needs, it's important to partner with your veterinarian to develop a comprehensive weight management plan."

Looks can be deceiving and monitoring a pet's weight by sight can be misleading, Zabell indicated. Regular checkups and nutritional counseling with a veterinarian will help ensure pets remain at an ideal weight and body condition.

According to Banfield's State of Pet Health Report, to keep pets at a healthy weight, treats should be limited to less than 10 percent of a pet's daily caloric requirements. Treats do not have to be food — consider rewarding good behavior with something a pet enjoys, such as play time or going for a long walk, which is beneficial for the pet and the owner.

Last year, Banfield Pet Hospital joined with celebrity trainer Dolvett Quince from TV's "The Biggest Loser" to develop an exercise program that owners and their pets can do together to become active, healthy and fit.

"As a personal trainer, I am constantly motivating people to lose weight. However, my passion for fitness and nutrition doesn't stop at the gym," said Quince, quoted in a news release. "Leading a healthy lifestyle is just as important for our pets as it is for humans."

Quince's workout plan goes beyond just walking and running

with pets. Here are a couple of his suggested exercises (for more information, visit Banfield.com):

- Plank Fetch: Pet owners assume a plank position, resting forearms on the ground, keeping their bodies in a straight line with their weight on their toes and forearms. While in this position, pet owners can hold out a dog toy or ball to the side, and play a game of fetch. When the dog brings the toy back, the pet owner can release from the plank position.

- Shuttle Runs: After picking three line markers that dogs and owners will run toward, pet owners should stand to one side and run these with the dog and create a fun "chase game." Participants can start by running to the first point, and run back to start; next run to the halfway mark and back to start; and last, run to the farthest point and back. This can be repeated for a total of three to five sets. As both the dog and owner build stamina, additional sets may be added.

NUTRITIONAL NEEDS

As cats and dogs grow older, their nutritional needs usually change, as pointed out in information supplied by the Humane Society. Proper nutrition can add years to a pet's life and slow down the progression of many diseases. Monitoring your pet's appetite, food consumption, eating habits, weight and body condition will be helpful when you and your veterinarian determine their specific nutritional requirements and diet.

As dogs age, their metabolism changes and their need for calories decreases. The same is not true for cats, whose energy needs stay basically the same throughout adulthood. Obesity is one of the main health problems of middle age (6-8 years of age) for cats; it occurs less often by the age of 10, and greatly decreases after that.

Some studies have shown that senior cats do not digest (and thus absorb) fat as well as younger cats. This means that older cats may need to consume fat that is more digestible to get the same amount of energy. The protein needs of cats also are higher than the protein needs of many other animals. Inadequate amounts of protein in the diet can impair immune function.

Some older animals eat less, such as those with oral disease, and may not receive their daily needs of vitamins and minerals, the Humane Society said. Some evidence in other species suggest that antioxidants such as vitamins A, E, and C might play a role in protecting against some normal aging processes. Consult with your veterinarian to determine which supplements may be beneficial for your pet.

For finicky eaters, you might want to try feeding smaller amounts of food more often. Just as you suddenly might lose your appetite when an overflowing plate of food you could not possibly eat in its entirety is placed in front of you, the same might be true of your pet. By offering only a small amount of food multiple times during the day, your pet actually might increase its total daily intake.

Reading the label on pet food containers is one of the best ways to determine the quality of the food. In addition to providing information about the amount and quality of protein and fat, the label also will provide the ingredients and general feeding guidelines.

With a little knowledge of the ingredients, you can choose a food that is highly digestible and free of unwanted products. Be careful of one tactic used by manufacturers to disguise less desirable ingredients: Breaking an ingredient into several different smaller ingredients and listing them individually, which allows the manufacturer to lower these undesirable ingredients farther down the ingredient list.

Every animal has a different level of activity, metabolism and ambient environmental temperature, according to the Humane Society. Breed, age and other environmental stresses also all affect daily requirements. If your pet is thin or hungry, feed more often and in greater quantity. If your pet is overweight or obese, feed less.

"Generally, we do not recommend the semi-moist types of food, because they tend to be quite high in salt and sugar," the Humane Society guidelines state. "Cats and dogs do not need this much salt and sugar in their diet. In addition, sticky, sugary foods can contribute to dental disease. ... In general, we recommend a premium-quality dry or canned food."

Until recently, dry food was usually recommended most often for cats, also. However, recent research in feline nutrition is causing some re-thinking in this area. The typical dry cat food is quite high in carbohydrates (often 45 percent or more) and there is some indication that this might pre-dispose certain cats to becoming overweight and possibly developing diabetes as they get older.

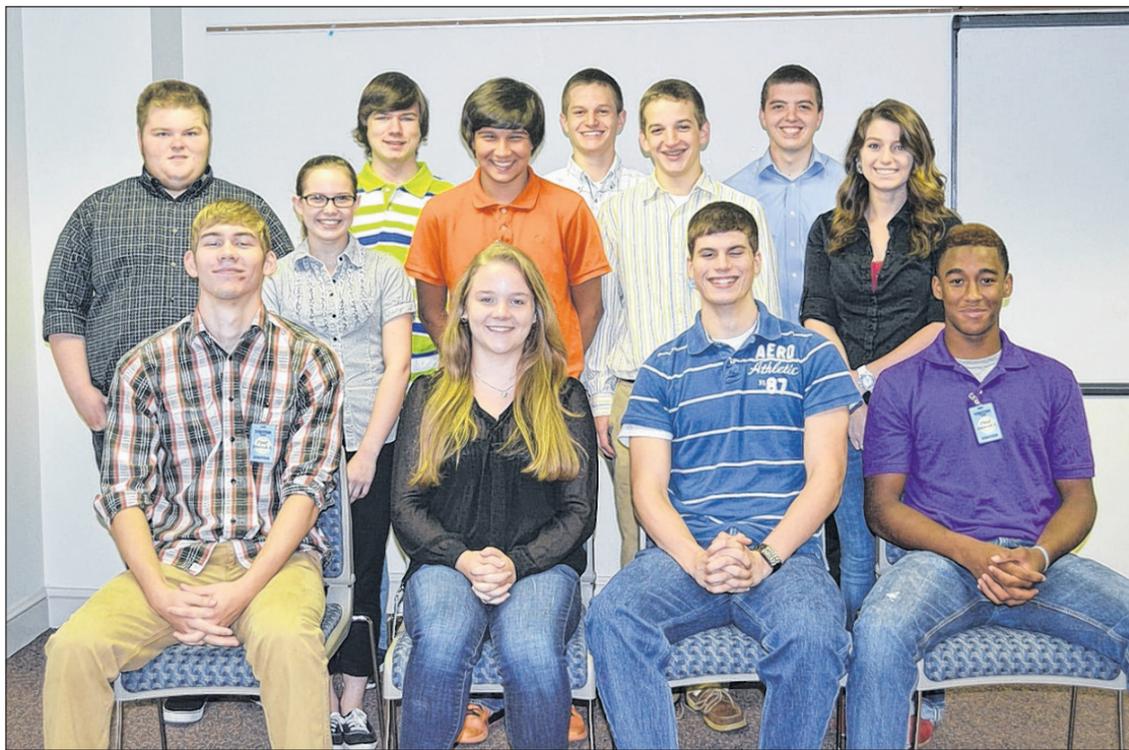

Field site, workplace experiences actively engage STEM students

Special to The News

Through the Panhandle Area Educational Consortium's FloridaLearns STEM Scholars Project STEM Talent Development Program, talented and gifted high school juniors and seniors from small and rural districts across Florida had the opportunity to take part in locally available field site and workplace experiences this summer. These experiences, made possible through partnerships with leaders in STEM (Science, Technology Engineering, and Math), such as industries, local businesses, agencies, the military and higher education faculty, gave students an opportunity to actively engage in doing "real" STEM work.

These STEM Talent Development opportunities are invaluable because they help students understand the relevance of the math and science courses they are taking, as well as give them valuable insight into potential career choices and the post-secondary preparation they require. Students from Calhoun, Holmes, Jackson, and Washington Counties took part in an eight day experience, led by a team of professional engineers, at the Florida Department of Transportation District Three Office in Chipley. There, they learned about the many facets of civil engineering involved in ensuring our state's transportation system is efficient and safe and about other careers represented throughout the department. Teacher leaders for the experience were Susan Saunders from Chipley High School, Kevin Shull from Vernon High School, Sara Waldorff from Altha School, Jackie Watts from Sneads High School, and Rachel Edminson from Holmes County High School.

2014 Honor Book Awards

Meet Holly Black

Holly Black won a 2014 Newbery Honor Book award for "Doll Bones." She has written several books for kids and young adults. She is best known for the books in "The Spiderwick Chronicles" series, which she co-wrote with Tony DiTerlizzi.

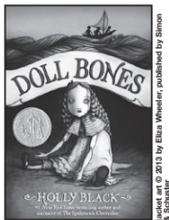

Holly Black, 42, her husband, Theodor Black, and their 15-month-old son, Sebastian, live in New England. Theodor is an illustrator, web designer and stay-at-home dad. They have three cats.

A writing life

Holly said that in eighth grade, she was lucky to be in a special class with a great teacher who required that each student write a novel.

Her middle-school novel, a 60-page book with vampires and dragons, "taught me I could finish something. I could make something," Holly said.

After a pause in her writing during college, she told herself, "If I'm going to do this, I have to be serious about it." It took her about six years to write her first published book, "Tithe: A Modern Faerie Tale."

In "Doll Bones," three kids use dolls and action figures to help them create a story-game that goes on for years. But as they grow up, things change. All of a sudden, their world becomes scary and weird.

World of writing

While working on her first published novel, Holly worked for a medical journal and wrote for a role-playing gaming magazine. She met Tony DiTerlizzi when she interviewed him for that magazine. At the time, he was an artist for the role-playing game "Dungeons and Dragons."

Tony had an idea for a guide to fantastic creatures. Holly and Tony began writing about that world, creating "The Spiderwick Chronicles."

Holly writes in her home, but does much of her work away from home. She often travels to new places, holding writing retreats with friends.

Some favorites

Colors: "Black, like my name. It's easy to wear black clothes because everything matches. But now my hair is aqua, and I'm super into aqua."

Children's books: "The Chronicles of Prydain" by Lloyd Alexander

Advice to kids

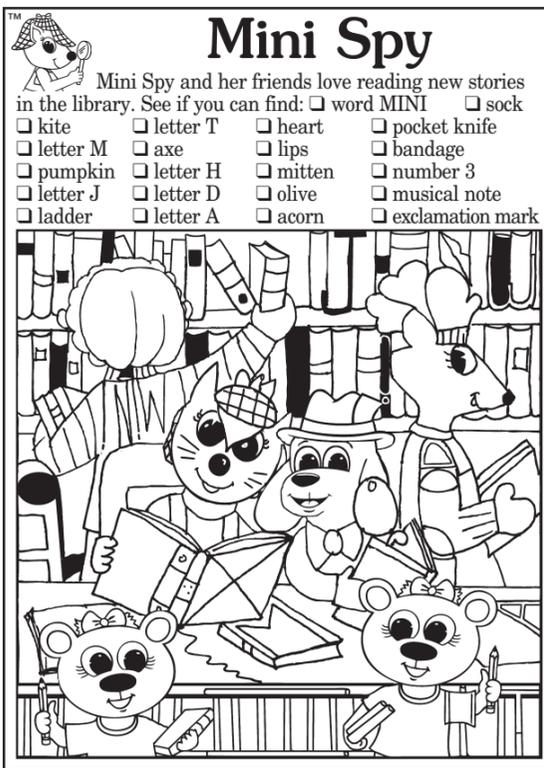

"When I was a kid, I did want to be a writer but didn't know anyone who did anything creative professionally. It seemed really unlikely."

"People always said to me, 'You have to believe in yourself if you want to do something.' I knew I didn't really believe in myself and thought, 'I guess I can't do this then.'"

"But it's OK if you don't believe it will work. You can do it anyway. Keep going forward, keep at it. Just keep going like you do believe."

"The Field Guide" is the first book in "The Spiderwick Chronicles." Three kids discover a guide to fairies, which pulls them into a world full of threatening danger and mystery.

Rookie Cookie's Recipe Mild Mango Salsa

You'll need:

- 1 ripe mango, diced (about 1 1/2 cups)
- 1/3 cup of cilantro, chopped
- 1/3 cup red bell pepper, chopped
- 1/4 cup purple onion, chopped (optional)
- 1 tablespoon fresh lime juice
- Pinch of salt

What to do:

1. Combine first four ingredients in medium-size bowl.
2. Stir in lime juice and pinch of salt.
3. Chill for 30 minutes to combine flavors.
4. Serve with chips, or with chicken, pork or fish as a side dish.

You will need an adult's help with this recipe.

Meet Raffi Cavoukian

Raffi Cavoukian, known simply as Raffi, is a singer, writer and composer famous for his music for kids, including the environmental song "Baby Beluga." His newest album is "Love Bug."

Raffi has founded The Centre for Child Honouring, which works to help adults honor kids as a first step to promoting peace. He also co-founded the Red Hood Project, a movement to make social media safe for kids to use.

Raffi, 66, was born in Cairo, Egypt, and moved with his family to Canada when he was 10.

Children's Book Awards

Each year, the Children's Book Council sponsors a survey to find out kids' favorite books. Children across the country vote for their favorite books, authors and illustrators.

Here are the kids' top choices for 2014.

Favorite author

Kids voted for Rush Limbaugh as Author of the Year for "Rush Revere and the Brave Pilgrims: Time-Travel Adventures With Exceptional Americans." Rush is an adult-level talk show host and has written one other book for kids.

Rush Limbaugh

In "Rush Revere and the Brave Pilgrims," a substitute history teacher goes back in time with a talking horse to meet the Pilgrims coming over on the Mayflower in 1620.

Favorite illustrator

Kids voted for Grace Lee as Illustrator of the Year for "Sofia the First: The Floating Palace" by Catherine Hapka. Grace has worked in movie animation and as a kids' book illustrator.

Grace Lee

In "The Floating Palace," Sofia helps save a mermaid's kingdom and bring Sofia's people together with the mermaid's people.

The Children's Choice Book

Award winners are: Kindergarten to Second Grade Book of the Year: "The Day the Crayons Quit" by Drew Daywalt

In "The Day the Crayons Quit," the crayons refuse to keep coloring.

Third Grade to Fourth Grade Book of the Year: "Bugs in My Hair!" by David Shannon

"Bugs in My Hair!" is a funny tale about head lice.

Fifth Grade to Sixth Grade Book of the Year: "National Geographic Kids: Myths Busted"

"Myths Busted" tells the truth about many modern beliefs. For example, alligators do not live in New York sewers.

Teen Book of the Year: "Allegiant" by Veronica Roth

In "Allegiant," the conclusion to the "Divergent" trilogy, Tris and her friends discover the secrets behind society's factions, or groups.

2014 Book Award Winners

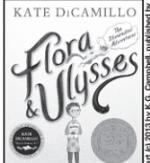

Read books and journey through exciting new worlds! To begin your exploration, check out some of this year's award-winning books.

The John Newbery Medal is awarded each year to the author of the most outstanding children's book. This year there were also four Honor Book winners, including "Doll Bones" by Holly Black.

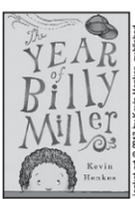

Kate DiCamillo won the 2014 Newbery Medal for "Flora & Ulysses: The Illuminated Adventures" and the 2004 Newbery Medal for "The Tale of Despereaux."

In "Flora & Ulysses: The Illuminated Adventures," Flora rescues a squirrel after it is sucked into a vacuum cleaner. But the squirrel comes out with superpowers.

More Newbery Honor Books

Kevin Henkes has written and illustrated about 50 books for kids. He received the 2005 Caldecott Medal for "Kitten's First Full Moon."

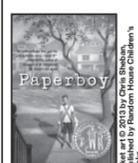

In "The Year of Billy Miller," Billy is anxious about starting second grade with a new teacher and a know-it-all desk partner. His teacher, father, sister and mother each tell parts of Billy's story.

Amy Timberlake has written two other books for kids and teaches writing to college students.

In "One Came Home," 13-year-old Georgie does not believe her sister is dead. She and her sister's former boyfriend set out to track down the truth about her sister.

Vince Vawter overcame his own stutter and became a newspaper publisher. This is his first novel.

In "Paperboy," an 11-year-old boy is great at baseball, but shy because of his stutter. When he takes over a friend's paper route, he finds new friends and a scary enemy.

The Caldecott Medal is presented each year to the illustrator of the most distinguished picture book for children. This year there were also three Honor Book winners.

Brian Floca won the 2014 Caldecott Medal for "Locomotive." He illustrates his own and other authors' books.

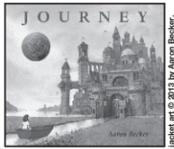

"Locomotive" is a view of the machinery, crew and passengers of the locomotive in 1869, when it was changing history.

Caldecott Honor Books

Aaron Becker has worked in film design. His second book, "Quest," will be out this month.

In "Journey," a lonely girl creates a new world with her red crayon.

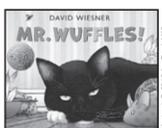

Molly Idle has worked in movie animation and written and illustrated several books.

In "Flora and the Flamingo," a girl and her flamingo friend explore their friendship through dance.

David Wiesner has won three Caldecott Medals, for "Tuesday," "The Three Pigs" and "Flotsam."

In "Mr. Wuffles!" a cat causes trouble for tiny aliens until they become allies of insects in the house.

Look through your newspaper for powerful stories that would make entertaining books.

Next week, The Mini Page is about the importance of sleep, especially as school starts.

Mighty Funny's Mini Jokes

All the following jokes have something in common. Can you guess the common theme or category?

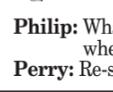

Paula: What does a baby write with?

Percy: A playpen!

Pamela: What is big enough to hold a pig, but small enough to hold in your hand?

Polly: A pen!

Philip: What did the professor have to do when he lost his pen again?

Perry: Re-search!

PC port expects record-setting 2015

COUNTY BENEFITS

Washington County has an economic interest in the Port of Panama as a subsidiary of the port. The county has two Foreign-Trade Zones (FTZ) which are classified as inland ports.

Specific advantages of the FTZ designation include:

- Because duties are paid for goods when they enter a U.S. Customs territory, a company can manage when duties are paid. In some cases, duties may be completely eliminated.
- Merchandise can be exported out of the U.S. duty free.
- Duties for merchandise that is rendered as obsolete, damaged, defected, scrapped or wasted will be reduced or eliminated.

PANAMA CITY — After a year of declining tonnage and revenues, the Panama City Port Authority is budgeting record-breaking numbers for the year ahead.

The Port Authority approved a budget for the upcoming 2014-2015 fiscal year at a meeting Thursday, outlining more than $11.5 million in capital improvements and record revenue expectations after the facility failed to meet its $13.8 million revenue prospect this year.

The port's tonnage dropped from 1.7 million tons during the 2013 fiscal year to 1.6 million tons this year. For 2015, the port expects to handle 1.8 million tons and $13.9 million in revenue.

"We really are budgeting for a record year in tonnage and revenues," said Port Director Wayne Stubbs, citing several soft revenue areas in the past year, including copper imports and container trade.

While the port's revenues are projected at about $1 million less than expected, operating expenses were considerably less during the 2013-2014 budget year, keeping reserve funding in the $4 million to $5 million "comfort zone."

"For years, we worked to maintain a $2 million reserve, but we've gotten comfortable in that $4 million to $5 million range," Stubbs said.

That zone could be impacted, however, if the port's lofty list of capital improvement projects is completed next year.

Some of the biggest proposed projects for the upcoming year will occur at the port's new Intermodal Distribution Center on U.S. 231, including a $4 million warehouse expansion and $1.8 million for a bulk transfer facility.

Although Stubbs said he does not expect every project on the list to be completed by next year, if they are, the cash balance would drop to about $3.8 million.

The capital improvement budget totals $11.5 million, but projects also can be supplemented with grants from various programs, including the Florida Department of Transportation's Strategic Intermodal System Program, the Florida Seaport Transportation and Economic Development program and the state's Intermodal Logistics Center program.

Homemade cookies give bag lunch special taste

It's almost that time of year again.

The kids soon will be headed out the door to school with their lunch bags and boxes.

Linda Murchison
Let's Eat

Why not include something special like homemade cookies?

These are super simple to make and delicious.

Snickerdoodle Bars

1 stick unsalted butter, softened
 ½ cup brown sugar
 ¼ cup sugar
 ¼ teaspoon baking soda
 ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
 ¼ teaspoon salt
 1 egg
 ½ teaspoon vanilla extract
 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
 ½ teaspoon cinnamon
 ½ teaspoon sugar

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Lightly grease an 8-inch square baking pan, set aside.

Cream butter and sugars until light and fluffy; add soda, cinnamon and salt, blending well.

Add eggs and vanilla, blending just until incorporated.

Add flour to the butter mixture and blend just until well mixed.

Pour the batter into the prepared pan and smooth the top.

Bake about 25 minutes or until lightly browned.

Place pan on a cooling rack.

Mix ½ teaspoon cinnamon and ½ teaspoon sugar together and sprinkle over the top.

Makes 16 bars.

This next cookie recipe also is delicious, but takes a little more time to make.

White Chocolate Almond Cookies

1 cup plus 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
 ½ teaspoon baking soda
 ¼ teaspoon salt
 1 stick unsalted butter, softened
 ¾ cup sugar
 1 egg
 ¾ teaspoon almond extract
 4-ounces white chocolate, coarsely chopped
 ½ cup slivered almonds

Preheat oven to 375 degrees.

Combine flour, baking soda and salt, set aside.

Beat butter and sugar until light and fluffy.

Add eggs and extract, beat until well blended.

Slowly beat flour mixture into butter mixture.

Stir in the white chocolate and almonds.

Drop by tablespoons about one inch apart onto an ungreased baking sheet.

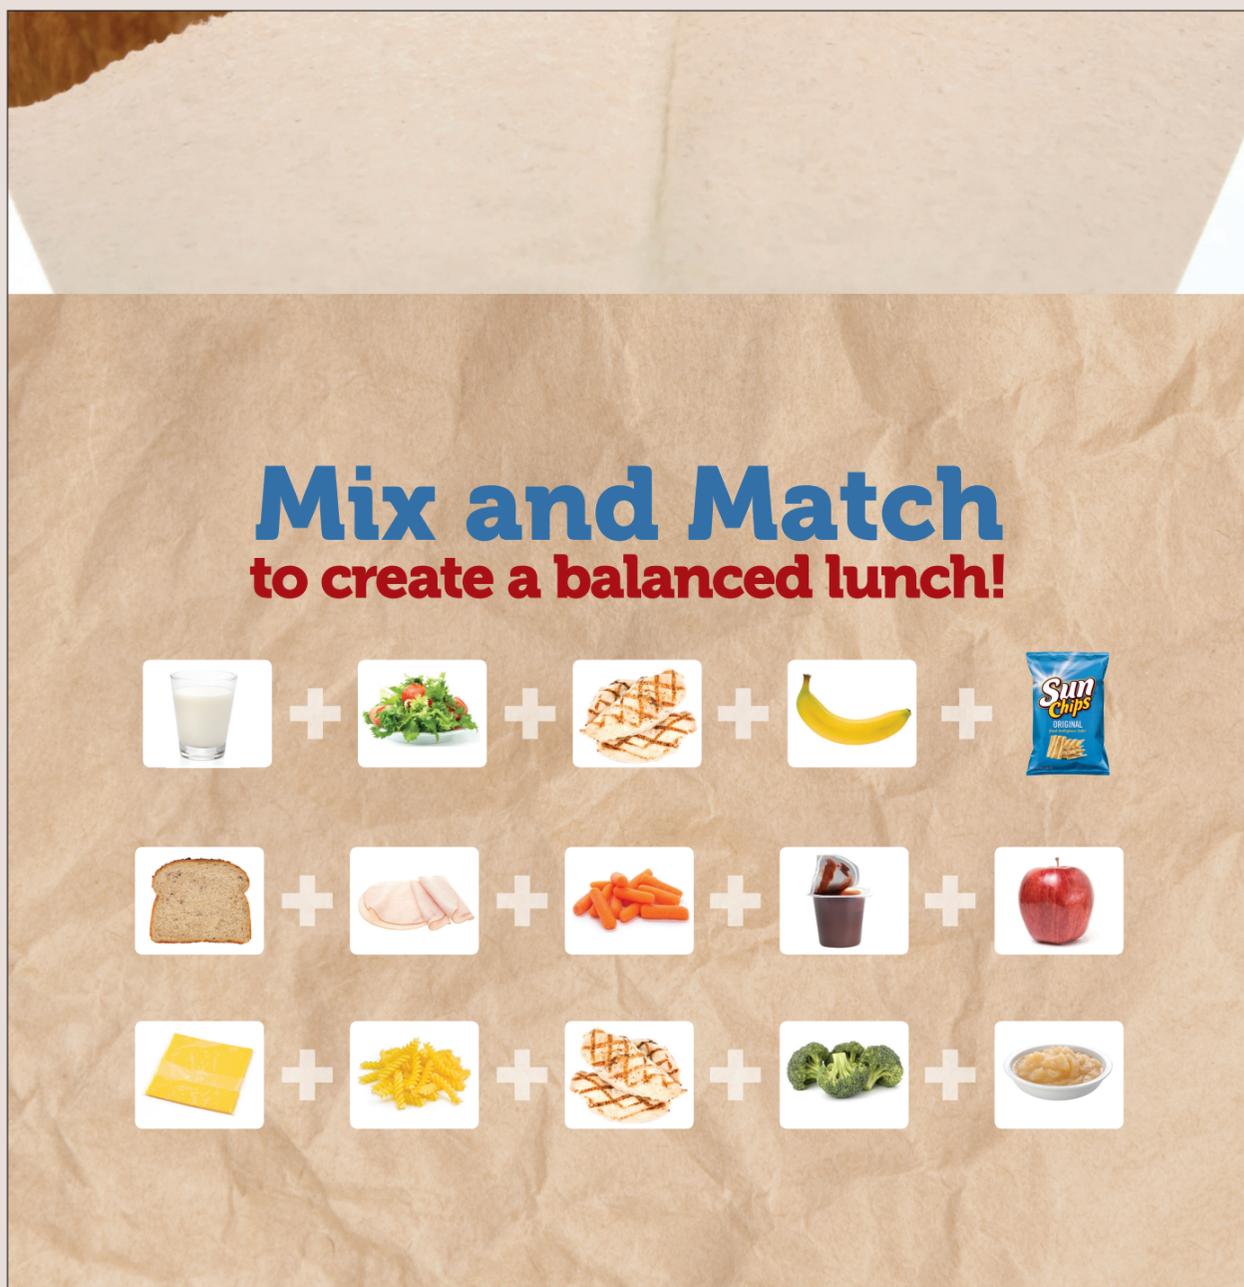

Bake 10 minutes or until cookies are lightly browned.

Cool on wire racks.

Makes about 36 cookies.

Tips for packing healthier school lunches

Special to The News

Ricki McWilliams, Family & Consumer Sciences Agent at the Walton County Extension Office, shared these tips with us for making lunchtime interesting and nutritious for your school-age children:

It's just about time to start getting backpacks ready, lunches packed and kids off to school.

Back-to-school time is the perfect time to start packing a healthier lunchbox.

Packing your child's lunch may contribute to the difficulties of getting out the door in the morning but it does not have to. You know your child better than anyone, their likes and dislikes, so go with what you know.

- The first step to packing a lunch is to determine how much food is enough for your child.

You will know if you do not pack enough when they come home and tell you they ate all their food and were still hungry.

Likewise, if you pack too much, you will know by seeing uneaten or half-eaten items in their lunch box at the end of the day.

Start by packing between three and six items. They will have enough variety in their lunch box to sustain them throughout the school day without (too much!) waste. MyPlate.gov is a great resource for building a balanced meal (protein, vegetable, fruit, grain, dairy).

- Secondly, pack as much as you can the night before. This will decrease morning stress.

Cut up fruits and vegetables and store in an airtight container in the refrigerator. Cut up fresh ingredients for sandwiches if required.

Make up cracker or dried fruit packs. Wrap up home baked treat and place in lunch box.

- Last, keep in mind this food safety tip: Include gel ice packs to keep refrigerated food cold. Refrigerated food shouldn't be above 40 degrees for more than four hours due to increased bacterial growth causing possible illness.

SAMPLE MEALS

Special to the Daily News

Ricki McWilliams offered these examples of lunchbox meals:

1. Whole wheat crackers, cheese cubes, deli meat, strawberries/blueberries, snap peas (with their favorite dipping sauce).
2. Mini quiche, carrots, celery with peanut butter and raisins, whole fruit (pear, orange, banana).
3. Leftover meatloaf slice or chicken breast, yogurt parfait (include fruit and granola to add to top), whole wheat crackers, bell pepper strips, and a small oatmeal cookie.
4. Good old-fashioned peanut butter and honey cut into a shape with a cookie cutter, two small Cutie oranges, frozen grapes and milk.

Want something to dip kid-friendly veggies in besides ranch? Try low-fat Greek yogurt, hummus or this cottage cheese veggie dip:
 ½ cup low-fat cottage cheese
 ¼ teaspoon lemon pepper
 Enjoy with baby carrots, snow/snap peas, bell pepper strips.

QUESTIONS & ATTITUDE

Compelling questions ... and maybe a few actual answers

Getty Images/RAINIER EHRHARDT

All of Tony's past storms now seem rather insignificant.

What happens to Stewart now?

Since there's no template for this type of racing tragedy, there's no way of knowing how this situation evolves. We do know there's absolutely nothing anyone can do to make it better. Over his career, Tony has always managed to plant himself in the middle of storms, often triggering them himself. But nothing from his history compares to this. Not even close. It's hard to imagine his life, much less his career, ever being the same.

Do we feel sorry for him?

Don't know. Nothing will allow us to hit the rewind button, put Kevin Ward Jr. back in his sprint car and make it all go away. The investigation will play out and maybe we'll learn if there was anything Tony could've done to avoid it. Meanwhile, folks will continue to come to their own conclusions.

Watkins Glen's future?

Watching Sunday's battle for the win, some will suggest a road-course race — the Glen, particularly — should be in the Chase. But with the Chase now broken down into three three-race segments before the Homestead finale, a road race would make up one-third of a playoff segment and therefore give too much weight to a form of racing that's not part of NASCAR's DNA.

HOT TOPICS: 3 ISSUES GENERATING A BUZZ

AJ may have been a little rusty on the victory celebration, but hey, it had been a while.

AJ Allmendinger's journey to racing redemption is complete after his carpe diem-style victory Sunday at Watkins Glen International.

Just over two years ago, Allmendinger's racing career derailed after he was suspended by NASCAR for a substance abuse policy infraction.

Worse yet, it happened on the day of the 2012 Coke Zero 400 at Daytona International Speedway, which left Team Penske scrambling for a replacement driver for its No. 22 entry.

Roger Penske released Allmendinger several days later, and the young driver watched all that he worked for crumble under his feet.

After serving his NASCAR timeout, Allmendinger picked up a ride here and there to finish out the '12 season, and then made 18 starts for two different teams in '13.

Penske threw him some work, too, including a six-race IndyCar Series deal that included the Indianapolis 500 (he finished seventh), and two NASCAR Nationwide road-course starts. Allmendinger won both of those events for "The Captain."

By the end of 2013, Allmendinger had a deal with JTG-Daugherty Racing, also known as the "little team that could."

Associated Press/R BRENT SMITH

It was another sack of bad luck for Harvick.

JTG-Daugherty ended its go-it-alone mentality and aligned with Richard Childress Racing this season.

All the stars aligned Sunday. Allmendinger won his first Sprint Cup race on his 213th attempt, got the No. 47 Chevrolet qualified for the Chase and will be part of the Sprint All-Star Race next year in Charlotte.

Daytona, July 7, 2012 seems like a long time ago after Allmendinger's first visit to Sprint Cup Victory Lane.

"Over the course of what happened, it made me become a better person and just really try to understand what life is all about, because unfortunately, the sport will take over your life," Allmendinger said, adding it was character-building to be "able to go through all that and come out the other side."

EXTRA BAGGAGE ON BOARD

Kevin Harvick had to make an unscheduled pit stop at the start of Sunday's race when he found a canvas bag under the seat of his car. "(NASCAR) weighs the car with the actual driver weight in there," Harvick said. "The bag just got left in there, and I spent a couple of laps trying to get it positioned off to the left."

Instead, it ended up under his feet. "I had to come in and get the bag out," Harvick said. Harvick finished seventh after the excess baggage was removed.

ANOTHER MAJOR CRASH

Michael McDowell doesn't crash small. He does it on a grand scale. His No. 95 Ford was spun like a top before it smacked and tore down a fence Sunday.

McDowell completely destroyed a car at Texas during qualifying in 2008.

"I thank the good Lord above," he said Sunday. "That was a bad wreck. It seems when I do it, they are usually fairly big."

FEUD OF THE WEEK

MARCOS AMBROSE AJ ALLMENDINGER

Marcos Ambrose vs. AJ Allmendinger: Let's call this a "friendly feud" because the two scratched and clawed each other for the win at The Glen.
Godwin Kelly gives his take: "Both knew winning Sunday's race would be their best (only?) chance to make the Chase and raced accordingly."

Questions we just had to ask — ourselves

Getty Images/CHRIS GRAYTHEN

Raise your hand if you had AJ in your office pool.

Is AJ the biggest Chase surprise?

GODSPEAK: I can't call this an upset, but it was nice seeing a fresh face in Victory Lane.

KEN'S CALL: I'd rank him a bit more surprising than Aric Almirola, but the biggest shocks are those who'll miss the Chase.

Should Watkins Glen be a Chase date?

GODSPEAK: Yes. It is one of the most entertaining races each season and should get the spotlight.

KEN'S CALL: In the new Chase format, probably not.

WATKINS GLEN REWIND

Drivers concerned about safety after violent crashes at The Glen

There were a couple of unusually hard crashes during Sunday's race at Watkins Glen International, prompting several Sprint Cup drivers to discuss the safety of the 2.45-mile road course.

Ryan Newman, after a Lap 57 crash

"We lost John Melvin here in the last couple of weeks, and he did a lot of innovations for our sport. It's really sad that they haven't adapted any of them here at this race track. The SAFER Barrier doesn't exist here, there are no concrete walls. It's just a very antiquated race track. The safety is not at all up to NASCAR's standards, and it's a shame that we have to have accidents like that to prove it."

Jeff Gordon

"That rubber wall with the tires just sucks the cars in, spins them around and spits them out. I definitely think there are areas on the track where it's good, like down in Turn 1, but I think there are other parts of the track where there could be something better than that."

Race winner AJ Allmendinger

"It's a tough scenario. This is the second or third time we've seen a big wreck. I think we need to do something to help make it a little bit safer over there. I agree with Ryan (Newman) a little bit. We're going too fast now and a one- or two-inch mistake like we saw right there can cause a big crash. NASCAR does a great job to keep us safe. I'm sure we'll look at something there and keep trying to make us safer and safer."

Dale Earnhardt Jr.

"I'd love to have some concrete walls and SAFER Barriers, but it's a lot of concrete that would have to be put up here. We've been running through guardrails for 50 years, so I don't think they've got them perfected.

"They do the best they can and we're going way faster here than we used to go. When the car bounces back out on the race track, it's hard to avoid and you're going to get slung into the guardrail and hit that thing harder than you would expect, and I don't know what else they can do. It would be too expensive to put walls around it and SAFER Barriers and all that stuff.

"You trust in what they're doing, and I'm glad nobody is hurt."

'Back 2 School Fair' equips hundreds for school

CHIPLEY — Northwest Florida Community Hospital presented its annual Back 2 School Fair on Thursday, with local children and parents taking advantage of the one-stop resource for supplies, immunizations, information and health screenings from NFCH and participating vendors.

The free event began at 9 a.m., but the crowd began to gather by 7 a.m. "I'm so grateful the hospital and others here volunteer to do this for the community," parent Candice Jones said. "I'm a single mom, and the extra help with school supplies, as well as being able to get my daughter's vision checked and her shots all in one place has really helped reduce my stress." Preliminary reports estimate more than 1,000 children were served by the fair.

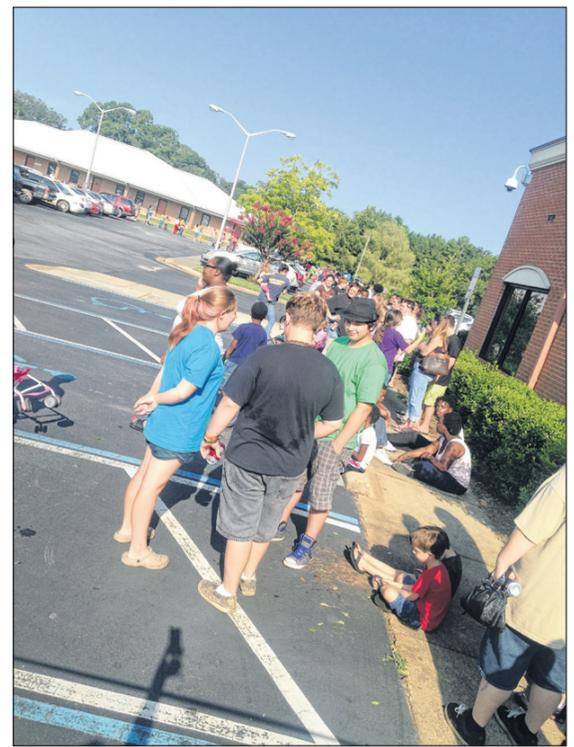

Members of First Baptist Church of Chipley stayed busy giving out their popular supplies.

Black bear curriculum teaches children about wildlife

From staff reports

Giving schoolchildren a chance to learn all about Florida black bears is a great way to teach them about wildlife, while sharpening their skills in reading, math, science and problem solving.

For that reason, the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission has updated its Florida Black Bear Curriculum, and put it online for the first time at BlackBearInfo.com.

The revised Florida Black Bear Curriculum is free, easy for teachers to use, and meets the new Florida Standards for educational curricula.

The curriculum offers 10 lessons on topics, such as "The Black Bear Necessities" and "Oh Where, Oh Where is the Florida Black Bear?," and includes hands-on activities such as mapping and role-playing. There are also videos for students to watch such as the FWC's "Living with Florida Black Bears."

"The Florida Black Bear Curriculum takes children's curiosity about black bears into the classroom, where learning about black bears can improve kids' skills in basics like reading, math, science and problem solving," said Sarah Barrett with the FWC's black bear management program. "Whenever FWC staff talks to kids about Florida black bears, the response is overwhelmingly positive because kids are eager to learn and ask great questions about bears."

With more encounters today between people and bears in Florida than in the past, it is increasingly important for children to learn about the state's bear population.

The Florida Black Bear Curriculum was designed for children in grades three through eight and has been in use since 1999, when it was created as a joint project of the FWC and Defenders of Wildlife.

Florida teachers who register on the Florida Black Bear Curriculum website can gain access to additional information, particularly in regard to how the material fits the Florida Standards.

But anyone is welcome to go to BlackBearInfo.com and take advantage of the educational material there.

Bowhunting field day for Internet course in Bay County

From staff reports

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission will sponsor a National Bowhunter Education Foundation bowhunting field day in Bay County Saturday, Aug. 23 for serious archers who have taken the online portion of the course.

Instruction is from 8 a.m. to noon at the FWC's

Northwest Regional Office, 3911 Highway 2321 in Panama City.

The purpose of this class is to provide advanced instruction to bowhunters on such topics as the fundamentals of bowhunting, safety, hunting techniques, stalking, trailing and sportsmanship. Even though it is not required in Florida, completion of a bowhunting class is required in at least 14 other states before a person can purchase a bowhunting license.

Participants must have completed the online NBEF course and bring the official Field Day Qualifying Certificate with them.

Participants also should dress for hunting and bring their own archery equipment, including bows and arrows (field points or target points), pen or pencil and a packed lunch.

People interested in attending this course can register online and obtain information about future bowhunting classes at MyFWC.com/HunterSafety or by calling Hunter Safety Coordinator Will Burnett at the FWC's regional office in Panama City at 265-3676.

Free hunter safety Internet-completion course offered in Calhoun County

From staff reports

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission will offer a free hunter safety Internet-completion course in Calhoun County.

The course takes place at the Blountstown Police Department, 16908 Pear St. in Blountstown. Instruction is from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 23.

Students must complete the Internet course before coming to class and bring a copy of the final report from the online portion of the course. The final report form does not have to be notarized.

An adult must accompany children under the age of 16 at all times. Students should bring a pencil and paper with them to take notes.

Anyone born on or after

June 1, 1975, must pass an approved hunter safety course and have a hunting license to hunt alone. The FWC course satisfies hunter-safety training requirements for all other states and Canadian provinces.

People interested in attending this course can register online and obtain information about future hunter safety classes at MyFWC.com/HunterSafety or by calling Hunter Safety Coordinator Will Burnett at the FWC's regional office in Panama City at 265-3676.
