CHIPLEY — Jim Roberson, president of JRA Architects recently gave local residents a sneak peek at the firm's plans for the new Washington County Courthouse. The proposed structure will incorporate many of the current building's historical features, such as its iconic columns, as well as the existing cornice over the entryway.

FDOT's 511 service to ease Labor Day traffic

Staff Report

TALLAHASSEE — Travelers can expect heavy traffic this Labor Day weekend with 34.7 million travelers projected to hit the road. This is an estimated 1.3 percent increase from Labor Day traffic last year, according to AAA. The Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT) encourages those traveling this holiday weekend to use the 511 Traveler Information System to stay up to date on crashes, congestion, construction and more on all of Florida's interstates and toll roads.

There are four convenient ways for motorists to receive traffic updates: Call 511 toll free for updates in English and Spanish. Visit FL511.com for interactive roadway maps showing traffic congestion and crashes, travel times and traffic camera views. Download the free Florida 511 mobile app available on Google Play and iTunes.

Washington County emergency responders: Can E-911 find you?

By CAROL KENT
638-0212 | @WCN_HCT
ckent@chipleypaper.com

WASHINGTON COUNTY — Can Washington County emergency responders easily locate you in the event of an emergency? If your residential address isn't clearly displayed or contains a letter behind its numerics, the answer may be no.

E-911 Coordinator Clint Erickson says not being able to find residences is the number one cause of delay for responders.

"One major problem is our system only reads numeric addresses," Erickson said. "God forbid we have to send an ambulance to your home and not be able to find you due to something that simple. Every second counts in an emergency situation and can mean the difference between life and death."

Many roads have multiple homes bearing the same numerical address, followed by a letter designation. While these addresses are often posted on the mailbox for the postal service to find, responders say residents take a gamble by not clearly displaying their numbers on their homes, too.

"We just have no way of knowing which home needs help. Our system will only pick up numerics. We encourage residents to call our office to confirm what address we have on file, so that we may assign them a numeric-only address," Erickson said.

A county ordinance has in place — but seemingly largely ignored - requiring 3 inch numbers identifying the address to be placed at the driveway and also on the home if its located more than 75 ft. away from the county road.

But poorly addressed homes aren't the only problem the department is facing.

Roads have been re-named throughout the years with little or no communication with the E-911 department.

"Roads have just been arbitrarily added and sometimes re-named," Sheriff Bobby Haddock said. "I'm not sure how it's happened, but over the years, it's been done without going through a specific process, and as a result, there are roads out there not on record with our E-911 system. Our ability to respond is only as good as the information we have."

Erickson and his staff are currently re-mapping the county's E-911 system - a process Sheriff Haddock says can take up to two years and involves staff driving all Washington County's estimated 1,900 miles of roadways.

"You have to keep in mind that we're not driving these roads at 55 mph," said Erickson. "We're driving at a snail's pace, confirming addresses and sometimes going back to re-check information."

Washington County was just awarded a $200,000 grant through the Department of Management Services to upgrade the department's decade-old technology, which Erickson says will be a base to build upon as technology develops.

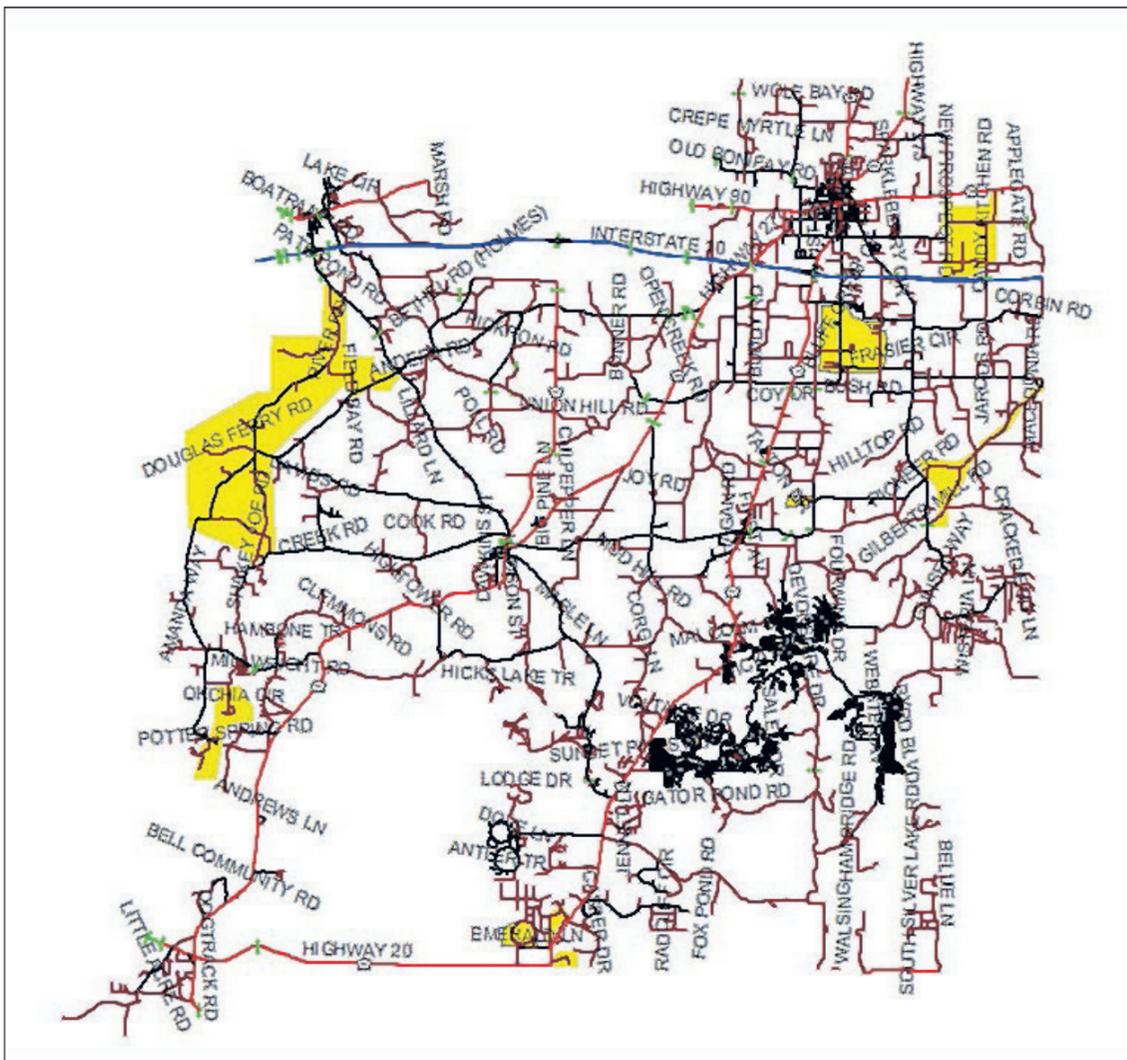

"Soon, the public will be able to send text messages to E-911, and when that happens, we will be ready," he said.

The new system is I.P based and will serve as a foundation for those future enhancements.

To be assigned a numeric only address, or to confirm what the department has in their system for a specific residence, contact the E-911 office at 638-6325.

Center, and Country Oaks Baptist Church. Adkinson was the top choice for voters at Vernon City Hall, Shepherds gate Church, and Ebro City Hall

"I am overwhelmed and so thankful for the support," Bell said. "I welcome any support in November and want to also thank Peggy Gay and Keith Adkinson for their professionalism and a clean primary race."

Bell will now face local school teacher Melissa Whitson and retired Florida Department of Transportation employee Steve Whittington in the November General Election. Whitson and Whittington are both running without party affiliation. The winner of that race will take office effective nearly immediately to fill the unexpired term of former clerk, Linda Cook, and will have to run again when the term is up in 2016.

Republican Joel Pate lost his bid for re-election to the Board of Commissioners District 2 seat to challenger Charles Kent who garnered 64.23 percent to Pate's 34.18 percent.

Kent was the top choice for voters at all but two of the county's 16 precincts, with Pate carrying polls at the Caryville Town Hall and Ebro City Hall.

"I'd like to thank everyone for their support and hope they will continue to support me in November," Kent said.

Kent will now face Democrat Leigh Cope in the General Election.

In state and regional races, Brad Drake defeated opponent Jan Hooks in the Republican primary for the District 5 State Representative seat, and voters chose Judge Jim Fensom over challengers Shalene Grover and Gerard Virga for the 14th Judicial Circuit seat.

This was the first time Fensom had been challenged since being appointed to the judgeship by Gov. Jeb Bush in 2005.

"We had over 350 people to help with the campaign - volunteers, contributors and so forth - in all six counties," Fensom said. "The first thing I want to do is thank them for their support."

The 14th Judicial Circuit includes Bay, Calhoun, Gulf, Holmes, Jackson, and Washington counties.

Former Governor Charlie Crist also won the Democratic nomination and will challenge Republican Governor Rick Scott in November. Voters also favored George Sheldon over Perry Thurston in the Democratic primary for Attorney General. Sheldon will face Republican incumbent Pam Bondi in November.

Washington Rehabilitation and Nursing Center Receives National Accreditation for Quality Assurance and Performance Improvement Efforts

Washington Rehabilitation and Nursing Center has received accreditation for 2014 as a skilled nursing facility actively performing Quality Assurance and Performance Improvement activities.

This accreditation signifies that Washington Rehabilitation and Nursing Center (WRNC) is committed to continuously improving the care that they provide based on feedback from residents and families," says Dr. Andrew Kramer, Providigm CEO, and international expert on measuring quality of elder care. "We congratulate WRNC on their commitment to improve the quality of life and care given to our elders."

"We are extremely proud of the work our care team has accomplished to achieve this accreditation," said Bret Brown, CEO and Administrator at Washington Rehabilitation and Nursing Center, We take quality seriously. We strive to give our residents the quality of life and level of dignity they deserve."

Conservation-based oyster harvest changes

Special to The News

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission has implemented conservation measures in an effort to help the Apalachicola Bay oyster population recover from the effects of low river flow. Apalachicola Bay oyster populations have significantly declined in recent years because of the lack of sufficient fresh water flows in the Apalachicola River. This new suite of conservation measures enhances those the FWC put into place for the 2013 winter and 2014 summer seasons. The FWC will continue to assess the health of the bay to make sure this critical natural resource is protected.

These changes will be in effect from Monday, Sept. 1, through May 31, 2015, in Apalachicola Bay, including all waters of Indian Lagoon in Gulf County.

Changes effective Monday include:

- Closing commercial and recreational harvest of oysters in the area commonly known as East Hole;
- Lowering the daily recreational harvest per person, vessel and possession limit all to 5 gallons of oysters in the shell (previously two bags per day; a bag is equivalent to 60 pounds or two 5-gallon buckets);

- Closing commercial and recreational oyster harvest on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays.

- Closing two other shellfish harvesting areas (Area 1601, also known as Porters Bar and Platform Bar, and Area 1611, which includes Bayou Flats and Pickalene Bar), if the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services (FDACS) determines the area known as Cat Point (Area 1642) should be closed to harvest due to water-quality concerns.

FDACS regularly monitors shellfish harvesting areas for water-quality standards and closes and reopens these areas based on whether standards are met to safely harvest shellfish for consumption.

All other harvest regulations remain in effect.

FWC, partners see success in coral reef-building

Special to The News

Researchers at the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission observed transplanted nursery-raised staghorn coral (Acropora cervicornis) spawning for the first time this month at Tropical Rocks, just over 4 miles offshore of Marathon. These corals were supplied by the Coral Restoration Foundation and Mote Marine Lab nurseries and outplanted by the FWC. The project was made possible by the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act via The Nature Conservancy.

The FWC, in collaboration with the Conservancy and other American Recovery and Reinvestment Act partners, began construction on the Middle Keys coral nursery in late 2009 but suffered setbacks because of a coldwater kill and, later, a warm-water bleaching event. The goal of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act project was to expand the current nurseries, develop new nurseries and outplant high numbers of nursery-grown corals throughout the Florida reef tract and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

"This is the first time that we have seen staghorn coral spawning at the reef tract that included corals grown as part of our nursery program," said Caitlin Lustic, coral recovery coordinator for the Conservancy in Florida. "This spawning event shows that outplanted corals have the ability to reproduce just like a natural colony and furthers our goal of creating breeding colonies of coral that can repopulate reefs on their own."

The FWC and the Conservancy are reseeded coral reefs in efforts to aid recovery of wild staghorn populations. Staghorn coral contributes significantly to reef growth, island formation and coastal protection while providing essential habitat for a number of important reef fish.

"Together we boosted threatened staghorn populations and realized the ultimate goal of the project: spawning," said Kerry Maxwell, coral researcher with the FWC. "Even though the project backed by the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act is complete, I anticipate we will all continue to collaborate toward the common goal of coral reef restoration."

Altrusa donates to Chipola Foundation

Special to The News

Altrusa International of Marianna recently donated $2,500 to the Chipola College Foundation for the club's annual scholarship awards. Altrusa sponsors an annual award to a female student from Jackson County who is returning to Chipola in an effort to secure advancements in her chosen career. The scholarship can be applied toward tuition, books and items required for coursework.

The club also awards a renewable scholarship to a returning woman who is majoring in a literacy-related field such as English education or elementary education. These scholarships are made possible through the fundraising projects of the Altrusa Club that include an annual golf tournament and biannual yard sales.

Washington County teachers tour WHTC

Special to The News

Washington County Schools K-12 teachers were surprised and impressed while touring WHTC programs during teacher pre-planning days. Teachers from each school toured WHTC's 40 programs and discovered a uniquely different approach to instruction for specialized careers in a global workforce as well as state-of-the-art technology. "This is not the 'Vo-Tech' of years passed," a Vernon Middle School teacher said. "I'm totally amazed by the variety of high tech programs and advanced equipment and technology."

Teachers visited with each instructor who provided brief explanations about their programs, curriculums, skills training, equipment and the requirements for certification. They explained the Technical Center develops and maintains programs and courses according to industry needs; identifying the skills needed for today's job market by working closely with local employers and industry professionals.

Over the years, WHTC has eliminated some programs that are no longer in demand, but have added others with recent advancements in high technology areas such: cybersecurity, networking, digital media/multi-media, and computer aided drafting. WHTC still offers high demand career programs in health care (practical nursing, nursing assistants, EMT, medical coding and pharmacy technology), building trades and manufacturing (welding, electrician, and carpentry), transportation careers (automotive service, automotive collision repair, heavy equipment mechanic and heavy equipment operator) and finally those service industries of law enforcement, corrections, culinary foods, and cosmetology. The K-12 teachers were particularly interested to know that most programs have articulation agreements that allow students to transfer industry certifications to college credits for A.S., A.A. and four year degree programs.

Technical programs vary widely in program concentration, length of programs, cost, and other characteristics, but they have one thing in common: an emphasis on training for a specific career. From welding to information technology, career and technical programs can arm students with real-world knowledge and skills in a variety of fields. Rather than taking general education courses in a variety of core subjects, at career and technical colleges, you can pursue career-specific coursework right away. This can be a very good fit for students with specific career goals who are looking for hands-on training, job placement, and a quick start to a great career. And those who wish to continue their education have transferable credits and the ability to work part-time making a great salary.

In the midst of WHTC considering a "rebranding" to a technical college, the feedback from the K-12 teachers reinforced the idea. Once they realized the high technology and skills training required to complete the programs, they said it made perfect sense to rename the school a "technical college."

Technical programs are primarily focused on a curriculum that will allow students to complete their training in one year," said Martha Compton, director of the Technical Center. "If you have a clear-cut career goal and would like to get into the job market quickly, you probably want to consider a technical program. Traditional colleges provide a more broad academic background and are suitable for students who are interested in being exposed to a breadth of subjects and can afford to attend college full-time for four years."

"We are excited that the school board, administrators, guidance counselors, support staff and teachers took time from their very busy pre-planning schedules to visit with us. It opened a lot of doors for potential high school and adult students now that the K-12 system is more aware of the opportunities. They will be a strong voice of support for our training programs," Compton said. "We look forward to serving our district and communities."

JCLC summer camp

Special to The News

Ten cadets left for JCLC Camp Rudder at Eglin Air Force Base, Sunday, July 13. Upon arrival, they were in-processed and had the opening ceremony. Each of the cadets was put into one of four platoons. These were the platoons the cadets had to stay with throughout the week. In the following days, the platoons did several training events. These events included the rock wall, rappelling, land navigation, water survival training, leaders reactionary course, and the dangers of lightning. Each cadet had an opportunity to sit and relax for about 30-45 minutes during meal times. Friday, July 18, the cadets participated in a graduation ceremony. The 10 cadets came back home with more knowledge and rank than they left with and will be placed in leadership positions this school year.

WRNC receives national accreditation

Special to The News

Washington Rehabilitation and Nursing Center has received accreditation for 2014 as a skilled nursing facility actively performing quality assurance and performance improvement activities.

This accreditation signifies that Washington Rehabilitation and Nursing Center (WRNC) is committed to continuously improving the care that they provide based on feedback from residents and families," said Dr. Andrew Kramer, Providigm CEO and international expert on measuring quality of elder care. "We congratulate WRNC on their commitment to improve the quality of life and care given to our elders."

"We are extremely proud of the work our care team has accomplished to achieve this accreditation," said Bret Brown, CEO and administrator at Washington Rehabilitation and Nursing Center. "We take quality seriously. We strive to give our residents the quality of life and level of dignity they deserve."

Blackwater fisheries center banner year benefits anglers, youth

Special to The News

Fisheries staff at the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission's (FWC) Blackwater Fisheries Research and Development Center had a banner year producing fish for stocking area lakes and rivers.

Nearly 1 million large-mouth bass, striped bass, hybrid striped bass, black crappie, channel catfish and several other species were produced at the Blackwater facility and stocked in area waters in the last 12 months. In previous years they also produced redbreast sunfish.

"We know from previous releases these fish will be in these systems for years and provide lots of excitement to anglers. Plus, all these fish are great eating," said Dave Yeager, FWC fisheries biologist at Blackwater.

He said the hatchery not only produces lots of fingerlings, more than 20 million since 1990 according to records, but the facility is also used by a number of area schools to teach children about ecology and fishing techniques.

While native Gulf race striped bass were once found in all Panhandle rivers, the species virtually disappeared from the Blackwater and Yellow rivers for reasons that remain unclear. Blackwater staff began stocking the two rivers annually with small stripers in 1987, and today exists and anglers are now catching stripers in excess of 20 pounds from both rivers.

For years, fisheries staff have recognized that survival of largemouth bass fry in Lake Talquin, near Tallahassee, is often poor. Yeager said hatchery staff tagged and released thousands of fingerling bass in Talquin from 2000-2003. Surveys show that anywhere from 17-40 percent of the tagged fish survived and still contribute to the fishery.

Anglers are also now routinely catching redbreast sunfish in the Blackwater and Yellow Rivers and hybrid striped bass in the Escambia River as a result of stocking programs.

BCF kicks off new semester

Special to The News

Excitement for the new semester swept across the campus as new students joined by returning students arrived in Graceville to attend The Baptist College of Florida. As students successfully moved into their dorm rooms, they were invited to attend a game night activity in the BCF Wellness Center where they could fellowship with one another and begin developing friendships. Basketball, volleyball and an assortment of board games were just a few of the icebreaker activities as students prepared for orientation and the first day of class.

After the formal portion of orientation was over Thursday afternoon, students were able to unwind and greet representatives from local churches that gathered to welcome them. Gift bags filled with various goodies and dorm room necessities, delicious ice-cream, and informational fliers on worship times were provided to the students with the purpose of helping them find a place of worship and service in the area. Several churches had students submit their names for drawings held during the festivities which enabled students to leave the Wellness Center with a myriad of treasures. New Business Leadership Major Hollis Prange stated that she thoroughly enjoyed the church meet and greet activity because she was able to gain tremendous knowledge about the surrounding community.

New students as well as returning students were invited to participate in all of the welcome events that included the Amazing Race (around the campus) and the BCF Pool Hop. For the Amazing Race event, students came together for friendly competition against other members of the student body. According to Baptist College Ministries Director Jonah Powers, the goal of the event was to help familiarize students with the campus as well as to get to know each other a little better. In the same aspect, the BCF Pool Hop brought many students together by visiting several professors' homes to take a dive into their swimming pools. Not only was this event a great opportunity to become acquainted with their dorm/classmates, but it was also an opportunity to meet several of the BCF Professors.

The Napier (one of the new student dorms) girls Tori Hebron, Hannah VanLandingham and Christy Lema all agreed that The Baptist College of Florida has a wonderful Christian atmosphere where everyone can be an example to each other. They also enjoyed the chapel services and have enjoyed bonding with their fellow dorm mates as the semester has begun.

"It feels a lot like home. It just feels like I am where I am supposed to be," stated Tori Hebron, English Secondary Education Major from Thomasville, Ga.

Students began their courses for the fall semester Aug. 18. To learn more about The Baptist College of Florida and the 23 degrees offered on campus, online and at distance sites, call 263-3261 ext. 460 or visit www.baptistcollege.edu.

Baptist College of Florida to host blood drive

Joey Logano, Brad Keselowski and, we're guessing, a laptop tuned to a website that contains the secret to racing momentum ("Go fast, turn left, repeat").

The most impressive team of the 2014 NASCAR Sprint Cup Series may be Team Penske, which has six wins and both of its drivers squarely qualified for the Chase playoffs.

Penske "twins" Joey Logano and Brad Keselowski flexed their motor muscles Saturday night at Bristol Motor Speedway by sweeping the top two positions. Logano matched Keselowski's win total of three, and now some think the Cup Series championship could be decided between these young drivers. Keselowski won the 2012 title and liked the taste of champagne (and his sponsor's beer, of course).

"We're entering the Chase strong in a lot of different ways, and I think we're both legitimate threats to win the championship this year, and I'm proud of that," Keselowski said.

"Hopefully we can keep that momentum rolling in weeks to come. As far as Bristol and the rest of it is concerned, running second is certainly something to be proud of."

Keselowski has been in the championship fight before and won. This will be new territory for Logano, who has excelled since leaving Joe Gibbs Racing. "I think he (Logano) has a tremendous shot at winning the championship, and I don't underestimate him," Keselowski said. "I don't want to speak for my competition and what they think; I'll let them speak for themselves."

Logano said don't overestimate or underestimate his No. 22 Ford team, which seems to be hitting its stride at just the right time.

"We're gonna go out there and do the best we can do," he said. "Do what we've been doing. (Crew chief) Todd Gordon and myself have been working very good together and communicating a lot with our race car. We've got a really good shot."

CAGE MATCH

It looks like Matt Kenseth will get into the Chase on points since he is 41 points ahead of 14th-place Ryan Newman. Greg Biffle is 16th in points, but if a new winner emerges at Atlanta this Sunday, that would bump him out of the Chase standings. If that happened, then Clint Bowyer, Newman and Biffle — who are separated by just 16 points — would be slugging it out at Richmond for the final Chase position, either by going for the win or gaining points on the drivers in this scramble.

DREAM WEEKEND

Ford had a dream weekend at Bristol. Ford machines swept all three NASCAR races — Trucks, Nationwide, Cup. Ford hasn't won all three national series at the same track on a race weekend since 2006, when Mark Martin and Matt Kenseth did it for Roush Fenway Racing at Bristol. Ford Racing's nine Cup wins this season are the most for the manufacturer since 2008, when it enjoyed 11 victories. And just for the record, Logano's win was Ford's 627th all-time Cup Series victory and the 35th by Team Penske with Ford.

Winner: Kasey Kahne
Rest of the top five: Ryan Newman, Greg Biffle, Dale Earnhardt Jr., Matt Kenseth
Dark horse: Martin Truex Jr.

Disappointment: Joey Logano
First one out: Kurt Busch
Don't be surprised if: We see a 13th Cup Series driver get a win at this fast, slippery track.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

DENNY HAMLIN KEVIN HARVICK

Denny Hamlin vs. Kevin Harvick: Hamlin was leading the race at Bristol when Harvick came along and wrecked him out of the race.

Godwin Kelly gives his take: "Both these drivers are strong-willed. This will either escalate or go away very quickly. There's no in between."

SPEED FREAKS

A couple questions we had to ask — ourselves

AP/WAIDE PAYNE

Who ordered express delivery of a HANS?

What rating do you give Hamlin's toss of his HANS?

GODSPEAK: It didn't look like he did a complete windup, so I would have ruled it a balk.

KEN'S CALL: No more than a 5, but a HANS is awkward to throw; should've chucked the steering wheel.

Is Darlington regaining its Labor Day date a good thing?

GODSPEAK: It is fantastic. Certain races belong on certain holidays, and this is the right fit for the Southern 500.

KEN'S CALL: Yes, for the romantics, but remember how hot it gets there? Remember to pack the Gold Bond.

BRISTOL REWIND

Austin Dillon talks about gaining experience and looks ahead

Austin Dillon is not only battling Kyle Larson for Sprint Cup Rookie of the Year, but he has only two more chances to make the Chase playoffs. The driver of the No. 3 Chevy is 19th in points and 40 points behind 16th-place Greg Biffle. Dillon has to win at Atlanta or Richmond, or gain serious ground in points, to make the Chase.

Dillon talked to the media before Saturday's Cup Series race at Bristol.

Are you feeling a sense of panic to win a race? How are you going to approach the last two races before Richmond?

"If you look at us right now I would probably say you are right as far as what the points look like. For me being a rookie, I don't have much to lose. There has never been a rookie make the Chase.

"Atlanta ... I'm really looking forward to. I don't feel a huge sense of urgency. I hope we can put our Dow Chevrolet in the Chase."

What are a few of the things you would do differently if you had that chance?

"It's such a long season. I did the same thing in Truck and Nationwide after the first year. I sat down and had to re-evaluate myself at the end of the year.

"You just have to take it to another level. There is always that level that you have to push yourself to, and you don't realize that level — at least for me — until you have experienced a full year.

"I was able to come back and win championships in the other two series after our first year. I would love to be able to do that in the Cup Series. I think it's a possibility.

"You just have to reset and set goals higher and then, also I think, as far as keeping your body mentally and physically in shape for the entire year. I feel like I'm physically in shape ... I think mentally the Cup Series is draining because of how long it is. You learn that and how to cope with it. I feel like I've figured it out, but there is a lull section of our series where you go through a lot of different tracks and you have to stay focused during that era."

"Looking back, I could probably have improved on some of those races, and now having a notebook going back for those races is just going to help. Anytime you get experience it is just better."

Following Football

Are You Ready?

Does your family have a favorite football team? As football season heats up, The Mini Page takes a close look at how this popular American sport is played. Use this issue to guide you as you watch a game.

What is football?

Football is a complex team sport played in every corner of the United States. It is played by kids and adults alike. Many people begin playing football as kids and later play in high school.

The football is an oval-shaped ball filled with air. Even though it is made of cowhide leather, a football is often referred to as a "pigskin." Footballs have a set of laces sewn in to make them easier to grip and throw.

Thousands of athletes receive scholarships* to play in college. Many U.S. colleges and universities, large and small, have football programs that represent their schools. Is there a college team near you?

*A scholarship is an amount of money given to pay for a student's education. Some scholarships cover all costs of school, while others pay for only part of them.

The 1914 Washington & Jefferson College football team played against Rutgers University at the Polo Grounds in New York City on Nov. 28, 1914. Notice their uniforms. How are they different from today's uniforms? These players might have worn helmets, but they were not required for college players until 1939.

Football's origins

The first "football" games were played in the mid-1800s by a number of colleges in the United States and Canada. These versions of the game were often similar to soccer or rugby. There was no passing, only running and tossing the ball.

In 1880, a coach and former player, Walter Camp, helped to set up many of the rules that are still a part of the sport today, including 11 men on the field, taking turns on offense, first downs and the line of scrimmage. About 25 years later, the forward pass was added to the game.

Professional football soon became popular in many larger towns and cities, but college football was popular throughout the nation.

Walter Camp played football at Yale University in Connecticut. Early players didn't use helmets or pads. Hundreds of players were killed playing the sport, and it was nearly outlawed. Camp's rules helped make it safer for players.

Rookie Cookie's Recipe

Peach Berry Smoothie

You'll need:

- 2 cups fresh peaches (with or without peel)
- 1 cup strawberries
- 8 ounces low-fat plain yogurt
- 1 cup fruit juice (any flavor)
- 1 cup ice cubes

What to do:

1. Wash and cut up fruit into chunks.
2. Place all ingredients in large blender.
3. Process until smooth and creamy.

Makes 4 servings.
You will need an adult's help with this recipe.

Meet Megan Fox

Megan Fox stars as April in the new "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles" movie. She has modeled and acted in several TV shows and movies, including two "Transformers" films and the "Holiday in the Sun" video.

Megan, 28, was born in Rockwood, Tennessee. She began taking acting and dance classes when she was 5 years old. She was in her elementary school chorus. When she was 10, she moved with her family to St. Petersburg, Florida. She has one older sister. She enjoys reading comic books and playing video games. She loves animals and has two goats, a dog and a cat.

Marcus Mariota

The name Marcus Mariota is already showing up in a lot of record books. The junior quarterback for the University of Oregon Ducks achieved many feats in his first two seasons, including twice winning first-team all-league honors from the Pacific 12 Conference.

In 2013, Marcus became the first Duck to amass 4,000 yards of total offense in a single season. His 77 career touchdowns at Oregon are tied with the school's all-time mark. In just two seasons, this mighty Duck already owns the program's record for most rushing yards by a quarterback, with 1,467. For his hard work on the field and off, Mariota's Oregon teammates voted him the team's most inspirational player.

More awards and honors likely await Mariota as his junior campaign gets underway. He is considered an early front-runner for the Heisman Trophy, college football's highest individual award.

How the Game Is Played

In football, the offense tries to put the ball in the opponent's end zone (6 points) or kick it through the goal posts (3 points). The defense tries to prevent the offense from doing so.

To move closer to the end zone, a team has four chances, or downs, to move the ball 10 yards. If the offense moves the ball at least 10 yards, it gains a new set of downs.

The line of scrimmage (SKRIH-mej) is an imaginary line where the football is placed. The offense lines up on one side, and the defense is on the other.

Hundreds of thousands of fans attend college football games each week during the season. The University of Nebraska's Memorial Stadium has been sold out for 333 straight games, dating back to 1962.

Scoring

- Touchdown — A team scores 6 points if the ball reaches the opponent's end zone.
- Extra point — After a touchdown, a ball kicked through the goal posts adds 1 point.
- 2-point conversion — After a touchdown, a team may try to move

- the ball into the end zone again for 2 extra points, instead of kicking it.
- Field goal — The offensive team may kick the ball through the goal posts for 3 points.
- Safety — If the defense tackles an opposing player in his own end zone, it is given 2 points.

Who's Who on the Field

There are three units, or groups, on each football team.

Offense: The offense tries to get the ball into the end zone for a touchdown.

Defense: The defense works to stop the other team's offense.

Special teams: These units come on the field for kicking plays: kickoffs, punts and field goal attempts.

There are always 22 players on a football field at once — 11 for each team. Each player has a specific job to do.

In a game program, players' names may be followed by abbreviations for their positions. Some abbreviations may be used for several players.

For example, OL means "offensive lineman" and DL means "defensive lineman."

By the numbers

A college football player's number may help you identify his position. Professional numbering is similar.

- 1-49: Backs (quarterback, running back, wide receiver, cornerback, safety, linebacker)
- 50-59: Centers
- 60-69: Guards
- 70-79: Tackles (offensive tackle, defensive tackle)
- 80-99: Ends (tight end, defensive end)
- 40s and 90s: Kickers and punters

Next week, The Mini Page finds out all about 3-D printing.

Offense

• Center (C, OL) — the first person to touch the football; hikes, or snaps, the ball through his legs to the quarterback; blocks defensive linemen.

• Guard (G, OL) — left and right guards block defensive linemen to protect the quarterback and create "holes" for running backs to run through.

• Tackle (OT, OL) — left and right tackles block defensive linemen; also responsible for protecting the quarterback's "blind side" — an area behind the thrower where he can't see.

• Tight end (TE) — blocks like an offensive lineman on running plays; can also catch passes.

• Wide receiver (WR) — often very fast and able to catch passes far down the field.

• Running back (RB) — takes a "hand-off" from the quarterback, or may go out for a pass.

• Quarterback (QB) — the leader of the offense; takes the snap from the center and may hand off the ball to a running back or throw a pass; may also run with the ball.

Defense

• Tackle (DT, DL) — two tackles line up to the left and right of the football; they rush the quarterback, knock down passes or try to slow down a running back.

• Ends (DE, DL) — two ends line up outside the defensive tackles; they rush the quarterback and try to force runners to the middle of the field.

• Linebacker (LB) — "inside" or "middle" linebackers are behind the linemen; "outside" linebackers move beyond the ends; they may blitz, or run, into the backfield to disrupt the offense's play; also defend short passes.

• Cornerback (CB) — two cornerbacks defend the left and right edges of the defensive formation; usually responsible for guarding the wide receivers.

• Safety (S) — one or two safeties are the last line of defense; "free" safeties guard areas down the field against long passes and running plays; "strong" safeties cover tight ends and help stop runners.

Special teams positions do special jobs

• Place kicker (PK) — kicks the ball off a tee to begin the game or after a score; also kicks an extra point after a touchdown, or a field goal for 3 points.

• Punter (P) — kicks the ball to the other team on fourth down if the offense fails to get a first down and the ball is too far away to try for a field goal.

Lady Jackets kick off volleyball season

Special to the News

Vernon's Lady Yellow Jackets began the 2014 volleyball season Tuesday night by hosting the Wawahitchka Gators in their first regular season game, which was also a district game,

"JV lost their first two sets, but we now have a better understanding of the importance of fundamentals and communication," VHS Head Volleyball Coach Heather Brinkmeier said.

Varsity, on the other hand, played best of five and came out on top with a big win for VHS.

"The first set was a little rough, but once the girls picked up the intensity and did away with all the first game nerves, they were on a roll the rest of the night," Coach Brinkmeier said. "Overall, the way the girls played was outstanding and I'm very proud of the fight they had from start to finish. We also had a huge support system with all the students and parents in the stands."

GC volleyball's Holton named conference's top scholar-athlete

The News Herald

PANAMA CITY — Nicole Holton was as much a star in the classroom as she was the volleyball court.

Holton, a former standout on Gulf Coast's volleyball team who graduated last spring, was named the Mickey Englett Panhandle Conference female scholar-athlete of the year on Tuesday. Holton now attends the University of Montevallo in Alabama and is pursuing a degree in exercise science.

Holton graduated in May with a 3.46 grade point average, and she earned Panhandle and FCSAA all-academic honors. In 2014 she was selected unanimously as Gulf Coast's student-athlete of the year.

As a sophomore, Holton collected honors as a first-team All-Panhandle selection and a second-team NJCAA All-American. She posted 393 kills last year and finished her career with 623 kills, the second-most in program history.

Anative of Tallahassee, Holton was a two-time letterwinner in volleyball and a two-time selection to the Panhandle's all-conference team. She was the league's player of the year in 2013.

Former Chipola baseball player Bert Givens was tabbed the Dale O'Daniel Panhandle Conference male scholar-athlete of the year. Givens graduated cum laude from Chipola in May with a 3.57 gpa, and he earned all-academic honors from the Panhandle Conference and the FCSAA.

Givens, who capped his juko career with a .334 batting average, 12 home runs and 70 runs batted in, has signed a letter of intent to play baseball at Troy University and will pursue a degree in chemistry.

The Panhandle Conference's five athletic directors voted to determine the award recipients.
