Marion Russ: 'I'm not going to complain. I just thank God I'm alive.'

Two breast cancer survivors share their stories and urge others not to give up

By AMANDA MAYOR
amayor@thewakullanews.net

The message conveyed by two of Wakulla's breast cancer survivors is first, that mammograms are extremely important - they can save your life - and two, have faith.

Survivors Marion Russ and Marge Kinder met through Wakulla County's cancer support group, which Kinder started in January 2009 when she realized there wasn't anything like it in the county. The group meets every third Thursday of the month at 7 p.m. at Crawfordville United Methodist Church.

"We've become really good friends," says Russ of Kinder. As for the support group, Russ says, "We're like one big happy family. Everyone is just there for each other."

Kinder adds that the group is not just for current patients, it also welcomes spouses, caregivers and friends.

"We discuss how everyone is doing, provide information, encouragement and support. Come," Kinder urges. "We've all been there. We can help."

Russ's encounter with cancer began in July of 2010 when she was diagnosed with stage three invasive ductal carcinoma breast cancer that had spread to her lymph nodes. "The hardest part was telling my mom," Russ says. "She was dying of pancreatic cancer, so it was really hard to tell her and my family."

As if that weren't enough, Russ's husband who had just found a new job out of town, was forced to quit work, which put a large strain on the family's finances.

Russ lost her mom in October 2010 amidst enduring the first of two mastectomies, chemotherapy and radiation. She interrupted treatments and appointments to see her mother before she died, for which she says, she was thankful.

"At first I was mad at God and thought 'How could you do this when my mom is dying and needs me,'" she says of her diagnosis. "But I realized that it just gave us one more thing in common. She is my inspiration - a week before she passed she was out raising money for her church. Now I survive for the both of us."

Marge Kinder: 'I was so fortunate. So many people, unfortunately, have a much more difficult time.'

Pedestrian killed crossing 319

Frequent walker in park dies after being hit by car

Staff Report

A 76-year-old man who was frequently seen walking at Azalea Park in Crawfordville was hit while crossing U.S. Highway 319 at Taff Drive on Friday morning, Sept. 25, according to the Wakulla County Sheriff's Office.

Stanley R. Matuszczak was pronounced dead at Tallahassee Memorial Hospital, where he was transported by Wakulla EMS.

Matuszczak's dog, his frequent companion on walks, was also killed in the accident.

According to the Florida Highway Patrol, Kenneth C. Di Pietrantonio Jr., 24, of Crawfordville, was traveling north on Crawfordville Highway near Taff Drive in a Nissan Sentra when he struck Matuszczak, who was attempting to cross the road.

According to authorities, the crash occurred just before 7 a.m. when the Sentra struck Matuszczak with its right front, causing him to travel up the hood and strike the windshield.

The Sentra came to rest on the east shoulder. Matuszczak came to rest next to it in the roadway.

The driver was not injured in the crash. The traffic homicide is still under investigation.

Matuszczak could often be seen walking in the park, often wearing a blue jumpsuit. He had lived in the area for 25 years and was originally born in Detroit and had lived in Atlanta.

Forum held to discuss county wetlands issues

By AMANDA MAYOR
amayor@thewakullanews.net

The Wakulla Democratic Executive Committee hosted a panel forum on the role of the wetlands in the county's economy as well as its ecosystem on Tuesday, Sept. 24 at the public library.

About 35 concerned citizens showed up to engage in the conversation, most of whom seemed to be in support of the county's extended wetlands regulations.

This became most evident about halfway through the meeting as audience members asked questions directed at Commissioner Ralph Thomas, who was in attendance.

Discussion turned slightly heated as questions such as, "Where is the logic of doing away with protections?" and "Who will benefit?" were raised.

Commissioner Thomas' responses did not waver from what he has been saying at past board meetings all along.

"Our ordinance definitely filled a hole," Thomas said. "But what I'm hearing is that DEP can't do their job. I love this county just as much as anyone else and I'm not here to damage any wetlands."

As far as the question of who will benefit, Thomas said that the citizens of the county would benefit from "the stripping of excessive regulations."

The invited panel included county Planning Director Luis Serna, one of Leon Soil and Water Conservation's district supervisors, Tabitha Frazier, Jim Stoutamire who worked for DEP for almost 30 years and Cliff Wilson, who is a current program administrator with DEP.

Stoutamire opened the panel's discussion with something he said he wanted to get out of the way up front: "State and federal wetlands permitting programs are in the business of reviewing applications and determining whether construction will be in accordance with statutes and rules," he said. "They do not run a wetlands protection program. If an applicant has enough money and resources, almost anything can be permitted whether it's a good project or not."

The panel then spent about 45 minutes answering previously submitted questions, some of which sparked further questions and even the occasional shake of an audience member's head.

Frazier, who throughout the night urged the importance of maintaining the county's wetland protections, echoed what many local advocates have been saying recently - that Wakulla's bread and butter is its ecotourism and that it seems hypocritical to promote the county for its love of the environment, yet do away with its added protections.

"It does send a mixed message," Frazier said. The panel also addressed what seems to have been an issue of concern in Wakulla lately - whether or not the state has the manpower to regulate potential violations pertaining to wetland damage as well as development near wetlands.

Speaking to development, Serna said that laws have changed.

It used to be that the county would require that state and federal permits had to be obtained before submitting a site plan. However, said Serna, "the legislature has changed the rule so that we can no longer do that. The law now states that they cannot begin development before they obtain state and federal permits, so it does create a problem."

Forum held to discuss county wetlands issues

This means that developers can go through the entire process of planning and, up to the day they actually go to move dirt, are not required to have those permits. "There is a safeguard at the end, but not like we would like to see," Serna said.

As for the issue of manpower, Wilson said, "DEP and the Northwest Water Management District have aligned resources in a way that puts us in a better position to regulate." He said also that there are about 12-14 people currently working to regulate the region's wetlands and that they are hoping for that number to increase to 20 in the near future.

As for the county's regulating, Serna said that it still has the ability to regulate and notify the state of any questionable conduct. "I don't see where we would stop doing that," he said.

Throughout the county's wetlands debate lately, there has also been concern for liability and the taking of property.

Serna explained that if the buffer zone language is deleted, which would essentially place 75 feet of land in the owner's possession, and then if language is replaced due to a referendum passed in the next election, that portion of someone's property would be taken back and would constitute a taking. "The county would then be liable for that," Serna said. "That's a very real concern."

Closing remarks from three of the four panel members – Stoutamire, Frazier and Serna – expressed support for either keeping the county's ordinance, the buffer zone, or at least allowing a vote on the subject.

Serna said he wanted to dispel worries that the county would be allowing the filling of wetlands. "That is not the case," he said. The discussion right now is about the buffer zone. There are good reasons for the buffers and good arguments against them. I do support the wetlands ordinance, but there are definitely improvements that need to be made and I hope that everybody's open to those discussions."

Fight like a girl: breast cancer awareness

One of the hardest things, Russ recalls is one holiday season when she was forced to tell her kids who are now ages 19, 14, 13 and 12 "no" when they asked if they could make out a Christmas list.

"But about two weeks before Christmas an envelope arrived and it had a bunch of cash in it. It just said 'From a friend.'"

Russ says that throughout her struggle she has had several "secret angels," as she calls them, help in ways such as that. "If it wasn't for my secret angels I don't know how we would have made it."

As a former avid volunteer with the fire department and other entities throughout the community, Russ describes herself as someone who would much rather give than receive.

"But," she says, "One of the things cancer has taught me is that sometimes you really have to ask for help."

Russ finished her radiation in May 2012, but was forced to have a second mastectomy. As her type of cancer is estrogen positive, she explains, she also had to have a hysterectomy. Currently, Russ is about to embark on a fifth reconstructive surgery to try to take back what cancer has cost. "I thought about quitting on that and letting it go," she says. "But I'm not going to let cancer win anything from me."

Something that sometimes people don't think about, Russ says, is that the fight isn't ever really over. There are side effects afterwards, she says, and lists several medical complications that she now deals with due to the amount of radiation her body has been through.

"But I'm not going to complain," she says. "I just thank God I'm alive."

Marge Kinder seems to share a very similarly positive attitude.

She was diagnosed in December 2007 and says, "It was like a kick in the stomach. I was just hoping and praying that it wasn't malignant and then when it was, all I could do was hope that the doctor could get it all and that it didn't progress."

At the time of her di-agnosis, Kinder says, it was stage one and hadn't spread to her lymph nodes. Shortly after, she endured a double mastectomy, after which she says, her treatment involved only a chemo pill.

"I was so fortunate," she says. "So many people, unfortunately, have a much more difficult time."

In December, she will celebrate five years of survival.

"It's in remission and I'm clear," she says. "It can return, but I have faith and am optimistic."

Kinder credits her survival in large part to keeping up with her mammograms.

"Some people don't feel as if mammograms are necessary," she says. "But they are. You need to examine yourself and you need to see a doctor."

In addition, Kinder credits her family and friends for their love and support and says that her rock throughout the entire process was her husband of 44 years, Jerry.

"He was truly wonderful and very supportive, even through his own sickness," she says. Jerry Kinder passed away in February 2013 after complications from his own battle with bladder cancer.

"He protected me and spoiled me," Kinder says of her husband. "And I loved every minute of it."

Both Russ and Kinder dedicate much of their time to both the county's cancer support group and the annual Relay for Life fundraiser. They invite all who are involved with cancer to come each third Thursday of the month to the support group.

"There is no doubt that you need your friends and family and that they help," Kinder says, "but most of them have not been through it so they don't quite know what you're going through. We help in any way we can no matter what type of cancer you might have."

They both also urge women to keep up with their yearly mammograms.

"It's very important. It's not always a lump that can be detected," Russ says. "Keep the faith. Have hope, don't give up and fight like a girl."

Capital City to the Sea Trails are moving forward

By AMANDA MAYOR
amayor@thewakullanews.net

The second Wakulla County workshop for the Capital City to the Sea Trails (CC2ST) was held Thursday, Sept. 26, during which participants were brought up to speed on the project's progress, its direction moving forward and asked for the public's input.

Kimley-Horn and Associates' Jon Sewell kicked things off by recognizing Commissioner Howard Kessler as one of the original key players who began envisioning the system of trails in Wakulla and Leon County.

Kessler, who said that he's been involved with the process of developing the project for over a decade as he previously served on the Capital Region Transportation Planning Agency board, expressed his gratitude for the hard work of others in getting the project moving in a positive direction.

"Sometimes I get a little too much credit for what I do," he said. "I helped direct funding to this project and I'm proud of what I did to promote this in Leon and other counties, but it's been teamwork and everyone working together," he said.

"But the dreamer behind this dream is Robert Seidler, he's the one that deserves the credit," Kessler said.

According to Sewell, the project is midway through. Two workshops have already been held in Leon County, and one more is planned for both Leon and Wakulla.

So far, the project has focused on data collection and the drawing of maps that identify existing trails, public transportation and "virtually everything," Sewell said.

"We've also looked at demographics, hot spots and population areas that will support these trails."

Howard Kessler speaking at the workshop.

Things such as maintenance, the history along the trails, crash rates, forest roads and potential user conflicts have been looked at as well, said Sewell.

"We've met with hunters on activity and economic impact and have had very good feedback and conversation with those who have spoken with us," he said.

The trail itself will be 12 feet wide, made of asphalt and intended for multiuse - exactly like the existing St. Marks bike trail, Sewell said, which was used as a case study as it has been in existence for about 20 years.

The St. Marks trail, according to Sewell, sees about 5,000 users in just one week at various points on the trail.

"That trail is considered a regional draw," he said. "What we're talking about here would be a national draw."

The CC2ST project does not consist of just one long trail from Tallahassee to the coast in Wakulla, but rather, it is a diverse network of different trails of different lengths that are intended to connect key municipalities in both counties.

So far, the potential trails formed in the project have all been created out of public input and from the needs and wants expressed by participants.

Referring to a map in his presentation of a complex and elaborate network of trails envisioned for the project, Sewell said, "That system right there will not be built in the next 10 years. We're talking a very long build out here, it takes many years to construct these things."

What Kimley-Horn was there to do at the meeting, other than bring participants up to speed, was to get their input via sticker dots on what they would like to see happen first in terms of trail construction.

Around the room, there were about 15 different maps showing different portions of possible trails. Attendees were instructed to take their stickers and with them, identify where they reside and which trails they would prefer to see happen first.

Kimley-Horn plans to take the input collected from the Leon and Wakulla second round of workshops and summarize it to use for recommendations in developing the draft master plan for the project.

The final master plan will go to the CRTPA board in March 2014, but not before one more round of workshops to be held in December.

Wakulla's workshop will be held on Dec. 5 at 6 p.m. in the commission chambers.

After the meeting, members of the Committee for a Bikeable Community, a cyclist advocacy group, expressed their great interest and support for the project.

"It's an exciting concept," said Bill Edmonds of the committee. "There are many good route options - we just need to pick the best ones so that the trail brings the greatest economic benefit to Wakulla County and surrounding communities."

Four have united county on wetlands

Editor, The News:

I want to thank Commissioners Jerry Moore, Randy Merritt, Ralph Thomas and Richard Harden for bringing wetlands to the forefront of Wakulla County by repealing the ordinance. You've done more to get people thinking about the value of wetlands, wildlife and fisheries and bringing them together than 100 environmentalists could have ever done.

By refusing to place the Wetlands Ordinance on the ballot, and denying the citizens who elected you the right to vote on the issue and express their opinions, you have created a spirit of rebellion and strengthened democracy.

Commercial fishermen, construction workers, realtors, merchants and people other than environmentalists are coming together and eagerly signing petitions in spite of the misinformation that you are spouting about the loss of our citizens losing their private property rights.

I was saddened by the fact that the Board of Directors of Keep Wakulla County Beautiful refused to let me speak at the Coastal Cleanup at Woolley Park last week, as they have in previous years.

It's even sadder that they blocked volunteers from Wakulla Wetland Alliance from having a table where they could distribute information on the value of our swamps, marshes and overflow lands – too controversial they said.

I can't fault them for responding to the pressures from the developers and those who will benefit from the filling of wetlands. We have always supported KWCB and their efforts to rid the coast of trash, but merely picking up beer cans and Coke bottles while ignoring the pending threats to our environment is equivalent of saving the paper clips while the corporation goes bankrupt. Still I was glad to see their volunteers wading out into the marshes to retrieve the trash, marshlands that may one day be covered with houses and seawalls if the four county commissioners prevail.

For the past decade, we have always opened our doors for a free tour of Gulf Specimen Aquarium to the participants of Coastal Cleanup, and even though KWCB did not ask me to speak this year as they have in the past, I am, grateful that they extended our invitation to their participants and everyone had a great time feeding sharks, and watching marine life.

All we really have in Wakulla County is our beauty, our fishing, wildlife and life style, and you commissioners are doing your best to do away with it. No one drives across country to see our Walmart or service stations. They come to eat mullet, crabs and shrimp, not hamburgers from fast food chains.

There will be a referendum vote in spite of your efforts to stop it. Please don't close your minds. There's still time for you to put the issue on the ballot in a fair and open election without forcing citizens to stomp the pavements and gather signatures. There's still time to have workshops and to fix whatever is problematic with the existing wetlands ordinance and stop this senseless repeal.

Nothing good is going to come out of dividing the county. You see what chaos exists in the Middle East. In these hard economic times we should be pulling together, not having a war.

But if we must fight it, fight it we will, and we will win.

Thanks for support of reunion

Editor, The News:

As the Class of 1978 began planning for our 35th reunion, it became apparent that there were many of our friends and classmates that were a little ahead of us or a little behind us at Wakulla High School and those friends were very anxious to attend a reunion. So we changed the planning and made a WHS class reunion that covered the years 1976-1980.

Last month we certainly had a wonderful time seeing friends and reuniting! This was made possible by the support of community sponsors. Those were the Seineyard at Summercamp Restaurant, Gulf Coast Lumber in Crawfordville, Beef Obrady's of Crawfordville, Ameris Bank, Bradleys Country Store, Two Blondes Liquors and Gifts, Big Bob's Music Machine, and Centennial Bank! We want to publically thank those businesses for their invaluable support that allowed us to make this a special weekend for a reasonable cost to our attendees.

The planning committee included Pollie

Lawhon, Cindy Strickland Melzer, Gigi Cavallo, Debbie Brown, Mina Morrison Sutton, Edith Pigott Carey, Jeanie Begley Carter, Bob Paynter, Norine Dunn, Mary Coffee, Randy Smith, and quite a few others. We wanted thank these sponsors and to say...Go War Eagles. What a privilege it has been to have been raised and attended the schools here in Wakulla County!

Editor's Note

In last week's Wakulla News, in a front page feature story on a local man building his own casket, there was a direct quote on what he claimed to have paid for his wife's casket. The amount he said he paid appeared to be exaggerated, but it remained in the story as he cited the cost as one of his motivations in building his own casket.

The point of the story was to profile a man doing something a bit out of the ordinary, building a casket for himself.

The costs, while cited as his motive, should not have appeared without verification.

Just the facts on wetlands debate

Editor, The News:

There has been a lot of discussion recently concerning the possible Wetlands Ordinance repeal here in Wakulla County.

I'd like to provide some facts relative to insinuations that have been made pertaining to this issue. These facts are verifiable by each and every citizen reading this editorial and I encourage each citizen to research this matter and make their decisions based on facts, not hyperbole, by individuals on either side of this issue.

If the Wetlands Ordinance is repealed, developers will go unregulated and our wetlands will be dredged and/or filled because we do not have an Ordinance stopping them from doing so.

FACT: The Florida Department of Environmental Protection, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and the Northwest Florida Water Management District have, for years, and continue today, to protect our wetlands via their regulatory programs. This has occurred before, during, and after (should the ordinance be repealed) Wakulla's Wetland Ordinance was in place.

State regulations don't include "isolated wetlands."

FACT: DEP does include providing protection to

"isolated wetlands" via their regulations.

DEP does not make you have a buffer around wetlands, so they will be adversely impacted.

FACT: It is true, DEP does not "require" a set buffer. However, you must show you are not going to adversely impact the wetlands with your project. If you are going to have a primary and secondary impact to the wetlands and you provide a buffer of 15 feet minimum (with a 25 foot average) you are presumed to be protecting the wetlands per DEP. If you don't put in the buffer, or show that no adverse impact will occur through other mitigation actions, you will not be granted a permit. It's kind of like no one "requires" you to drink water, but just like the wetlands, if you don't have water, you will die. No proof of no adverse impact, or buffer, or other mitigation action, equals no permit. Without a permit, the project dies.

DEP only has two regulators to address wetlands in our area.

FACT: DEP has over five times that many regulators working on wetlands issues in our area and they are currently cross-training staff that will raise that number to nearly 10 times that number. The NWF-WMD and Corps of Engineers also have regulators working on wetlands issues in our area.

OK, so the state regulates Dredging/Filling in the wetlands, they regulate isolated wetlands, they make sure you don't adversely impact wetlands, and they have the staff to do their job, but developers can just do their projects anyway without regard to the public.

FACT: State regulations identify that activities in wetlands and other surface waters MUST NOT be contrary to the public interest.

Wakulla County has never paid settlements, legal fees, etc in lawsuits that were generated by wetlands or takings issues.

FACT: The entity that fights lawsuits and pays settlements on behalf of Wakulla County has paid out several hundred thousands of dollars on legal fees and settlements relative to cases generated by wetlands and takings issues.

Let me close by saying: I personally believe in the protection of our vital wetlands. However, those protection measures should be based on science and facts, not on emotional rhetoric.

Respectfully,

Chris Russell

Give a fair chance on wetlands issue

Editor, The News:

Wakulla County Commissioners at the Sept. 16 meeting again voted against citizen input on the Wakulla wetlands ordinance. First they were asked to let the citizens vote on the Wetlands ordinance. Randy Merritt, Jerry Moore, and Ralph Thomas voted no.

Commissioner Howard Kessler proposed a workshop to allow more discussion on the wetlands ordinance. This workshop would allow for state environmental agencies to answer questions in the presence of all the commissioners and those debating the issues. Ralph Thomas seconded the motion for the workshop.

Citizens on both sides of the wetlands issue stood up and made statements supporting their side of the workshop proposal. Two citizens who spoke said they were seeking more information so they could make an informed decision on the wetlands ordinance. The workshop could help both sides of this debate understand the issue and possibly come to an agreement.

For a minute I thought we would have this workshop.

Commissioners Kessler and Thomas voted for the workshop, commissioners Moore and Merritt voted against, and Richard Harden was absent. By rule a tie killed it.

Merritt asked for clarification as to whether or not there would be a Wakulla Wetlands Ordinance between the time they completed the process of eliminating the ordinance and November 2014 when citizens can vote to keep it. The answer was there will be no Wakulla wetlands ordinance until the public votes it back in. Developers could get permits to build in the 35-to-75 foot buffer zone during this time period.

A citizen poll shows approximately 80 percent of the public wants to either keep the ordinance or be allowed to vote on the issue.

Those seeking to eliminate the Wetlands Ordinance say the poll is wrong. If they are confident the poll is wrong they have nothing to worry about by letting the citizens vote. The commissioners should agree to let the public vote. I ask the citizens of Wakulla County: Why would four commissioners not wait for the public to vote on the wetlands ordinance? Why eliminate the wetlands ordinance just to have the public vote it back in? Are these four commissioners looking out for their own interests instead of yours?

I urge you to call and write your commissioner and demand the right to vote either for or against the wetlands ordinance.

Why not give everyone a fair chance to be represented on this issue?

The real agenda on wetlands

Editor, The News:

In the Sept. 26th edition of The Wakulla News, I read a Letter to the Editor titled, "Wetlands Fight Akin to Civil Rights Struggle" by Mr. Hugh Taylor. I think the good people of Wakulla County are too smart to be fooled by this unparalleled comparison.

The Civil Rights struggle was about protecting the rights of minorities. The Wakulla Wetlands Alliance claims to be the voice of the majority of our citizens, and it appears that they believe this entitles them to impose their will upon the minority.

I don't believe that the majority agree with their position but, even if they do, would that make it acceptable for them to trample on the rights of those who disagree with them?

Before you sign a petition, or cast a vote, I hope you will take the time to understand the real agenda behind this issue. Ayn Rand said, "Individual rights are not subject to a public vote; a majority has no right to vote away the rights of a minority; the political function of rights is precisely to protect minorities from oppression by majorities (and the smallest minority on earth is the individual)."

Please take your time, Wakulla. If you vote today to take away the rights of your neighbors, you may be paving the way for a group to take yours tomorrow.

I hope you will stand with me as we stop the assault on individual freedom in Wakulla County!

Someone murdered my two dogs

Editor, The News:

My name is Jim Smith. I live at the corner of spring creek and Jack Crum Road. Sometime between Friday, Sept. 20 and Sunday, Sept. 22, someone murdered my two dogs.

To the one who did this – you took something away from me... and them.

These two dogs were "last chance dogs" destined for death if I hadn't taken up for them (animal rescue). Charlie was a white dog with black ears, and a big heart and Lizzie was a small black hound with a personality of caution. Both with two distinct personalities. Each had lived with me for about two years, and I had come to love and care for them. What you did and your callous disregard deprived me of one thing – the love they gave me. I miss them.

KWCB hosts speaker on area aquaculture at Green Drinks

By JAYME WARNER
Special to The News

North Florida Gulf Seafoods in conjunction with Keep Wakulla County Beautiful hosted an informative event at Wakulla Springs on Tuesday, Sept. 24, about Wakulla County's aquaculture.

The event was put together by Jo Ann Palmer, director of Keep Wakulla County Beautiful.

Steve Cushman, incoming president of KWCB and CEO of North Florida Gulf Seafood, spoke at the gathering.

Aquaculture is the farming of aquatic organisms such as fish, shellfish, as well as plants.

"By improving Wakulla's aquaculture it will mean more jobs, economic boosts, restoration and recognition, such as a brand of Wakulla County Oysters," said Cushman.

Florida has recently come to understand the need for aquaculture by passing legislation allowing the use of oyster racks in water columns for production.

Florida has also allowed the importing of seeds from outside state lines.

"I would really like to see a Wakulla County seafood processing plant because it would open up more jobs," said Cushman.

There are 14,000 acres of available lease sites in Wakulla County for oyster farming. Some 7,500 acres of the available lease sites are uncontaminated and available for use. Most of those acres are located in the Apalachee Bay.

There are two acres per farmer allowed by the state, which will allow 3,750 leases - meaning about 1,500 people can be back at work within the next two years, Cushman said.

"Average lease production is 400,000 oysters yielding profits in the $140,000 range," said Cushman. "The projected Wakulla County oyster industry is projected to reach $50 million in five years."

Since oysters are natural filters, there would be a reduction in bay contamination, Cushman said.

OUT TO PASTOR

The summer in my rearview mirror

By JAMES L. SNYDER

I awoke last Tuesday with a strange feeling I had missed something. Not only that, but I was shivering like a polar bear without his pajamas. I knew something was wrong but to put my finger on it was just too early in the morning for me. I like starting my days slowly. At my age just getting up is quite an accomplishment.

I felt my forehead to see if I had a fever. I found my forehead easily enough. Just above my eyes, but I can never tell if I am hot, cold or lukewarm.

The condition progressed to such a degree I had to swallow my pride and inquiry of the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. She can look at me and tell me if I am sick or not. Usually, I'm sick.

So I approached her and said, "Am I sick or what?"

Quick as a wink she said, "Off the top of my head I would say you are 'or what.'"

And this was just the beginning of my day.

Then my wife looked at me and said, "Why do you ask?"

So I explained to her about the feeling I had that something was missing and on top of that, I could not stop shivering. She felt my forehead to see if I had a fever, and I did not. When she turned her back on me, I was tempted to stick out my tongue and say "AHH."

"Well," she said, "you're not sick and I don't understand how you could be cold."

I looked aimlessly out the window and began to shiver more. "It looks like it's cold out there," I complained.

My wife looked at me with one of those looks that every husband knows and fears, and said, "It should be cold outside, it's winter, for Pete's sake."

"Winter? What happened to summer?"

"Oh you silly boy," my wife chuckled, "summer's over and winter's brewing."

I just stared out the window at the bleakness of the morning, wondering where in the world summer went. At the moment, it did not seem possible to me that summer was over. Is not that the way things go? Just as soon as you get used to something, it is over.

I suppose it is because a person becomes so busy doing the mundane daily things he fails to consider the whole picture. If you do not enjoy what you are doing right now, one day you will look back and wonder where in the world it disappeared.

At my age, it seems that looking back has become quite a career. I remember when I was young the old folks used to say, "I remember the good old days." I've often wondered what they were talking about. Now I know.

When I was young, my whole life was looking forward, but now that I am old, I spend part of my time looking at the rearview mirror. That is the wonderful advantage of getting older. When you are young, you do not have anything to look back to. The older you get the more you have to look back on.

I have a few things I reflect on. One are the memories I have made throughout the years. Often when my wife and I are sitting together one of us will say, "Do you remember when...?" Then one of us will recite a wonderful memory from the past and have a good laugh together.

One of the wonderful things about a person's memory is that it is personal. I will not say that I enhance my memories, of course I do, but I will not confess to it. If it is my memory I should be able to recite it any which way I please. I particularly enjoy those memories that I share with no one else. Because then, I have the freedom to remember it any which way I please.

Once listened to a very old woman share memories of her childhood. At the time, she was in her early 90s. As I drove away from listening to her I thought to myself, I wonder how much of those memories were really true. Then again, they were her memories not mine. Who am I to judge?

Also in looking back, there are those things we refer to as regrets. I suppose everybody tries to live in such a way to keep regrets to a minimum. I have a long list of things I regret doing or saying or not doing or not saying.

The one category of regrets I have are those things that I have done that my wife knows about. Talk about memory!

This brings up the difference between a husband and a wife. A husband cannot remember anything and his wife cannot forget anything.

The apostle Paul practiced the fine art of forgetting. He wrote, "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended; but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." (Philippians 3:13-14 KJV).

My rearview mirror is full and the temptation is to focus solely on them missing the scenery in front of me.

Rev. James L. Snyder is pastor of the Family of God Fellowship in Ocala. Call him at (866) 552-2543 or e-mail jamesnyder2@att.net.

Wakulla UMC plans homecoming

Families and food will be in abundance Oct. 6 as the Wakulla United Methodist Church celebrates its annual Homecoming event.

"A special service will be held in the church with the whole family of the church celebrating 'coming home' - coming home to our church building, and coming home to God," said Pastor Sandra Horner. "If you have not been to church for some time, this service is one way for you to come back and see what goes on - you may be pleasantly surprised!"

The Rev. Bill Rhodes will deliver the Sunday morning message including a celebration of Alberta McCraney and Ava Wilson for their dedication to the life of our church. Everyone is invited to see the historic and unique buildings and to enjoy the church history while having a cup of tea or coffee in good company. After the 10:30 a.m. service, plan to visit over a potluck lunch, with games afterward for the children and WiffleBall for the "Wise" and the "Young." Plan to join in a Hymn Sing afterwards.

Wakulla UMC was established in the mid-1800s to serve the busy shipping ports of St. Marks and Newport. Originally located across the road, the old church was on the circuit with John Slade as one of the first Circuit Riders and then pastor. Slade was known as the "Father of Methodism" in Florida.

The current log church was built in the 1990s with members donating money to purchase the logs.

BEREAVEMENT

A new reality after loss

By TRACY RENEE LEE

Often times, when you experience the loss of a significant loved one, you feel as though you are dreaming, and that you might suddenly wake up to find that all is well.

This past week, I have had two clients tell me that the passing of their loved one did not feel real to them. They were both surprised when I told them, that what they were experiencing was normal.

When you experience such a devastating loss, your body will react in such a way, that you may feel as though you are dreaming. Perhaps you feel as though the life you are living is not your own. This reaction is a safety mechanism that protects your psychological and physical well-being. If our bodies did not do this for us, the pain of such a significant loss would be too much to bear, and we might possibly perish ourselves.

The numbing of our senses, allows us to get through the immediate pain of our loss, without a complete void in our functionality. It is incumbent on us to make important decisions at this time, and we would not be able to do so, if the pain were not somehow masked.

The realization of your loss, will manifest itself soon enough, and your loss and loneliness may significantly hamper your functionality for quite some time. Realizing that all of this is very normal, may help you to accept the loss, and focus on recovery.

Recovery from a loved one's loss is difficult, and may be lengthy. Take the time to appreciate your loved one, and the joy and enrichment they brought into your life while they were living.

Grief can be difficult to overcome, and it never completely goes away. Grief is the price we pay for love. You will never stop loving your loved one, so you will never stop grieving. With time however, life will get easier and return to some level of normality.

It is important to remember, that you still have others in your life, that need and deserve your love. Love brings joy back into our lives. Embrace the love you have for those around you, and allow them to help you overcome the pain you are experiencing. Although you will continue to grieve your loss, loving others will help your recovery.

3rd annual Focus on Ability event slated for Oct. 4

FILE PHOTO

Some participants in last year's Focus on Ability Day.

Special to The News

October is designated as Disability Awareness month.

As part of the activities to heighten awareness of how students overcome and compensate for limitations, the Wakulla County School System will once again host its 3rd annual Focus on Ability Day on Oct. 4 from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Students from each elementary, middle and high school as well as teachers, parents and community members will be provided a hot dog lunch in the Legacy Café, located at 69 Arran Road in the old cafeteria in the School Board Office.

Students will then perform in the auditorium from 12:15 p.m. until 1 p.m.

Entertainment will be music, songs and cheer/dance exhibitions. Local agencies will also have information on services and supports available for families and students with disabilities.

The Legacy Café, David Miller Center for Successful Transition, was dedicated and opened as a training center in culinary arts to provide job experience for students with disabilities. It was dedicated in honor of former Wakulla County School superintendent, David Miller, recognizing his long time commitment to the success of all students.

Wakulla High School students and students from the Adult Education Program gained experience serving lunch to the staff at the district office one day per week during the second semester of the 2012-13 school year.

Beginning October 8, the Legacy Café will be open on Tuesday and Thursday to serve lunch to the public from 11 a.m. until noon.

Because the students also shop for the food, lunch must be pre-ordered. The menu consists of several salad and baked potato options, and a home baked dessert is always available.

Diners may choose to eat lunch in the Café, or carry out. A door prize is given each day for diners eating in the café from hand made items in the Legacy Boutique.

The Legacy Boutique is a new addition for the 2013-14 school year. Students make jewelry, tie blankets, monogrammed pieces, and cookies in a jar to sell. Proceeds from the café and boutique support the program; and then students are provided with "pay checks" for their labors to teach economic self-sufficiency.

Menus and pre orders may be completed on line at the Wakulla County School Board District Website www.http://wakulla.schooldesk.net/ under the Legacy Café and Boutique tab. Preorders may also be given by phone by calling 850 926-0065 ext. 253.

For additional information on Focus on Ability Day or the Legacy Café: David Miller Center for Successful Transition, please call Tanya English, Director of Exceptional Student Education at (850) 926-0065 ext. 252.

These students represent a valuable national resource; recognizing their accomplishments, as well as the key role their schools play in their academic development, is vital to the advancement of educational excellence in our nation. All three students were recognized before their peers at the senior class assembly on Tuesday, October 01, 2013. There will also be a recognition ceremony at Wakulla High School in

Business News from

Shepard Accounting is Business of the Year

By JO ANN PALMER
Of the Chamber

On Thursday, Sept. 19, the Wakulla Senior Citizens Center was buzzing with Chamber members and guests excited to see whose name would be called to accept the awards being presented at the 9th Annual Business Excellence Awards banquet.

The evening began with Chamber President Tammie Barfield welcoming those in attendance and recognizing the event's premier sponsors, CenturyLink and Waste Pro.

Barfield presented a special recognition certificate and an original old courthouse brick to Mary Jane Lovell for her generous help in the selection, purchase and installation of the new shades recently installed in the historic courthouse. The shades were purchased with funds raised at the Low Country Boil.

Beth Kirkland, economic and business development consultant, was the evening's keynote speaker. She is currently conducting business development in the aviation and aerospace sectors for BRPH Architects-Engineers Inc. and encouraged Chamber members to recognize the importance of good leadership that helps with comprehensive economic development, balanced between business

SPOTLIGHT ON BUSINESS:

Business: Brick Launcher Owner: Chuck Robinson

Tell us about your business: Brick Launcher is a web and IT solutions company that serves small to medium-sized businesses, associations and non-profit organizations looking to grow and achieve more.

Our small, independent company was formed in 2007 initially as a web design and web marketing consulting firm. Owner Chuck Robinson wanted to share his 10 years of experience helping a small brick-and-mortar retailer become the largest e-commerce retailer in their niche market with year over year average sales increases of over 25 percent. When he realized that other small companies could benefit from the same models and pathways to success he knew it was his time to help them.

Brick Launcher has used the growth of social media marketing and customer-centered websites to help their clients create greater brand awareness, increase customers and sales, and generate customer and member communication. We have also helped our clients accomplish all of these great things using efficient and cost effective solutions that are easy to understand so that they can remain focused on their goals, not on their infrastructure.

What services, products do you offer? Brick Launcher provides website design and hosting from a simple, branded site to an elaborate e-commerce system. But we don't stop there. Once launched, we can create and maintain web, social media and offline marketing campaigns to build your brand. To support your company's growth we can implement IT hardware and software solutions including office management and productivity, communications, customer relationship management, accounting, fulfillment and more. Our goal is to give you the end-to-end tools you need to succeed.

What sets your business apart from the competition? Unlike many other firms, Brick Launcher examines a client's business model, existing processes, and goals first instead of offering a product or service out of the mold. We ask the right questions when other companies don't bother to ask at all. Once we understand our clients then we plan and execute. This is our fundamental philosophy. This is business thinking.

What should the community/customer expect when they visit your business? As a Brick Launcher client you can expect simple solutions to complex problems. We will never confuse you with technology or oversell you something you don't need. And we create valuable, long-term relationships with our clients by providing above and beyond support and training for everything we implement with you.

How long have you been a Chamber member? Since 2009.

Why did you join the Chamber? We truly wanted to serve a larger, greater good. The good of the Wakulla community. Our vision statement is simple: "Help others achieve more." We feel technology and information can help build our local economy as it begins to diversify from its traditional industries and in so doing bring us closer together as citizens and businesses. We strongly believe that civic and community service is fundamental to business success and that none of us can succeed alone. The Chamber is the perfect conduit between its members, local government and the citizens of Wakulla.

What Chamber services have you taken advantage of and/or will take advantage of in the near future? Networking through the Chamber is a huge benefit. Most of our referrals have come through the Chamber and they have all been highly qualified, trustworthy leads.

Petra Shuff has done a great job through the website, social media outlets and email newsletters to keep us informed about what's happening in our business and social communities. We have also used the Chamber's online directory to find businesses we wish to support because they support the Chamber.

What's your reason Wakulla residents should Shop Local? We believe that our family is like most Wakulla families. We have young children who attend some of the best PreK-12 schools in the state every morning. We do our best to prepare them for the future by giving them all the tools and love they need to succeed.

But one thing our community can give our kids after we've prepared them at home and school is a bright future here in Wakulla County. For that to happen, they have to have jobs or access to money and support to start a business. If they've left home to go to college they need reasons to return to Wakulla and we know how great financial enticement can be!

By shopping locally, today, you are creating those opportunities for our children in the future. Growth builds on growth. We have seen it with our neighbor to the north as they have exploded in population and wealth over the past 20 years. There is only one reason that we can't create the same future for Wakulla: If we spend our money elsewhere, we are not investing it here. It's that simple.

A busy first week of committee meetings

By BRANDON LARRABEE
THE NEWS SERVICE OF FLORIDA

TALLAHASSEE, Sept. 27 – Who said nothing ever gets done during the first week of legislative committee meetings?

There was plenty of action this week at the Capitol, even if very little of it happened during votes by the panels that held their first get-togethers in anticipation of the 2014 legislative session. The Democrats deposed one future leader and elected another in about 48 hours. Gov. Rick Scott jettisoned the state's commitment to a new set of standardized tests, upending several assumptions about the future of education reform efforts in the state.

And lawmakers continued to struggle with how to enforce the novel idea that legislators live in the districts they represent.

'IRON SHARPENS IRON'

For House Democrats, the week began with a meeting at the Florida Education Association to decide the fate of Rep. Darryl Rouson of St. Petersburg, the caucus' first choice to lead it after the 2014 elections.

As reporters sat around a table in a downstairs conference room Monday night, all but three of the 44 Democratic members of the House gathered upstairs and behind closed doors to discuss whether Rouson should remain as leader.

Rouson's perceived wrongdoing included setting up a campaign account for House efforts without telling the Florida Democratic Party or his caucus members, alienating core Democratic constituents like the FEA, and choosing the wrong strategists to help with House campaigns.

After a couple of hours of discussion and debate, current House Minority Leader Perry Thurston of Fort Lauderdale announced the results: By a 24-17 count, Rouson was out.

"I asked for the opportunity to appear in front of the caucus and explain why I did what I did and the purpose for doing it," Rouson said after the vote. "The caucus afforded me that opportunity tonight, and I'm very grateful."

The next election was relatively quick. By Wednesday night, House Democrats were gathering – this time back at the Capitol and back in the open – to choose between Rep. Mark Pafford of West Palm Beach and Rep. Alan Williams of Tallahassee as Rouson's replacement.

Pafford is an unapologetic progressive who had the backing of most of the party's leadership; Williams made the case that he had a better fundraising track record. In the end, Pafford won on a 29-12 vote.

Both sides tried to stress the party's unity and a lack of enmity between the two candidates. Williams several times said "iron sharpens iron," an apparent reference to Proverbs 27:17: "As iron sharpens iron, so one person sharpens another."

Pafford seemed to make the same point in his post-election remarks to the caucus, albeit in different words.

"Our differences are actually what make this minority caucus stronger," said Pafford. 47. "And we need to take a moment to embrace our differences and make those differences our strength."

TESTING RICK SCOTT

The FCAT has long been a flashpoint in Florida's education system, with Democrats pointing to the testing system as an example of what's wrong with the state's approach to reforming schools. But the FCAT is on its way out, and the only question remaining is what the state will use to replace it.

That decision got a little more mysterious this week, when Scott announced that he was beginning a process that seems designed to extract the state from its involvement in the Partnership for the Assessment of Readiness for College and Careers, or PARCC.

Scott, who had previously praised the tests being developed by a multistate consortium, now saw them less as a valid way to measure student learning under the new "Common Core Standards" being adopted by almost every state in the country and more as the vanguard of federal interference in schools. Even if he couldn't articulate what that federal interference would look like when pressed by reporters.

"If you look at it, it's their entry point into having more involvement in our education system... I want to continue that focus on high standards, but we don't need the federal government intruding in our lives," Scott told reporters.

That seemed to directly contradict assurances that had come out of Scott's own education department.

"The federal government does not have a hand in development of the aligned assessments pertaining to CCSS (Common Core)," according to an undated document on the agency's website. "There are two state consortia responsible for developing Common Core aligned assessments as well as some states that have developed their own assessment programs, such as Kentucky and New York."

That left the state Department of Education to come up with a new test in time for the 2014-15 school year, set to begin in less than a year. Some Democrats were already skeptical, encouraging the state to take a breather instead of scrambling to set up a testing system that might not work.

"There are other options," said Rep. Karen Castor Dentel, D-Maitland. "We don't have to test that year with a standardized test."

'YOU CAN'T GO (TO THAT) HOME AGAIN'

Republican lawmakers, meanwhile, were trying to come up with their own kind of test: a way to determine whether legislators live in the districts they're supposed to represent. And that would have to clear a "straight-face test," said Senate President Don Gaetz, R-Niceville.

The issue has been around for years, with reporters and other insiders frequently joking about which lawmakers call Tallahassee or other parts of the state home while claiming residency somewhere else. But it has been brought to the forefront in recent months by press reports and by Sen. Jack Latvala, R-Clearwater, who has been crusading on the issue in part because Sen. Maria Sachs, D-Delray Beach, defeated a supporter of Latvala's 2016 bid for the Senate presidency.

Sachs has faced allegations that she doesn't live in her South Florida district, but in another home nearby. Sachs at one time claimed to live in a Fort Lauderdale condo owned by a friend but recently changed her voter registration to a condominium in Delray Beach.

Latvala, who chairs the Senate Ethics and Elections Committee, seemed unconcerned this week about the possibility that the move could ruffle feathers among House Republicans who might also not hew to the letter of the law.

"I don't care. The constitution says people need to live in their districts, and they need to live in their districts. If we elected officials can't abide by the constitution, what kind of example are we?" Latvala said.

Gaetz floated the idea of a joint House-Senate rule, though it's not precisely clear what making such a rule might entail or exactly what the requirements would be.

"People ought to live among those they represent," he said. "This is not the British parliament where you get to sort of move to wherever there's an open seat. You ought to be going to the grocery store, going to synagogue and church and school among the people you represent."

STOPPING SEX OFFENDERS

One thing that does seem clear is that the 2014 legislative session will include new laws dealing with sex offenders.

The push for new legislation comes in the wake of last month's investigative series by the South Florida Sun Sentinel, which found that the commitment of sexually violent predators under the state's Jimmy Ryce Act had slowed to a crawl, with nearly 600 offenders released only to be convicted of new sex offenses – including more than 460 child molestations, 121 rapes and 14 murders.

Outraged by the reports, Florida lawmakers promised action during hearings this week that covered plea deals, sentencing guidelines, risk assessment, state contracting, treatment evaluations and the monitoring of offenders after release.

"This will not be one bill," said House Criminal Justice Chairman Rep. Matt Gaetz, a Fort Walton Beach Republican whose subcommittee held one of the hearings. "This will be many, many bills."

On Monday, DCF released a series of recommendations intended to lessen the number of sexually violent predators who fall through the cracks of the Jimmy Ryce Act, which requires the state Department of Children and Families to evaluate sex offenders before their releases from prison, confining the most dangerous at the 720-bed Florida Civil Commitment Center in Arcadia.

By Friday, one idea had already taken the form of legislation: Members of the House and Senate filed bills that would bar sexual offenders from viewing or possessing pornography, saying the move could help prevent offenders from committing future sex crimes.

STORY OF THE WEEK: Gov. Rick Scott announced that the state would withdraw from a multistate consortium developing tests to measure student learning under the new "Common Core State Standards."

QUOTE OF THE WEEK: "Sometimes when you ride by it looks like Fred Sanford's house. We actually hang the clothes out to dry." – Corrections Secretary Michael Crews, on the fact that inmates are doing things like sewing and washing dishes to help close the Department of Corrections' budget deficit.

Law Enforcement and Courts reports

Sheriff's Report

On Thursday, Sept. 19, Winn-Dixie store officials reported a retail theft. A female suspect was observed taking $92 worth of steaks from the grocery store. She allegedly threw the bag of steaks under a parked vehicle as she was being pursued by store officials. Sgt. Mike Helms located the suspect near Ace Hardware. During the investigation, the suspect was determined to have pills in her possession for which she did not have a prescription. Kathleen Elizabeth Taylor, 45, of Crawfordville was charged with two counts of possession of a controlled substance without a prescription and felony larceny third or subsequent conviction. She was also issued a trespass warning for the store. Deputy Stephen Simmons investigated.

As enduring and unyielding as Old Hickory

Natural Wakulla

By Les Harrison

There is a lot to be gained from having a tough reputation.

Only those with a stout disposition or lack of good sense will dare to make a challenge to the individual who hold this distinction.

Unbending, rigid and durable are descriptors which invoke a firm, if not dogmatic, state of resiliency.

With this enviable identity, many compare themselves and some assimilate the traits they most admire.

Andrew Jackson is a good case in point. The seventh president grew up on the frontier, dueled with enemies, and commanded an army during the War of 1812 where he was given the nickname Old Hickory.

Like Jackson, hickories are native to North America and are highly valued for their long wearing qualities.

While Jackson is not currently here in Wakulla County, there are plenty of hickories growing locally.

There are three hickories in Wakulla County, bitternut, mockernut and water. The water hickory is usually found in wetter areas and the other two species in upland sites.

This genus, Carya, is found in North America and East Asia.

The term identifying this genus was coined in Greek mythology and originally referred to a woman who was transformed to a walnut tree.

Karya, or so the story goes, was the daughter of a divinely well-connected king who had gained favor with Apollo. As a courtesy, Karya and her sisters were granted the skill of prophecy from the deity.

As is typical of Greek myths and soap operas, the sisters misused their gift of divination and were punished. Karya was turned into a walnut tree by her boyfriend who was the mythological god of winemaking and ritual madness.

Legendary tragedies aside, hickory trees have a wide variety of contemporary uses important commercially and environmentally.

The wood of hickories is relatively hard and is used where a durable and sturdy material are required. Tool handles and flooring are two of the most common uses today.

Prior to the development of modern composite materials, hickory lumber was utilized in vehicle parts, golf club shafts, archery equipment, and a variety of other uses which anticipated hard use.

Hickory was used to construct original baseball bats until ash came into common use because of its lighter weight.

Hickories are an excellent specimen tree in a landscape. These tall, deciduous trees usually grow from a single trunk and provide excellent shade during the summer.

The leaves can deliver a bright yellow show in the autumn and, if planted on the south side of a home, provide passive solar heating during the cooler months.

Mockernut and water hickory nuts have been used in recipes, but are difficult to crack.

One caution is not to establish a hickory near a home or other structure. Squirrels will quickly identify the nuts as a food source and can be quite messy.

Another problem issue is if a tree falls during a storm. The logs are quite heavy and will likely crush anything they hit, especially homes and vehicles. Hickory is popular and long burning firewood. It is also widely used by barbecue aficionados who prize the distinct flavor it leaves.

CROSS COUNTRY

Madison Harris nabs title for Dolphin Dash

Albert Smythe leads boys team

By PAUL HOOVER
WHS Track Coach

On Saturday, Sept. 28, the Wakulla High School cross country teams headed to Lynn Haven for the annual Dolphin Dash Invitational cross country meet.

The local harriers and runners from all over the big bend area converged on the Lynn Haven Recreation Center for the race and were greeted with the first really cool weather of the season and a flat, but somewhat muddy 2 ½ loop course around the park.

WHS senior standout Madison Harris led the way in the Girls Varsity Race.

At the mile mark she was running comfortably in third place behind girls from Crestview and Arnold high schools. Passing the mile in 6:00, she only smiled when her coach called her time and noted the split was a little faster than they had planned.

By the 2-mile mark she was alone in first place and steadily pulling away from her pursuers. As she turned the last corner on the course, she put on her patented finishing kick, crossing the finish line in the National Elite Second Team time of 19:08, 47 seconds ahead of the second place runner from Arnold. Her time was not only a new course record, but also a new WHS school record.

Not to be outdone, the other girls on the team also ran outstanding races: senior Margaret Wiedeman, the previous school record holder, ran a strong, gutsy race, finishing in seventh place in a season best time of 21:06. Junior Lydia Wiedeman was the next local finisher, crossing the line in 12th place in a new personal record (PR) 21:46. Freshman Haleigh Martin (22:18) and sophomore Connie Lewis (22:55) were the final two scorers for the WHS team, finishing in 23rd and 31st places, respectively. Both times were also new PR's for them.

Senior Marlee Kelley (26:21) and freshman Veronica Buckland (28:09) also established new PR's in the race.

Second half comeback

Down 26-7 at halftime, the War Eagles score 27 points to beat the East Gadsden Jaguars and stay undefeated

By WILLIAM SNOWDEN
editor@thewakullanews.net

It was game of two halves. In the first half, the Wakulla War Eagles were hapless - making mistakes, like a kickoff return where the players ran into each other and the ball was downed at the 10 yard line, committing penalties, losing three fumbles, including one returned for a touchdown.

At halftime, those War Eagles were down 26-7 to the East Gadsden Jaguars.

The second half was a complete reversal: the War Eagles played a focused and determined game to score 27 unanswered points for the win.

"Once again, disappointing the way we played the first half," Head Coach Scott Klees said. "It seemed that everything that could go wrong, did."

The second half, though, "We played Wakulla style football," Klees said.

"People ask me, 'What did you say to them at the half? Did you chew 'em out?'" Klees said. "No. They're so young in some areas, if I'd chewed 'em out they would have been so down. They're not ready for that yet."

Instead, Klees and his coaches focused on details.

"We got on the board and focused on a lot of things, made some adjustments, explained what they were doing wrong, encouraged them," he said.

"But the thing I can say about this team is they have character," Klees added. "There have been a couple times now - like against Navarre - when they could have just given up. But they haven't, they don't."

MIDDLE SCHOOL FOOTBALL

WMS Wildcats remain unbeaten

By EDDIE METCALF
WMS Coach

The Wakulla Middle School Wildcat football team remained unbeaten by improving its record to 5-0 with wins including a 22-0 victory over Madison County Central, a 44-14 win over Havana Middle School and a 22-0 win over the Blountstown Middle School Tigers.

Against Madison County, Malik Rollins led all scorers with a rushing touchdown of 16 yards and a 58-yard touchdown pass thrown by Michael McKenzie-Brown.

McKenzie-Brown also hooked up with Dimonte Riles for 16 yards touchdown throw and catch. McKenzie-Brown was 3 of 5 passing on the day. Cephus Greene led all rushers with 40 yards on 9 carries.

The Wildcat defense earned their second shut-out of the year thanks to some great tackling. Defensive lineman Tre' Jackson and inside linebackers Antwan Thomas, Blake Goldin and Bailey Sumner shut down the inside runs.

The Wildcats also had great play from outside linebackers Nick Register and Tommie Webster, along with safety Malik Rollins. McKenzie-Brown intercepted a pass and returned it for 15 yards.

The Wildcat offense rushed for over 350 yards against the Havana Middle School Bears on its way to a 44-14 victory.

Cephus Greene led all rushers with 143 yards on 7 carries and he scored 2 touchdowns. Nick Register had 3 carries for 99 yards and 3 TDs, while Dimonte Riles ran the ball 3 times for 60 yards.

McKenzie-Brown added another touchdown on a 3 yard run and was perfect in passing with completions to Rollins and Gabe Barwick, both good for 2 point conversions. The Wildcat offensive line, including Jacob Robison, Taylor Williams, Zac Boone, Bailey Sumner, Austin Nichols and Blake Goldin, controlled the line of scrimmage and opened up big holes in the Havana defense.

The first team defense for the Wildcats held Havana to just 6 points and was lead by hard play from the defensive line and line backers. Taylor Williams, Jacob Robison, Nick Register, Blake Goldin and Antwan Thomas all made big plays against the Havana offense. McKenzie-Brown intercepted another pass in the first quarter, bringing his season total to two.

The Wildcats defense dominated the Tigers offense as well, and held them to -21 total yards in the first half of the game.

The Tigers found themselves facing a fourth down and 12 on their first possession after a sack on first down by Athan Dempsey, a tackle for a loss by Tre' Jackson on second down and a huge hit by Blake Goldin on third down. Thanks to a big block by Dempsey, Greene returned a punt inside the Blountstown 30 yard line. Two plays later, McKenzie-Brown hit Gabe Barwick for an 11 yard touchdown pass and Dimonte Riles ran in the 2 point conversion behind another great block by Dempsey.

The Wildcat defense forced the Tigers to punt again on their second possession behind a Keoni Parker sack and a Taylor Williams tackle for a loss. The Wildcat second drive was a 15-play, 70-yard drive. Nichols, Williams, and Goldin led the offensive line which controlled the line on scrimmage and opened up holes for Dempsey and Greene. McKenzie-Brown connected with Rollins on a 14 yard throw and catch on third down that kept the Wildcat drive alive. The drive was finished off by a 1 yard touchdown run by McKenzie-Brown and Greene added the 2 point conversion.

The Wildcats third score came when the defense forced the Tigers to punt again on their third possession. Malik Rollins received the punt on the Wildcat 34 yard line and followed some great blocks by Dorian Allen, Antwan Thomas, Nick Register and the rest of the defense, which enabled Rollins to return it 66 yards for a touchdown. The 2 point try failed.

The second half was played entirely by the second and third teams for the Wildcats, and everyone got to play.

The Wildcats will play Jefferson County on Oct. 8 on the road and will return home for the final home game against the Riversprings Bears on Oct. 22 at 7 p.m. Come out and support the Wildcats.

The WHS girls team finished in the runner-up slot of the 13 full teams that competed, only six points behind the 3A Crestview girls and 30 points ahead of the third place 3A Lincoln team. Harris and the Wiedeman sisters were individually recognized for finishing in the top 15 overall.

JV/OPEN RACE

Earlier, the JV/Open race was the first race of the day, and the local runners who participated in it ran a number of outstanding times and had set the tone for the rest of the day.

J.P. Piotrowski (19:03) led the way with a third place finish and was followed by 10 other WHS runners, eight of whom ran new PRs. Those setting PRs included Riley Welsh (21:01), James Story (21:12), Logan Cook (21:16), Nick Emerson (21:42), Gil Damon (21:50), Tyler Westcott (22:39), Alex Smythe (26:03) and Alex Ross (26:17).

Former outstanding WHS runner and current Cross Country volunteer, Cora Atkinson, showed that she is still a factor in any race she enters, finishing as the first overall female in at time of 21:07 and Assistant Coach Katie Hathcock (23:18) showed that she practices what she preaches by finishing as the third place female.

BOYS VARSITY RACE

The extremely competitive Boys Varsity race was the final race of the morning and, because of that, faced warmer weather, but the WHS team handled it well and ran to a strong third place finish out of the 14 full teams that participated.

At the mile mark, WHS runners sophomore Albert Smythe and senior Aaron Smith were together in about 20th place. Smythe continually moved up throughout the remainder of the race and, with a final surge, moved into 5th place and held that, finishing in a new PR and State Elite Time of 17:04.

Freshman Bryce Cole ran a controlled, even-paced race, continuously moving up through the field until finally finishing in 11th place in a new PR of 18:04.

Juniors Alan Pearson (18:36, 20th), Lane Williams (18:51, 26th) and Mitchell Atkinson (18:55, 27th) were the remaining scorers for the local team. Sophomores Colton McCully (19:18, 37th) and Evan Gurarino (19:33, 42nd) also ran excellent races, with both establishing new PRs.

Smythe and Cole were both recognized individually for finishing in the top 15 overall.

The teams will next travel to Marianna on Saturday, Oct. 5, to compete in the ultra-competitive Panhandle Championships.

Lady War Eagles in two tourneys

By AMY LEE
Special to The News

The Lady War Eagles played in two golf tournaments last week.

On Tuesday tournament play was a Hilaman Golf Course with Leon, Lincoln, Rickards, and Wakulla participating. Lowest overall score for an individual player (out of 15 players) was Wakulla's Kenzie Lee with a score of 43. Sadly, that was not enough for Wakulla to bring home the win. Leon High edged them out by a score of 214 to 221. Lincoln placed third with 232 and Rickards came in 4th with 273.

Wakulla player Micahlyn Jeziorski tied for third with two other players with a score of 48 and Rachel Wofter scored 62 and Alyssa Stokely scored 68.

On Wednesday the ladies played at Killearn Country Club along with John Paul II, Chiles, and Lincoln. Wakulla placed third overall with a score of 231. Kenzie Lee tied for third with a score of 44, Micahlyn Jeziorski scored 50, Rachel Wofter scored 62 and Alyssa Stokely scored 68.

This week the ladies play at Hilaman on Tuesday and Wednesday.

On Monday, Oct. 7 the team will participate in the "Cities Championship" Tournament at Southwood Golf Course. They will then have a week off to prepare for the District Tournament on Oct. 14.

Second half comeback

Navarre was the home-opener when the War Eagles came back with a game winning touchdown with seconds remaining in the game.

"They're growing up in front of everybody's eyes," Klees said of his team. "I'm really, really proud."

GAME RECAP

Wakulla took the opening kickoff but the opening drive was stopped by a fumble recovered at Wakulla's 29 yard line. The Jags scored a touchdown to go up 7-0.

The two teams exchanged punts on subsequent drives.

Then Wakulla's Antonio Morris made one of several slashing runs. Quarterback Feleipe Franks connected with wide receiver brother Jordan Franks for a first down. A few plays later, Morris had the ball to the Jags 15. Bryan Nichols moved it to the 10, and the Franks brothers connected on a 12-yard screen pass for a touchdown. The extra point tied it at 7-7 with 24 seconds remaining in the first quarter.

The Jags stormed right back with two quick running plays to score a touchdown, though the point-after was no-good, and they led 13-7 with .6 seconds still remaining in the first quarter.

The kickoff was fumbled and East Gadsden recovered at the Wakulla 30. The War Eagle defense refused to yield though, and the Jags tried a field goal – but the snap was low and bobbled by the holder, who scrambled with the ball looking for a receiver but his attempted pass fell incomplete and the War Eagles took over.

It looked like the momentum was about to shift back to Wakulla, but on the War Eagles first play the ball was fumbled and scooped up by the Jaguars and returned for a touchdown to make it 20-7.

The two teams exchanged several punts, and then East Gadsden managed a drive down the field to score a touchdown to go up 26-7 with 1:40 remaining in the second quarter.

The War Eagles tried to mount a quick drive to answer but couldn't convert on a fourth down at midfield, but left the Jags with only a few ticks on the clock before halftime.

To start the second half, the War Eagles kicked off and stopped the Jags, who went for it on fourth down deep in their own territory. The Wakulla drive culminated in a 2-yard Monterious Loggins touchdown run on fourth down. The extra point was blocked, and Wakulla trailed 26-13.

The War Eagle defense forced a punt on the Jags next drive. Facing a third down and 7 on the Wakulla 13 yard line, Feleipe Franks scrambled for a first down. Next was a pass to wide receiver Corion Knight, and then Antonio Morris broke a long run to the Jags 3, and Monterious Loggins took it in a couple of plays later for the score. The extra point was good, and the War Eagles trailed 26-20.

The Jags next drive was stopped by a diving interception at midfield by Kierny Parsons. Malik Thomas had a couple of quick slashing runs and the War Eagles had a first and 10 at the Jags' 17. A few plays later, Antonio Morris punched it in from the 3 for a touchdown. The extra point gave Wakulla their first lead of the night, 27-26.

The War Eagle defense stopped the Jags again, forcing a punt. Wakulla couldn't move the ball either and punted.

East Gadsden had a fourth and 8 at their own 20 and went for it with less than 4 minutes in the game, but the pass was deflected by linebacker James Douin and the War Eagles took over on downs.

Wakulla took advantage with a 22-yard Franks-to-Franks touchdown pass to pad the lead, 34-26.

But the Jags wouldn't give up even as time was quickly ticking off the clock. They got as deep as the Wakulla 17 but a fourth down pass was deflected and the War Eagles took over on downs with less than 30 seconds remaining – an emotional defensive stop that had Klees and defensive coordinator Grady Guess running out onto the field to congratulate the defensive players for not giving up.

UP NEXT: GODBY

Wakulla is a perfect 5-0 with its biggest game of the year coming up on Thursday night against district rival Godby – the No. 1 ranked 5A football team in the state.

Last year, of course, the War Eagles went undefeated in regular season, including beating Godby, to become district champs. But Wakulla fell in the second round of the playoffs to Godby, who then went on to become state champions.

Wakulla defenders jar the ball loose.

The stands were packed at J.D. Jones Stadium.

FLORIDA STATE SEMINOLES

Just another astonishing game from Jameis Winston

Florida State receiver Kenny Shaw brings in a 55-yard pass from quarterback Jameis Winston just before the half to change the game's momentum. It wasn't a Hail Mary, it was a conceived play.

By TIM LINA FELT

First of all, it wasn't a Hail Mary.

Jameis Winston's defender-dodging, momentum-swinging 55-yard touchdown pass to Kenny Shaw at the end of the first half was several things.

Astonishing, astounding and awe-inspiring, among other superlatives.

But it wasn't a Hail Mary.

So said coach Jimbo Fisher after Florida State's 48-34 win at Boston College, in which his freshman quarterback, Jameis Winston, added yet another highlight to his perpetually growing reel.

"We tried to double-move the safety and we had pressure and Kenny went ahead and got the double move and got down there," Fisher said. "We took a shot because it was at the end of the half, but we ran it like a (normal) play.

"It wasn't a true Hail Mary-type play. It was a conceived play."

OK, not a Hail Mary. But just because Shaw's route was something other than "run really fast in a straight line" (Fisher said it was a "snake route") doesn't mean the sequence was any less impressive.

With the clock running down on the second quarter, Winston received a shotgun snap with 1 second remaining, and, as has become common lately, quickly found himself with defenders in his face.

This time, it was defensive lineman Mehdi Abdesmad and linebacker Mike Strizak giving chase.

Winston first shuffled to his left – evading Abdesmad – then wrestled out of Strizak's grip, scanning downfield as he scrambled to his right.

By the time he pulled back to throw, another defender, linebacker Steven Daniels, had closed on him, knocking the quarterback to the ground as the ball left his hand.

Fifty-five yards later, Kenny Shaw hauled in the pass over the head of BC's Spenser Rositano and, after previously trailing 17-3, FSU improbably went into halftime with a 24-17 lead.

"It couldn't have been more on the money," Shaw said. "I knew he could get it there. He can throw it probably on his knees to the end zone."

And Winston, of course, was typically unimpressed with himself.

"I actually held the ball too long, that's why they almost sacked me," he said. "It was a great play. I just thank God because it looked like a miracle but we do that in practice all the time."

So, not a Hail Mary and not a miracle. Fine, but Winston still played the largest role in ensuring that Florida State moved to 4-0 for a second consecutive year and didn't leave Chestnut Hill with an embarrassing loss.

On an afternoon when FSU's defense struggled with Boston College's power running offense and trick plays – or, more accurately, one trick play run twice – Winston was more than up to the task of keeping pace.

Winston finished the day with four touchdown passes. Two of them went to Rashad Greene, one to Shaw and one to fullback Chad Abram. He completed 17 of his 27 pass attempts for 330 yards and also led the Seminoles with 67 yards on the ground.

Of FSU's 489 total yards in the game, Winston accounted for 397 of them.

"I'll say this now: I'm glad he's on my team," Fisher said. "He's a great competitor and he's a fun guy to coach."

And Fisher had to do some coaching with his quarterback on Saturday. As good as Winston was, both he and Fisher agreed that he was far from perfect.

Fisher pointed out instances of Winston trying to do too much late in the game, pushing for more big plays instead of keeping it safe with a multi-score lead.

Winston, fairly or not, took responsibility for Florida State's slow start, and rather than focus on his accomplishments, spoke mostly about his need for improvement.

"I'm not even worried about what everyone else is saying. I've got to get so much better," he said. "Obviously there were some things I did tonight that are not acceptable."

FLORIDA GATORS

MURPHY KEPT THE FAITH

GATOR BAIT / STEVE JOHNSON

Junior quarterback Tyler Murphy came off the bench and turned in a surprisingly efficient performance.

By MARTY COHEN

It was supposed to be Jeff Driskel taking the mantle of leadership at quarterback – after all, head coach Will Muschamp reiterated time and again in the preseason, "this is Jeff's team."

It was supposed to be Matt Jones heading the group at tailback, perhaps just keeping the seat warm until flash freshman Kelvin Taylor was ready to take over. It was supposed to be Quinton Dunbar and Andre Debose stepping up at wide receiver, along with some anticipated dash and panache from rookies like Demarcus Robinson and Ahmad Fulwood.

Instead, at the quarter-pole of the regular season, it's Tyler Murphy running and throwing, it's Mack Brown becoming the lead ball carrier and its barely-used Solomon Patton making plays in the air.

Just like we all forecast.

It's the charm of sports, where there is no script and the results can be both enthralling and devastating, often at the same time. Just when we think we know what to expect, the narrative gets flipped upside-down and lands a bit sideways.

And after watching Florida's offense come alive under the direction of Murphy, who had done nothing in four years to indicate he was capable of commanding the huddle and providing a spark, all you can do is shake your head and marvel at the unpredictable nature of the games we watch.

After a Keystone Kops first half against Tennessee that featured seven turnovers, not counting an inexplicable drop of a deep snap by punter Kyle Christy that was tantamount to a turnover, Murphy came out and helped settle things down for the home side. A pair of long touchdown drives – both 11 plays for 79 and 84 yards, consuming more than five minutes each – took the stress out of a strange afternoon in The Swamp as the Gators kicked off the SEC season with a 31-17 victory over the Vols.

Barely five minutes into the game, disaster struck. Driskel's season came to a sudden end when at the end of another ill-advised throw that was intercepted and returned 62 yards for a stunning score by Devaun Swafford. Vols defensive end Marlon Walls rolled up on Driskel's right leg, causing a fracture of the fibula. The ultimate injury on top of insult.

Enter Murphy, a fourth-year junior who was nothing more than a backup, often third-string at UF and at times fourth-string, recruited as an insurance policy a few years back on a roster lacking quarterback depth. Offensive coordinator Steve Addazio unearthed the barely-recruited Murphy late in the recruiting process after Murphy sent a tape to UF, and along with head coach Urban Meyer, offered the Connecticut native a scholarship. Murphy, a two-star prep prospect, quickly accepted. "I wasn't a highly recruited guy – I didn't know much about the recruiting process," Murphy sheepishly admitted. "It was a blessing."

A blessing that came to unlikely fruition last Saturday. While some had talked to Murphy about transferring, and others mentioned switching positions, Murphy was resolute in his desire to remain at quarterback.

HOME ON THE RANGE

Real men use nail polish – to mark magazines

By MARJ LAW

How many guns do you shoot when you visit the Wakulla County Sheriff's Range?

When it's time to pack up, how many times have you stared at your magazines and wondered which magazine goes to which gun? That .40-caliber and the 9 mm magazine look very similar.

It's time to break out the nail polish.

Choose as many bright colors as you have guns.

Take your .22 caliber mags and paint the bottoms all one color. Turn your .22 handgun over. Find a spot that is normally not very visible and paint a dot of the same color on it.

Choose a different color for your 9 mm gun. Paint the base of each magazine that color and add a dot of the same color to the gun itself.

Do the same for all guns you own, choosing a different color every time.

Now, when you pack up your guns, it'll be easy to match each gun to its magazine.

This is an organization issue and it's also a safety caution.

For instance, a .40-caliber cartridge can fit into a .45 ACP handgun. You can actually get away with shooting it sometimes.

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

Mark magazines of one caliber with one color of nail polish, and the base of the pistol to keep organized on the gun range so that you don't accidentally try to fire the wrong ammunition.

The smaller bullet can split and damage the barrel and its rifling as it explodes inside. The gases can escape and particles of the casings can fly out the ejection port into the face of the shooter. Who wants to take this chance?

Shooting the incorrect size bullet in a gun carries potential physical damage and maybe expensive damage to your favorite gun.

And, in a worse case scenario, if the too-small bullet expands to fit a too-large chamber, its casing can fragment and fly back into the top bullet of your magazine. Yikes! The whole magazine-full can go off!

To sum up, it's very dangerous to put the incorrect load into a gun.

Real men (and women) do use nail polish.

Marj Law is the former director of Keep Wakulla County Beautiful who has become an avid shooter in retirement

Douin father and sons harvest big alligator

Special to The News

Robert Douin Sr. and his sons harvested a 14 foot, 1 inch alligator recently.

The evening started with a typical dad and sons gator hunt but in the end a record gator the Douin's Alligator is one for the record books – being the fourth alligator to ever break 14 feet in Florida and taking the number two spot in the state.

This alligator was taken out of Lake Talquin on Sept. 2 with one of the state issued hunt permits.

Robert Sr., James, Joshua, and little Robert all wrestled with this alligator until it reached the boat.

While sneaking up on the alligator they saw it swim into a cove which they followed and to their surprise when they arrived the beast was in shallow water. The animal walked up the creek in about six inches of water, and the Douin team followed.

To lose weight in the boat so that it would float better in the shallow water, Joshua climbed a tree right before Robert Sr. and Robert II jumped out to inch the boat closer. Once arriving close enough to the gator, James harpooned it so they had the first line in. Next, James got the bang stick and put a .44 bullet in the gator.

But this didn't do much but make the beast furious. Being persistent the Douin team bang stuck the alligator again before they could call it deceased.

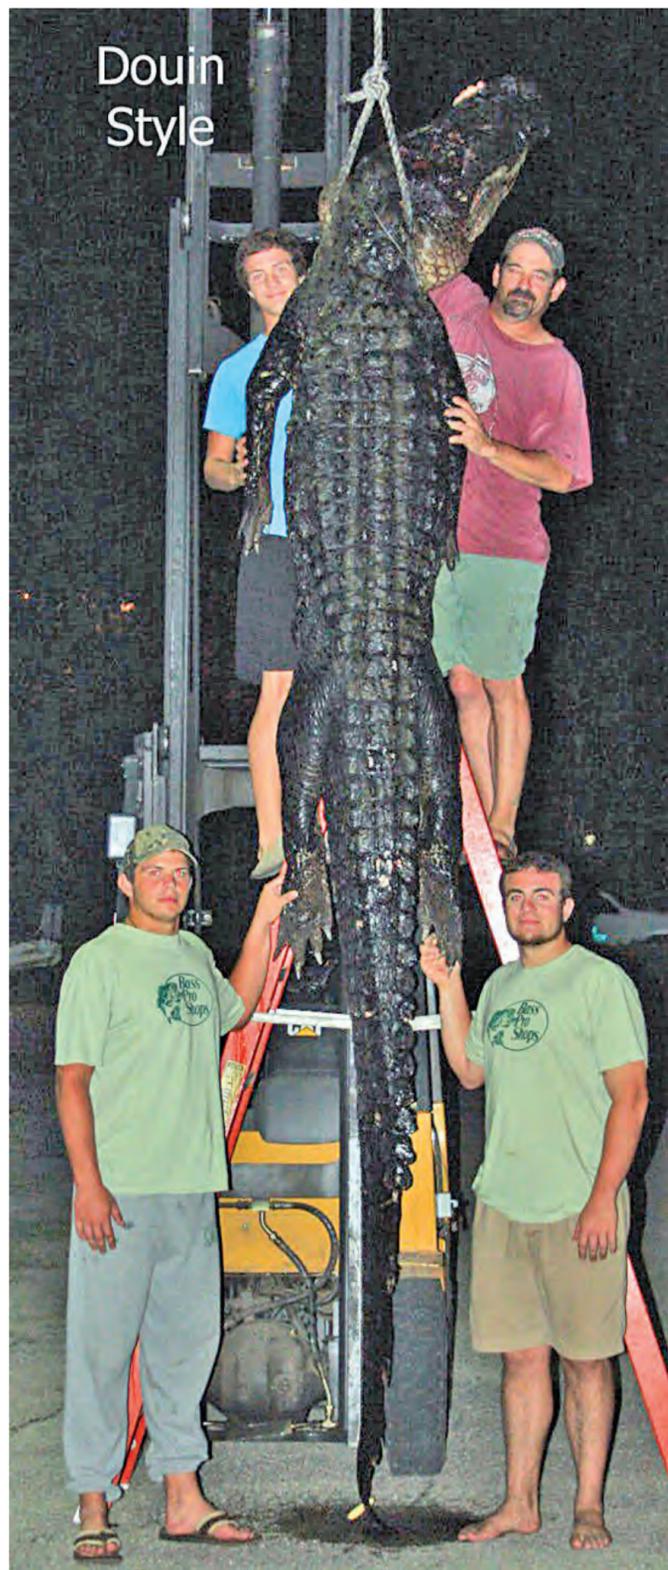

Then they called mom (Kathleen), grandpa (Freddie) and family friend Reid to the rescue with a bigger boat.

Eventually after getting the alligator out of the shallow water and into the boat they headed back to the boat ramp to celebrate after their four hour fight.

Once arriving home to measure the alligator they measured 14 feet and 4 inches right down his back, however when FWC showed up to measure the beast they made a mark at the front of snout and and tip of tail and measure from marks, thus bringing in this alligator to a staggering 14 feet 1 inch for the record book.

The Douins say it was scary and fun and this will always be a fond memory to remember with the family!

Water Ways

Local writers share their experiences

a peek into life on and under the water

Coast Guard Auxiliary Reports

By Carolyn Brown Treadon

It has been another slow week for many members of Flotilla 12.

While we have not been out on the water, we have still been very active.

This past week, member Bruce Connors volunteered representing the Auxiliary with the Clean Wakulla event launching his boat from the ramp at Mashers Sands.

Bruce collected trash and other items from the area, such as bottles and cans.

Many wildlife creatures in our area are harmed or killed from trash thrown into the waterways.

While most is unintentional litter, it is important to remember make sure your trash is contained before powering up your boat.

If you see trash in the water, take a minute to pick it up.

If we all do a little bit, it can make a huge difference.

Saturday, members of Flotilla 12 will come together for their monthly meeting. This weekend, in addition to the meeting there will also be a workshop training on diversity.

Within the Auxiliary, we strive to recognize everyone's assets and unique qualities.

It is in these differences that we make a stronger team!

If you would like to attend out meeting, please contact Duane Treadon for meeting time and location at FC@USCGAUX.net.

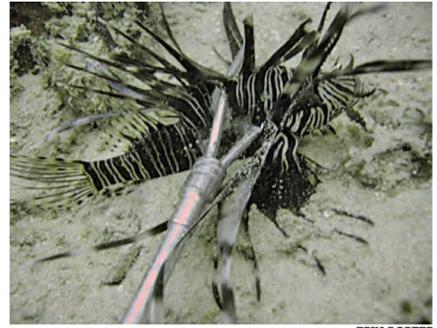

As Sherrie says, Safe Boating is no Accident - you are the one who can make a difference!

If you are interested in becoming involved in the Auxiliary, check out our website at www.uscgaux.net for membership information or contact our Flotilla Staff Officer for Human Resources Fran Keating at fso-hr@uscgaux.net.

Underwater Wakulla

ERIN PORTER

A paralyzer point speared Lionfish.

Lionfish venom

Increased sightings of the Lionfish Pterois off our coast have heightened the interests of our Wakulla fishermen and divers alike.

Since collecting these beautiful fish is anticipated, in part because they taste good, are easy to spear and their population needs to be kept down, their spines have become the talk of the town. Lionfish injury rank second in number of marine stings worldwide, exceeded only by the stingray.

What happens when you get too close, are stung and subsequently injured by their venom?

The venom is a neurotoxin, primarily located on the dorsal (top), ventral and anal spines of the fish. When threatened, this slow moving fish will extend its spines and bow toward the aggressor. Upon impact, the venom sacs on either side of the spine are squeezed sending poison from the venom glands through grooves in the wall of the spine and into the puncture wound. The primary toxins are the neurotoxin acetylcholine, and a neuromuscular toxin. The pain is immediate and can last up to 20 minutes, or longer in more sensitive people.

A common treatment to denature the toxin is immediate soaking the afflicted area in hot water (no higher than 114 degrees F) for 30 minutes. If hot water is not available, aspirin can be taken but do not treat with both. Gentle removal of any remaining spines in the wound and direct pressure may be necessary to treat the physical injury.

People react differently to the venom of insects and fish. A person stung by the Lionfish venom may experience intense throbbing, sharp pain, tingling sensations, sweatiness and blistering. Those who are allergic to the venom will react with more pain than others. Allergic reactions (anaphylactic shock) are not uncommon so be prepared to monitor vitals and provide CPR if necessary. Lionfish anti-venom has not been identified, but stonefish anti-venom may help. Unfortunately, you will not know how reactive you are before the sting, so prevention is an important plan of action, and be prepared to treat the sting before exposure to the threat. Have a hospital evacuation procedure available.

Clearly, injury prevention is required. Today, spine proof bags and gloves are finding their way into area dive shops. The paralyzer tipped (three tips) small pole spears easily capture the Lionfish and permit easy placement into a lobster-like collection bag where fish removal and containment is untouched by human hands. Once the fish has died, the venom in the spines can remain active for up to an hour. A dedicated cooler on the boat can hold the fish out of harm's way until removal of the venom spines can be accomplished safely ashore.

Once "defanged," cleaning, and cooking the fish becomes routine. Lionfish cookbooks abound.

I recommend visiting Lionfish Hunters website for a fascinating learning experience and watch some of their YouTube presentations. (<http://www.lionfishhunters.org>).

I grew up with Lionfish in my waters in Hawaii. We took them in stride and treated them with respect. As an invasive species here in the Gulf of Mexico, we may yet make a little lemonade out of this otherwise challenging dilemma.

Lionfish derby offers real life experience

By AMANDA NALLEY
FWC News

The lionfish is a hot topic right now. The population of this invasive, nonnative species has boomed exponentially in the past few years, and recent scientific studies indicate that this species may be negatively impacting our marine resources.

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission has taken notice and is moving forward with actions to help control the population, from changing regulations to hosting a Lionfish Summit later this month (Oct. 22-24) in an effort to identify research and management gaps and brainstorm solutions to the lionfish issue. The summit will be in Cocoa Beach. Visit FWCLionfish.Eventbrite.com to learn more.

In August, I got plenty of firsthand knowledge as I attended the first ever Northeast Florida Lionfish Rodeo in Jacksonville. As the boats began to come in, I, with the help of coworker Alan Peirce, helped filet lionfish and, later, got to eat some.

Lionfish have up to 18 spines that have venom. To be clear here, the spines are not hollow like a snake's fangs. Instead, they are more like clear to opaque toothpicks with grooves. If you were to stick yourself, the skin covering the spine would push back, releasing the venom encapsulated in grooves along the spine.

The venom is not in the meat of the fish. It is also susceptible to heat, so cooking the fish neutralizes it. The stings are painful, but can be treated with hot, but not scalding, water.

When filleting a lionfish, you have quite a few options to keep your hands and fingers safe. My personal favorite was a needle-resistant glove. Using it on my left hand only to hold the fish down, I used my ungloved hand to fillet. Others chose to go gloveless and hold the spines down.

While there wasn't much meat on the smaller ones, the effort was worth the return: a delicious, flaky white delicacy. It is not "fishy" in taste and has a nice consistency.

The rodeo was a success, with more than 400 lionfish removed from the waters near Jacksonville. The largest was 17 inches and the smallest, a mere 3.5 inches.

WHOO'S HUE! Funny thing about the ghost at right, shade it one color, and suddenly, with hardly any effort at all, you will be able to see it in an entirely different hue. Here's how: Color the figure bright red, for instance. Stare at the eye intently for a few seconds, then shift your gaze to a light-colored wall. Alakazam, a ghostly image appears in pale green. Color it blue, it turns yellow, etc.

CAT NIPPER! Can you solve this old riddle? A room with nine facing corners has a black cat sitting in each corner, eight cats in front of each cat and one cat on each cat's tail. How many cats are there in all? P.S. It's a trick question.

CRYSTAL CLEAR STEPWORDS

THERE IS no need to consult a crystal ball to run the gamut from 1 to PREDICT in the stepword exercise above. Simply add a letter and shuffle the lot, as necessary, to form a new word in each step. Definitions:

1. That thing.

3. Put controls on what you eat.
4. Gave it a go.
5. Rating important to charge cards.
6. Foretell things to come.

How quickly can you fill the blanks?

Discover the beauty of Butchart Gardens

By LINDA CARTER
Special to The News

Talk about amazing gardens and most people immediately think of England. I confess I did too before discovering Victoria, Canada. This charming island off the coast of Vancouver is a complete departure from Vancouver's big city vibe.

Waiting to be discovered, the island beckons you to slow down and enjoy a while.

Stroll around the compact downtown. Boats bob on their moorings, and bees buzz around the baskets of flowers just dripping with color that hang on every light pole. The iconic Fairmont Empress Hotel, built in 1904, dominates the harbor front. A National Historic Site of Canada, this chateau style hotel was once part of the Canadian Pacific Hotels. During the summer, sip tea with scones and clotted cream in the Tea Lobby, reservations recommended two weeks in advance.

Not far from downtown is world famous Butchart Gardens, <http://www.butchartgardens.com>.

Designed to be visited more than once, every season is completely different. Open at 9 a.m., closing hours vary seasonally.

Once an abandoned rocks quarry and cement factory, today the only surviving part that can be seen is a tall chimney from a long abandoned kiln. In the early 1900's workers moved soil by horse and cart to the bottom of the quarry one load at a time. This was the beginning of the bountiful gardens we see today. Now crisscrossed by trails, and awash with blooms, rooms of color each in a different style, await your perusal.

The tulips and hyacinths herald springs arrival. Enjoy the fragrance of thousands of flowers blooming in unison. Rhododendrons provide a backdrop for the tiny grape hyacinths, and daffodils under a canopy flowering cherries.

Summer brings out the mesmerizing begonias. Saucer size blossoms, in pastel colors, more reminiscent of a camellias with whisper soft petals. Famous for their blue poppies, enjoy peonies, hydrangeas, delphiniums and trellises covered with climbing roses. Summer also brings live music to the gardens.

In autumn leaves turn from green to red, and the highlights are the flaming Japanese Maples, chrysanthemums and beautiful dahlias.

When winter holidays approach, the gardens are bedecked with thousands of twinkling lights.

Like rooms in a house, different garden string together to form the whole of Butchart Gardens. Benches invite you to sit, while fountains gurgle and splash, in the background.

If you are going on an Alaska cruise chances are you are leaving from Vancouver, Canada or Seattle Washington. From either of these departure points it is easy to get to Victoria, and definitely worth a visit.

From Seattle, hop aboard the Black Ball Ferry Line - www.cohoferry.com/main.

During peak season there are up to four trips a day.

From Vancouver to Victoria use the BC Ferries www.bcferries.com. Bring a jacket - even in the summer evenings can get chilly.

Public buses makes the trip from downtown Victoria to the gardens as well as local tours.

No matter what your plans, take the time visit to Victoria, Canada and Butchart Gardens..
